VARIETIES.

Dr. S. W. Madden, of Scranton, Pa., was arrested on complaint of a young lady of Lancaster that he had chained her in a room for seven weeks. He states that it was agreed that he should obtain a divorce and that the complainant should marry him, but that she undertook to break her contract.

In the Sharon divorce case at San Francisco, a female witness undertook to draw a revolver on one of the counsel, and her son made a similar attempt. Judge Sullivan declined to hear further testimony unless the policemen at the entrance to the court-room would certify that no one present was armed.

A man calling himself Dr. Cross recently wrote from Chicago to Sir John A. Macdonald that he could unveil a plot matured in the United States to destroy the Canadian parliament buildings with dynamite. Cross was invited to visit Ottawa, where he is said to have given satisfactory evidence to sustain his charges.

The funeral of C. M. Fleetwood and wife, who were murdered at Ashmore, Illinois, was attended by a vast number of people, who made threats of lynching the suspected man. In Winkleblack's room have been found a pair of his pants with the left leg bathed in blood. He is in jail at Charleston. L. R. Redmond, the famous illicit distiller of South Carolina, is to be returned to Columbia prison from the Auburn penitentiary, where he is serving a term for killing revenue officers. Senator Butler secured the change by showing that the prisoner is a cripple, carrying seven bullets, and is dying by inches in a cold climate.

Fifteen prisoners in the Milwaukee jail, mostly burglars and highwaymen, have been locked in their cells for an attempt to escape. Jailer Walsh was called to furnish coal, and as he unlocked the grated door he was struck in the face and blinded by ashes. He sprang back and pushed the bolt in time to retain the prisoners.

James McHenry, the English railway magnate, was arrested by a federal marshal on board a steamship about to leave New York, on account of a judgment obtained years ago by the Erie road. Rather than be delayed, he turned over to President Jewett bonds and stocks aggregating $1,800,000, with a written promise to pay the remainder.

Democrats in Crawford County Win A Victory.

PERE CHENEY, Crawford Co. Mich. April 8th, 1884.

Owosso Pres:-

Yesterday was a day long to be remembered in Cheney. Since the first organization of our township, (Center Plains,) There has been a Republican ring in Cheney that have run the town financially and every other way for their own especial interest and the interest of their party, until they believed that they couldn't be routed. They ransacked the lumber camps and brought out men that the settlers knew nothing about; their names were registered and they votedmen that many of us had never heard of.

But the Democrats went into the field determined on victory, and we gained it -did it fairly. We did it by the voters that we knew, men living right among us-by men that had got their eyes open. They had got tired of paying their money without knowing where it went to. They did know where $125 of it went (salary to Township Treasurer). Well when the vote was counted they found they had elected Clerk, School Inspector, and one constable, and according to reports, we will tie them on the Board of Supervisors and it is thought that we will have a majority of one. Every member of the Board last year was a republican; every one of our township officers elected last spring was a republican. Heavy snow storm to day. The snow goes about as fast as it comes. Wheat and clover came through in fine condi-From the nature of the discussion which a crop. The chief occupation of the in-tion. There is nothing to discourage us

Professional Dusters.

A new "profession" is thus described by one of its members to a New York Sun reporter: "I'm a duster," said a young woman whom a reporter met in a private house up town—"a professional duster. I'm not the only one. It's a regular profession, dusting is, nowadays. The parlors of the rich have grown to be so many museums of delicate and costly ornaments. To dust and arrange these collections every day would too severe-ly tax the strength of the wealthy ladies. To set the servants at the work was found to be bad management, not because they were bungling and liable to smash the delicate fabrics, but bespare from their other duties. Therefore, the mistresses employ competent women to keep their parlors in order.

