"FORE!" — Special summer thoughts by Mavis Pechette

Las Vegas vacation was a lucky one...

Last Fall when I arrived in Florida, a friend asked me if I would go to Las Vegas with her in the summer.

A lot of questions flashed through my mind. Why leave Caseville in the summer? Why go to Vegas in the summer? Why go to Vegas again? Where will I get the money for such a trip?

Those questions all got answered. I could go again because I had been there once (for two days) and she had not. She thought I knew all about the place. Summer would be hot wherever we would be. She hadn't been to Caseville so she didn't know how nice it is. And as for the money — I could save my winnings from golf, bridge, lotteries and bingo and anything else that came my way. My friend even helped out with that. She brought me a gallon jug to put the winnings in!

She was coming to Michigan to visit family, so we decided to go from here. Arrangements were made for a July trip.

We knew we were going to have a good time before we got off the plane. The tour company rep conducted a raffle, collecting a dollar bill on which participants had written their seat number. She shook the bag and shook it again and again. A passenger at the front of the plane drew out one dollar bill. The rep moved down the aisle and had another person draw.

When she was ready to announce the winners she said, "This has never happened before—the lucky seats are 19E and 19F." She asked if that were husband and wife and we quickly shouted "friends." We each added $75 to our Vegas money before we got there. What a great start!

There is so much to see and do in Las Vegas. We stayed at the Stardust Hotel with rooms in the new tower section. Our only complaint was about a leaky toilet and when we called maintenance, a man was there and had that fixed within five minutes. Our room was on the top floor (32nd story) with a grand view of city lights on the Strip.

In the casinos we tried slot machines of various sizes and denominations. Keno, horse racing and baccarat. (With various degrees of luck, I might add) we won by betting on the American League to win the All-Star Game. I even have a bet ticket on the Tigers to win the World Series. It's tucked safely away, just in case...

Not all our time was spent in the casino. We took in a Country-Western show that could go to Nashville anytime.

A bus tour took us to see Hoover Dam. The stop at the Visitor's Center provided us a complimentary soft drink and a movie on the construction of the Dam. It certainly is an engineering marvel and deserves to be called "The Eighth Wonder of the World." When we arrived at the Dam I decided the tour to the bottom wasn't for me. Knowing that I need a golf cart to get around a course, I figured those steps weren't meant for these legs. We viewed the Dam from above and by models in the Exhibit Building. What an interesting concept.

Our tour also took us to the Ethel M Chocolate factory. Free samples were delicious but the product was a bit pricey to buy. This is the same company that gave us M&M's that melt in your mouth, not in your hand.

That had to come from Las Vegas, where the temperature was above 102° all week. When we walked in the downtown area the sidewalks were so hot the bottom of my feet felt burned right through the soles of my shoes! I made sure I put on socks the next time we went out on the sidewalk. One day it cooled to 100° but the wind increased so it still seemed like 106 or more.

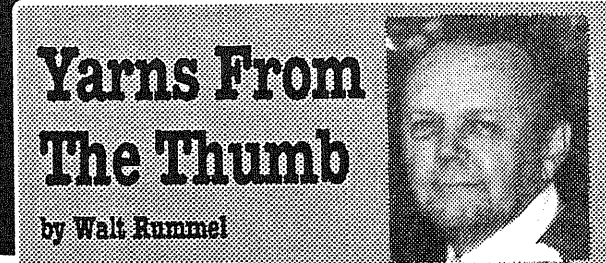

We saw the talking statues at Caesar's Palace and the volcano erupting at the Mirage. We went back to the Mirage to spend an afternoon with the white tigers and the dolphins who live there. The splash the dolphins made served as a coolant. Everyone wanted to be close to pool's edge when they leaped and fell back into the water!

When we returned to Michigan, my friend came home with me for a few days. When she saw where I live, she knew why I was reluctant to leave Caseville in the summertime. She was really taken with the beauty of the lake, woods and farms. She thinks the Pinnebog Area is a bit countrified for her, but said now she knows why I'm always anxious to get home when Spring arrives in Florida.

And she's right — whether from Florida or a Vegas vacation, it's always good to get back and out on the local links. FORE!

Wie die years passen!

Ich war 5 Jahre alt da meine liebe Mutter Ihr 25th Geburtstag ge-celebrated hat. Die Familie und Friends gaben Sie eine Party und during die Conversation sagte eine Frau zu die Mutter, "Denk einmal, du bist jetzt eine Quarter-Century alt."

Als ein kleiner 5-Year-Old hoerte Ich den Remark und da dachte Ich, "Meine Mutter! Eine Quarter-Century alt! Ich weiss das Ich Sie nicht mehr lang mit mir haben werde, und dann bin Ich ein Orphan."

So hab Ich gebreuell und gebreuell das meine Mutter eine Quarter-Century alt ist, und Sie wird nicht mehr sehr lang leben.

Die Jahre sind verfliegen, und in 1991 starb Sie, auf den Tag da Sie 93 wurde!

Die Jahre sind evaporated, und es reminds mir von ein altes Gebet das Vater Abends ge-read hatte: "Wie ein Pfeil wird abgeschossen, so geschwind verfließen unsere Jahre..."

So, warum erzaele Ich diese Woche about solche Happenings?

Die Antwort ist simple: Weil am Sonntag, den 25 Juli, wurde mein aeltester Sohn, Johann, eine halbe-Century alt! Denk einmal! Von meine Mutter's Quarter-Century Alter, zu meinen Sohn's Half-Century Alter! Das amounts zu beinah 70 Jahre, und das ist beinah Three-Quarter-Century!

The greater one...

"Be strong and of good courage. Do not be afraid or dismayed... there is one greater with us than with him." 2 Chronicles 32:7

In Old Testament times, as well as today, there were enemies confronting the people of God. Then they were mighty warriors, who tried to enslave the Lord's people.

While King Hezekiah ruled over Judah, the enemy was Sennacherib, the Assyrian king. He terrified the Judahites with threats and by parading his vast armies before them.

Finally Hezekiah and the prophet Isaiah turned to God, and prayed earnestly, and "the one greater with us" rescued the people and caused mighty Sennacherib to be defeated.

Today, too, there are "Sennacheribs" who oppose us and terrify us. Even now, the world is not free of militant enemies, even though Communism is defeated. We still have enemies—immorality, greed, family breakdown, injustice and many others—which attack our souls as well as our bodies.

But even now, we have "the greater one" who is with us, rather than with "the Sennacheribs."

When we humble ourselves before God, when we pray to Him for deliverance, He will hear us.

Through His power, we can vanquish because the "one greater" is with us, rather than with our enemies.

PRAYER: We trust you, God, to do what we cannot do. Amen.

Recollections Of By-Gone Days

by George Keim

(EDITOR'S NOTE: George Keim's daughter, Mary Mearns-Keim, is writing another column for her Dad, while visiting this summer from The Netherlands.)

to dress me because I couldn't even move my arm. I didn't just feel 50, I felt awful!

When I looked out of the window, I saw two flags flying. One was the American flag and the other was the Dutch flag. I went outside to see a plus-size Sarah sitting at a table with a quilt on it.

There was a pair of wooden shoes and a baseball mitt and a ball. There was also an American mailbox. In great big letters on signs next to the road was the announcement that I had become Sarah.

It was a very, very special day and I really enjoyed it. I couldn't serve the guests coffee or tea or cake because of my sore shoulder, so it got done by others.

I was literally "taking it easy" when I reached the big Five-0!

I can only hope and pray that I will be as healthy as some of the fine people who are still with us in this community. Many are gone, and some dear people don't have their right minds anymore.

We really don't know how we will get old. It isn't in our hands. I spoke to a former neighbor and she will be 93. I wonder if I'll still be able to come back home when I reach that age. "O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good; because his mercy endureth forever."

At the end of May, "I saw Sarah."

I was rather afraid of what my friends and family were going to do because of all the tricks I myself have played.

The birthday started out with an extremely sore right shoulder. I had an acute case of bursitis. My husband had

by Kate Pickering

DOMINATION

Scientists are fascinated by primates. There's been no shortage of scholarly volunteers to go into the jungle and bring us documentaries on gorilla, chimp, baboon and orangutan life.

But no doubt what fascinates us most about these creatures is what we learn about ourselves when we watch them... they are so like us!

But as there are few animals less physically like man than the horse, you won't likely see any Jane Goodall-types spending a lot of time out in the pasture or on the open plains meticulously studying the "sociology" of the horse.

Oh, sure, there have been a myriad of top-notch documentaries on the plight of the wild horse now that civilization is encroaching on his roaming room, and there are books galore on how to breed, raise and train his domesticated counterparts... but these books and documentaries seldom delve into the complex psyche of the horse itself.

After all, the horse seems a relatively uncomplicated creature, right? Americans have long been in love with the romantic image of the elusive, billowy-maned stallion, always on guard, ready to spirit his mares and foals away from danger at a moment's notice. He is a beloved and important symbol of our freedom and of the heritage of the American west... what else do we need to know?

But believe me... there is a lot of sociological "nitpicking" that goes on anywhere two or more horses gather, and the incredible conflicts that erupt within the complex hierarchy of "horse society" could make fodder for documentaries unending! In a less wordy nutshell: horses develop great loves and cling to incredible grudges all within their own tiny communities. And when a new horse is introduced to the mix, that entire structure goes "jenga," and the pecking-order-game begins anew.

Such a conflict rages unresolved in our own little pasture, as our four "modified" males struggle to create a sociological structure absent of testosterone, mares, foals and freedom - the very elements their instincts tell them they need.

