The new paper starts off in a business like manner—that is, the printers have got covered with ink already.

Golden Wedding.

A surprise party, consisting of relatives to the number of about twenty-five, took possession of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Roberts, in the city of Owosso, December 4, 1884, to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. There were present the children and grandchildren, brothers and sisters of Mr. and Mrs. Roberts from different parts of Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania, and of the company, six witnessed the marriage ceremony fifty years ago in Chemung county, N. Y. After partaking of a dinner that made the table groan, (and after the partakers) the couple were presented with many beautiful and useful gifts, consisting of a silver and cut glass berry-dish, gold-lined cake basket, gold bar pin, gold-lined drinking cup, pair of gold sleeve-buttons, five dollar gold piece, one ten dollar gold piece, silk handkerchief, etc. Then followed a few remarks, and a short poem written for the occasion and read by the youngest member of the family:

LINES ON A GOLDEN WEDDING.
To-day we meet dear friends to greet
The dawning of a wedding day.
For fifty years our parents dear
Have journeyed on their wedded way.
Fifty years! how long it seems
To us when wearing youth's bright dreams.
But age looks back—we hear them say
Alas! it seems but one brief day—
Yes, fifty years—within those years
How much is known of joy and tears—
How many dangers waters crossed—
How many treasures buried, lost.
And yet, how many a golden day
Shines out upon the shadowed way.
The pleasure that unsought for comes
And fills with joy our hearts and homes;
And such as these, we bring to-day
And long their memory will stay.
A golden wedding day,
How few ever reach that distant way.
To reach that point, we bring good cheer,
To father, mother loved so dear.
Link by link the chain is wrought,
Day by day experience bought,
And yet, through all, unsevered lies
This golden chain of mysteries.
Affection holds the wayward heart
In bonds that only death can part.
And well 'tis thus—for oft, we know,
Without, we scarce could see to go;
To climb the mountain's misty height,
Or pierce the shadows of the night.
At fifty years, methinks not oft
So many friends are to us left.
So many brothers, sisters dear,
So many children bring good cheer.
A few grandchildren still have we
To help all out the family tree.
And yet to three, we've added two,
And that's as well as we can do.
Perhaps a missing link there'll be,
A vacant chair we bring good cheer,
The pearls we've lost we know fall well
More precious were than tongue can tell.
And yet, we chase the clouds away—
Remembering only good to-day.
But "in the hereafter, the angel may
Roll from the grave, the stone away."
"Over our hearts and into our lives,
Shadows will sometimes fall;
But the sunshine is never wholly dead,
And Heaven is shadowless overhead,
And God is over all."

A happy day was soon passed, and the evening train bore most of the guests away. But even yet the bridal party were not left to themselves, but by a bit of strategy were further detained to receive the congratulations of a delegation of the Baptist folk, of whom they are a part, as were all the brothers and sisters present, excepting one. Especial kindness was shown by Deacon Comstock, who, at his advanced age, was present, and left a reminder of his good-will; Mrs. Van Doran, still later, remembering them with a beautiful vase. A very enjoyable time was had by all present, the memory of which will last through all time. M. M. W.

The word "Mugwump" was originally spelled "muggump." It is reported to have an Indian origin and to have meant "lord" or "big chief."

DOLLS, DOLLS, DOLLS! 'till one is confused, at Dimmick & Son's!!

Laingsburg Gossip.

Laingsburg, Dec. 8, 1884.

She was a lily fair and white,
With lovely eyes and blue,
And a dimpled chin and rounded arm,
And shoulders fair to view.
She was a daisy—a darling,
And a sugar plum to boot,
And her eyes were an'ry no count cuss,
And a blessed lady foot.

"Who are you referring to in your poem?" said I to a young scull head who was reading me his first effort. "I don't like to have you talk in that way unless you explain."

"Well," said he as he crossed his legs and hung his new tie on the most projecting point, "I have reference to the fellow who married my 'best girl'—but you want to hear the next verse:

She used to squander the twilight hour
While leaning upon his vest,
In asking the shifless son-of-a-gun
Which planet he liked the best.
And he, with his mouth too full to speak,
Would spit towards the rising moon,
And shifting his quid would boastfully say
That he was "no summer coon."

"But this has nothing to do with your business," said I, "why don't you let him alone now that he has married her?"

"Well," said he nervously, "I want to tell you what a fool she made of herself. Now listen."

She went into fits at his drunken frown,
And laughed at his coarsest jest,
And declared that of all the fellows in town,
She loved this sardine the best.

She loved the smell of his nicker cigar,
And the odor of his breath,
As it came with a perfume rank enough
To knock a well dog to death.

"What of it?" said I. "There is nothing in this to interest the general public."