The dusting business is an established industry, but it is confined to the metropolis, and almost entirely to the region of brown-stone fronts. All the dusters I know of are women who have wrists and arms. To visit a dozen more. At some houses where the hostess entertains a good many guests the rooms are arranged every day. Orders are given to the dusters to change the arrangement of the appointments every time they come. Then, again, a duster must know how to take hold of every sort of knick-knack and how to move sort of brush to use for every sort of 50 cents to $6. dusting. The brush that will not break a filmy tissue of glass is useless on a piece of furniture, and would not reach the ceiling corners. She must have several brushes, and she must not be careless or slapdash for an instant. There are few bits of bric-a-brac in these parlors that I could replace with UNNECESSARY BLOODSHED. How a Company of Soldiers Was Siain when There was no Occasion for a Fight.

The Mexican and Indian war pension bill recalls to my mind some scenes of bloody warfare with the red devils," said a frontiersman to the Washington correspondent of the Indianapolis Journal. "It has refreshed my memory of some terrible slaughters," he continued. "Some time during the month of August, 1854, the tide of immigration into the Pacific slope country was very great, and em-braced those en route to the gold fields of California and Utah, the latter settling at the base of the mountain for the purpose of founding a Mormon colony. A train of the Mormon emigrants passed Fort Laramie on the old overland road to the west. One of their oxen gave out and was left on the road to die. A short distance below Fort Laramie, on the Platte river, a large body of Sioux Indians, composed of the Bentees and Ogalalas, were encamped. An Indian from one of the Missouri valley tribes wandered from his band across the country on a visit to the tribes I have named and found the abandoned ox. The Indian was starying, and finding the east-off animal from the Mormons, he killed it and took some of the flesh to the camp of the Ogalalas. The Mormons who had left the ox, learning that it had been killed by the Sioux, at once appealed to the officer in command at Fort Laramie for compensation for the ox.

"At that time there was a law by which the whites were paid for all property lost by the Indian depredations out of the annuities belonging to the tribes who committed the damage. Lieut. Grattan, then in command at Fort Laramie, sent for the Bear, chief of the Brules, and demanded the surrender of the young man who killed the ox. The chief replied:

"'The Indian does not belong to my tribe, and by an agreement amongst us I cannot deliver him to you. But rather than have any trouble with the soldiers I will pay you as many horses as you

"Lieut. Grattan told the chief to return to his people and tell them that on the following day he would come with his troops to their camp, and if the In-dian was not delivered he would be obliged to take him by force. On the following day an interpreter was dispatched in advance to say that the troops were coming, and that they would demand the surrender of the Indian who killed the ox. Whilst the interpreter was en route to the chief. bearing the message of the commander, he found whisky at a station and became intoxicated. He mounted his horse and made toward the Indian camp. As he entered the camp, reeling on his horse, he took from his mouth two or three bullets, extended them in his hand toward the chief, and

"'We have come to give you these,' shaking the bullets in the face of the chief in a menaging manner.

'The chief paid but little attention to the interpreter, thinking the proposition that he had already made was satisfactory. The lieutenant, however, soon made his appearance with a com-pany of twenty-nine soldiers, armed with muskets and provided with a howitzer. The troops were drawn up in line before the Indian camp in a semicircle. The chief was sent for. He soon made his appearance, and the officer repeated his demand for the Indian who had killed the ox of the Mor-mon emigrants. The chief again, with sorrowful solemnity said:

"I cannot give you the man you demand. He does not belong to my camp. But you can have all the horses you demand in payment for the ox.' "No, sir, was the reply. And as the old chief turned his back to consult with his tribe he was shot severely. Both the infantry and the artillery opened fire on the Indians, who, seeing that a fight was inevitable, made full preparations to meet them. After the first fire the soldlers began to flee, but they were quickly surrounded by the Indians, and, like the battle of Thermopyles, but one was left to tell the tale to his comrades. He survived only a few days, and died of his wounds. "Thus aided," said the frontiersman, "one of the most uncalled for massa-ores ever enseted and recorded as a matter of history. These facts were obtained by a most reputable gentleman who was in the country at that time, making scientific investigations for the Academy of Natural Sciences. "Did this end the trouble?" I in-

"No, indeed," he replied. "In 1855 Gen. Harney was ordered with troops to proceed to the Brule country and pun-ish the tribe. He found an ancamp-ment of Indians at Ash Hollow who were in no way connected with the Grattan massacre. He killed eightythree old men, women and children in

