

COMMUNICATIONS AND THE INVITATIONAL

In any successful business or operation, communications play an important role, and our business is certainly no exception. As a matter of fact, it is one of the most important areas of our responsibility. Unfortunately, many of us sometimes forget this, or even worse, don't place enough emphasis on communications. It was with improving communications as our major goal that this tournament was developed.

We hoped to present the Superintendent, Golf Pro, Greens Chairman, and other club officials with a relaxed, casual atmosphere, an atmosphere that is the exception rather than the rule in the everyday operational practices of our jobs.

In these surroundings, individual club problems can be discussed and even compared with other clubs with similar problems. Our 1978 tournament participants found this outing to be of great benefit in improving communications with their bosses and golf pros. We hope they and more of our Association's Superintendents will take advantage of this opportunity this September at Fairmount.

THE PRINCIPAL COMPONENTS for Toro's new low cost method for converting a golf course manual system to automatic irrigation are, left to right, the central controller, the cyler and, to replace the quick coupler, a valve-in-head gear-driven rotary sprinkler. The sprinkler shown is a Toro 670, which covers a full circle up to 204 feet in diameter.

WELCOME TO FAIRMOUNT

The site of this year's invitational, Fairmount Country Club, is one of the better diversified recreational clubs in New Jersey. It is located in Chatham Township on Southern Boulevard.

The golf course is on 140 acres of beautiful countryside and is 6,758 yards long from the championship tees. Todd Polidor, the golf course superintendent, has kept the course well maintained and challenging.

Fairmount has been the site of the 1974, 1975, and 1978 N.J.P.G.A. Championship Tournaments, so it should be familiar to the golf professionals of your foursomes. The golf professional, Kevin Riley, and his staff are looking forward, with the manager Jim Flynn and Todd Polidor, to making this tournament a most successful and enjoyable event.
