William Hawley could scarcely prevail upon the officials of the Ionia House of Correction to lock him up when he so requested but finally convicted them he was an escaped convict and was accommodated. He escaped in 1884 after serving a few months of a three-year sentence from Ottawa county for larceny. He went west and held various lucrative positions in the line of promotion, but was in constant fear of recognition by former friends and delivery over to the officers and this fear so preyed upon his mind that he finally came back and voluntarity gave himself up. Never in the history of Jackson has that town been so wrought up as it was over the news that R. Irving Latimer, the infamous murderer of his mother, had escaped from the State prison in that city and that he had administered poison to two of the keepers from the effects of which one died. The story of the escape is as follows:

For the past few weeks Latimer had been telling Night Captain of the Guard M. P. Gill a story of some money due him in Rhode Island—some $2,800—and that he wanted Gill to collect it when the prison administration was changed, as was soon expected. Latimer had frequently been given many liberties, having often drank a cup of coffee or chocolate with Gill when he was taking his midnight lunch. On the night of the escape Gill and Latimer had agreed to settle the matter of the Rhode Island treasure and Gill. released Latimer and conducted him to the hallmaster's office. Latimer

The cat was out of the bag and an alarm was soon spread and in a short time hait's hundred villagers were following the fugitive down the railroad track toward Addison Junction. About two miles from Jerome the crowd overtook the worn-out Latimer and returned to Jerome with him. A search was made and on his undershirt was found his prison number, 4578. Other marks were recognized and in a short time Latimer was on his way to Jackson prison in a double buggie accompanied by three armed men. They did not tie him and he did not attempt to escape and after about 50 hours liberty, the most brutal matricide of recent times was again behind the prison hars with the blood stains of another human life upon his soul as a cost of his short breath of freedom.

A Negro named Harris was killed, George Psyne's skull was crushed, his wife's arm was broken and his five children were more or less injured. Reports from the country west of Kelly, say that all the Negro plantation houses were blown away, and it is said many of these people were killed. Three schoolhouses were blown down, but no one was killed. Around Kelly 500 people are homeless and are in need.

The cyclone of death and destruction swept Tennessee. Half of the big state penitentiary at Nashville, which covers 80 acres of ground was torn to pieces, entailing an enormous loss. The convicts, 500 in number, had just moved out of mess hall when the building collapsed and had they remained an infitant longer all would have been killed. The great strike of the Monongahela valley, Pa., coal miners has practically ended, and before the end of the week it is probable that all of the 7,000 old men will be back to work. Fully 3,000 strikers returned to the mines in the second and fourth pools, and the third pool men have also weakened. The strike lasted seven months and it is estimated cost the operators and miners $4,000,000. Of this amount the strikers lost $2,100,000 in wages.

MURDER AND SUICIDE

The Intention of a Farmer who Crashed His Wife's Skull and Cut His Own Threat.

Cass county contributes a double tragedy, a probably successful attempt at wife murder and suicide, to Michigan's carnival of crime. The victims are Hiram Cox, a resident of that county, living about eight miles north of Cassopolis, and his wife. Cox. tried to hammer his wife to death with a stick of stovewood and then cut his own throat. Some time at night that Cox brutally hammered his wife with a stick of stovewood, but it was not mutil the next day that one of his neighbors, while passang through his woods, discovered Cox lying with his throat cut from ear to ear. After summoning help he concluded to take him to his home and ascertain from Mrs. Cox the cause. Cox told them that his wife could tell them nothing about it, as he had killed her before leaving the house.

A Boy's Terrible Suices.

A Boy's Terrible Suices.

Because of unrequited Tove, Will Fry, aged 17 years, laid his head on the Louisville Southern track near Shelbyville, Ky., and suffered decapitation. He has been in love with a schoolgirl living in his neighborhood for some months past, and while she was always affable and kind to him she did not encourage his attention any more than she did a number of young fellows who were equally as devoted. Young Fry asked to be excused from school, walking to a point on the railroad where there was a sharp curve, waited for the train, which was soon due. At its approach he laid his head on the track. When the engineer saw the young man it was too late to defeat his purpose and his head was cut from the body.

