Mel and Dorothy Baerwolf retire after 44 Polewach years

Mel and Dorothy Baerwolf, owners and managers of Polewach Stores, Pigeon, have announced their retirement from operation of the business.

The Baerwolfs came to Pigeon in 1939 from Sandusky, where they were both in retailing. For 44 years, they have managed the Pigeon store, maintaining the philosophy of a large selection, high quality and excellent service.

The couple says they have especially enjoyed managing the store, and they wish to thank their present and past employees and "the many loyal customers who helped make Polewach's West Huron County's largest department store."

Mel Baerwolf, President of the Polewach Corp., for the past 18 years, will continue to serve in that capacity. The company has stores in Bad Axe, Harbor Beach, Sandusky, Marlette, Richmond and Pigeon.

The Baerwolfs have two sons, Delton of Allen Park and Roger of Dallas, Texas.

The couple plans to spend their new-found free time "catching up on all things pushed aside" during the past years, they say. "We're taking one day at a time," they say. Some time will be spent at their Grayling home, on the Au Sable River.

The Baerwolfs were honored at a retirement dinner last week, hosted by their employees and spouses, including Mr. and Mrs. David Jarvis, Mr. and Mrs. Don Schell, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Tate, Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Rheinheimer, Jim Armbruster and Tammy Roestel, Phyllis Vollmer, Clara Diebel, Gaye Andrus, Betty Andrus, Mr. and Mrs. Tim Tate, Dena Dossin, Phyllis Honaker and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Enderle.

Townships approve annual budgets

OLIVER TOWNSHIP

The Oliver Township Board presented a budget of $177,500 for the coming year at the recent annual township meeting, said Clerk Robert Krohn.

Approximately $125,000 is budgeted for road improvements, Krohn said. Federal Revenue Sharing funds amounting to about $20,000 last year were spent on roads. This year, township officials used a figure of $15,000 for revenue sharing funds, until the federal government makes a final decision on allocation of these funds.

The main concern of township residents in attendance was the difference in valuations of property from the west side of the township to the east side, Krohn said. Those attending the meeting said they would prefer that property valuations be based on land classification, rather than on location. It was pointed out that the valuations were shown to be accurate by the results of sales of farmland in the township, Krohn noted.

The township budgeted

$1,000 for the Elkton Parks and Recreation Fund for the first time.

Salaries of $4,800 for supervisor and $3,600 each for the clerk and treasurer remain unchanged from last year.

CASEVILLE TOWNSHIP

A proposed general fund budget of $145,760 was presented at the Caseville Township meeting, according to Clerk Wallace Hart.

The township plans to spend approximately $50,000 on road improvements this year, compared with $18,000 spent on roads last year.

Salaries of $9,020 for the supervisor and assessor, $6,500 for clerk and $7,700 for treasurer remained the same as last year.

CHANDLER TOWNSHIP

The Chandler Township Board proposed a general fund budget increase of about $61,000 at the township's annual meeting. The proposed budget for the coming year is $258,478, according to Supervisor William Dufty.

The new budget calls for $130,000 to be spent on road improvements, compared with $50,000 last year.

Salaries remained unchanged with supervisors' pay at $6,000 and $2,500 each for clerk and treasurer.

LAKE TOWNSHIP

A proposed budget of $103,750 for Lake Township was discussed at the recent annual township meeting, representing a decrease of over $1,000 from last year's budget, says Clerk Edward Koneczny.

A total of two mills, representing 1½ mill for road improvements and ½ mill for police work, is scheduled to expire at the end of this year, said Koneczny.

Improvements to Conkey Road, between State Park and Griggs Road, are planned for this year, a project

Street naming highlights Monday observance in Pigeon

After giving nearly 40 years of athletic training, coaching and umpiring to Pigeon Area youths, Rollie Smith is getting something back on Monday.

The Pigeon Village Council has proclaimed Monday, April 11 as Rollie Smith Day, and Center Street is officially being renamed Rollie Smith Drive in his honor.

"Rollie Smith has unselfishly given of his own time and efforts toward the youth of this area in his work of umpiring and teaching Little League sports and other education endeavors," the official village proclamation reads, which will be presented to him at 6:30 p.m. Monday.

"Rollie Smith has given so freely of his own time and talents...for nearly 40 years, offering good sportsmanship, teamwork, fair play and other assistance to three generations of local young people, for little or no pay or reimbursement whatsoever during this time," the proclamation continues.

So, Center Street leading to Pigeon Recreation Park's Ball Field is being renamed Rollie Smith Drive and April 11, 1983 is proclaimed as Rollie Smith Day. "All citizens are urged to recognize and acknowledge this day," the proclamation says.

The new street sign will be erected in a short 6:30 p.m. ceremony at the corner of Michigan Ave. and the present Center Street. And, Smith will be recognized at the 7 p.m. regular April session of the Village Council immediately following the ceremony.

Village Council President Norris Diebel, Clerk Joe McArdle and Council members arranged the observance, following a suggestion of Dave Geiger and other village residents. The public is invited to the 6:30 p.m. sign unveiling.

$$$ for local bowlers?

When Ann Elbing and Diana Dunn, both of Pigeon, decided to enter the Michigan State Women's Bowling Tournament, they did it more for fun than for competition.

