THEAR HEARTS OF OURS

BY WILLIAM D. POLLOS K

____ These hearts of ours are sad concerns, Made up of many troubless, Yet, after all, one-half our woes Are only Fancy's bubbles—

Are only little crinks that form As knitting yarn uniwisted — That soon will yield and straighten on

We are too quick to take offense, Too proped to be-forgiving. And prone to think the hardest task

For do we not the dead forgive, When tears with smiles are blended And hearts at last forgive the wronged The silent ones offended?

Each quick retors or idle word, In angry moments spoken, A memory leaves that grieves at last

And when, too late to make amends,

We then may think by kindly words True hearts we may have gladdened

God sends the sun to cheer our lives, And night consoles the weary;

And though we look on both, unmove

So should our hearts be kind, and love

(Control our simplest actions,
And "to forgive" our motive be
In every day's transactions.

Their ways are Lever dream

For life is full of little things, The soul with sadness filling

So streich the hand of Love to all There's pleasure in forgetting Each little wrong our pride repell Our hearts at last regretting.

ne night as old St. Peter slept, He left the door of Heaven ajs

And came down with a falling star

One morning as the birssed beam
Of day approached my blushing bride
And roused her from some pleasing dresn

God grant but this, I ask no more.

That when he leaves this world of pain
He'll wing his flight to that bright shore
And finds his war to Heaven again.

Jones was divesting himself of all superfluous clothing, and cutting out the sleeves of his beavy pea jacket with his pocket-knife. This done, he passed some light, strong rope through them.

The men watched him with eager interest, and seeing their inquisitive looks, he said.

"The thick sleeves will prevent the rope cutting my body, you see."

"Ay, ay, sir; I see now what you are doing."

"Now, men, I have only one request: Give me pienty of rope as fast as I draw on you. When I get on board, you know how to make a cradle, I suppose."

"Ow, when I get on board, you know how to make a cradle, I suppose."

"Ay, ay, sir; I have how are you going to plunge down."

"I have found him!"
