In his sphere he was proficient, and he kept his wits upon the alert for everything that might be turned to profitable use. Thus it was that as he sauntered along one of the main thoroughfares of Cincin- were raised last year by M. George O. nati, as has been stated, his attention Mason, of Beverly, Mass. was suddenly arrested by a voice singing clear and full above the noises of the street, and giving utterance in an un-mistakable dialect, to the refrain of a song to this effect:

An' ebery time I turn about I jumps Jim Crow."

Struck by the peculiarities of the performance, so unique in style, manner and "character" of delivery, the player listened on. Were not these elements—was the suggestion of the instant—which night admit of higher than mere street or stable yard developement?

As a national or "race" illustration, behind the footlights, might not "Jim Crow" and a black face tickle the fancy of pit and circle as well as the "Sprig of Shillallah" and a red rose? Out of the suggestion leaped the determination; and so it chanced that the casual hearing of a song trolled by a negro stage driver, lolling lazily on the box of his vehicle, gave origin to a style of music destined to excel, for the time being, in popularity all others, and to make the name of the obscure actor, W. D. Rice, famous.

As his engagement at Cincinnati had nearly expired, Rice deemed it expedient to postpone a public venture in the new-ly projected line until the opening of a fresh engagement should assure him op-portunity to share fairly the benefit ex-pected to grow out of the experiment. This engagement had already been entered into, and accordingly shortly after, in the autumn of 1830, he left Cincinnation than formerly.

Entering upon duty, Rice prepared to take advantage of his opportunity. There was a negro in attendance at Griffith's Hotel, on Wood street, named Cuff-an exquisite specimen of his sort—who won a precarious subsistence by letting his open mouth as amark for boys to pitch pennies into, at three paces, and by carrying the trunks of passengers from the steamboats to the hotels. Oil flowed suddenly and freely, and the derrick, engine-house, and the adjoining bushes were well sprinkled with the greacy fluid. It was not according to Capt. Murphy's idea that the outer world should as yet be made aware that he had a big well. The oil men would soon be flocking to the vicinity, and if traces of the oil tand traces were large and pronounced) were seen about the rig and grounds the four winds of heaven, leaving the Western Union Telegraph and reporters out of the question, would soon spread the tidings to the four quarters of the earth. Then the story of the gas explosion was circulated. It seems to be a generally conceded fact among oil men that when there is much gas there is little oil, and so as the story circulated and was spread by the newspapers, the general verdict was rendered, "The Murphy well isn't good for anything." But Capt. Murphy knew better, and as the price of oil stiffened a little he sold short, and whon 646, and later Murphy, broke the market, becovered the shorts and reaped a rich harvest.

A BEMARKABLE COINCIDENCE. It is a matter of journalistic record, that some years since, a schooner set sail from | cocious growth of the body at that age, Baltimore, having on board a crew of thirteen men. By a most singular freak of nature, the entire force was attacked by a skindisease, which manifested itself in large nlcerated scres on the arms and hands, wholly incapacitating the men from duty. The result was that the vessel was towed back to the city where the men were placed in the hospital. Moral: Had Swayne's Ointment for skin diseases been used in the first place, the crew would have recovered in from 12 to 24 bours.

Early Maturity and the Teeth.

A young breeder asks whether animals that are said to mature early show this maturity in the teeth as well as in a preor whether they still require the ordinary time to perfect the teeth. In cases of real early maturity, the teeth are as far advanced as other indications of ripeness. Dr. Martin, of Kentucky, an intelligent breeder, made careful observations upon this point in his own herd, as well as among those of his neighbors, many years ago, and found that the best Short-horns had perfect teeth, or a full mouth, at three years old, while native cattle in the same region did not show the same maturity of teeth till five years old.

There were many objections to Dr expressed as to the accuracy of his observations at the time, but they have been fully corroborated by many observers

'Several years ago, the London Agricultural Gazette had a series of illustrations of the teeth of certain cattle, with the actual age stated, and remarked: The permanent dentition is often comploted in bulls of the most advanced type at three years of age, instead of five or six years, according to the old standard." This effect of early maturity applies to all our domestic animals used as food. Some English butchers have declared that their most particular customers preferred the meat of those earliest matured. This also reverses the strongly-expressed opinion that the years to mature. It is not probable that fatal? many animals, reared expressly for meat, will be kept beyond 31 months, a few years hence. - National Live-Stock

Such are a few of the inequalities of our present tariff system, and such are the inequalities that the Democratic party wanted to remove in 1880, and intends to remove if it ever has the power and opportunity.