But competition is what they got -- and gave -- as they bowled their way to a second place finish in handicap doubles, following the ninth week of tourney play at Airport Lanes in Jackson.

Elbing bowls regularly for Haist Flowers at Pigeon Lanes, while Dunn substitutes occasionally. Elbing rolled the first 600 series of her life, a 613 and Dunn, a 419, pretty "respectable scores" for bowlers who usually hold averages of 136 and 122, respectively.

Before her big win on Saturday, Elbing's best score was 512. Bowling games of 192, 200 and 221 has put her in the second place winning category at state, providing her scores remain unbeaten for the next nine weeks of the tournament.

"We haven't spent our prize money yet," says Elbing and Dunn. "There are still nine weeks left for someone to beat us." But they add with a smile that they're hoping to hold the second place spot, now that they've had a taste of victory!

ELKTON'S NEWEST BUSINESS

The Tom Thumb Market in Elkton has become a familiar face on Main Street in Elkton, following its opening in mid-December.

Here, assistant manager Dee Esch shows a portion of the eight varieties of donuts the convenience store's Bad Axe location bakes fresh daily for the three Tom Thumb locations in Bad Axe, Elkton and Vassar. In addition to donuts, the store boasts a soda dispenser, beer and wine, dairy products, produce, frozen pizza, hot pizza and sandwiches and fresh coffee.

Tom Thumb is open daily from 6:30 a.m. to 12:30 a.m. and on Sunday from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m.

Tom Thumb Manager Bob Neeb says that current sales at the Elkton store equal earlier projections they had made.

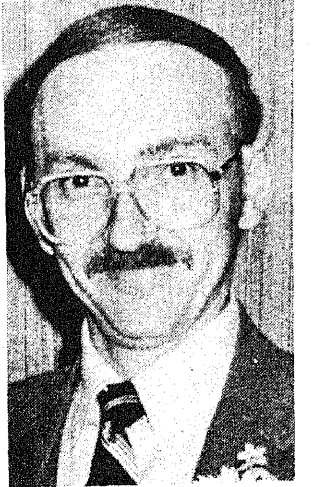

Jarvis named Polewach Manager

Meldrum Baerwolf, President of Polewach Stores, Inc., has announced the appointment of Dave Jarvis as the new Manager of the Pigeon store.

Jarvis is a native of Pigeon and a graduate of Laker High School. He has been working the past 3 1/2 years in management training under the Baerwolfs at the Pigeon store.

His wife, Joyce, will be joining him at the store. Dave and Joyce Jarvis have one daughter, Kristy, age two.

They look forward to serving the public in the years to come, they say.

Salaries for township officials remained unchanged. The supervisor is paid $3,900 and an additional $4,460 for tax assessment. The clerk's salary is $3,900 and the treasurer is paid $3,600.

A new fund was established which earmarks $2,500 for new fire fighting equipment.

meeting, in addition to budget figures reported last week, road improvements were discussed. Township officials said that a 1/2 mile of Brown Road, between Murdoch and Filion Roads, will be paved this year.

Salaries remain the same at $2,500 for supervisor and $1,750 each for the clerk and treasurer.

the annual meeting with 16 residents in attendance, according to Clerk Edmund Good, Jr.

Although budget figures were not available, Good said that $106,000 had been spent on road improvements last year. He noted that expenditures for road repairs during fiscal 1983 would depend on the results of the upcoming millage election. The township will seek a three-mill renewal for 10 years to continue revenues generated by the millage, which expired at the end of fiscal 1982.

The township received $22,565 in Federal Revenue Sharing funds last year, which was all spent on road improvements, Good said.

Farmers were also reminded that they can be held liable for damage resulting from debris such as large clumps of mud or manure left on the road from farm operations, Good said. Obstruction of visibility at intersections due to tall crops such as corn was also discussed.

The salaries of township officials remained the same.

OBSERVATIONS BY THE PUBLISHER AND OTHERS

TAKING OUR PULSE - The Thumb's newest state lawmaker, State Rep. Dick Allen (R-Fairgrove) has sent out his 1983 Legislative Questionnaire, telling area residents "Your Opinions Count!"

He asks 10 questions relating to state budgets, both how revenues should be earned and how expenditures should be made. Plus, he asks eight other questions about issues facing the state, including whether or not to keep the Presidential Primary Election, whether citizens favor or oppose re-establishment of the death penalty, should public school teachers have the right to strike and other questions.

"The former Caro newspaperman asks voters to return the surveys as soon as possible, and he allows spaces for both men and women of the house to respond. Rep. Allen promises he "will continue to pledge to work hard in your behalf to find commonsense solutions to our complex problems."

If you got such a survey and are so inclined, send it back in!

STATE OF MATTERS - Two other statewide items come to the top of the pile this week. First, two million new Michigan road maps (costing $242,000 to print and produce) should be available by the end of the month. They're the first new road maps in three years, where in past years we got new maps every year.

They're given out free by the Michigan Travel Bureau, local Chambers of Commerce, by lawmakers and at travel centers. At 12.1 cents each, they're super road aides!

Secondly, this year's mild winter will enable the state to spend between $8 million and $10 million on "catch-up maintenance" of its state highway system, since that amount was saved from the $36.1 million budgeted by the Department of Transportation for snow and ice control this year. Add in that unfavorable but needed gasoline tax, and we should see better state and federal highways soon.

