School's on! DRIVE CAREFULLY EVERY DAY

This "sign of the times" has double meaning at Laker High School -- school is back in session and the consolidated district is beginning its 25th graduating group, to be highlighted at the Sept. 21-22 25th Anniversary Reunion.

CASEVILLE COLLISION: Rachael Marie Gilbert, 16, and Robert Wayne Guster, 26, both of Caseville, were transported by ambulance to Scheurer Hospital in Pigeon following a two-car collision in Caseville. The accident occurred at the intersection of Huron and Main Streets at 8:29 p.m. on Monday.

Caseville Township Fireman were called to the accident scene to wash away a small gasoline spill from one of the damaged autos.

Guster was admitted to Scheurer Hospital and listed in stable condition, while Gilbert was treated and released.

Caseville Police Officer Dave Wichert and Huron County Sheriff's Deputy Dick Neuman investigated the crash. No other details were available at presstime pending completion of the final report by Caseville Police.

June Kretzschmer is Dem nominee for MSU Trustees

June Kretzschmer of Pigeon is a Democratic candidate for one of two available seats on the Michigan State University Board of Trustees.

She was nominated this weekend at the state Democratic Convention in Detroit, as was Wayne State University Associate Dean of Admissions Charles Vincent. Mrs. Kretzschmer jointly owns Kretzschmer Home Center and farms with her husband, Vernon, in the Pigeon and Bay Port areas.

"It's very exciting," she said Tuesday of her nomination. "It's also somewhat scary, not knowing what's ahead." She expects only minor statewide campaigning, planning instead to concentrate on getting out the vote in the 8th Congressional District, which includes Bay City and most of the Thumb Area.

During the weekend convention, she was endorsed by the educators' caucus group for the eight-year MSU term. Eight persons hold MSU Board seats, with staggered terms so two persons are elected every two years.

Incumbent Blanche Martin of East Lansing and another candidate, John Liskey of Lansing, both withdrew from the Democratic race, so Mrs. Kretzschmer and Vincent could gain their nominations unanimously.

"It's also a challenge for me because I don't have a college education," Mrs. Kretzschmer said of her candidacy. "Education only gives you the ability to learn. Living provides so much more in learning, and it depends how you apply lessons of life.

"I believe groups such as the MSU Trustees need input from people in all walks of life, not just educators or lawyers. And I think students from rural areas don't go to larger schools

June Kretzschmer

(such as MSU) in the same proportion as they do smaller schools. Perhaps they're intimidated or for other reasons.

"I'm looking forward to having input into that."

She and Vincent will face two Republican candidates, to be decided at the state G.O.P. Convention after Labor Day. Incumbent Republican Peter B. Fletcher may or may not earn his party's endorsement again, and former state Agricultural Director Dean Pridgeon is also being considered as a G.O.P. candidate. Also, Owendale-Superintendent Ronald Erickson is expected to seek the Republican nomination for the post.

MSU Trustees earn no salary or per diem payments, besides minimum expenses. The group has eight scheduled meetings per year, with others called for special or emergency purposes.

Mrs. Kretzschmer says the group's most immediate job is to choose the university's new president, to replace Cecil Mackey, who has resigned. She says that should be completed before Jan. 1, to provide greater leadership and stability to the East Lansing school.

C.A.R.E. group forms against recall

A group called "C.A.R.E." -- Citizens Against Ridiculous Elections -- has been organized in Caseville Township, to oppose the special Sept. 13 recall election deciding the political offices of Supervisor James Reeves, Clerk Wallace Hart and Trustees Michael Power and Wayne Anderson.

"Our function is purely 'anti-recall,'" C.A.R.E. President Harold "Bud" Lankey told about 30 persons gathered last Tuesday night. "We're not along party lines. This election just seems to be somewhat absurd," he said of the recall effort against the township officials for their support of a proposed Caseville Township Airport.

Lankey -- who was Caseville Township Supervisor when the controversial Township Resolution 80-2 was enacted in 1980 -- said he is frustrated by the costs and poor timing of this recall election. If three or more of the men are voted from office Sept. 13, Caseville Township will be paralyzed and can transact no business, since no quorum will exist to conduct business.

"And, three of these four being recalled by the CCC (Concerned Citizens of Caseville, which circulated the recall petitions) were nominated for re-election in the August Primary," Lankey noted. The three re-nominated Republicans -- Reeves, Hart and Power -- are virtually guaranteed re-election in November since there is only one Democrat opposing any of them.

"There is much disappointment, unrest and cleavage in this community. It's just about irreparable," Lankey said of the recall effort. "These men have done well; I'd say they're the best board we've had for years.

"I hope all able-bodied voters will get out and cast your ballots. It's conceivable our township could be shut down for eight weeks, for lack of quorum. It can all be classified as unfortunate."

C.A.R.E. Secretary Diane Watson told those in attendance, "If you don't want this recall, you've got to vote 'no' Sept. 13. The people have got to be educated, and they must vote."

Lankey noted the recall election "will cost a bundle of money" and will serve little good. "We've got to overcome the apathy. People have to get out to vote," he said, if the recall is to be defeated.

If three or more of the four officials are recalled from office Sept. 13, Caseville Township government could indeed be stopped due to lack of quorum, according to Huron County Clerk Helen Lemanski.

Normally, such recall efforts are done with more time remaining in elected terms, but no business would be transacted for about eight weeks between Sept. 13 and the Nov. 6 General Election -- where nearly all the recall targets will likely be re-elected to full terms.

Any further recall action against them would have to start again with gathering signatures and other early efforts, experts say.

Whether or not Gov. James Blanchard would use his executive privilege to appoint an interim caretaker or board members isn't known, but other precedents show he would not be likely to do so for such a short time period.

BeanVeyor gives gentle bean handling

Introducing and manufacturing new improvements in farm machinery is nothing new to Maust Enterprises of Bay Port. The most recent innovations introduced by the metal and hydraulic fabricators are combine modifications and additions to eliminate costly damage to the backbone crop of the Thumb area - beans.

Last year, owners Gale and Marv Maust introduced the BeanVeyor, a hydraulically driven, tube type belt conveyor, which replaces unloading augers on combines. Damage to seed coats, mud smearing and bean splitting caused by the heavy unloading augers is virtually eliminated, the Mausts say.

"Unloading beans in muddy conditions with an auger is like throwing marshmallows in chocolate pudding and putting a mixer to it," says Gale Maust about the bean smearing problem.

The system includes a tank mounted discharge hopper, which has a hydraulically activated flow control door. All system functions are controlled by electric push button controls in the combine cab. The BeanVeyor is also easily removed to use the combine's unloading auger with other grains, Maust says.

To date, six of the modifications have been completed, with another 10 sold and inquiries received from all over the Midwest.

The firm's most recent modification for more gentle bean handling is replacement of the combine's present grain elevator to the holding bin with a low-speed, large cup model. The small, metal carrying cups are replaced with plastic models, about 15 times larger.

The improvements are developed out of frustration with problems caused by farm equipment, says Maust. The Maust brothers, along with their father, farm 750 acres in addition to operation of the fabrication business.

