Public opinion is never far wrong

You can cheat it for a time, but only for a time. The average life of a patent medicine is less than two years. They are pretty well advertised, some of them, but it isn't what is said of them, but what they are able to do which carries them through the years.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

(which made Sarsaparilla famous)

has never recommended itself to do what it knew of itself it could not do. It has never been known as a cure-all in order to catch all. For half a century it has been the one true, safe blood purifier, made in the best way out of the best ingredients. Thousands of families are using it where their fathers and grandfathers used it before, and its record is equaled by no other medicine.

Is the best any too good for you?

A BABY PASSENGER.

By Bram Stoker.

One night we were journeying in the west of the Rockies over a road bed which threatened to jerk out our teeth with every lobely-laid sleeper on the line.

Traveling in that part of the world, certainly in the days I speak of, was pretty hard. The travelers were mostly men all unwashed, all overawed, and indulgent of anything which hindered their work or interfered with the measure of their repose. In night journeys the berths of the sleeping cars were made up early, and as all the night trains were sleeping cars, the only thing to be done was to turn in at once and try and sleep away the time. As most of the men were usually tired out with the day's work, the arrangement suited everybody. You can understand that on such journeys any unusual noise was disturbing enough, certainly. Fortunately they were, as night travelers, rare, and the women, with that consideration for the needs of their men folk which I have always noticed in American female workers, used to devote themselves to keeping the little ones quiet.

The weather was harsh and sneering and coughing was the order of the day. This made the people in the sleeper, all men, irritable, all the more that as most of them were contributing to the general chorus of rounds coming muffled through quilts and curtains, it was impossible to single out any special offender for general execration. After awhile however, the chance of a disturbance from sneezing or sitting down began to have some kind of soothing effect, and men sounds of occasional coughing became only a pleasant or irritating, frequently the train stopped at a way station. Supervisor Hall of Sharon, was seen on our streets for last any with book in hand, looking for any Sharonite who might be loitering or trading here in town, to get his assessment. It's pretty hard to escape him, even in the whirl of business activity.

Our citizens have been much interested in the condition of S. W. Clarkson of ANN ARBOR, who had his operating table formed at the university for the cure of the liver. His condition is not quite so favorable this week, but we trust that he may ultimately recover.

Mrs. M. D. Case went to Ann Arbor Monday afternoon, accompanied by Mrs. M. A. Rowe and Dr. Lynch, and on Tuesday submitted to an operation for cancer in the breast. Her husband received word by telephone at 1 o'clock that the operation was successful and that she had recovered from the anesthetic—Mrs. Case has suffered for a year or more and was fully convinced that only by an operation of this kind could her life be prolonged. Dr. Lynch and Mrs. Rowe returned with the glad intelligence that Mrs. Case was doing well, and Mr. Case will go over Friday to see her.

Dr. L. N. Palmer of Brooklyn, came here and last Friday together with Henry Dickson, visited Sister Cole at Manchester. Sister Cole is blind, and has been the wife now or pickerel from the cold depths of Gilbert's lake, but without effect. That evening he visited Commander Dodge of G. A. R. fame, and succeeding in getting the old veteran down from Volland. He has been an enthusiastic mason since he was initiated into the mysteries of Manchester lodge in 1868, and has filled nearly all the offices in blue lodge and chapter. He found his time altogether too limited to satisfy his desire for a good long visit with his sisters, Mrs. Calhoun and Mrs. Lowery, as he was obliged to return home Saturday morning. His wife was here with him.

Norvell Farmers' Club.

The April meeting was held at Cottage Home farm, with Mr. & Mrs. T. B. Halladay, on the 20th. No programme was set, but the members of the club were nearly all present, so that the promise of a family gathering was realized.

Vice President L. D. Watkins presided, and after prayer by W. R. Mount and the reading of the minutes, T. B. Halladay of the legislative committee reported, stating disappointing as the proposed tax on inheritances had to the bill raising the tax for the university from ½ to ¼ of a mill. He also spoke of the County Salaries bill, due largely to the efforts of Patron of Pilot, and the duty of every voter who favored the bill to turn a cold shoulder to those who voted against it.

Mrs. W. R. Mount's essay was on the subject of Talents. While these differ much, circumstances and opportunities often enable those of less gifts to appear to possess the talents.

Mrs. W. R. Lowry read a selection entitled "Who is the best Farmer?"

Discussion on the subject of Road-making, was introduced by a paper read by John Green. He would plow the sides of the road and let the sod rot before using the scraper, as the latter would be sure to result in the earth being thrown on the road-side.

Mrs. Mary Hoaring of Ann Arbor, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Norvell Lowry, this week, drove down here to call on friends. Monday.

Mrs. L. A. White returned home from Lansing Monday and reports her daughter, Mrs. Geo. W. Sanborn and little baby daughter doing well.

Toledo came here Monday to visit her parents, Mr. & Mrs. Geo. Merriman, west of town, and other relatives.

Lawyer Waters was up bright and early Monday morning and drove to Ann Arbor, to be present at the opening of the May term of circuit court.