WISH I'D SAID THAT - Better slip with foot - than with tongue!

The proposed Caseville Township Airport is one step closer to becoming a reality following a joint planning conference at the Caseville Township Hall on Wednesday, March 30.

In attendance were local pilots, passengers, airport business users, fixed base operators, flight instructors, airplane owners and flying club members. In all, 44 people reported their airport needs to the Caseville Township Aeronautics Board. Seven letters from users unable to attend the meeting were read, in which they gave their intended uses of the airport.

The meeting was chaired by John Gross of the Federal Aviation Administration's Airport District Office in Detroit. Wendell Proudfoot, Mary Wroblewski and Tom Reed of the Michigan Bureau of Aeronautics were on hand to coordinate the Five-Year Development Program with the CTAB. Ron Knoblock, Huron County Sixth District Commissioner and chairman of the Airport Committee, also attended and assisted in the planning meeting.

The following planning schedule was adopted by the CTAB:

May 1983: Environmental Public Hearing.

August 1983: Airport Layout Plan completed.

September 1983: Environmental Clearance from the FAA with airspace feasibility study completed. Advertise and procure construction engineer.

October 1983: Final Report. Site Selection Study with Environmental Impact Document completed and approved. Submit pre-application for Airport Development Aid Program grant to FAA. FFA Field Review of Sites.

December 1983: FAA Review of SSS (Site Selection Study) and EID (Environmental Impact Document).

March 1984: Final Airport Layout Plan to FAA for airspace approval. Airport Development Aid Program funds approval from FAA. Land acquisition begins.

July 1984: Advertise for construction bids.

August 1984: Construction begins.

Biblical scholar setting story straight

How many wise men were there, in the Bible's several accounts of Christ's birth? If your answer is three, John Hutchins has news for you.

Nowhere in Biblical text is the number of wise men recounted, he points out. "The Bible never mentions three wise men," the Buford, Georgia researcher says. "It mentions that the wise men brought three gifts." That's different than the way most of us recall the story, but apparently it's more accurate!

Hutchins is on a one-man campaign to stamp out what he calls Bible illiteracy. He has already convinced the editors of some encyclopedias and dictionaries that their publications need revising.

And so, apparently, do some of our recollections about Biblical stories.

His crusade began in October, 1980, when he was watching a TV game show. A contestant was asked the name of the dancer in the Bible who requested the execution of John the Baptist. The contestant answered, "Salome," and the emcee said the answer was correct, Hutchins recalls.

But he disagreed and called the show's producer, who stood by the answer, citing standard reference sources. Hutchins found out several dictionaries and encyclopedias gave the name of the dancer as Salome, and some cited Scripture after the entry.

However, Hutchins says the name Salome does not appear in the Biblical story about an unnamed dancer asking for the execution of John the Baptist. And so he began informing reference book editors.

He's received letters promising revisions of entries on Salome from several publishers, including The World Book Encyclopedia. The World Book's editor believes the name has been associated with the story outside of scripture for so many years that people have just taken it for granted.

But, as John Hutchins points out, it isn't necessarily correct.

He uses the wise men as another case in point. No one disputes the men from the east brought the three gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh in celebration of Christ's birth -- but nowhere does it say there were three wise men!

And, was Jonah swallowed by a whale? The Bible mentions a big fish, not necessarily a whale -- but we've all heard the story, incorrect though it may be, of Jonah being swallowed by a whale!

So, as John Hutchins might say, things aren't always as they seem. He's not attempting to upset Biblical understanding, just to set the record straight. And the fewer assumptions made in life, the better off we may all be, even in a little way.

By GEORGE KEIM

Dear Editor: On March 28 we had the pleasure of attending the Youth for Christ banquet at the Colony House in Cass City.

When we arrived there were many people already there and still a lot coming. It was a very nice crowd of people. Everybody seemed to be having a good time. I knew a lot of them but there were a lot more that I didn't know. Everyone was friendly and when it was time to eat, they were very orderly.

We had a good meal and if we didn't get enough to eat, it was our own fault. They had a good program and the speakers were excellent and to the point. One of them told us how they had prayers before and after some athletic events and it made us all feel good to know there is such good work being done for our young high school people.

Even though some people are trying to get prayer and Bible study out of the schools, there are still a lot of good kids in the schools to make the future more hopeful.

In one of our church papers there was a story of a reporter who interviewed a well-to-do man who was giving his riches to some big religious leaders. I don't think that is wrong, but when you hear that some of them are building $2 million churches made of glass and steel way out in California and hospitals where they aren't needed, it makes one wonder why we can't give a little more to our home organizations and see people that we know getting some good out of it. It almost makes you think of the scripture which is found in Tim 5:8, "but if any provide not for his own and specially for those of his own house, he has denied the faith and is worse than unfaithful." Now that doesn't mean that you can't give to outside charities but if you see a need close at home why not give something to what you can see the results of.

Letters to My Cousin Gus

Dear Cousin Gus: It's that time again. Heard Paul Carey broadcast the Tiger-White Sox game from Lakeland last week, so called my brother Paul and we made our annual bet on the Tiger finish for the season.

