THE OWOSSO PRESS.

Wednesday, December 3, 1884.

Greenbacker (Lainsburg) Nov. 27:
Last Friday evening a Mr. and Mrs. Second drove into this village, and stopped at the house of John Arthur to stay all night. They had a 3-month-old babe with them, rolled up in a blanket. When the mother took the babe from the wagon and unrolled it, she found it was dead.

Choosing Argus, Nov. 28:
We learned last Saturday of a sad mishap that befell Walter Colby, son of Mr. Colby, proprietor of the New Lotthrop hotel. While he was out hunting with a double barrel shot gun loaded with buckshot and was stepping over a log the lock part of the gun fell against the log discharging the contents into his body, entering the lower part of his left side and passed on up tearing the flesh in a terrible manner. He is yet alive and in a critical condition.

Ovid Register:
Messrs. Potter & Harris closed their creamery Thursday for the season. The butter manufactured has been of a superior quality, and has been eagerly sought for at fancy prices. We understand the capacity of the factory is about 1000 pounds per day. They have gathered up the cream daily and paid cash for it. Farmers, who are not anxious to impoverish their soil by raising grain will do well to cultivate larger cow crops, saving the expense of hauling their products to market. As the skimmers do not take away the milk the farmers can make money feeding it to young stock, pigs, etc. Those who have tried the experiment this season are making preparations to increase the size of their dairies.

From W. H. Becker—He Leaves Iowa for Flowery Florida.

WOODBINE, IOWA, Nov. 23, 1884.
EDITORS PRESS:—

By the time this reaches you, I shall be on my way to Florida! Still, I maintain that this is the best country to make money by farming that I ever lived in. But the climate is certainly different from that of Michigan. These fierce winds throughout all seasons, even in midsummer, are characterized by a rawness that I have never observed at the east. I have done well here. I got $500 more than I paid for my place, and have concluded that climate has more charms than money. All accounts from fair Florida agree in favor of its delicious climate. Well, when I get down there, I will try to give you and your readers an unvarnished account of things in that region.

I have little to say of these parts at present. People complain of money tightness, but I suppose that is not a peculiar complaint at this time. In politics we didn't do quite so well as was expected. The republicans in this state, I think, are peculiarly rabid, and it is perfectly amusing to see the long faces, and early manners of the politicians, postmasters and officeholders when I go to the villages. They seem as unwilling to concede that the democrats could gain a victory as Blaine is. But when you find democrats here, they are good ones. They tell of a business man in Logan who "didn't want a blanked democrat to ever enter his grocery," and then a report that he denied it or explained it. And right on the heels of that, as the news came in of Cleveland's certain election, that he had a fit.

Our congressman from this district, Fuses, did not get re-elected. Too bad. But I see you have elected Tim Tarsney. Curious turns politics sometimes take. That newspapers are important factors in shaping political movements has been well illustrated here in Iowa. I presume there are a good many in the State—I have seen nearly all the papers of this county and all the counties surrounding it, but I declare I haven't seen a democratic Iowa paper yet. There is one, I believe, in the southwestern part of the county, however.

Yours truly, H. W. BECKER.

At a regular convocation of Corunna Commandery No. 21, K. T., held at their Assembly in Corunna, Thursday evening, Nov. 13, 1884, the following resolutions relative to the death of Sir Knight William H. Niver, Jr., were adopted:

WHEREAS, Our beloved associate and companion in arms, Sir Knight William H. Niver, Jr., has been removed by death from his sphere of activity here on earth and from his happy associations with his fraters in the commandery;

Resolved, That we recall with grateful satisfaction his hearty cooperation in the fraternal aims and all the knightly duties which our order was founded to cherish and promote.

Resolved, That while we deeply sympathize with his bereaved family, and offer them our sincere sympathy and condolences, we rejoice with them in the memory of his noble character, as manifested by his devotion as a husband and father, his firmness in friendship, his integrity in business, and his faithfulness as a citizen.

Resolved, That while we mourn an honored and beloved associate, a generous frater, and a courteous Sir Knight, we will cherish the memory of his many virtues, his just and liberal spirit and his kind and gentle life.

Resolved, That in token of our respect to the memory of our deceased frater, our Assembly be draped for thirty days with the emblem of mourning.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the family of the deceased, and be published in the Corunna and the Shawnee county papers.

