Berne Enterprises plans Wednesday pourings after fire

PLENTY OF FLAMES: ABOVE, Pigeon-Winsor Firemen and neighborhood volunteers pour water on flames in the storage and production area of Berne Enterprises, Inc., during Thursday's fire.

BELOW, this is the scene that greeted firemen when they arrived. Help came from four other departments and fire fighters controlled the blaze in about two hours.

Foundry work was expected to begin again today (Wednesday), less than a week after last Thursday night's major fire which destroyed a portion of production and storage areas of Berne Enterprises, Inc., 7190 Berne Road, Pigeon.

No dollar estimate on fire damage is available, but owners Keith and Alice Wurst say they plan to rebuild. "We're definitely reopening. We expect to come back as an even stronger company," Mrs. Wurst said Tuesday. The exact cause of the fire is still being determined, although it started on the west side of the building, firemen say.

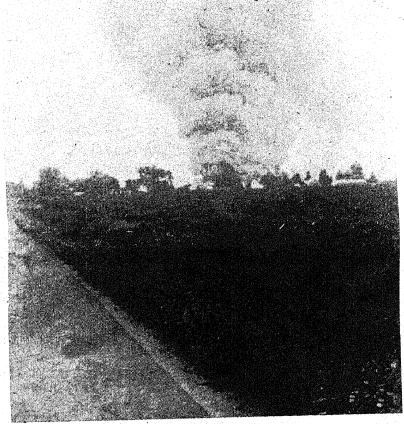

Pigeon Firemen were called to the scene about 8 p.m. and found the rear building completely engulfed in flames. Firemen from Fair Haven and Elkton-Oliver Departments were called immediately, and additional crews from Caseville and Sebewaing responded. In all, about 50 firemen were on the scene for two hours with 10 pieces of equipment.

Nearly 10 production

Nearly 10 production workers were in the building at the time, but all escaped injury. "That's what we're so thankful for," Mrs. Wurst said. "We're so happy no one was hurt." The firm employs about 50 workers.

Some of the workers volunteered to donate their time to keep the business operating during this down time. "None of our dies or patterns were touched (by the fire)," she said. "Our customers can be assured we can produce the work we have for them, when we get fully rolling again.

"We're so grateful for everything. Everybody has been just super. But our customers need parts and that's why we're planning to pour Wednesday. We've got a lot of work right now."

Damage estimates and rebuilding plans are final yet because of insurance consultations. Office and lab areas were not affected by the fire.

Dark smoke clouds were visible from Caseville, six miles away, one fireman said.

"We just want to express our gratefulness, to the firemen, volunteers, neighbors, friends, everybody. We sincerely appreciate what everyone has done or has offered to do," she said.

OBSERVATIONS BY THE PUBLISHER AND OTHERS WHAT SEASON IS IT? Doesn't it seem like the days are still pretty long and it's still hot outside? Then why would companies be sending out their Christmas catalogs already? Angie Lawrence brought in her family's J.C. Penney Christmas catalog last Friday -- and we couldn't believe it.

NEXT YEAR'S PREDICTIONS NOW - Remember you heard it here first. Have you ever KNOWN what's going to happen before it does? Well, we found a dusty old crystal ball while rummaging through the old publisher's desk and conjured up these images:

It will be Reagan versus Mondale in next November's election (yawn). We're certainly not wild about either gentleman (not many people are), but there may be a twist or two.

If President Reagan REALLY wanted to win with no doubt, he should add a woman as vice president and make George Bush secretary of state. But the President won't do it. On the other hand, a more-desperate Walter Mondale may add a woman or a black as vice president, to better unify the Democratic Party (and to court Rev. Jessie Jackson's Operation P.U.S.H. supporters). Mondale may just add a woman or black to the ticket. Can Jessie Jackson himself win? No, not yet. Not enough people would vote for him in 1984 (although they might by 1992) -- but he can ultimately control who does or doesn't win election as our next president. He could help Reagan win (by splitting the Democratic vote with Mondale) or he could help insure Mondale will win by pulling out of the race or by throwing his support to Mondale.

But we don't think Rev. Jackson will get that far. More and more black leaders are opposing his candidacy and it may wither on the vine. We'll all have to wait and see. What do YOU think?