He towed the box to the bar and broke it open, when a dead body rolled out. An investigation disclosed five bodies all in a decomposed condition. Four of the bodies are those of men, the other that of a woman. They are so badly decomposed that it is impossible to recognize the features. From marks it is supposed the people were murdered and then set adrift on the river.

New Color for Warships.

Secretary of the Navy Herbert will take up the question of changing the color of warships. It is probable that hereafter black will be again used instead of the present shade of white, which is expensive, hard to keep clean and not deceptive. The new shade is described as being closely that which the sea assumes at night, and it is said that even the bright spearch-lights will fail to disclose her.

The Panama Canal's Fature.

The clauses in the canal contract have been drawn and will soon be signed by the government. The contract, it is believed, imposes conditions which will not be accepted by the canal liquidator. The government has no faith in the ability of the company to reorganize on new basis and is only giving that corporation a last chance, and when failure is absolutely apparent it will take possession of the canal. ALL the clearness of thought that makes a man successful in his business is needed often times to unravel cases and secure justice to the parties who submit their cases to juries for trial. BROOKLYN, N. Y. March 26.—A remarkable sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Taimage in the Tabernacie & day, the subject being a psychological arri religious study of the phenomena of the reindduring sleep, and the significance of draams as evidence of immortality. The taxt chosen was, Genesis 23; 11: "He took of the stones of that place and put them for his primows, and lay down in that place to sleep and he dreamed."

Asleep on a pillow-case filled with Asleep on a purovership one hens' feathers it is not strenge one But should have pleasant dreams. But here is a pillow of rock, and Jacob with his head on it, and lo! a dream of with his head on it, and lo! a dream of angels, two processions, those coming down the stairs met by those going up the stairs. It is the first dream of Bible record. You may say of a dream that it is nocturnal fantasia, or that it is the absurd combination of waking thoughts, and with a slur of infonation you may say: "It is only a dream;" but load her becomed the dream by making God has honored the dream by making it the avenue through which again and again he has marched upon the human-soul, decided the fate of nations, and changed the course of the world's his tory. God appeared in a dream to Abimelech, warning him against ar unlawful marriage; in a dream to Joseph foretelling his coming power under the figure of all the sheaves of the harvest bowing down to his sheaf, to the chief butler, foretelting his disimprisonment: to the chief baker. announcing his decapitation: to Pharaoh, showing him first the seven plenty years, and then the seven famine-struck years, under the figure of the seven fat cows derouring the seven lean cows: to Solomon, giving him the choice between wisdom and riches and honor; to the Tarrior, under the figure of a barley cake smiting down a tent, encouraging Gideon in his battle against the Amalekites; to Nebuchadnezzar, under the figure of a broken image and a hown-down tree, foretelling his overthrow of power; to Joseph, of the New Testament, anhousehold; to Mary, bidding her fly from Herodic persecutions; to Pilate's wife, warning him net to become complicated with the judicial overthrow of

We all admit that God in ancient times and under Bivle dispensation addressed the people through dreams. The question now is, does God appear in our day and reveal himself through dreams? That is the question every-body asks, and that question this morning I shall by to answer. You ask me if I believe in dreams. My answer is, I do bel'eve in dreams, but all I have to say will be under five Remark the first: the Scriptures are so full of revelation from God, that if we get no communication from him in dreams, we ought, nevertheless, to be satisfied.

With twenty guide books to tell you how to get to Boston or Pittsburg or London or Glasgow or Manchester, do you want a night vision to tell you how to make the journey? We have in this Scripture full direction in regard to the journey of this life and how to get to journey of this life and now to get to the celestial city, and with this grand guide book, this magnificent directory, we ought to be satisfied. I have more faith in a decision to which I come when I am wide awake than when I am sound asleep. I have noticed that those who give a great deaf of time to studying dreams get their brain addled. They are very anxious to remember what they dreamed about the first night they slept in a new house. If in their dream they take the hand of a corpse, they are going to die. If they dream of a garden, it means a sepulcher. If something turns out according to a night vision, they say, "Well, I am not surprised, "I dreamed it." If it turns out different from the night vision, they say. "Well, dreams go by contraries. In their efforts to put their dreams into rhythm, they put their waking thoughts into discord. Now the Bible is so full of revelation that we ought to be satisfied if we get no further revelation.

