2nd International Conference: Social Work in Health and Mental Health
12-15 January 1998, World Congress Centre, Melbourne, Australia

Participate in this exciting event in which you can share ideas across boundaries and across cultures by discussing critical contemporary issues, innovations and outcomes of health-related social work in dynamic and complex environments. The Conference will focus on the challenges of change for individuals, families and communities seeking appropriate ways to meet their health needs and identify lessons from the past as well as future directions for social work in the fields of health and mental health. This Conference builds on the first international conference auspiced by the Paul Baerwald School of Social Work, at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem in 1995, which arose from initiatives of the Mt Sinai Medical Center, New York. The First Conference clearly demonstrated the academic and practice need for an international forum focussing on this substantive area in social work, and the Israeli hosts strongly supported the move for an Australasian-based Second Conference. Just some of the issues highlighted in the Conference will be:

- Changing relationships between consumers and providers in health and mental health
- Innovations in clinical practice, education and research
- Community development and rural health and mental health
- Accountability for costing and quality improvement: outcome and program evaluation
- Case management
- Managed care
- Social work contributions to health care access and equity
- Gender, cultural and socio-economic dimensions of policy, program and practice
- Women's health and mental health
- Indigenous health and mental health issues
- Dilemmas in the structuring of social work delivery systems
- Relationships between government and non-government sectors
- Privatisation and changing fiscal structures
- Interprofessional collaboration
- Shifts from inpatient to community-based care
- Ethical dilemmas
- Escalating areas of concern such as HIV/AIDS, youth suicide, road trauma, addictions, frail aged and disability from acute care, chronic care and rehabilitation perspectives
- Social and psychological determinants of mental and physical illness.

The Conference is auspiced by the School of Social Work at the University of Melbourne and has been widely endorsed by national and international professional bodies and health-related organisations. Further details are available from the Conference Secretariat at: International Convention Management Services, 84 Queensbridge Street, Southbank, Melbourne, Vic. 3006, Australia. ## Format for Submissions:

Contributions that further the aims of the Journal are welcomed, and will be refereed. Manuscripts should be typed single-sided on A4 paper, double-spaced. Two copies of the article should be submitted and the author's name, affiliation and address should be attached to the cover, to facilitate anonymity in the refereeing of the article. One copy should be of good quality print, preferably laser-printed, although this is not essential. The article can also be sent on computer disc, in WP51, MSWord or Mac format.

Articles in general should be of 8-9,000 words in length. However longer as well as shorter articles will be published if justified by the content of the contribution. The article should begin with an abstract of approximately 150 - 200 words.

Within the body of the text references to authors is made by author, date and page number in the following way:

Makola (1982:67) indicates that: "...social development is necessary in the context of the developing world," agreeing with the view of Nkosana (1981).

Bibliographical references follow the body of the text and should be listed alphabetically and chronologically by author and date: in the case of books, by title, publisher and place of publication; in the case of articles by full journal name, volume, and first plus last page numbers; in the case of chapters, by title, collection title, editor, publisher and place of publication. Examples follow:
