Swindling Farmers. The reports of farmers being swindled by traveling sharpers are less numerous than they were a few years ago. Farmers are not asanxious as they were of becoming agents for the sale of useless implements, or to purchase patent rights. They are more careful about signing orders for lightning-rods and advancing money for goods to be delivered in the future. In brief, they are sionally reported, but when they are it is evident that the sharpers have been obliged to resort to some new dodge in order to insure success. Appropriations, especially those with a "steal" in them, have increased in an enormous ratio and the expenditures have increased in like ratio. And while a pretense is made of prosecuting the Star Route thieves who were given their opportunity to steal by the party leaders, it is well understood that the prosecution is only a pretense. No one believes there will be any conviction. The party itself and Findings always to hand.

But the public experience of attempts at "reform within the party," when the party is the Republican party, does not sanction the belief that the demon of extravagance and corruption will be exorcised by any such attempts. Nothing but the expulsion of the party from power will have that effect; and that expulsion is an object which may well command the best efforts and the utmost sacrifices of all who believe in honesty and economy. It will be said, perhaps—indeed, it often is said by Michigan Republicans that this is a national matter and has nothing to do with State politics. But it is not truly said. The Republican party of the nation can only be beaten satis-factorily and effectively by beating it in the States where it has the strongest hold on power. There is another reason why this issue we have pointed out, has as much to do with State as with national politics. Right here in the State of Michigan there is just the same disregard of honesty and economy in government as there is in Washington. THE UNCLE'S LEGACY RY WITLIAM COMPTONS

Our village, like villages in general, contained an eccentric old gootleman. His name was Peace; and, as he wore green speciacles, preverent persons were accustomed to designate him by the name of Green Fore Notwithstanding the fact that he had some whimsical notions, he was a very welldisposed man, and, in so far as his rather limited means permitted he was generous to the poor. But he had one nephew, a bright chough little lad, who was prone to mischief. Being of a very lively and entire disposition, little Arthur liked to play tricks upon testy persons, and upon his Uncle Pease in particular.

As he grow older Arthur grew wiser. and by the time he had reached his six | teenth year he was remarked for his manly behavior and his intelligence. But Arthur's reformation came too late promised legacy from his uncle. to prevent a catastrophe to his viidle which he deplored to the end of his life. Arthur was about fifteen years of age when "Green Peas" removed to the an heir.

There, indeed, dwelt Lucinda W.——, fallen heir to one thousand dollars. So previously evinced a fancy for Lucinda, in a higher order of beings than ever while his attentions to the young lady inhabited this dusty globe.

Now. Arthur did not actually want had not been so marked as to give him

But such a suspicion would have been very unjust to Arthur, who really loved Lucinda with his whole heart, and his passion was fully returned by the young lady, although she was woman enough to veil that secret closely until the youth should declare his love to her.

And now it was that Lucinda had some misgivings about the young man's intentions, since he seemed to have been less assiduous of late than he had formerly been. The true reason never occurred to her. She had always heard that men had no objection to come into the possession of money, even if it was found to be in the hands of the woman they took for better or for worse.

While Arthur thus hesitated, and Lucinda thus doubted, the tidings were brought to the village that the uncle; "Green Peas," was attacked with the dropsy and could live but a few weeks longer, and it was privately communicated to Arthur that his uncle would leave him a handsome legacy; and, finally, the lawyer who had drawn up the uncle's will made known this fact not only to Arthur, but to the whole village

Arthur felt no more scruples about arging his suit to Lucinda; but while he was cogitating in his mind how he could . best open his mind to her he received a visit from the village schoolmaster. The youth was not surprised at that. for, ever since his good fortune had become publicly known, many persons! who had previously passed him without deigning to honor him with a nod, had suddenly discovered that he was a lad of excellent promise and had shown a disposition to cultivate his acquaint-

Therefore, although the schoolmaster gentleman, whose father was a minister, Arthur regarded his visit as no more than what might have been naturally expected. The schoolmaster, however, did not so far forget his own dignity as to hide the fact from Arthur that he had called for the purpose of offering him a little good advice.

"I have heard of the change in your prospects," said the tutor. "So I supposed," answered the youth,

But, Augusta F--did not wait for the arrivar of the legacy. Meeting him on the street one day she looked at him and smiled very sweetly. Arthur bowed in return, and, from that moment he felt the binding of the silken chain. -Yes, it was not in his power to forget that look of hers which tallied so well with what the schoolmaster had told him. No doubt Augusta was pleased with him, or she never would have thus honored him with a smile even before he had spoken to her. A few days afterward there was a party at the great house, and Arthur received a note containing a polite invita-tion, signed by the fair hand of Augusta

Who could remember the humble Lueinda after that? But Lucinda remembered Arthur, and was somewhat saddered by his long absence: yet it was without a pang of jealousy that she heard her young friends talk of the party at the great house, of the songs 'that were sung, the games that were played, and that Arthur had danced with Augusta, who seemed to be highly delight-

He sent up his name, and the servant very soon returned, saying: "Miss Augusta is sorry to say that she has an engagemet which will prevent her from seeing Mr. Pease

The servant, at the same time, stared in Arthur's face with a sancy grin on his own countenance, and as he slammed the door in the youth's face the latter overheard him saying to somebody in the vestibule: "Did Sam Harris tell you bout that wooden leg in de box? In penning the last few words Arthur could perceive that Lucinda's hand had trembled.