CONGRATULATORY ADDRESS.

DEMOCRATIC CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE ROOMS, EAST SAGINAW, MICH., Nov. 26, 1884.

To the Union Voters of the Eighth Congressional District:

The canvass of this district has been officially declared. Mr. Tarsney has a plurality of 1,622.

For this result I desire to congratulate you and extend the thanks of the Committee for your well-directed efforts during the campaign. The victory is such that all participants can feel therein a common pride. The old adage that "in union there is strength," is fully exemplified.

Our opponents, flushed with former victories, in the early stages of the canvass ridiculed the combination, and later attempted to break its force by purchasing the direct or indirect support of certain parties. But Democrats, Greenbackers and laboring men, with rare exception, scorned their approaches and to-day rejoice in a common victory.

Allow me to say that Mr. Tarsney or your Committee in no instance assailed the private character of any one, but that the canvass was made solely upon the public record of the candidates, and the principles of the contending parties. Neither did they attempt to mislead the people by guile or fraudulent tickets. Your success was decisive and clean. Over the result so achieved you have ample cause for self-congratulation and public rejoicing.

During the canvass Mr. Tarsney everywhere assailed certain governmental abuses, and pledged the people that, if elected, he would labor for their correction. If he proves faithful, stand by him. Should he fail to represent your interests to the extent of his opportunity, the authority delegated will soon revert, and in your hands will rest the power to apply the remedy.

The combination, now crowned with success, should not dissolve with this campaign. We have a common interest in good government, a unity of desire for the reform of evils that have fastened themselves upon the administration of our public affairs. Let us henceforth act in union for the advancement of one, and the correction of the other.

I desire to acknowledge the eminent service of many Independent Republicans and to express the earnest wish that their convictions of duty may for the future lead them to a complete cooperation with us.

Confident that the interests of the people will be advanced by the general result of the late election, I again thank you, one and all, for your intelligent, active and hearty support.

Geo. H. House, Chairman.

Centenary Celebration.

As the Christmas Conference which organized the Methodist Episcopal Church convened December 24, 1784, and continued in session to January 2, 1785, it is proposed that the centennial celebration shall cover the same space of time. As we celebrate a great spiritual epoch, it is but proper that all our exercises should be of a highly spiritual character.

It is therefore recommended that at least one religious service be held in our churches every day, from December 24th, 1884, to January 2, 1885.

The General Conference of 1880, in providing for the celebration of this Centennial, recommends "that all our preachers and people be careful to make the year 1884 one of special consecration to the service of God, and that, as far as possible, constant and prayerful effort may be put forth by all to secure the universal renewal of pure and undeviated religion, to the end that Scriptural holiness may be spread over all lands."

The Bishops in their circular address, issued soon after, exhort us "to humble ourselves before God, and fervently plead for that precious baptism of the Holy Spirit without which nothing good or great can be accomplished."

These sentiments were reiterated by the General Conference of 1884, which recommends that in accordance with the advice of the Bishops, "religious services be the chief feature of this celebration."

In obedience to these recommendations the Asbury Centenary Association suggests the following

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

After More Than Sixty Years Separation a Family of Five Children are Brought Together.

From the Clinton (St. John) Independent.

Life is made up of stirring incidents, though very few reach the public print. Families are separated for years, a careless feeling growing, imperceptible at first, until all affection for each other is seemingly lost. The case recited below would come under that head. Three members of the family were in communication with each other, but the other two, for some reason, did not seek out the rest until sixty years after the separation. But one of the brothers "came to himself," and determined to find out what had become of his brothers and sisters. We have prevailed upon John Woodworth, of Ovid, to give our readers a sketch, which we publish below in his own language.

OVID, MICH., Nov. 25, 1884.