The fashion of smooth faces, once the ruling fashion among the laity as among the clergy, is returning as surely as is the crinoline. As the smiely as is the crinoline. As the skirts expand, the faces of the lords of creation are to shrink. The equilibrium in the amount of room occupited by humanity, you see, must be maintained.

While people are discussing why young people do not marry, a San Jose man just old enough to have his first mustache comes reluctantly forward with two wives. He is not in sympathy with the discussion. What he shrinks are from Jove, and that in ancient times dreams were classified dreams came from Jove, and that in antient times directions given you with the Bible in your lap and your thoughts uplifted in your lap and your thoughts uplied to your pathy with the discussion. What he wonders in penitential mood is why folks marry so much. Into a science; but why do you and I wonders in penitential mood is why put so much stress upon dreams when we have a supernal book of infinite wisdom on all subjects? Why should Remark the third; the vast majority of dreams are merely the result of disturbed physical condition, and are not a supernatural message.

Job had carbuncles and he was scared

in the night. He says: "Thou scarest me with dreams and terrifiest me with visions." Solomon had an overwrought visions." Solomon had an overwrought brain, overwrought with public business, and he suffered from erratic slumber, and he writes in Ecclesiastes: "A dream cometh through the multitude of business." Dr. Gregory, in experimenting with dreams, found that a boftle of hot water put to his feet while in slumber made him think he was going up the hot sides of Mount Etna. Another morbid physician, experimenting with dreams, his feet uncovered through sleep, thought he was riding in an Alpine diligence. But a great many dreams are merely nara great many dreams are merely nar-cotic disturbance. Anything that you see while under the influence of chloral or brandy, or "hasheesh," or laudanum or brandy, or "hasheesh," or laudanum is not a revelation from God. The is not a revelation from God. The learned De Quincey did not ascribe to divine communication what he saw in sleep, opium saturated; dreams which he afterward described in the following words: 'I was worshipped, I was sacrificed. I fled from the wrath of Brahman, through all the forests of Asia. Vishnu hated me. Seeva laid in wait for me. I came suddenly upon Isis and Osiris. I had done a deed, they said, that made the crocodiles trouble. I was buried for a thousand years in stone coffins, for a thousand years in stone coffinwith mummies and sphinxes in narro with nummies and spinixes in narrow chambers at the heart of eternal pyra-mids. I was kissed with the cancerous kiss of crocodiles, and lay confounded with unutterable slimy things among wreathy and Nilotic mud." Do not mistake narcotic disturbance for divine

But I have to tell you that the majority of the dreams are merely the penalty of outraged digestive organs, and you have no right to mistake the nightmare for heavenly revelation. Late suppers are a warranty deed for bad dreams. Highly spiced salads at 11 o'clock at night, instead of opening the door heavenward, open the door infernal and diabolical. You outrage natural law, and you insult the God who made those laws. It takes from three to five hours to digest food, and you have no right to keep your digestive you have no right to keep your digestive organs in struggle when the rest of your body is in somnolence. The general rule body is in somnolence. The general rule is, eat nothing after six o'clock at night, retire at ten, sleep on your right side, keep the window open five inches for ventilation, and other worlds will not disturb you much. By physical maltreatment you take the ladder that Jacob saw in his dream and you lower it to the nether world allowing lower it to the nether world. allowing the ascent of the demoniacal. Dreams are midnight dyspepsia. An unregu-lated desire for something to est ruined the race in Paradise, and an unreguthe race in Paradise, and an unregu-lated desire for something to eat keeps it ruined. The world during six thou-sand years has tried in vain to digest that first apple. The world will not be evangelized until we get rid of a dyspeptic Christianity. Healthy peo-ple do not want this cadaverous and be evangelized until we get rid of a dyspeptic Christianity. Healthy people do not want this cadaverous and sleepy thing that some people call religion. They want a religion that lives regularly by day and sleeps soundly by night. If through trouble or coming on qf old age. or exhaustign of Christian service you cannot sleep well, then you may expect from God "songs in the night;" but there are no blessed communications to these who blessed communications to these wh willingly surrender to indigestibles Napoleon's army at Leipsic. Another remark I made is that our dreams are apt to be merely the echo of our day thoughts. I will give you a recipe for pleasant dreams: Fill your days with elevated thought and unselfish action, and your dreams will be set to music. If all day you are gouging and grasping and avaricious, in your dreams you will see gold that you cannot clutch, and bar gains in which were out-Shylocked. If of judgment had come, and that the day you are irascible and pugnacious and gunpowdery of disposition, you will at night have battle pie, this crew, were all bankshed; and ciples to realize that he was a spiritual in this dream he asked the reader why was a spiritual. with enemies in which they wil the best of you. If you are all day long in a hurry, at hight you want to catch while you cannot move one inch toward the depot.

