As I look upon the changes that the pass-ing years have wrought— At the bent and shrunken figure, comes a saddened, reverent thought, How the wearled feet, slow passing, pierced by stones on life's rough road.
Soon shall gain a heavenly portal, finding rest at last with God. Mother, o'er your faded features rests a light more bright to me
Than the brightest ray of sunlight shining on the distant sea!
For it tells of battles conquered-patience, hope, denial sweetWhite the grave smile round your lips, dear, makes the picture quite complete.

Words e'en fail me, now, to tell you all the love within my heart:
Deepest thoughts afe ever silent, though of life the better part,
All unworthy as I am, dear, of your lifelong sacrifice. long sacrifice.

Still my beacon star shines brightly from your faded, tear-dimmed eyes. your faded, tear-dimmed eyes.

This belief was the cause of the many failures that were early recorded against the operators. Spraying is now recognized as a science, and all of our agricultural colleges are teaching how to do the work correctly. The advice is now given, "Do not fruist an inexperienced man behind the nozzle of a sprayer." Most of the men that spray are mere bunglers at the business, harmonic principles underlying the operation. Spraying is rapidly becoming a profession, and we predict that it will not be long before men skillful in spraying trees will be in demand both in the city and country.