ED. INDEPENDENT.—It is to keep my promise to you, and not to merit any personal notoriety for myself or family, that I attempt to give you a brief outline of our history. More than sixty years ago there lived near Albany, N. Y., Robert and Elizabeth Woodworth, with five small children named and aged as follows: Catherine, about 13; William, now of Ovid, about 11; Margaret, who died lately in California, about 9; John, now of Ovid, about 7, and Absalom, aged about 4. About this time the parents died leaving the children in the hands of strangers. The boys were bound out by the authorities. The two girls were cared for by friends, and at proper age were apprenticed to dressmaking. Margaret soon got to the head of an establishment on Broadway, New York, where she carried on the business successfully for many years. In 1845 she married James Williamson, a young Scotchman who was dealing in Scotch pig-iron and other metals. Both were successful. Mr. W. established the firm of James Williamson & Co., at No. 42 Wall St., N. Y., where it still remains, although he has been dead since '72. Previous to his death they had traveled extensively, having visited Europe twice. At his death Mrs. W. came into possession of his fortune, which added to her own made her wealthy. During the years nothing was known of the boys, William and Absalom having left their places or moved away. This was of course supposed to be dead. In the meantime the two girls and John, who had moved to near Richmond, Va., kept up correspondence and visited each other, often making efforts to find the missing ones, but finally settling down to the conviction that they were really dead, when, in August, 1881, a stranger appeared in Richmond, enquiring for John Woodworth. After some time and trouble he was found and accosted by the stranger like this: "Your name is Woodworth?" "Yes." "Well, I am going home with you." "You are?" "Yes; I know you, but you don't know me. I am your brother William." After a few minutes talk both parties were satisfied. He stayed with me two or three days and then left for home. He knew nothing of the other missing. This was of course supposed to be dead. As soon as sister Margaret, then living in California, could bring things about she arranged for the three brothers to meet in Ovid, which meeting took place Aug. 19, 1881. During that year I sold my farm in Virginia and removed to Ovid. The same year the oldest sister, Catherine, came to Michigan to see the remainder of her days with her brother. She died in Ovid, Mich., in the latter part of June, 1882, sister Margaret came on from California and we all met on the 4th of July at a reunion dinner, so that after a separation of over 60 years we were all permitted to see each other in the flesh. Our combined ages amounted to 360 years.

On the 4th of February following sister Catherine died. Sister Margaret left Michigan Aug. 1 to visit friends in the east before returning to California. On arriving at Troy, N. Y., she discovered a weakness in one of her feet, which increased in spite of doctors and medicine, and soon proved itself to be a kind of paralysis from which she could never recover. She hastened back to California, arriving there on Dec. 1, 1882. She lingered until the 25th of September, 1883, when she died in all the triumphs of christian faith. Thus in less than two years both sisters had died. The remains of sister Margaret were forwarded to N. Y., and were buried by the side of her dear husband in Greenwood cemetery. She left a will by which she gave each of her brothers $2,000, and each of all their children $2,000, besides leaving large sums to various charitable and religious institutions, liberal gifts to all of Mr. Williamson's friends in Scotland, and finally the residue of about $20,000 to Williamson hospital, in Shanghai, China, an institution she founded, without the knowledge of one of her relatives. The executors of her will were Messrs. Samuel A. S. Wilke and Robert Robertson, remaining partners of the old firm of James Williamson & Co. Mr. Wilke came to Ovid on the 20th of the present month and paid off all the adults, the minors not to receive theirs until 21 years of age.

The Man Who Had Not Shaved Since 1860.

Philadelphia Times.

A tall, broad-shouldered man, of apparently fifty-five years, walked into Binder's Seventh street barber shop Nov. 6, and seated himself in a chair. A heavy black beard covered his face and his shirt front and was finally lost to sight within the spacious recesses of his waist-coat.

"Hair cut, sir?" said the barber, as he began to tuck a towel around the collar of his customer, preliminary to picking up his shears. The old man, who had been busy with his beard during this interval, now exposed it to the astonished gaze of the shop. It reached fully three inches below his knees when it was uncoiled. He replied: "No, but—here he glanced around the shop with a triumphant smile. 'I want this beard taken off clean.' Apparently seeing that some explanation would be welcome to the astonished gathering of barbers and customers, the old man said in tones that showed the emotion stirring within him.

"For twenty-four years no razor has touched my face. This beard is the result. It was in 1860. I was as spruce a young chap as ever kicked up his heels at a Lancaster county wedding, and everybody knew young Joe Barston in those parts. They called me 'young Joe.' I made a difference between the old man and me. The old man was a Bourbon Democrat to the backbone, and I was with him till the split in the 1860 Convention, when the southerners put up John C. Breckenridge, and we—the north—nominated Stephen A. Douglass. The old man went in for Breckenridge. I felt strong on the subject, and worked for Douglass day and night. I used to be very smart in my appearance in those days, but I worked so hard I had no time for prinking up.