If you are always over suspicious and expectant of assault, you will have at night hallucinations of assassins with daggers drawn. No one wonders that Richard III. the iniquitous, the night before the battle of Bosworth Field, dreamed that all those whom he had murdered stared at him, and that he was torn to pieces by demons from the pit. The scholar's dream is a philo pit. The scholar's dream is a philosophic echo. The poet's dream is a rhythmic echo. Coleridge composed his "Kubla Khan?" saleep in a narcotic dream, and waking up, wrote down 300 lines of it. Tartini, the violin player, composed his most wonderful sonata while asleep in a dream so vivid, that waking he saily transferred it to that waking he easily transferred it to Waking thoughts have their echo in sleeping thoughts. If a man spends his life in trying to make others happy, and is heavenly-minded, around his pil-low he will see cripples who have gut over their crutch, and processions of celestial imperials, and hear the grand march roll down from drums of heaven over jasper parapets. You are very apt to hear in dreams what you hear when you are wide awake. Now, having shown you that having a Bible we ought to be satisfied not getting any further communication from God, and having shown you that all dreams have an important mission, since they show the comparative inde-pendence of the soul from the body, and having shown you that the majority of dreams are a result of dis-turbed physical condition, and having shown you that our sleeping thoughts are apt to be an echo of our waking are apt to be an echo of our waking thoughts, I come now to my fifth and most important remark, and that is most important remark, and that is to say that it is capable of proof that God does sometimes in our day, and has often since the close of the Bible dispensation, appeared to people in dreams.

All dreams that make you better are from God. How do I know it? Is not God the source of all good? It does not take a very logical mind to argue that out. Tertullian and Martin Luther believed in dreams. The dreams of John Huss are immortal. St. Augustine, the Christian father, gives us the fact that a Carthaginian physician was persuaded of the immortality of the soul by an argument which he heard in a dream. The night before the assassination the wife of Julius Ceesar dreamed that her husband fell dead across her lap. It is possible to prove across her lap. It is possible to prove that God does appear in dreams

In 1865 a vessel went out from Splithead for West India, and ran against the ledge of rocks called the Casketa. The vessel went down, but the crew clambored up on the Caskets, to die of thirst or starvation, as they supposed. But there was a ship bound for South-ampton that had the captain's son on board. This lad twice in one night dreamed that there was a crew of sailors dying on the Caskets. He told his father of his dream. The vessel came down by the Caskets in time to find and to rescue these poor dying men. Who conducted that dream? The God and to rescue these poor dying men. Who conducted that dream? The God of the sea.