Family reunions

Roach gives walleye tips

More than 60 prospective walleye fishermen attended a special seminar featuring fishing expert Gary Roach at Caseville last Friday evening. One man from Minnesota also attended the meeting after meeting Roach on the flight to the Thumb area. The walleye fishing enthusiast had business in Midland, but took the time to rent a car for the trip to Caseville to attend the seminar.

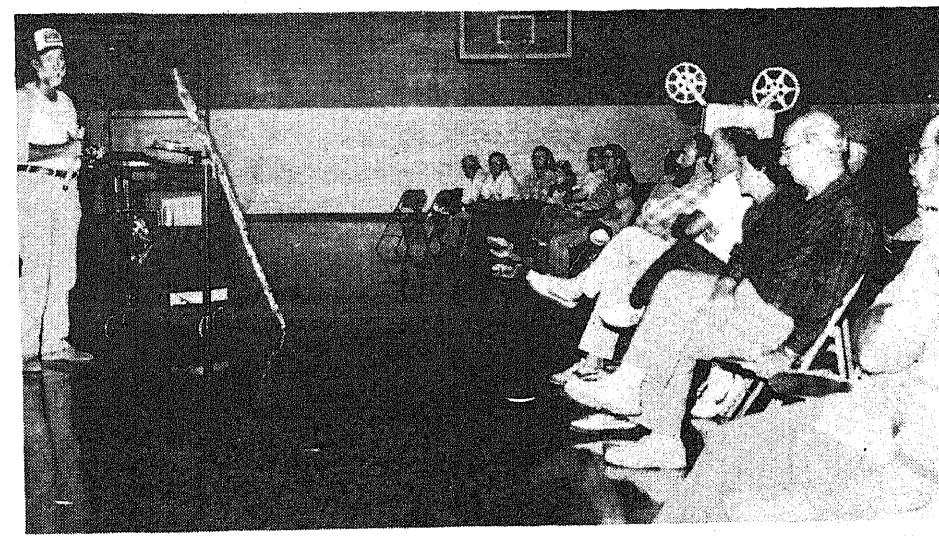

Roach explained that trolling, drifting and still fishing techniques can all be used effectively. Fishermen were cautioned against motoring directly over a school of walleyes. Such a disturbance causes the fish to flee the area, Roach says. He recommended finding the fish and drifting or casting to that spot from a location nearby.

"How do you find the fish?" was a question answered by Roach. "Fish locators are the best tool you can buy for walleye fishing," he noted. With a film and slide presentation he offered some tips on reading the locator correctly.

Depth of water preferred by walleyes is greatly dependent on water temperature. Usually they can be found in shallower water in the spring, and move to deeper water as the summer progresses.

Shade is another preference for walleye. "The warm, bright sunshine is a nice place to eat your lunch, but move to the shade

FISHING TIPS: Personal experiences, a film and slide show informed area anglers about successful walleye fishing. Although participation in a Canadian fishing tournament prevented Roach from trying his hand at hooking Saginaw Bay walleyes during the tournament this year, he said he hopes to come back next year for some Thumb area fishing.

Door prizes of fishing line, lures, rods and reels were awarded to lucky winners.

WESTERN, ROSS TRIAL TO BE HELD OUTSIDE HURON COUNTY

All three people charged in the Jan. 22 shotgun slaying of Jerry Western will be tried outside Huron County because of anticipated jury selection problems.

Huron County Circuit Judge M. Richard Knoblock ruled Saturday that Western's wife, Ellen J. (Stella) Western, 39 of Bad Axe, and Ralph C. Ross, 51 of Caseville, will go on trial Sept. 17, a week later than had been expected because an impartial jury may be difficult to find locally.

The trial location has not yet been selected, although Judge Knoblock said he plans to find the new location in the next week.

The judge said he made his decision after encountering problems in finding jurors for the first-degree murder trial of Michael L. Bieri, which was moved from Bad Axe to Caro Saturday after interviews with 113 prospective Huron County jurors.

Bieri, 32 of Elkton, is charged with shooting Jerry Western in the back at Western's 80-acre horse farm west of Bad Axe. He, Mrs. Western and Ross are charged with first degree murder and conspiracy to commit murder in Western's death.

BIERI TRIAL TO SELECT AGAIN

Michael Bieri's separate first-degree murder trial was to begin with jury selection Monday in Caro, following a change of venue in the shooting death of Jerry Western of Bad Axe.

Jury selection in Bieri's trial went on all last week in Bad Axe, but too many of the jurors knew Bieri, Mrs. Western or Ross, or were familiar with the case through news accounts.

On Saturday, Judge Knoblock ruled the Bieri trial should be moved to Caro, although he has not found a location for the joint trial of Mrs. Western and Ross.

In an April statement to police, Bieri said he had been hired to kill Western for $5000. Testimony during preliminary examinations indicated Ross and Mrs. Western were involved in a love affair.

"I picked up Jerry Western and drove out to his farm and shot him," a portion of Bieri's statement April 27 said. "Ralph Ross said he was going to kill me and my family if I didn't kill Western." Bieri's statement said, to Huron County Sheriff's Detective Dave Neundorf.

WELCHNER IN FAIR CONDITION

A 21-year-old Sebewaing man is in fair condition at Bay Medical Center following a fiery 3:45 a.m. Saturday single-vehicle crash. Richard Welchner of 9222 Oeschger Road was westbound on Kilmannagh Road when his vehicle crossed the center line, entered the ditch, struck a culvert and caught fire, police said.

POLICE NEWS UPDATE

Grass damage totaling about $200 was reported in a turfing incident last Thursday or Friday at Unionville-Sebewaing Area High School, Huron County Sheriff's Deputies report. An unknown vehicle tore up grass on the south side of the building for more than 200 yards. Police are investigating.

About $600 in fishing equipment was stolen within the last month from a boat parked off Sand Road, between Caseville and Pigeon. Donald Osborn of Watford told deputies the gear included a depth sounder, poles and reels and a downrigger.

The union will represent nurse aides, ward clerks, cooks, dietary aides, housekeepers and janitors. Contract negotiations should begin next month.

DEMOCRATS NAMED

Ten Western Huron County delegates to the State Democratic Convention were chosen by the Huron County Democratic Party at its fall convention last week.

Elected by the 48 persons attending the local convention were: John Bivens and Keith Rothfuss, both of Elkton; June and Vernon Kretschmer and Duane Harder, all of Bay Port; John and Agnes DiVincentis and Richard Kunding, all of Caseville, and John and Dorothy Kavalor of Pigeon.

Roy Reynolds of Bad Axe is chairman of the delegation which went to the State Convention Aug. 25-26 in Detroit.

EXPERT ANGLER: Fishing expert Gary Roach reveals some of the secrets of hooking the elusive walleye in a seminar last Friday. The Minnesota fisherman's appearance was scheduled as part of the Caseville Lindy-Little Joe Walleye tournament that ended last weekend.

Thanks A Million

Dear Sir:
I am now unemployed but hope to start a new job shortly. My girlfriend and I plan to get married and raise a small family.

I would like you to buy me one share (common stock) of a company that has great growth potential. I will put the dividends in a separate account. At the end of 20 years, enough interest will be built up to help defray the cost of my children's education - N.K., Ontario.