Many of us have seen the Disney-style movie scene of the beautiful young stallion who challenges the crusty old patriarch to fight to the death for command of the handsome band of mares. Only... in the wild, nature knows best, and be it the attractive newcomer or stoic old stallion who dies, it is - genetically - all for the best.

In our pasture, however, the confusion of domestication and gelding, plus human intervention, keeps the conflict raging. My sister's handsome young horse, and my virile but aging Tex, cannot seem to come to terms with one another's masculinity (modified or not) and while there is only one way they will ever "work it out" I am not about to let them duel to the death!

Each horse's obsessive need to claim dominance can be witnessed every morning when they are turned out to pasture. Over then fence there is the sniffling and snorting, the aggressive overtures, squeals of hatred, and consequent horsey "fisticuffs." There is the unresolvable "I'm stronger so I'm better" stance of Tex pitted against the "I'm younger so I'm better" attitude of the new horse.

It makes me think that perhaps horses are actually more like humans than primates are afterall! Perhaps the clue we should take from the gorillas is how to behave like ladies and gentleman, and that which we can learn from the horse is how sad and pointless are hatred, violence and the need to dominate.

Voyageurs visit Thumb

Dark clouds billowed on the western horizon of Saginaw Bay a couple of Sundays ago as I waited patiently for some sight of a large canoe making its way from Sunset Bay Marina to the State Docks at Bay Port.

Finally, just as the clouds began to spit their light drizzle, the craft rounded a point of land and dove into view.

It was a dramatic scene, slightly out of place in the 20th-century surroundings, and yet, looking at home against the island backdrop and rough shoreline.

The sleek craft knifed through the water effortlessly, driven by the paddles of costumed voyageurs who bent to the cadence of their "Gouvernail" or steersman, who stood proudly in the rear of the craft framed against the fluttering blue banner.

To the uninformed, the canoe may have looked as if it were made from birch bark — its olive skin outlined with seams made waterproof by the application of black pitch.

But in reality, the canoe was made of fiberglass and was manned by advertising managers, pastors, students, professors, businessmen, truck drivers and attorneys.

The boat and its crew were on the second leg of its major voyage from Saginaw to Port Huron, as part of an annual event conducted by the Historical Society of Saginaw County.

The "Saginaw Voyageurs" is a living history re-enactment group which is part of the Historical Society of Saginaw County.

The group has traveled over 1,600 miles since its inception in 1986, retracing the voyages of the early fur traders of the Great Lakes.

Their purpose, I was told, is to better understand the historic Great Lakes Fur Trade, the life of the Voyageurs — and the role Saginaw played as the fur trade center for lower Michigan.

As soon as the canoe and its occupants hit the shore, the clouds opened up and it was a mad dash to secure their gear and get it under cover.

The canoe was carried to dry land, overturned and a large canvas lean-to was stretched over one side to form a shelter for the men's sleeping quarters. Another tent was set up nearby to store equipment and act as cooking quarters if needed.

Upon inspecting the canoe and talking with some of the participants, I found that the craft was brand new.

Constructed by Ralph Fresse of the Chicagoland Canoe Base and purchased by the group for $15,000, the canoe is an exact replica of the Montreal canoe, or "Canot du Maitre," the Mack Truck of the fur trade.

It is 34 feet long, five feet wide and weighs just over 600 pounds. Although the canoe was not loaded with furs, its counterparts, built in the 1700's, could haul up to six tons of cargo.

On this particular journey, the canoe and its crew left Saginaw on July 16 and stayed at the Trombley House in Bay City that night. The next day took them to Sunset Bay Marina north of Wisner — and on Sunday evening they had made it to Bay Port.

Their itinerary for the remainder of the week included stops at Port Crescent State Park, Harbor Beach, Port Sanilac, Lakeport State Park and finally their destination of Port Huron.

The 17-man crew of the Port Huron Brigade (four of them would not complete the entire trip) would take eight days to complete their journey.

Stopovers, like the one in Bay Port, would rest the crew from the toil of paddling 60 strokes per minute for about 45 minute intervals. Rest breaks of 15 minutes each hour also help to keep the muscles from cramping.

Two escort trucks followed the canoe from shore. They not only carried sleeping and eating gear, but also provide emergency assistance if needed.

Quite a few souls braved the rains at Bay Port to get a glimpse of and chat for a few moments with the crew. Some even hinted that they would like to be a part of such an organization.

But then, why not just form their own? The Thumb Area is loaded with historical significance. Just look around a little to find it...

Researchers have discovered that during periods of low and high tides animals seem to lose much of their natural caution. These periods are referred to as Major Periods and last approximately an hour.

Later, it was determined that about midway between the Major Periods there was frequently an intermediate period of somewhat shorter duration, which are referred to as Minor Periods. The inclination of the moon's orbit to the Equator also affects Solunar Periods and, in extreme cases, there will be only one Major or Minor Period for the date.