With Paul, betting on the Tigers with family members and friends has been a rite of spring for many years and there were times when it generated considerable fervor and interest. However, the sad sack Tiger record of recent years destroyed even Paul's faith in miracles and we see little improvement this year. So our betting lacked some enthusiasm but will serve as a conversation topic for the summer.

My tagging of the Tigers goes back to high school days and a classmate, Schiller Kleinsmith, who worked parttime in Orr's Drug Store. In those years drug stores were pretty much that -- not the variety stores of today but Orr's handled the daily papers that come into town. I remember the Detroit Free Press and the Detroit Journal.

coordination to be an athlete. Schiller became an avid sports fan and, lacking nothing in mental coordination, he became a walking encyclopedia of baseball lore and statistics. The limitation to baseball was not a weakness on Schiller's part -- there was no other professional sports activity. Also not radio or TV... you read it in the papers or heard it from someone who did.

Schiller's job was a plus for me during the school year. No daily papers in our home so those in the drug store beckoned to a young lad who had time on his hands after gulping his sandwich during the school lunch hour. Schiller must also have gulped his lunch because he usually was in the store for half an hour. With him there it was a natural for me to drop in regularly and keep abreast of world events by hastily reading the front page, the sports page and the funny page. Not necessarily in that order but it was a good supplement to a high school education.

P.S. My bet with Paul -- the Tigers to finish fourth in their division.

My son, the senior third edition

Looking back through the files I discovered I had missed doing this topic at the beginning of the school year. The classes of '78 and '79, number one and number two sons included, have probably forgotten by now the words of wisdom offered them. But, number three son and your classmates, it is your turn now.

You have seen much success throughout your high school career. Your athletic teams have reached heights that most schools just dream about. You've had the experience of participating in or cheering for teams in the state finals in both basketball and football tournaments. The girls of the class of '83 have seen winning seasons with many honors in their sports activities, too.

The band members among your class have achieved much during the years of high school. The forensics groups have earned recognition. And the FFA continues to be widely acclaimed throughout the state and nation.

You seniors have had Homecoming. Plans for the prom and graduation are well underway. The end of your high school days are in sight. It's Spring Vacation and some of you have gone up North and some down South. When you return you have only seven weeks until the end.

Be sure that you enjoy these last few weeks. When they are over you will no longer be a senior. Then you will be a graduate. Some of you, going on to school, will still be students. However, you will soon learn that there is nothing like being a high school senior. Some of you will be joining the hundreds of others out there looking for a job. If you think answering teachers' questions are tough, wait until you try applying for jobs and answering questions of an interviewer if you get that far in the job application process.

These last few weeks of high school can be a fun time. Just be careful of how you create your fun. There will be parties of all kinds. Pick out the kinds you like. You don't have to do what "everyone else" is doing. If you are a leader, know your responsibility and don't lead your friends into trouble. If you are a follower, choose carefully whom you will follow. Don't get talked into something you really don't want to do.

You've made it this far and we want to have you around for graduation day and much longer. Congratulations and wishes for success to all members of the class of '83!

THE CASE OF

Carl the knife

As the headwaiter seated Inspector Gordo and Karen in a secluded corner, the sleuth observed a diner at the next table catch a squirt of grapefruit in his left ear.

"Puts me in mind of the case of Carl the Knife. Care to hear about it?" said Gordo.

"Couldn't we order first?" asked Karen. "Carl the Knife," began Gordo, hardly noticing the interruption, "was a notorious cut-throat. His body was found in a dingy Garden City bar. A bullet had entered his left ear and lodged midway in his brain, causing death immediately.

"The bullet matched the gun of Fegar Jones, another hoodlum and Carl's sworn enemy.

"Fegar said he was the last customer in the bar at closing time when Carl entered, raised his famous knife above his head, and, cursing in Hungarian, ran at him."

"Fegar claimed he shot in self-defense as Carl charged him head-on, like a maddened bull. Carl's knife was found clutched in his right hand. He apparently fell holding it as he died.

"Fegar's self-defense plea was seconded by the barmaid, the only eye witness. But even without the barmaid's phony corroboration, I knew Fegar's account was pure fabrication," concluded Gordo. "Can you think why?" "I'm too hungry to think," said Karen. "Why?"

Peking is getting a taste for American sliced bread and jam, thanks to a trail-blazing bakery that U.S. wheat farmers hope will help make bread a staple food for China's one billion people.

The $1.5 million demonstration U.S. bakery was opened last month, half-funded by American wheat growers known as U.S. Wheat Associates. Capable of making 1500 loaves an hour, the bakery has been turning out a popular line of plastic-wrapped sliced bread for several months. "We can't keep up with the demand," one worker says. "People are getting to like it with butter or jam in the mornings." China is already the American wheat farmers' best foreign customer. Chinese bakers have been sent to study in Kansas in past years, and more will be sent this year on U.S. wheat scholarships.

About $7.5 million in sugar from this season's sugar beet crop was destroyed because of the mild winter. About 30 million pounds of sugar produced for the Michigan Sugar Company was lost this winter when warm weather spoiled piles of beets, company Vice President Dave Roche says. It's not devastating, it's just more of a loss than usual, he says. Some spoilage always occurs, but cold winter temperatures usually decrease the amount of deterioration. But this year's crop was excellent otherwise, as about 320 million pounds of sugar was produced in Michigan this year - worth $80 million. Beet prices were on the rise, too, up about 25% above last year, or $33 per ton to producers.

