THE ILLNESS OF GEN. ALGER.

Oxnard's Request of the President -Olds' Title to the Plats up Again-Killed by a P. M. Train More Land For Home

Gen. Alger's Illness.

In order to relieve the sufferings of the patient, an operation known in the medical profession as cholecystotomy was performed upon Gen. R. A. Alger ex-secretary of war, Sunday forenoon in the hope of relieving him of his old trouble, gall-stones. Considerable apprehension was felt as to the general's ability to undergo the operation, but the malady—had reached such a stage that drastic measures were—deemed necessary, the only hope of relief apparently lying in that direction.

Gen. Alger rallied from the effects of the operation rapidly, and Dr. C. G. Jeunings, the artending physician, announced that the symptoms were favorable to his recovery. There is a possibility, of course, of some unfore-seen complication arising, but barring this, his chances are considered fair. The operation, which was begun at 10 o'clock, at the Alger home in Detroit, was performed by Drs. H. W. Longyear, H. O. Walker and J. R. Murphy, the last from Chicago, while Drs. C. G. Jennings, E. L. Shurly and William Osler, the last from Baltimore, were also present. Gen. Alger was an the operating table about an was on the operating table about an hour and a quarter, but stood the or-deal well and was able to bid some of the doctors a cheery good-bye—when they left shortly after he recovered from the effects of the anesthetics.

Over One Hundred Years.

Louis Rock, a French-Canadian, who lived in Geo. _Washington's time, passed away at his home in Ludington Wednesday at the advanced age of 107 years. Rock's first and last sick-ness was nothing more than a mild case of grippe, death resulting more from old age; than anything else. Mrs. Rock died three years ago at the age of 85. To them 13 children, 29 grandchildren and 31 great grandchildren were born. Louis Rock was born at rea while his parents were crossing the Atlantic ocean in the year 1794.
During his younger days he spent many years with the Indians in the west and is said to have been the first white man who entered Yellow stone park. Endowed with a consti-tution which never knew fartigue. Rock endured untild bardships dur-ing his long frontier career and until years ago worked in a sawmill every day.

A relearing has been granted by the Supreme Court in the celebrated case of S. S. Olds against the state land commissioner, which involves the title to a large portion of the St. Clair Flats. Under a decision during the summer Olds was decreed to have the right to a patent to the lands at the Flats for which he had applied by virtue of some swamp land scrip which he held. Lincoln Avery, who represents the state land commissioner, applied for a rehearing in the case several months ago. The courf was somewhat divided upon the question when the case was first deck_d.

Salt Production.

The state salt inspection shows that for the year ending November 30, 1901, Michigan's 65 salt blocks have an annual capacity of 9,500,000 barrels annually. Of these 62 were operated last year, and they produced the following year, and they produced the rollowing amounts of salt by districts: Manistee. 2,670,000: St., Clair, S71,915; Mason. 650,689; Saginaw, 557,138; Wayne, 414, 937; Bay, 371, 482; Midland, 26,664; Iosco, 17,182, the whole being a total of 5,580,101 barrels, 348,016 more than were inspected last year. The Notes Phiscator case.

The jury in the noted Phiscator case trial in St. Joseph, after seven hours' deliberation, gave a verdict against the Baroda gold king, which means that Phiscator will pay to Joseph Coveney, the plaintiff, $7.500. This suit was brought by Coveney to obtain $7.000 in gold dust which Phiscator had One in gold dust which Phiscator had once paid him for alienating his wife's affection, but which had been obtained again by Phiscator under duress. Phiscator had paid Coveney $2,500 to stop a damage suit threatened when at a country ball Phiscator helped Coveney's wife out of a window. The $7,000 afterward paid was when Phiscator and Coveney's wife registered at the Palmer house. Chicago, as "F. Johnson and wife." Following Phiscator to the Yukon yalley for more Johnson and wife." Following Phiscator to the Yukon valley for more money the tables were turned on Coveney, and after many weeks in jail he gave up his $7,000 in gold dust to gain his freedom. Aside from the return of the $7,000 obtained under duress the contra ultowed Coveney $500 ress, the court allowed Coveney $700 interest. Joseph Coveney is a farmer living near Baroda. He owns forty acres of land, but with the exception of his wife, who did not appear in court, has no heirs. Frank Phiscator, a three times millionaire, is at Hot Springs Ark, and did not appear in Springs, Ark., and did not appear in court. It was shown by the agree-ment read in court that Jas. O'Hara, of this city. Coveney's attorney, would reserve as his fee for prosecuting this case half of the money for which the suit was brought, $3,500.

