Mr. Chas. Bigelow was so patient in Pennington's trial that it snowed in Morrice.

The Central M. P. Co. has taken place at Lansing next week. There have been many improvements in the cars in the past year. The cars are now made about 17 feet long, and with 21 seats. There has been a large increase in the improvements. Thanks to Secretary Baker for his many improvements.

Morrice Items. There were no public services at the M. P. Church, Sunday, as Pastor Kennedy and Elder Kent were both out of town.

Marching on to Victory. The Salvation Army have finished their force and now the walking rings with drum and tambourine.

Friday were held the funeral services of the only child of Mr. Wanda Hayes. The baby had been sick, but bright hopes were entertained of its recovery. A large number of our people attended the funeral of Deacon Wallace at Perry, Sunday. Mr. Wallace was a former resident of Morrice and one of the oldest settlers in the county.

Morrice boom still continues. The water works are nearly completed, the pipe having reached the last cistern. A watering trough at the town pump also proves an attractive as well as useful addition.

The boys said they didn't have much time but when the Antrim Club came up they thought they might practice a little. The Morrice boys didn't want to make them feel bad so they only run a score while Antrim encircled the diamond 5 times.

All communications may now be addressed to "Halloa," care Dr. Halstead, Morrice, Mich.

West Haven Items.

WEST HAVEN, Sept. 16, 1887.

The West Haven school opened Monday, September 12th, and on Wednesday the 14th, almost a tragedy occurred there. One of the oldest girls attempted to fight with the teacher who is a highly esteemed young man of that place, but neither was very badly hurt.

Last Sunday, September 11th, while Will Callard and Will Alexander were out hunting, the gun of the latter was discharged and sent three or four shots in the head of the former but did not hurt him much, just enough to teach him a lesson not to hunt on Sunday.

Mr. Lewis Jones of Sharon Center, Ohio, is visiting his parents at this place, and if he likes it here thinks some of buying a farm.

Mr. Bishop has traded his farm for some city property at Lyons.

Mr. Caleb Dickinson and family will start for Vermont on a visit next Monday to be gone three or four weeks.

Elmer Johnson, a young man of this place, died of consumption Thursday, Sept. 15. The funeral will be held at Goss M. E. Church Saturday, Sept. 17.

James Acker has just recovered from a severe attack of illness.

Farmers are nearly through with their seeding in this vicinity, and the threshing is pretty much done, but the grain did not turn out the way the farmers expected.

The Sunday School concert that was to be held at the West Haven school house last Sunday night, was postponed on account of bad roads.

The fruit prospects look poor for the Fair this fall from this part of the county. There is no fruit but apples, and they are small.

A beautiful line of hand made Decorated Fringed Oil Cloth Curtains received at LORING & SON'S this week.

THE CARPET MOTH.

How It Works, and Its Remedies. From Harper's Bazar, Sept. 18, 1887.

The carpet moth is a pest which is not only annoying to the eye, but also very destructive to the carpet. It is a small, white, grub-like creature which burrows into the carpet and eats the fibers. The damage it does is often not noticed until the carpet is so full of holes that it is no longer fit for use. Remedies for this pest include the use of steam, hot water, and various chemical treatments.

During the months of April, May, and June it becomes very active, trying to make its escape from rooms through the open windows. It is not the perfect insect or beetle that eats the carpet, but its larva, which when first grown is about one-quarter of an inch in length, oval in form, and thickly covered with black hairs, causing it to appear, when curled up, like a pellet of black lint. From its shaggy appearance, and the fact that it was first noticed as damaging carpets at Buffalo, New York, it received the name of Buffalo moth and Buffalo beetle; in some sections its ravages have been so great that matting has taken the place of carpets.

In Europe it does not seem to injure the carpets to any great extent. This may be on account of the fact that all carpets are taken up in springtime and thoroughly beaten in the open air, to rid them of dust; this beating undoubtedly has the effect of dislodging all larvae and beetles of the dermestidae. It must also be borne in mind that the English housewife, unlike the American, does not keep her rooms darkened for the greater part of the year, but allows daylight, sunlight, and fresh air to enter freely the open windows—conditions which are unfavorable to the dermestidae, they always preferring darkness. Again, when the carpets are taken up and stored away till winter-time, they are liberally charged with pepper or camphor, tobacco dust or cedar chips, to protect them not only against dermestidae, but also moths and other noxious insects that may have obtained a lodgment in them.