The Rev. Dr. Bushnell, in his marvelous book, entitled: "Nature and the Supernatural," gives the following fact that he got from Capt. Yount in California, a fact confirmed by many families: Capt. Yount dreamed twice one night that 150 miles away there was a company of travelers fast in the snow. He also saw in the dream, rocks of peculiar formation, and telling his dream to an old sunter, the hunter said: "Why, I remember these rocks; those rocks are in the Carson Valley Pass, 150 miles away." Capt. Yount impelled by this dream, although laughed at by his neighbows, gathered men together, took mules and blankets; and started out on the expedition, traveled 150 miles, saw those very rocks which he had described in his dream, and finding the suffering ones dream, and finding the suffering ones at the foot of those rocks, brought them back to confirm the story of Capt. Yount. Who conducted that fream? The God of the snow, the God dream? The God of the snow, the God of the Sierra Nova las Furthermor, I have to say that there are people in this house who were converted to God unrough a dream. The Rev. John Newton, the fame of whose piety fills all Christendom, while a profligate sailor on shiphard in his piety fills all Christendom, while a pro-fligate sailor on shipboard, in his dream, thought that a being ap-proached him and gave him a very beautiful ring, and put it upon his fin-ger, and said to him, "As long as you wear that ring you will be prospered; if you lose that ring you will be ruined." In the same dream another personage appeared, and by a strange infatuation persuaded John Newton to throw that ring overboard, and it sank throw that ring overboard, and it sank into the sea. Then the mountains in sight were full of fire and the air was lur'd with consuming wrath. While John Newton was repenting of his folly in having thrown overboard the treasure, another personage came through the dream, and told John Newton he would plunge into the sea and bring the ring up if he desired it. He plunged into the sea and brought it up, and said to John Newton, "Here is that gem. but I think I will keep it for you, lest you lose it again," and John Newton consented, and all the fire went out from the mountains, and all the signs of lurid wrath disappeared from the air, and John Newton said that he saw in his dream that that valuable gem was his soul, and that the being who persuaded him to throw it overboard was Satan, and that the One who plunged in and restored that gem, keeping it for him, was Christ Newton he would plunge into the sea gem, keeping it for him, was Christ. And that dream makes one of the most wonderful chapters in the life of that most wonderful man.

A German was crossing the Atlantic Ocean, and in his dream he saw a man with a handful of white flowers and he was told to follow the man who had that handful of white flowers. The German, arriving in New York, wandered into the Fulton Street prayer meeting, and Mr. Lamphier, whom many of you know—the great apostle of prayer meetings, that day had given to him a bunch of tuberoses and started homeward, and the German followed him, and through an interpreter told Mr. Lamphier that on the sea he had dreamed of a man with a handful of white flowers and was told to follow him. Suffice it to say, through that interview and following inter. To make sure that it was indeed their that handful of white flowers. The German, arriving in New York, wanthat interview and following interviews, he became a Christian, and is a Lord. "And worshiped bine city missionary preaching the gospel to his own countrymen. God in a 10. "Go tell my brethren to his own countrymen."

John Hardock, while on the ship board, dreamed one night that the day of judgment had come, and that the roll of the ship's crew was called, exin his dream he asked the reader why his own name was omitted, and he was teld it was to give him more opportunity for repentance. He woke up a different man. He became illustrious for Christian attainment. Hy you do not believe these things, then you must discard all testimons, and refuse to discard all testimony, and refuse to accept any kind of authoritative witness. God in a dream!

The Bev Herbert Mendes was converted to God through a dream of the last indgment; and I doubt it there is a man or woman in this house to discovered to the second se last judgment; and I doubt if there is a man or woman in this house to-day that has not had some dream of that great day of judgment which shall be the winding up of the world's history. If you have not dreamed of it, perhaps to-night you may dream of that day. There are enough materials to make a dream. Enough voices, for there shall be the roaring of the elements, and the great earthquake. Enough light for the dream, for the world shall blaze. Enough excitement, for the mountain from nine to three o'clock, beginning at the hour of the daily morning sacrifice and yielding up his spirit at the hour of the evening sacrifice. It was of the utmost importance that Christ's death should be proven beyond cavil or doubt, for otherwise doubt would have been thrown upon the fact of his resurrection. Every precaution was taken by his enemies. L. The Roman centurian assured Pilate of the death of Jesus (Mark 15: 44, 45). 2. The soldiers pierced his body with spears and from the wounds flowed blood and water-s proof of death. 3. At the request of the chief priests, the stone against the door of the sepulcher wa sealed, and a Roman guard place round the tomb. 4. His friends had nu expectation of his rising the way-he did. 5. No one had before been buried in the tomb, so there could be national tas to the identity of Christ.

DANGER OF TRICHINAL

The trichinæ is the most interesting of entozoa (animals living within one another). This mischievous little worm varies in size from 1-140 to 1-20 to 1-200 of an inch in length, by the 1-1,000 to 1-1,000 to 1-200 of an inch in thickness.

