'94 deer season starts with a bang...

If you're still here to read this, it means you're one of the small number of people NOT out deer hunting today, on the start of the 1994 firearms deer season.

An estimated 725,000 people are expected in the field now through Nov. 30, to take their share of the estimated 1.8 million deer statewide. That includes 675,000 in the Upper Peninsula, 575,000 in northern Lower and 475,000 in southern Lower, says the state DNR.

About one-third of those hunters are likely to successfully shoot a deer with their guns, or 225,000 deer. Plus, another 115,000 will be shot by archers and black-powder hunters, the DNR says.

All hunters must wear a cap, hat, jacket, vest or rain gear of hunter orange, for maximum visibility. Camouflage is permissible, as long as 50% of the surface area is orange.

Michigan hunters who buy the $12.85 license are better off than non-residents — who will shell out $100.35 for a license. It permits them to shoot one antlered deer per license, with a maximum of two such deer per year.

Antlerless permits were issued in some areas, and "thumb hunting" is described as excellent this year.

READY FOR DEER SEASON: 1994 firearm deer hunting season starts today, and these "junior hunters" are ready! Three-year-old Hunter Dillon and seven-year-old Aaron Crawford are sighting in their guns, while their Dads were out hunting geese in the Sebewaing Area last week, getting practiced for today's firearm season. Hunter is the son of Keith and Denise Dillon of Lapeer and Aaron is son of John and Deann Crawford of Jackson. Both boys are grandchildren of Willard and Lorraine Kuhl of Sebewaing.

Marina bids set Dec. 15

Efforts to construct a marina at the mouth of the Sebewaing River are progressing — and bids for construction and to find an operator will be let Dec. 15, says Sebewaing Harbor Commission Chairman William Kauffold.

If all goes according to schedule, the harbor should be partially done by the late summer, 1995 with completion in the spring of 1996.

The Department of Natural Resources has helped the village through all of the steps of the construction project because the DNR wants to increase seasonal slips on public land.

"The state will pay for the non-revenue infrastructure — breakwaters, dredging and such. The rest of the project is out for bid to private developers to finish the project, operate and manage it under a long term lease of 25 years with a five-year lease extension," said Mary Nardo Farris of the Harbor Development Section of the DNR. "The village will still retain land ownership, and the state will be a partner in that."

She said maintaining or constructing marinas is difficult on Saginaw Bay for a variety of reasons. The Sebewaing River has a commitment from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to do multi-year dredging for flood protection. This is a higher status than just a recreational harbor and guarantees that the Corps will be involved in dredging from the marina site to the eight-foot depth of Saginaw Bay, about a 1,500-foot channel.

The multi-year commitment from the Corps and the need for boat dockage in the area were factors in the DNR's blessing to the project.

Preliminary plans call for full service 125-slip harbor with a place to fuel boats, restrooms and showers, a harbor-master's office — but whoever is awarded the project could modify the plans.

M!CH!GAN "by the numbers"

MALES & FEMALES: In the Western Thumb, 52.2% of all residents are women — compared with a very-similar state average of 51.5% women. Average family size in the Thumb is 3.0 members, compared with 3.2 persons statewide, according to U.S. Census Bureau figures...

Local proposal vote totals

Thumb Area voters followed statewide patterns, in approving or defeating the four ballot issues in last Tuesday's General Election:

PROPOSAL A - to convene a convention to redraft Michigan's 30-year-old Constitution was defeated in the state.

Huron County voters said no, 8,132 to 2,803 yes ballots. In Tuscola County, the vote was 13,417 no to 3,389 yes.

PROPOSAL B - to eliminate the automatic right to appeal convictions for criminals who plead guilty, which was approved statewide. Huron voters cast 8,138 yes to 3,060 no votes, while Tuscola cast 12,558 yes to 4,703 no ballots.

PROPOSAL C - to change state no-fault auto insurance laws, was defeated in the state. Huron cast 6,311 no versus 5,286 yes ballots, while Tuscola voted 11,352 no to 6,679 yes.

PROPOSAL P - to establish an $800 million endowment fund for state parks was approved in the state. Huron cast 6,936 yes to 4,118 no votes, and Tuscola cast 11,367 yes to 5,328 no. — By MARY DRIER

Judge Clabuesch retained

Despite competition from one challenger and a last-minute write-in candidate, Huron County Probate Judge David Clabuesch was re-elected in Tuesday's General Election.

Pastor Allen, recently of Niagara, N.D., was born in Baraboo, IL, and married Lynda Pfahler of Detroit June 24, 1978. A 1984 graduate of Concordia Theological Seminary of Ft. Wayne, IN, he had been pastor at St. Andrew Church of Niagara, N.D.

The Allens have two sons, Alexander and William, who are adopted Korean children. The family was scheduled to be welcomed at St. Paul on Sunday, Nov. 13. They are preparing for the installation two weeks later.

Pigeon's history video is almost here

About a dozen members of the Pigeon Historical Society and local supporters got a first view Friday afternoon of the Pigeon historical video being finalized by native Al Eicher — and they declared it's "GREAT!" Eicher says he's worked harder on this 55-minute documentary than any other project in his 40-year film and video career — and "I've put everything into it I could. I'm very proud of this, and it's the hardest job I've ever done."

Eicher gathered 23 reels of video tape from old photos, drawings, home movies and other sources to create the production tentatively titled "History of Pigeon 1853-

A new slate of officers to head the Huron County Council of Chambers into 1995 was elected at the Oct. 18 meeting of the group held at Cousin's Restaurant. In other business by HC4: State Senator Joel Gougeon received a plaque recognizing his endorsement by the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce; County Economic Development Council Director Carl Osentoski reported on the progress the EDC office and Huron County Council of 1953." That's about 23 hours of possible footage, which he distilled into the 55-minute final project.

He and project fund-raiser Ed Eicher say another video could be created in 2003, to cover the next 1953-2003 era.

He estimates he spent 700 hours editing the video — more than twice as long as he had expected — but he's very pleased with the results.