Washington may be the first state to use radiation to kill harmful bugs on apples and cherries bound for the far east, according to officials. The U.S. Department of Agriculture plans tests next year using a portable irradiator. Similar to an x-ray, the irradiator sterilizes the product, kills insects and delays ripening.

Now, crops must be fumigated to assure overseas customers they are free of harmful insects such as the codling moth. But fumigation involves both heat and pesticides, which Japan is having second thoughts about allowing on imported products. An entire pallet of apples could be exposed to a large irradiator, if the two-year experimental program is successful.

Speaking of ripening, Cornell University's College of Agriculture is working on developing a tomato that can be picked red-ripe at the height of maturity - and shipped to market without deteriorating.

Plant breeding experts are working on the tomato, which can be picked and stored for 40 days at room temperatures - about four times longer than present tomatoes - without deteriorating. But several years are expected before the product is in commercial production.

Most tomatoes sold in stores are picked green, treated with ethylene gas to stimulate ripening and reddening while being shipped to market, and then sold. They would deteriorate before reaching consumers if they were picked red and mature.

Most grain stored on-farm facilities in the area may remain in bins the next three to five months, Tuscola Extension Director Bill Bortel reminds. "It's important to raise the grain temperature to between 45 and 50 degrees before spring and keep it there through summer," he advises.

The job should be done in mid-to-late April, since stored grain temperatures are probably between 20 and 30 degrees now, after winter. Optimally, the rise should be done when outside air temperatures are between 40 and 55 degrees. It will probably require a week of fan operation to complete the temperature change in the entire mass of stored grain, Bortel says.

For best results, the aeration fan should push the warmer outside air from the bottom of the grain toward the top of the bin. When the grain temperature at the top of the bin falls within the desired range, the job is complete.

Lawmakers in Vermont voted last week to decline milk as the official state drink. They also emphasized the dairy industry's importance to state coffers. It will then go to the Vermont Senate for approval.

Meanwhile in Wisconsin, milk and beer are fighting to become the official drink of Wisconsin, a state known for its dairies and breweries. Wisconsin dairy farms are famous, but then so is beverage "that made Milwaukee famous." Legislators are fighting out this "udderly" delicious problem.

'Out-Yielders' formed for corn

By RICH SWARTZENDRUBER

A new agricultural group called the "Out-Yielders Club" was recently formed in the Western Thumb area, to help increase profitability in corn production, according to Bill Zimmer, manager of Agrico Farm Center in Pigeon and organizer of the group.

The farmers in the group keep records of production methods and expenses in an effort to obtain the best return per dollar invested, Zimmer says. He stresses that the highest obtainable goal is not necessarily the goal, if profits do not increase proportionately with expenses.

No restrictions are placed on participants regarding what type of seed, fertilizer or tilling methods are used. Farmers in the group must base their figures on a plot at least five acres in size, according to Zimmer. Rental fees per acre will be uniform for all participants in their record-keeping, as will be the selling price of the crop.

The entire test plot must be harvested and weighed.

The local group hopes to increase profitability in corn production.

rather than projecting results on samples, to ensure greater accuracy, says Zimmer.

Agrico will take plant tissue samples and soil samples twice during the growing period for each farmer to determine if nutrients present in the soil are getting to the plant tissues.

In other similar clubs in Michigan last year, a top yield of 193 bushels per acre was reported, with 37 farmers achieving 150 bushels per acre yields, says Zimmer. These results were obtained from land less fertile than the top farming areas in the state, he notes.

Club members include John Stalter, Henne Farms, Jerry Beyer and Richard Strieter, all of Bay Port; Henry Lange and Dave Ellfman, both of Pigeon; Don McBride of Caseville and Lloyd Wolfe and William Kretschmer, both of Owendale.

Ed Oeschger honored by Farm Bureau

Ed Oeschger, of Bay Port, local agent for Farm Bureau Insurance Group, has been named one of the company's top agents for 1982, based on his record of sales and service for the year.

As one of the year's top agents, Oeschger received the group's "All American" award during the company's recent annual sales convention in Grand Rapids. He also earned membership in the 1982 Executives Club, an honor reserved for the company's top 23 agents and agency managers for their superior insurance sales and service.

A long-time member of the company's Leaders for Life Club for top life insurance producers, Oeschger led his company in new life volume in 1982, producing over $3 million of life insurance protection. He was also among the top three producers in new life premium, new annuity premium and total new premium. Oeschger received additional recognition for earning the life insurance industry's 1982 National Quality Award.

This Week's Thumb Area Outdoor Report

By DUANE GUENTHER

While the weather continues to plague this spring's spawning runs, most fishermen have turned their attention back to perch. During last week, lots of anglers were filling their buckets with tasty yellow-bellies. You could find all kinds of people along ditch banks, off bridges and in their boats, and those that spent some time, were rewarded with nice catches.

Most fishermen remembered that the new fishing license was needed, and those that forgot were able to buy them at one of the many tackle and bait shops that dot our area. Frank Kelly of Sebawa's Western Auto Store reported that he sold over 100 new licenses on Good Friday.

cerned about the safety of eating fish that is caught in Saginaw Bay. Although Saginaw Bay is on the DNR's fishing guide warning list, the only fish that are part of that warning are carp, catfish, salmon and trout. Then they state that you can eat these fish, but not more than one meal per week.

