Good FARMING -- It is one sign of a good farmer, says the Rural New Yorker, if he prizes manure. It does not require a good farmer to raise bonntiful crops on a farm already rich, but the art lies in so managing the farm that it will produce good crops every year without losing in fertility. A man may make money from his farm while he is wasteful of fertilizers, but he is not a good farmer, for he is constantly runconsists of such management as will make the farm produce the best possisoil. This can only be accomplished by a rigid economy in the making and use of manure, and a systematic rotation of crone that will be the least exhaustive to
