Speakers send off '86 Laker grads

Nearly all the 1800 people who attended the 26th annual Commencement for Elkton - Pigeon - Bay Port High School Sunday were thanked at one time or another for the contributions they made as family members, teachers, parents -- and taxpayers -- in helping the Class of 1986 achieve their diplomas.

Laker High Senior Class President Shelly Stein told the crowd assembled in the Laker High gym, it is "only because of all the loving support and guidance, and following the examples you have set" that the 101 students could have reached their goal. "You have pushed us to achieve," she said.

In her Salutatory, Susan Ruth agreed graduation would not be possible without the many persons who have aided the class members individually and as a group.

"Although we haven't not always said thank you, we will never forget it," she said.

"We must not only look at now as the best of times, but we must create more. This is the first day of a new beginning.

"What we make our ourselves is what the children of tomorrow will look at. We as seniors must decide" what is important and what will help persons the most," Miss Ruth said, asking people to keep hoping and keep working.

"Hope never stops. To achieve all that is possible, we must attempt the impossible. To be as much as we can be, we must dream of being more."

Laker Supt. Harry Brunet introduced featured speaker Rudy Petzold as a lifetime resident of the Thumb, and among other accomplishments described Petzold as the "founder of the most prestigious track and field meet held in the state of Michigan, the Thumb Meet of Champs," noting it attracts more fans annually than the state finals will.

Describing Petzold's near-fatal stroke three years ago, Brunet said, "Rudy Petzold is the type of person who proves you can make it over the adversities life will have for you as you proceed down the trail."

Petzold, publisher of the Tuscola County Advertiser and president of the Michigan Press Association, told students this was his first commencement speech ever, but noted former Vassar High classmate Brunet "can be annoyingly persistent." When Petzold said he worried about what people expected to hear from him, he was told, "Don't worry about expectations. When they find out you're from Caro, they won't be expecting much!"

He said he's among the many people who have admired the Laker School District for many years. "Everything here is class," Petzold promised to abide by a former speech teacher's admonition: "first, worry about what you're going to say. Second, worry about when you'll quit saying it."

When he and Brunet were Vassar Vulcans, in the early- and mid-1950s, "there were no Lakers. All there were were Bay Port Clippers, Elkton Elks and Pigeon Panthers." Petzold called education "as much a part of on-going living as breathing.

"A man who is truly educated always goes on learning. It's a life-long part of living. That's the first thing I hope I can leave you with."

Petzold said the bad news is, life doesn't get any easier. But the good news is, from here on, more of it is in your hands."

He shared anecdotes and stories from his personal memories, accumulated over three decades. He told students "you are the most important factor in your lives. Above all, you must like yourselves.

"Love yourself, for what you really are is one of a kind person that God has made. No apology is needed for who or what you are. We all prefer sunshine and happy days, but every once in a while, dark days come."

Recalling his stroke, he said it's easy to ask "why me? But the shadows show the shape of life. Use the dark side of life as an experience."

"Life is not over until the coffin is closed."

Petzold said too many Americans have forgotten the formula which built this land: I I plus D. Initiative and Innovation combine with Daring to make "a formula by which great things happen." A person must have the initiative to try something and the innovation to go beyond playing it safe. Couple those with the daring needed to try something different in life, and you'll do what we're here for -- to contribute.

He urged students to do good whenever they can. "Be successful. Think big. What you spend years building can be destroyed overnight. But build anyway," Petzold said.

Laker Valedictorian Lisa Gaskill said one of the hardest decisions on graduation day "is whether to laugh or cry. If we take time to dwell on memories, we may cry. But I want to rejoice if I think about the present. So we'll settle for somewhere in between."

She recalled the late humorist Sam Levinson, who said he believes each newborn child arrives on earth with some truth to be told. "Everyone in this room has something to contribute to our community."

Miss Gaskill noted a child psychologist says children are always asked, "what are you going to be when you grow up?" They should answer, "I'm not going to be. I already am. We seniors shouldn't fail to appreciate the present."

She recalled that novelist Louis L'Amore tried many vocations, each contributing to his vast hunger for knowledge.

HISTORICAL FAMILY:
The Dennis Gaskill Family was noted at Laker Commencement on Sunday for creating history at the high school.

1986 valedictorian Lisa Gaskill, along with older sisters, Gina (1985 valedictorian) and Camie (1983 salutatorian) mark the first time three members of one family have earned one of the two academic honors at Laker High.

The Gaskill parents had a chance to check the academic progress of their daughters first-hand as Donna is the Laker Junior High Librarian and Dennis is a Laker High teacher.