Dear Mr. K.:
Great idea! After you get your new job and you've saved enough to buy one share, let me know. I'll kick in for a second share.

Dear Mr. Ross:
I am 55 years old and I work as a school custodian. My salary is low because I live in Utah. I'm not complaining. I'm glad to have a job in a beautiful place among nice people. It's just that the years are going by. Just once I'd like to have a "high quality" dress.

Could your wife send me one of her old dresses? I don't mean a fancy dress, just a nice one. I will alter it to fit me if necessary. My size is petite six. Hope she doesn't mind. - J.R., Utah.

Dear Ms. R.:
Of course she doesn't mind! Her size is the same as yours. She's sending you three dresses we hope you'll like. Don't tell anyone they came from Mrs. Ross. That'll be our secret!

Dear Mr. Ross:
I was a poor slob and then hit it big -- big bucks. I was in love with this girl who didn't even like me. I was aware of this.

Well, Mr. Ross, I actually bought her. We married. Now I am terribly unhappy. I'm writing because you are a rich man. I want to know if you've ever tried to buy happiness. - Mr. C.K., Alaska.

Dear Mr. K.:
If I knew of anyone selling it, I'd buy him out ... and give it all to those who don't have any.

Could it be Noah's Ark?

Could it really be true that explorers have found remains of Noah's Ark more than a mile up Turkey's Mount Ararat? Could this thousand-year-old craft be well-preserved in the ice and cold to have survived until the mid-1980s?

That's a puzzle which won't be answered for at least another year, after five Americans and one Turkish explorer announced finding what they believe is Noah's Ark on the southwest face of the mountain.

The men said they believe further archeological investigation and scientific evaluation will prove this to be the site of the Ark's remains — and there's probably no Biblical reason to believe such a discovery is not possible.

The book of Genesis in the Bible says that after the great flood inundated the earth, the Ark with its cargo of two of every kind of animal came to rest on the "mountains of Ararat." The explorers add the Moslem holy book, the Koran, also mentions both the flood and the Ark.

According to Marvin Steffins, president of International Expeditions of Monroe, La., the Ark was 300 cubits long, 50 cubits wide and 30 cubits high. The ancient cubit measurement was about 20 inches in length — making the Ark at least 450 feet long, or the length of 1½ football fields!

They plan to return to the site next summer, during the best exploration season.

How does such a possible find square with your viewpoint? Could such a thing really still exist? Some people believe the Noah's Ark story was just that — a story — and that none really exists.

Most Bible scholars, however, say such an event is indeed possible. Mile-high coldness and ice could preserve well-built items made by man — if the Creator would wish.

It certainly boggles one's mind to think the real Noah's Ark might still be on this earth. Think of the religious revolution and interest this could bring, calling wayward souls back to Christianity because of physical evidence available here today, not just locked up in a book for thought only!

It's possible, it may be probable and, at the minimum, it's a fascinating possibility!

Letters to the Editor County volunteers thanked

Dear Editor:
This letter is addressed to all the people of Huron County.

On Wednesday, Aug. 8, 22 residents of the Huron County Medical Care Facility visited the County Fair. On behalf of the Extended Services Committee of the HCMCF, we, the volunteers, would like to make public acknowledgement of some dedicated workers.

For this new venture, much pre-planning and many arrangements had to be made. Rhonda Quinn, recreational therapy specialist, ably handled this. She assisted all that day, as did Hilda Detgen and Delphine Gosdzinski of the Diversional Therapy Department with not only excellent care but evident enjoyment.

When the folks got to the fair, transported by Thumb Area Transit in two separate time slots, they were royally welcomed by the fair staff. Without this, the day could have been most hectic!

Beyond the thanks to these people goes a very special thanks to the two TAT drivers. David Hey and Robert Peterson did not just sit in the drivers' seats waiting for the residents to board... they helped board them. We would like to say thank you most sincerely to Bob and Dave for their caring, respectful service much beyond the "Call of Duty."

We are most fortunate in Huron County to have the Medical Care Facility, the fair and Thumb Area Transit. After a day like Wednesday, we're assured that our "tax dollars at work" in these areas are well-spent. The residents of the facility join us in saying "thank you," county workers!

Extended Services Volunteers,
Helen Woodward, Fran Kanaby, Sally Byarski and Vera Deering.

Airport issues explained

Dear Editor:
The truth must be told before the Caseville Township recall election. In the primary, the Concerned Citizens of Caseville (CCC) anti-airport loser Ron Bieri came too close to Mr. Nice Guy, Jim Reeves. The election was so close because the CCC made the airport their issue using "half-truths." Some of their statements were outright lies.

A campaign ad and an open letter to the voters were illegally distributed. The post office was cheated on postage because the CCC lies on paper were placed into mailboxes (Domestic Mail Manual, Para. 151.2, 146.2). William Gehman, MAC administrator, was quoted as saying Pontiac was the only airport that did not require tax dollars to operate. Gehman only says he knows Pontiac is an airport that is self-supporting. There are other instances and any of that information is available to those interested.

Farver Transport's strip has been in the township six years and it has not cost the taxpayers a dime. Concern was shown about the tax base loss on the 385 acres for the airport. Assessment rolls show it produces about $1700.00 tax. Two new pilots' homes and/or a business will replace that tax base. No homes will be condemned and no one forced to move.

The approaches are over land owned by the airport, not Wildfowl Bay as the CCC letter states.

Another half-truth: "There is no basis in fact to believe that businesses would come to our area simply because of an airport." Expanding companies often decide to locate in a community that has an airport. Brighton Metal Products is expanding now next to the airport. They did not want to leave Caseville while making use of Farver's strip. Few people seem to know that Farver's strip exists. Noise has been a problem only to one family. Several closer neighbors said, "We enjoy the airplanes going by. They make less noise than most vehicles, especially trucks."

The new airport includes land for a noise buffer between the runway and its neighbors. That is a requirement for FAA funding. CCC leaders play on emotions rather than facts. One leader stated that he couldn't tolerate the roar of multiple jet engines. He doesn't have to because the runway will be too short for jets.

Your current Township Board is working to provide you with an airport at no cost. If the board decided to drop the airport project, the Township may be liable for nearly a quarter million dollars.

For the truth,

RECOLLECTIONS

of by-gone days

By GEORGE KEIM

DEAR EDITOR:

Last week I wrote about how we went to Strasburg on the train in Europe. We had to change trains two times 'til we got there.

The depot was a big place and very crowded. There was a big crowd there and we were to go to our place by bus. People pushed and pulled and we had to wait 'til the third bus came.

It took us to a big three-story building where we were supposed to register for the conference. There were a lot of people there, but because we had sent in our registrations earlier, it didn't take long 'til we had our buttons and papers and a bag to carry them in!

It was a beautiful place, with nice seats to sit on and tables to write letters, if you wanted to. There were several rooms where they showed pictures. I saw some people who I knew from the U.S.A. and there were people from over 50 nations and states.

When it was time to go for supper, we had to carry our luggage several blocks and put it in the place where we could pick it up real easily. Things were really organized well for so many people who were around there.

