The Seven Biddles of the World.
 Prof. Du Bois-Reymond is one of the most prominent members of the Berlin Academy of Sciences. When he delivers his popular lectures there is not a lecture-room in Berlin large enough to accommodate his hearers. He is far from being a theist; still less is he a Christian. In an address delivered by him on "The Limits of Natural Science," he propounded what he called "The Seven Biddles of the World"—riddles which have never been explained, and the majority of which never can be by mechanical laws.
 The first riddle is the nature and essence of matter and force.
 The second is the origin of motion.
 The origin of life is the third.
 The fourth is the apparent design of nature.
 The fifth is the origin of consciousness.
 The sixth is the origin of national thought and language.
 The last is the freedom of the will. Of this Du Bois-Reymond says: "Our seventh difficulty is none if one resolves to deny the freedom of the will and to declare the subjective conviction of freedom as an illusion, otherwise it is inexplicable."

Michigan Crop Report.
 For this report returns have been received from 780 correspondents, representing 2,000 townships, and four of these returns are from 271 townships in the four northern counties.
 The area seeded to about this fall is estimated at three per cent. less than was seeded in 1881, and this condition is estimated at 92 per cent. the comparison being with quality and growth of average crops.
 The number of acres of corn raised in Michigan in the year 1881, as reported to the Department by the Supervisors, was 773,533, yielding nearly 21,000,000 bushels. The average was greater than in any previous year, but the aggregate yield less than in 1880 or in 1879. The average in 1882, estimated by correspondents in June, on the basis of the average in 1881, was nearly 810,000 acres. The yield per acre, as estimated November 1, is 68 bushels of ears or about 34 bushels of corn, indicating an aggregate product of about 27,500,000 bushels. Though corn was not fully matured at the time of the first frost, yet it is evident that the crop as a whole has not been materially damaged.
 The area in oats in 1881 was 465,263 acres, and the yield, 15,352,706 bushels. The average this year was about 453,000 acres, and the yield 15,400,000 bushels or upwards of 50,000 bushels more than produced in 1881. The figures for 1882 are based on the correspondents' estimate of acreage made in June, and the returns from threshing machines made in September and October.
 Both the acreage and yield per acre of clover seed are less than in 1881. Potatoes are estimated to yield one-fourth more per acre on an average eleven per cent. greater than that of 1881. The estimates on the condition of beef cattle and sheep, and the probable yield of winter apples and late peaches, are substantially the same as in October. The estimates for apples and peaches are not shown in the table.
 Reports have been received of the quantity of wheat marketed by farmers during the month of October at 302 elevators and mills. Of these, 247 are in the southern four tiers of counties, which is about one-half of the whole number of elevators and mills in these counties. The total number of bushels reported marketed is 1,870,668, of which 310,016 bushels were marketed in the first or southern tier of counties; 544,632 bushels in the second tier; 333,026 bushels in the third tier; 375,832 bushels in the fourth tier, and 307,696 bushels in the counties north of the southern four tiers. At 34 elevators and mills, or eleven per cent. of the whole number from which reports have been received, there was no wheat marketed during the month.
 The total number of bushels reported marketed in the four months, July, August, September and October, is 4,214,257.