Trichinæ have been found in dogs, cats, chickens, rats, mice, etc., but the pig is the animal most liable to it. The pig is brought from the farm and sold to the butcher, where it is prepared to be sold as food. The butcher shop is the resort of rats, which feed upon the refuse acraps of meat, and in due course become infected with trichinæ. But do not think that every piece of pork is infected. The proportion of diseased hogs does not rise above one in a thousand. But the danger is nevertheless great.

A BLIGHTED ROMANCE

Until Herbert Reynolds crossed her path Violet Graham's life had been simple, uneventful one. The only child of a poor country doctor, reared where beautiful, rugged nature still held sway, she yet enjoyed many of perned herself little about what the good people of Boynton were pleased to call society. The care of her to call society. The care of her father's house, in which she took great pride, demanded so much of her time that she was able to give little attention to outside affairs.

But with the advent of the handsome, dashing stranger from the "city," came a change, and one that the girl's fond father noticed with re-

It was at the house of a mutual friend, on the occasion of a birthday party which Violet had been prevailed apon to attend, that the young people first saw each other; and as Violet was the prettiest girl in the room, Herbert Reynolds at once singled her out as the subject of his attentions.

Violet was naturally flattered and pleased at this mark of distinction; the latent coquetry, which is in every woman's heart, rose to the surface, and she parried his compliments and gallant speeches with a readiness which surprised herself.

Man of the world though he was, Reynolds was charmed with her; and from that evening became her avowed suitor.

Dr. Graham, however, did not approve of Reynolds, and, on more than one occasion, said, "Somehow or other I don't like that man. I wish, my dear, you would discourage his visits the glamor of a romantic first love was upon her, and she seemed completely dazzled; could see and hear pothing to Reynold's disadvantage. Hence, when finally asked the allimportant question, there was not the slightest doubt in his mind as to what the answer should be. He was right. With becoming blushes and hesitation she accepted his offer, and he left her with a triumphant smile upon his lips.

But Violet would not promise.

That evening he called upon the doctor to obtain his consent to the marriage. The old gentleman re-ceived him coldly, and frowned in anger when he learned his errand.

"How dare you ask me for my daughter's hand?" he said in a harsh, measured tone. "You must have divined from my manner that I would not give her to you if you were the last man in the world!"

Herbert Reynolds winced at the contemptuous words, but managed to control his voice and asked, comedly, "Will you tell me why?" "Certainly," responded the other, romptly. "Because I am sure you

White with rage, Herbert Reynolds took his departure, resolving that he would possess Violet now, by fair means or foul.

He sent her a letter the next day, apprising her of what had taken place on the previous night, and pro-posing a clandestine meeting; but the doctor had anticipated that, and tore the note into fragments, and cast it into the waste-paper basket.

A dramatic scene was enacted be

So, when evening came, and the doctor had shut himself in his study. she stole out of the house and directed her steps toward the little station. tation.

It was a clear, frosty night.

light fall of snow lay upon the ground. and the big, round moon, high in the blue dome of the heavens, shed a silvery radiance over the landscape. A keen wind was blowing; it stung the face and brought tears to eyes, but Violet did not heed it, for her mind was busy with other things. She knew that she was sinning against her father in taking this step; but the spell of Reynold's fascination was still strong upon her, and she could not resist it. So, with dogged persistence, she went on. At last the station came in sight

A man was pacing the platform. As she approached he turned toward her, and the moonlight revealed the face of Herbert Reynolds.

He drew her toward him and kissed her passionately.
Then she saw that her lover's face was drawn and white, and he trembled like an aspen. "Oh, Herbert," she cried, "you are ill, what is the matter?" "A great misfortune has fallen upon me, dear," he said in a whisper. I must be on the continent within twelve hours; my very life depends upon it. Why, I will explain to you later. I want to take you with me as my own sweet wife. No one must part us. my darling. Our hearts have met, who has power to sever You shall go with me, Violet. See, I have already purchased your ticket, and the train is due in fifteen minutes. Do you consent?

The strength of his passion over-whelmed her. Father, home, friends, all were forgotten. Could she give up this handsome, adoring young over, and see him drift out of her life forever?"

Youth always balances a question on the side of love, and Herbert Rev-on the side of love, and noise won the day.