Young writers take pens in hand

The eighth annual Laker Junior High Writing Contest gave youngsters an opportunity to put their creative talents on paper, and win prizes, too. LJH students submitted entries in four categories: poetry, non-fiction, fiction and children's stories. All students who entered received a pocket Thesaurus, dictionary or world atlas. First place winners earned a $50 savings bond and second place winners received a calculator. Judging this year's contest were Erma Maust, Mary Leipprandt and Della Trudgen.

FIRST PLACE WINNERS
FICTION: Traci Anderson, eighth grade, who wrote "Tale of the Teeterbugs," about the adventures of "extraordinary little creatures who lived in Teeterland, between the lands of the Smurfs and the Care Bears." The author gave this conclusion, "Hopefully, someday, our world will be as happy as Teeterland. After all, it is possible to become friends with your worst enemy. Right!"

NON-FICTION: Doug Clunis, eighth grade, who wrote, "Becoming A Rider," about his little black pony, aging himself at about five years old and relating his experiences with horses on up through his present age. His work is covered with illustrations showing the patterns horse and rider must run.

POETRY: Elizabeth Champagne, seventh grade, who wrote "Eight Poems," with this being one.

THE END OF WINTER
Time has past and the snow still here.

White and icy it is.
Time will pass and the rain will steer.
The snow into a mist.
The fog in the morning gives to me fear
God will lift it as if the earth was kissed.

CHILDREN'S STORIES: Tom Prill, seventh grade, who wrote "Biggest Isn't Best," a story about Big Bob Mouse who hurts Little Bit Mouses's feelings when he calls Little Bit puny. But when a rat catcher appears, Little Bit is small enough to escape and later rescues Big Bob, thus proving that sometimes biggest isn't best.

SECOND PLACE WINNERS
POETRY: Mandy Scott, ninth grade, who wrote "Thinking," a collection of 10 short poems, including this one.

DIARY
Dreams are locked inside.
Hidden from intruding eyes.

A place for your dreams.

The principal assigns Ann to help Cindy find her way around. The two girls become very close friends, eventually confiding to each other that they are each adopted. Likenesses in their childhood lead them into further research and they discover they are sisters.

CHILDREN'S STORIES: Lee

Harder, seventh grade, who wrote "Mischievous Eli," an illustrated story of a mischievous elf who was always getting into other people's belongings.
NON-FICTION: Kenny Rice, seventh grade, who wrote "Trip to the Silverdome," about the author's experiences while attending a truck pull at the Silverdome, with photos of Monster Trucks included.

HONORABLE MENTIONS
Amy Hebert, ninth grade, "Parakeets;" Mandy Scott, ninth grade, "Time;" Jamie Katschor, eighth grade, "Tobey;" Dawn English, eighth grade, "The Lesson Experienced."

MUCH ACTIVITY — A holiday weekend such as this offers plenty to do, so this will no doubt be briefer than sometimes...
■ Gum-chewing is getting sophisticated, as some gums can help dieters diet, smokers quit, aid the health-conscious in getting their vitamins — and even help chewers clean their teeth.
"Gum-chewing is no longer a bad habit; it's a positive action on the part of that person to improve his or her health," says a Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals spokesman. They should know. In 1984, they introduced Nicorette, a prescription-only nicotine gum to help smokers reduce cravings gradually without smoking. First-year sales have topped $40 million — and others want a piece (or stick...) of the $1.5-billion gum market.
There's even a vitamin-C gum coming out, plus a gum to help fight cavities. After all, 90% of children over 6 chew gum — as do 57% of adults.
■ Coca-Cola celebrated its 100th birthday in Atlanta, Ga., last week — inviting 25,000 guests to quite a party. Most of the folks were bottlers and their families.
I've always loved the Coke creation story. Atlanta pharmacist John Pemberton made the formula in a back-yard kettle. He sold the first glass on May 8, 1886 in Jacobs' Pharmacy. Pemberton didn't make money the first year, but sold the business to Asa Candler in 1888 — and it was being sold nationally at soda fountains by 1895.
Two Chattanooga businessmen bought the right to sell bottled Coke for $1 in 1898, paving the way for international distribution. The shapely, 6 1/2-oz. bottle was introduced in 1915 — and Coca-Cola now bottles 22 soft drink brands...
■ And, how much Coke do we drink a year? An average of 50 gallons per person in the U.S. —

POLLUTION POISONING LAKES
The Great Lakes' biggest pollution problem is above us all in the air, according to scientists at last week's World Conference on Large Lakes.
Toxic chemicals are being carried thousands of miles by winds, and then wash into the Great Lakes in rain and snow to poison water, fish and wildlife, they reported at the Mackinac Island conference featuring representatives of 40 countries. Up to 90% of the pesticides DDT and toxaphene being used in the world are evaporating into the air, one U.S. Agriculture Department expert said.
Airborne toxins can move around the world in 18 days, proving that DDT and toxaphene may be banned here, but are still in use in Third World nations. Governors of Great Lakes states signed further agreements to restrict exporting of water to arid southwest states.
More than 400 potentially toxic chemicals have been found in the Great Lakes. The increasing threat of toxic contamination follows a 15-year clean-up period when the Great Lakes were largely rid of the overgrowth of algae.