"Yes there is," said he, "for this is just the kind of chap that the girls all take to in preference to a decent fellow. But you just wait till you hear the sequel:

They married! They did! And now all alone,
She sits in the twilight gloom,
While rags and wretchedness, pallor and woe,
Inhabit her cheerless room.

And he? Well he's down on Rotten Row
Amongst the low down whisky saloons,
And he's betting buttons on a game of "pitch."

That he cut from his pantaloons.

SAD ACCIDENT.—From the Vernon Interlake, Dec. 5:

Mrs. Elanath Brown, of Venice, was the victim of a distressing accident on Saturday last which is feared may prove fatal. Mr. Brown, wife, and Mrs. Geo. Calkins were returning from Corunna, and when near the Hawkins bridge the horses took fright and sprang ahead so quickly as to throw the ladies out backward. Mrs. Brown had her breast-bone broken, and also received severe spinal injuries. At last accounts she appeared slightly better, but little hopes are entertained of her recovery. She is at the house of Mr. Hawkins, near where the accident occurred. Mrs. Calkins also received some severe bruises, and is under the care of a physician, but had no bones broken.

LATER.—Mr. Brown called at our office last evening and informed us that his wife had been brought home, and it was thought she was slightly better.

Bancroft Advertiser, Dec. 4:

Yesterday at three o'clock the dwelling house occupied by L. Van Cleave, the farm owned by Hiram Hemmaway, one mile north-west of this village, caught fire from a defective chimney and was burned to the ground. The family were away at the time, but neighbors and friends saved all the household goods in a very good condition that were in the lower part of the house. The building was an old one and was uninsured.

Corunna Independent:—

The store of J. Hulick still remains closed under the writ of attachment served a few days since. It is hoped that a satisfactory solution of the difficulties will soon be arrived at, and Mr. Hulick be enabled to resume business. During a long life in this city Mr. Hulick has ever been found honorable in his business connections, and it is the sincere wish of his friends that he may be able to overstep the embarrassment that are now upon him.

Meeting of the Doctors.

The Owosso Academy of Medicine held its regular meeting on Thursday, the 10th inst.

The meeting was held in order at the usual hour, Dr. J. C. Perkins presiding. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. After going through with the usual routine business, the subject suggested at the previous meeting for special discussion at this was introduced, viz. Erysipelas. This disease variously known as the red, St. Anthony's fire, &c., was defined as an acute, specific and contagious fever, tending usually towards a typhoid type, and characterized locally by peculiar inflammation of the skin and mucous surfaces.

This disease has been known from the early history of medicine, and malignant epidemics of it have been recorded by Hippocrates, Celsus and Galen. The causes of this disease mentioned were impure air, filthy surroundings, decomposing organic matters, sewer gas, &c., the specific cause according to the most recent investigators being a distinctive micro-organism or bacillus. The history of fearful epidemics of this disease both in Europe and America was fully considered, the worst form of it prevailing in this country between 1843 and 1847. The name usually given to this disease in the western and south western States, was "Black Tongue." The symptoms characterizing this epidemic were enumerated, such as swelling commencing at the angle of the mouth or nose, spreading over the head and face, affecting the nostrils, frontal sinuses, passing into the trachea, bronchia, and lungs, affecting the whole lymphatic system, burrowing under the pectoral muscles, and sometimes extending beneath the great muscles of the back; such inflammation usually terminating in gangrene and sloughing. Sometimes these attacks were complicated by inflammation of serous membranes as the pleura peritoneum or meninges. Most of those so attacked died before the 10th day. Traumatic Erysipelas or that variety of the disease invading wounds, and most frequently met with in hospital wards and army practice was then reviewed; the connection between epidemic erysipelas and mercurial fever was enlarged upon and illustrated by citation of numerous cases, and it was urged that no amount of hand-washing or cleanliness could possibly excuse a physician for attending a case of erysipelas, when treating a patient with mercury. The symptoms usually marking an ordinary case of this disease were enumerated, and the treatment to such forms explained and set forth in detail, one speaker remarking that in the treatment of epidemics of erysipelas the physician should constantly keep in mind that he is not treating an abstract disease with abstract remedies, human beings, whose health, or life may depend upon his use of agents that may be mischievous or salutary, according to the manner in which they are employed.

Dr. Parkill was then called for and read a paper, which will be printed in The Press next week.

After some discussion of Dr. Parkill's paper, the chair appointed Dr. A. M. Hume to prepare a paper for the next meeting of the Academy which takes place on the first Thursday of January.

George M. Dilley, of Palestine, Texas, attempted to take from the cemetery at Shelbyville, Illinois, the corpse of his son, for removal to the Lone Star state, but was enjoined and placed under bonds. The affair resulted from a difficulty between the father and the widow of the deceased.