When the dermestidae attacks a carpet it first tries the edges where it is nailed down, or eats holes into the carpet in the dark corners of the rooms, under sofas, what-nots, etc.; or will enter the interstices formed by the dovetailing of the floor planks; these it will follow, feeling as it goes and eating the carpet as clean as thought as though a pair of shears had been used. It is said that the dermestidae also attacks cotton, hemp, and flax fabrics, though these statements have not been thoroughly established. Silk it never touches.

The article treats quite extensively of the "wimbles" which bore into antique furniture, and the insect which destroys the cured plumage of the foreign egret and humming bird. When the feathers of domestic fowls are not properly cured in lime-water, the quills of the larger feathers, which are full of pith and dry animal juices, are liable to be attacked by dermestidae. One often hears scratching, scribbling, or crawling noises at night in the pillow; these noises are caused by the dermestidae beetle moving through the feathers. Often when examining feathers that have been taken out of beds for the purpose of renovating and cleaning them with steam, curious round masses, consisting of the fluffy parts of the feathers, are often met with; these masses are the work of the dermestidae.

The fine powder which is often thrown out of old cheese, and which is so highly prized by the gourmand, is the work of another small variety of dermestidae, which is often confounded with the cheese hopper or skipper. Cheese, when so far decayed as to contain skippers, is said to have the "wet-rot," in contradistinction to the "dry-rot," which is the work of the dermestidae.

REMEDIES. Remedies for the carpet moth are numerous, but the following are the most efficacious and reliable. Carpet lining consisting of tarred felt paper one foot wide such as is used for roofing, saturated with spirits of turpentine, when laid on the flooring or base-board under the carpet before it is nailed down, will be found to be very effective. This remedy will be found to be doubly effective if the health-giving daylight and fresh air are allowed to enter the room and do their work; for the dermestidae, like all evil-doers, shun daylight and seek darkness. Another remedy is to pour boiling-hot water in which borax has been dissolved in liberal quantities over that part of the carpet that comes in contact with the base-board, which, after it has cooled, is taken up with a sponge or mop, and all windows and doors are opened to thoroughly dry the carpet. Still another, and one that is considered safest and best of all, consists of a powerful decoction of tobacco, made from tobacco leaf

HARVEST EXCURSION. The Great Rock Island Route (C. R. I. & P. R'y) will sell, Oct. 11th, Harvest Excursion tickets at one fair for the round trip, to principal points in Kansas, Nebraska, North-western Iowa, Minnesota, and Dakota. Limit 30 days from date of sale. For tickets or further information address E. J. Holbrook, General Ticket and Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

TRIAL TRIP. The Detroit Free Press and the Owosso Press four months for 50 cents. Subscribers to The Press can have the Free Press by paying 25 cents.

Wishing to place our subscription list on a "paying down" basis, also with a view of closing up outstanding accounts we have concluded to put The Press at one dollar a year, strictly in advance. Those in arrears can settle up at the regular price, which is still $1.50, and then start on the "dollar in advance" plan. Those by this means to settle up on a square pay-down basis with subscribers which will suit better all around.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL CELEBRATION. The celebration of the 100th anniversary of the adoption of the federal constitution began at Philadelphia Thursday, under favorable conditions. It is estimated that 25,000 strangers are in the city. The principal streets are gay with decorations, and were thronged with eager sightseers. The civic and industrial parade was an important affair, about 12,000 men, 2,000 horses, and 100 bands of music being in line. President Cleveland with his party met with a cordial reception.

The celebration was continued at Philadelphia, Friday, when about half a million strangers were sighted. It was the largest gathering ever seen in the city. The president, accompanied by Secretary Bayard, ex-President Hayes and other notabilities, reviewed the employees of the custom-house, and was afterward tendered a reception at the Commercial Exchange, where he made a brief address, urging the importance of a more active interest and participation in public affairs by the business classes. From the exchange the presidential party proceeded to Broad and Walnut streets, where they reviewed the great military parade, which was led by Lieutenant General Sheridan. About 30,000 men were in line. On Saturday the memorial meeting was held in Independence square, which was crowded with people. On the stand, among other notabilities, were President Cleveland, Secretaries Bayard and Fairchild, Bishop Potter, Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Ryan, John A. Kasson, of Iowa, president of the constitutional centennial commission, General Sheridan, Justice Miller of the Supreme court, and ex-Vice President Hamilton. The exercises were appropriate and impressive, and included an eloquent address by the president and the memorial oration by Justice Miller. In the morning, before proceeding to Independence square, the president, attended by Secretaries Bayard and Fairchild, held a public reception at the city hall, during which he shook hands with many thousands of people. The president has been greeted with the utmost cordiality and enthusiasm on all sides during his Philadelphia visit.

