WHICH IS WHICH.

The remarkable agreement of opinion. between some of the leading demogratic papers of the Free States with the organs of the rebel government, somewhat obviates the difficulty we appearence in arriving at rebel ideas through their own journals. For instance, the arguments in the Richmond Enquirer. the organ of the rebel leaders, may be found repeated in the Detroit Free Pires, its abuse intensified, its misrenresentations added to. Both write in violent partisanship of McClellan. Both are untiring in their abuse of these they call obolitionists. Both appose with engal bitterness the President's Emancipation Proclamation. Both support the milk and water policy which has cafried as from failure to failure for the last eighteen months. Both arraign Secretary Stanton. Both say and do praything in their power to embarass the Government. The Enquirer exults over the dissolution of the best government on the face of the earth, The Free Press with a flood of crockodile tears, but in displayed letters, repeals the outrageous sentiment. The; of the bones calls the President a bar-Barlan and cannibal. The Free Press calls on the President to resign. Both Lave a decided, and outspoken aversion morthe confiscation act.

The Enquirer, no doubt, believes itself to be devoted to its own section and the interests thereof. There may posse bly be something praiseworthy in that, It is coming to be pretty generally beto the same section and cause. The locality of the merit, in that, we ventere to say, is undiscoverable.

In the early gray of the morning the transport fleet got under weigh again, the NorthStar leading, and soon came in sight of the city of Baton Rouge. The gunboats were already opposite it, movng up and down; to discover the fortifications where the rebel battery was supposed to be planted. The old intrenchments mentioned in the first part of this letter were easily seen, just north of the city, but not a gun was inounted upon thom. There were no evidences of any recent works, and in fact, nothing more than a strong picket guard was expected here. The town seemed almost deserted, only a few negroes and fewer white people being seen. They came down to the banks or stood on the street corners look. ing at the operations in the river. A solitary secesa horseman, wearing the uniform of a rebel officer, rode along the banks watching the gunboats, and finally he harried off toward the woods that covered the country behind the fortifications.
