Giving 'Forethought' to your funeral plans

In a world where the ol' saying goes, "the only things that are sure are death and taxes," the business of pre-arranging and pre-funding funerals is finding its own marketing niche.

In the Thumb Area, several local funeral homes offer "Forethought Funeral Planning," a way for residents to arrange and pay for in advance, complete funeral services.

The services can then be funded through life insurance policies specially designed by Forethought Life Insurance Company, a subsidiary of Fortune 500, Hillenbrand Industries.

WHAT IT'S WORTH: The value of the policy purchased increases to compensate for inflation, according to Forethought.

"Funeral planning is a rapidly growing trend in the funeral industry," explains Fred Rockwood, president of The Forethought Group, Batesville, Ind.

Local funeral directors agree, saying that Forethought has provided people with a whole new way of looking at death and funerals, giving people some sense of control BEFOREHAND, rather than waiting until the "inevitable" happens.

"It's definitely a growing market," explains Scott Meyersieck of Shetler-Bussema Funeral Home of Pigeon, one local Forethought counselor, who has been selling the policies since completing training at Michigan State University to obtain a state license to sell insurance.

USE RISING: In 1987, more than 700,000 persons or families pre-arranged and pre-funded funerals at an average cost of $2,750 each. Sales of pre-arranged funerals, now averaging about $3,000, are expected to reach one million by 1990, according to reports given by the Forethought Group.

Reports from 1988 show that over 900,000 funerals were pre-planned last year, growing from about 22,000 pre-planned funerals in 1960.

And with the aging U.S. population, local funeral directors see nothing but more growth ahead in a business which a few years ago, most people didn't want to think about, much less plan for.

HOW IT WORKS: When families or persons desire a pre-arranged funeral, they meet with the funeral director to plan every detail of the service from caskets to music, then take out a life insurance policy to cover the quoted price.

"The price is then locked in," according to Arnie Weisberg, director of marketing for Forethought. "If someone 45 years old takes out the funeral insurance and they don't need it for 35 years, it would never cost them more than the price of the funeral at the time the policy was issued."

Presently, approximately 4,000 funeral homes nationwide now sell Forethought policies. Its biggest competitor is the Guardian Plan of Service Corp. International, which unlike Forethought, uses a sales force to sell its policies. Forethought is sold only through funeral homes, mentions Weisberg.

Clearly, advanced funeral planning is a market whose time has come — for those who don't know when THEIR time will come...

According to Thiel, many envelopes have been returned which insufficient postage affixed. "Have your envelope weighed," he advises, "so you don't waste your time in having to re-send a package."

Understand joint ownership before you enter it

ARTICLE 5

Securities can be owned individually or jointly with another person or persons. If you're a joint owner, how the security is registered can make a lot of difference in your estate and your taxes.

There are two types of joint accounts and it's important to understand the differences between them.

The first type is joint tenancy with rights of survivorship. The other is tenancy in common. It's your option, except in states that prohibit rights of survivorship, to choose how your joint ownership is registered.

JOINT TENANCY WITH RIGHTS OF SURVIVORSHIP

This is the most common of the two ownerships. It appears on your account and certificates with the full name of all owners followed by the abbreviation JT/WROS or sometimes JT TEN.

As the name implies, upon the death of one of the joint tenants, that person's entire interest in the account passes to the survivor or survivors who are registered as joint owners. The estate of the deceased has no interest in the account.

As you see, it's important that you fully understand the legal consequences to your heirs and your estate before entering into such an ownership.

A similar type of joint tenancy is tenants of entirety. This is basically the same as joint tenants with rights of survivorship except it exists only between spouses.

TENANCY IN COMMON
This designation appears on your account and certificates with the names of all owners followed by the abbreviation TEN COMM. Certificates that do not bear a tenancy clause are usually assumed to be tenancy in common. Each registered tenant has a fractional interest in the account. In the event of death of one tenant, the deceased's interest in the account passes to the estate. It does not pass directly to the surviving joint tenant or tenants.

Joint accounts can be created for any two or more persons. Although some brokerage firms may accept five or more names on one account, the rules of the Stock Transfer Association prohibit registration of a security in more than three names. If an account with several joint tenants is important to your registration, you should clarify it before opening an account.