Mrs. Oliver Wright of the Freeman house, entertained her mother, Mrs. Burket, and her niece, Miss Cooley, of Bowling Green, Ohio, over Sunday.

Mrs. J. E. Teeter, Mrs. Warren Hoxie and Miss Pearl Teeter went to Chelsea yesterday, as delegates to the baptist association held there yesterday and today.

Mrs. John Burkhart, who now lives in Grand Rapids, has been here the past week and bought a monument of Frank Jacquemain, to be placed on her lot at oak grove.

John Jackson has been confined to his home the past two or three weeks, on account of injuries received from straining himself in lifting, but he is some what better now.

Mrs. S. E. McCord went to Hillsdale, yesterday as a delegate to the 2nd district W. C. T. U. convention, and will visit Mrs. Atwater Case, at Pittsford, before her return.

Mrs. & Mrs. Herbert Knowles of Brooklyn visited Mr. & Mrs. Geo. Pardee on Sunday.

Mrs. J. R. Blanchard of Clinton came here the Friday to take care of Mrs. Fred Valentine, and on Sunday Mr. B. brought a nurse here to take her place.

Mr. & Mrs. E. C. Westgate went to Jackson last Friday. Mr. Westgate returned Monday morning, but his wife will remain to visit his mother and friends for awhile.

Wm. Beach of Wampler's lake, was in town Saturday, but could give us no information as to whether James Moore intended to make improvements or lease the grove at his lake resort this summer or not. He said that unless he rented the grove he should fence it up, as it belonged to him.

Seasonable Goods....

We offer you this week some articles that the weather makes you realize you need. We have them and invite you to inspect what we mention.

Hammocks. Every home now a days should have one and it will not be very long before every home has them, as the prices are so reasonable that everybody can afford them now.

Refrigerators. Not a dry goods box with a door that swings, but an article constructed on scientific principles; an article that is economical in ice consumption; an article that does the work it's intended for; an article that keeps the butter sweet, the meat, milk, fruits and vegetables wholesome and good. Such an article we have to offer you, if in need, inspect our line.

People that have ice can also turn to good use another article that we keep—that's an Ice Cream Freezer. We have them very reasonable in price and an article that will do the business in no time. While we especially mention these two or three articles, do not forget that we are headquarters on all sorts of home furnishings.

Our Coming among you has made it possible for you to buy merchandise for your homes more reasonably this season than you could before. We have only gotten started a little soon we will make some introductory remarks about the coming season, that we think will give you a sense that you will be pound to buy. If you inside. Use the talk with us, come to us for what you need. Work with us and we will do you good.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

THE DRUNKARD'S WOE, LAST SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

"And There Shall Be a Great Cry Throughout the Land of Egypt"—Exodus, Chapter 11, Verse 6—The Loss of Self-Respect.

(Copyright, 1899 by Louis Klopsch.)

This was the worst of the ten plagues. The destroying angel at midnight flapped his wing over the land, and there was one dead in each house. Lamentation and mourning and woe through all Egypt. That destroying angel has fled the earth, but a far worse foe has come. He sweeps through these cities. It is the destroying angel of strong drink. Far worse destruction wrought by this second than by the first. The calamity in America worse than the calamity in Egypt. Thousands of the slain, millions of the slain. No arithmetic can calculate their number.

One upon a time four fiends met in the lost world. They resolved that the people of our earth were too happy, and these four infernals came forth to our earth on an embassy of mischief. The one fiend said: "I'll take charge of the vineyards." Another said: "I'll take charge of the grain fields." Another said: "I'll take charge of the dairy." Another said: "I'll take charge of the music." The four fiends met in the great Sahara Desert, with skeleton fingers clutched each other in handshake of fidelity, kissed each other good-bye with lip of blue flame and parted on their mission.

The fiend of the vineyard came in one bright morning amid the grapes and sat down on a root of twisted grape vine, their discouragement. The fiend knew not how to damage the vineyard, or, through it, how to damage the world. The grapes were so ripe and beautiful and luscious. They bewitched the air with their sweetness. They seemed to be so much health in every bunch; and while the fiend sat there in utter indignation and discontentment, he unclinches a cluster and squeezed it in perfect spite, and lo! his hand was red with the blood of the vineyard, and the fiend said: "That reminds me of the blood of broken hearts; I'll stir the vine, I'll stir the vine." Ever since the juice of the grapes and the blood of the people have been mixed in the vineyard, and people come with their sore heads and their bloodshot eyes and their trembling limbs and their blasted souls, and they say, "Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow? Who hath contentions? Who hath babbling? Who hath wounds without cause? Who hath redness of eyes? Who hath bitterness of spirit? Who hath the blood of the vineyard?" Ever since the fiend of the vineyard wanted to return to his home in the pit, he came from carcass to carcass and walked down amid a great cemetery of the dead.