"In December, 1866, another frightful massacre occurred, known as the. Fort Phil Kearney massacre. This fort is situated midway between the Platte and Big Horn rivers, on the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains. The fight occurred in the dead of winter, and himsty-one men and accompanying officers were killed. All that was ever known of this sad nifair was gleaned from the Indians who were engaged in the battle. A few years after the Phil Rearney slaughter the memorable inmade. It was removed that the Black Hills possessed marvelous riches in precious metals. A plan was agreed. upon here in Washington between the war and interior departments to carry out the invasion, estensibly for the purpose of general exploration. It drove out the game and indians, and the Custer massacre followed."

THE LEAP YEAR QUESTION. Do or Do Not Women Make the

There have been many able writers on the subject, and nearly all agree on one issue, and that is, that women are placed at a decided disadvantage in making a choice. There is just where the writer, though he may have no great experience, proposes not agree, but on the other hand to argue against the opinion. Magazines and other periodicals publish elaborately written articles deploring the alleged fact that a woman has no voice in the matter; that, however much she may adore a man, she must hold herself in reserve and patiently wait for him to pop the question. Perhaps he never does it, but she waits all the same, and finally, after long years of waiting, she marries some man she down's care a picayune for, or becomes the proverbial dried up old maid. A leading met-ropolitan journal, in a fervid edition on leap year, says: "Yet the unwritten laws of society, as unchangeable as those of the Medes and the Persians, hold the woman back under penalty of social ostracism. She must wait until some man condescends to bestow upon her his distinguished attentions. If she finds him worthy and lovable, and well suited for a husband, she must keep her mouth sealed. It would be highly improper to indicate by word or action that she would be pleased to walk side by side with him for life." This is all very fine. But it is bosh. Pure unadulterated nonsense, and evwill agree that the author knew nothing about it, or was talking for effect.

Directly contrary to this fact, the fact stands out in bold relief that the women make nine out of every ten matches. If she makes up her mind that she wants a man and goes for him, she wife during the balmy, romantic days of the courtship did not, in all the ten-der ways for which the sex is noted, make it apparent to him that his atten-tions were relished? That she liked to have him come and see her, and showed her preference for him in numberless little ways, after which there was not a shadow of indelicacy? If a man is naturally modest and bashful a good, sensible girl can make him feel so perfeetly at home and show that she appreciates and esteems him so much and would like, perhaps, to be more to him, that he finally throws off all serve, feels perfectly at home, and the proposal is made in a way so easy and natural that it comes as a matter of course to both.

Continuing, the inexperienced or hypothetical writer says: "Unless he speak the necessary words, it is all as means of improving their productive qualifit thad never been. He goes away ties, investigate the diseases to which they free to choose some other woman, while she must wait to be chosen by some other man." Poor thing! hard must be her lot, but if she wants the her, it can be bet on as a dead moral certainty that she is going to get him, and she don't say: "Will you marry me, John?" either. There are cases when a woman who has not specified. when a woman who has not spoken a word of affection considers that she

A woman can show her esteem in a hundred ways a man cannot. No matter what her walk in life, if she really feels as if she wanted a man for a husband, and would like the prerogatives of a man to tell him so, she can proceed and propose to him in demeanor without ever suspecting it, and he, if he is matrimonially inclined, feeling and knowing that his affection is reciprocated, proposes and is accepted.—

A Paris Adventure.

One of the most distinguished physicians in Paris met with a startling adventure the other day. His servant handed him, at 7 o'clock in the evening, a letter signed by an unknown person, asking the doctor's immediate attention for a relative of the person whose signature appeared at the bottom of the letter. The relative did not, however, live in Paris, but in St. Germain, at the old pavilion built by Henry IV. The address given was rather singular, but the letter contained 600 francs in crisp, new notes of the Bank of France. The case was represented as urgent; the patient intended leaving for the south of France in the morning.

