

A workshop on

WORKING WITH COMMUNITIES IN CONFLICT

The International Community Development Journal is sponsoring an afternoon workshop during the IACD Conference, on community development in areas of conflict, drawing on the experience of the special issue of the Journal devoted to this topic (published in April 1994). The workshop will take the form of a series of brief case study presentations by speakers from different parts of the world where community development has made a significant contribution to working with people in situations of conflict and violence, followed by a panel discussion. The workshop is being organised on behalf of the Editorial Board of the CDJ.