ONE MORE PREDICTION - We don't think ANY of this year's entries will beat last year's "Home Grown Contest" winners, thanks to 1983's unusual weather. We'll all see!

WISH I'D SAID THAT - It's better to repair the beginning or several good reasons, Albion College Assistant to the President Morley Fraser has spoken to local graduates, young people, service groups and other lucky Thumb Area folks. He's a former coach who still holds the state record for the most victories as a college football coach.

In a word, Mr. Fraser is a motivator. Besides his college duties, the 61-year-old man is chaplin to both the Detroit Tigers and Detroit Lions professional teams. He's obviously a very good motivator.

On the invitation of Laker High School Principal James Ballard, Fraser spoke at Caseville United Methodist Church Sunday morning and then shared his eight steps to success with the Pigeon Rotary Club Monday noon. They're certainly worth sharing now.

1. First, he says, "Be excited about your job." Is the U.S. in economic trouble? Perhaps, but more people are employed in our land to-day than ever before. That's important. Enjoy what you do, or find something you enjoy, Fraser told the Rotary Club.

2. Second, your education continues forever. Don't expect you'll stop learning when formal schooling stops. "Education goes on 'til death do you part," he says.

3. Your recreation should be diametrically opposite to your vocation, he believes. He and his wife enjoy sport fishing when not at his normal desk-type job. (They were bound for a Saginaw Bay walleye excursion after the meeting Monday!) This gives you changes and eliminates hum-drum in life, he says.

4. "Have a honeymoon every year on your anniversary," he advised Rotarians. He and his wife have been doing that for more than 30 years, and loving every minute of it. It goes without saying that includes being true to your wife or husband, he adds.

5. Respect is something you earn. And the people you respect make you work, he believes. He reminds listeners that names of average or

Looking back

Finally, I've had a moment to catch my breath. The Fair has come and gone and we survived that hectic week one more time. No steer got loose on the midway. The sucker games took lots of change. The best food is provided by local people.

Several observers have commented that the livestock judges must be folks on a low-fat, low-cholestrol diet. The sleekest, fattest steers seemed to be the ones with red rib-bons, while the blue-ribbon winners looked a little scrawny. I'm only repeating what I heard.

Number one son participated in the tug-of-war contest one evening. After a day of golfing, it was a rush to get to the Fair on time, I thought. No need to worry. The Bean Queen contest was nice; the 4-H King and Queen deserve recognition; but the chain saws were something else. When the announcer caller out Class F, I thought, "Great! Now the tug will start."
When he then announced, "Class A, modified" I was sure we were in for five more groups. Just two modified classes were scheduled and that was enough. Number three son said they sould like motorcycle engines. His older brother informed him that's about what they are. Chain saw contests are okay but it seemed too much scheduled for one night.

By the time the tug-of-war started I was frozen stiff. Even the team members had trouble keeping warm before their event. Once the competition got under way they soon warmed up with the exertion. I felt my hands might break right off every time I clapped them. Thank goodness for the electric blanket when I got home.

The next adventure was the livestock sale. And of course, it rained! It always seems to do that during Fair Week. The business community of Huron County is to be commended for the support it offers to the Junior Livestock Association. The prices at this sale are usually higher than in neighboring ounties. I heard a remark that the auction prices don't give the youngsters a real picture of raising and selling livestock for a living. True, but I'm sure they all know that a Fair animal is special and they receive a special price for that one. A big thank-you to all who bought

After being cold and wet I thought I'd had enough of the Fair. Somehow I got talked into going out on Friday for the Demolition Derby. That number one son was driving in that event. In preparing the car he had split his pants. The message was relayed home that he needed another pair and would I please bring some to him. Manners all over the place when he needs something - please, even! When you are there, you might as well stay. But as one Mother said to me, "This is hardly like watching them play Little League, is it?" After all the slipping and sliding, being stuck in the mud, banging and crashing, he was declared the winner. A friend asked, "And how does he drive on the highway?"

Mom's reaction to son's championship: "Good! Now that he has won maybe he'll give up the crazy notion."

President

At Co-operative Elevator Company WE'RE LOOKING AHEAD ... WITH PROMISE!

