It is said that when a man joins the shrineers he has to walk barefoot over his sands. Lou Wissor and a lot of Michigan a shrineer wept to flouolelu and satablished a shrine on the crater of an extinct volcano. We suppose the candidates had to walk over hot lava instead of sand.

By examining the branches that drop from the seed and easily transplanted. At home we have about 75 trees of this species along the highway, 15 years old. They are 18 to 20 feet in height and average six inches in diameter. They produce seed enough for all the farms in southern Michigan to propogate from and the flowers and fuliage are very attractive.