Local historians and family members who attended

Friday's sneak preview agreed the video tells an amazing story of the history of the Western Thumb, in words, pictures and sounds. Copies, to benefit the Pigeon Historical Society, will be on sale before Thanksgiving at area stores, Eicher says.

The Historical Society and Pigeon Chamber of Commerce are coordinating the project, and some family and business underwriters will get the first tapes.

Judge Clabuesch, 44 of Pigeon, kept his post with 6,091 votes while challenger Huron County Prosecutor Leslie Hagen, 31 of Port Austin, received 4,467 and write-in candidate Thomas Collon of Bad Axe received 665.

Judge Clabuesch has held the post since 1987, when he was appointed to replace retiring Judge Neil MacCallum. He then won the seat in 1988 election. It was clean sweep for Judge Clabuesch in all precincts except Sebewaing and Sigel Townships.

Green is new State Rep.

The state and national Republican steam-roller helped elect Republican Michael Green as the Thumb's new 84th District State Representative, for the next two years.

Green, 45 of Mayville, received 17,260 votes to secure the seat while Democrat Russell Davis of Vassar had 11,654 votes. Green received 7,170 votes in Huron and 10,090 in Tuscola, versus 4,581 for Davis in Huron and 7,073 in Tuscola.

Green, 45, is a former Tuscola County Commissioner who served for eight years. He is employed at General Motors Chevrolet V-8 Engine Plant, Flint, as a tool maker. Also, he served briefly as district representative for 34th District Senator Joel Gougeon of Bay City.

Dick Allen (R-Caro) did not seek re-election to the office he has held since 1982.

Other election results...

Thumb voters followed selection trends on statewide posts and proposals during last Tuesday's General Election.

GOVERNOR: Incumbent Republican Gov. John Engler won the state election for another four-year term, and he won in Huron and Tuscola Counties, too. Engler got 9,268 votes in Huron and 12,179 in Tuscola, to Democrat Howard Wolpe's 3,294 in Huron and 5,862 in Tuscola.

STATE ATTORNEY GENERAL Frank Kelley was the lone Democrat at the top of the ticket to win re-election, and he also won in the Thumb. Kelley got 6,161 votes in Huron and 9,098 in Tuscola, to G.O.P. challenger John Smietana's 5,586 in Huron and 8,035 in Tuscola. FOR SECRETARY OF STATE, Republican Candice Miller won the state vote to defeat incumbent Richard Austin. U.S. HOUSE 5TH DISTRICT Democratic Congressman James Barcia defeated Republican William Anderson, and Barcia outdistanced his challenger in the Thumb. He counted 7,826 votes in Huron and 10,760 in Tuscola, versus 4,028 for Anderson in Huron and 6,315 in Tuscola.

STATE SENATOR Republican Joel Gougeon defeated Democrat Dennis Hayes easily. Gougeon received 8,914 votes in Huron and 11,476 votes in Tuscola. Meanwhile, Hayes received 2,993 in Huron and 4,581 in Tuscola. — BY MARY DRIER

G.O.P. in charge in Huron

Republicans are back in control again not only in the country and state, but also in Huron County — when the new County Board of Commissioners takes office in January.

The county's first Democratic commissioner, incumbent David Jaroch of Ubyly, was among many Michigan Democrats defeated in the General Election.

The upset in District 2 found newcomer Republican Gary Krug of Bad Axe defeating Jaroch 893 to 779.

When the new terms begin in January, Republicans will once again hold all seven commission seats.

As we see it Just let Booth's body lie there

Sometimes science gets the better of us... and in most of those cases, it shouldn't. We're referring to recent stories that scientists want to exhume the body of John Wilkes Booth, to double-check whether or not the person supposedly buried there is indeed the man who murdered President Abraham Lincoln in 1865. There's probably some merit to the fact that scientists and medical experts actually could learn things from such an unburial. But there's more to the story than curious interest.

These experts say the man who was shot in a Virginia tobacco barn on April 26, 1865 was not Booth at all — they claim he escaped and lived in hiding in Oklahoma until dying in 1903. The researchers have come to an agreement with 22 of Booth's descendants, and are now petitioning a Baltimore court to exhume the remains buried in an unmarked cemetery grave there, says the Washington Post.

They claim DNA testing may be possible on the remains, but they firmly say they believe the man killed by Union soldiers in that barn was a red-haired man named "Robey" who had a broken right — not left — leg. Booth's left leg was broken jumping from the box at Ford's Theatre where the mortally-wounded President Lincoln lay.

The body in the barn was autopsied back then, and three vertebrae and a piece of spinal cord were removed from it. Researchers say if the body in Baltimore is missing those items, it's the same body as was found in the barn... but it may or may not be Booth's. More sophisticated tests can help them answer THAT question, they add. In 1877 a man calling himself John St. Helen confessed to his lawyer in Texas that he was Booth. He lived until 1903, research says. But the body of that man was mummified by that enterprising lawyer, and later was put on display at carnival shows until the mid-1970s.

Whoever has that mummified body — which may be Booth's — can probably get $1 million or more from a TV show, to examine it "live."

But whatever the reason or desire may be, do we really have to dig up a body buried 129 years? Do these intelligent researchers have nothing better to do than use their skills in this inane project?

At the same time, normal folks such as you have read along this far — there must still be interest...

A Wahre G'schichte bei Hanswurst

Jeder der 50 Jahre alt ist — oder aelter — kann die gute Pheasant Hunting Zeiten remembren weil das war eine special Time fuer uns alle.

Wir haben ge-hunted jede Stunde die wir frei-hatten. Ich kann gut remembren da so 4 oder 5 von uns haben geruedt, so das wir einen grossen Appetit und ein grosseres Durst developed haben.

Wir waren nahe eine kleine Community das nur eine kleine Bar und Grill hatte. Wir waren die einzige Customers, und nachdem wir warteten fuer 10 Minuten oder so, kamm endlich der Cook von die Kueche und hat unsere Order genommen. Er hat ge-limped und hat complained das er ein boesser ingrown Toenail hatte.