The fiend of the grain fields came into the grain field. He wanded chin-deep amid the barley and the rye. He heard all the grain talking about bread, and prosperous husbandry, and thrifty homes. He thrust his long arms into the grain field and he pulled up the grain and threw it into the water and he made plenty in green fields, lighted with a spark from his own heart—and there was a grinding, and a mashing, and a scream, and the people came with their bottles and they dipped up the fiery liquid, and they drank, and they danced, and they staggered, and they fought, and they rioted, and they murdered, and the fiend of the pit, the fiend of the grain field, was so pleased with their behavior that he changed his residence from the pit to a whisky barrel, and there he sat by the door of the humble laughing in high merriment at the thought that out of anything so harmless as the grain of the field he might turn this world into a seeming pandemonium.

The fiend of the dairy saw the cows coming home from the pasture field, full-uddered and with distended flanks. "Ha! Ha!" I'll soon spoil all that mess. I'll add to it brandy, sugar, and nutmeg, and I'll stir into a little punch, and men will drink it, and some of the temperance people will drink it, and if it can do them no more harm it will give them a headache, and then I'll hand them over to the more vigorous fiends of the Satanic delegation." And then the fiend of the dairy leaped upon the shelf and danced until the long corridors of the dairy resounded with laughter.

Book Talk.

How many times in life a few words of good advice, coming from a friend one can depend upon, will save us hours, months, months of misery. The following which comes from Battle Creek will interest many readers. Dr. Oliver Guiteaux, Veterinary Surgeon of that city, a well known man there, as well as in Kalamazoo and Marshall, spoke a little while ago with a friend in the quarter and the result of a few timely words of advice. He says:

"I was standing in Amberg & Murphy's drug store in Battle Creek one morning when a friend of mine came in and asked for a box of kidney pills. After he had made his purchase I said quietly to him, 'You have made a mistake in buying those.' His reply was, 'How is that?' I said 'Doan's Kidney Pills are made all the others put together.' As he wanted to know my reasons for thinking so I told him that my kidneys had bothered me for years, that I suffered from severe pains in my back, could scarcely stand it, that I had nearly every symptom to be found where the kidneys are affected; that I had used remedy after remedy including box after box of the one he had purchased, and that until I used Doan's Kidney Pills I might have saved as many specifics as there be of them. I think some of them didn't me. A couple of weeks after this I met him on the street and he said to me: 'Doc, Doan's Kidney Pills are just as you represented. After using the box you gave me I went to a conversation in Amberg & Murphy's drug store I was as well as ever. I then procured Doan's and stuck to their treatment until they cured me.'

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., Sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Much a badly mixed-up boarding house affair.

LESSON VI. MAY 7, JOHN 15: 1-11.

Principal Text—"I Am the Vine, Ye Are the Branches"—John 15: 5—The Tree and the Offshoot—Notes of Explanations.

1. I am the true vine. The grapevine, the idea, the perfect vine. Christ, the one who can fulfill to them the perfect relationship of vine and branches. In the union from a natural vine; and from every other who has been called a vine. My Father is the husbandman. Not the hired keeper, but the owner of the vineyard, the original planter, possessor, and cultivator of the vine. God is Clark. The whole scheme of redemption has its source in the love and wisdom of the Godhead. Every branch. Ye are the branches. A beautiful thought has been established in vegetable physiology which illustrates in a most striking manner the nature of the union between Christ and believers, as symbolized by a vine and its branches. This theory proceeds on the assumption, I know, that the branch is the nearest not fruit. These are the external proofs—the merely baptized members, who have no life and never had—though they belong to the outward connection of the bus. He taketh away. Because their fruitlessness, they are cut off from the other branches, and their remaining is of no benefit to themselves.

2. Every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it. Cleaneth it. Prunes it, or lopes off superfluous play of words in sound between the branches, and the fruit, and the fruitless branch, and the purging (Anathetic) of the fruitful branch—Cambridge Bible.

4. Abide in me, and I in you. Continue your connection with me by trusting, loving, and obeying me. After I am gone still continue to be my disciples. Let your faith grow, your strength, your wisdom, your plans, your character, your life, all spiritual growth, be in me. Fruitfulness is the result of the union between the vine and the branch, and the more the points of contact, the more the union, the more the strength, the more the fruitfulness. Abide in me. My power, knowledge, influence, guidance, and love will enable you to produce the fruit you are to bear in holiness, up to the standard of God's law. After by the Holy Spirit, who guides into all truth, and has in our hearts the spirit of the teaching and promises. Except ye abide in me. A great principle of life and growth by which they can carry on his kingdom in the world.

6. The same bringeth forth much fruit, strongly and healthy, and not in vain. "No man can make things grow. He can only bring a seed to sprouting all the circumstances and fulfilling all the conditions, but the growth is God's work. What man can do is to place himself in the conditions of growth." While man prays in faith, God acts by law.—Professor Drummond. 6. And they are burned. Because "no better use can be made of the worthless branches." Cast forth as branches. (Ezek. 15) It is soft and yielding, shall wont to take a pile of it to burn with it. Cast forth as branches. Cast out of the church.