'Could the doctor come at once?' It was furthermore suggested to him that the train that left Paris at midnight for St. Germain—the "theater train"-would be the best one to take. They would expect him at the pavilion; a room had been prepared, and he could return to Paris the first thing in

The confident tone of the letter and the snug sum inclosed decided the doctor. He left home that night in time to catch the midnight train. That night a dreadful storm burst over St. Germain. The doctor was afraid he would lose his way in the darkness, and secured the services of a trustworthy railway porter as pilot. When they arrived at the pavilion he was informed that 'no one of that name lived there," that "no doctor was expected." The door was slammed in the doctor's face, and he spent ery married woman, every married a portion of the night in the pelting man, and a good many single people rain, running from house to house to

The Morrison Bill Taken Up.

There was great anxiety in the House, Monday, as the time approached when it was decided whether or not Morrison's tariff bill was to be taken up. Yesterday the House in committee of the whole voted, 140 to 138, to take it up.' Applause by Democrats. All the Michigan Democrats voted to consider the bill, also seven Republicans voted in favor of it. Mr. Morrison made a speech in favor of the bill.

convention held last week instructed the delegates to Chicago to vote for Samuel J. Randall for candidate for President. The following resolution was adopted as an expression of the convention's views touching one of the great, political issues of the day: "We favor a tariff for revenue, limited to the necessities of the government economically administered, cago, and voted down a resolution inand so adjusted in its application as to prevent unequal burdens, encourage productive industries at home and afford just compensation to labor, but not to create or foster monopolies, and to this end we favor the abolition of the internal revenue system of taxes and such adjustment of existing tariff duties as will be consistent with these princi-

Exciting Times in Owoseo Yesterday. It was pay day on the new road yesterday, and a large number, of railroad men, were paid off. The streets in the afternoon were thronged with the men, all seeming eager to leave their hard-earned money with the saloons. Several disgusting fights occurred, and quite a number of men were seriously injured about the head by being struck with chairs. The excitement called outgreat numbers of citizens, and the sidewalk on both sides of Washington street below the National hotel, was a mass of people. Twenty-four arrests were made, raigned before Justica Taylor. They were let off on payment of costs.

-THE EASTER SERVICES at Christ

Church (Episcopal) were exceptionally fine. The suarise service was very largely attended, the church being filled. The music was exceedingly beautiful and impressive and the rector's remarks were seasonable and eloquent. The church was handsomely decorated with flowers. The regular service was attended by much more than the usual Sunday congregation and the services were appropriate and interesting.

The Children's Festival in the afternoon drew a crowd-the seats were occupied, the vestibule was filled, and FRIDAY EVENING LECTURES. - Rev Mr. | many went away unable to get even standing room. It was a pretty festival scene. The school marched from the rectory into the church from the outside, singing a processional hymn, each class bearing a banner, where a series of exercises took place—singing carols, solos etc., reading report, presentation of meritorious wreaths, address by the rector, etc., the whole crowned by the forming of a pyramid in the chancel composed of the wreaths and banners, which combined with the Easter flowers made a beautiful sight—so beautiful it seemed a pity to demolish it. Death of Mine Fenny Knill.

Fanny Laura, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Knill, of the Hotel Brunswick, Chicago, died the 11th inst., of rheumatism of the heart, aged 17 years and 8 months. She was born in Owosso and has kept up acquantance with her Owosso companions since the removal of her parents from this city. Last August she visited Owosso, the guest of Miss Alice Beckwith, to whom the death announcement by telegram was sent, on Friday. Fanny was a remarkably beautiful young lady, and those who knew her intimately say she was as good as she was beautiful. The funeral took place in Detroit. Monday. from the residence of Mr. S. A. Munger, Mr. Knill's son-in-law. The many Owosso friends of Mr. and Mrs. Knill express sympathy for them in their crushing affliction.