The Newsweekly's Solunar/Lunar Times are precisely calculated by computers each week for the eastern Saginaw Bay — running from Unionville to Port Austin. The charts provide fishermen and hunters with a valuable tool to improve their chances for success. The most intense activity seems to occur about 10-15 minutes on either side of the time calculated on the charts below. The Solunar/Lunar tables can't guarantee a successful fishing or hunting trip, but can be used as a valuable tool to improve your odds when you hunt or fish.

Saginaw Voyageurs visit Bay Port, Caseville

By AMY HEIDEN

Over 200 year ago, French-Canadian fur traders canoed from Montreal throughout the Great Lakes region, trading with the Indians scattered through the area.

They used a birch-bark canoe and traveled through the region, trading iron and cloth for furs.

Anyone gazing out over Saginaw Bay last week might have been transported back in time by seeing a similar canoe slicing through the waters, manned by 13 members of the Saginaw Voyageurs.

The group is a living history re-enactment group associated with the Saginaw Historical Society. They

B-K Lutheran registration day is Aug. 3

Bach-Kilmanagh Lutheran School will accept student registrations for the 1993-94 school year on Tuesday, Aug. 3, from 11 a.m. - 2 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m.

Bach-Kilmanagh is a Christian school teaching moral living based on response to God's love of sinful mankind, notes Principal Kenneth Hass.

The school provides Christ-centered education for pre-school through eighth grade, and accepts children of any race or religion.

Students new to the school will need to provide a birth certificate and immunization information to enroll. You may wish to bring your child to meet his/her new teacher, the school invites.

All pre-school students should be at least four years old by Dec. 1, 1993. There is a fee for attending.

First day of school will be Monday, Aug. 30, beginning with a chapel service at 9 a.m.

"Parents, relatives and friends are invited to come praise our Lord for His continued blessings on the school," Hass says. For details, call 883-2279.

made stops in Sebawaing, Bay Port, Caseville, Sleeper State Park, Port Crescent State Park and Harbor Beach on their way from Saginaw to Port Huron, retracing the voyages of the early fur traders.

Elkton native Terry Taylor, one of the participants, said the group's members all have a sense of adventure and a love of history.

"We meet some real hospitable people along the way, plus we see things along the way that most people will never get a chance to," Taylor said. "The trip is educational for us and for the people we meet."

The group is using a 34-ft. 600 lb. fiberglass replica of the Indians' birch-bark Montreal canoe. The 11-16 man crew paddles 60 strokes a minute, paddling for 50 minute stretches with a 10 minute break.

The Indians' original canoe were made from cedar with a birch bark skin attached with the white bark on the inside and the olive colored part showing on the outside.

The "Montreal" canoe was considered the semi-truck of the Great Lakes, able to haul between four and six tons of cargo.

U-ville still seeks water help

By MARY DRIER

A new water system in Unionville remains only a pipe dream while Village Council members try to comply with state guidelines.

During Council's July 19 meeting, Don Wolf of Spicer Engineering outlined the schedule needed to meet state health department recommendations for future water system improvements.

The village's recent attempt to obtain a $500,000 block grant to fund construction of a new water system was denied, leaving officials in a potentially dangerous dilemma.

"He (Wolf) advised us to continue to contact loan and grant institutions on a regular basis to show that we are serious in getting the project done," said Clerk Harvey Niedrich.

Council members advised Wolf to submit a letter of intent for the plan, showing Unionville is serious about wanting to construct the project when grant or loan money is available.

The state would like the village to replace its antiquated system and install a lower system, replace one-inch mains with bigger mains and loop all of the dead-end mains, said Niedrich.

He notes the state isn't forcing Unionville to comply at this point, but the regulations in place must be complied with in the future. Officials sent a compliance plan to the state this month, and hope the state agrees that seeking funding is sufficient proof of Unionville's commitment to the project when money becomes available.

The village has a pressurize system with two horizontal 30,000 gallon tanks that were built in the 1950s, instead of a water tower.

Until a new water system is in place, the community could face some dangerous situations, because using water to fight a fire severely drops water pressure in the whole system.

In other business, Council approved amending last month's action by increasing the size of the recreation park cement slab to 40 by 120 feet.

Sebewaing oks '92-'93 audit

After presentation of Sebewaing Village's 1992-93 audit report by Nietzke & Faupel, CPAs, last Monday evening, Council members voted to accept the report as presented.

Two building permits were granted, to Glen Vliet for a garage and to Patrice Gettel for a storage shed and kennel. Committee reports included the news that sealcoating has been scheduled and that Seventh Street, behind Acme Roll Forming, will be widened to accommodate larger trucks.

The summer recreation program was given good reports, for the number of participants, the adult volunteers and the scope of programs, which include golf, theatrical, bluebird houses and other subjects.

Next Council meeting will be 7:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 2.