Wir hatten jeder ein Bier und ein Hamburger ge-ordered, haben alles enjoyed und haben zweite Burgers ge-ordered. Der Cook ist zurueck in die Kueche ge-limped zu die Burgers grillen.

Wir waren hungriig und konnten nicht warten fuer die Hamburgers zu arrivren. Aber der Kerl kamm nicht, und wir wurden impatient.

Ein von unsere Bunch sagte, "Wart nur, Ich sehe was Ihn so bad delayed."

Er lief zu die Kueche Tuer, hat herein gglotzt und ist schnell herum ge-urned und in die Men's Room ge-dashed.

"Was fehlt den?" fragte sein Bruder.

Er hat Ihn in die Men's Room ge-followed und ist beinah immediately heraus gekommen. Er kamm nicht zu unsern Tisch, sonder glotzte in die Kueche, und ist immediately heraus zu die Outdoors ge-dashed.

"Was kann los sein?" fragte Ich, und guckte in die Kueche. Was Ich sahe konnte Ich nicht glauben!

Die Hamburgers haben ge-sizzled, und nahe bei sass der Cook aufein Stuhl, hat sein Schuhe und Strumpf aufsein Lap und hat mit dem grossen Kitchen Messer an seine grosse Toe herum gegraben.

In ein Instant war alles clear!

Die zwei Brueder sahen dasselbe das Ich sahe — der limping Cook, die Hamburgers auf die Grill, den bare Fuss und das grosse Kitchen Messer.

Ich bin fuer die Outdoors ge-dashed, und da auf die Steps stand der erste Hunter, und hat maechtiglich seine Cookies (actually, sein Hamburger) auf-ge-tossed.

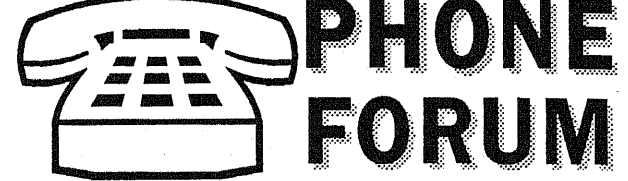

Bis dann kammnen zwei mehr von unsere Bunch heraus und beide waren auch sick. Dann kamm der erste von die Men's Room mit seine Augen wide open, und schrie, "Ihr wird nie believeen was Ich in die Kitchen sahe."

Da wir toward unsere Car ge-hurried sind, kamm der Grill Cook zu die Tuer und rufte, "Kommt herein, euer Hamburgers sind done."

"Das ist gut, weil wir sind mehr denn done," haben wir ge-shouted, und sind in eine cloud of Dust disappeared.

Die Moral in die Geschichte ist, Der da gucket durch die Tuer, wird sehen eine terrible Schmier.

Edited by MARK RUMMEL, News Manager
This must be early November — some days are warm and others guarantee cold days are ahead! Lots of your friends, neighbors (and family?) have comments for Phone Forum today, and here they are:

J. of Bad Axe: I wish to talk about ethanol for autos. Ethanol engines now take more fuel to get the same power you would from gasoline, but it is a cleaner-running fuel and it is renewable. That is much better than our conditions with fossil fuels. I would like to see more gas stations offer ethanol fuels. Thank you.

R.B. of Unionville: To the freshmen girls' basketball team and Mr. Rock: We want to let you know how proud we are of you and your accomplishments. You all worked very hard and deserve a big pat on the back.

M. of Caseville: This Thursday is the Great American Smokeout, a time smokers should try to stop just one day. Then, they should keep trying to stop. Do you realize three million teens smoke cigarettes, and studies show most smokers started before they turned 20? Smoking kills more Americans each year than alcohol, cocaine, crack, heroin, suicide, homicide, car accidents, fires and even AIDS combined. Stop smoking now, kids, before it's too late!

Mary of Elkton: Some people talked here a while ago that they didn't like it when store clerks left their customers to answer the phone. Well I am not able to get out much, and I have to do business on the phone. I have no other method. Please be aware that not all people who call a store are too lazy to walk in. Some of us cannot do so.

(You make an excellent point, Mary, and thank you. Not all phone calls made to stores are from people who just didn't want to come in. Thanks for sharing your views.)

The old guy in Pigeon: I wish to thank the young couple who returned my wallet with the cards and little bit of money still intact. Most of the times today, I don't think people would do that. But you people found it after I dropped it and quickly returned it to me, even driving several miles to find me. There are still good Samaritans in the world. God bless you.

Linda of Sebawaing: I am wondering if this is a scam going on. A woman called me the other night, saying she wanted to know if my husband was the person she was looking for. She wanted to know if he had a Discover card and, if so, if she read me the numbers, would I be able to tell her that she was speaking with the right person? When I asked a few questions, she got nervous and hung up. It just seemed strange to me, and you should let everybody know they should not give their credit card numbers out, without knowing what they will be used for.

(Thanks for an excellent point, Linda, which should be remembered by everyone. NEVER give your credit card number to someone who calls you, no matter how good their story sounds. Even if they know your number, don't tell them it's your number. Ask them to call the police about a "lost card" or similar problem. Likely, you'll never hear from them again...)

M. of Sebawaing: I want to compliment the people who put on the craft show at USA Elementary School in Unionville. There are quite a few shows and this was the best one I've ever seen. Keep up the good work.

D. of Bay Port: If you attended the Top of the Thumb Leisure Ministries sing-along concert Sunday night at Pigeon River Church, you heard a choir just as sweet as Heaven, from all those folks in all the local churches. It was wonderful to hear and to join in.

U. of Pigeon: I am happy that Judge Clabuesch won his election. It is an insult for people to run against an incumbent, and he has done a good job. I thought it was ridiculous that the Bad Axe lawyer also ran as a write-in. What kind of sense did that make? If you want to run, start when everybody else does.

M. of Elkton: Every time I see an ad about the Michigan Lottery, my blood boils. We talk about not wanting to add casinos or more gambling, yet our tax dollars are being used to encourage people to gamble by buying lottery tickets. This is just as bad a vice, or worse. The Lottery should not be able to advertise. It encourages people to spend money they don't have. (You'll never convince the state to stop promoting the Lottery since it brings in so much state revenues, M. But it does seem to be a double-standard to discourage more casinos but encourage people to buy Lottery tickets, doesn't it?)