In presence of over two hundred persons, Solomon Torres and Jose Soto were hanged at Salinas, California, for the murder of a Chinaman. At the request of the doomed men, some visiting sheriffs adjusted the nooses and caps. Cook Tests was executed at Owen Sound, Ontario, for poisoning his wife.

Bloodhounds were on Sunday put on the trail of the train-robbers at Little Rock, and six men were soon captured in the city. Three of them have been identified, and it has been proven that they were absent from their boarding place until 2 o'clock on Sunday morning. Rewards of $1,000 have been offered by the state and the railway company.

The general managers of the Missouri river roads have agreed to restore rates at once to $12.50 from Chicago to Missouri river points, and $7.50 from Chicago to St. Louis. The contract is for two years, but any road may withdraw by giving notice next December. The Erie and West Shore roads are still selling tickets from New York to Chicago for $7.50.

The Pennsylvania company has discharged over eleven hundred men employed on its lines of rail, making a saving of $45,000 per month. Work has been resumed by the Schuylkill rolling-mill at Port Clinton, Pennsylvania, and by the agricultural implements factory of Russell & Co., at Massillon, Ohio. The Edgar Thomson steel works at Pittsburgh, employing five thousand men, intends to shut down until January. A fine glass factory in the latter city canceled its orders for a reduction of wages, but the workmen at two iron-shops accepted a cut rate.

Dimmick & Son have just received the largest assortment of Holiday Goods ever brought to this county.

Wednesday, December 10, 1884.

Work in Congress goes on quietly. The bill to grant a $5,000 pension to Gen. Grant has been withdrawn at his request.

It appears that colored men are to be robbed and assaulted by their own race at the south, if they choose to be Democrats. At Atlanta, Ga., Sunday night, a colored preacher was hauled from his pulpit by a mob with threats, "kill him, burn him," and this by his own race, because he was a Democrat, and others are threatened.

Cadillac Times, Independent:—Ren Barker, in his last issue, undertakes to make the people believe that with Cleveland and Hendricks we will have trouble; that the G. A. R. has to be abandoned, and that the gray will be superior to the blue. Oh, lie, lie, lie. You know better than that, and besides you know that millions of dollars worth of property have been destroyed in the south within the past few weeks, caused by such reports being spread. Such things should not be. We will have as good if not better government than we have now.

Southern Feeling—The Result of the Election Not a Sectional Triumph.

Senator Lamar, of Louisiana, on his arrival at Washington, a few days ago, was asked how the election of Cleveland is regarded in the South relative to its probable effect on that section. He said:

"I cannot make a better answer to that question than to refer you to Gen. Gordon's letter recently published. It speaks the sentiment of the whole Southern people, especially in its disclaimer of any purpose of sectional aggrandizement. In my opinion the election will have a most decisive effect in bringing the South into hearty and cordial relations with the North. Southern people do not regard the election as a triumph of their section or of any section. They simply regard it as indicating the triumph in the nation of principles of good government. Out of nearly 6,000,000 votes cast for Cleveland more than 3,000,000 were cast by the people of the North. Under his administration therefore the preponderance of political forces will continue to be Northern. The South simply recognizes in the result of the election the placing in power for the first time since the war of an administration not hostile, one under which the people can heartily support and co-operate with the national government, thus bringing her highest interests into more complete identification with those of the nation, and bringing her people into an intense sympathy with those of their Northern brethren. To make that administration one of which the American people may be proud the people of the South will contribute every energy of head and heart."

Col. Bob Ingersoll appeared at McVickers' theatre in Chicago Sunday afternoon. During the progress of the lecture he asked what minister had ever done so much for the world as had Darwin. A moment's pause followed, and then from the rear recesses of the gallery came the reply, "Burchard." A burst of laughter followed, the joyful lecturer joining with great relish.

David Stewart's suit against C. P. Huntington, the Central Pacific Railroad magnate, for the recovery of certain shares of Central stock which Huntington is alleged to have obtained from Stewart by misrepresenting the condition of the company and the value of the stock, was begun Tuesday in the Supreme Court at New York. Joseph H. Choate, one of Stewart's lawyers, made some very disclosures concerning the inside history of the Central Pacific under the Huntington-Hopkins, Crocker, and Stanford management. Roscoe Conkling is one of the lawyers on the other side. The case will involve several days in its trial.

The marble cap-stone and pyramidal apex of aluminum were set in place upon the Washington Monument Saturday, completing the tallest structure in the world created by human hands. The ceremonies were quite simple, the great celebration being reserved for Washington's birthday. As soon as the cap-stone was set the National flag was spread upon the breeze at a height of 600 feet, a battery of guns in the White House lot fired a salute, and the people on the platform 500 feet above the ground sang the "Star-Spangled Banner." The Washington Monument Society, perched on the platform, adopted a resolution congratulating the American people "on the completion of an enduring monument of our Nation's gratitude to the Father of his Country."