There were a lot of young people around with red caps on, who could speak several languages. So if you got lost, you weren't lost long! I saw some people led right to the place where they wanted to go.

We had our supper in a big warehouse. There were four doors to go in and people were pushing and using their elbows, but we all got in and had a good supper. You just took your tray and pushed it along, just like in a cafeteria and they filled it for you.

We then went into the big auditorium, where 6000 people were together. We picked out seats in the bleachers close to the front, where we could see the speakers and the people, too.

English was the main language, but they used Dutch, German and French and some Spanish, too. It was a good welcome sermon and at the close, we got our baggage and got on a bus to our lodging place, which was a college dormitory.

By that time, I was very tired. In Prov. 3:29, it says, "When thou liest down, thou shalt not be afraid; yea, thou shalt lie down and thy sleep shall be sweet," and it was, too!

I had a single bed and a single room, and after 18 hours of seeing a lot of country and more than 6000 people, I was tired!

I'll write some more about the conference in my next letter.

SINCERELY YOURS,
GEORGE KEIM

Inspector Gordo's Minute Mystery THE CASE OF THE Murdered vocalist

The day after Inspector Gordo was asked to solve the murder of singer April May, the international recording star, he was visited by Miss May's silver-haired manager, Chuck Douglas.

"Miss May kept a most interesting record hidden in her night table," said Gordo, as the two men took seats in the kitchen. "It was apparently her little secret. Did you know about it?"

"No," said Douglas with a worried look. "A detective found it in the false bottom of the night table," said Gordo. "The theory is that the killer was searching her apartment for it when she surprised him, and he stabbed her with a letter opener. Are you at all interested in it?"

"O-o-of course. Do you have it?" asked Douglas. "Yes, and I don't blame Miss May for keeping it hidden," said Gordo. "It's not exactly for public consumption."

As the sleuth opened the middle drawer of his desk, he saw Douglas put on his eyeglasses, a movement the manager made awkwardly because of the bandages on his thumb and forefinger.

"Ah," said Gordo, lifting out a leather-bound diary. "Miss May started it June 12. The last entry is the day of her death. She put down everything that happened in her life during those months, and you don't come off very well!"

"You can bet everything about me are lies," snarled Douglas. "I hated her, all right. But I didn't kill her!" "Perhaps not," retorted Gordo. "But you'll have a lot of explaining to do to convince the police."

Lamaze birth classes offered locally

Scheurer Hospital of Pigeon will offer a birth preparation class based on the Lamaze Method beginning Tuesday, Sept. 11 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the hospital conference room.

The class will continue on succeeding Tuesdays through Oct. 30, according to Phyllis Yoder, B.S.N., who will teach the class.

The course will consist of instruction based on Lamaze breathing and relaxation techniques for labor and delivery. The class allows the support person to assist and participate actively during labor. The doctor's permission is required for the support person to go into the delivery room.

Sweetener industry gets stronger

The U.S. sweetener industry will be a stronger, more efficient industry in the future despite the disruptive price cycles that have long characterized the world sugar market, according to a new economic study released recently at the first International Sweetener Symposium.

The study was made public Aug. 2 in Chicago at the symposium attended by Ernest Flegenheimer, president of the Michigan Sugar Company. Also attending the symposium on behalf of Michigan Sugar were David H. Roche, company vice president and Barry L. Brown, vice president of marketing. Robert Young, executive director of the Great Lakes Sugar Beet Growers Association also participated.

The outlook is for a domestic sweetener industry that is more competitive, and more efficient by 1992, the study finds, but says this depends heavily on the existence of a sugar price stabilization policy. The current sugar stabilization program, part of the Farm Bill passed by Congress in 1981, will expire next year unless Congress renews it.

According to Flegenheimer, Michigan's sugar beet growers delivered more than two million tons of sugar beets in 1983. The state's sugar industry generates approximately $135 million in sales per year, and when cycled through the Michigan economy, has an impact of nearly one-billion dollars.

The symposium was sponsored by the U.S. Sweetener Producers Group, a recently-formed coalition of the sugar and corn sweetener industry. Its chairman is David Carter, president of the U.S. Beet Sugar Association.

"The study indicates that the 1981 sugar program is operating as Congress intended. In spite of chaotic world sugar markets, it has stabilized domestic supplies and prices to the benefit of consumers and producers alike, and done so without cost to the Treasury," Carter said in his remarks to symposium attendees.

Carter called price stability "vital to the U.S. sugar industry, whose production has declined intermittently since the 1970s. The study raises 'serious questions' about the calculations of critics who claim the sugar stabilization program is directly linked to the prices paid by consumers. The research found that changes in raw sweetener prices often do not explain increases in retail prices of beverages and processed foods, which account for three-fourths of U.S. sweetener consumption.

"For these foods, changes in wholesale sugar prices have almost no discernible short-term impact on retail food prices," the study states.

The new findings are contained in a 128-page economic analysis of the U.S. sweetener industry in the decade ahead, prepared by Economic Perspectives, Inc., a consulting firm specializing in the economics of food and agriculture. Dr. William C. Motes, author of the report, is a former director of policy analysis at the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

While the study makes no policy recommendations, it does identify some of the chief characteristics of sweeteners each year at home and in processed foods and soft drinks.

Sugar, which is processed in 17 states, is a major agricultural commodity in the United States. The domestic industry includes sugar beet and sugar cane producers and processors.

The economic study is available from the Sugar Information Bureau, Inc., Suite 202, 1341 G Street, N.W., Washington D.C., 20005.

Orth attends 3-day Purina conference

"Livestock producers must adopt the most up-to-date feeding and management practices if they are to remain profitable in today's increasingly competitive livestock industry." That's the message area farm consultant Luke Orth of Cooperative Elevator Company brought back to Huron County producers after attending Ralston Purina's National Farm Consultant Conference in St. Louis recently.

Orth was one of 470 Purina farm consultants attending the conference, which was designed to help farm consultants and producers meet the increasing demands of the livestock industry in the '80s.

Orth is part of a growing number of Purina-trained farm consultants working through area Purina dealerships to help producers solve livestock-related problems. "Purina's efforts to recruit, hire and train more farm consultants like Orth is in line with our commitment to improve the American farmer's overall profitability," says "Dub" Jones, president of Purina's Agri Products group. "In addition to attending the three-day conference, Purina's farm consultant program required all farm consultants to participate in regular training programs on basic livestock nutrition and health," Jones adds.

As part of the three-day event, several seminars introduced the latest developments in swine, dairy, beef cattle and horse nutrition and production, as well as advice on how to improve services offered to livestock producers.

Thumb men elected to growers' group posts

Stanley Gettel of Sebawing was elected president of the Great Lakes Sugar Beet Growers Association at the organization's recent annual meeting. Gettel is also president of Sebawing Beet Growers Association, Inc.

Caro Sugar Beet Growers president Roy Hickey of Fairgrove was named vice president of the Great Lakes organization. Also elected to the board were Garnet Hoard of St. Louis, Robert Markwart of Yale and John Tagget of Saginaw.