CASEVILLE CHEMICAL SPILL?

Caseville Village Council members are questioning why state Department of Natural Resources workers didn't formally notify the village after nearly 100 gallons of toxic chromium spilled nearly 17 months ago.
Wastewater contaminated with chromium was spilled when frozen barrels cracked at Brighton Metal Products in December, 1984. The firm, which makes "Bunker" sleeper cabs for semi-trucks, was given several violation citations, but chromium levels in Caseville's drinking water are slightly higher than usual, according to DNR officials. No unsafe levels are reported, and the water pollution is centered primarily on the company's land at 6977 Main Street.
Village officials knew of the spill last summer but never received an official report until May 12. Clean-up plans are underway by the company, the DNR said.

PLENTY OF WHITEFISH

Michigan's commercial fishermen are still experimenting with an acceptable way to catch the growing number of whitefish found in Lower Lake Huron, off Port Sanilac. An Ontario commercial angler reports the best catches since 1948 using fixed trap nets from April to November, as allowed by Canadian laws.
Bay Port Fish Company is still experimenting with purse seines — nets which are removed daily, under special agreement with the DNR. Merging the interests of commercial fishermen and sports anglers is the primary concern facing the DNR now, which allowed net experimentation last fall.
Large numbers of whitefish are being reported, but sports fishermen don't approve of the trap nets which can also kill sport fish caught accidentally.
Additionally, Bay Port Fish Company was given an experimental permit this spring for removable purse seines to trap whitefish from Harbor Beach to Bay Port. Williams says the system will "provide a way to selectively harvest an abundant resource," namely whitefish. He says the new method, thus far, has yielded very few whitefish. But he is optimistic the purse seines can please both commercial netters and sport fishermen.

Allen announces candidacy

STATE REP. DICK ALLEN (R-CARO)

State Representative Dick Allen (R-Caro) announced he is seeking reelection to a third term in the Michigan House.

Allen, a former Tuscola County newspaper editor, first came to the Michigan House in 1982. He presently serves on the Appropriations Committee, which oversees the state's budget.

The 77th District lawmaker says he is seeking a third term to continue his efforts at helping to improve the economic development of Huron and Tuscola Counties and to give the Thumb area an even stronger voice in Lansing.

Allen says he will also continue his pre-1982 promise of running a candidacy built on accessibility with the public.

"This effort has been extremely effective in these past 3 1/2 years and has led to more individual and community involvement with government," Allen concludes.

Local tourism needs help

Which came first, the chicken or the egg? That's the very real problem facing expansion of tourism here alongside one of the world's great tourist attractions, Lake Huron and Saginaw Bay.

Very few quality lodging rooms and exceptional activities await travelers here in the Thumb. Few can argue with that. But would-be developers say more people must come here, if new hotels or other facilities can be built — but folks won't come to this area without adequate places to stay and things to do!

No matter how you look at it, the situation here is perplexing!

To be sure, Huron County and the Thumb Area should be prime tourism territory. Less than two hours from Detroit, our beaches and waterways are clean, safe, beautiful — while fish and bird populations are plentiful for anglers and hunters. This area should have all types of advantages over, say, a more distant Traverse City.

But there are few destinations here — too few places to be directed to. Port Austin deserves good recognition now, for its efforts to develop itself into a real tourist town. Sadly, Caseville and other local areas aren't doing as much as they could and should along those same lines.

A recent Bay City travel story telling about this area's tourism woes said "The Thumb, like Rodney Dangerfield, 'don't get no respect.'" It sounds funny at first — but it's true.

Not enough foresighted people are here to develop properties and entire communities correctly — and fully. Too many complainers are allowed to stand in the way of growth, development, progress — and monetary gain.

Too many local folks believe few other "newcomers" should be allowed here, even though many present residents haven't been here more than a handful of years. "We're here now," they say, "but now we want to close the gates behind us."

How short-sighted! How unfair! How unprogressive!

The Thumb's tourism business doesn't get respect because it hasn't earned it. Instead of boldly moving forward, local tourism is standing still, or stagnating.

There's hope, of course. And VAST potential. But can the "movers" get the ball really rolling? Can someone take the plunge to help secure adequate hotels or more motels, to lure people off I-75 toward our area?

That remains to be seen. But many, many attitudes must change first, if anything good is to develop. And recent history has proven the "no progress" folks have worn out the "movers" all too often...

Pete Progress says:

"A genius is a person who aims at something no one else can see and hits it..."

RECOLLECTIONS
By-Gone Days

By GEORGE KEIM

DEAR EDITOR, Several weeks ago, while eating my dinner at the Dutch Kettle, I listened to several young farmers talking about the weather.