The electoral colleges in the various states on Wednesday went through the formality of voting for president and vice president. The ballots used at Raleigh were miniature United States flags, made from silk grown in North Carolina. The Indiana electors marched in a body to the residence of Mr. Hendricks. In the Illinois college, Andrew Shuman drew the slip which carried the privilege of delivering the returns at Washington. The ballot-box used in Connecticut was the one that of ex-Lieutenant Governor Loomis. Mark Hopkins presided over the Massachusetts college. The electors of New Jersey united in recommending John F. Stockton for a cabinet position. Among the New York electors was Jacob Windmiller, 84 years of age, who marched with his associates to the capital to congratulate Mr. Cleveland. The president of the college sent his personal and collected to the Little Bazaar, the foot in Albany. Nearly every distinguished democrat in West Virginia attended the proceedings of the college at Washington.

Emma Wixom "Nevada"—Her School Days in Fenton.

Of course everybody is interested in anything pertaining to the prima donna lately arrived in this country, especially people in this locality, as she was granddaughter of old Dr. Wixom, and is niece to Mr. M. V. B. Wixom, of Bancroft. The following is taken from the Detroit Times:

A missionary of The Times exchanged morning papers on the train last Saturday with a pleasant-faced young man who sat in the seat in front of him. The reporter noticed which paper the p. f. y. man called for, and took the other himself, which he considered a stroke of economy. Soon after the exchange, the young man leaned over the back of his seat with his finger on a paragraph headed "Emma Wixom Nevada."

"Read that," he asked.

The reportorial brain had encompassed it.

"School-mate of mine," said he, and dropped back in his seat. The missionary twisted around and hung one elbow over.

"Where are you from?"

"Fenton, Nevada."

"No, Fenton, Mich."

"And you were her school-mate at Fenton?"

"I was."

"Then why don't she call her elf Mile. Michigan, after a state that can appreciate a compliment when it gets one?"

"She wasn't in Michigan long enough, for one thing, and for another, her remembrances of Fenton are not all happy ones. It was there her mother died. Her grandfather was 'old Dr. Wixom,' as everybody called him; an old army surgeon who built up an astonishing reputation and practice for himself in that vicinity. His son removed to California and there married a lady of considerable wealth—a widow I believe. In 1871 Mrs. Wixom and Emma came to Fenton. She was 11 years old then—What are you scribbling in that note book?"

"Data for her age; '71 from '84 leaves 13; 13 plus 11 is 24. So she is 24 years old now. That will be valuable some day."

"How?"

"Why, in about 20 years from now, when she is preparing to celebrate her thirtieth birthday, I can call on her with my little sum in arithmetic and exchange it for cash enough to buy an orchestra chair at her concert."

"I see. But I don't believe you can work that racket on her—not unless she has changed since I knew her. She was a remarkably nice girl then. I remember her as a student in the High School. She was a blonde, with brown eyes and brown hair that curled thick and tight all over her head. Her complexion was very fair and her cheeks very rosy, and I used to think myself that she was about right. There was another fellow in town who thought the same thing, I believe. Ed., his first name was. But she wouldn't notice him. He's clerking in a Detroit shoe store now."

means were heart-rending. She returned to California or Nevada "soon after" spoiling a cantata ("Queen Esther," I think) in which she was to appear. That was along in '73 sometime, and I heard nothing more of her until I heard of her appearance in New York. But I think Michigan has a part ownership in her, don't you?"

(Sound effect: a loud, prolonged howl)

CITY AND COUNTY.

—K. T. Band Concert to-night.

—Pastor Donnelly is moving into the new Baptist parsonage.

—Something extra for the Baptist Sunday School, Christmas Eve.

—The December term of the Circuit Court opened at Corvina yesterday.

—Girls, do you see anything suggestive in Laingsburg "Q's" little story?

—Paw Rental at the Episcopal church, Monday evening Dec. 15. All turn out.

—The Ladies of the Episcopal church are preparing for a bazaar, to come on before Christmas.

—The Famous is running over with all sorts of Holiday Goods for the million. See new advertisement.

—W. F. Guile, at the old Guile stand, comes out with a magnificent stock of gold and silver treasures for the Holiday trade.

—What does it spell? That is the query. See people gazing at that big banner in front of Loring's and Christian's. Bedford has done himself proud on it.

—That man in Dimmick's advertisement is terribly excited, but he will look still more astonished when he goes to the glass and china palace and sees its wonders.

—The guessing on the 'seeds in that squash at the Famous goes on. There is a wide difference of opinion as to the number—ranging from 40 to 800. How many do you think there are, anyway?