Yarns From The Thumb

by Walt Rummel

Today we reach the halfway-mark of November, Day No. 319 with only 46 remaining this year. Today is also the opening day of the deer firearms hunting season in Michigan... NOV. 15, 1891, is the birthdate of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, in Heidenheim, Wurtemberg, Germany. His success with the German Panzer (armor) Divisions in North Afrika Corps, gave him the name of "Desert Fox." He was charged by the Nazis with being one of the German generals who unsuccessfully attempted to assassinate Hitler in 1944, and was given his choice: 1. Trial and a firing squad, or 2. Swallow a poison pill, followed by a full military funeral and lifelong pension for his widow. He chose the pill and died Oct. 14, 1944, near Ulm....

North America, Greenland, Iceland, Central and South America and western Africa and Europe will see the lunar eclipse starting at 11:25 p.m. THURSDAY, NOV. 17, and ending some 4 1/2 hours later, with the middle occurring at 1:43 a.m., after midnight... Gen. Bernard Law Montgomery, who commanded the British 8th Army in North Africa and later directed all ground forces in the 1944 Normandy landing in World War II, was born NOV. 17, 1887, in London. He lived to be 89... actor Danny Devito is 50 today, songwriter Gordon Lightfoot is 55 and Olympic track athlete Bob Mathias is 64....

Friday evening NOV. 18 will offer the world the November Full Moon... Mickey Mouse, as a squeaky-voiced, skinny rodent, made his first appearance on the screen of the Colony Theater in New York City, on NOV. 18, 1928, which makes him 66. (Wonder if he filed for Social Security benefits last year???)

President Abe Lincoln's Gettysburg Address — called "one of the most eloquent of all English language writings" — was delivered NOV. 19, 1863. The speaker ahead of Lincoln on the program talked for two hours, while Lincoln delivered his in two minutes. (No wonder they liked Abe better)... Roy Campanella, one of the first and among the greatest black major league baseball players and a star for the Brooklyn Dodgers, was born NOV. 19, 1921. In 1956 his career was cut short when he was paralyzed in a car accident, after which he gained nationwide fame as an inspirational spokesman for the handicapped. He died June 26, 1993... James A. Garfield, 20th U.S. President, was born in Ohio on NOV. 19, 1831. He was inaugurated March 4, 1881, was wounded by an assassin four months later, on July 2, and died Sept. 19 in the same year. His assassin, a disappointed office-seeker, was hanged June 30, 1882... Birthdays today, actress Jody Foster 32, political scientist Jeane Kirkpatrick 68 and TV journalist Garrick Utley 55....

SUNDAY, NOV. 20 is celebrated as National Bible Sunday, the Sunday before Thanksgiving Day. It is also the start of National Bible Week... It's the last Sunday of the Church Year for Protestants in Europe, known in Germany as Totensonntag, in remembrance of the dead... There's a celebration and festival in McLean, VA, today, known as 18th Century Threshing Day, when the farm family threshes wheat, makes yeast cakes and celebrates the end of the crop season... Chester Gould, creator of the Dick Tracy comic strip, was born at Pawnee, OK, on NOV. 20, 1900. His first Dick Tracy strip appeared in the Detroit Daily Mirror in 1931, and later was syndicated to about 1,000 newspapers worldwide.

Dr. William Beaumont, the Army surgeon who kept Canadian Trapper Alexis St. Martin alive at Fort Mackinac, on Mackinac Island in 1822, was born in Lebanon, CT, NOV. 21, 1785. St. Martin was struck in the stomach with a shotgun blast but survived, and Beaumont began observing the stomach and digestive processes through an opening in the abdominal wall. He published his findings, and was hailed for his findings. St. Martin returned to Canada in 1834 and resisted the doctor's efforts to return for further observations. The doctor died in 1853, but St. Martin lived on for 20 years. When he died, he was still a medical curiosity, and was buried eight feet deep, to discourage any attempt at posthumous examination... Other birthdays today, actresses Goldie Hawn 49, Lorna Luft 42 and Marlo Thomas 56 and former baseball great Stan Musial 74....

Sebawaing Township Clerk Sheila Fiebig received a letter from Marion I. Shuart of 1856 Popple Road, Bad Axe, asking help in finding information about windmills manufactured or sold by J.D. Finkbeiner/Finkbinner in the Kilmanagh Area about 1890-1910.

The clerk had not heard of anyone in that business so she asked The Newsweekly to inquire through its columns. The letterwriter had searched newspapers for windmill information, but hasn't found the information she needs.

So, any reader who knows about a J.D. Finkbeiner (Finkbeiner) in the Kilmanagh who manufactured or sold windmills is invited to contact Fiebig, Shuart or The Newsweekly.

After last week's Newsweekly reached its readers, Charles "Chuck" Steele of Bay Port phoned to say that the picture of the harness maker's shop was definitely Matthew R. Steele of Kilmanagh. "We called him Uncle Matt," Chuck recalls, and he was an uncle of Chuck's late father, Judson Grant Steele. Judson's father was Charles Wesley Steele, who was Matthew's brother. Charles Wesley Steele drove a mail route in the days when that job was done with horses...

Recollections Of By-Gone Days

by George Keim

DEAR EDITOR: In my last two articles, I wrote about my first teacher I had when I was in kindergarten in the schoolhouse that was just knocked down.

Several years ago the teacher used to do things that teachers can't get by with today. I still think that the teachers today could do a little more than they dare today. People weren't cruel to their kids in those days, but when I was a kid, if my parents told me to go, I went.

You shouldn't hit your children, but a good spanking never hurt any kid. Now a teacher can't even shake a finger at kids.

I got one spanking in school and still don't know why. One time the teacher had us up in front of the school to read.

Several of the boys lost their place and she made them sit on the floor.