WHAT FACED US DURING 1982-1983

In the early 1980s, all the world was in a recession. There was less money available in most other nations, and international trade was reduced, particularly for American farm products. The result was that our farm export income went down and down. With the American economy sluggish, and unemployment high, farm commodity prices in the US went down still more. The efficient American farmer continued to produce food, anxious to supply the needs for a hungry world, but high efficiency worked to the farmers' disadvantage, as it meant even greater production, and ever-more depressed commodity prices.

NOW 1984 STANDS AT THE DOOR ...

So, now the 1983 Harvest is well underway. Wheat and oats are in, beans will be next, then sugar beets and corn, and soon 1984 will be here. Your Co-Operative Elevator is well-prepared for the coming years. The addition of the ELKTON PLANT provides a new, convenient location for many more farmers. With the addition of 800,000 bushels of new storage, the Elkton facility now has more than 2 million bushels of space. At PIGEON, the expansion program added 1.4 million bushels, for a company total of more than 7 MILLION BUSHELS OF STORAGE.

Other new additions were made - - use of new bulk bean boxes for one of our largest customers, completion of the new maintenance shop buildings, and addition of a new feed delivery truck. At AKRON, we added new bagging scales and a new yard truck, and at PIGEON CO-OPERATIVE OIL COMPANY we added a new roof for the station and a new bulk fuel delivery

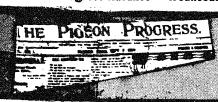

For the year, low commodity prices and reduced prices of farm supplies meant a 21% reduction in our company's dollar sales. Our net margin was $2.235 million. Meanwhile, by controlling expenses, our rate of profit kept pace with the bigger-volume years, and next February we will pay a cash dividend of $894,000 to our patrons, for BUYING AND SELLING HERE. Even though dollar volume was 21% lower, our bushel volume for 1983 was 30% HIGHER than 1982.

OUR INVITATION TO YOU

Your input is vital to continued growth of the Co-operative Elevator, and we urge you to join our growing family. Total equity held by patrons is just over $10 million, and with approximately 1,000 farm units in our "family", it means that each has an investment valued at an average of $10,000. Just think what that provides your farm operation - - storage, drying facilities, complete fertilizer, feed and chemical services, technical agronomy assistance and top-quality marketing service, total petroleum and tire service, and dozens of additional helps to provide you with "more net income than you could receive any other place". We want you in our Co-op Farm Family - and we invite you to stop in and talk with us. It's a good family to join, because we're a "LOOKING AHEAD FAMILY", Handling the auctioneering were Thumb Auction Service of Bay Port and Herb Albrecht Auctioneers of Vassar. Gloria Stalter handled the clerking.

BYC Director Dwight Gascho was optimistic about the results of the sale, even from last year's $12,000 profit. "Last year was really a record event, especially with a huge bake sale and the sale of several very large items that were donated, rather than consigned," he explains. "We're very, very pleased with the results of this year's sale, which will give us the opportunity to start off the school year the black." ' He also noted that there were only about donuts made by Esther Steckly on the premises, and 'Greble,'' a Russian-German pastry baked by Betty Guenther's mother and sold by Betty and Duane until all was gone.

Gascho gives a special thanks to the ladies who donated/baked items, to Jim Maust for donating over 250 lbs. of fresh pork sausage, to the Pigeon Co-op Elevator for their donation of baked beans and to The Dutch Kettle for providing free cole slaw. "These donations really made the difference in our profit margin," adds

He says they are already beginning to plan next year's event. "We're right in the middle of evaluating our whole YFC program. We'll have lots of new ideas for next year," adds Gascho.

Fish scalers

A couple of months ago I pulled into the driveway of a friend to pick him up for an evening fishing excursion. He yelled out the window that he would be a few minutes, so I busied myself by looking at a new boat that he had parked in his garage. As I was working my way around the side of the boat, I came upon a strange-looking, homemade contraption. Although I had a pretty good idea as to what it was, my friend entered the garage to confirm that it was indeed a fish scaler. He told me he had obtained it from a fellow living south of Elkton who builds

The scaler was constructed from a couple of small, metal barrels. The first looked to e about 25 gallons in size and had been cut n half, lengthwise. One-half had a metal leg welded to each corner and resembled some barbecue grills that I had seen. The second barrel had a rod through it and was positioned inside the first barrels so it could spin freely with about two to three inches of clearance. The rod was attached to an electric motor that turned the inside barrel when a switch was snapped.