—Owosso is Headquarters for Holiday Goods for Shiawassee county and surrounding localities, and THE PRESS tells just where to find a great variety and good bargains. Read the advertisements.

—The "Class of '85" will give a reception to the teachers of the Owosso Public Schools on Friday evening of this week, at the residence of G. R. Lyon, Esq. THE PRESS returns thanks for invitation.

—Loring has always been noted for his elegant Christmas goods, but in elegance and costliness his store this year outshines anything he has ever before done. His fringed illustrated poems are exquisite.

—The rendering of the piece, "The Battle of Buena Vista" at the Grand Army Social last Friday evening, by our gifted young elocutionist, Miss Carrie Patterson, was so life-like and real that it brought tears into the eyes of nearly every one present.

—The Indian boy wonder, Garland Potosky, only 12 years old, will appear at the skating rink this week Saturday evening, in full Indian costume—giving an exhibition in fancy and acrobatic skating. The rink will be open every evening until further notice.

—Paul M. Roth, has a magnificent display of Merchant Tailor goods for gentlemen, and he tells all about it in a large advertisement in this paper. He has also a word to say to ladies, about something new—just the thing for those who want to bestow a handsome gift on a gentleman friend!

The Lecture Course.

NELLA F. BROWN, OPERA HOUSE, NEXT TUESDAY EVENING.

Next Tuesday evening the Owosso Lecture Course will be opened by Miss Nella Brown, a popular elocutionist, of whom we have never heard anything but praise. She bears the personal endorsement of Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, John B. Gough, Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage and Henry Ward Beecher, as one of the best readers on the American platform, both in dramatic power and delineation of character. We advise all who have not taken season tickets, to go next Tuesday night. We believe they will be well repaid.

—On Wednesday evening, December 17, the people of this city will have an opportunity to see the "Georgia Wonder," as a young lady has been named who has developed the most wonderful power. Various articles, such as canes, chairs, etc., follow her about the stage, and other remarkable phenomena are exhibited. The marvelous power she exhibits has, so far, baffled all scientific research.

MUGGS'S LANDING.—Next week Friday night the comedy drama, Muggs's Landing, which has been played successfully east, will be given at the Opera House. It is said to be sparkling and fine, and, take notice, Miss Bishop, the leading lady, wears $20,000 worth of diamonds in one of the acts.

—On the 23d of December the G. A. R. will have a grand entertainment at Bancroft, consisting of speeches, readings, etc. Miss Carrie Patterson of this city, will recite two pieces—"The Battle of Buena Vista" and "Lookout Mountain"—in both of which she is very fine.

—Where to go for Holiday goods? Read THE PRESS from the first page, the end of the eighth page, and if there is anything within the bounds of reason you desire to purchase for a holiday present, be sure you will find a guide to it in THE PRESS advertisements. Besides, you can rely upon everything being sold at bottom rates.

—Always look out for something of a particularly fresh and spicy flavor at Lawrence & Son's for the Holidays. Lawrence knows just how to cater to a Christmas table, and the whole tropical climate is laid under contribution to supply his demand. As you turn the pages of THE PRESS, pause and study attentively his Holiday Price List. It will pay you.

—Now Christian lays before the public a special announcement for the Holidays. His fine jewelry store is brilliant with beautiful goods—from diamonds to articles of a low price—and you have only to choose to find something adapted to anyone's purse. Read the advertisement and see what Tommy has to offer you.

—Christ (Episcopal) Church is issuing a new monthly called "The Episcopal Guild Recorder." It is to be sent to all members of the Parish, and it is hoped that all who feel able to do so will hand their names to Mrs. H. E. Peterson as regular subscribers at ten cents a month. It is an interesting paper and will be a welcome messenger in every family in the Parish.

FINN CORN.—Mr. John Dawson sends us some fine samples of corn raised on J. O. Walker's farm in Perry. It is the Leaming variety. The seed came from Iowa county, was planted the 27th day of May, and 90 bushels of corn were raised from three-eighths of an acre of ground, and it was ripe full as soon as the red nose or hockberry. One ear in particular, raised from a sucker, is a beauty. Mr. Dawson says: "Mr. Buckminster beat us on the length of stalk—how about the corn?" Bruce Buckminster will please stand up and answer.

We have also in this office an ear of corn measuring fourteen inches in length, well filled with handsome kernels, left here some weeks ago by Mr. John Miller, of Owosso township. It has attracted great notice from visitors.

Rev. J. M. Arnold, of Detroit, formerly a leading Methodist Minister in this State and later editor of the Michigan Christian Advocate, died suddenly of heart disease last Friday. He preached in Corvina in 1853-4, and in Owosso, 1855-6-7-8.

The World's Exposition at New Orleans opens next week Tuesday, Dec. 16.