At the meeting, Board members decided to concentrate Association efforts to support congressional candidates who have been supportive of sugar legislation in the Farm Bill, to renew sugar provisions in the 1985 Farm Bill that were included in the 1981 Farm Bill, and emphasize the importance to the sugar industry to the economy of Michigan.

Brenda Snider, Bill Rowe unite lives

Two Caseville residents, Brenda Gail Snider and William Earl Rowe, united their lives in marriage on Saturday, Aug. 18 at Cross Lutheran Church, Pigeon.

Pastor Raymond Orth officiated at the ceremony for the children of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Gebauer of Elkton and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald L. Snider of Pigeon and Mrs. Barbara Rowe of Caseville and the late Robert Rowe.

The main altar was decorated with matching vases of multi-colored daisies and white glaiolus. The back altar was aglow with golden candelabra with matching bouquets attached. The couple also lit a matching unity arrangement during the service.

Special wedding music included "When God Designed Creation," "The Lord's Prayer," "For These Blessings" and "The Wedding Song." Organist was Mrs. Raymond Orth of Pigeon and soloists were Michael, Debbie, Kimberly and Brian Gebauer of Elkton, brothers and sisters of the bride and Mrs. Karen Wolfe of Pigeon.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose her aunt's gown, a family heirloom made of ivory taffeta. It featured a high neckline made of venice lace with satin ribbon entwined throughout. The bodice, raised waistline, sleeves and front of the gown were all trimmed with the venice lace border and entwined satin ribbon. The chapel-length veil was trimmed with matching venice lace and ribbon border, which later bustled in the back. The veil was attached to a halo made of tiny silk flowers and baby's breath.

She carried a treasured keepsake cascade of yellow roses and daisies centered by a gracious fresh cattelya orchid. Baby's breath and streamers of ivy greenery completed the bouquet.

The bride asked her sister, Mrs. Laurie Groesbeck of Bad Axe, to be her matron of honor. She wore a dress of white coin dotted English net over ivory taffeta, featuring a high lace neckline with ivory satin ribbon. The off-the-shoulder look bodice was trimmed in wedgewood lace entwined with ivory colored ribbon. The fitted waistline had a satin ribbon belt with a bow and streamers in the back. The full skirt had a wedgewood lace and ribbon flounce at the hemline, completed with a sweep train that later bustled. She carried a colonial bouquet of multi-colored daisies and a cloud of baby's breath designed on an ivory chantilly lace doily. A profusion of multi-colored streamers tumbled for the arrangement.

The bride's other attendants includes bridesmaids Patty Rowe of Caseville, sister of the groom; Rosie Halalay of Detroit, friend of the bride; Roberta Snider of Elkton, sister of the bride; Cheryl Hallock of Caseville, sister of the groom, all wearing gowns identical to the matron of honor's except in colors of pink, lavender, apricot and blue taffeta. Each girl carried a bouquet of daisies to match her gown, nestled in a bed of baby's breath and completed with satin streamers to match her dress color. Each wore a halo of baby's breath with silk blossoms matching her bouquet scattered throughout in her hair.

Best man for the groom was Jay Brown of Elkton, a friend. Groomsmen were Cork Groesbeck of Bad Axe, brother-in-law of the bride; John Himmel of Caseville, a friend; Robert Rowe of Pigeon, brother of the groom and Kenneth Kowalski of Caseville, a friend. Ushers included Ronald Geauer of Bad Axe, brother of the bride and Joseph Briesmeister of Caseville, friend of the groom.

The mother of the bride chose a floor-length peach silesta knit gown in an empire style, featuring an attached back draped capelet fully trimmed with a deep edging of lace and a shoulder corsage of peach and white daisies, baby's breath and peach ribbon.

The groom's mother wore a rose-colored floor-length gown with a pleated bodice, straight A-line skirt and short sleeves and a corsage of daisies and baby's breath with complementary accents.

The newlyweds greeted 400 guests at the Pigeon VFW Hall from Detroit, Wyandotte, Royal Oak, Bay City, East Jordan, Livonia, Monroe, Mayville, Walled Lake and the Thumb area.

The bride is employed as a cosmetologist at Talk of the Town Beauty Salon, Caseville. Her husband, a 1977 graduate of Laker High School, is employed at Active Industries, Elkton.

The newlyweds are residing in Caseville.

SPECIAL OUTDOOR REPORT: Steel vs. lead debate continues

By DUANE GUENTHER
As the 1984 duck hunting season approaches, one can be sure that the argument involving steel shot vs. lead shot will continue to be hot and heavy. At present, lead shot is under a ban for most hunting areas bordering Saginaw Bay, and local hunters, like many others across the U.S., are fighting mad. The reason many hunters are opposed to steel shot has little to do with the claims of lead poisoning occurring in waterfowl that find and use the pellets to grind the food in their crop, but rather, most feel that steel shot is not accurate, has little killing power and will eventually cause lasting damage to the gun barrel. Plus, it costs more than lead shot.

In response to such complaints, the Michigan DNR and the Cooperative Lead Poisoning Control Information Program enlisted the services of Tom Roster of Klamath Falls, Ore., nationally-known ballistics expert and consultant to ammunition manufacturers, to conduct a series of steel shot seminars this summer. Here is a capsule review of his major findings:

First, for those hunters thinking steel shot will someday disappear, Tom says, "It won't." Roster goes so far as to say that it is only a matter of time before most ammunition manufacturers will stop the production of lead shot. He continued to say that it may take many years to disappear in all forms of shooting, but it will go away in a very short time in waterfowl hunting.

Roster thinks the steel shot is better than lead because it is rounder than lead and does not deform when shot. He stated the 90% of the deformity in lead shot occurs before it even hits a duck. The cheaper the lead shot, the greater the deformity and Roster said the expensive lead shot loads are comparable in price to steel shot loads, which blows the argument about the expense of shooting steel shot.

Roster also said that the erosion of the gun barrel from steel shot was eliminated, killing another complaint. He pointed out that a new lead shot load called buffered because a substance poured in with the lead keeps the shot from deforming as badly, is harder on barrels than ordinary lead loads.

Roster has conducted extensive studies on the two shot loads and came up with the following conclusions: One cannot equate lead and steel shot sizes. Both the weight and the volume of steel shot is considerably different than lead.

Steel shot travels much faster than lead shot, and reaches the target sooner. This factor greatly affects the amount of lead a hunter uses while tracking a bird in the air.

While many think that heavy lead produces more energy when hitting the target, Roster feels that energy is not the whole story. In some of his tests, the lighter steel had much more penetration than the heavier lead. Roster found that penetration of shot, irrespective of energy, was extremely important in making clean kills.

Roster ended the clinic by saying, "Perhaps the most important factor in shooting steel or lead, is the shooter. Good gunners have been able to adapt to the faster steel loads quite readily, and have witnessed better results in the field." I am sure that Tom Roster will have many critics, but he did give us some food for thought.

Why don't the people of Caseville check their own closets, before condemning others? Signed, J.S.

Several people were talking in the Dutch Kettle about how much the navy beans yield. One fellow said he remembers when it was real good if the beans made 20 bushels per acre. Another one said that right now, 40 bushels is common, if you have good weather. Hugo Leipprandt said he can remember once when they had their beans pulled, a high wind came up and one side of the field had 90 bushels per acre!

I am sure God is frowning on our troubled town of Caseville. We have one minister in town who is certainly divided with his thoughts of the people as a whole, when it comes to keeping things in confidence, as well as our police officers, who spread rumors and show false papers to confuse people about whom to vote for.

We saw the SOUND-OFF about the license plate. We know who wrote this and if you think that's babyish, why don't you ask your son about babyfish?

Some misconceptions concerning the proposed skill center in last week's SOUND-OFF need to be cleared up. The proposed site (the Bad Axe area) was chosen after a county-wide evaluation of the location and number of students who would be using the center. The location under consideration is a 25-square-mile area bounded on the east by Carpenter Road (M-19), the west by Thomas Road, the north by Rapson (Berne) Road and the south by McKenzie Road.

The reason why USA schools would not be using the center is that they already are using the skill center in Caro, because they're part of the Tuscola County Intermediate School District, not the Huron County Intermediate School District.

I wonder if the recall petition signers of Caseville realize that a great many were lied to, when asked to sign. They were told that "if you want to vote against the airport, sign this." Lesson: read before you sign. Thank you.

"Cruise Night" is here in Caseville, and whoever thought of it doesn't live on the cruise road. I wish they did. Thank you.

This is P.B., a Chicago reader. Regarding the Aug. 22 issue, where is the Minute Mystery? Or is that the mystery? Please put it back. Signed, a loyal reader.

I think the game played by the Pigeon Lions Club at the picnic was very childish and in bad taste. Couldn't you do better?

If you Caseville people are REALLY concerned, why don't you spend your time arguing about the ugly, permanent trailers which make our County Park look so disgusting? Not one dime of airport money can be spent without a vote, but you allow the County Road Commission to come in and blight our area, which should be some of the best beach-front property in this entire part of Michigan. Why don't you stand up for what's right, instead of trying to settle a personal grudge against pilots?

Why should Caseville Township elected officials have a vacation, with no one to replace them? Get out and vote "No" in the September recall for Reeves, Hart, Power and Anderson.

Does anyone out there know anyone who fixes wall clocks? If so, please call SOUND-OFF, so I can have mine fixed.

The Community Christmas Bazaar, sponsored by Pigeon First United Methodist Women, will be held Dec. 1 at Laker High School. This year, the bazaar will be in the gymnasium. Non-profit groups wishing to reserve table space should call 453-3598 after 4 p.m. Thank you.

Keep up the good work, Duane. We enjoy reading you all the time.

WORK AND FAITH HAVE COMBINED TO BRING US THE GOOD LIFE

It's been the plan since time began
That man should earn his bread,
To plant the crops or work in shops
And strive to get ahead;
In mines and mills, to use the skills
With which he was endowed.
Thus we progress toward real success
Of which we can be proud,
As you'll concede; in any creed
The Bible tells us so.
Now work and prayer beyond compare
Have helped our nation grow,
So thank the Lord for this reward
With which you have been blessed;
Then come what may, on Labor Day
Enjoy a well-earned rest.

O Lord, support us all the day long, until the evening comes... and our work is done.

Sixty Seconds Working for the Lord

Read Romans 6:5-11
Be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that in the Lord your labor is not in vain. I Corinthians 15:58
In 1894 the Congress of the United States declared that the first Monday in September should be set aside for national observance of Labor Day.
This was to be a day to recognize and rejoice over the productivity of the American labor force. And we have observed Labor Day for the 89 years since then.
For Day provides a time for the Christian to pause to ask, "For whom do I work?"
Whatever the immediate place or nature of employment, whether a small business, a large corporation, or a family-owned operation, the issue is the same.
It is my primary concern my own personal gain or the welfare of the company and the development of the product for the good of others?
Am I selfishly concerned about short hours, easy work and financial gain?
St. Paul tells us to abound in the work of the Lord. We are His, for He adopted us into His family because of the reconciliation achieved through the death of His Son.
We work for Him by telling others of Him. We work for Him by using the talents He gives for the welfare of others.
Forgive our selfishness and our laziness, gracious Father, and help us to work for You in all we do. Amen.

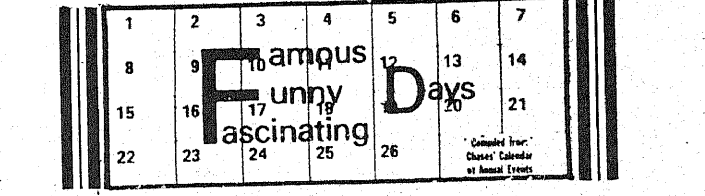

Don't miss YFC Auction this Saturday!

"Many new and top quality items will make this year's Bluewater Youth for Christ auction one of the organization's best sales ever," predicts BYFC Executive Director Dwight Gascho.
Additional merchandise is being donated daily for the event scheduled for this Saturday at the Pigeon Recreational Park. Some of the brand new items have been donated by area merchants, Gascho says.
Some of the new items added to the auction since the sale bill was printed include: a three-cubic-foot refrigerator, a trash compactor, a metal cut-off saw, several new eight-track tape players. Also used items recently included were: a 1978 model wash machine, a used upright piano, an antique Duncan Phyfe table and four chairs, a 40-foot, PTO operated portable grain auger, a portable dishwasher, an electric adding machine, a free-standing fireplace, several reconditioned 10-speed bikes, and a totally reconstructed mimeograph and electronic stencil machine.

Also featured will be a professionally built pine trestle bench, created by woodworker Lyle Gascho.
A craft sale featuring more than 100 items will begin at 9:30 a.m., along with the bake sale believed to be the largest in Huron County, says Gascho. The auction will begin at 11 a.m., with barbecued pork sandwiches, Art Perry's bean soup, donuts and home made pie available throughout the day.

Hoyle's name became synonymous with the idea of correct play according to the rules, and the phrase "according to Hoyle" became a part of the English language.

★ Great Fire of London Anniversary. The fire generally credited with bringing about our system of fire insurance started Sept. 2, 1666, in the wooden house of a baker. During the ensuing three days more than 13,000 houses were destroyed, though it is believed that only six lives were lost in the fire.
MONDAY, SEPT. 3
★ Treaty of Paris Anniversary. Treaty between Britain and the United States ending the Revolutionary War, signed in Paris, Sept. 3, 1783.

A liberal discount is allowed to those who buy to sell again."

PICK-A-MOVIE WEEK

The quarterly Pick-A-Movie Week is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 15 through 22. Two Saturdays are scheduled to give working persons a chance to vote. Members of the video tape clubs are invited to visit the library at their leisure to choose five movies per family from the literature on display. Persons interested in joining the Video Tape Club are asked to inquire at the library for details and rules.

CLOSED LABOR DAY

In observance of Labor Day, the library will be closed on Monday, Sept. 3. Any library books or toys having a due date of 9-3-84 will not be charged an overdue fine if the material is returned or deposited in the book bank by Tuesday afternoon.

The library will resume regular hours on Tuesday, from 9 to 5.

PRE-SCHOOLERS GRADUATE

Seventy-five preschool children from both the first and second sessions, along with their parents, attended Story Hour Graduation on Aug. 21. Thirty-two children who will enter kindergarten will wear graduation caps and were presented with a diploma by Librarian Richmond.