"One night I made a speech at a meeting in the old Turnpike tavern. I had a week's growth of stubble on my face, and before I had spoken a dozen words some loud sang out, 'go get a shave.' Everybody laughed as they looked at me. 'Get a shave?' says I, 'no razor touches my face until I see a Democratic President in the White House.' 'I have kept my word. Take it off and roll it carefully up in a piece of paper, barber, for I am going to send President Cleveland a chain made out of it.

A Great Discovery.

Mr. Wm. Thomas, of Newton, Ia., says: "My wife has been seriously affected with a cough for twenty-five years, and this spring more severely than ever before. She had used many remedies without relief, and being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery, she got a shave? says I, 'no razor touches my face until I see a Democratic President in the White House.' 'I have kept my word. Take it off and roll it carefully up in a piece of paper, barber, for I am going to send President Cleveland a chain made out of it.

Wednesday, December 3, 1884.

From the persistence with which disappointed Republican office holders and office seekers cry that the country is going to ruin through a Democratic administration, it looks as if they were determined to bring about the very ruin they predict, by destroying business confidence—that is, if they can—before the Democratic administration is inaugurated.

The Detroit Evening News is responsible for the statement that even in Detroit there are negroes so ignorant as to believe that there is danger of their race being again plunged into slavery under a Democratic administration, and that they hold themselves in readiness to skip over to Canada. Let us say no more about the south holding their blacks in ignorance.

CONGRESS.

Congress reassembled on Monday. The opening session of the Senate was preceded by a lively hand-shaking between Senators and their friends. The desks of several senators bore bouquets, and Senator Gorman, of Maryland, was the recipient of two enormous rosettes, also Senator Jones desk bore a rooster, and other desks were ornamented with horseshoes, stars, and other floral tributes.

In the House, many members were the recipients of floral designs; among them was a handsome ship of state, of which Mr. Sumner, of New York, was the recipient. The members indulged in the usual greetings exchanging congratulations on re-election or condolences on defeat. The Republicans made good-natured replies to the Democrats' chaffing on the result of the presidential contest, and there was no bitterness on either side.

Promptly at noon both Houses were called to order and committees appointed by each to wait on the President and inform him that Congress was ready to receive any communication he might be pleased to make. At 11:40 the President's message was received and read. It is given with this issue in supplement form.

It appears to be the general opinion that the session, which has barely ten weeks working time, will be given up to the appropriation bills and unfinished business of the last session, leaving the tariff and other controversies of a party character to be turned over as legacies to the new Congress and new President.

The President's Message is well received generally, except that some protectionists think it smacks too much of free trade principles for their good. The Evening News thus sums up the chief recommendations of Mr. Arthur:

Reciprocal commercial treaties with American countries—a sort of Zollverein including the whole hemisphere. A continental monetary union embracing the same territory, and the stoppage of the coinage of bastard silver dollars. The abolition of all internal taxes except those on distilled spirits.

Subsidies to American lines of ocean steamers.

The increase of national bank circulation to the full par value of deposited bonds.

The restoration of the navy and the immediate equipment of inadequate sea coast fortifications at the great ports.

The reduction of drop letter postage to one cent, and the further extension of the free delivery system.

A board of commissioners with absolute powers to govern Utah.

Another tariff commission to report further readjustment of the tariff, and further reductions, particularly on raw materials.

A pension for Gen. Grant.

Some sort of general bankrupt law.

The amendment of the constitution so as to empower the president to veto particular appropriations.

Some legislation to determine questions of presidential inability.

Cleveland's Pluralities.

The claim that has been made in certain quarters that Blaine has a plurality of the popular vote cast in the country at the recent election, does not hold good in the face of the returns. The Chicago Herald has been at some pains in collecting the figures, and to that paper we are indebted for the following:

Maine pluralities—California, 10,553; Colorado, 5,200; Illinois, 25,142; Iowa, 16,743; Kansas, 63,946; Maine, 20,280; Massachusetts, 27,776; Michigan, 4,430; Minnesota, 35,500; Nebraska, 17,500; Nevada, 1,664; New Hampshire, 4,000; Ohio, 11,802; Oregon, 2,100; Pennsylvania, 80,520; Rhode Island, 6,500; Vermont, 82,200; Wisconsin, 12,800—total, 350,085.