There are some people who pretend to be very exquisite in the art of punctuation, and one or two of these fine fellows were perfectly horrified on reading the program printed by the Owosso PRESS, wherein it read at PHILLIPS'S OPERA HOUSE. The agony was over the final "s" in the word PHILLIPS'S. Now the editor of the Press has had 30 years experience in the art of punctuation, but may not be quite up to the modern standard, which delights in hard sounds and abbreviated forms, but if our nervous manipulators of the pepper-box should look on page 204, rule 2, of Wilson's treatise on punctuation, a standard work, they will find that it allows and advises the use of the final "s" in all such cases.—[Bancroft Advertiser.]

The Advertiser is correct. A proper name ending in "s" forms the possessive case by an apostrophe and an additional "s." This is a rule observed by all correct writers, and is followed by newspapers of the best class. Sometimes through ignorance, and sometimes through a slipshod way of writing, the additional "s" is omitted, until in ordinary newspaper writing the violation of the rule is more common than its observance, and as appears from the above article in the Advertiser, those who do observe it are ridiculed for so doing. Still, we shall continue to put on that additional "s."

See Dec. 24, 1884.

Newspaper Changes in Corvina.

The Shiawassee Greenbacker has been removed from Laingsburg to Corvina, and the name is changed to The Mail, but the paper will be under the same management and devoted to the same political principles as heretofore.

So, Senator-elect Pulver henceforth hailed from the County seat.

The Independent, the new paper started at Corvina, by Messrs. Volney Moreau and E. J. Peacock, came out last Friday, a six column folio, the home pages well filled with local intelligence and home advertisements. The proprietors start off well for a lively paper.

The Shiawassee Journal, since the death of Ward Ingersoll, has passed into the hands of George E. Moreau, of Detroit, son-in-law of the late John N. Ingersoll.

Thus, it will be seen that within one week newspaperdom has undergone a total change in Corvina. From only one paper the number is now three, and, by the change in the Journal office the entire field is in new hands. A great transformation for one week.

Lucy Maclean, the daughter of a hero of the Revolution, once well known to the literary world and said to have been engaged to Salmon P. Chase, was sent to Blackwell's island by a New York police judge, for begging on the streets.

The search for Abe Buzzard, the Pennsylvania outlaw, having been abandoned by the citizens around Welsh mountain, a reporter went to his hiding-place and secured an interview. The beast carries a Winchester rifle, and defies arrest.

Roland Kane, a customs officer at Montreal, is to receive from the United States government $80,000 for information furnished as to diamond smuggling on the border, by which goods valued at $180,000 were seized by American customs officers.

Faustine Ehrlich, former room-mate, named Martha Fidel, for stealing a diamond ring presented to the mother of complainant by Emperor William for twenty years' service as a cook in the royal kitchen at Berlin.

A stranger entered a church parlor at Youngstown, Ohio, where a ladies' aid society was in session, and secured contributions to the amount of $50 for an old ladies' home. From wealthy gentlemen he obtained three that sum, and then disappeared.

The mercury fell to 37 degrees in Chicago Sunday afternoon. The wind reached a velocity of fifty-six miles an hour at Buffalo. Two sections of the new San Francisco were washed in, and the breakwater at the foot of Green street was washed away.

Judge Howard, of Arizona, has fined three convicted polygamists $500 each and sentenced them to three and one-half years each in the house of correction at Detroit. Two bishops were fined the same amount, and ordered to Yuma penitentiary for six months.

The mayor of New Orleans wrote to the governor of Louisiana that the city council had failed to appropriate money to prosecute offenders against the laws. Governor McEnery thereupon offered a reward of $1,000 for the conviction of the assassin of A. P. Murphy.

The senatorial contest in California has narrowed down to George O. Perkins and Aaron A. Sargent, with probabilities in favor of the latter. John P. Jones has no opposition in Nevada, but the prediction is made that J. W. Mackey will displace James Fair two years hence.

George W. Jones, of the New York Times, reiterates his statement that the Grand Fund of $250,000 in Wabash bonds has not failed to pay interest; that the late Edwin D. Morgan guaranteed the principal of the subscription, and that the large estate of the latter is in no way involved.

Wade Hampton is re-elected Senator from South Carolina.

Alexander Buntin, a Montreal millionaire, has been sentenced to ten days' imprisonment for making himself preferred creditor of the insolvent Exchange bank, of which he was vice president, by withdrawing $10,000 after the suspension.

The cap-stone of the Washington monument was on Saturday noon lowered into place, 555 feet from the ground. The corner-stone was laid in 1848 by Robert C. Winthrop, who has been selected to deliver the oration next February.

