

EDITORIAL

As I take over the responsibilities of Editor of Zambezia, I wish to thank Professor J. N. Moyo who kept the journal going in the absence of a substantive editor. He had already collected much of the material and had done much of the preliminary work in producing this issue.

Zambezia retains its focus on social and human issues in Zimbabwe and in the surrounding region. The journal accepts contributions from a variety of disciplines and will continue to publish articles, research reports and reviews within this geographical focus.

In future, short comments and correspondence will be considered for publication. I shall particularly welcome debate arising from articles published in the journal.
