-Frank H. Staufer, in St. Nicholas.

The Little Man Who Had as Many Chitdres as a Sieve Has Holes. There was a little man who had many children as there are holes in a sieve. As he was going to seek his bread he met a beggar who gave him a bean and told him to plant it in his garden, assuring him at the same time that it would grow so quickly that in a short time it would reach the sky. The man sowed the bean, which grew so promptly that soon it hid its head in the clouds; family; then, as he was proud of what he had done, he went to the inn, where to bed he could not help talking: quiet, and don't let anybody say to it : bread, wine and reast To satisfy all the folk here.

During the night the inn-keeper placed the fairy napkin by another napkin just like it, and the little man took ing to it as he laid it on the table ; bread, wine and roset

He saw nothing come. So he climbed up his beautiful bean stalk again and knocked at the door of paradise. "Who is there?" asked the bon Dieu. "It is the little man who has as many children as there are holes in a sieve." "You come rather often, my friend. But this time I will not refuse you. Here is a donkey; you must put a cloth make gold and silver,' and your wish will be fulfilled; but try and be sharper than corpse at my feet.