At the present time scientists do not agree about the possible dangers of dioxin and other contaminants that have been found in fish. The EPA stated that they issued the warning to be on the safe side, while researchers had more time to study the effects on humans.

You can further reduce the risk of these contaminants by filleting your fish and trimming off the belly meat and cutting out the backbone and the strip of meat that surrounds it.

Pork raisers need feed efficiency

Growing pigs the fastest way isn't always the most profitable way.

Increasing feed efficiency rather than growth rates may give swine producers the highest profits, says Maynard D. Hogberg, MSU Extension swine specialist.

"Many producers increase growth rates to market pigs more quickly and save on nonfeed costs, but they lose the advantage they have gained by not increasing production," Hogberg says.

Producers should not try to increase rate of gain unless it is unusually low or it's necessary to move pigs out to relieve overcrowded conditions.

Processing protein and carbohydrate sources to increase digestibility and using antibiotics to improve feed utilization in the starter stage are usually profitable.

Pigs in the growing-finishing stage use about 75 percent of the herd's feed. Reducing feed intake and maintenance needs and increasing caloric density in this stage may produce significant savings, note Hogberg.

Growing pigs often eat five to 10 percent more than they need for maintenance and lean tissue production. Reducing feed intake to within 90 to 95 percent of appetite will improve feed efficiency and lower the amount of fat produced.

Feed efficiency can be improved by increasing the caloric density or fat level of the diet during warm summer months.

In the summer, pigs eat less because they're uncomfortable from heat caused by their digestion and metabolism. Fat does not release as much heat during digestion, so pigs will eat more. Fat added to the diet at levels greater than five percent may also increase growth rates.

Air temperature also plays a role in how pigs use feed. Food energy that isn't needed to keep warm can be turned into lean tissue, Hogberg says. The best temperature for pigs depends on environmental conditions, but 60 to 70 degrees F is usually good for the growing pig.

Better herd health will also improve overall feed efficiency, advised Hogberg.

Wormed pigs show six to 11 percent better feed conversion. Parasite control in the breeding herd can reduce infestation in young pigs.

Wildlife may also benefit from PIK

An added benefit for most farmers participating in the U.S. Department of Agriculture Payment-in-Kind (PIK) program may be the increase in wildlife attracted to conservation use acreage.

"There could be as much as a twofold increase in pheasant population depending on the kind of cover crop planted," says Glenn Dudderar, MSU extension wildlife specialist. "There is also likely to be an increase in the variety of wildlife - deer, rabbits, fox, possibly geese - that will be attracted to the farm throughout the year by the conservation-use acreage."

The best pheasant cover would be a grass-legume mixture. It would enhance soil quality while providing excellent nesting cover. Pheasants will also frequently nest in the frost-seed mixture of sweet clover and red clover, and in alfalfa.

From a biological standpoint, mowing should be avoided. If that is not feasible, delay mowing as long as possible, preferably until at least July 15. Pheasant nesting peaks the first two weeks of June.

Spring-planted barley cover crop that could be disked or chisel plowed in the fall and then spring-plowed. It will provide good pheasant and rabbit cover this summer, and in the winter, good grazing for wildlife such as deer, geese and rabbits.

Cover crops that are planted adjacent to tracts of fruit trees or Christmas trees or near buildings should be mowed in August or early fall to help control rodent populations.

The mowing will attract foxes and hawks, which will be after the rodents, and sandhills cranes, pheasants and doves, which will feed on the crop residue.

USDA to buy corn, via PIK

The overwhelming response of farmers to the payment-in-kind (PIK) program has caused the USDA to seek corn, sorghum and wheat from farmers who have these commodities under loan. USDA announced that it will have to buy commodities from the farmer-owned reserve and loan programs to fulfill its commitments for the PIK program, says Michigan Farm Bureau.

While USDA had hoped to idle as much as 30 million acres through farmer participation in PIK and acreage reduction programs, farmers signed up to idle a total of 82.3 million acres.

Producers have until April 15 to offer their grain under loan for a sales contract with USDA at the county office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service where the loan was obtained.

It would have been impossible for Fogar to shoot Carl through the car while Carl was charging him "head-on."

EYE OPENERS

By Dr. Douglas A. Buehler, Optometrist
DEPTH PERCEPTION
Q. Why is it so important to see DEPTH?
A. We live in a 3-D world. Everything we see—people, cars, landscapes—has length, width and volume or depth. If our vision is impaired or underdeveloped when perceiving depth, we can bump into things, get into accidents, or bypass the hole when threading a needle. The SIX MUSCLES that control each eye must be able to direct the two eyes at the same spot within the range of a few degrees, or 3-D effects are lost or diminished.
Q. Are there ways to correct depth perception deficiencies?
A. That depends on what causes the deficiency in the first place. In older people, removal of a cataract from one eye will cause a loss of depth perception which can be corrected by fitting a contact lens. Where one eye is higher than the other, glasses can be prescribed to bring the images into line. If the eye muscles are not coordinating properly, visual training is effective in many cases.

Sharing Banquet draws record crowd

A record crowd of over 600, representing all areas of life in Huron County, attended last Monday's Sharing Banquet at the Colony House, Cass City, sponsored by the Bluewater Youth for Christ.

