NEWS SUMMARY.

The Missouri Pacific Strike Ended—Martin Irons Expelled—Sum of the Employees Taken Back.

The Situation of Chicago Railroads—Employees of Freight House—

An Swinton Thinks the Eight-Hour Movement Will be a General Success—A Debatable Case at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., May 4.—It is reported on good authority, that the strike on the Gould lines will be declared off. The intention was to bring it to an end last week, but such action was deferred in order to await the arrival of the Curtis congressional investigating committee. It is understood that the railroad officials will take back a large number of their old employees, and that the latter will soon be given a chance to apply to the company for work.

The members of the national executive committee of the Knights of Labor held a long and secret conference Saturday night, and it is stated on the highest authority that they decided, after much discussion, to expel Martin Irons, chairman of the district assembly held from the organization.

Chicago, May 3.—The labor situation in Chicago may be summed up as follows: The railroad officials took no decisive action yesterday, because they really did not know just what to expect of what should be done. It is believed by some that many of the freight-handlers will resume work today, having only joined the strikers Saturday when the procession made its rounds from fear of personal violence in case of a refusal. The St. Paul road will try to raise the freight rate and by using its office men, who have been ordered to do the loading and unloading under guard, but it is understood that the switchmen will refuse to handle the cars when such an attempt is made. The packing-houses have agreed to give the eight-hour system a two-week trial, possibly settling the question by arbitration thereafter. Many meetings were held by workmen representing other occupations to which the shorter-hour agitation has extended. The general sentiment favors a firm stand, the measure in which concessionary from employers were reported were rare, a waiting policy seeming to prevail.

The eight-hour agitation in Chicago has thus far resulted in no acts of violence. The lumber men and brass workers are closed to avoid events. The lumbermen have formed an organization to take charge of their interests and outline a plan for united action. Kirk's soap factory closed because of inability to ship. Thousands of men from the lumber yards and planing-mills paraded Blue Island avenue with red flags and listened to incendiary speeches in foreign tongues. It is difficult to fix an exact time at which the eight-hour movement can be said to have begun. Previous to 1856 twelve hours constituted a day's work. In that year the working hours were decreased to ten, and generally speaking, have remained unchanged up to the present.

The eight-hour day was established in Australia thirty years ago, and one day in each year—April 21—is celebrated in commemoration of the event—just as it is proposed to celebrate May 1 in this country hereafter for a like reason. The eight-hour movement in this country received its first noticeable impetus just after the war of the rebellion, and a million and a half of men, mustered out of the army, were thrown upon the labor market, overstocking it to a disastrous degree. Eight-hour leagues were formed throughout the country with the avowed purpose of securing a decrease of working hours, in order that there might be a corresponding increase in the number of laborers, thus affording the idle soldiers an opportunity of earning a living.

In 1886 a labor convention was held in Baltimore, at which delegates were present from all parts of the United States. It pronounced in favor of the eight-hour working day. Very little was said concerning any change in current wages. The stone-cutters' craft was the only one which, at that time, secured the eight hour day.

New York, May 3.—John Swinton, the noted writer on labor questions, said today that he had carefully calculated the number of people to be directly and immediately affected by the short-hour movement at 2,000,000, of whom nearly half have already secured some concessions in hours and wages, 500,000 have made demands for eight hours, and nearly the same number have been accorded nine hours. In his opinion fully 90 per cent of the men will be successful in their demands for eight hours. In answer to a question as to what was the necessity for all this uproar about shorter hours at the present time, Mr. Swinton said:

"The necessity grows out of certain forces that are transforming and revolutionizing all modern industries at this moment. Take notice of the displacement of manual labor by machinery. I illustrate it by the stupendous fact that in our own country within the last fifteen years, or since 1870, the whole power of mechanism has doubled, having risen from 2,300,000 horse-power to 4,500,000. By this growth there has been added to the resources of the capitalist, who owns the engineering industry, the strength of 22, thousand men. The power of the machine is now equal to that of the man. The capitalist, who owns the machine, is now in a position to employ a much smaller number of men than he was formerly. The result is that the demand for labor is greatly reduced, and the competition for the few jobs that remain is very keen. The laborer, therefore, is in a very weak position, and he is forced to accept the conditions that the capitalist offers. The eight-hour movement is a direct result of this situation. The laborer wants to be able to support his family on a shorter day's work, and he is willing to accept a lower wage for that purpose. The capitalist, on the other hand, wants to get the most out of his machine, and he is willing to employ a larger number of men for that purpose. The result is a conflict of interests, and the eight-hour movement is the outcome of that conflict.

Chicago, May 3.—The eight-hour demonstration advertised to take place yesterday afternoon was a failure so far as the street parade was concerned. Not more than twenty hundred men were in line, and they were principally Swiss and German Socialists. The trades unions and Knights of Labor organizations disclaimed any and all connection with the affair. The Socialistic element was in control in the procession, and the parade and the red flag was the color which the participants rallied.

New York, May 3.—The Third Avenue company ran most of its cars on the main line and Harlem branches yesterday, and there was no serious disturbance of either party to the controversy. The railroad officials said that the strikers are nearly starved out and are anxious to give in, while the leaders of the strike denounce any such statement as a lie. At the Brooklyn square rallies the situation remains practically unchanged. The boss sugar men say that they have secured new help, and will reopen the refineries this week. At yesterday's meeting of the Central Labor union the delegates of piano-makers said that a general demand would be made in all the shops for eight hours as a day's work, and wherever the bosses refused the men would go out on a strike, except in shops where a majority of the men vote for ten hours. It is known that the bosses will refuse the demand and at least thirty-five hundred men will be idle by noon. The furniture workers and fresco painters will also demand eight hours and strike if it is refused.

GENERAL LABOR NOTES.
The quarry operators of the Des Moines valley, Ill., have decided to pay 17 cents per hour, being a raise of 25 cents for ten hours' work over last year.

About two thousand journeymen carpenters of Baltimore are on strike for eight hours' work and pay. The bosses are ready to concede ten hours' wages for nine hours' labor.

The proprietors of all the planing-mills in Evansville, Indiana, have decided to open their doors this morning to employees at eight hours' work and pay, or close for an indefinite period.

All departments of Brown & Co.'s iron and steel works at Pittsburg, Pa., except the steel mill, are closed, the mill being closed in order to give the men an advance of 10 per cent in wages. About 300 men are affected.

All the quarrymen employed by the Utica Hydraulic Cement Company at Ottawa, Ill., struck for an increase of wages. They are now receiving $1.25 per day, and demand $1.50 per day. So violence by the men is likely to occur.

The fires in the O'Hara glass works at Pittsburg, Pa., were drawn and the factory closed down indefinitely on account of wages differences between the firm and some of their employees. Over three hundred men will be thrown out of employment.

The mine operators in the Mahoning Valley refused to give the miners an advance of 10 cents a ton in the price of mining, and the miners are on strike. The strike will shortly be magnified. This advance was demanded at a mass convention of miners Saturday.

The intention was to bring it to an end last week, but such action was deferred in order to await the arrival of the Curtis congressional investigating committee. It is understood that the railroad officials will take back a large number of their old employees, and that the latter will soon be given a chance to apply to the company for work.