Well, the rest of us laughed at them. Then when my turn came up, I didn't know where it was, so the teacher said, "You laughed at the boys who lost their place, so I'll take care of you!"

So she made me take my chair and sit in the hall. Mr. Hamill was the superintendent and if he saw you in the hall in school, he'd take you to your room and ask the teacher if you had permission to leave the room and if you didn't, he'd shake you up and tell you never to do it again.

I was almost scared to death

Sincerely yours,
GEORGE KEIM

Horsin' Around

'The River Mild'

Have you seen that movie? The River Wild, I mean? I loved it, largely because it is one of the few movies ever made that allows a strong, self-sufficient lead female character to enjoy a position of strength and control. Meryl Streep's excellent portrayal of the former whitewater-rafter turned suburban mom helped make it clear she was competent and in control, yet warm and loving—gentle with her children and eager to save her failing marriage.

But I digress, because something about that movie evoked much more emotion than merely Meryl. You see, it made me reminiscent for my own whitewater days!

No, I never went down the Colorado River in an inflatable raft, but there was a time—a strange, magical period in my youth—when my brothers and I (for some reason I cannot recall) would lug an old wooden boat down to the "frothy" Pinnebog River to set sail for parts well-known.

These were traditionally springtime excursions as the deep swirling waters from recently melted snow made it easier to navigate the sometimes rocky and shallow river. And though I would like to say that I possessed all of the skill, strength, knowledge and oar control of Streep's stoic river-mistress character, MY job in our little boat was pretty much to hang on and scream.

But that was good enough. Just to have a brief turn at the oars, a momentary seat at the helm, was enough to learn and appreciate the fine art of river navigation. And it allowed me to explore, if but for a moment, the strange, magical, long-since-forgotten Mark Twain-like world of river travel.

Why my big brother was obsessed with these annual voyages is beyond me, because lugging the wooden boat to our various launch areas was no small task. And in all fairness, I must admit, we didn't always enjoy the same expert management of the sometimes deep-dangerous waters as did the characters in "The River Wild." In other words, we came home soaked plenty of times.

But most amazing was how my complete faith in the knowledge and control of my brothers helped me to overcome a debilitating water phobia that had plagued me from toddlerhood.

As a tyke I had a near-death experience in the deep waters of a boat launch on Lake Huron, so for me, to jump into the rickety boat and plunge down the swollen springtime river, with all caution to the wind, was no small feat, and certainly made my confidence in my brothers' abilities quite apparent.

And, if nothing else, it was one of the few experiences in my life where a cowardly, anything-but-self-sufficient supporting female character was allowed to enjoy a position of strength and control—even though the Pinnebog is more like "The River Mild" than "The River Wild."

60 Seconds

The week before Thanksgiving

"Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms." PSALMS 95:2

Next week we celebrate Thanksgiving Day. That's the traditional start for Christmas planning and gift shopping, although in recent years those schedules have been advanced far forward.

Thanksgiving Day is a good, historic event in our year, ordained by our own nation to call the people's attention to God's goodness for another harvest.

Hopefully Thanksgiving Day will be more than food, family, friends and football. Those are probably good reasons to be thankful, but there are many more reasons, if we only take the time to enumerate them.

The main shortcoming in putting so much emphasis on Thanksgiving Day is that it becomes a one-day-per-year procedure. We may feel that having attended church, or given thanks at our table, or wished each other well, we've "celebrated" Thanksgiving, and "that takes care of it for this year."

Thanksgiving Day is a misnomer, a wrong name, a mistaken identity.

We would do better to make it Thanksgiving Year, and to observe it every day.

That would involve more than "giving" thanks. It would grow into "living" thanks. Show your thanks by your "living," by changing your entire style of living, all year, every year.

Then "Thanksgiving" would become "Thanksgiving" — 365 days per year.

'95 start for Sebewaing recycling

By MARY DRIER
Besides the standard New Year's resolutions, Sebewaing Village residents will also be able to reduce, reuse and recycle.

Council members last week approved establishing a curbside recycling program, after Jan. 1.

"We will have to start teaching people about recycling," said John Pitcher village Trash Committee chairman. He plans to use schools, news stories and other information systems.

Waste Management of Almont will provide curbside recycling collection, in terms of its village contract. Four years remain on the five-year contract.

Curbside recycling was sought after a recent survey showed 68% of residents said they wanted such a program.

Customers pay $7.55 per month now for trash pick-up. When curbside recycling begins, trash pick-up bills will increase by $2.30 per month the first year, said Deputy Clerk Loraine Pluegge noting the new rate of $9.85 per month will show on the quarterly billing in April, 1995.

"It's up to the people to use it," said Councilman Rodney Tietz. "If they are going to have to pay for it, they are going to use it."

Council members plan to have a representative of Waste Management attend the Nov. 21 meeting, to answer more questions.

In other concerns, a new bus system will begin operating, to take USA students to the new Middle School at the High School complex.

USA Middle School Principal Tony Grant explained proposed pick-up and drop-off sites to the Council.

Children won't be able to walk to school any longer, Grant said, noting some sites are at the Fire Department, at Immanuel Lutheran School, Trinity United Methodist Church and at Main Village Park.

"If we use any or all of them, at this time we don't know, but we wanted to make sure we talked to you first."

Officials want to have sites strategically located to reduce the need for students crossing M-25.

Grant said 253 Middle School students will require transportation, when the new school opens. That includes 82 students in Sebewaing, 46 in rural Sebewaing, 35 in Unionville and 90 in rural Unionville.

Some Council members raised concerns about having students use the Fire Department parking lot, because of possible traffic during fire and ambulance runs.

Grant noted the plan is still being fine-tuned.

Also, the Municipal Employees Retirement System was discussed. Council has voted down expansion of benefits in recent years, and must decide the issue by Dec. 1.

Council learned Haddon Cable TV plans to increase charges about $1 per month beginning in February, 1995.

More schools join Saginaw Bay water quality project

Twenty-one more schools, including several in the Upper Thumb, have been added to the Saginaw Bay Watershed School River Monitoring Program.