More recycling for Tuscola?

Efforts are underway to greatly expand recycling efforts in Tuscola County, if a state grant application is successful.

The Village of Caro and Tuscola Commissioners are seeking a $100,000 grant from the state DNR, to go for Materials Recovery Facilities with source-separated satellite centers throughout the county and transferred to a central site.

"This project will serve Tuscola County by placing collection trailers at municipalities, for residents to drop off recyclables," said Sharon Mika Tuscola Resource Recovery Educator. Plastic containers, newspapers, steel cans, aluminum and food container glass would be accepted at drop-off points and transferred to the central site, probably in Caro. Corrugated cardboard and office paper may also be accepted at the main facility.

"There are several grassroot recycling efforts underway in the county, but some of the workers there are getting burned out," said Susan Briggs, Multi-County Recycling Coordinator. Mika estimates less than 1% of Tuscola's solid waste is now being recycled.

Application deadline is Friday, Aug. 6. Officials should know by the end of the year if they are successful. If they are, the grant money would arrive in the 1994-95 year.

TISD plan by September?

A state recommendation to end the year-long stalemate over a teachers' contract in the Tuscola Intermediate School District may come by September.

The TISD Board of Education and Tuscola Intermediate Education Association have until Tuesday, Aug. 17, to submit written briefs on their position to Fact-Finder Hearing Officer Gerald Grandier. He was appointed by the state Employment Relations Commission to collect data from both sides and recommend ways to reach a contract settlement.

In fact-finding, an outside person looks at the issues and makes a recommendation on how to reach an agreement. Grandier's decision is anticipated by the end of August.

The district's 80 teachers have been without a contract since Sept. 1, 1992. Eleven issues, mostly concerning wages or benefits, are blocking an agreement.

TISD teachers either work with 200 handicapped kids at Highland Pines, as itinerant staff providing education to school districts throughout the county, or providing vocational education to 800 students at the skill center.

Rumors sometimes get in the way of the truth

By AMY HEIDEN

Sometimes dry facts obscure hidden truths. Sometimes gossip and half-truths become, through the continual retelling of what some might consider the truth, the whole story.

Sometimes a small boy's actions become something sinister when the meaning of one single word is misunderstood. Such is the case with "Bobby" (not his real name), a nine-year old being adopted by David and Kathy Eichler.

On July 3, the Eichler's poultry operation northeast of Pigeon was nearly destroyed by a fire that ripped through two coops, destroying 22,000 laying chickens. Initial police reports pointed to arson and Bobby was linked to the fire.

But arson implies a malicious intent to set a fire, and he certainly didn't mean to start a fire, the Eichlers say.

Through two mistakes, the first compounded by the second, a family's life has been changed—but maybe enriched—by an accidental tragedy.

Bobby and his sister "Cindy" (also not her real name) came to the Eichlers after a year of living with a foster family and after six years of being shuffled from one foster home to another. Their lives had been filled with violence and emotional abuse by a mother who grew up abused herself, and her boyfriend.

Learning to trust adults since coming to his new home has been a major goal for Bobby, who's never had much stability in his short life.

"He's a loving child," David Eichler says. "He's been exposed to things that no little child should be exposed to. He's been exposed to people who use drugs and violence."

His mother was raised in much the same manner, according to what Kathy Eichler has been able to learn from files.

"She was parenting out of her own experiences," Kathy Eichler says.

The birth mother voluntarily terminated her parental rights, but not before promising her kids they'd be together. Not much of a way for children to learn trust.

The two children spent a year in a foster home, but received no counseling or therapy to help deal with their problems. So although they were well-fed, well-clothed and loved by their foster family, they still carried open emotional wounds—wounds now being healed by unconditional love, discipline, and family therapy.

Learning what unconditional love is all about helped Bobby handle his emotions after the fire, his parents say, and helped them learn the real truth about the cause of the fire.

Kathy Eichler explains what happened this way: "He had been gathering eggs with two sisters and a brother, and everybody had a section of the coop. He was the smallest, he was the last one out. Everybody can relate to those kinds of feelings, 'oh, poor me.'"

When he finished, his older brother was putting dead

Want to help the Eichlers?

The David Eichler Family is trying to salvage or reclaim as much fire-damaged material as possible, and they need your help.

People are invited to bring tools, wear hard-soled shoes and long pants and assist in the massive clean-up, this Tuesday through Friday, July 27-30, from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. at their farm on Gagetown Road, northeast of Pigeon.

Participation in this "Community Outreach" effort will be appreciated, organizers say.

chickens into the incinerator and needed a propane torch to light the incinerator. He asked Bobby to get it for him and as Bobby was on his way back with the torch, he passed a stack of cardboard flats used to package eggs.