RETURN OF AN OLD SETTLER.-Mr. Lem-

uel Brown. Esq. one of the first settlers of Shiawassee county, and his wife, who are now residing at Topeka, Ks., are visiting in the county, and on Monday they came to Owosso to see Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Williams and talk over "auld lang syne." Mr. Brown was the first register of deeds in the county, also the first postmaster, and he opened the first mail bag opened in this county-it was at the old Shiawassee Exchange, near Bancroft. Mr. Brown married the Deacon's daughter, Miss Kate Lyman, and it is said they were the first couple married in the county. The marriage ceremony was performed by Hon. Sanford M. Green. Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Williams were present, as, indeed, were, all the notables of the county. Mr. Brown and B. O. on Monday talked over incidents of that occasion with as much clearness as if it had been only last year. Mr. and Mrs. Brown left Shiawassee county forty-four years ago, and have been back only once. In the mean time they have lived 14 years in Chicago, 19 years in Iowa and have been ten years in Kan-888. B. -William D. Holmos. The Art of Riding.

A few evenings ago, a reporter was passing by a well-known tiding sendcany when he was arrested by the sound of music coming from within the inclosure. Entering, he saw a large company of ladies and gentlemen riding through the figure of a quadride to the music of a string band. The sight was novel and striking, and while he lingered he engaged in conversation with the manager. "The ring is occupied very nearly every night by private classes such as you now see," said he. "They are former pupils of the academy. They grow tired of the opera, theatre, dinners, etc., but their equestrianism is never neglected."

"What style or how many styles of riding prevail here?" "The style we like best is the park, though of course many desire to acquire the English cross-country style. The park seat is the easiest and prettiest for smooth roads. With the park policeman gazing on significantly, and seat, the horseman rides with a long at Mann's corner you are paralyzed to stirrup and from the ball of the foot. The cross-country seat on the other hand, makes the rider send the foot home in the stirrup, which must there-. fore be a short stirrup. He throws the legs forward and the body backward. It is much affected by the more competent horsemen. Fancy riding is also greatly indulged in. Leaping and jumping have come into favor too, and I think we shall soon have as many artists in the saidle in this country as in England.' "Do ladies learn to ride more easily than gentlemen?' "They learn more readily and become more proficient. This is in consequence, I think, of the side-saddle used. A lady has a firm hold of her saddle not only with her leg, but she has the pommels for her hands if necessary. A gentleman has not. It is quite amusing sometimes to watch a beginner turn out his toes drop his bridle, and try to hang on with his fiery horse."

"Is it not very difficult to teach a person to ride?''

"The art of riding must be acquired. The seat and style are all that have to be taught. We have English, French and German teachers. The novice is first given a quiet horse to ride. As he learns to sit on his animal the degree of the temper of the animal is inastride a regular tearer. Of course the rider gets many a fell, and oftentimes he is thrown, but the fall is as nothing. You see the tan is soft, and he is up and at it again almost before he is down."-New York Mail and Ex-

Coasting in New England.

The double runner, a sort of camel sled, is dragged around and pointed down-town. There are half adozen passengers and two martyrs—one martyr pushes and the other steers. There is a miscellaneous sort of warning howl for lamp-posts and people to get out of the way, the pusher pushes, the steerer grabs the brake and braces his feet on the forward sled, which works on a pivot. Then the double runner, much resembling a long settee shooting through space, begins to hump herself and go. Pretty soon, about the time she passes Ohio street, you begin to pull your hat on tighter and feel consoled that you have an accident policy. Then she begins to go in earnest and you feel your hair rise, and soon again she goes faster.

There is your friend standing on Wood's corner. You say "Hullo, Jim!" at Court street and he will just catch it. At Columbia street you see some observe a doctor and a reporter lounging about and smoking, apparently prepared to make a night of it. The infernal machine shoots across the square and toward the bridge. You see a long row of lamp-posts and awning supports ahead, and in your fevered imagination there are two hayracks coming along by the postoffice. There is to be a second edition of 'The Wreck of the Grosvenor," and you shut your eyes with the mental exclamation, "Well, the fellow in front will get the worst of it." But there is a "swish" and a "whir-r," and the machine seems a little out of breath; slower, s-low-er, scratch; O, she's stopped! Holy smoke, what a ride.-Bangor Commercial.

VARIBILES

A veritable natural curiosity is in the possession of a St. Louis editor. It is the head of a two-year-old rattlesnake preserved in spirits, the lines and tracings on the back of which formed a very well defined picture of the head and bust of a woman. The gentleman states that he and a party of friends were resting under an apple tree in they perceived the reptile on a branch shove them, and, knocking it down with a whip, killed it.