They said it was very dry and if it didn't rain soon, their spray wouldn't take hold. They also said there were a lot more weeds that we have now that we didn't have years ago. They named some that I never heard of.

We used to have Canadian thistles and sow thistles, pig weeds and of course, quack grass, but we used to set our cultivators close and always cultivated everything three times. Then, we'd use our hoes and a little elbow grease and that took care of the weeds!

Well, the rain did come, just like I knew it would and the water stood all over. Some of it is still standing.

When I was younger, or was still farming, I'd always put on my boots whenever it would rain, or at least take off my shoes. I'd take a shovel and go out to the fields to let the water off. I'd see a lot of neighbors doing it, too.

I worked for several farmers who put me at it. I could tell which way the water wanted to go. Sometimes, I had to dig quite a ways, but it often paid to do it.

Once, after a hard rain, I went out in one of my bean fields, letting off water. I had my Boys milking the cows, so I could get a lot more water off.

My Wife called out to me and told me we had company and said I should come in and visit with them. They were people who lived a ways from here and they didn't have any rain, so they thought they'd come and see if we had any.

Well, I put on a good face, but they were as welcome as a cow in my Wife's garden!

One Sunday morning, after a real dry spell, we had a very nice rain. My Wife was gone and I saw a big water hole about one acre in size. Well, it was early and I knew that the sun would come out and cook the beans, so I got my shovel and boots and went over to let the water off. The only people who saw me were going fishing, so I knew I wouldn't get "told on."

I did my chores and went to church. When I came home, the water was all gone and I had saved one acre of beans.

My Dad used to say, "The Bible says if your ox falls into the well on the Sabbath day, you should pull it out. But don't wait 'til Sunday morning to push him in!"

Well, I don't believe in working on Sunday, like working in the field or other work that you can do other days. One of the Commandments is "Remember the Sabbath and keep it holy," but there are things that sometimes have to be done.

Once there was a family whose daughter died on Saturday night. I never worked harder shoveling snow and some other work that Sunday, but I got blessed for it. And I'd do it again if life or death depended on it.

SINCERELY YOURS,
 GEORGE KEIM

Former Pigeon man remembers school chum

DEAR EDITOR: In the recent issue of my veterans' newspaper, I saw where an old school pal has passed away. Maybe you could put a short article in your newspaper.

VFW Post #2236, Pigeon, Alfred Eichler, age 90, died Feb. 3, World War I, a lifetime member and a charter member of the above post.

In 1902 Alfred and I went to school together until 1909. His father's farm adjoined our farm on the south. His uncle Dan Eichler lived across the road from us. In 1909 I graduated from Chandler School District #5. He, his brother and sister did not graduate from school. In 1910 Alfred's father bought my father's farm. When Alfred got married he lived on our old farm. I very seldom saw him after 1919. I did not go back to live in Pigeon. I went to Detroit to work and live there. I am also almost 90 years old now.

Sincerely,
 Norman Schafer

ROSES and THORNS
 Mothers' Day 1986

By MARK KARLS

The following excerpt is Floris Wertz's Mothers' Day message to the Salem United Methodist congregation on Mothers' Day, 1986. Excerpts will continue for the next two weeks.

MOTHERHOOD — what a privilege and an honor to be a mother. Granted, there are heartaches, grief and sorrow that go along with being a mother, but believe me, the joys, triumphs and victories far outweigh the heartaches, if WE will but let them.

Sometimes the work we see that needs to be done overwhelms us, but after it's all done, before we have to start over again, we have a sense of pride. And sometimes there are things that never get done or work that is delayed for awhile. That's OK. Sometimes there are things that are more important for a mother to do than just working at home or outside the home all the time.

It's important that a woman takes care of her husband's needs and the needs of her children. It's important for both mom and dad to get involved in things that interest each other and that interest your children. Parents, may I encourage you to attend as many of your children's school and extra-curricular activities as you possibly can. Children grow up so fast and soon they are gone from us. By attending your children's activities, this is one way you show them that you love and care about them. Tell them how proud you are of their accomplishments. They need to hear this not once, but many times.

Of utmost importance, I feel a mother must put God first in her life, even before her husband and children. I believe if a woman is walking close with God and in tune to His Holy Spirit, she will be a better wife and a better mother. It is through the Holy Spirit, being much in prayer and in the Word that a mother gets wisdom and strength and guidance to carry on her work as a wife and mother. There is no other way.

In recent years I have not always had a quiet time with the Lord each day. It's very difficult as a mother to find time to fit a quiet time into her busy schedule. When the children were young I could spend time alone with God while they were taking a nap or after I got them all off to school. As they grow older, I took on a part-time job which I thoroughly enjoyed and then always had work to do at home or someplace to go the days I didn't work outside the home. I found many times I was squeezing in 10 or 15 minutes for quiet time, just any time that I could during the day and some days not finding time at all.

I finally realized I would never find enough time. I had to MAKE and TAKE time. The Holy Spirit convicted me that I would have to get up before anyone else in the family got up each morning and that would mean getting up around 5:30 or 6 a.m. Needless to say, I wasn't fond of that idea. I wrestled with God on that one for awhile. Finally, I gave in and I knew He was right.

I'm here to tell you mothers, it pays off. I'm speaking from experience. There is no greater thing than a mother can do for her family than to get up early and pray for her family and then pray with them and bathe her family in love, no matter how difficult it may be at times. Bathing your family in love is not easy. I know. Some days something goes wrong at work and the children are tired and irritable. They may start fighting among themselves. Pretty soon, mom is tired, dad is tired and mom and dad may spout off and say something unkind to each other or to the children that they are sorry for later. Words can never be retracted. But apologies can be made and need to be made.

No one is perfect, even though we might like to think we're perfect. There needs to be a lot of forgiveness in the home. We need to have our pride broken once in awhile and need to humble ourselves and say, "I'm sorry. I'm really sorry for what I said and for how much I hurt you. Will you please forgive me?" Then and only then will healing take place in the home. Otherwise, hurt and angry feelings may grow into roots of bitterness and resentment which is sin.

We also need to tell each other that we love each other. Taking love for granted is not enough. Everyone needs to be told they are loved to be reaffirmed of the fact. We need to say "I love you" to each other really often. Brothers and sisters need to tell each other that they love and appreciate each other. Moms and dads need to tell each other they love and appreciate each other and they need to tell their children that they love and appreciate them and that they are proud of them.

It is healthy for moms and dads to express their own love for each other in front of their children. They need to kiss and hug each other in front of their children. In this way, their children will in turn know how to show love and affection to their own spouses someday. I remember when our children were little, Dale and I would kiss each other quite frequently in front of our children and they would quickly get out their imaginary cameras and would smile and go click, click as if they were taking a picture of mommy and daddy. They like what they saw and, of course, Dale and I were having a good time, too.

Pigeon District LIBRARY CORNER

The Pigeon District Library now has Tax Amnesty forms and booklets. The amnesty began May 12 and ends June 30. Some of the forms include: MI 1040X-Amended Michigan Individual Income Tax Return, C900X-Amended Single Business Tax Annual Return, C3204-Annual Return for Sales, Use and Withholding Taxes, C1028-Michigan Tax Amnesty. The booklets are for Michigan Tax Amnesty forms for individuals and Michigan Tax Amnesty forms for businesses, also state of Michigan Reproducible Master Returns for Tax Amnesty.

PAMPHLET FILE
A frequently overlooked but valuable resource in the library is the vertical file, which holds pamphlets, clippings and other materials not appropriate for cataloging or shelving. The collection is extensive, with subject areas from "Pigeon" to "Africa" and from "Gardening" to "Nuclear Power."

Students will find it especially useful for current event reports. Materials on events so recent that few, if any, books have been published will be found in the vertical file with subjects, i.e., "AIDS," "The Closing of the Midland Nuclear Plant" or the latest on "Arms Control" efforts. For students researching careers, there are files with pamphlets and articles with hard-to-find information about many vocations.

The vertical file's value does not end with the student report. Those who travel will find files on states and many countries. Consumers pamphlets are here, as well as up-to-date information on many diseases. Information about state and local government and the current level of the Great Lakes can be found in the vertical file. Most materials may be checked out for at least three days.

Any librarian will tell you there is likely to be a folder with information relevant to the subject you are researching.

PRESCHOOL STORY HOUR
The theme for the June 3 Story Hour will be "Sesame Street," with stories including "Big Bird Can Share," "When Grover Moved to Sesame Street" and "Bert and the Broken Teapot." Show and Tell will also be conducted, as well as exercises, a flannelgraph Memory Game and the song "Hokey Pokey." Preschoolers age three to five are invited to Story Hour each Tuesday at either the 9 or 10:30 a.m. session.

SUMMER READING PROGRAM
Area students in grades kindergarten through sixth may participate in the Summer Reading Program, entitled "Come to the Fair." From June 16 through July 19 the children have to read a minimum of 10 books at their reading level. Children must register for the five-week contest in person at the library anytime between May 31 and June 14. The program will be guaranteed fun-filled reading.

VIDEOTAPE CLUB MEMBERS
Members of the Pigeon District Library Videotape Club are asked to give suggestions and comments about the selection of tapes they would like to have, plus any comments about the tape club.

VFW raises $1,814

Response to Buddy Poppy Days last Friday, May 16 was tremendous, according to chairmen Joe and Ada McArdle of the Pigeon VFW Post #2236 and ladies auxiliary. The one-day canvass amounted to $1,814.30, which will be used to benefit needy veterans and their families.

