Gestlemen.—I hereby certify that I have had Catarth for the years, and for the last six years have been a terrible sufferer. I was rendered partially deaf, had buzzing in the head, pains acress the teaf, had buzzing in the head, pains acress the deaf, had buzzing in the head, pains acress the cleat, and every indication of consumption. My head ached all the time. The matter accomplated so rapidly in my head and throat that I could not keep them free. Frequently at night I would spring out of bed, it seemed to me, at the point of suffocation. I would then have recourse to every means in my power to dislodge the macusifrom my throat and head before being able to alseep again. For a period of six years my tonsils were nicerated and so much inflamed that I could with difficulty swallow. I finally consulted an amineat surgeon in regard to an operation on them, but at his request postponed it. The constant indemnation and niceration in my throat caused by the prosonous matter dropping down from my head and matriated and inflamed my lungs that I coughed incessantly,—a deep, hard cough. Meanwhile my began to show the effects of this disease, so fact. I lost flesh, grew pale, and showed every symptom of an anxiy death by consumption. OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 28, 1880. Everybody acquiesces in Cincinnati and the 22d of June as the place and time for holding the Democratic Presidential Convention. First, because the place was not chosen as being specially advantageous to chosen as being specially advantageous to any particular candidate; and second, because the time is sufficiently late to enable the Convention to take advantage of any errors or dissensions in the two other Conventions. These dissensions, by the way, are likely to be formidable in the Republicans. The feeling between the Convention. The feeling between the Convention. The feeling between the Republicans of Republicans of Republicans. lican Convention. The feeling between of Pennsylvania. Grant's friends and Blaine's friends here is extremely bitter and is growing more so.

Threats are freely made that Grant shall terest in civil service reform than to the not profit by a nomination made under Grant influences in the Convention, we inous appointment of Pinchback just made, as Naval Officer at New Orleans, he being a Sherman, and the present incumbent being a Grant man. These things and numberless others are not calculated to promote peace at the Chicago Convention or harmony thereafter.

Grant influences in the Convention, we infer that it must require an extraordinary amount of attrition to rub up his wits so as to make them very bright. Mr. Curtis himself may care for his civil service notions, in which he is undoubtedly conscientions; but the mass of the party know too well that they are disregarded by the appointing power, to attach any importance to them. harmony thereafter.

Star Service.

Why the post routes that are run by railroads should be designated by such a scientific appellation, we are unable to tell. Undoubtedly Assistant Postmaster Brady has treated these mail routes as though they were in truth, as well as in name, "star" lines. He took them under his especial charge. They were his pet lines, as he abundantly demonstrated by his amazing partiality. He actually expended on these obscure lines, lit by the light of the stars, so to speak, several millions of dollars more than had been appropriated by Congress. The way it was done, so the public is given to understand, was by making contracts such as were never contemplated by Congress. A bill to make up this immense deficit, to which Mr. Hayes' pet,—the civil service,—is subjected by this liberal action of his officials, is now pending before Congress. Then frosts them over with white. Up in the morning, 'mid sunshine playing, And then, in an hour, drifting the mow,

Then stopping, he thinks of the children's Maying, And silently ceases to blow. With smiling and sighing, and raining and snowing,

He tries to catch up with the mild April And help them to moisten the valleys for 50 W M & And wake up the exquisite flowers.

From morrow to morrow till April is Then kissing her face, with its tremulous He leaves there a smile and a tear!

Then, mute with the sight of her wonderful graces, While shadows of night veil his sobbing In a tumult of rain the last anow he effaces, And meltingly dies at her feet!