Why Democrats Voted against the Naval Appropriation Bill.

The torries des Etats Unis, a New York paper published in the French language. Wishing to reduce our stock before explains that the Democrats of the House the arrival of our Spring purchases, we voted against Robeson's Naval Appropriation bill, not, as charged by Republicans, because they are opposed to helping the government promote public interests, but because the knaveries of Robeson, and the character of secretary Chandler, who would carry the measures into execution, put them on their guard the spur of competition the chemical against another job of robbery and corruption. After narrating some incidents of the earlier political career of Robeson, in which, from a poor lawyer he became worth nearly half a million in a few months after be became Secretary of the 'Navy, under Grant, the article savs: But here is something worse yet. Mr. Robeson, when he took charge of the Navy Department, found upon the list of active service 203 vessels of all kinds, the best remaining of the 600 vessels that the nation possessed at the end of the war. During the eight years of his administration, with appropriations amounting to $182,496,033, he caused eight new vessels to be built, and condemned seventy, from the material of which, joined to the enormous quantity of material in the arsenals and workshops, he realized an additional sum of $50,000,000. What became of all this money the accounts of the department have never satisfactorily. shown. All that is known is that considerable material was disposed of under his be like the Grotto del Cane at Naples. administration-boilers, engines, &c., or like the Channel tunnel when Dr. which might still be used-at nominal Siemen's proposed scheme of carbonic prices, and for the benefit of favorite job- acid is in operation a place where bers; and that in some cases these material als were purchased at a profit of one thousand per cent. For example, one lot of 4,538,781 pounds of iron, sold as* 'old iron." for which three cents a pound; could be casily got, was exchanged at the rate of eight pounds of old for one pound of new. This was a clear gift of three million pounds of iron. All these facts have been thoroughly proved in the past; and it is these facts that made Admiral Porter declare that at the lowest estimate from sixty to seventy million dollars expended by Mr. Robeson would have been saved by a wide and honest administration. It will also be remembered that, at the time! when he was about to retire, during the figst week of the Hayes Administration, Mr. Robeson hurriedly distributed among his favorites contracts for boilers, repairs, p ke, amounting id editions of Ablians.

Gan and Electric Lights There is no need to jump to the conchision, as so many people did when the report of Mr. Edison's inventions. first came from America, that gas is a thing of the past and that electricity has already won the battle. No doubt electricity is gaining upon its rival, but that all electric lights are better Every poor man needs window glass, and than all gas-lights is a proposition that window glass bears a tariff of from 58 to is easily disproved by anyone who takes a walk at night down Holborn and seross the viaduct. The city authorities, who, whatever their faults, are ready enough to make experiments for the public service, are trying the Edison incandescent on the viaduct and the Siemens improved gas in Holborn. We do not know anything of the relative cost of the two systems, but as far as the light is concerned there is simply no comparison. The gas triumphs all along the line. There are other reasons which should make prudent people hesitate before investing in any of the multitudinous Shop north-east corner of Water and electrical companies with which the market is now being flooded-for example, there is the question of patents, and the extreme difficulty of deciding whether one system is not an infringement of another. There is, again, the question, which only time can decide, of which system or systems are really the best. Still, time will decide these points, and though many an unhappy investor may suffer, the public will benefit. For there are no two opinions about the desirability of finding some substitute for the foul gas which we are at present condemned to burn in our houses and buildings. It may be that under advisers of the gas companies will discover some way of making the gas they supply less trying to eye and brain, less ruinous to our books, our ceilings, our wall-papers, and whatever else comes in contact with-its fumes. Till that is done, or till electricity has come in to help us, many of us have returned to the candles and oil lamps of our ancestors in sheer despair. At present, too, an evening in a theatre or concert-room is an evening of penance; for in all the London theatres but two or three there is no adequate ventilation, so that the combination of gas-lamps and crowds make the atmosphere intolerable. We can not hope that managers and architects will ever master the theory of ventilation, but we may hope for an alleviation of our sufferings when the electric light is generally adopted. The one London theatre which at pressent possesses it is a striking and welcome exception to the general rule which demandsthat a place of amusement should

> London Times. The foundation of the present silk manufacture in the United States was laid in the making of sewing-silk. In 1843 the first establishment in Philadelphia for making sewing-silk was started, and in 1852 a ribbon factory was built. Since the year last named the sewing-silk and twist manufacture has wholly freed itself from foreign rivalry, but is subject to the keepest home competition. The total value of the silk manufactures for the census year 1850 was $1,809,746; for 1860, $6,607,771; for 1870, $12,210,662, and for 1880, $34,-