The suggestion box will reside on a table near the tape cabinets. Members may stop in during regular library hours.

ACCEPTANCE OF DEATH

To accept the concept of death is not the same thing as being resigned to an early death or giving up all hope of recovery.
We should seek to enjoy and appreciate the time we have, and try and hope to prolong it. Still, this should not prevent us from coming to terms with the one of truths of human existence.
Most of us simply delay consideration of the issue until absolutely necessary. Even then, when faced with the impending death of a loved one or ourselves, many people refuse to handle the matter realistically. They feel it is accepting defeat. However, acceptance of the inevitability of

As he retires from Wyoming post

Supt. Davis remembered

Just recently, the School District of Wyoming honored their retiring Superintendent Robert J. Davis. This is a copy of the letter sent by Laker Superintendent Harry Brunet in his behalf. The affiliation with Pigeon will continue in the Wyoming Public Schools with David Bailey being named Superintendent.

Mr. Robert J. Davis, Supt. Wyoming Public Schools, 3575 Gladiola, Southwest Wyoming, MI 49509

DEAR BOB:
On behalf of the current Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port Board of Education, it is my pleasure to write this letter of commendation in your behalf. Not only is this letter from our current Board, but it is the expression of appreciation from all previous Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port Boards of Education.

Often times you will hear the statement that after the guy leaves town the man on the street will say, "Bob Who?" This, however, has not been rule of thumb with the residents of our school district, especially the folks over in the Village of Elkton. If any one person deserves credit for the formation of one of the best - correction, THE best - consolidated school district in the state, it has to be Bob Davis. Upon my arrival 13 years ago, Wager Clunis and Ken Ginter were prompt in making a call to my office. Their first mission was to extend a welcome, and then provide me with vital historical background relative to the formation of the district.

At the time that you were working with two other boards and superintendent plus your own, I was starting a teaching career in the Kearsley Community Schools outside of Flint. Being a person reared in Vassar, I was very familiar with the three communities, and at that time I thought, "How on earth would you ever get three communities that fought like cats and dogs to join into one school consolidation?" It must have been a trying time for you and your board members. In my conversation with Wager and Ken, they were very quick to point to your overall leadership in bringing the three separate districts into one. I often think of how gratifying it must have been in that monumental vote back in 1958 calling for consolidation and the construction of a new high school facility.

Contrary to all of the "doubting Toms" and those who are "aginners," the district has survived throughout its history. This survival has to go back to the groundwork you and that first combined Board of Education laid out for the rest of us to follow. From a personal standpoint, I can honestly say that the 13 years of my superintendency have been that of working with concerned and understanding board members. I am certain that during your tenure, you experienced this same relationship. Since the formation of the district, we have had

CASEVILLE RETIREMENT CLUB

There were 124 members present for the May 20 meeting of the Caseville Retirement Club at the American Legion Hall.

President Frank Janes introduced two new members, Elsa Kerr and Edward Miller. He then asked all to stand and greet their neighbors, leading in the Lord's Prayer before lunch. The Pledge to the Flag was given before the meeting.

Welcomed back were Freida Damm, Esther Lehman and Marie and Haskell-Watts.

There were 49 blood pressure readings by Rose Koenig and Marian Parent, assisted by Billie Lakatos.

Janes thanked the club for tickets for the Mayor Exchange and Dinner, Marian and Virginia Zielinski were thanked for their donation of "early bird" goodies and all were thanked for donations to the food pantry.

Travel club chairman Andy Lakatos reported that sign-up for the Saginaw Valley Downs trip ended May 27 and more details on the Toronto trip will come later.

Hospitalized is Frank Darby at St. Mary's, Saginaw. Luella Colangelo is at the Huron Medical Care Facility, Bad Axe. Recuperating at home are James Denisuk, Tom Mackey, Chuck Pudney and Delia Rottman.

Celebrating birthdays were Florence Rahe, Rudy Zakay, Giel Peyokl, Audrey Yockem, Helene Thiel, Mary Gardner and Virginia Jessup. Feted for anniversaries were Ida Schane, Frank and Caroline Lambert, Rudy and Mildred Zakay and Stanley and Betty Marie Colmer.

A thank-you card from Jetta Muhme was read by President Janes, as was a thank-you from the Chamber of Commerce for the club's participation in the Caseville Perch Festival. Honored also were Henry and Margaret Zakrzewski. The meeting was adjourned for cards and bingo.

Pinochle winners were Henry Zakrzewski, Josephine Fitzpatrick and Nada Blackburn. Euchre winners were Russ Poisson, John Weremiuk and Marie Watts. Bingo overall winner was Marion Smith.