Cleveland pluralities—Alabama, 33,520; Arkansas, 22,121; Connecticut, 1,224; Delaware, 4,376; Florida, 5,104; Georgia, 42,000; Indiana, 7,400; Kentucky, 50,000; Louisiana, 17,872; Maryland, 10,886; Mississippi, 35,582; Missouri, 35,711; New Jersey, 4,112; New York, 4,107; North Carolina, 13,000; South Carolina, 36,000; Tennessee, 14,600; Texas, 400,000; Virginia, 9,000; West Virginia, 6,500—total, 452,524.

Blaine's plurality of the popular vote is as follows: 1,111,111.

MIDNIGHT OUTRAGE.

The Nightwatch Hoodwinked, Bound and Gagged.

Our night watchman, A. K. Giles, had a very extraordinary adventure last night about one o'clock, while patrolling on Washington street. When in front of Ira Merrell's house he was met by three men whom, as he saw them approaching, he took to be inoffensive townspeople, but they suddenly seized and threw him to the ground, gagged, bound and blindfolded him, and robbed him of his revolver and club, threatened his life if he made any outcry, and then led him across the street into Stewart's agricultural implement shed, behind the bank block, where one of the gang stood guard over him while the other two went away intimating a design to go through the bank. They, however, went to Gullie's jewelry store with evil intent, but discovering that they were seen by the young man who lodged in the store, they made no attempt, and nothing is known of their subsequent movements. The fellow standing guard over Giles, the watchman, soon after left him, and Giles went down to Woodard's planing mill and Mr. Reed, the watchman there, released him from the hoodwink, gag and cords that bound him. His face gives evidence of a struggle.

It does look as if a Vigilance Committee might find profitable employment.

By ORDER OF THE H. P.

PEW RENTING.—On Wednesday, Dec. 10th, the seats in the Congregational Church will be rented for the next year. The church will be opened and warmed during the afternoon, and the trustees earnestly request all who are interested to be present promptly and secure seats.

SPECIAL SERVICE.—There will be a special service at the Episcopal church next Sunday morning at 10:45—consisting of service of Holy Communion and short address, followed by a Congregational and Sunday School Choral service. Parents are requested to have their children at church by 11:45 a. m.

—The Wednesday Lectures at Oakside school are much enjoyed by the students.

Rev. Mr. Donnelly's interesting and instructive "Talk About London" of a few weeks ago was followed the succeeding week by a very scholarly production presented by Rev. H. H. Actarian, of Bancroft, a recent graduate of Bangor Theological Seminary. This gentleman is a native of Turkey, and he passed his boyhood near the Marmora Sea.

The Executive Board of the Shiawassee County Agricultural Association for the ensuing year met at the Council Room Dec. 1, and appointed the following committees:

* Finance—E. J. Cook, J. T. Cooper, C. Hibbard.

* Business—T. Nelson, W. Sawyer, W. S. Jones.

* Premiums and Program—E. S. Burnett, W. Sawyer, D. Murlin.

A special committee to confer with Committee on Premiums and Program to revise and adjust Classes 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, was appointed by the Chairman as follows: J. A. Hayt, E. F. Byerly, J. Perkins.

A. LEE WILLIAMS, Sec'y.

—It is enough to take your breath away to see the beautiful articles Loring has for the Holiday trade. His window, around which so many linger, gives only a light glimpse of the beauties within. Step in and examine. Loring loves to show his elegant goods. He invites all to call, if only to admire his fine goods. See his new advertisements.

* Christian, jeweler at Loring's, informs us he has ordered a magnificent stock of jewelry, for which, look out.

—Rev. G. W. Wilson favors us with a copy of The Beacon, the new state organ of the Congregationalists of Michigan. It is a neat paper, comprising matters of interest to that denomination, and we should judge would be a valuable acquisition to every family of that denomination, and, as it is stated there are 18,500 Congregational families in the state, it ought to have a good support.

—A society of the Women's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the G. A. R., will be organized in Owosso, at the G. A. R. Hall, on the afternoon of Dec. 5. An open session will be held in the evening at which there will be essays, music, etc. A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Eve, wife of Rev. F. Dietrich, of Owosso township, while walking to town Saturday morning, fell in the street near Mr. A. B. Chipman's residence. She was seen to fall by several persons who went immediately to her aid, but she lived only a short time. Heart disease was the cause of death. Her age was 55 years. Funeral services took place at the M. E. church, in this city yesterday. Further obituary next week.