The program was based on the theme of "school" and included the stories "Herbie's Troubles," fingerplays "Five Little Ducks" and "Five Little Monkeys," a flannelgraph "Shadow Wash" and the filmstrip, "Curious George Rides a Bike." Refreshments and visiting followed the program.

The younger preschoolers were invited to continue attending Story Hour each Tuesday morning.

STORY HOUR

All area preschoolers are invited to attend Preschool Story Hour at the library each Tuesday. Two sessions are conducted, from 9 to 10 a.m. and from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. The children play with toys and puzzles in the children's room before class begins.

Annual registration is required with a small charge of $2.00 per family to offset the cost of supplies. Anyone with questions may call Jane Himmel or Peggy Karl at 453-2341.

Story Hour on Sept. 4 will be based on the theme "Toys." Stories will include "Corduroy," "A Pockey for Corduroy" and "The Round About Horse." Activities will include exercises "Hinges" and "Here We Go Up," fingerplays "Two Little Puppets" and "Rag Doll," songs and games. Show and Tell will also be included as it is the first Tuesday of the month.

MEMORIES OF LONG AGO

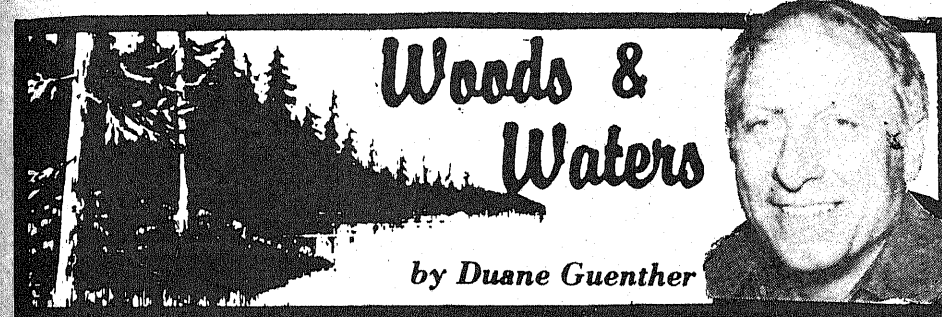

Bring back memories that have been tucked away by viewing the items on display at the library for the next couple of months.

Virginia Thiel of Pigeon is sharing an assortment of old wares and dishes that belonged to her grandparents, including handkerchiefs with hand-tatted edges, non-electric curling iron, trinket boxes and an everyday pots and pans scrubber used by her grandmother everyday. Articles her grandfather used included a whistle, pocket knife, compass and eyeglasses. A child's pair of leather gloves, drinking cup and a baby hat and spoon were used by Mrs. Thiel as a child. An assortment of dishes complete the display, and consist of spoons from Germany, salt wells, mustard dish and various fruit and candy dishes.

The library staff would like to thank Mrs. Maxine Anderson for her display of dolls and miniatures during the past months.

Duck blinds

Around the end of August, most ardent duck hunters begin to make plans for this season's duck blinds. It may be as simple as pulling the wrap-arounds from the garage rafters, or as difficult as gathering 50-gallon drums, pipe and tons of welding rod to build a new floater. One thing for sure, you can bet there'll almost be as many different kinds of duck blinds as there are hunters.

To write a treatise on duck blinds would be absurd. And anyone attempting to rank them according to effectiveness would be just as absurd, because, duck blinds have personalities, just like the men who hunt from them. It has often been said that you can tell the quality of a man by the clothes he wears, or the car he drives. Well, I personally felt that you also can judge the quality of a duck hunter by the blind he builds.

I do not profess to an expert on duck blinds, but during the last 30-odd years, I have had a few opportunities to hunt from different types of blinds, under different types of circumstances. Here are some candid observations.

My baptism into the fraternity of duck hunters came at a nearly age. Having two older brothers who were avid wildfowlers made it only natural for me to become involved in the sport. I went on my first duck hunt when I was 12 years old, and my mentor, my oldest brother Lyle, was, and still reigns, at least in my eyes, as the greatest duck hunter who ever lived. It was through his arduous tutorage I discovered the secret to duck hunting — concealment. With the proper blind you could be successful amid mediocre decoys, poor quality shotguns, and the proverbial, "can't-hit-the-broad-side-of-a-barn" shooting ability.

The first type of blinds I was exposed to were made of willow saplings. This made sense, I found out much later, as my brother was hunting near the willow-laden banks of the Wiscoggin Creek, where it drained into the Bay near Fish Point. As-a-matter-of-fact, most of the blinds at that time were made of willows.

Lyle's blind was situated on a cattail point jutting into a large pothole just east of the "Coggin." It was reached, only after a long, dark, and sometimes treacherous ride across the open water of Saginaw Bay. But once there, the blind and the tremendous beds of cattails afford a haven for tired duck hunters and tired ducks.

The blind was constructed by driving five cedar fence posts into the mucky bottom of the pothole. One was positioned at the bow of the boat, two at sides and one each at the corners of the transom and one each at the corners of the transom. The posts were wrapped with discarded fencing and the entire apparatus was woven with hundreds of willow saplings. If they were cut at the right time, their brownings would coincide with the natural vegetation and they blended to perfection.

The posts were angled so the willows sticking out of the fence's top would provide a canopy to cover the hiding hunters. Here, in the dusky, pre-dawn light, Lyle and I would wait breathlessly while hundreds of tired, hungry ducks would cautiously circle the counterfeits we had previously placed in front of the blind.

A few years later, my brother bought a duck hunting shack in Sebawaing, and moved his hunting operation to some different waters a few miles north. The willow blinds were abandoned and in their place were wrap-around blinds. These blinds used a chunk of fish net as the base. Attaching ropes to the top, bottom and sides, they were interlaced with a local vegetation called "wire-grass." The grass got its name from the toughness it exhibited, and once the blind was built, it would serve you for many years. The first blind of this type I ever owned was given to me by an old duck hunter who had used it for 15 years. He told me he bought it from another duck hunter who had used it before him. When I included the 10 years I used it, it seemed possible the blind may have been more than 30 years old.

Most hunters built a metal framework around which the blind was wrapped. On my brother's boat, it was made of thin-wall conduit. I assumed he used the material because he was an electrician and it was readily available, but I soon learned by everyone constructed the framework of this material.

Small holders were pipe-strapped into place on the inside of the cockpit and into these were placed three U-shaped pieces of conduit, forming an arch over the front, middle and back of the opening. Two long pieces of conduit were fastened to the upper sides of the arches, and the blind was hung on these, and wrapped around to conceal the cockpit. The boat was generally pushed into the rushes and cattails were broken over the bow and stern to blend the blind into the natural surroundings. If done properly, they worked to perfection.

Lyle was a great one to use natural vegetation, and if the marsh was high and thick enough, many times he would jam the boat into a particularly dense spot and using a punt pole, bend the cattails over the boat and never use the wrap-around.

As I grew older and began to hunt by myself, I found I clung to the methods that had served my brother and I so well. But on different occasions, when invited to accompany some friends, I would be exposed to new techniques.