The inside barrel had been punched full of noles from the outside. Every inch or so, the builder had taken either a nail or metal punch and gave it a whack. The results were barrel that looked like a sieve on the outside, but an old-fashioned potato grinder on the inside. The smaller barrel was fitted with a door on one end to receive the fish to

The scaling procedure was simply to fill the smaller barrel with fish, and fill the larger barrel with water. When the motor was turned on, the fish beat against the sharp protrusion on the inside of the barrel and the loose scales were washed away by the water in the outside barrel.

I marveled at the ingenuity of the invention, and smiled when I thought about a conversation that I had had in one of the local coffee shops a week earlier. One of the local businessmen was explaining a fish scaler that he had been making and I was positive that his directions would have made a carbon copy of the one I was looking at. A short time later I saw a small version for sale in the local lumber yard. The only difference was that the outside pail was made of plastic. It was apparent that this good idea had been thought up by a number of people at the same time

Living near the bay with its fantastic perch population makes most outdoorsmen aware of the importance of a good fish scaler. It is one of those messy jobs that must be tackled before the fish can be reduced to those delectable filets that we all love. Not all fish scalers are so easy to use, and I can remember some of the dandies that I used to work with.

The first fish scaler that I can remember using was a couple of beer bottle caps nailed to a flat piece of wood. You just grabbed a perch by the head and went to work, trying to be careful that you didn't skin your knuckles when you were working around the gills. The raw materials for the scaler were easily obtained and it seemed to give the older guys an excuse to drink a couple of beers. "Got to have a new fish scaler," they would say.

Next it was a commercial fish scaler. It looked an awful lot like the one made of beer caps, but was constructed out of metal. Shaped like a knife, these scalers used to grace every fisherman's tackle box, and if you look closely, you can still find some of them hanging around. Their one drawback was that they were not very sharp, and you ended up ripping flesh off the fish in an effort to get at the scales.

Then there was a dandy that fit in the end of an electric drill. Resembling a round rasp, they made the scales fly when the drill was turned on. This type hit the market before the variable speed drills, and although I never had one, I could imagine that they were hard to handle.

Another type that used an electric drill for its power was fashioned with a flexible neck. Using the same round rasp principle, this type allowed for the drill to be locked in a vise, and the operator had the freedom of the flexibility offered to move around the fish more conveniently.

I'm sure that there were many more fish scalers being used that I never saw or heard about, but one of my favorites is owned by my boss. During an auction sale in Flint, he was able to pick up a commercial potato peeler. The advent of powdered potatoes has all but made these items obsolete. If you watch for garage sales at hospitals or other institutions, you may find one of them.

This one is made of stainless steel and is nothing more than a barrel sitting vertically on its power source. The bottom is a plate of abrasive material that is uneven and spins when the machine is turned on. It has an adapter for a water source, and had a drain pan that catches all the scales located in the bottom. All in all, its a very unique fish

Anyone who fishes for perch and enjoys eating them must face the task of getting rid of the scales. You can choose whatever method you like? As for me - I think that I will have a couple of beers . .

Pertaining to Bay Port's successful annual Fish Sandwich Day, blessed with serving 5100 fish sandwiches, we consider it no sin to have some funds in the treasury. At start of this year's event, we had barely sufficient funds to pay for this year's expenses; and in case of rain, could have resulted in deficit. In the past funds have gone for purchasing much necessary equipment, including one electric and four huge gas fryers, plus much more equipment to do this

FAITH PROVIDES THE ADJUSTMENT TO ADVANCING AGE

"...I have learned, in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content." -Philippians 4:11

Every age has its pleasures, its style of wit, and its own ways.

he approach of middle age should not be the dreadful time of life that it is for many of us; for after all, youth is not all glamour and fun. It is an age of turmoil, self-doubt and insecurity, of fierce competition for jobs or favor from another person, and the pursuit of mirages in a frantic quest for popularity. Later, these things are replaced by serenity and self-assurance; for by now you know your good points and your weaknesses. Your entire outlook is improved, and you are better able to cope with whatever comes along. If you have not yet begun to appreciate these advantages that come with time, Boileau-Despreaux your Church can be a tremendous help to you in making the transition; as well as a reservoir of strength and peace of mind for the years to

CAPITOL NOTES By State Representative Dick Allen

MICHIGAN'S PREVAILING WAGE LAWS --A DETERRENT TO ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT?