He could not doubt that the poor girl really loved him; but how could be renew his attentions to her after having shown his preference for Augusta? How could be say to her, in acts if not in words: "As Augusta has discarded me I come back to you?" One thing he was fully resolved upon; he would not receive the thousand dollars of Lucinda, and, without a minute's reflection, he tore the check into fragments and threw them into the fige.

Use the Veto:

If the veto power is good for anything it is good to prevent the spoliation of the public treasury.

The President has no power similar to that conferred on the Governor of this State by the excellent constitutional amendment of 1874, which enables him to veto certain items in an appropriation bill while approving others. The President must either sign the bill as a whole, or reject it as a whole. AM D.

Is daily winning glory in the early harvest fields of Texas, while the traveling venders of certain Old Style out of Date so called Self-Binders are making frantic appeals to the farmers of Shiawassee County, to buy their old fashioned an ment of rights of citizens on account of sex. tiquated machinery which they find will no longer 'sell upon its merits, and which they are striving desperately to-sustain in the market on the strength of a reputation which they claim it might have had several years ago. This is an age of Progression and Wonderful Improvements, and the Buokeye Cord Binder like the Electric Light has Come to Stay, and will shine in the harvest of 1882 not only in Texas, where it is now outstripping all competitors, but in Shiawassee County in the State of Michigan, and in every other county in every other State in every other country where "Grass is Grown and Grain is Sown."

The Improved Buckeye, Cord Binder is a Daisy and sells at sight, as witness the fact that we have now sold on straight orders in Shiawassee County seventeen of these machines up to date, May 29, 1882, the frantic efforts and gross misstatements of unscrupulous representatives of inferior concerns notwithstanding.

The Buckeye Binder is winning new laurels every day in the early southern harvests, and its fame is preceding it as the harvest season advances northward, and it is bound to be the popular machine in all the vast country between the Gulf of Mexico and the great northern lakes.

The great Buckeye Companies at Akron and Canton, Ohio, who are building yearly about 40,000 machines, and who, though putting forth their utmost efforts, have never yet failed to fall far short of supplying the demand for their popular goods have long ago established a reputation as first-class Manufacturers which no explosion of competing gas works can annihilate.

Below we give some of the late advices from Texas and South Carolina, where hundreds of Buckeye Cord Binders are now running in full tune:

The Buckeye Cord Binder in Texas again Heard From.

AUSTIN, Texas, May 19th, 1982. clater Telegram. All Cord Binders throughout the State of Texas at work. Not a single complaint from anywhere on breakages of any kind; no second visit needed; no use for experts. | From the Hico (Texas) Times Editorial, May 18th, 1882.}

In the Harvest Field.

Last Monday we took time and Hellum's gray horse by the forelock and went out to the farms of Measts, McCarty and Ballow, who had just purchased one of the celebrated Duckeye Twine Binders D. J. Brown, the local agent, sold the machine and, assisted by Mr. J. Briggs, the traveling state agent, set it up and statted it. Three rounds were make in the twenty acre field of May wheat, unevenly planted and ripened, but not a bundle was missed or slighted. Everything worked perfectly and those who witnessed the movements were delighted with the machine. Soveral other makes of Binders were working in adjacent fields, and parties who had seen them all at work said the Buckeye is far more than ple, takes up a third less room, and is more easily operated than any other Binder. We much prefes the Buckeye Binder to any other machine. It runs as easily as a dropper, and saves the labor of ave men We also saw a Buckeye Dropper, that was doing excellent work on Mr. Richardson's form. Aultman Miller & Co., Akron. Ohio, Texas headquarters at Dalias, manufacture very superior machinery, and their muchines are deservedly popular.

AUSTIN, Texas, May 18th, 1822.

Wm. Koenia & Co., St. Louis, Mo Never have to be looked after when once set up, and they start easier than others. Boys and 1 trimers. Respectfully Yours. C. A. HARDY. GRETERMEN: The Buckeye Cord Binders go off like a charm. They are giving no trouble at all ed to her hisband on salary account. A bill sat them up and start them without any assistance. Respectfully Yours, ALTON, III., May 17, 1882.

We started new Twine Hinder yesterday on farm of Thus Woods, on American bottom, in heavy, green wheat, part offit hadly down and tangled. In culting nearly one-half somethe flinder some missed a single bundle, making a nice, clean separation, both Harvester and Binder doing its work to perfection. We put the machine to the most severe test possible, the wheat being heavy enough to make a bundle shout every eight feet, and while it teated the capacity to the utmost, neither flavoreter nor Binder developed a single weak point. Yours truly. MILNOR, AUTEN & CO. Binder developed a single weak point. Yours truly, MILNOR, AUTRN & CO.

P. S.—Two farmers present to witness the test. Both gave us their orders for Buckeyes. M., A. & Co.

The Buckeye Harvester and Binder No Experiment.

Rock Hirt, York Co., S. C., May 11, 1482.

GENTLEMEN: -- I have purchased one of your Miller's Buckeye Wire Binders, and worked with R to my entire satisfaction. In my opinion, it settles the question of making bread at Home, and solvies the problem of how to make our country prosperous. It supplies labor with thoughtful methods, offers a premium to intelligence, and will make our farming community more independent. IREDELL JONES. Rouse Bespectfully, Mn. LewisMillian writes from Austin, Terns, May 18th. There seems to be nothing to correct or change in our Buckeye Cord Rinders. They need no second visit when started. In fact, there seems to be a perfect hit. The margines, as they go from the shop, are adjusted exactly right, and needs then intelly declarance.