In certain states, known as community property states, the law does not immediately recognize the joint tenancy with rights of survivorship holding. There could be situations where special joint tenancy agreements may apply, but it's advisable not to assume this or act on the advice of anyone other than a competent attorney.

THE CHOICE YOU make on joint ownership of securities could have significant tax or estate implications. If there's any question as to how either joint ownership will affect your heirs, estate or tax liability, a visit to your attorney or tax advisor could prove to be the most profitable part of the investment.

GET CLEAN AND COMFORTABLE WITH FAB POWDER AND LIQUID LAUNDRY DETERGENT

Every piece of clothing is made of individual fabric layers. These fabric layers have different abilities to redistribute surface moisture, like sweat. Redistribution of moisture affects how comfortable clothes feel. Fabrics which enhance the movement of moisture away from the skin are the most comfortable. Using rinse added fabric softener or dryer sheets on clothes can make them less comfortable because most softeners apply a layer of special ingredients to make clothes soft. In turn, the surface of the clothing gets blocked over time and moisture cannot be absorbed and redistributed. This can result in clothes feeling cold and clammy because they can't absorb perspiration, especially during vigorous exercise.

Fab Powder and Fab Liquid detergent promote the redistribution of moisture to help make you feel more comfortable. In fact, in a recent test where consumers exercised in various clothes washed in Fab versus identical clothes washed in the leading laundry detergent plus the leading fabric softener, the clothes washed in Fab were judged to be more comfortable.

Fab laundry detergent has always had a powerful cleaning formula, but the added benefit of maintaining your fabrics' ability to move moisture away from the skin will let you keep your family's clothes clean and comfortable.

FAITH REMINDS US THAT WEALTH ONLY RAISES OUR TAXES

Since money was invented by Those folks of long ago, We've often seemed to magnify The need for earning "dough." It's handy to a great extent To cure financial ills, As well as for the food and rent, And paying doctor bills. Yet some of us will break our backs To seek excessive wealth, Which only brings a higher tax And undermines our health. It's time we let our faith explain The best of life's reward: That we receive our greatest gain By trusting in the Lord.

When we have provided against cold, hunger and thirst, all the rest is but vanity and excess. — Seneca

Lawn Seeding Time!

We have recently expanded our services and are offering an alternative to the conventional way of seeding.

Lawn Hydro-Seeding

Hydro-seeding combines grass seed, mulch, fertilizers and water and is sprayed on the soil surface. Because of the water holding capacity of the mulch, the seed germinates quickly and produces a lush lawn in a short period of time.

Pigeon Conservation Club buys land for pheasants

A new page is being written in the long history of Pheasants in Michigan, as different approaches are being used by Department of Natural Resources officials to bring the gaudy birds back to Michigan for full sporting strength.

A release of 400 Sichuan Pheasants was made Thursday in the Owendale-Gagetown area, as a followup of a 1986 release. Since the earlier release, hunting has been banned east of M-25 to protect the 1986 planting.

SICHUAN PHEASANTS are considered more adaptable to today's farmland than the more familiar Ringnecks. This shows Glenn Belyea, DNR, biologist, at the 1986 Sichuan/Ringneck release.

grass will be grown inside the pen for food and there will be rows of evergreens for shelter and protection.

Nylon netting will cover the top of the pen to prevent escape of birds.

A similar program has been underway as a pilot project by Jackson County Pheasants Forever. Pigeon Club officials will be offered information and support from the DNR and the Jackson group if they need it, Squibb said.

PROBLEMS AROUND FOR PHEASANTS

Squibb said DNR hatcheries will increase their capacity greatly in coming years at Mason Game Farm, Rose Lake and Danville Experiment Stations.

"We hope to produce 60,000 chicks annually within a few years", Squibb explained, "to be raised by organized groups (such as Pigeons) and by individuals."

He expressed doubt that enough volunteers could be involved to raise that many adult birds from 6-week-old Pheasants, although the DNR is getting good cooperation from groups such as Pigeons and Jackson's.

DNR grants will be available to organizations to develop rearing pens. DNR biologists are identifying more than 100 sites on marginal farm land where the Pheasants could be released.