A solution has been attempted by Mons de Garperin of the remarkable sunsets which have excited the wonder of the world. For many reasons he discards the hypothesis that they were due to the action of helling stars, and considers that the luminous effects were produced by the light of the sun falling on an atmosphere charged with particles of matter, in a state of minute subdivision, at a great height above the earth, the exact nature and origin of which dust had not yet however been determined.

Caleb Cushing's personal habits were alist and fond of the table, where he was sure of finding him there or of being able to ascertain where he was.

General Gordon, the commander of the English forces in Egypt, thus expresses his views as to a future life: 'I think this life is only one of a series of lives, which our incarnated part has lived. I have little doubt of our havtime of our pre-existence we were actively employed. So, therefore, I believe in our active employment in a future life, and like the thought. We future life, and indeed go on toward perfection, but never attain it." Cancer very seldom appears in persons under 80. It usually comes betropical countries, and more frequent among the poor than among the rich, among women than, among men, and it has been noticed that among the Trappists, Carmelites and Carthusian monks is almost unknown, a nireumstance ascribed to their abstinance from meat, while it was most common in mid-Europe, where mest is most eaten. In the Netherlands and Belgium it has increased of late years.

Millionaire and Miner.

In the lobby of the Riggs House the other morning two old-time friends met. One was Senator Bowen, of Colorado, the other, an old miner, who looked a trifle seedy. The Senator had nst emerged from the breakfast room. The miner stood idly gazing in the direction from which the Senator came.

"Hello! Tom Bowen. Why, bless my soul, you ain't changed a bit since I met you in the Rockles in '68," was the undignified salutation of the miner. "No, Bill," said the Senator, "I reckon I am about the same."

The two held a conversation for a short time, when the miner was overheard to sav: "Tom, stake me; I'm dead busted.

Ain't got a dollar.' The Senator pulled from his pocket a large roll of bills and counted out about $50 in money and handed it to his friend. They then separated. The Senator went to his room, and the other walked towards the bar, where a friend was awaiting him.

"Tom fixed me." said he: "but, aftpeculiar. Although a most charming |er all, he only did what I have done for companion, an agreeable conversation- him many a time. The most popular man in the medical school is Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, though he is no longer an active member of the faculty. The genial "autocrat" cannot stand entirely aloof from his first love, and almost every month he pays a visit to the doctor mill on the Back Bay. Some of the younger professors think that Dr. Holmes is pretty far behind the times-"an old logy, you know"—but the boys have no thought for them when the old Doctor comes in sight, trying to steal unseen through some open space. Applause and shouting bring the Doctor to a stop. The bright, strong face lights up with a happy smile, the white head bows to the youthful top-knots, and the slight, straight figure, bearing very easily the weight of 75 long years, tries to steal away again. But it won't do. The boys must have a speech, and the Doctor submits. How he brightens and sparkles! No dry remarks on anatomical subjects, no learned dissertation on medical principles. Only a talk with the boys, reminiscences of the college's earlier days, happy hits and flings, and then good-bye until another month has passed. - Boston Letter to Chicago Tribune.

Lagio Be Mone a Mystery Som From Across the World. "Harous of Aispee," held By Phillip Derval. "had mastered every secret in nature which the nobler magic seeks to fathom. He discovered that the true art of healing is to assist Nature to throw of the disease to summon, as it were the whole system to eject the enemy that has fustomed on a part. His probaises all included the reinvigoration of the principle of life,"

In this the Eastern sage merely anticipated th practice of the test physicians of to-day. Wha life itself is, nobody knew then-nowedy knows how. But see have learned something of the reasons why the mysterious tide rises and falls. Provided the great organs of the body are not irreparably destroyed, medical arience can always relieve. and often save. Yet no reputable physician new adheres to the barbarous and simple processes of depletion, such as bleeding, by which it was attempted to cure disease by reducing the patient's shility to resist it. Now-a-days we do not tear down the fort to help the garrison, we strengthen it. In this intelligent and beneficient work, it is concoded that PARKER'S TONIC leads all other medicines. As an invigorant it acts immediately and powerfully upon the circulation and the organs indig est ion, thus giving Nature the assistance she calls for. Rash Advice.

