your guide to searching sociological abstracts using a personal computer

Our recently published 20-page booklet will show you how to turn your personal computer into an effective research tool. You can have access to more than 180,000 citations and abstracts from the worldwide literature of sociology as fast as you can type "symbolic interactionist" (or, if you prefer, "structural functionalist").

The Guide contains:

- Hints on search strategies
- A review of Boolean logic
- Sample searches conducted on user-friendly systems
- A glossary of terms, and more . . .

To receive your free copy, simply return the coupon below. And, if you wish to attend an SA online user workshop, please be sure to mark the appropriate box.