ELKTON CLUB 59

Elkton Club 59 women met for their last meeting of the club year at the home of Phyllis Tamblin on May 19 at 6:30 p.m.

May baskets were filled and distributed to 22 Elkton residents. A business meeting followed.

Two scholarships to basketball camp were given to two local children. It was decided to put flowers in front of the Elkton Civic Center this year. The group will also conduct a bake sale at the Elkton Summer Festival.

After the business meeting, the new officers for the 1986-87 year were installed by Dee Esch and Rose Farver. New officers are President Donna Fritz, Vice President Donna Schuette, Treasurer Jeanette Learman and Secretary Diana Seley.

The meeting was adjourned with a dessert served by Darlene Ginter and Marge Farver.

The next meeting will be in September.
ELKTON LIONS CLUB
 Orville Snider, life-long resident and educator from Elkton, was guest speaker at the Elkton Lions meeting on Wednesday.

He dealt humorously with his early years in a one-room school and then with his many years as principal at Elkton and Laker High Schools.

The club's board of directors voted to use funds to repair buildings at Sleeper State Park campground. The club's parade float is to be refurbished. Shirts for two girls softball teams are being purchased. Money was also donated to help two needy families with hospitalized children. The community's support of Lions projects make such activities possible, according to the Elkton Lions.

ELKTON SENIOR CITIZENS

Forty-seven people were present at the weekly meeting of the Elkton Senior Citizens. For the table grace, Ray English led in repeating The Lord's Prayer.

Special guests present were Darl and Linda Dumaw, Alice Noble and Pearl Baker who were there to help Max Ritter celebrate his 89th birthday. A specially decorated cake and ice cream were served to the group by his wife, Helen.

Other members who were welcomed by the chairman were Emma Morley, Jean Kellerman and Doris Beaver, who recently returned from Florida. A special "thank you" was extended to the Ritters for dessert.

The Birthday Song was sung for Laura Lenzer and Max Ritter. Group singing was led by Mary McCarty and Della Trudgeon. The secretary's report was read and accepted. A get-well card was signed for Beatrice Gregor. It was reported that Bernice Eidd is not well.

Program Chairman Florence Southworth introduced Orville Snider, who reminisced about his 40 years in education, going back to his early days in the rural school, through his teaching and principalship in the Laker District. He concluded with an appropriate reading and poem, closing with a prayer for elders.

Next week will be an open meeting with Bingo on the agenda.

Thanks A Million

DEAR MR. ROSS:

We're writing in behalf of a man we work with who is deaf. He's also married to a deaf woman. Recently they had a baby and need some way to know when the baby's crying.

Our office did some research and found a device called a "Baby Cry." This device signals when the baby is crying with the use of a lamp. We tried, but couldn't get any of our local agencies to supply one. Will you help? — Workers at Professional Service Industries, Corpus Christi, Tex.

DEAR WORKERS AT PSI: Deafness is not unique to the hearing impaired; it's also a trait among many who are unwilling to share.

Thanks to the good people at Sonic Alert of Pontiac, Mich., I'm mailing you a Baby Cry Signaler and Remote Receiver. Please present it as a group gift from all of you.

DEAR MR. ROSS: I hope to become a writer of children's Christian books on an elementary school level. I graduated from college with a B.S. in Elementary Education and a minor in Art. But, in order to become a successful writer, I need the expertise that the Institute of Children's Literature in Redding Ridge, Conn., has to offer.

I'm totally disabled and unable to hold a conventional job. I receive SSI, Medicaid, food stamps and cheese. I may have a weak body, but I have a sharp mind.

A typewriter is mandatory for taking the course. A friend had enough faith in me to give me one. I wish to become a self-supporting member of society. Will you, Mr. Ross, have faith in me and provide the cost of tuition? — Mrs. J.S. Lakeland, Pa.

DEAR MRS. S.: With the assistance of Judith Brunstad, director of admissions at The Institute of Children's Literature, I've arranged for two years of tuition to be paid in full.

You now have the means to attain your goal. The amount of faith you have in yourself will determine your success.

By PERCY ROSS

DEAR READERS: I recently printed the following letter from Mr. C.B. of Detroit, Mich.

I'm not asking for money, Mr. Ross, just ideas. I want to marry this very special woman and need to know what is the MOST romantic way to propose — a way she'll never forget!

I asked you, the readers, to submit your ideas and offered $200 for the best response. My many thanks to everyone who responded.

To the woman who wrote that she awoke one morning to find an engagement ring in her denture cap along with her smiling teeth. The $200 winning proposal comes from Kathy Heckman of Fort Wayne, Ind., who wrote:

"My idea of a romantic proposal is one which will stand the test of time. For a nominal fee of $35, you can choose a constellation and have one of its stars named after your lady fair. The International Star Registry, Northfield, Ill. (800-282-3333) will send a certificate with her name and the star's location.

