First adequate fund balance recently

Laker budget in the black

By RICH SWARTZENDRUBER

A $155,000 budget balance for the Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port School District's 1983-84 school year was reported Monday night in an audit report by John Walsh, CPA. He explained to the Laker School Board a balance equal to 10% of the yearly budget is advisable to meet any unexpected expenses throughout the year. The past year was the first to show such a fund balance, he noted.

PAY HIKE: Contracts were ratified with the custodians, secretaries, teachers aides and bus drivers, which awarded 3% pay increases to correspond to teacher salary increases this year, according to Business Manager Bob Drury

MAKING THE GRADE:

Handbooks for Laker Junior High and the elementary grades were approved by the Board. Revised report cards and a new uniform grading system for all three Laker elementary centers were explained by principals Lynn Stahl and Fred Joles. The changes were the result of recommendations from last year's curriculum study committee, explained Joles.

For grades 3-6, the letter grades A-E will be awarded students on a percentage basis. First and second graders will receive satisfactory or unsatisfactory evaluations and reports on course work mastery rather than letter grades on the report cards.

Joles also announced the elementary centers will conduct open house events during the week of the Laker

25th Anniversary Reunion. A more detailed explaination of the grading system will be presented at the events scheduled for 7:30-9 p.m. on Sept. 17 in Bay Port, Sept. 18 in Elkton and Sept. 20 in Junior high principal Ben Phillips reported a new policy adopted last year prevented one eighth grader and one seventh grader's promotion to the next grade level due to unsatisfactory academic progress. He noted that parents of these and other students were notified throughout the school year of the situation.

MAKING TRACKS: APreliminary work on construction of the new all weather track and tennis courts has begun, Drury said. The contractors hope to complete the $111,000 project by Oct. 15. A $7,500 option to install paved "bench pads" along each sideline for players to stand without damage to the turf will be considered by the Board committee which studied the original track provements.

RESIGNATIONS: Board accepted the resignations of elementary principal principal Scott Siakel and special education teacher Sue Timmers. Siakel's position is filled by the return of Fred Joles from last year's leave. Debra Gardner of Almont was hired to replace Tim-

HOMECOMING: High School Principal Jim Ballard provided an update on the 25th Anniversary Reunion events next week. He stressed the use of shuttle busses from Elkton and Pigeon on Saturday, Sept. 22. Individuals will be transported to the high school from those areas at no charge to prevent traffic congestion in the limited area for parking.

Individuals, families, groups and businesses are invited to participate in the Pigeon Chamber of Commerce's Scarecrow Contest, in conjunction with the Laker 25th Anniversary Celebration Sept. 21 and 22.

Grand prize is $100 for the best decorated scarecrow, to help "scare the Caro Tigers Football Team," according to organizers. Second prize is $50, during the special sale weekend in Pigeon honoring Laker Homecoming.

Enter the FUN Scarecrow Contest

To compete, a scarecrow entry must be mounted on a rod not exceeding 7/8" in diameter to be inserted in flagpoles for display during Homecoming Weekend, Sept. 21 and 22. Deadline for entry is 10 a.m., on Thursday, Sept. 20. Judging will be done later that day and winners announced.

Enter your personallydesigned scarecrow by phon-ing June Kretzschmer at Kretzschmer Home Center at 453-3231 or drop off entry forms at KHC.

Anyone can enter, but must scarecrows displayed in town or within a one-mile radius of downtown

Don Welshans of Brighton Metal Products came to the Township Board's Sept. 4 meeting, to discuss plans to construct a new manufacturing facility on Crescent Beach Road, near the proposed township airport. Welshans also requested the township consider a tax abatemnent program to reduce property taxes on the new structure.

Township will look into it, members said. The building would probably replace the existing Brighton facility adjacent to Caseville True-Value Hardware, since Welshans needs more space.

Caseville Recall Election set for Thursday

Caseville Township registered voters can go to the polls Thursday to decide Huron County's first-ever recall election.

Petitions seeking removal from office of Supervisor James Reeves, Clerk Wallace Hart and Trustees J. Wayne Anderson and Michael Power were circulated by citizens who oppose the continuation of planning for the proposed Caseville Township general aviation Airport, to be funded with $1.1 million in federal aviation grants.

In Caseville, nearly 300 signatures were filed against the four by a group known as the Concerned Citizens of Caseville (CCC), led by Dolores Bieri of Crescent Beach Road, Pigeon. Current president of the informal group is Ardyth Marston.

A group known as C.A.R.E. (Citizens Against Reckless Elections) has been formed in support of the four officials being recalled, none of whom were in office in 1980 when the airport resolutions were passed. That group is headed by Harold 'Bud'' Lankey.

Voters who favor the recall should vote "Yes" (yes, they should be recalled), while those who back the current members should vote "No" (no, they should not be recalled). Polls in the Caseville Township Hall are open from 7 a.m.

Three of the four elected officials were nominated for Republican office during the August Primary Election, meaning they are virtually assured of re-election in November, regardless of this recall vote. If three or more members are recalled, no township business can be transacted until mid-November.

businesses I'm glad I'm not in. It's surprising how formerly excellent opportunities change, in our world. Here they are: ■Glass bottle business (nearly all beverage containers are switching to plastic, for easier and cheaper handling);

8mm film business (nearly everyone has switched to videotape cameras and recorders, rather than a bulky projector to set up...and bulbs to burn out); ■Mimeograph business (the former church and office mainstay for making copies has been replaced by the faster, simpler and easier-to-use plain-paper copy machines, which can copy on any color papers); ■Video disc manufacturing (another great idea, but not really equal to videotapes which can be re-recorded. Discs

Maybe some of these companies will come back with new, improved ideas -- but right now, they're not doing as well as they once did. Isn't it amazing!

SARAH & ANDY UPDATE -- Little eight-week-old Rummel was baptized this past weekend, so Sally and I were understandably proud as parents always are. But we love 3½-year-old big sister Sarah's understanding of it all.

We had explained to Sarah just what happens with the washing of Andy's head. So, Sarah knew what was going on -"Andy's going to be BATH-tized," she exclaimed. Makes sense to us!

YOU KNOW you live in a small town -- We got a letter Monday addressed "To Sound Off, Pigeon, Mich," and it got here. Reminds me of something that happened right after Sally and I were married in 1978. A friend of hers knew where Sally was living, but didn't know my last name (or Sal's new married name). So she addressed her letter to "Sally and Mark, Pigeon, Mich, 48755" and (you guessed it) we got it!

FINALLY - Susan G. Siegwart (Mowry) of Concord, Calif., sent along the Phil Frank cartoon we featured here several months ago, talking about a town called Pigeon. Susan said of the cartoon, "Since I have the honor of having Pigeon, Mich., as my birthplace (we lived in Caseville for years), I thought you'd appreciate it as much as I did. True, true, true. Thanks, Susan!

Recall must be defeated!

January Committee Co

nly one good thing can possibly come out of Thursday's special recall election for Caseville Township voters: perhaps this madness can now be left behind, and the community can heal its wounds to begin working progressively together again.

But, the stubborness shown against the proposed Caseville Township Airport during these past months is so deep that remnants will probably remain a long time.

The story in a nutshell is simple. Past township boards began work in the late 1970s to seek federal funding for a general aviation airport. It's a natural in a good resort area. Less than $500 in local funds were ever used, and that was just for legal fees to pass the airport ordinance in 1980.

Exactly a year ago, 14 neighbors of this proposed $1.1 million project - nearly totally funded from federal aviation tax dollars, NOT from local monies - signed a petition opposing it.

The Township Board didn't handle the situation properly, perhaps. They told the antiairport group a vote could be held, before THREE SEPARATE legal opinions said no such vote would be possible, since no provision allowed such a vote under the state Aeronautic

So, the opponents circulated recall petitions, saying they were being denied their "right" to vote on this subject. About 300 persons signed each of the four petitions against Supervisor James Reeves, Clerk Wallace Hart and Trustees Michael Power and J. Wayne Ander-

And - for the first time in Huron County history -- a recall election was scheduled.

The sheer madness of this election, however, is that the airport opponents could have done a much more effective job - through normal channels -- if they had just followed regular procedures. They could have nominated their own slate of township officials to oppose the incumbents in the August Primary.

Roses and Thorns

(NOTE: Please remember that this series on substance (alcohol) abuse is not intended to apply guilt to people who have dealt the best they knew how with abuse in the past, but to give insight and confidence to those who are presently dealing with abuse in themselves or loved ones).

Last week we encountered an illustration of how a good kid from a good, loving family became a teenage alcoholic. What I hoped to show by that example is tshat alcohol is not selective in whom it chooses to affect. Fortunately, the general public is becoming better informed that alcoholism is nothing to be embarrassed about. It is merely one way a human body responds to alcoholic consumption.

If your child was bitten by a snake and became confused, disordered in speech and started hallucinating - and if you knew the child next door was bitten by the same snake and remained unaffected - would you hide your child's problems out of embarrassment that he was not able to "hold" the poison like the kid next door could? Obviously not! Yet this is precisely what happens with alcohol. Somehow one's inabiliy to "hold his liquor is looked upon as a sign of weakness and embarrassment. Loved ones of that person go out of their way to protect that weakness and embarrassment from public exposure by making all kinds of excuses and offering all kinds of forgiveness. Medically, alcohol is a killer to the body. It is useful as a medication to kill off certain negative bacteria and at times, the body needs this assistance. When the body is otherwise healthy and not in need of alcohol medicine, the liver is employed to prevent alcohol from chemically destroying the body. The average liver is capable of neutralizing one-half fluid ounce of alcohol per hour. Any greater alcoholic consumption than the liver can handle is carried by the blood to the brain where an interesting process takes place.

In order to understand how the brain reacts to alcohol, I will refer to the six functions of the brain that control life as "levels." The first level to begin deteriorating is the reasoning level. After the initial encounter of alcohol with the brain, a person has trouble doing simple mental reasoning. Realistic and depressive thinking cannot be processed. If you tell him he is getting drunk, he will immediately deny it because he actually is unable to realistically reason his own condition. At a party this person would be seen as happy.

The second level to be affected as more drinks are consumed would be the brain's control of emotions. Inhibitions and precious emotional defenses are released. Jumping on tables, wearing a lampshade and donning various apparel are actions no longer to be feared. Also pursuing that goodlooking date or even the boss's wife have no barriers blocking them. At a party this person would be seen as the hit of the party -- he makes things exciting. This second level may leave other people in a much different mood. Some people have developed precious emotional defenses which protect feelings of insecurity and low self-esteem. When alcohol strips away these defenses this person may become more withdrawn and insecure rather

Instead, Caseville Township will be CLOSED DOWN for eight weeks if three or all four of these elected officials are recalled. The Township Board would lack a quorum from Sept. 13 until results of the Nov. 6 General Election are finalized -- and no business can be transacted in that time. The final irony is that three of the four officials being recalled were renominated by their Republican party, and face no major Democratic opposition. All this over an airport which can't use ANY township monies unless approved by the taxpayers! Why don't the airport opponents choose to understand this?

It's as though they're saying, "We've moved here and the 'locals' let us in -- but now we don't want further expansion or further modernization. We're here...now we want to close the door to others.

This airport can be just as beneficial to the Caseville community as the beautiful Caseville Harbor has been over the years. What if THAT had been opposed more successfully back then? Some people didn't want a harbor 20 years ago and longer, but look at the good it has brought to Caseville -- and the entire Western Thumb!

We URGE Caseville Township residents to vote "NO" against the recall (No, this person should not be recalled from office.) There's a principle involved here. These men haven't abused their positions -- not one of them was in office when the airport resolution was approved in 1980! They're just following the direction from past boards. It's not fair to recall them over one issue!

Don't let a small, but vocal, minority stall all the good which has been done in this fine township. These men don't deserve the unfair treatment they've been subjected to for four months. Caseville residents MUST VOTE "NO' this Thursday, if this area is to stay on a progressive course.

By Mark Karls

At a party, he would be seen as "O.D'ed" or in a coma. In reality, the individual is very near death. This is actually a blessing because the body has accomplished what the person cannot do by himself stop drinking. An "O.D'ed" person can no longer consume more alcohol. By passing out the body has save

The final and sixth level of the brain to be affected would be the vitals. This means that heartbeat and life itself would cease. Fortunately, the body is constructed so that the vital level of the brain is deepest physically in the brain and last to be affected by alcoholic infiltration. Unfortunately, people at times do reach this sixth level. The consumption of alcohol prior to passing out, in some cases, is sufficient to kill.

To conclude this second in a series of articles on substance abuse, it is important to explain where I am coming from. Yes, I am a pastor. Yes, I do not drink. But I am not against drinking. How can I be? Jesus was not against drinking. He not only drank, but seemed to encourage it by turning water into wine at a wedding in Cana of Galilee (the argument that this wine was non-alcoholic or at best, low alcohol, is indeed suspect - does Esphesians 5:18 say "be not drunk with grape juice . . ." Wine was wine and is wine).

Nowhere does the Bible preach against drinking, but in fact, encourages drinking on two occasions: Proverbs 31:6 encourages drinking as a depressant and I Timothy 5:23 encourages drinking for medicinal purposes. However, the Bible has much to say about getting drunk and about people who are "given too much drink." I Corinthians 6:10 states that such behavior excludes one from heaven. I am not one to gloss over people in need of helpl. Many Christians would rather not talk or even think about people whose needs Jesus held dear to his heart. He was called a drunkard himself because he dared to reach out to and associate with people in such need. Who am I to be "above that sort of thing?" (to be

The inspector calmly met Rocko's belligerent gaze. "We have a doorman who is pretty sure it was you who stepped from behind a parked car on Sixty-third Avenue and shot Fifi at five minutes before midnight.

What made you leave when the fun was really getting started?" demanded the inspector suspiciously. "The dance band. They whooped up some rock 'n roll bit as the clock struck twelve. CROP WEATHER UPDATE

A combination of record high and record low temperatures continue to affect the possible yield potential of this year's corn and soybean crop. A shortage of essential moisture throughout the cornbelt is also of concern. According to the Iowa Crop Reporting Service, that state's topsoil moisture was 100% short with subsoil moisture rated at 75% short as of last week.

The Iowa corn crop was rated at 44% good and 43% fair. The soybean crop was rated 33% good, 53% fair and 13% poor to very poor. Only five percent of the corn crop and one percent of the soybean crop was rated ex-

Crop conditions in Illinois were similar, with the corn crop rated at 55% good and 40 % fair. The sovbean crop was rated 43% good and 48% fair. The Illinois Crop Reporting Board indicates the recent hot weather caused crop conditions to decline and crop maturity to progress rapidly.

Other major corn and soybean belt states reported problems as a result of the hot, dry weather. Missouri soybean fields were turning color prematurely before pods were filled.

The corn crop development was hastened with 89% from 5-10% below a year in the dent stage. The crop was rated at 44% fair and 44% poor.

Much of Oklahoma and Kansas remained hot and dry. Wheat fields will need rain soon for seedbed preparation.

GRAIN MARKETS

Weather and the strength of the U.S. dollar continue to be the major factors affecting the grain markets. As harvest approaches, weather will become less a factor. Both private and government crop reports are expected to indicate a down sizing of this year's crop from previous estimates.

Other factors that will likely affect prices include the possible conflict with China over the proposals to tighten textile imports. The regulations would more clearly define the country of origin for textile imports. That could cut China's textile shipments ot the U.S.

The American grain industry is afraid China might retaliate by not buying any more American grain, The industry has good reason to be concerned because last year China stopped buying You KNOV you live

CHINA COMPETES FOR CORN EXPORTS

China is beginning to give the UNited States a little more competition in suplying corn to Japan. Export market analysts admit the 200,000 tons of corn China has sold to Japan isn't very significant when compared with American sales of one million tons a month. Analysts suggest, however, China appears ready to provide an increasing amount of grain to Japan in the future.

GOD'S LAWS INSPIRED THE ONES THAT PROTECT OUR FREEDOM

he laws of the Constitution by which we live seem to be continually under discussion by those who would change them, add amendments to them and argue their interpretation. All this has caused lengthy debates by our legislative bodies. angry exchanges of letters in our newspapers and a great deal of uproar over court decisions. However, it should be remembered that although our system of government may not be perfect in all respects, it guarantees the freedom which allows us to engage in these very controversies. The basis of all this is the Bible, which stresses the need for human liberty throughout its pages and sets forth a series of God-given laws designed to help preserve it. Give your thanks to God for our own laws, which were based on His decrees; and do it each week at your House of Worship, which these laws of ours have given you the right to choose.

The basis of our system is the people's right to make and alter their constitutions

Speak to Him

Read Luke 18:1-8

Evening and morning and at noon I utter my complaint and moan, and He will hear my voice. Psalm 55: 17 One evening a woman entered her room and, going directly to her desk, began to write.

After half an hour the solitude became oppressive. She wheeled her chair around and, with a shock of surprise looked squarely into the face of dearest friend lying on the lounge beside her.

"Why, I didn't know you were here!" she cried. "Why didn't you speak to me?" "Because you were so busy," was the answer. "You didn't speak to me.

Jesus, our best Friend, is always at our side. But it often happens that we are not conscious of His presence and that we do not speak to Him because we are busier than we should be with the little things of life.

So we neglect our greatest privilege and power - prayer. That is deplorable under any circumstances, and under present world conditions, it amounts to downright tragedy. If we ever needed to repent of our prayerlessness, to turn our faces Godward, and constantly speak and cry to Him, it is now while the shadows are falling on a despairing world. Let each of us ask himself: Am I conscious of the fact that Jesus is always with me? How often did I speak to Him today? Did I speak to Him not only to ask but also to thank

My dearest Friend, when I forget to speak to You, speak to me until we speak together. Amen.

A stranger moved into our neighborhood last spring. He announced his arrival with a shrill staccato blast that penetrated the foggy webbings of my sleep-filled brain and caused me to roll over and groan when the digital dials of the bedside clock came into focus. Five-thirty a.m. -- what on earth was that stupid jerk doing up at this hour, I thought. I burrowed back in bed and insulated my ears with a rolled up pillow. No use. The burst came again. Beginning with a series of slow, calculated notes, the stranger would reach the pinnicle nearing a high ' and then building speed, would trail off with a highly excited series of blasts that seemed to echo off the walls of the bedroom.

I could not take it anymore. Grumbling some sort of answer to my wife's question of what on earth I was doing up so early, I jerked on some clothes and padded across the carpeting to the sliding glass door at the back of the house. I scanned the backyard and found nothing out of the ordinary. It was apparent that the intruder had roused my setter Briar, for as I turned away from the glass, my ears caught the faint pleading whine of the dog. Looking back, I was my by a forlorn, but smiling face and a viciously thrashing tail.

Slipping the catch on the lock, I crossed the backyard and released the dog from his pen. Together we circled the house, and using a thick stand of poplars as a screen, peered into the front yard in hopes of catching the intruder.

Kee, Kee, Kee, Kee -- KEE, KEE, KEE, KEE, KEE, the harsh, but melodic song slashed across the front yard and reverberated off the woodpile. Briar cocked his head to one side and raising both ears slightly, to better pick up the sound, stared straight at a small, but highly visible object perched on a wire but highly visible object perched on a wire across the road. It was a brilliantly deckedout male cardinal. The red feathers almost seemed unreal as they clashed with the earth tones of that April morning.

I was never very good at bird calls, so I don't feel badly about not recognizing the cardinal's mating call some five months back. But I don't plan on mistaking it again, for this summer I was programmed. Our new cardinal friend made a habit of waking me at 5:30 sharp each and every morning of me at 5:30 sharp each and every morning of my vacation. At one point, I even had a terrible thought of slipping my .22 out the bedroom window and with one small pull of the trigger, plunging the neighborhood back into the serene peacefulness that we used to know. But I remembered another cardinal a long time ago, and quickly suppressed the

I guess I should have been able to tolerate such a small bird for when I was growing up on a farm outside of Unionville, we had one as a houseguest for over 10 years.

I was about six years old when my two older brothers showed up at the back door one day with a slightly wounded male car-dinal in their hands. My dad quickly snatched up the bird and depositing it on some newspapers covering the kitchen table, called for my mother to bring some first-aid

My brothers were weaving a tale of finding the helpless bird on the edge of a woods, but later that night I heard my mom and dad whispering about the possibility of

The reason as to the bird's arrival was not nearly as important to me as the fact that this brightly-colored red bird was lying on the table and I could not get my nose close

An old bird cage was commandered from the basement, and with fresh newspapers lining the bottom, it became the new home for the cardinal. My dad loved to give nicknames and it didn't take him long to lay one on the bird, like it or not, for the next 12 years, the male cardinal was known as "Pete."

Pete showed what he thought about the whole thing by expertly pecking off his makeshift bandage within the first two minutes after he hit the cage. Dad, with the patience of Job, proceeded to put on another, and another, and another until the wing finally healed.

In the years that followed, my dad and Pete became the best of friends. Mom would never let Pete out of the cage, but as soon as dad came home from work, the cage door was left ajar and the bird was allowed to sail around the living room. When it came time to put him back, he would play hard to get and head for the drapery rods where he became lost in the folds. I hated climbing up a chair and getting him down, for he pecked my hands unmercifully. He pecked my dadtoo, but dad always said it was because the bird liked him and it didn't hurt at all. But sometimes I thought I saw my tough old dad flingh a time or two flinch a time or two.

Dad was always concerned about Pete's welfare. One time he noticed that his claws looked a little long, so he decided to clip them. One snip of the scissors told him he had made a mistake and the bird roared around the room with a tiny stream of blood pumping from the missing claw. Dad was laughing so hard he could barely catch Pete, but a couple of yells, accompanied by a swipe from mom's broom told him it was serious business for the woman of the house. Out came the adhesive tape, and the bird must have picked off his claw bandage a hundred times. The bleeding finally stop-

Pete finally died of old age, and to console dad, my sisters got together and bought him a parakeet. While he would never replace Pete, Nebudchadnezzar ruled our house for many years after.

I told you my dad liked nicknames . . .

Farm Page Weekly is designed to provide accurate information to area farmers to assist them in their important marketing and management decisions

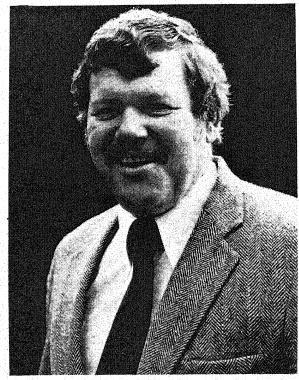

According to John Stommen, managing director of Farm Page Weekly, this new service will reach Michigan farmers through an estimated 50 local weekly newspapers with plans to expand the service to weekly newspapers in over 10 midwestern states by 1986.

Robert Driscoll will serve as editorial director for Farm Page Weekly. Driscoll, a well known agricultural communicator, is currently executive director of The Michigan Farm Radio Network. His column, "Something To Think About," is the focal point of the weekly presentation.

In addition to that column, Farm Page Weekly will present Grain Market and Livestock Market summaries, a Crop Weather Up-Date and News Briefs of interest to the agricultural community.

Mr. Driscoll brings impressive credentials to his Farm Page Weekly editorial position. He has been in Northwest Iowa and his Amazing Computers...

Farm computers are growing in popularity and variety of functions all the time. It's just one part of the multi-billion-dollar computer business -- and it's a fierce one in these United States today.

Several supercomputer companies have models which can do 160 MILLION calcula-

Or, perhaps you'd prefer the faster one! A new model offered by Control Data Corporation peaks at 800 million calculations per Designers of these super machines measure their progress in thousandths of an inch and millionths of a second -- making strides through tricks like eliminating a half-inch of wire so electrical impulses don't have to travel so far.

At those enormous speeds, it would take 154 people working 24 hours a day and seven days a week ONE ENTIRE YEAR to do 800 million calculations, performing that much arithmetic by hand.

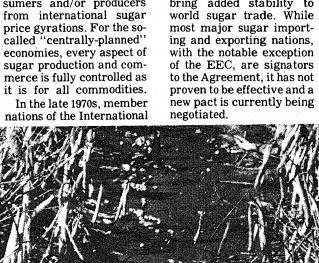

Some experimental computer chips have just a 50,000-th of an inch between their elements. One manufacturer has crammed almost 500,000 transistors on a chip less than a quarter inch on a side.

World Sugar Policies Affect Local Growers

Of the nearly 170 countries in the world, about 100 What virtually every nation has in common, howproduce at least some sugar, some 115 import ever, is a policy or propart or all of their sugar regram to insulate consumers and/or producers quirements and approximately 85 are listed as sugar exporters. (Obviously, a large number of nations fit in two categories and a few, most notably the Soviet Union, produce, import AND export sugar.)

About 75% of the world's 100 million tons of sugar produced annually is consumed in the country of origin. The balance is available for trade. Up to half of the sugar available each year for international trade is shipped under 'special arrangements" and the residual is commonly (and erroneously) called the "world market sugar". Because it is a market of last resort for sellers (a dumping ground) and remains relatively "thin" compared to world supply and demand, it is historically the most pricevolatile of all commodity markets.

International sugar trade is conducted in private, commercial channels, government to government and in government-commercial combinations. Considerable amounts are traded between groups of nations, such as under the agreement between some former British Commonwealth countries and the European Economic Community, and Cuba's arrangement with the USSR and its satellite natiated an International Sugar Agreement under the auspices of the United Nations in an attempt to bring added stability to

They LVOVVE Horses

Susan Engelhardt is your average 10-year-old kid. She is a 5th grader, healthy, active in her 4-H group, likes stickers and Michael Jackson, and she owns a racehorse.

The Orin Engelhardt family is a bona fide farm family living in Kilmanagh and has a special doting interest in horses. They average about 20 horses year 'round, including the brood mares and colts. Taking care of them and the rest of the farm is a family affair.

Mr. Engelhardt. "Kristine," (age 18) "has taken care of horses for years, and now she and Susan do pretty much all of that."

The first 3 years Susan owned "Susie," she took care of the feed, water, shoveling, etc. As the Engelhardts do with all of their horses, Susie was taken to Sandusky to Arnold and Eleanor Hurley to be broken into racing gear and trained. The summer Fairhaven's Susan was 3 years old, Orin Engelhardt entered her in a couple of aces on the Fair Circuit. 'She was a poor pacer hen," grinned Orin rue-"She didn't have Baked Beans From Navy Beans Grown Here in the Thumb?

Have you ever wondered what steps are involved in getting a farm product from the fertile fields here in the Thumb Area fullcircle, back to the stores here and anywhere else to sell?

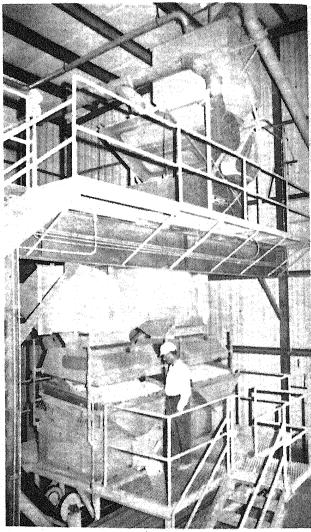

We thought you'd like to see this trip, first-hand. So, here's how ONE POUND of Navy Beans gets treated and handled, as we follow its journey from field to food store:

A LOAD of just-threshed beans is unloaded at a local Co-op, where a worker takes a sample in a can as the beans fall through a grating beneath the farm truck.

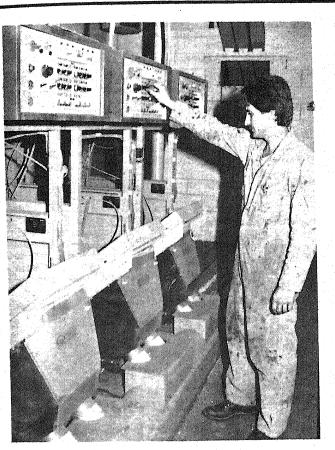

WORKERS test the samples for moisture content, amount of foreign matter and other variables, so the farmer is paid accordingly. The beans being sampled here are kidneys, in these pictures from the Co-op Elevator Co., in Pigeon.

BEANS are put through various screening and sorting processes in huge machines. Split beans, stones and other matter are moved to one side of the vibrating conveyor belt. Gravity is used to sort different sizes o beans, starting at the top of this

After that many years as Huron County's most successful county treasurer, and with 9 months remaining in his present term. Schweitzer announced on February 10 that he was retiring on March 31.

Why should he retire with three-quarters of a year remaining in his term? With almost 100% acceptance of his performance in office by the county and its officials, with a well-functioning, efficient office staff, with Huron County in excellent financial shape, and with funds moving

Nine months remaining for his term is a long time, he reasoned, and in that time he and his wife, Louise, could take some trips, have a relaxing three-quarter year, and for the first time since he started his 900-tree orchard, he could watch it blossom, leaf out, bear fruit and then devote full time to the 1984 harvest.

"Injun Summer"

ONE OF THE MIDWEST'S traditional symbols of autumn is John T. McCutcheon's "Injun Summer" cartoon. Originally drawn for the Chicago Tribune, McCutcheon caught the spirit of the season as the old man and young boy look into a cornfield in the early fall. "It isn't really a cornfield, you know," the old man tells the boy. He weaves a tale that the field was once a dancing ground for Indian spirits, and the pair imagines the scene changing before them. Tepees stand where corn shocks were, and the figures of Indians are seen dancing through the smoky haze, to the sound of the rustling leaves. The old man goes on to tell that the Indians' war paint has rubbed off on the leaves and colored them red.

Evaluate Garden Before You Forget

how did your garden grow this year?

Right now, you probably know which crops did well, which ones flopped and perhaps why they didn't perform, what varieties yielded better than others and where the various crops were planted.

But will you remember when garden planning and planting time rolls around

Lee Taylor, Extension horticulturist at MSU suggests that fall is a good time to evaluate the garden. and make notes to help you plan next year's effort.

"Notes should include a sketch of this year's garden lavout," he says. "Some crops and varieties you grew this year can guide your seed and transplant purchases next year. Exceptional flavor, excellent keeping quality, suitability for special uses, such as freezing or drying, disease resistance, and high yields of various varieties would worth noting. Q. EVERY RAINY FALL MY LAWN DEVELOPS A LOT OF MUSHROOMS IN THE SAME PLACES. THEY'RE GONE NOW - THE FROST GOT THEM -BUT I SUSPECT THEY'LL BE BACK NEXT YEAR. IS THERE ANYTHING I CAN DO TO GET RID OF THEM?

A. Mushrooms are the fruiting bodies of fungi growing on decaying wood or other organic matter. Raking off the mushrooms will give some control, in that it will reduce the number of spores that will be liberated, but the only good way to get rid of the underground parts is to remove the rotting stump of whatever the fungi are growing on. Digging out the material the fungi are growing on is your best course of action.

Q. CAN I PLANT MY POTTED MUM OUTDOORS? WILL IT BLOOM AGAIN NEXT YEAR?

A. You can plant it outdoors, but don't count on its surviving the winter. Many of the mum varieties grown for use as flowering pot plants are not winter hardy in

Q. WHEN DO I MULCH MY STRAWBERRIES? A. Apply mulch in November when the temperature drops to about 20 degrees F. If you mulch too soon, before the plants stop growing, you'll smother them.

Q. I HAVE A COUPLE OF KINDS OF PESTICIDE AND SOME FERTILIZER LEFT FROM THIS YEAR'S GARDEN. WHAT SORT OF STORAGE PLACE WILL KEEP THEM IN GOOD CONDITION SO I CAN USE THE REMAINDER NEXT YEAR?

A. Store pesticides and other garden chemicals where temperatures don't fall below freezing or go above 90 degrees F. Heating or freezing generally causes undesirable changes in liquid formulations. Dampness generally spoils dry formulations, so store powders and granules so they'll stay dry. Store any and all garden chemicals in their original containers. Their labels are loaded with important information, including the identity of the product, directions for its use, any special hazards it presents and what to do in case of accidental poisoning. Never transfer pesticides or other toxic materials into food or beverage containers. Store hazardous substances where children, pets, wildlife or irresponsible adults cannot get into them — a locked cabinet is best.

Q. WHAT'S THE AIM OF PROVIDING WINTER PRO-

A. One aim of winter protection for roses is to protect the graft union — the place where the top portion of the plant was grafted onto the rootstock. Another aim is to prevent alternate freezing and thawing of the soil around

Q. MY HOUSE PLANTS SEEMED TO ENJOY THEIR SUMMER OUTDOORS, BUT NOW THAT THEY'VE BEEN INSIDE AGAIN FOR SOME WEEKS, SEVERAL OF THEM ARE DROPPING LEAVES LIKE CRAZY. I'VE CHECKED THEM FOR INSECTS AND SIGNS OF DISEASE AND CAN'T FIND ANYTHING. WHAT'S LIKELY TO BE THE PROBLEM?

A. Low light, probably. Moving plants inside drastically cut the light reaching them. Since then, the days have got ten shorter, reducing available light still more. Leaf drop is a common response to reductions in light. It should stop when plants get adjusted to their new environment.

Q. WHAT'S THE BEST VARIETY OF APPLE FOR HOME STORAGE?

A. As a rule of thumb, the later maturing, harderfleshed varieties (such as Red Delicious, Idared, Northern Spy, Stayman, Winesap and Rome Beauty) tend to store much longer than the earlier, softer-fleshed varieties like McIntosh and Jonathan.

Storage temperature plays a big part, however. Apples keep best in a storage area with high humidity and temperatures around 32 degrees F. The higher the temperature, the quicker apples will become overripe and begin to rot. Because one rotten apple will indeed spoil the rest, store only apples that are free of bruises, dents, nicks, insect damage and other injuries that would give spoilage organisms a foothold.

O.WHAT SORT OF PLANTING SITE DO I NEED FOR SPRING FLOWERING BULBS?

A. If you intend to leave bulbs in the ground year after year, choose a well-drained planting spot that receives 8 to 10 hours of direct sunlight a day. In poorly drained soil, bulbs tend to rot. Insufficient light reduces flowering. Avoid planting bulbs where they'll be exposed to heat from a nearby building. Bulbs need a winter cold period to

Q. I'VE ALWAYS BEEN FASCINATED BY CARNI-VOROUS PLANTS AND WOULD LIKE TO GROW SOME IN MY HOME. DO THEY NEED ANY SPECIAL CON-

A. Most carnivorous plants are native to swamps, bogs and other habitats with very poor soil and generally wet is to grow them in sphagnum moss in a terrarium. Feed with a small insect once a month during spring, summer and fall. Overfeeding will kill plants. Repot every year in late winter to maintain the acid environment these plants need for best growth. Common problems with carnivorous plants grown as house plants include insufficient light, low temperatures and salt buildup in the planting medium. Though several carnivorous plants are native to Michigan, some are getting quite rare as the environments in which they grow are being lost. The activities of cellectors also threaten the existence of these plants. Rather than gather them in the wild, order carnivorous plants for your terrarium from seed and plant

Q. THE WHITE PINE TREES WE PLANTED A COU-PLE OF YEARS AGO ARE DROPPING A LOT OF NEEDLES. IS SOMETHING WRONG WITH THEM?

A. It's normal for pines and other evergreens to drop their needles. Generally, evergreen needles or leaves persist on a plant for about 3 years. In White Pine, needles turn brown and fall in 2 years. In Juniper and Douglas Fir, on the other hand, needles may persist for 10 or more years. Various environmental stresses can cause premature dropping of needles. Too little or too much water, exposure to salt spray, insect or disease attack, or activities of animals (particularly dogs) may cause needles to turn brown and fall off. Look for causes other than normal leaf shedding if plants are dropping the current season's growth.

Q. WHAT'S THAT SHRUB I SEE IN THE WOODS IN THE FALL THAT HAS NO LEAVES NOW BUT CLUSTERS OF BRIGHT RED BERRIES? IT SEEMS TO GROW IN LOW, SWAMPY SPOTS.

A. It sounds like Michigan Holly. Unlike the holly you see around Christmas, Michigan Holly is a native deciduous shrub. The berries are usually present from October through December. Also called the Common Winterberry, Michigan Holly in the wild is a protected plant. It can be purchased from local nurseries, however, and planted in low-lying, wet spots in the home landscape.

Q. HOW DEEP SHOULD I PLANT TULIP BULBS? A. Plant tulip bulbs about 6 inches deep (an inch or 2 deeper in sandy soil) in a well-drained spot that has been worked to depth of about 18 inches. Daffodils, hyacinths, flowering onions (allium) and other large bulbs should also be planted about 6 inches deep. Smaller bulbs — such as crocus, scilla, galanthus and grape hyacinth - should be planted about 3 inches deep. Space hyacinths and daffodils 5 to 6 inches apart, tulips 5 inches apart and the smaller bulbs 1 to 2 inches apart.

Q. I WANT TO TURN PART OF MY LAWN INTO VEGETABLE GARDEN NEXT YEAR. IS THERE ANY-THING I CAN DO NOW TO PREPARE THE NEW SITE?

A. You can get a head start on spring by removing the sod from the proposed garden spot and rough plowing or spading the soil. Winter freezing and thawing will break up large clumps. Fall plowing of a new or established garden will also give a certain amount of weed control. If you want, you can incorporate compost or other organic matter now, as well as lime and slow-release fertilizer. Before adding lime have your soil tested. Fall is a slow time for soil test laboratories, so now is good time to have yours tested.

Q. I PLANTED CHINESE CHESTNUTS SEVERAL YEARS AGO BUT HAVEN'T GOTTEN ANY NUTS YET. WHEN WILL THEY START PRODUCING?

A. Nut trees take a while longer to bear than fruit trees. They usually don't produce any nuts until they are at least seven years old. If the trees were three or four years old when you planted them, they may not bear until three or four years or more after planting. Even then, the production may be low — one-half bushel or so per tree at first.

Larger Farms Trend is Continuing

EAST LANSING - During the past 2 decades, the average size of farms in Michigan has increased, and soybean and corn acreage nearly doubled, in spite of diversion of some cropland to nonfarm use.

A new publication, "Comparing Michigan's Agriculture with that of Nearby States, 1960-1982,' written by Karl Wright, MSU agricultural economics professor emeritus, contains data on changes in farm size and other trends since the 1960s in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

'One of the most significant changes in Michigan is the increase in corn and soybean production in the past 10 years," Wright says. "Corn acreage rose from 1.7 million to 3.1 million acres -42% of state cropland making corn Michigan's major crop. Soybean acreage increased from 500,000 to 1 million acres.

Even though it has lost farm acreage to nonfarm uses, Michigan continues to produce a consistent per-centage of the 6 state market.

From 1960 to 1964, the average-sized farm in Michigan consisted of 135 acres. By 1982, average farm size had increased to 177 acres. Because of rising costs of farming - equipment, land, fertilizers and inflation, farmers had either to enlarge their farms, Wright explains, or to supplement their incomes with off-farm jobs.

Farmers with mediumsize farms -100 to 400acres - found themselves too busy to hold extra jobs, Wright says. The percentage of large farms went up then, because farmers had to increase the size of their farms to maintain their income.

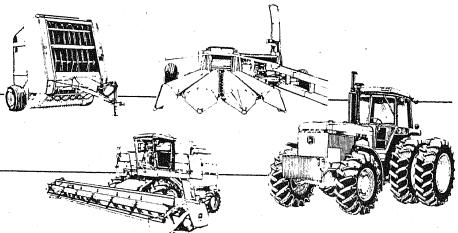

The percentage of smaller farms - those with less than 100 acres - remained about the same, but offfarm income increased each year.

Overall, farmers make twice as much income off the farm as they do from farming. Off-farm income per farmer in Michigan in 1979 averaged $15,270, compared with $6,318 net farm income, for a total family income of $21,588.

Eventually there will be small farms with a great percentage of their income derived somewhere other than the farm, and large farms. The medium-size farm will become obsolete, Wright says.

The publication is available for $3.50 through the MSU Cooperative Extension Service or the MSU Bulletin Office, Box 231, Lansing, East 48824-0231.