Gov. James Blanchard's proposed Michigan Strategic Fund is being smartly packaged in Lansing as the center piece of the administration's economic development effort Its primary thrust is to provide funding for economic development jobs through the sale of industrial development revenue bonds. However, as the legislation to create the fund now reads, any person employed in a project that is receiving funding from the Strategic Fund must be paid the prevailing wage. I see the requirement as a deterrent to economic development, and not a wise way to attempt to create jobs. At face value, the formation of the Michigan Strategic Fund is a positive move on behalf of the Blanchard administrative. Howeve, the prevailing wage requirement will stifle the fund, and basically make it an ineffective stimulus job development.

There are two prevailing wage laws in Michigan. The federal prevailing wage law applies to construction jobs funded all or in part by federal funds. The state prevailing wage law applies to all construction projects in school districts and for other public units funded by the state, and for all economic development corporation projects.

The state prevailing wage law has already proven to be a deterrent to many EDC projects that would have created new jobs and generated new sources of revenue for many Michigan communities badly in need of both new jobs and broader tax bases. In fact, the Michigan Department of Commerce reported that the state prevailing wage law was the major factor in decisions to delay five projects in the Midland-Saginaw area, including a plant expansion project, a shopping mall, and a hotel/convention center. Several other EDC projects have been halted because labor costs are simply too high, because of the prevailing wage law require-

If the governor is sincere in his hopes to bring unemployment in Michigan down, he will remove the prevailing wage law requirement in the Michigan Strategic Fund. If he does not, then his efforts to create new jobs in Michigan will be only cosmetic because too few job-creating projects will be aff-

June accident victim 'beats the odds'!

'Positive spirit' aids Smith's healing face lights up as if she knows exactly what you're talking

Her son, 17 year old Mark Smith of Bay Port, has experienced a miracle of sorts, since that day in mid-June when he was helicoptered to Detroit Receiving Hospital's Trauma Center with little hope of living, following a motorcycle accident. Every day since then, the doctors and nurses who have cared for him have been amazed by the healing his body has gone through. shortening his hospital stay from an estimated five months to little more than a

Smith had sustained 40 breaks on the left side of his body and his left arm is presently non-functioning His left leg was amputated below the knee four days after the accident, and he has undergone 21 surgeries

But his spirit remains high. His mother says that while he was a patient in Detroit Receiving, the doctor and nurses cried in her arms upon witnessing the remarkable strength and courage evident in her son. 'The doctors had to wait eight days after the accident before they would even say whether he would live, and here he is home and partly mobile," she adds. Last Friday, Mark's body cast was removed, months earlier than predicted. That night he was "guest of honor" at a softball benefit tourney in his honor, played between the Pigeon Jaycees and WHNN radio personalities at the Pigeon ball diamonds. The event raised over $350.00 for Mark's medical expenses, and pledges are still being taken for area residents interested in helping out the family. "The support we have seen from this community is like nothing I've ever experienced," says Kathy Smith with a quiver in her voice. "I know more people in this area in the four years we've lived here than I knew in 40 years in the Davison area.'

She credits Scheurer Hospital doctors Dr. Akbar and Dr. Ray with helping to save her son's life, and is grateful especially to members of Salem United Methodist Church for their continued support. "Every day we have at least 25 people coming to visit Mark,' she adds.

He still has a long way to that will enable him to walk this fall, will have a home go, she says. "I have every reason to be optimistic for Mark's future, but I must be realistic in what he will be within the next six months, but are not sure that he will regain the use of his left able to do." Doctors expect to fit him with a prothesis senior at Laker High School

"We just have to take one day at a time," says his mother. "God must have big plans for Mark to have

CARD OF THANKS!