The Lecture Course.

On Tuesday evening, Dec. 10, Miss Nella F. Brown will open the Lecture Course for the season. She is said to be an exceptionally fine reader and elocutionist. The following is from the Red path Circular:

"There has never been a more brilliant success made by any reader than by Miss Brown during her short career. Wherever she has appeared either east or west she has captivated all who have listened to her and has had a recall to every place which she has visited."

The announcements for the full course were given in last week's Press, and we would advise those who do not take course tickets to preserve the announcement for reference. The list comprises excellent and popular talent in a pleasing variety, and our people may expect a rich intellectual treat this coming winter. The course ought to have the most liberal patronage. The course tickets are placed at $1.25; single tickets 35 cts.

Chessing Argus.—

If "Pinafore" is so good as to cause so much comment by the papers of Owosso, why do they not come down to Chessing and give us a taste of it? We have a good hall to accommodate them.

New Books.—The following new books have recently been added to the Owosso Ladies' Library:

Holden, with Cords, by Jay.

Home Nook, by Douglass.

Lal, by Hammond.

Outposts, by Austin.

Dora Darling, Austin.

Mildred at Roselands, by Farguharson.

Shall We have Vigilance Committees?

[A Communication.]

Never in the history of this country have there been such wide-spread, defiant, successful exhibitions of lawlessness as now. It is only necessary to recall occurrences of the last 8 or 12 months to verify this statement. Almost every week some store or other place of business has been broken into and goods by the wagon load carried off; valuable safes broken to pieces, ruined, and their contents stolen; residences invaded sometimes in broad daylight, the occupants compelled to remain very quiet while looking into the chambers of revolvers, while the miscreants, after having bound and blinded them, proceeded leisurely to gobble up and carry off whatever might suit their fancy; peaceful citizens, suspected of having some money, have been waylaid, brutally beaten and robbed; horses, cattle, sheep, and even hogs stolen; and all this with the most absolute safety on the part of the perpetrators. Indeed, it has come to be regarded as the safest business venture one can engage in, having less risk than farming even, because the burglar's harvest is sure and abundant. This county has had its share of this general lawlessness and villainy.

The natural result of this condition of things is a universal feeling of unrest, of suspicion. We glance uneasily around corners, and peer anxiously into dark alleys, involuntarily hasten, if we hear footsteps, approaching, barricade our dwelling, supply bolts and locks wherever they can be of service, and then wonder who will be the next victim.

If there is no remedy, are we drifting helplessly and helplessly into Italian brigandage? How long will it be before wealthy citizens will be kidnapped and held as hostages for the payment of vast sums of money? It certainly looks as though it might not be so very far off. One remedy suggests itself to me. Meet them upon their own ground. Money lies at the root of all this evil, and it must be met with money. How? It does not at all stand to reason, that the victim, the man who has been, possibly, all his available means swept away in an hour, and perhaps himself bruised and bleeding, should spend time and more money, if he is so fortunate as to have any, in pursuit of the thief—even the lowest form of savage life would ask no such sacrifice. Neighborhood or even township associations are powerless for this purpose. Let this county, by means of a tax upon all the people, provide the most ample means—money sufficient to secure the services of the most skilled detectives. The fact is notorious that parties engaged in some of the more recent and daring burglaries, are at large to-day, enjoying in perfect safety their ill-gotten gains, simply and only because there was nothing with which to pay detectives for hunting them up and bringing them to justice.

One method remains—the old time California plan: the dreaded Vigilance Committee—a short shrift, and a long cord. But unfortunately Judge Lynch's decisions are not always just. It sometimes happens that the fatal noose finds its way around the neck of the wrong man.

C. P. PARKILL.

What an unappreciative fellow that editor of the Vernon Inter-Lake is! Speaking of the new paper to be started in Corunna he says:

"But why didn't it make success certain by starting at Owosso? There's a splendid opening there, as there are only four papers in that large city and neither of them amounts to anything."

Hold on, brother Hammond, if reports are true there is to be a fifth paper in Owosso!

At a regular Communication of Owosso Lodge, No. 31, F. & A. M., Nov. 26th, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:
