There will be a Republican Convention of delegates from the several counties commencing at the Court House, in the City of Flint, on the 12th day of February next, at 1 o'clock P. M.

JOHNATHAN DAVIES, A. P. DAVIS, WALTER N. WARREN, RICHARD G. GIBSON, GEORGE S. HOPKINS.

The Seventh Cavalry.

This regiment will soon be ready to take the field, the entire equipments for it have for some time been on hand, and the horses are being received.

Let every effort be made to fill the quota of our State without a draft, and let every man observe that a few days only remains in which to enter so desirable an arm of the service as the 7th Cavalry, or first mounted Sharpshooters.

CORRECTION.

The American of last week publishes a letter from Captain A. M. Bebe of the 14th Michigan Infantry at Nashville, addressed to the Editor of that paper, in which the writer, takes occasion to say some very harsh things of Doctor J. B. HARRIS, of this city, one of our most patriotic citizens, particularly, and makes a general application of his remarks to others not mentioned by name.

Sergeant D. B. WIKES, of the 5th Infantry, was wounded once more at the late battle of Fredericksburg. This is the third time David has been wounded.

The Cabinet Crisis.

OF THE SENATE, REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

Washington, Dec. 20. The political crisis which has been impending so long, was precipitated by the military disaster of Saturday last.

On Tuesday last the death of Mr. Hanchett of Wisconsin, was announced in both houses. The Senate, consequently, adjourned at a very early hour.

Mr. Grimes offered a resolution to the effect that the withdrawal from the Cabinet of the Secretary of State, Mr. Seward, accompanied the resolution with a speech, denouncing Mr. Seward in the sharpest manner; and he was followed by Mr. Fessenden, Mr. Trumbull, Mr. Wade, Mr. Field (the new Senator from New Jersey) and several others in the same strain.

On Wednesday afternoon the caucus met again, and twenty-nine Senators were present. The joining of the members had not changed, and it was thought necessary by the conservatives to evade the issue which had been raised rather than meet it directly.

These denials, however, failed to shake the authors of the movement in their purpose to eject Mr. Seward from the Cabinet, and Mr. Fessenden moved to amend the substitute offered by Mr. Harris, by inserting the word "partial" before the word "reconstruction," so as to call for a partial reconstruction of the Cabinet only.

From looking any conversation with him upon the subject of his resignation—that it was based on what seemed to be a unanimous expression of the opinion of the part of the republican Senators that he ought no longer to hold the place—that the President knew better than any other man how far the assumptions on which their actions rested were true—that he had no explanations to offer had certainly none to ask—that, so far as his personal feelings were concerned, the happiest day of his life would be that which should release him honorably, and without any unparalyzing shrinking from labor of responsibility, from public office; and that he must leave the President to act upon the question without the slightest interference or influence from him.

On Thursday evening the committee from the Senate caucus had their first interview with the President. Senator Collamer, as the chairman, read a brief paper which embodied the sentiments of the entire committee.

Last evening (Friday) this interview took place and lasted four hours—Mr. Seward, of course, not being present. The President at the outset said that what he desired to know was whether more harm or good would result from the acceptance of Mr. Seward's resignation, and each member of the committee was desired to express his opinion, with the ground on which it rested, upon that practical point.

The occasion for the extraordinary demonstration by the part of the Senate, which has led to this political crisis, was the repulse of the Army of the Potomac, in its attempt upon the rebel lines at Fredericksburg.

Burnside's Official Report of the Late Battle.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, FREDERICKSBURG, VA., DEC. 19, 1862. TO HIS EXCELLENCY GEN. IN CHIEF: GENERAL: I have the honor to offer the following reasons for moving the Army of the Potomac across the Rappahannock sooner than was anticipated by the President, Secretary of War, or yourself, and for crossing at a point different from the one indicated to you at our last meeting at the President's.

To do this, we had to gain a height on the extreme right of the crest, which height commanded the new road lately made by the enemy for purposes of more rapid communication along his lines, which point gained, his positions along the right crest would have been secretly tenable, and he could have been driven from there easily by an attack on his front, in connection with a movement on the rear of the crest.

How near we came to accomplishing our object, future reports will show. Had it not been for the unexpected and unavoidable delay in building the bridges, which gave the enemy twenty-four hours more to concentrate his forces in his strong positions, we would almost certainly have succeeded, in which case the battle would have been, in my opinion, far more decisive than if we had crossed at the places first selected.

As it was, we came very near success. Failing in accomplishing the main object, we remained in order of battle two days—long enough to decide that the enemy would not come out of his strongholds to fight us with his infantry, after which we crossed to this side of the river unmolested and without the loss of men or property.

As the day broke, our long lines of troops were seen marching to their different positions, as if going on parade—not the least demoralization or disorganization existed. To the brave officers and soldiers who accomplished the feat of recrossing the river in face of the enemy I owe everything. For the failure in the attack I am responsible, as the extreme gallantry, courage and endurance shown by them was never exceeded, and would have carried the point had it been possible.