Bobby has been diagnosed with Attention Deficit Disorder with Hyperactivity. People with the disorder have a tendency to act quickly on an impulse without thinking through their actions, and that's apparently what happened to Bobby as he passed a stack of flats and thought if those things burned, he and his family wouldn't have to gather eggs.

Kathy Eichler continues: "The propane torch had an automatic light on it. What he did not comprehend is how powerful a propane torch is and how quickly flats burn. In just a flicker, it was on fire and he tried to put it out and couldn't."

"Then, conditioning took over, you know, those bad behaviors that you learn. He's never learned to trust anybody and he knew he was in trouble and he didn't tell anyone. He took the torch and gave it to his brother, came back and tried to put it out again and it was bigger by this time and he didn't say a word. And then the end result is we've got a big mess out here."

Learning that misbehavior has consequences comes under the heading of discipline, so Bobby continues to gather eggs, only now under the supervision of a parent and without the pay the other children receive. He works about an hour a day, the same as the other children, the same as previous generations of Eichler children have done.

"Someone put a price of half a million (dollars) on the loss, so he's gathering half a million eggs," David Eichler says.

Of course there's always the possibility of parole for good behavior so it's unlikely that he'll serve the full sentence, the Eichlers say. But the point of the exercise is teaching Bobby that there is a price to be paid for mistakes, whether it's small one or a big one.

"It's not punishment, it's discipline," Kathy Eichler said. "And we are allowing him by his attitude and his behavior to earn extra cases of eggs. The whole idea is to work on a model of extinguishing negative behaviors. I believe in this kid so much."

"There's going to come a point that he's going to realize that 'hey I can earn extra cases if I'm really good.' And there's going to be a point, because we believe strongly that we are forgiven for our sins, where we can say he's grown and changed... and is forgiven, too."

Now, it's clean-up time on the farm...

By AMY HEIDEN

Dealing with the emotional fallout from a major fire is hard enough, but the Dave Eichler Family has also had to deal with the debris left behind after fire swept through two chicken coops in their poultry operations.

Over 22,000 birds perished in the July 3 fire, and both structures, including a shipping house, were completely leveled.

Now all that remains are burnt cages, the concrete foundations and charred timbers.

It's going to be quite a job to get it all cleaned up, but the hardest part of the job was finding out exactly how it should be cleaned, the Eichlers say.

Only a couple of days after the fire, they started making phone calls, trying to discover the proper disposal methods.

But the Health Department told them to call the Department of Natural Resources, and someone there said to call the Health Department.

After a few more calls, Kathy Eichler finally found a sympathetic ear in the Bay City District DNR office.

More phone calls followed, but still no one could tell them exactly what they Please turn to Page 26

Elkton's AutumnFest will feature carnival rides

By AMY HEIDEN
Sugar Festival and Farmers' Festival are over for another year, Bay Port's Fish Sandwich Days are coming up this week — and then it's Elkton AutumnFest time.

This year, Elkton Chamber of Commerce organizers have added Cook Amusements to the schedule, so kids of all ages can enjoy all kinds of rides.

Elkton's AutumnFest is scheduled for Friday through Monday, Sept. 3-6, with a full slate of activities. Many plans aren't finalized yet, but lots of the old favorites will be back, while other activities have grown.

The Senior King and Queen, and the Elkton Teen Queen will be crowned on Friday night and will be featured in the Grand Parade on Saturday.

The popular Historical Log Cabin will be open throughout the weekend, and the Thumb Two Cylinder Club and the Thumb Antique Tractor Club will display their tractors as well as demonstrating threshing and other machines.

The AutumnFest 3-on-3 Basketball Tournament proved to be such a big hit last year that it'll be back on the schedule, too.

Stammers and jammers should register their teams soon, according to organizer Dan McIntosh. Entry blanks are available now at Ron's Baseball Cards or The Thumb Blanket, Bad Axe; and The Newsweekly offices in Pigeon and Sebawaing.

Elkton United Methodist Women are once again serving up delicious pies at their pie social on Saturday and the Chamber of Commerce and the Elkton-Oliver Fire Department are joining forces to host their chicken barbeque after the parade.

Parade organizer Shirley Cunningham is still looking for more parade entries, to make the event one of the best ever. Floats, walkers, horses, cars — everyone is welcome, she says. For more information, call Cunningham at 375-2780. Grand Marshals for the parade this year are Mrs. and Mrs. Leonard Seley.

Also on Saturday, there's horseshoe tournament qualifying rounds, a candy drop, the lawn and garden tractor pull and the kids' pedal tractor pull.

Randy Haley and Bert Furness and other muzzle-loading enthusiasts are putting the finishing touches to the plans for the muzzle-loading encampment workshop and grudge match.

The Elkton Lioness Club is sponsoring bingo and all teens are invited to the Teen Dance at the Huron Youth Center.

The Thumb Area Antique Auto Club is sponsoring a 50's and 60's Cruise Night on Saturday night, with all kinds of classic cars parading through town.