George Snyder, of Darlington, Ohio, killed his aged mother with a shovel and buried her in a ravine, to obtain $100 which he had paid her as interest on a mortgage. The deed was only discovered last month, but was only discovered on Friday.

The manufacturers of Youngstown, Ohio, are considering the practicability of a pipe line to force natural gas from Butler county, Pennsylvania, for light and fuel. The distance is twenty-six miles, and the estimated cost of the scheme is $156,000.

The Lessons in Chess.

The ancient game of the Persian race, what a mystical, curious thing! The queen with her gorgeous, matchless strength, the feeble, protected king, the castles, knights, and bishops, the array of devoted pawns. The rapid and silent sages who play till the morning dawns. The bold and brilliant gambit, the skilful and strong defense. On the minute held of battle, the hours of deep suspense. But not with such zeal we played it, but only when evening came, and I taught you the grand old game.

The moves were learned but slowly, and too often were wrongly made. And we were disappointed, for we were not to forget the game we played. Then, with a quick starting, you turned to the board, and I saw the scholar's mate, though the simple I knew. But often brought me a quick defeat when the moves were made or just as I might with ease have won. And many a game was lost by me that I might have won. To watch the interest, my love, in your eyes when the play was done.

Do you think you could play the game to-night, as the shadows of twilight die? Instead of my king would you check your own? You may have forgotten the moves, indeed, but I know I have cause to bless the love of the game of chess. When I taught you the game of chess, O little it mattered who won or lost, so long as your eyes met mine. With the sweet look that I know so well, while a smile on your face would shine. And, whether in victory or defeat, my heart a fond hope held fast. And for you smiled on the game I played, for I captured my queen at last.

Bitten By a Tarantula.

"Eleven years ago," said a representative citizen of Arizona, "when there wasn't any such pleasure in traveling through these parts as there is now, I camped out one night just across the New Mexican line with a party of prospectors. We were all comparatively new, and we didn't know anything about tarantulas. When we selected our camping place we noticed three or four dark-colored things, looking like dice boxes with covers, lying on the ground, but we paid no attention to them. It was chilly, and we had a blazing fire. Some time in the night Gus Petersen, who was with us, an earthy fellow, and running to him, we found that he was in a death agony. We thought he had been shot, and I guess he did, too. He didn't live long enough, though, to get any very clear idea of what killed him. He doubled up like a jack-knife, and then spun around like a top. Then he would straighten out stiff for a minute, and we'd think he was dead, but pretty soon he'd begin to writhe again. We couldn't do anything with him. He died in about an hour in awful torment. The next day we examined him and found a bite of some kind on his left breast. The breast was purple and swollen. Some one said it must have been a snake or tarantula. "Did you ever see a tarantula?" I asked one of the crowd. "One man said he had seen one dead on a card once, but none of us had ever seen one alive. Just then Conkey, one of the party, picked up one of those mud-like dice boxes, with the remark: 'What the mischief are these things, boys?' As he held it up the cover lifted, and out crawled a spider with five or six legs and two inches long. He gave a yell, and we all ran. "That's a tarantula, sure," said the man who had seen one dead. After a while we crept back to the camp, and found that he had slept in a regular nest of them."—Boston Budget.

"How did I come by my second husband?" repeated a steamboatman's wife in response to a similar inquiry the other day. "Well, my first husband, Tom, was mate on the ill-fated Red Fawn, and we were both blown up with her in the terrible explosion of '59. I saw poor Tom's head blown off, and the next thing I knew I was flying through the air higher than the smoke-stacks. As I came down I passed Jack Harner, the second cook, and he called out to me: 'Mrs. McCray, will you marry me?' 'I'm agreed to it when I land, Jack,' says I, for I knew straight enough that I was a widow. They fished me out of the water as sound as a dollar, and when Jack recovered from a broken rib we were married in the first town we landed at."

The Great Exposition.

The Main Building of the New Orleans Exposition covers thirty-three acres and is the largest building ever seen under one roof in the world. It is a mile and one-eighth around the gallery, and this is only one of the series of magnificent buildings. When filled it will form one of the grandest spectacles that can be imagined. In spite of the great preparations that have been made, the management will be hard pressed to accommodate the applications for space which are pouring in upon them from all parts of the world. Maj. Hilday says that twenty-eight foreign governments will make national displays in addition to what their individual citizens may do. He saw the Japanese, Belgian and other foreign commissioners who have arrived already and are establishing their headquarters.

The man that succeeds nowadays is the live man, who is up to the times; and no better evidence of this is needed than the fact that every go-ahead housekeeper is never without Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

In South Siberia there is an uncivilized race known as Bourats who worship a human god. When their god reaches the age of 19 they poison him, and choose a younger god, who is like-wise poisoned when he reaches that age. There is not much competition among the youth of South Siberia in seeking the nomination for human god. They don't put their cards in the newspapers a couple of months before the convention meets, offering themselves as candidates for the office, subject to the rules of the Bourats. Although the office is a sinecure, the youth prefer to work sixteen hours a day in a woolen mill.—Norristown Herald.