Laker Principal James Ballard remarks on the positive influence YFC has on the young people at Laker High School.

Following dinner, several school administrators and an athletic coach described their impressions of the influence the BYC organization has on young people. Laker High School Principal James Ballard explained that public schools influence the mental, physical and social areas of students' lives, but are prohibited by law from dealing with the spiritual side.

Campus Life, a branch of YFC that deals with directly on high school campuses, offers the opportunity for teens to add the spiritual dimension to their lives.

Laker Coach George Gardy expressed gratitude to Campus Life staffer Redford Maust for the inspirational meetings he led for the football team before each game. The meetings gave the players a chance to evaluate important issues in life and put in perspective the games they were about the play, he added.

The influence of Youth for Christ on the lives of various young people was shown by a slide presentation and statements made during the program by students themselves.

Christian musicians Tami Chere and John Gunden performed several songs, as did a local Campus Life singing group.

Youth for Christ/USA President Jay Kessler wrapped up the evening with comments about the impact of people who are committed to helping each other. He noted that Youth for Christ offers young people someone to turn to when they are faced with seemingly insurmountable problems.

Townliners host extension groups

Poor Man's Trout

The blue-and-silver, Little Cleo hit the water with a loud splat. I hesitated momentarily while the lure sank beneath the wind-tossed waves that were crashing into the breakwall. Starting my retrieve, I cranked the reel handle with a fast, steady rhythm, hoping to imitate a darting smelt or spotted tail minnow.

The cast was no different than hundreds of others that I had tossed off the breakwall that morning, and the monotony lulled me into a relaxed state that allowed the fish to catch me off guard when he hit the lure. One minute I was nonchalantly and effortlessly spinning in momentary disbelief at the bowed rod tip.

The suddenness of the strike sent a small shock wave up on the line, transmitted it to the rod where the pulsating throbs worked their way up my arms and culminated at the back of my neck amid standing hair and goose bumps. I slammed back on the rod and eased off the drag to protect the light monofilament.

The brown came entirely clear of the wave-swept surface, and turned over heavily in a wild spray of water. He was a big one, perhaps eight to 10 pounds, and I cautioned myself to be patient and not rush the fish. A full 15 minutes passed before I flopped on my stomach and leaning over the edge of the wall, slipped the long-handled net under the tired fish.

He was a typical brown, thick and stocky, almost football-like in shape. His flanks glowed their characteristic color, and the red-tipped, black spots vividly stood out. The fish registered nine and a half pounds on the small scale that I carry in my tackle box. I placed him in the ice-filled cooler where he dwarfed the two smaller steelheads that I had caught earlier in the morning. I had been fishing for about two and a half hours and decided to take a short break. Perched on the closed lid of the cooler, I sipped a cup of hot coffee provided by my trusty thermos, and mulled over the morning events.

I enjoy early spring trout fishing, and since becoming indoctrinated into this type of angling, I have caught my fair share of browns, steelheads, and even salmon casting from breakwalls, piers and the shoreline. Although I like the action brought about by casting, I also have one rod rigged for bait fishing (a method I will discuss later).

Heavier spoons seem to work best for me. Their added weight allows for more distance when you cast, and this can be very important, especially when fishing for those wary brown trout. Favorites of mine are the Little Cleo, Devle Dogs and Krocodiles. I switch colors frequently, but find that my greatest success is with nickle-and-blue and nickle-and-green.

I also like to use a nine foot rod with an oversized reel loaded with light monofilament line. I find that six pound test works the best, but when the salmon are in close I usually switch to eight pound test.

I prefer fishing at a river or stream mouth, over just anyplace on the beach. Baitfish seem to congregate where the warmer water of the streams mingle with the open water of the lake. This is a good hang-out for smelt, and where you find smelt, you are bound to find trout.

While casting on the outside of a breakwall or pier, I have done fairly well fishing my other rod with bait on the inside. The most common method is to gob on a chunk of spawn on night crawlers and let it roll along the bottom. This can only be done if you have some sort of rod holder which allows you to leave it unattended with the reel's bail open. Usually a slip-sinker rig will give you the weight, plus the freedom that causes the life-like action of the spawn.

Another method I picked up from a friend of mine, is to bait a No. 10 fine-wire hook with a wiggler and suspend it under a small bobber. The Wiggler, a nymph somewhat over one inch in length, lightly hooked and presented on a light monofilament line, lives up to its nickname. It swims about in an up-and-down motion that attracts trout like crazy. You must watch your bobber carefully as a trout takes a live nymph gently. If you want good results, be sure to keep a lively wiggler on the line.

Surf casting is becoming more popular in our area. However there are some specific problems with this type of fishing. It is hard to get close to feeding trout when wading, so long, light-action rods and light monofilament line are necessities. When casting spoons, keep your drag set light as there is little room for error when trying to beach a large trout.

If you are fishing spawn on a slip-sinker rig, it is handy to have a homemade rod holder known as a "sand spike". These are nothing more than a piece of thin-wall conduit with a chunk of plastic pipe attached to it. A six-footer can be driven in the sand next to you and will hold your rod and reel well above the water.

When it comes to trout fishing on Saginaw Bay, don't sob about not owning a big boat. Poor guys like us have a lot of opportunities to catch trout, if we just look for them.