Hardwood Lumber Combine

A big combine of hardwood lumber-men has been effected, mak-ing the most important step ever taken in Michigan in those interests. It means the incorporation of a company to absolutely control the hardwood lumber market in this state, and all the mills on the Michigan side of the great lakes. The prime movers in the organization of the combine are Henry W. Carey, of the Peters Salt and Lumber Co., of East Lake; W. T. Culvert, with Justins S. Stearns, of Landington, and William H. White of William H. White & Co., of Boyne City.. They are members of the committee on plans for organization, which subnified the arrangement to-day. NEW YEAR'S ADVICE.

There is a foe that watches
Your comfort to destroy,
Assuming shapes of evil
To interrupt your joy;
To keep him at a distance
Should be your purpose true
So "never trouble trouble
Ttil trouble troubles you."

Each day he may remind you
Of sorrow that's in store;
Each day with hints and shadows
Perplex you more and more;
But go not forth to speet him
As many -people do.

As many people do, and 'never trouble trouble' Till trouble troubles you!"

When misery appears:
"Tis time enough for weeping
When there's excuse for tears;
So ever at the fountain
Of prayer your faith renew, And "never trouble trouble Till trouble troubles you

For they who borrow trouble
Are never out of debt.
O'er every fancied evil
They worry, fume, and fret;
And if you would be happy
Another course pursue,
And "never trouble trouble
Till trouble troubles you."

Anticipating pleasure
May give relief from pain; Anticipating sorrow Is never any gain;

And if you would be cheerful In mind and body, too.

Then "never trouble trouble
Till trouble troubles you."

Estelle, Maude and May Robbins stood in the window with their heads close together.

"I am so sorry," whispered Estelle. "I do so want to make mamma and pape a New Year's present and I have spent all my money-every cent." "So have I," said Rosy, "and I have not kept even a piece of ribbon or an nce of worsted."

"It is too dreadful," Maude whisper-"If that horrid Miss Croker had not insisted upon our buying those little books at the fair we would all have had plenty of money. I wonder how long she is going to stay. She is so fussy," said Maude. "Nothing suits her. Sometimes she says: 'This egg is too soft, Lizzie; take it away and bring me another.' Then Lizzie makes up a face and I have to laugh." "Well, but Maude," said Estelle, who was the eldest, "that is wrong. The girl who is hired to wait on the table should never make faces, no matter what happens; and you must never laugh at her again. I am sure Miss

Croker saw you this morning." "But she is fussy," said Ray, "and I wish she would go home." "Mamma likes her," replied Estelle. You know she was mamma's teacher once and some one left her a big fortune and so she stopped teaching."

"And mamma says, too, that she is very charitable and gives heaps and heaps to the poor people," put in Ray.
"Then I wish she had bought those books herself instead of making us spend all our money," grumbled "If we had been honest and said wool Miss Croker has been winding for the last three days, we could knit mamma some beautiful mats for her I could knit one before dark," said Estelle, mournfully. "Could you, my dear?" said a voice close behind them.

The three children turned and saw Miss Croker sitting in a rocking chair just behind them. They did not know how long she had been there or how much she had heard, but she had three large balls of brilliant colored wool in her lap ...

'Are you sure, Estelle, that you could make a mat before dark?" said Miss Croker, looking over her spectacles at the three blushing faces before her. Maude and Ray answered

"Yes," very shyly.
"Then," said the lady, "sit down there on the sofa and I will give you each one of these balls of wool.

"You are very kind," said Estelle. "Thank you Miss Croker," said Maude. But Ray, remembering that Miss Croker must have heard her say she wished she would go home, wantto hide herself. However she came out from behind the curtain and seated herself close to Estelle. Miss Croker then gave them each a crochet "This blue ball is for you," che said, placing the wool in Estelle's lap. The mauve for you," and she fropped another ball in hands, "and the pink for little Rosy

QUEER WILLS OF RICH MEN. Passed late History.

It does not necessarily follow that because a man has been shrewd enough to amass a great fortune he is wise enough to dispose of it in a sensible The records of the probate courts show that bequests fraught with onerous, even impossible, conditions are not uncommon. It is as though the testator, resenting the scramble for his property which he foresees will foilow his death, desires to make the lot of his heirs as hard as possible.

Within the last few months there have been several of these sceentile wills. A brother left his sister $25, 000 under the express condition that she should neither marry nor become a In default of carrying out the stipulations the money is to be distributed among other relatives.

Very different toward marriage was the attitude of a wealthy Italian who died recently. To each of his three daughters he left $500 a year if they remained single and five times as much, $2,500 yearly, if they married.

A member of the English parliament just deceased-bequeathed to his two daughters his entire estate of $720,-000 with the provision that they can only inherit if they attain the age of without wedding either a Hebrew of a citizen of the United States.

A curious evidence of the foresight of Benjamin Franklin is furnished by The children laughed merrily, but one of the items of his will.