English Beagles.

It is a very pretty sight to see a pack of beagles working in cover. How they try every tuft of grass or rushes! Soon you notice that they are working more eagerly, and suddenly you catch a glimpse from his seat, sure to be saluted by a "bunny" shot from some one, not the least to its detriment, but a very narrow escape for the leading dogs. Away go the pack, making the woods ring with their tongues. Excited individuals run after them, often with their guns on full cock and their fingers on the trigger. What their ideas may be in this performance is difficult to say, but I suppose it is the effect of that temporary insanity that seizes many people at the sight of a rabbit. As a rabbit invariably runs a ring and returns to its starting place, there is not the least exception for the sake of exercise, in trying to follow it; and the first one put up is safe to run his ring, as the good shots will not fire at him, that the youngsters may have a chance, and the indifferent shots are sure to miss the first through excitement. You hear plenty of shots while the dogs are running, and the rabbits, frightened by their noise and passage, bolt from their seats and scuttle about every where. Besides these, a few old cocky sportsmen, who have strayed from the preserves, are sure to be found and shot. You shortly hear a shot from the cover the rabbit was found in, followed by "Who-whoop!" showing that the hunted one has been killed.—London Society.

Statistics of Calamity.

Twins do not happen more than 800 times a year in a population of 500,000, and seldom hit the same family twice. Triplets are rare enough to be curiosities. It is estimated that not one woman in 70,000 has given birth to three children at a time, and although there is on record in the old medical works the case of a German peasant who had twelve children at four births—three each time—and a Michigan woman is credited with having produced a dozen children in five births inside of seven years—quadruplets once, triplets once, twins twice, and a lone youngster on the last occasion—such instances of fecundity are rarer than new planets, and the lady entitled to the cake for having four children at a whack is not found more than once among 275,000 married women.

Some of the customs of the Thibetans are very curious. At parting a junior person takes off his cap, bows and puts his tongue out. They pull their cheeks in order to show surprise. Turning up their big finger means approval, and turning up the little one means the contrary. The rest of the fingers mean an indifferent quality of things or persons. All the men and women smoke. The Thibetians do not bury their dead, but throw them to the wild beasts and birds of prey. In the capital of Thibet the clergymen decide as to the disposal of a dead body, whether it shall be buried or thrown into the river, burned or left as a prey for birds and beasts.

Sergeant Brannin, of the Greely party, was strongly indignant for one of the violent second-hand dealers, but will be disappointed. The prices were fixed Wednesday by others, one being the stepson of Attorney-General Brewster.

THE LETTER-CARRIER SYSTEM.
The report of the First Assistant Postmaster-General urging the extension of the letter-carrier system will meet with strong opposition from the representatives of the labor districts. It is with great difficulty at the last session that an appropriation could be secured for a further small increase in the letter-carrier service, and notice was then served by the representatives, particularly from the Southern districts, that any further effort to extend the carrier system to cities and towns would be resisted to the star-route system should also be extended.

THE SPANISH TREATY.
The movement which will be started here in opposition to the ratification of the proposed Spanish treaty will, it is expected, also direct toward the abolition of the Hawaiian treaty. The parties who desire that the Hawaiian treaty shall end and that the Spanish treaty shall not begin are the same. The question of the Hawaiian treaty includes the sugar-planters of Jamaica and Louisiana, some of the sugar-planters of the East and the abolition of the Hawaiian treaty, and the abolition of the Pacific Slope. When the treaty was ratified in 1875 it was argued that the result would be an annual subsidy of several hundred thousand dollars to the population of the Pacific Islands, with the cost of sugar to the consumer of California. As the Hawaiian product is sold at a low price, the sugar-planters of the Pacific Islands, who live upon Chinese rice and have no use for American products.

Arrest a Miracle.

Miss Matilda Reidel the daughter of one of our townsmen, stands as a miracle. For several years she was afflicted with a disease of the stomach, which various physicians declared incurable. During the time Mr. Reidel paid out over $1,000 to different physicians all of whom pronounced her incurable and abandoned the case. She was taken to Ann Arbor twice where the entire medical faculty acknowledged themselves baffled and agreed there was no hope for the sufferer. Some time ago she was taken by her father to see Dr. Hess and after a careful examination and careful opinion given she concluded to take treatment and after a brief period both patient and friends were surprised at the marked improvement and today is well and considers herself cured. This may seem incredible but is nevertheless true and can be referred to by the success of which is no more wonderful than scores of others cured by him that have been abandoned.