Deejay Pete "The Cat" Flanders will spin oldies during the Sock Hop Saturday night for those wishing to take a trip down memory lane.

On Sunday, a community worship service and pancake breakfast is on the agenda, followed by the popular Classic Auto Show at Ackerman Park.

The muzzleloaders will square off for a fun shoot and team shoot and Ron Forster will demonstrate police and obedience dog training.

The Ninth Annual Robert Dubey Invitational Memorial Golf Tournament winds things down on Monday, along with the announcement of the winner of the Beautiful Baby Contest sponsored by the Elkton Lioness Club.

If the additional proposed millage rate is not approved, the school district's revenue for the 1993-1994 fiscal year will be 1.22 percent (1.22%) higher than the school district's revenue for the immediately preceding fiscal year.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the levy of an additional millage rate. Not more than ten (10) days after the public hearing, the Board of Education may approve all or any portion of the proposed additional millage rate.

The date and location that the Board of Education plans to take action on the resolution approving the additional proposed millage rate will be announced at the public hearing.

A legal battle is on the horizon for Unionville and Columbia Township because the governments placed property on tax rolls which had been tax-exempt for several years due to church or charitable status.

Unionville Village Council last week approved sharing legal expenses with Columbia Township needed to fight a tax status change appeal filed by attorney Duane Burgess on behalf of Ministry of the Word at Unionville.

Township and Village have received notice that church officials are appealing to the Michigan Tax Tribunal and to the State Tax Commission over Columbia Township's ending tax-exempt status on some of their property.

"Council members approved participating with the township and sharing equally in the cost of going before the Tax Tribunal," said Village Clerk Harvey Niedrich.

"Estimates are that it would cost between $1,500 to $3,000 for legal fees. There has been no appeal date set yet."

In March, Columbia Township Supervisor/Assessor Edward Spannagel confirmed he had placed several properties of Ministry of the Word back on the tax rolls. The Ministry owns 12 parcels of property in the village or township which had been tax-exempt for several years because of religious, charitable or educational status.

Spannagel designated that all but two parcels go back on the tax roll in March — the religious group's school, (located in the former Henry's Restaurant,) the former Armbruster building and its parking lot.

Ministry officials are appealing the assessment of the following properties: 3005 Bay Street, 3007 Bay, 3019 Bay, 3225 Bay, 3225 Phelps, 6475 Center and two with the address of 6430 Center.

If the decision is upheld to place the properties back on tax rolls, the properties would generate about $2,600 in county, township and school tax money, plus about $600 for the village. Revenue would not come until next year.

ELKTON SENIOR CITIZENS

Fifty-five members and guests were welcomed to the July 20 meeting of the Elkton Senior Citizens, when President Mike Renn called the meeting to order. Mary Matthews and Archie and Jean Hyttenen were welcomed back after long absences. Guests were members of the Hal Conkey Family, including daughters Jean and Carol and some other family members. Clayton Gemmill offered the table prayer before the potluck meal. The dessert table was centered with an anniversary cake in honor of the 67th Wedding Anniversary of Hal and Christine Conkey. Clayton and Ardis Gemmill were in charge of music. "America" was sung and the Pledge given. The birthdays of Marie Hoffman, Louise Schweitzer, Elizabeth Schelke and George Perry were saluted with "The Birthday Song." "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" was sung for the Conkeys. Cards were signed for Florence Southworth, Edna Mae MacDowell and Roy and Bessie Furness. Renn introduced Pete Tandy of New Hampshire, son-in-law of the Conkeys, who shared his Yankee humor. Marie Hoffman is to chair the July 27 program.

What's in your water?

Do you know what's in the water you are drinking... and do you care? A recent Environmental Protection Agency report says 819 public water systems in the U.S. pose lead risks, says Agatha Gokey of Unionville.

Nearby, Essexville water has a high level of lead, and Unionville has an antiquated system — yet its recent request for a water system grant was turned down. Gokey says "The Water Distiller" is the answer, for mineral-free and chemical-free water — free from all impurities. Pure Water, Inc., is the manufacturer.

It is endorsed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture as the only proven way of correcting drinking water pollution. For details, call Gokey at 674-2245.

AKRON PROGRESS: Workers from Speciality Industries Inc., Sunfield, are busy putting the finishing touches on new silos at the Akron branch of the Co-Operative Elevator Co. of Pigeon. Completion of the $1.5 million is expected in six weeks. "We are right on schedule and will be open and ready to go on Sept. 1," said Co-op President and CEO John Kohr. Construction of the four 112-foot tall silos, each with a capacity of approximately 50,000 bushels, was completed last month. Now, it is a matter of little details that will finish the project. "Workers are starting to construct the workhouse where the cleaning equipment goes, pouring bin bottoms and erecting legs," said Kohr. The elevator will handle wheat, dry beans, soybeans and dry corn. MARY DRIER PHOTO

Fire clean-up time

"We want to know exactly what we have to do under the law," Kathy Eichler says. "We know people do other things, but we want to be people of integrity. Our philosophy is, this is a Centennial Farm, it's been in the family for five generations. We'd like to see a few more generations on it and not have old things come back to haunt them."

