The Coroner Graft,

At the next session of the legislature the auditor general will recommend that the law relating to coroners be simended so as to do away with state cases altogether, leaving each county to bear the expense. As a matter of fact there are very few legitimate state cases, but no opportunity is overlooked to strain the laws so as to make one if possible, no matter if the cause of death be plain, in order to get the fees. These include a post mortem at $80, as chemical adalysis at $30 and the charges of the undertaker,

Wayne county coroners, who fixed up several state cases every week. For the fiscal year 1205 the fees for state cases amounted to $7,490.44, nearly all of which went to the Wayne county coroners. It was this image that was carried to the frontier when the fortunes of Russia in the recent war with Japan were at their worst. It is frequently carried to the homes of the sick in Moscow in a carriage drawn by six horses and equipped with lackeys in

The Cathedral of the Assumption is the spot of perhaps the greatest significance, for there the czars since 1475 have been crowned, and there are buried nine of the patriarchs of the Greek church. The tenth, who would complete the list, is buried in the convent in which he lived for many years.

Fur-Trimmed Gowns.

Fur-trimmed gowns are in fashion once more, after a long retirement. At present the tramming is mostly con-skirts are seen. Short-haired fur is used, the popular caracal being much in evidence. This fur is so pliable and so easily manipulated as to make it valuable for trimming purposes. Collars, cuffs and jacket of fur appear on some of the smartest of imported street gowns. Sometimes the skirt match the jacket, but more often it is quite untrimmed. Evening and recep-

Velvet Didn't Get Left. Velveteen street costumes have put a an appearance already and the good qualities of chiffon velvet and all silk mousseline velvet are in demand even at this early date. The crushed velvet so parodied and abused last season has mercifully disapbeared, but some of the new velvets show a shadowy ripple almost like a modified moire effect over their surfaces.

The princess skirt with short bolero is fancied by many designers for the velvet gown, and where a princess skirt-is not liked a very deep pointed girdle forming the greater part of the bodice is used with the plain sweeping skirt and abbreviated bolero.

Modish and Popular. Among the rewest in coats at the New York horse show were the em-pire models. There is no reason to doubt that the empire lines will be extremely modish and popular among the winter coats and the innovation is not confined to picturesque carriage. ed street costume. One fanciful but exquisite empire coat is of petunia cloth. The collar is of a darker shade of velvet and the sleeves and bodice are draped and garnished with but tons of taffeta.

Many of the newest gowns are atted with a stock that is especially created for the wearer who, perhaps, disdains the use of ready-made area arrangements. Some of the newest stocks are graduated in size, and are shaped behind the ears and come down low in front. Many of them are

The building of a silo is of a great

If the silage is very green putrefaction bacteria develops most, while if the silage is old, that is, made from mature cornstalks, the spores of mold develop most. In either case the silage is ruined. The first thing, therefore, a farmer must look out for is to have sufficient height to his silo, so that the pressure on the underlying silage will be very great. Ghosts have been seen walking All things chopped up fine, as is all about outside by you and members of properly cut sliage, develops a great your family, haven't they?' deal of lateral pressure. This forces the silage out against the sides of the sile and packs it so firmly against how can you swear it wasn't shosts the walls that air cannot get in. Now you saw in the cornfield that night. the plan is to build a silo not less than 30 feet in height and generally not less than 16 feet in diameter. If the silos are built small in diameter they become expensive, as a silo 8 feet in diameter would cost a great deal more per ton of capacity than one 16 feet wide. These dimensions are being quite widely followed in the construction of most of the silos in Illinois and Wisconsin. The diameter beyond 16 feet must depend upon the size of the herd. The larger the herd the greater may be the diameter of the silo.

Bests for Feeding Dairy Cows

Both sugar beets and the ordinary peets are good as a food for dairy The sugar beet, of course, causes the animal to lay on more fat than does the other kind of beets. But the large water content of the sugar beet is largely an offset to the saccharine element. They will affect different cows differently. In some, they will cause an increase of the milk flow; in others, they will cause an increase of the fat being laid, upon the body of the animals, and at the same time cause a serious loss in the milk flow. To the dairyman, therefore, it is a matter for investigation He must find out what cows can use the beets to the best advantage. Cows that are being dried up and prepared for the butcher can be fed sugar eets in considerable quantities.

In spite of the science of renu-ation of butter, spoiled butter cannot be made over to be satisfactory. Some of the rancidity may be taken on and new flavor worked in by the use of but termilk, but there will remain in it a good deal of the rancidity, which will show itself in a few days. To prevent this it is necessary to use preserva tives. But preservatives are not de sirable in food products. At best bad butter can be worked only into an in ferior product. The problem is really how to keep it from apoiling at all.

The science of butter-making and selling is progressing, and the time will come when most of the butter made will be good and will be proper ly handled.

What do you think were the first living creatures to go up in a balloon? A sheep, a cock and a duck. They were put in a basket attached to a Montgolfier balloon, and came to land again all right, though bleating, crowing and quacking with fear. Their ascension was made from Versailles, and the poor and unfortunate king and queen, Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette, and the little dauphin and his sisters were much interested in the whole affair, which they watched from

The first men to go up in a balloon were Pilatre de Rozier and the French Marquis d'Arlandes, in November, five minutes, sailing across the river Seine and half of Paris. These first fire-balloons were much more danger ous than those of to-day and are now never used. About three years later this venturesome aeronaut, Pilatre de Rozier, was killed by his balloon falling to earth with fearful rapidity.

This stick I took cut the ends diagonally to make the longer sticks slant toward each other at the top where I put, the for mer between them horizontally. After nailing this in place I took a stick about a foot long and placed it one foot from the top in the same manner as the other. When this is done the easel is nearly finished. It needs but a stick about four feet long, nailed, slanting outward, to the last stick. This is the support which allows it to stand. In the front, put two small screws, one in each long stick. Make them so that they can be taken out and put higher or lower without much trouble. These are the supports for the picture to rest upon. Now your is completed, and you can paint away till you're tired.—Exchange.