"After obtaining this certificate, choose a lovely star bright night. In an open, horse-drawn carriage, take your lady for a ride among the stars. Stopping the carriage in a romantic location, point out the chosen star. Declare your loves shines as brilliantly as the special star in the sky. Then as her if she will do you the honor of becoming the star of your life and be Mrs. C.B.? The star certificate, rolled inside the ring, should then be presented. Awaiting her answer, have chilled champagne ready for the inevitable toast. How could any girl say, "No"?"

To the person calling about mailboxes: what makes you think mailboxes are indestructible? Snowplows route them out in the winter, sleepy drivers in the summer and vandals anytime they feel like destroying something. I'll bet I've paid more money for new boxes and posts than you've paid for your box in town.

applied evenly in Pigeon? I know people who have gotten overnight parking tickets some days, while others don't. I guess it depends on who's on duty. But that's not fair. You either give them or you don't. Or, are only certain people getting them, and certain "favorites" not given the tickets? Why do we have them in summer months, anyway? Since when is it a

If you want a proper explanation about why you have to pay for your mail box rent, go to the Post Office. Don't complain here, do it there, where it counts. /

WOODS and WATERS

By Duane Guenther

Backseat bass

The evening was hot and sullen. Large thunderheads were building in the west with a texture so vivid they reminded me of a purple mountain range rearing its lofty head from an otherwise flat horizon. It would be raining in a short time so I turned around and began working my way back to the car.

I had been fishing with a jitterbug for most of the afternoon and hadn't had much luck on the surface, so I opened my mini-tackle box strapped to my waist and pawed through the contents hopefully looking for the right combination. A purple plastic worm hit my eye and I remembered another evening and the fantastic results it had provided. With a simple snap, I unhooked the jitterbug and replaced it with the purple worm.

With a short backcast and a firm flip of my wrist the worm sailed in a slow motion tumble, over the outstretched grasp of a clump of cattails and hit the water with a resounding smack. I allowed the worm to sink a few inches before I began the methodical, and half-hearted retrieve.

Pow!! The rod tip dipped toward the water and the surface so calm a few minutes before, erupted in a geyser of wild spray. The fish came out of the water a good 2 body lengths, viciously shaking his head like a puppy with a worn out sock. The fish hit the water and tore out a couple of yards of monofilament before going airborne again.

The fight could have lasted a few more minutes, but at that moment Thor unleashed his fury with a wicked stab of lightning causing me to horse the fish a little too much. One minute the line was as taut as a banjo string, the next, limp as linguini.

The fish had been a largemouth bass. His body shape, observed on the first jump had given him away. He was fat, like a football, and fought like a middleweight, but in the Thumb, like Rodney Dangerfield, he gets no respect.

Mention your place of residence to another angler and he will surely quiz you about the perch, salmon, and now, walleyes, but rarely will he ask you about the bass fishing. It can't be that bass are unpopular. Recent statistics show there are about 60 million fishermen in the US. In a recent survey, it was found that 40 million of them rank bass as their number one fish. That leaves the other 20 million divided amongst the remaining species.

Perhaps the statistics lie a little. Most of the fishermen in the central and southern parts of our country are dedicated to fishing small lakes and impoundments which are the perfect habitat for both the smallmouth and largemouth bass. When you get further north, especially around the Great Lakes, the water becomes cooler and more suitable for the trout family. Regardless, the Great Lakes area has some excellent bass fishing potential that goes untouched.

This spring, give yourself a change of pace and try your luck at bass fishing. With a little PR we may just move them out of the backseat and into the front, where they'll share the limelight with trout, perch and walleyes...

I remember a trip to the Charity Islands a few years back. We stopped outside Little Charity to do some perch fishing. A boat was anchored nearby and we struck up a conversation with the fishermen. Turned out they were from Sandusky, OH, and had stumbled on the smallmouth population that hangs out in the island area. The next year, instead of spending a week in Canada fishing for pike and walleyes, they trailed their boat to the shores of Saginaw Bay and have been spending their fishing vacations here ever since.

"Don't tell anyone," they kidded as we left, "we like the fact there's no competition."

Most of the rivers and cuts leading into the Bay are lousy with bass. Although they may not rank with perch or walleyes as far as eating is concerned, they more than make up for it with their fighting ability. And their aggressive to the lure also. Most any type of surface bait will take them during the spawning season, and a night-crawler, either real or imitation, drives them wild during the remaining portion of the season. Because they range all over the Bay, you can fish them out of a boat, off a bank, or by wading.

If it's smallmouths you seek, your best bet is at the Charity Islands, or off the tip of the Thumb. The largemouths are found almost everywhere.

This spring, give yourself a change of pace and try your luck at bass fishing. With a little PR we may just move them out of the backseat and into the front, where they'll share the limelight with trout, perch and walleyes...