"There are many complicated problems involved", Squibb explained, "such as ice storms, which can raise havoc when hundreds of birds are confined in a small area". In another case, a mink got into a pen of Pheasants, killing birds by the dozens.

"We don't know much of what happened to the 1986 releases around Owendale and Gagetown", Squibb explained, "because the birds were not hunted".

With the 400 birds released last Thursday, there may be open hunting in the area this fall, with a DNR station nearby so birds that are killed can be inspected to see just what these new releases contributed to the genetic pool.

SICHUANS MORE ADAPTABLE

Mortality of released birds is expected to be lower when Sichuan birds are raised, because they are more adaptable to today's farmlands.

The Chinese Ringnecks, long the standby of Thumb and Michigan hunters, were pasture and fence-row nesters. Today there are few pastures or fence-rows. Ringnecks spent their lives in farm fields and grain plantings, but modern farming practices expose such birds to constant danger of predators.

Sichuans, on the other hand, are more adaptable, moving easily into brushy areas and woods, even roosting in trees. They are better at hiding and can exist on food they forage in brushy areas and river banks, so they don't have to return to farm fields for grain.

NEW TACTICS WITH NEW RELEASES

Although it hasn't been decided firmly as yet, there may be an open season, or some hunting, this fall in the presently-closed areas, so that some Sichuans crosses may be harvested and examined.

This is to whoever stole my mother's wreath off the cemetery plot at the New Bay Port Cemetery: I would like it back. My sister made that in love and remembrance of our mother. This is not the first time this has happened.

A cemetery is a sacred place where people put things for their loved ones, in remembrance of that person. People who steal from a cemetery are cruel and have no respect for the dead. I would like it back. D.B., Bad Axe.

Mr. and Mrs. John Trow-

In response to the Common Ground remarks in last week's paper: Common Ground does not and never has promoted abstinence from drinking. Instead, the program works on educating people on the legal, physiological and psychological aspects of alcohol and drugs. The program recommends that a legal-age adult chooses to drink or to take a prescribed drug or medication, that if they should, it be done in moderation.

It is unfortunate that a short-sighted individual chooses to take a personal slap at a professional group of individuals such as the educators. By the way, it is not these people who choose to stay around here and indulge in legal activities that I would like to see go out of town. I am also disappointed once again, in seeing that this so-called tabloid chooses to print such articles I thought the format of "Sound Off" had been changed to stop these kind of blatant comments.

Let's get a grip. This certainly was far from a compliment. Thank you.

I see Sebewaing's cops finally have police lights on their car. Now our new Caseville car doesn't. This isn't right.

(That new car's lights haven't arrived yet, Caseville Police report, and when the decals and lights are here, they'll be put on.)

Politicians raising their salaries are wrong. These should not be lifetime jobs, but only for one or two terms. The money shouldn't be that good, because it's supposed to only be a short time.

Orban also visited Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gaeth and other area relatives. On Saturday they attended the wedding of David Elftman and Janis Buerker at Cross Lutheran Church and the reception at Sherwood on the Hill, Gagetown.

REASONS FOR EMBALMING

Embalming allows survivors the time to make unhurried decisions regarding funeral arrangements and final disposition of the body. It also permits relatives to come from distant places to be present for the period of the funeral.

If the body is to be present for the funeral, including the visitation or wake and the funeral service, it should be embalmed. If not, sanitation and appearance problems might arise. The body is subject to quick decomposition unless properly cared for immediately. Simply cleansing, disinfecting and refrigerating the body without embalming may or may not avoid serious problems.

Factors which must be considered in the care and shelter of the body are: the nature and place of the death; the outside or room temperature where death occurred; the length of time between death and removal of the body; and, the length of time before disposition of the body.

The John C. Campbell Folk School was begun in 1925 as a blending of Danish education and Appalachian crafts. The school teaches not just how to make a living, but the art of living, too. The school exists as a fine example of rural life lived to its fullest.

Next time you're heading down Interstate 75 with Florida in mind, consider taking the time to spend an afternoon visiting the John C. Campbell Folk School. While it's off the path of a journey to Florida, the Folk School's commitment to the art of living and loveliness in life will reward your journey.

lage because of revenue produced by selling the water to township residents. DDA NAMED: 12 Caseville business people and property owners were appointed to the new Downtown Development Authority.