This brings total number of participating schools to 43, says the Saginaw Bay Watershed Council. Recent additions include:

■ Immanuel Lutheran in Sebewaing, monitoring Sebewaing River, one-quarter mile before it empties into Saginaw Bay;

■ North Huron High School, Kinde, with sites at various spots in Bird Creek and Port Austin Harbor at the mouth of Bird Creek;

■ Caro High School, Caro, monitoring in the Cass River;

■ Washington Elementary in Bay City, monitoring sites along the Saginaw River, Dutch Creek,

Fish Point, Bay City State Park and areas along the bay.

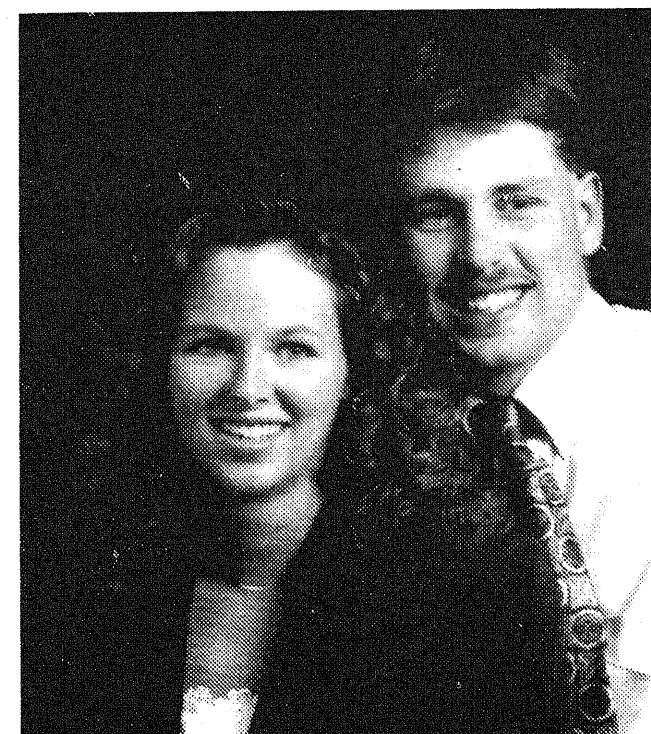

The 21 new schools make the Saginaw Bay Watershed monitoring project one of the largest and fastest-growing in the USA, officials say, with an estimated 3,000 students participating in 1995.

Since 1992, the Watershed Council has provided schools with analysis equipment, to track current and future water quality along the watershed's 7,000 miles of rivers and streams.

Schools test for a variety of water quality parameters, including dissolved oxygen, pH, temperature, nitrates, total dissolved solids, fecal coliform, BOD, phosphate and turbidity, says Council Director Michael Kelly.

Smeader's first hole-in-one!

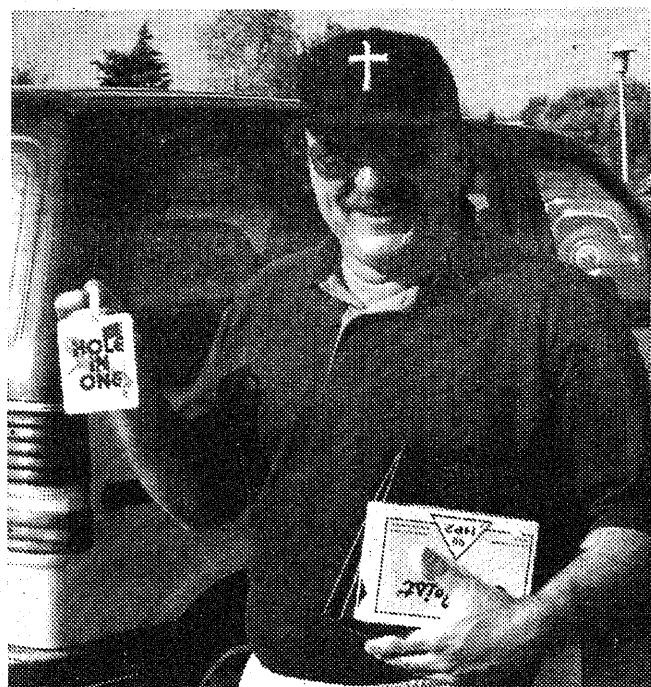

Ken Smeader of Pigeon scored his first hole-in-one on Oct. 22, during the Bluewater Thumb Youth for Christ "Iron Man of Golf Marathon" held in Vassar.

The hole-in-one came on the par three, seventh hole of the executive course at the Willow Springs Golf and Country Club of Vassar.

The 36-year-old Smeader used a pitching wedge to find the cup on the 95-yard hold. This first-time event was witnessed by Smeader's 11-year-old son Joshua, as well as Tim Mays and Ron Stier, both of Millington.

The Iron Man format challenges golfers to compete for the total number of holes played during a seven-hour period.

Smeader played 108 holes during the Iron Man outing.

Lady Lakers grab TCC National title

The milestone was bound to come sooner or later for Laker girls' basketball coach Paul Beachy.

He passed the 200th win marker when his team defeated Bad Axe in October, and last week — once again with a victory over Bad Axe — he earned his first-ever outright division title.

Since his arrival as head coach of the girls' varsity team, he has had to share the title three previous years, in 1982, 1987 and 1989. And along the way he's coached his teams to three district titles, in 1985 and 1992-93.

Two things were certain when the team traveled to Bad Axe on Thursday:

First, it would be an emotional game between the two division rivals. And secondly, a lot was at stake, with the Lakers needing a win to secure the outright title.

And after a battle right down to the wire, the Lakers won it, 45-41.

Although the Lakers led at the end of every quarter, spectators knew the game would go down to the wire.

Sparked by Carolyn Bollenbacher's 17 first-half points, the Lakers took a 28-20 lead into the halftime break. But then they went cold offensively in the third quarter, scoring only 17 points, while the Hatchets managed 10 themselves.

The fourth quarter was close, with the Hatchets again outscoring the Lakers 11-10 in that stanza. Two made free-throws by Jenny Smith with two seconds remaining gave the Lakers an insurmountable four point lead and a hard fought victory.

