A shocking accident happened at the Capitol at Lansing, Thursday, showing the danger of the practice of sliding down banisters.

The little 12-year-old messenger of the House, Bert Clippinger, in play attempted to slide down the balustrade, starting a little more than half way down the second flight. He lost his balance and fell to the first floor, striking on the marble pavement. He was instantly killed; his neck was broken, and the cheek bone was broken. Lansing Gossip.

LANSING, Feb. 13, 1881.
 Man's censoriousness is only excelled by his covetousness. It is said of Columbus that while seated at a table with some royal personages, the subject of his discovery of America came up, and it was decided that the only singularity about him had been made his fault. Columbus took an egg and asked any one of the party to stand it upon end. After repeated trials they all failed, whereupon he took the egg, and tapping it gently on the table crushed the shell a trifle, and it stood erect. "Now," said the great navigator, "you can all do it." The discovery was made.

So it is in all the walks of life. An invention once discovered is so simple that a wonder no one had thought of it before. A sermon brings out and elucidates certain truths which seem so easy that it is strange no one had thought of them before.

An address is given with such fluency, and ease of gesture, and flow of thought that any one might do it as well, seemingly!

A newspaper article reads so smoothly, so life-like and natural that the merest tyro would seem to be able to write it as well. And so, many people in the world view with censoriousness those individuals who make a discovery or who possess the power to simplify the problems of life down to the capacity of their comprehension.

Nature is the one great artist and those inventors who harness the forces of nature and in simplicity, simplicity, and life-like reflection come nearest that perfection which all should strive to attain.

This is the work of an article in the world to write on contemplation of the future. It will be a work of great attitude and possibly of more magnitude.

George Swann, a former grocery dealer in this village, is about to return and resume business at the old stand.

A man from Bath drove a rickety horse and buggy to town last Saturday, and on reaching the village, "common decency" made the positive and unqualified declaration accompanied with much exclamation and profanity, that he could "thrive" on a horse and a man in Lansingburg.

A young man from the nearby vicinity accompanied him with a collar and elbow, following him down the hill to the bath, where he picked up a row with the iron snapper, got sent to grass a couple of times, after which, concluding he had been satisfied with the result, he returned to the bath, and on his way back he started for home with his head full of paint, white and blue style of ornamentation.

Then the white-winged dove of peace came once more to her roosting place.

We are proud to meet this week Friday evening at Labor's Hall by the Owosso Dramatic Club. Our people have a fine impression respecting the troupe and will fill the hall.

Business is lively on our streets, and the nearer we get to the ground the more we use the alighting. "Blessings brighten as they take their flight."

The Legislature appears to be in the throes of agony over what would seem to the ordinary mind one of the simplest questions of license or prohibition.

Now, although I honestly believe that the license law has diminished the number of saloons about one-third, and the number of saloons in the township of Owosso from what it was under the prohibitory law, and although I believe that the return to the old system would result in an increase of the traffic and a consequent curse to the community, to say nothing of the pecuniary loss to municipalities; still the question of submitting this matter to the people should not stay legislation a moment. This a Democratic government and the majority should rule, and whether they vote it up or down the minority should acquiesce.

There are people who never can be made to believe that prohibition is a failure and if they want to vote on it every two years, they should be allowed to do so as long as it involves no expense to the State.

There is no use in going against license simply because it is a licensing a wrong, when the result proves that it is a blessing to the community in its results. The only wonder is that some people don't object to marriage license, because there is undoubtedly a deal of harm done by them. I feel it every day of my life. Where's my wife!