Named to four-year terms are Eugene Poirier, James Stahl and Marie Nicholl. Serving three-year terms are Lwell Dufty, William Weitzel and Gerald Strozski.

John Parr, Maxine Kauffold and Charles Mordoff will serve two-year terms, while Bob Jones, Jack Breznau and Joseph Maceri have one-year terms.

The DDA has been established to improve the downtown area, with early goals including expansion of off-street parking. Forming a DDA gives the village a chance at grants from the state Department of Commerce and other sources.

WATER WORK: Caseville residents should expect some water discoloration as DPW workers flush hydrants this week. Supt. Robert Peter says crews will be flushing hydrants Tuesday.

Year's first fresh crop harvest is underway!

EAST LANSING -- Michigan's fresh season is already underway with harvesting of the first crop of the year—maple syrup.

Actually, maple sap is harvested, and that is evaporated down to an amber, sweet, flavorful maple syrup. Last summer's drought, which stressed many maple trees, means less sap than last year. Many trees actually didn't survive the summer.

That means higher prices for syrup, as it takes about 45 gallons of sap to produce one gallon of syrup.

ASPARAGUS IS NEXT... Michigan asparagus is almost ready to sprout. All that's needed is some sustained warm weather. The crop will begin in late April and continue through June.

Asparagus acreage is increasing gradually in Michigan as consumers learn to appreciate its unique flavor and low-calorie content.

Prices have increased and quality has decreased for selected Florida-grown vegetables. Fresh tomatoes, green beans, sweet corn, cucum-

NEW LONDON DAIRY OWNER

One of the largest locally-owned dairies in Michigan has been sold, but the new owners say the business will continue serving the Thumb Area as it has for the past 53 years.

London's Farm Dairy, Inc., of Port Huron has been sold to Finevest Partnership of Connecticut, after employee shareholders voted 169-5 to approve the sale. No purchase price was disclosed.

London's has milk and ice cream-making plants in Burton and Port Huron, employing 187 persons. It serves 1100 stores in the eastern half of Michigan, after being founded by brothers Glen and Clyde London and cousin Dewey Blizard of Port Huron in 1936.

REFUNDS TO TEC MEMBERS

More than 950 people attending the 52nd annual meeting of Thumb Electric Cooperative Friday learned TEC members will each receive nearly 8.8 cents per dollar invested last year, payable to patronage capital accounts.

Three directors were re-elected, and TEC members were told of retirement of $110,000 in patronage capital, about the average amount retired annually. Re-elected were Michael Laceski of Huron County, Louis Wenzlaff of Tuscola and Kim Nunn of Sanilac.

Treasurer Laceski noted that 1988 operating revenues were $8.79 million and expenses were $8.37 million, resulting in an operating margin of $419,588. The cooperative also earned $98,344 in short-term investments.

Major 1989 projects include completion of the Owendale Substation in Huron County in May and the Sigel Substation in Huron, plus two others in Sanilac, later in the year. Total system improvements will be about $1 million this year.

TEC General Manager Michael Krause reported the co-op maintained a strong financial position due to increased kilowatt hour sales, noting average rates increased 5.6%, due to rising wholesale power costs. Energy sales increased 4.4% in 1988, due to the extremely hot weather, and two new industrial customers are expected to require energy.

Energy conservation is alive and well in TEC, as members purchased nearly 400 high-efficiency electric water heaters which require no outlay of pocket money, during the past two years. And, leaders said, TEC is working to supply high-efficiency geothermal heat pumps to members.

Rep. Dick Allen (R-Caro) and Michigan Electric Co-op General Manager Ray Kuhl addressed the meeting. Following the annual meeting, board members re-elected Allan Shaw as president, Martin Damm vice president, Roger Vollmar secretary and Laceski treasurer.

HURON'S MEMORIAL PARADE IN SEBEWAING THIS YEAR

This year's Huron County Veterans' Parade is planned in Sebewaing on Memorial Day, Monday, May 29, after Sebewaing Councilmen voted to permit use of the Village Park for a program after the parade's recent action.