JUNIOR VARSITY: After trailing through much of the game, the Laker JV team fought back hard and nearly pulled off the win over Bad Axe. But they fell short 38-35.

Deanne Jaworski led the Lakers with 12 points, while win for the third straight year. They'll face Harbor Beach on Wednesday night at 6:30. In their only meeting this year, the Pirates defeated the Lakers 55-49, so the Lakers will need to be at their very best.

But as coaches throughout the Thumb have noted, the team has vastly improved over their early-season form. They end their regular season with a 14-4 record.

Senior Varsity: After trailing through much of the game, the Laker JV team fought back hard and nearly pulled off the win over Bad Axe. But they fell short 38-35.

Deanne Jaworski led the Lakers with 12 points, while Bollenbacher led the scoring with 20 points, including three triples. Angie Weidman had eight points and Jody Herbert added six.

This week, the Lakers will be back in Bad Axe to defend their district title, hoping to Marie Hurren added 11. FRESHMEN: The frosh team closed out their season with a big 54-34 win over Bad Axe. After getting off to a good start, leading 14-4 at the quarter and 32-10 at the half, the Lakers continued to produce a good offense and a smothering defense in the second half.

The balanced scoring attack produced 12 points for Rebecca Kolar, 10 points each for Kami Shaw and Tracy Drury, and eight points each for Angie Roestel and Tracy Drury.

They finish the season with a 14-3 record, including a perfect 10-0 record in the division, and capturing a division title for Coach Dale Grifka.

The USA Lady Patriots ended their regular season on a high note with their third win of the season, this one over Mayville on Thursday.

Earlier in the week, the Patriots fell to Sandusky 55-24 in a Thumb C American Division contest. Sandusky got out to a 23-5 lead in the first quarter and by halftime had increased their advantage to 36-11.

Leah Collon led the Patriots with eight points, and Terri Schulz added seven.

Then on Thursday, the Patriots defeated Mayville 44-40. Schulz led the scoring with 10 points, and added six rebounds. Toni Mitchell also had 10 and Collon chipped in with eight.

The team ended their regular season with a 3-15 overall record, and 3-8 in the TCC American.

His cackle gave him away...

He could have gotten away, but he had to open his mouth. He had me beat. Flushing from a tangled mass of cattails in the bottom of the ditch and heading directly into the sun should have given him his freedom.

By Duane Guenther

But, rooster pheasants are a cocky bunch.

They like to crow and cackle and give you the raspberries when their thunderous rise catches you off guard. They're usually hard pressed to keep their mouth shut — and this fellow was no exception.

I hadn't even planned on going pheasant hunting that evening, and only threw in my 16-gauge as a last minute afterthought.

Bow hunting was where I was headed, hoping the six-point who had been eluded me the last several nights would finally commit suicide by presenting me with the shot of my dreams.

However, the landowner's dog had different ideas, and after following me to my blind, proceeded to urinate on several pieces of underbrush clearly marking the territory as his own.

It didn't take me long to pack up my bow and point the truck towards the nearest state game area.

I arrived at one of my favorites just in time to see a couple of hunters bail out of their pickup and beat me to the hedgerow. I was planning to hunt. I drove past the parking lot and made a turn at the next corner while I contemplated what to do.

Just then a big flock of ducks began to circle a nearby corn field and my competition, back at the game area, piled into their pickup and headed after the ducks.

I had not done very well on the public land roosters this season. They're a tough breed because it takes strong genetics to survive predators, rugged Michigan winters, and the hordes of fluorescent orange clad hunters who pound after them most every day.

And to make matters more difficult, I had been hunting the season without a dog.

It's not that I don't like dogs, just the opposite is true. But, this year I found myself between dogs, and the loss of last hunting season due to surgery did not help rectify the situation.

But even though the odds were against me this Thursday afternoon, I felt good when I pulled the old 16-gauge pump from the gun case that was protecting it.

The gun is special to me. A gift from my father-in-law, this run-of-the-mill pump gun was manufactured in 1934—the same year I was born.

As Ernie Harwell so aptly puts it, "You could say we grew up together."

I'm certainly not a gun snob when I carry it, for anyone who had access to a Montgomery Ward Catalog back then could be hunting with the same type.

I had slipped the gun in the crook of my arm and just turned to walk down the trail towards the hedgerow and the ditch that lay next to it when a red pickup pulled into the parking lot.

"Looks like you beat me to it," the elderly gentleman called good-naturedly from his rolled-down window.

"Plenty of room for both of us," I responded.

Without a word, he stepped from the pickup, and clucked to an equally elderly Black Lab who had been sharing the front seat with him.

We introduced ourselves and soon were discussing strategies on how to hunt the tangled maze of vegetation we were heading for.

"Why don't you slip around and block the narrow end while I and my old buddy Ned will drive the wide end towards you," he offered.

I nodded and made a big circle, which brought me to the end of the ditch where it and the hedgerow dissipated into an empty field.

While there is nothing absolute about pheasant hunting, I knew from experience that if the old man and old dog worked the cover slow enough they just might push a couple of nervous pheasants into a calculated flush.

It was a joy to watch the hunter and his lab work. They had obviously spent many hours in the field together and as a team, worked the cover slowly and methodically.

Many pheasant hunters, especially those with dogs, have a tendency to work way too fast.

Pheasants, being one of the smartest birds around, are always looking for a way to escape flying. The easiest is to run like the dickens and keep ahead of both man and dog. They will usually do this if you push them too fast.

However, being so smart, they also think they can fool you by digging in and letting you walk right by them.

That's where slow hunting fits in.

It makes the birds confident they have fooled you and in turn holds them for the dogs.

As he appeared first, sneaking out from the cattails, it grew bug-eyed when it spotted me and flushed wildly to the west. Luckily, I had seen it on the ground, for once in the glare of the sun I would not have been able to tell if it were a rooster or hen.

The man and his dog slowly narrowed the gap between us and I felt myself relax slightly as the distance grew to less than 10 yards.

