SULLY'S BUBBLES

A familiar saying: "Hello!"

Made over a roof garden bit.

A man is never farther hid.

Sometimes the nibbler can't cap so well as the doctor.

In a straw car a man's selfishness is often deep-seated.

The female dancing team is composed of step "sisters."

The boot and shoe seller doesn't object to slippery customers.

People with clinging dispositions do not always stick to the truth.

No "blood money" is not necessarily blood of red cast.

The Acrobat doesn't understand his business until he tumbles.

It takes more than the wind to make a bather muddle half blown.

Few would be poets can say "My lips have fallen in pleasant places."

We may not thoroughly appreciate the grass, but nature gives it its own way.

Some men are so shallow that there is something deep about them except debt.

As the hypochondriac thought in the candy store, "Such kisses are sweetest."

"Keep on the Sunny Side" isn't the song for a woman who is forty in the shade.

Perhaps the know-nothing man because it doesn't know what has come across it.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

SOME SELFSERVE MEN.

Now and then we encounter a natural-born loafer.

Some men always seem so very nice and others so very parson.

The self-made man is often a very good sort when he's finished.

He rarely has his foot, but he sometimes suffers from over-exertion of the egotism.

And oh, if he could only remember that there are always others just as insignificant as himself!

ICE FOR PRIVATE FAMILIES.

BY A MORTGAGE DATED APRIL 24, 1903...

Don't correct or stab your wife in the presence of strangers.

Don't allege to your mother's talent for housekeeping with a sigh.

Don't forget to notice and criticize kindly her new dresses and hats.

Don't neglect to express your pleasure when she makes your favorite pudding.

Don't worry her to death because your paperknife or favorite suit has been misplaced.

Don't suppose that she is indifferent as to whether you remember her birthday or your wedding day.

Don't forget to use occasionally some of those endearing "quizzes" which were always on your lips before your marriage.

SPLINTERS.

Speak softly—the brisakel youth.

The port side of a vessel is not necessarily the captain's wife's cellar.

All is not gold that glitters, but lots of people don't know the difference.

The man who denies himself a shave never usually spends it to build up his constitution.

Banners—Wonder what makes Smith look so lonesome since he was married?