MUNICHRATH IS GUILTY. ST. LOUIS, IOWA, Sept. 19.—Fred Munchrath, Jr., one of the men indicted for the murder of the Rev. Dr. George C. Haddock, stands convicted of manslaughter. Sentence has been deferred until September 23, at which time the court may inflict a penalty not to exceed eight years in the penitentiary and $100 fine. The prisoner is now at large on bail, but the amount of his bond will be increased.

The case was given to the jury Saturday evening, and the verdict was found at about noon Sunday, but the court did not assemble to receive it until nearly 2 p. m. Munchrath and his father were summoned. The jury announced its verdict and was polled. Munchrath clasped his hands lightly and rocketed backward and forward in his chair. His counsel evinced astonishment. The verdict was an astonishing one to those who heard it, because the jury was out nineteen hours and a disagreement was anticipated.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1887.

THE CRY OF THE VULTURE.

It is noon by the sun. Here, thirty miles north of the White River and only a few miles from where I bend about the eastern side of Harney's Peak...

Fort Sully is over a hundred miles to the north-west, and the country between is given over to the coyote, the rattlesnake and the savage.

Two hundred miles through lands accursed with venomous serpents, sneaking coyotes, savage wolves, Indian devils with memories of a score of massacres...

CHARLEY GRAY. GOVT SCOUT AND DISPATCH RIDER. CAPTURED BY DEMONS SEPT. 16, 1868. AND TORTURED TO DEATH SAME DATE. GENTLE, BRAVE, AND FEARLESS. ERECTED TO HIS MEMORY BY LOVING FRIENDS AND COMRADES.

Men read the legend and turned away with a shiver. Two hundred miles of snake and wolf and demon! It was taking terrible chances.

It had been a rough ride, with scarcely an hour's halt for rest, and the mule drank as if long deprived of water. Little by little he raised his head from the spring, and at last he lifted his nose clear out of the water with an "o-o-o-ff" of satisfaction.

It was plain, sterile, parched, broken and ridged—lands which produce only for reptiles and wild beasts. A serpent lay basking in the sun a few yards distant. A gaunt, wild-eyed wolf peered out from behind a rock...

"Hi-ek! Hi-ek! Hi-ek!" It is the call of a vulture, sailing in circles over the spring. Did you ever see a vulture of the plain? A heavy-bodied bird of sombre color, with fierce beak, and talons like the claws of a tiger.

At the second call the mule raised his head in a startled way and cast a swift glance on every side. The scout was slower in his movements. He loosened his revolver before he moved, and as he rose up he had his rifle in his hands.

"Hi-ek! Hi-ek! Hi-ek!" What is it? The man turns slowly on his heel to scan the country, and brave and fearless as he is his heart increases its beats and his eyes betray anxiety. The vulture is never mistaken.

Now the fight opens. There is shout and shot and swift circling. The fierce cries of the vulture mingle with the fierce screams of the warriors, and echo back the dejected shouts of the scout.

Now the circle contracts. Two warriors have been struck from their flying ponies and two ponies have been hard hit. They must close with him or numbers will not count against his steady eye and iron nerve.

"Hi-ek! Hi-ek! Hi-ek!" The scout is down and the mule wounded to the death, has broken through the spring in a moment.

It is a long time before the scout can get up. He is so weak that he cannot even lift his head. He is so weak that he cannot even lift his head. He is so weak that he cannot even lift his head.

This is the Bridal Day of our friends. Mr. E. O. Dewey of the Owosso Times, and Miss May C. Williams, a most worthy young lady daughter of Mrs. H. M. and the late A. L. Williams. The ceremony takes place at the residence of the bride's mother this evening at 8 o'clock.

A company of family relatives and intimate friends will be present, Rev. Mr. Wilson officiating. Reception from 8 to 11. The bridal couple commence housekeeping at once on Ball street, the house next north of the Williams residence, which is already fitted up for their home. Best congratulations of THE PRESS to them.

It will be seen that Mr. H. R. Tooley offers his mattress factory business for sale. This is a good opportunity for some one to step into a good business—but really, we do not feel like booming it very much, for we do not like to part with this excellent family. Mr. Tooley's health however, makes a change necessary.

The Owosso Council, No. 1, of United Legion of America, will meet at Wessener's Hall, Tuesday evening, Sept. 27, 1887.
TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.—Last Friday morning, while Fred Rogers, employed at L. E. Woodard's planing mill, was putting a feed belt on a rip saw, being under its frame, by some means his head came in contact with the running saw, cutting a gash about four inches long through the scalp to the brain, making a frightful wound. At this writing he is getting along well. Rogers formerly lived at Bancroft and was a faithful employe.