That's when Ned flushed the cock—it came out of the cattails, headed for the setting sun cackling loud and long.

That cackle caused me to spin, shoulder my gun, and touch the trigger in one instinctive movement.

The bird fell in an empty bean field.

He would have gotten away—if he had kept his mouth shut.....

DEAR MR. ROSS:
My husband has been disabled for about seven years after hurting his back at the cement plant where he worked. It's been trouble for us ever since.
My mother has cancer and has been taking treatments for six months. We've been trying to help her, but we don't have the money to shut ourselves.
All we get is help notices in the mail. Most of the time we don't have grocery money.
My children don't have proper clothes and shoes for school. We've already lost our truck and I don't know what will be next. We're trying desperately to keep our house and car, but the bills are just too many.

I'm working two jobs every day, plus, my husband gets a disability check. I stay so tired but can't afford a vacation. I went on a three-day fast asking God to send a financial blessing, then I found your column.
I would be very thankful for any money, but $300 would help us out of a crisis and keep our lights on. — Mrs. J. E., Texarkana, AR

DEAR MRS. E.:
I wouldn't so much call it a crisis you're in, but more of a chronic situation. For the latter all I can offer is a bandage — a little something which will help ease the burden. Truly divine intervention would have done a lot more for you, ma'am, but from me, found one with you!

For $350 I can help alleviate a potentially serious health problem, plus put romance back in your marriage.
All I can say is the check's in the mail. Go get 'em tiger!
$$$$$

DEAR MR. ROSS:
Do you really fall for all these sob stories? How do you know what is genuine and what isn't? Also, I can't believe I had the nerve to write you! Gee, can you send me some money for my effort? — Ms. C.A., Jenison, MI

DEAR MS. A.:
For you I have one "no," one "maybe" and one "yes."
No, I generally don't check the validity of a person's story. For the modest amounts I send, my time is worth a lot more.
Do I fall for sob stories? Yes: hook, line and sinker.
Am I sending you any money? Maybe... if you had expressed a real need.

please accept my $300 check. $$$$$

DEAR MR. ROSS:
I've been waiting to write you, but I never got to it, since I thought you wouldn't help me. I have a serious problem with bad breath. I'm scared to death to kiss my wife, since she is aware of my problem. She has told me and I feel terrible. Sometimes she wonders if I really love her since I show no affection. My problem with my teeth has taken control of my whole life.
Do you think you can give me $350 for the dentist (checkup, X-rays and the works)?
If you don't trust me you can give direct payment to any dentist in my area. I live on Social Security disability of $650 monthly and I have three children. Thank you! — Mr. O. R., New Bedford, MA

DEAR MR. R.:
Part of the reason I'm a millionaire is because I love a bargain, and oh boy, have I

Elenbaum Family is coping with three strikes of Leukemia

By SALLY RUMMEL

They say bad luck comes in threes.

For the Sherl "Jake" (now deceased) and Marjorie Elenbaum Family of the Pigeon/Sebawaing Area, that old wife's tale has been true.

Three members of their family—"Jake," his wife Marjorie and their grandson Bradley Gruehn — have all suffered from Leukemia since 1992.

While almost-10 year old Bradley and his grandmother Marjorie are recovering, "Jake" was not so lucky, and passed away just seven weeks after his diagnosis, on Feb. 23 of this year.

Young Bradley, son of Mark and Terry Gruehn of Sebawaing, was the first one to become ill, tiring easily and suffering from flu-like symptoms in May 1992.

HERE'S the Michigan Leukemia Commemorative wall.

CORN 'QUINTS'! Elmer Shope of Sebawaing found an unusual sight in his garden at home in Sebawaing this harvest season - five ears on one stalk of corn. Shope says he didn't do anything special to "quintuple" his yield, just calling it an "accident of nature." SALLY RUMMEL PHOTO

Busy fall for Laker Choir members

The Laker Choir has been active in recent months, getting ready for several important singing events. Members Vicki Gascho and Sara White were selected for the High School Regional Honors Choir, with a performance at Alma College on Dec. 3.

They both auditioned at Central Michigan University in October and their performances impressed the judges, according to Laker Choir Director Annie Eichler.

On the same day as the Alma College concert, the two singers will audition for the State Honors Choir. For their audition, they are required to learn five new songs as well as make a favorable impression on the judge.

LAKER JUNIOR HIGH Choir member Joy Leipprandt and Heidi Eichler (not pictured) were selected for the Regional Honors Choir.

"The competition is very stiff," Eichler said.

Two Junior High singers were selected for the Junior High Soprano and Alto Honors Choir. Heidi Eichler and Joy Leipprandt also auditioned at CMU and made the final cut. They, too, hope to be chosen for the State Honors Choir.

Seven Laker Choir members were selected to perform with the Saginaw Symphony's Honors Chorus at their Christmas Pops Concert. Gretchen Eichler, Mikki Peyer, Sara White, Tammy Dillere, Vicki Gascho, Sarah Renn and Tim Stafford will represent their school in the chorus, which is made up of students from across Mid-Michigan and the Thumb.

The concert is set for Tuesday, Dec. 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the Heritage Theatre in Saginaw, and is televised by WJRT-TV12.

TURN OFF THAT TV & PICK UP BOOKS!

Turn off the TV and read two books this week, and not only will you have a good time, but your brain power will increase without lifting a finger — except to turn the pages, of course.

You will become a bit more brilliant and a better reader every time you finish a new book.

Imagine that, something that feels good, doesn't cost anything, makes you more intelligent, and helps you do better.

All you have to do is curl up in a comfortable chair, open your book, and enjoy yourself. That's what I call a good deal.

IT'S NOT A Sissy THING...

Children who think reading is sissy stuff change their tunes when they meet up with a book-obsessed teacher or librarian.

By sheer force of personality, we can help students, especially the older, more jaded ones, to see that reading is not only pleasurable, but a hip thing to do.

Come see the Pigeon District Library staff, we can steer you toward a good reading future.

Give us an idea of subject that you're interested in, and you will leave with exactly that.