FAITH TEACHES US THAT REAL WEALTH IS TAX-EXEMPT

His best companions
innocence and health;
And his best riches,
ignorance of wealth.

— Oliver Goldsmith

"...he heappeth up riches, and knoweth not who shall gather them."
— Psalm 39:6

Our opposing factions will probably never agree on the basic principles of economics and the role that government should play in our lives, if any. It will always be argued whether certain needs are best provided by individuals themselves or by government programs, financed by our taxes. No matter which side prevails, however, taxation is something that will always be with us; and when we pay our taxes we should remind ourselves that acquiring material possessions is by no means everything in life. A definite place in our schedules should be allotted to spending time with our families, particularly during our children's growing years. Moreover, a portion of that time with them should be spent at our House of Worship, where the lessons will show us that the real wealth in our lives is something that can never be taxed.

Woman's retreat planned April 8-10

"Walking in Newness of Life" is the theme for a Woman's Retreat planned at the Pigeon River Mennonite Church this Friday, April 8 through Sunday, April 10.

Mrs. Matilda Kipfer of Alden, N.Y. will be guest speaker for the five sessions which begin Friday evening at 7 p.m. She has spoken throughout the United States and Canada in Mennonite churches for her work in the Aglow Fellowship.

Saturday sessions will begin at 4 p.m., followed by a luncheon. They will resume at 6:45 p.m. Mrs. Kipfer will also speak at the Sunday morning 9:30 a.m. worship service and again at 7 p.m.

Area women are invited to attend all sessions.

Practices begin for Cantate Choral

The 'Cantate Chorale' will begin practices on Friday evening, April 15 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at St. John Lutheran Church, Kilmanagh.

Further rehearsals will be the following eight Friday evenings with concerts tentatively scheduled in Unionville and Pigeon on June 17 and 19. Anyone in the Western Thumb area interested in good choral singing is invited to become a part of the Cantate Chorale.

The director will be Wanda Eichler of Pigeon, who previously served as assistant director. A.J. Streiter of Unionville will be the assistant director.

The music selection committee has chosen a wide variety of music from several music periods. Among the new selections will be the Palestrina "Tu Es Petrus," W.A. Mozart "Ave Verum Corpus," Tchaik "To Thee We Sing" in the Russian Orthodox tradition, Martin Shaw's "With A Voice of Singing" and a contemporary arrangement of the spiritual "Give Me Jesus."

The Cantate Chorale is made up persons from several communities in the Western Thumb who gather twice yearly for several weeks of practice in preparation for a concert of sacred choral music usually not possible in local church choirs.

Auditions are not required although the ability to read music is assumed as well as a commitment to attend most rehearsals, says a spokesperson for the group.

Interested persons are invited to attend the first rehearsal. For further information call Pigeon 453-3342 or 453-3053.

Suddenly!

Read 2 Peter 3:1-18

When He had said this, as they were looking on, He was lifted up, and a cloud took Him out of their sight. Acts 1:9.

So often things happen suddenly, without warning, without advance notice.

Two little girls from a nearby church went to sleep on their cot in their cottage five days after celebrating Easter. The father began to show their brother how to clean a gun when suddenly in her sleep little Jenny was shot to death, accidentally.

We live daily in danger. In the midst of life we are in death. The death notices in the newspapers are a constant reminder of how suddenly and unexpectedly death can come upon us.

The devil is doing his best to bring evil upon us. How can Christians be safe and secure from all the evil which so easily besets them and threatens to overwhelm them?

Where can God's children find deliverance from all the evil in this sinful world?

There is only one Deliverer, and Jesus Christ is His name. We cannot be our own wisdom or strength be delivered from evil. Someone greater than we are must do it for us.

Jesus Christ accomplished that when he died and rose on our behalf.

Christ's resurrection is proof positive that He is stronger than the devil, hell and death itself.

Whatever the evil may be that assaults us, God's undeserved love is sufficient for us, for His strength is made perfect in our weakness.

St. Paul declared, "The Lord shall deliver me from every evil work, and will preserve me unto His heavenly kingdom, to whom be glory forever and ever. Amen."

May St. Paul's faith be ours also!

Lord, I am relying on You to keep me from all evil in this world and to take me to heaven where there is no evil. Amen.

VOLLEYBALL FUNDAMENTALS! A volleyball team of seventh and eighth grade girls recently completed a month-long season. Coach Ellen Keglovitz says the practices and games were designed to be learning experiences in volleyball fundamentals so no records were kept, though the young Lakers won more than they lost.

Akron-Fairgrove, Owen-Gage, Cass City and Immanuel Lutheran of Sebawaing provided competition throughout the month of March. Keglovitz expressed gratitude to members of the Varsity and JV teams who helped instruct the young athletes.

Spiker Sturm named all-state

Laker's outstanding spiker, Eva Sturm was recently named to the second team all-state team by the Michigan High School Volleyball Coaches' Association.

The six-foot senior was a dominating force at the net as she helped Lakers record a 39-3 season record, including the first Thumb B Volleyball title in school history and three tournament championships throughout the year.

Her aggressive offensive style which led to 110 ace spikes was complimented by her defensive ability as she recorded 62 successful blocks. Her contributions on offense weren't confined to the front row as she served for 154 points during the season.