But the man was still manifestly ill at ease. With nervous impatience he walked from point to point, and peered anxiously down the line. At iast the Cyclopean eye of the train appeared in the distance, and, at the sight of it, he breathed more freely, though his face was still ghastly white. With a rush and a roar it drew up to the station and stoppe A man sprang from it; he caught sight of the couple on the platform, and, as Reynolds was hurriedly assisting Violet into a carriage, laid a detaining hand upon his arm.

"Hold on there, my friend," he said. "Not so fast, if you please. I want to have a few words with you, Reynolds turned upon his detainer a smothered imprecation, his teeth gleaming in the moonlight. "What do you want?" he hissed. Speak quickly. The train will start The man laughed

"That's all right," he calmly answered. "You don't want to go by this train, and I want to have a talk with you. So if you will kindly help your lady friend off again, and listen to what I've got to say without further trouble, I'll be greatly obliged."

There was something in the speaker's tone and manner that compelled obedience: he still retained his hold upon Reynold's arm. "Well, then, what is it?" demanded the latter, when he had assisted Violet to alight and the train had moved away.

"Just this," he answered, producing a photograph and handing it to his questioner. "That is your picture, I believe, and your name is Herbert Reynolds? Yes? Then I than we are aware of; that such a state of things in the room in which we live have a warrant for your arrest."

A shriek, loud and piercing, had rent the air, and Violet Graham fell to the ground insensible.

"Fainted, by ginger!" exclaimed the detective, bending over her. Who is she, any way?

Ere Reynolds could frame a reply a man who had lurked for some min utes in the shadow of the station came forward and gently raised the girl in his arms.

.. She is my daughter," said Dr. Graham, as he bore his burden to a tim up at one meal mail phaeton that stood not far away. And that is all he said; his heart was too full for words.

A half hour later the train bore away from Boynton the dashing Herbert Raynolds—a prisoner. His sins had found him out.

Fortunately, heart's seldom break for love's sake, and Violet Graham soon forgot her unworthy lover. In the course of years she married, as pretty girls are tolerably sure to do and this time the doctor approved o her choice.—New York Journal.

We are forcibly reminded by the above clipping from the Cincinnati Enquirer of the claims made by the sanitarians, which are, no doubt, true to a certain extent, that all disease germs find a hiding place and culture ground best adapted to their nature, and to help them along in their mission in life, in wall paper, with its vegetable paste to hold it on the wall, and its animal glue to hold its colors; that these, to say the least, are not the best materials with which to cover so much space around us as the walls in which we live and sleep, and that space around us are great absorbents of moisture, of which every person throws off a certain number of ounces in exhalations every day, and that such decaying material as glue and paste gives off deleterious gases in such small quantities that we do not discover them, though those who study it can smell it in most rooms papered, and especially where a number of layers of paper have been pasted upon each other, a common "nasty practice." We are forcibly reminded by the of owls and hawks. Charles Emory Smith, who was minister to Russia, says the czar is "a sedate, sensible, sober-minded, fearless man, firm and resolute in action." He says of Russia that now, as always in the past, she ignores outside opinion, but respects the opinion of America, and is not insensible to the voice of honest criticism.

The Pinna oyster, found in warm leas, especially on the coast of Sicily, is a wing-shelled bivalve, one species of which is two feet long, and attaches itself to the rocks by a cable of strong filaments of silken texture. Hence it has been called the "silk oyster," and mummy cloths, as well as other fabrics, were formerly woven from the silk.

Royal Baking Powder Is Absolutely Pure

WHILE there are so many alum baking powders in the market, the use of which all physicians decide render the food unwholesome and liable to produce dyspepsia and other ailments, housekeepers should exercise the utmost care to prevent any powder but the Royal from being brought into their kitchens.

In the use of Royal there is an absolute certainty of pure and wholesome food.

The official State Chemists report: The Royal Baking Powder does not contain ammonia, alum, lime, nor any injurious ingredients. It is absolutely pure and wholesome.

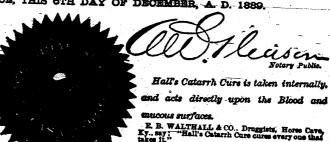

The Government reports show all other baking powders to contain impurities. In the use of any baking powder but Royal there is uncertainty if not actual danger. It is unwise to take chances in matters of life and health.