To the families and friends of the dead I can only offer my heartfelt sympathies; but for the wounded I can offer my earnest prayers for their comfortable and final recovery.

I will visit you very soon, and give you more definite information, and finally will send you my detailed report, in which a special acknowledgment will be made of the success of the different grand divisions, division corps, and my general and staff departments of the Army of the Potomac, to whom I am so much indebted for their support and hearty co-operation.

I will add here that the movement was made earlier than you expected, and after the President, Secretary, and yourself requested me not to be in haste, for the reason that we were supplied much sooner by the different Staff Departments than was anticipated when I saw you.

Our killed amounted to 1,152, our wounded to about 9,000 and our prisoners to about 700, which last have been paroled and exchanged for the same number taken by us.

The wounded were all removed to this side of the river, and are being well cared for, and the dead were buried under a flag of truce.

The surgeons report a much larger proportion of slight wounds than usual, 1,632 only being treated in hospitals.

I am glad to report the Army at the present time in good condition. Thanking the Government for that entire support and confidence which I have always received from them, I remain, General.

Very respectfully, yours, A. E. BURNSIDE, Major-General, Commanding.

Details of the victory at Kingston, N. C., shows that the march was a continued series of fighting in which all distinguished themselves. Several bayonet charges took place.

The rebels are reported as having 15,000 men, and their loss in killed and wounded is heavy. Five hundred were taken prisoners.

Colonel Gray, of the Ninety-sixth New York was killed. Our total loss will not exceed 150.

The principal fight was a few miles from Kingston, where the rebels were entrenched, but, after three hours' fighting, they retreated towards Kingsport, endeavoring to destroy a bridge leading to that place, but the Ninth New Jersey charged over it and saved it. Our division rapidly crossed when the rebels retreated.

A Washington dispatch to the Philadelphia Enquirer says: "General Foster's dispatch, in regard to the capture of Goldsboro, states that the rebels are advancing, with a force estimated at 25,000, to drive him from his position."

A special Nashville dispatch, dated Dec. 18, to the Tribune, says that Gen. Dodge, with his cavalry, has been fighting Forrest all day in the vicinity of Corinth. Forrest has 4,000 and Dodge 2,500 cavalry. The latter has five pieces of artillery.

It is reported that Van Dorn, with 50,000 men, has arrived at Stevenson, Ala., to join Bragg. Kirby Smith is reported moving towards Lebanon, to support Morgan. The whole force of rebels in Tennessee is estimated at 70,000. They had 25,000 at Murfreesboro. Their outposts are about 11 miles from Nashville.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 22. It is reported that Lexington, Ky., is soon to be visited again by the rebels in large force. Floyd and Humphrey Marshall are said to have come through Pound Gap, from Western Virginia, and are rapidly advancing into the centre of the State. The town and vicinity are infested with John Morgan's guerrillas. Four of them were captured by scouting parties a short distance out.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 21. Advice from Lexington report fears of a rebel raid by Floyd and Humphrey Marshall, who are advancing in large force from Western Virginia. A movement of our troops has occurred from Richmond, Ky., that will relieve Eastern Kentucky from any rebel invasion.

Carro, Dec. 19. The train from Jackson to Columbus was fired into to day by guerrillas. No damage was done. An arrival from Vicksburg reports that the rebels are vigorously fortifying that place and the report says they have extended their works back from the river eight miles. Seventy guns are mounted on the river and 200 in all.

The citizens have been for some time busy in packing up their furniture and goods preparatory to the evacuation of the place upon the opening of the anticipated Federal attack. From Memphis we learn the parties of rebel foraging on the lower part of the railroad.

On Saturday, at 2 A. M., 1863, Jackson's cavalry, with Van Dorn's infantry and the artillery, went into Holly Springs. The ground being steeply surrounded, and the Court House was taken by surprise.

Our troops did not offer much resistance. 1,500 were taken prisoners and only 140 escaped. We had only two regiments there, the balance having been sent to look after four thousand horses of cotton were burned, twenty-five wagons belonging to the Second Illinois Cavalry were loaded up and 200 men were killed.

General Curtis has received a dispatch from Gen. Heron, stating that Hood has crossed the Arkansas river with his infantry, while Mumfords is on the north side with his cavalry.

Handfuls from Hindman's army are daily joining Heron, many of them Missourians, who express the greatest disgust at the rebel campaign, and think the further prosecution of the war hopeless.

Washington, Dec. 22. The President has acknowledged the reception of the resignations of the Secretary of State, Mr. Seward, and the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Chase, and has informed them that after due deliberation he has come to the conclusion that the acceptance of these resignations would be incompatible with the public welfare.

The expedition was a perfect success. I burned the railroad bridge at Goldsboro and Mt. Olive, and tore up several miles of the track of the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad. We fought four engagements, viz: at South west Creek, Kingston, Whitehall, and Goldsboro, and whipped the enemy handsomely each time.