After two weeks of living with the stench of the decaying chickens, plus the hordes of flies produced by the maggots feeding on the birds, in despair Kathy Eichler called Gov. John Engler's office.

Whether or not that call is the one that finally got the DNR's attention, a DNR officer showed up at Whipple Tree Farms with some answers.

They found they could bury the birds on the property if they were pulled out of the cages and covered with four feet of dirt, but by that time only bones were left.

The decision was finally made to crush all the cages and haul everything to a landfill. They've made arrangements to have Waste Management in Almont bring up several 30-cu. yd. rollaway containers and they'll be filled and hauled to a landfill near Carsonville. "They don't care about tonnage, they care about volume," Dave Eichler says.

That's why it's important that what can be salvaged gets pulled out of the debris, while everything else gets crushed as small as it can get. The concrete foundations will probably be crushed and used to make another driveway onto the farm.

Once the clean-up is complete, the family isn't sure about re-building.

"We've got options," Dave Eichler says. "The farm will look different. It has to look different. We'll wait and see what comes out of this. We're calling it the Phoenix Reclamation Project of Whipple Tree Farms."

"Something like this can blow us apart or bring us together. For the kids, we've been focusing on the future, for our own sanity, too."

WORTHY STUDY CLUB

The first meeting of the club year was held at the home of Janet Garety for a dessert luncheon on Wednesday. Co-hostess was Frances Beach. Roll call response was "How We Know We're Getting Old," answered by 11 members and one guest, Jeanne Draper. Frances Beach reviewed the Club Book for 1993-94. Donations were given to the Salvation Army for flood relief in the Midwest, also for the benefit to Toni Waterworth.

Program Chairman Helen Schultz introduced Jeanne Draper, who gave a slide presentation on "Hospice Services in Huron County."

The following officers will remain for another year: President Frances Beach, Vice President Dolores Lukasiak, Secretary Janet Garety and Treasurer Emma Potter.

Beach named the following committees: PROGRAM — Dolores Lukasiak, Opal Duffy and Mona McBride; SOCIAL — Janet Garety and Ulla Snider; MEMBERSHIP — Garety, Lukasiak and Beach; NOMINATIONS — Christine Conkey and Hazel Simmons;

Tuscola's Bedore Family gathers from all over the world

By MARY DRIER

Five generations of the Bedore Family gathered recently to reminisce and trace their roots, especially in Tuscola County.

The family has traced their history back to the 1600s and have found several variations of spelling of their name.

The name Bedore originated from Bedard.

"As far as we know our ancestors were illiterate," members say.

"Ferdinand Bedore's U.S. citizenship application from Canada to the U.S. in the Tuscola County Courthouse, along with those of his brothers Peter and Fred, are all signed with an 'X,'" said family historian James Bedore of Washington D.C.

"In any case, since they couldn't write, they couldn't spell.

"This didn't effect the spelling of the name as long as the family stayed in French-speaking places where they had lots of relatives," he said, and where parish priests recording the baptisms, marriages and deaths in the family would recognize the pronunciation of the name and maintain a fairly uniform spelling."

The earliest record of the family is of Isaac Bedard, who was born in 1616 in LeRochelle (Aunis) France. He later married Marie Girard in 1644. They left France and moved to Quebec, Canada.

Several generations of the family remained in Canada, and it was Ferdinand Bedard and his family who put down roots in Tuscola County in the 1800s.

"It turns out that the Bedard/Bedow (Bedore) ancestry has already been heavily researched, partially because they were one of the earliest families in Canada, arriving about 1660, in what was then known as 'New France,'" said Bedore.

"The French pronunciation of the name 'Bedard' is a difficult one for speakers of English. In French, the final 'd' is silent — it is not heard. "Also, the French 'r' is pronounced 'arree' — rolling with something of a guttural stop at the end. There is no sound like it in English."

According to records, the first members of the family to arrive here were Ferdinand and Odile Bedard.

Name confusion was compounded when in the family found the headstone of Ferdinand and Odile Bedard in the St. Agatha Cemetery, Gageton — which also had the names spelled wrong.

Family members, from Washington D.C., California and England wondered through cemeteries to visit ancestors' gravesites and old homesteads.

The Bedore Family connects the Comment, Petiprin and LaFave families.

Bedore compiled a 40-page history that is rich in anecdotes and even includes the closely guarded recipe for the famous "Bedore Dressing," enough for 65 people.

According to family folklore Michael Bedore bought a new Ford automobile that he only drove once because "when he was backing out of the garage he nearly killed a family member."

After that, he never drove again.