We wish to express our deep gratitude to our friends who remembered us and offered their prayers during the illness and recent death of our beloved husband and father. To all of those who sent cards, flowers gave memorials and brought food to our homes, you have our sincerest thanks. Thank you to Pastor Heron for your comfort and to Janice' Binder for singing our favorite songs. Thank you, also, to the ladies of the First Baptist Church for preparing and serving the luncheon following the service. For his special care in the past, we would like to thank Dr. Ken Kube. And we will long appreciate the care given by the staff at Huron Memorial Hospital.

sonnel for the 1983-84 year, with raises averaging approximately 5%. The raises affect 14 full and parttime staff members, either on nine or 12 month scheduless.

The Board lowered the new year's debt retirement millage at .95 mills, down from 1.039 mills last year. In all, Caseville is levying 16.25 total operating mills, and 17.2 mills in all. Last year's rate was 17.4.

BUSES, BOOKS: Board members approved the new the Village of Caseville, paralleling last year's. The Board approved purchase of 20 copies of the workbook "Guide to Programming an Apple Soft" at $12.95 each, plus six copies of "Computer Literacy'' att 18.60 per copy.

STAFFING: The Board accepted the resignation of Randy Bingham as JV Girls Basketball Coach and named Lee Ann Kundinger to fill the position for '83-'84. ASSIGNMENTS: Extra-curriculular assignments were approved, including: kindergarten bus route for Barb Quinn and Gerald

Winkler for seventh grade camp; Robert Gulash for band; Debra Fritz for Future Homemakers of America: Colleen Bednorek for National Honor Society; Mary K. Quinn for drama and vearbook, and Randy Bingham for elementary olympics.

Class advisors include: seventh grade Lynne Mayes; eighth Cheryl Wascher; ninth Jan Watts: 10th Pam Ignatowski; 11th George Bednorek, and 12th Janet Gulash

The Board hired George

Bednorek as assistant football coach for the 1983

Accepted with regret was the resignation of Phyllis Masta as school secretary, due to illness. She has been employed with Caseville for eight years and will greatly be missed, Stahl said.

CONTRACT: Teaching staff negotiations were discussed, and Stahl said a formal settlement date is unclear at this time, although bargaining sessions are continuing. He expects no work disruption at the start of the year

The Progress-Advance -- Wednesday, August 24 to Tuesday, August 30, 1983 -- 23 EARLY BIRDS: Caseville will again be running an eary bird class during school year, probably starting about 7:30 p.m. on a volunteer basis. Stahl says the class has proven popular in past years.

BIDS: The Board opened bids on girls volleyball uniforms. Vandervoorts of Lansing is low bidder, at $45.60 for shirt, pants and warm-up suits, including lettering for 15 outfits. Also, 15 bovs' basketball warm-up iackets were ordered from the Champion Corp. at $36.30

CARRIE BRUNNI, a young woman now wheelchair-bound following an April, 1982 automobile accident, is finding life a little easier these days, thanks to her new van that has been customized for her with a wheelchair power lift.

Part of the cost of the van with its special equipment was provided to Carrie by various individuals and community groups who sponsored fund-raising activities totalling over $7,000.

Brunni is shown here "getting a lift" into the special van with her sister, Barb Krohn, handling the control box of the power lift. She is still in the process of breaking in the new van, which she received about a week ago.

Brunni says she is unable to drive the van herself right now, because extensive training is required to learn how to operate it. The driver's controls are also modified to meet the particular requirements of each individual situation, she adds.

Thumb area OUTDOORS

By DUANE GUENTHER

The Kings have finally returned to Harbor Beach. During the past week, tremendous success has been experienced straight out from the harbor. If the fall run turns out to be anything like the one last year, there is no excuse for not getting fish. Fishing has been best early in the morning, but many boats have been hitting them all day long.

Lakers and some salmon have been active in both the Port Austin and Grindstone City areas. Fish are beginning to move closer to shore and those fishermen with smaller boats will soon be able to cash in on the action.

Walleyes have been hitting in the Oak Beach and McGraw Park area. Some nice fish have been taken off

Slavin's Point. Big boat fishermen are still taking nice fish on the northeast side of Big Charity Island.

Perch have been good at Harbor Beach, Grindstone City and off the last buoy on the end of Sand Point. Fish have not been large in size, but good numbers have made up for that.

Hunters should be reminded that grouse season is just three weeks away and bowhunting is only five weeks from the opener. That means the dogs should be given a good workout to make sure they are in shape, and you should limber up that scattergun and bow to make sure you don't blow that early season shot.