One blowing day last week, when the sidewalks were as slippery as glass, a woman stood in front of a door on Clifford street, and strewed some ashes from a pan she held on the icy walk. As she did so, the wind blew the coaldust rather freely over her, and a man

going past said:
"If you will turn your back to the wind it will blow the ashes from you instead of over you.

The woman thanked him with her eyes, but did not move. Indeed, she could not without losing her balance and the ashes both.

"Let me show you," said the man kindly, as he removed a fur glove and grasped with a determined grip the well-filled ash-pan. "You can throw them over the walk in this way, and not be liable to put your eyes out. It's as easy as rolling off a log," and he braced his back against the wind and gave a generous flop to the ash-pan.

The woman went into the house to get the ashes out of her hair and eyes and recover her health. When the police had dusted the man off and identified him they took him home. The only remark he made was:

"You can't most always tell from what quarter the wind will blow when you attempt to give advice about emptying an ash-pan."

At Ubet, M. T., during the cold snap in January, one of the most inhuman outrages known in the annals of crime was perpetrated on a young man who went West in the fall, hoping to make his pile in time to return in May and marry the New York heiress selected

While stopping at the hotel two frolicsome young women hired the porter to procure the young man's pantaloons at dead of night. They then sewed up the bottoms of the legs, threw the doctored garments back through the tran-som and squealed "Fire!"

When he got into the hall he was vainly trying to stab one foot through the limb of his pantaloons while he danced around on the other and joined in the general cry of "Fire." The hall seemed filled with people, who were running this way and that, ostensibly seeking a mode of egress from the flames, but in reality trying to dodge the mad enous of the young man, who was trying to insert himself in his obstinate pantaloons.

He did not tumble, as it were, until the night watchman got a Babcock fire extinguisher and played on him. I do not know what he played on him. Very likely it was, "Sister, what are the wild waves saying?"

At any rate he staggered into his room, and although he could hear the sudience outside in their wild, tumultuous encore, he refused to come before the curtain, but locked his door and sobbed himself to sleep.

How often do we forget the finer feelings of others and ignore their sorrow, while we revel in some great joy. —BU Nyt.

Connen-Making in the United States. Same and experimental gun, at long intervals. This country has made no candon since the war. The immense private plant at South Boston, where two cannon a week were cast during the most active period of the rebellion, has lain idle. The same may be said of the only other plant in the country, at West Point, N. Y., where cannon can be made. England has its government cannon, foundry at Woolwich; Germany has Krupp's immense works at Essen, guaranteeing from military duty. The United States has had only unfulfilled promises with which to keep these two plants in read-iness for the americancy which might at any time come it is due to the pluck of the company that the cannon works in Boston have not gone to decay, but are to-day the most complete of any in the country, and fit, even, to compete with foreign foundries. And yet no years; in 1877 a large twelve-inch rife, weighing eighty-four tons, was cast for experimental purposes.—Boston Commercial Bulletin,

It is a fact not generally known that the James Boss' Gold Watch Cases really contain more pure gold than many "solid," gold cases The demand for these watch cases has led to the manufacture of a very poor grade of solid gold watch caseslow in quality, and deficient in quantity. These cases are made from 41 to 10 karats, and a 5 or 6 karat case is often sold for 12 or 14 karats. It is not economy to buy a watch case so poor in quality that it will soon lose its color, or one so soft that it will "Don't talk to me about beginning lose its shape and fail to shut tight, thus "crushed" actress to a friend; I be- one so thin that a slight blow will break the crystal, and perhaps the movement. It IS economy to buy a James Boss' Gold Watch Case, in which NONE of these things ever occur. This watch case is not an experiment—it has been made nearly thirty years.

I sold two James Boss' Gold Watch Cases thirty years ago, when they first came out, and they are in good condition yet. One of them is carried by a carpenter, Mr. L. W.