The floater, a blind that is very common in our area, was one I could never understand. Built out of oil drums and rigged with a pipe and wood frame, these monsters stuck out like a sore thumb. Even covered with cedar trees, hiding the boat swinging lazily in the well and a swank-looking shooting box capable of accommodating a half-dozen hunters, it looked like a misplaced island. But, it really works, not only for the less intelligent bluebills and redheads that boil in with alarming regularity, but it also fools the wary mallard who views it as a natural surrounding.

Perhaps the most effective blind I have ever hunted out of was not even a blind at all, but rather a low-lying boat called a "lay-out." These pumpkin seed-shaped crafts are usually associated with big waters and dumb ducks, but I was introduced to a smaller version used in the marsh and I found it to be dynamite. The craft is usually towed or punted to the hunting spot and the hunter places it either in open water or the low, broke down cattails near the edge of a pothole. He then lays flat on his back in the bottom of the boat and covers himself with a cloth. With only two to three inches of free board he really hugs the horizon. Good hunters match the color of the covering with the area they hunt. Deep water will find blue or gray a good blend. Shallow water will need a muddy pattern to make the blend.

There are many other types of blinds, but time and space does not allow for a complete coverage. The serious duck hunter must determine what type of hunting he will engage in, and then select the blind best suited for the situation. But remember this, without some kind of blind, you are just another sky-buster cussing your gun, steel shot, and shooting ability.

The Spine is like an orchestra

It just takes one out of line to put everything out of tune.

In the network of the spinal column there are 24 vertebrae (spine), a sacrum (foundation), coccyx (tailbone), and 2 ilia (hips); which work together like an orchestra—every part must be in harmony and balance. Any instrument out of tune will cause discord in the orchestra and any interference with this network in the spinal column can cause nerve impingement.

DON'T KISS $8,938 GOODBYE

That's how much you could lose just on resale value if you don't buy a John Deere

Looking for a big discount when you buy a tractor? Don't get stuck with an even bigger discount when you want to sell it. Always consider resale value when you price a field tractor. Because the differences among brands may sometimes be bigger than ANY purchase incentive.

Compare John Deere with our two leading competitors. According to the Spring 1984 Official Guide of the National Farm and Power Equipment Dealers Association, the average 5-year-old John Deere 4440 sells for 106 percent of its 1979 list price. One leading competitor averages 87 percent of its 1979 list price. The other averages 73 percent.

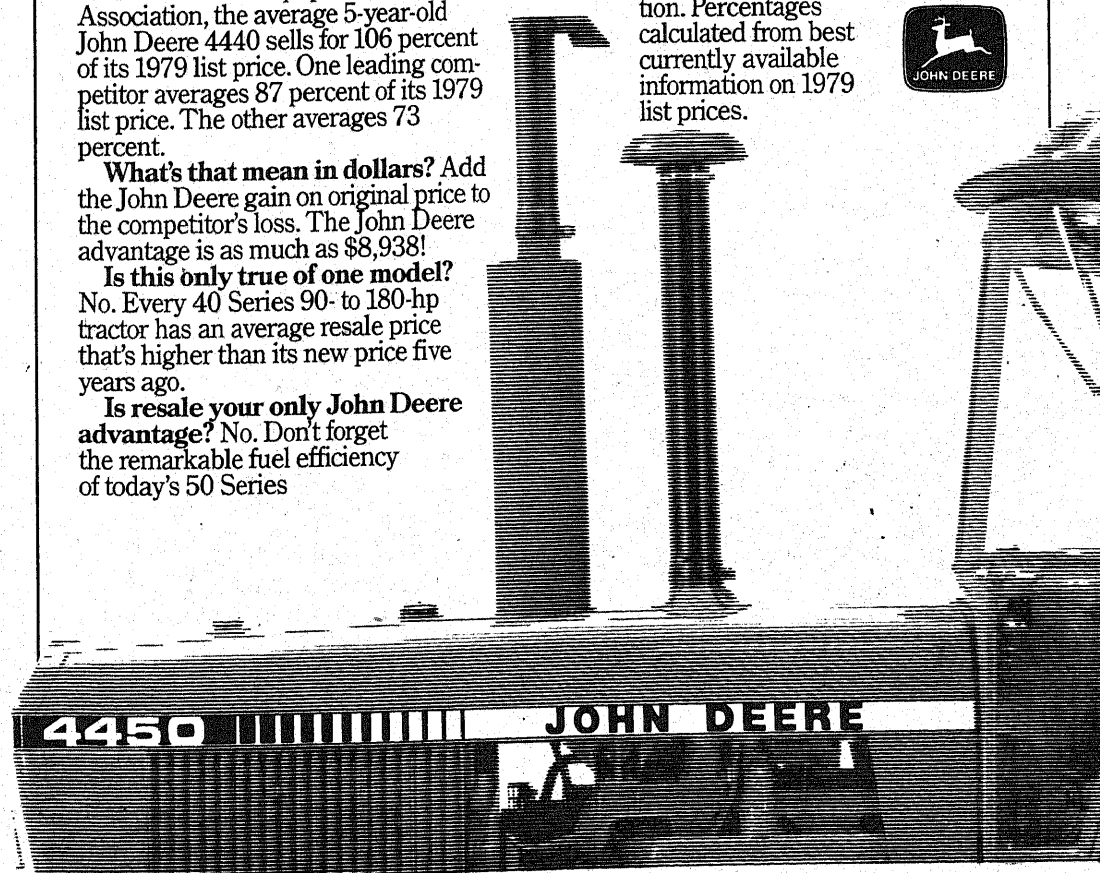

What's that mean in dollars? Add the John Deere gain on original price to the competitor's loss. The John Deere advantage is as much as $8,938!

Is this only true of one model? No. Every 40 Series 90- to 180-hp tractor has an average resale price that's higher than its new price five years ago.

Is resale your only John Deere advantage? No. Don't forget the remarkable fuel efficiency of today's 50 Series

John Deere tractors. And don't forget our unmatched reputation for high quality and high reliability. See your John Deere dealer. He'll be happy to explain the big difference between a low-price tractor and a low-cost John Deere: 100-hp 4050, 120-hp 4250, 140-hp 4450, 165-hp 4650 or 190-hp 4850.

NOTE: Average resale prices taken from Spring 1984 Official Guide of The National Farm and Power Equipment Dealers Association. Percentages calculated from best currently available information on 1979 list prices.

Something To Think About

JOHN A. CHAMPAGNE
DIRECTOR

FUNERAL DIRECTOR AS COUNSELOR

Although the funeral director may not consider himself a trained counselor, and may not have his doctorate in psychology, his special experience and role give him certain insights which he cannot help but use in his professional role. Any sensitive funeral director will soon acquire a knowledge about personal, practical, and abnormal bereavement problems which can be of value to those he serves.

Using his sensitivity, the funeral director can successfully identify such problems and the help or refer. In this way, he can be of use in his community as part of the care-giving team and more helpful to each family he serves.

Today, the funeral director is not restricted to only "at-need" contacts with families. He should be counseling them during prearrangements and he should be available for post-funeral visits to the family in addition to his regular, and more traditional at-need duties.
