Pittsburg Items. Pittsburg, July 17, 1883;

the music of the reapers is heard from many wheat-tields. Never was there finer harvest weather, and a good yield is anticipated, notwithstanding spring promised so poorly.

Strawberries are only seen in our dreams, now and raspberries are but little cultivated here; but "Cherry time is merry time," especially in Mr. Chapin's fine cherry orchard. His trees have been filled with gayly dressed birds, some with feathers, but more without, for some days; boys and girls enjoy the fun, and some broken limbs (of the cherry-trees) are reported.

Mrs. Madison Beardslee, a lady advanced in years, residing on the Laingsburg road, while giving some directions in regard to cherry picking one day last week, ascended the ladder a few steps, and fell, injuring her so severely that for I suppose he is not wholly to blame, for ceived a thrust in the neck which may a while her life was despaired of; she is leaving us, for he has been an M. The two formed a striking contrast. Mrs. Noris was clad in a trained silken robe, a la princesse, and her much be-puffed hair was rolled away from a face which would have been handsome were it not for a supercilious expression. She was the personification of fashion in its extreme; while Jessie, in a cool, white muslin, with her hair simply drawn back into a heavy braid, was a fair specimen of a fresh, sweet country maiden, to whom fashion is only familiar in books.

Jessie entertained her guest in a timid, quiet manner, and Mrs. Noris went home with a verdict that "such a specimen of an unsophisticated country girl I never saw. To be sure she's pretty; but, Guy, what you see to admire beyond that puzzles me."

Fred Lewis, the well known, staunch Demoeratic editor of the Saginawian quotes from one of its own editorials of last November, and also vouches for Mr.? Burt's soundness on the revenue question, as follows:

"Mr. Burt is a good enough democrat | for the Saginawian, whose editor has voted for every democratic presidential candidate since 1552, and knowing something of the dismal results of Bourbon | exclusiveness, whereby some of the most desirable allies the party ever had were frozen out in 1872, and knowing that the lesson had ever its just weight in subsequent party management, the writer is pleased to assure the Star, as he is pleased at this same to assure the editor of the Niles Democrat and every democrat in Michigan; that neither is the democracy of W. R. Burt, which consists in a determined and demonstrative adherence, item by item, to the principles of the National Democratic Administration, questionable, nor is there the slightest possibility that this point would be raised by democrats in case of the nomination of W. R. Burt, whom the Saginawian does not boom, but as intimated previous to nomination in 1886, should be secure the democratic nomination it will be proud to give him its most hearty support.'

To come right down to present business, Mr. Burt's idea on revenue reform is as far from the Randall idea as it is possible for it to be. Broadly stated the governing principle with Mr. Burt is "the greatest good to the greatest num ber." He is in entire accord with the president's message and in the matter of tariff reform would go even further. than the Mills bill.

The Standard Top Return Flue 4---FOUR DOME---4

GAS :-: LIGHT :-: FURNACE.

Either Portable or for Brick Setting. A few Points of Superiority found only in THE STANDARD TOP RETURN FLUE:

1st, DURABILITY. All its castings are so constructed as to insure the faultless working of the furnace—those exposed to the intense heat being made extra heavy.

2d, Economy. The Top Return Flue Radiators of the Stand-DERTAKING attended to promptly at all times, and at prices and give the greatest amount of heating surface of any Furnace in the world. Its construction compels all the gas, smoke and heat to pass through each dome, which has the same power of heating separately as all other furnaces with their combined principles. These domes radiate in succession an enormous quantity of heat into the hot air chamber, thus extracting every available atom of heat from the fuel.

3d, Self Cleaning. No angles or horizontal crevices exist in its construction to accumulate soot, dust or ashes. All refuse products which arise to the dome finding no outlet, fall again into the fire pot, making the Standard absolutely self cleaning.

4th, Use of Fuel. Hard coal or wood can be used equally as well, many customers having used wood only for years, with most satisfactory results.

5th Caution. It is an undisputed fact that furnace setting must Stoves of all kinds, for About Half the be constructed upon science of practical principles which is only obtained by experience, as no fwo buildings are treated alike; make no mistake by employing those to construct furnace work beyond their ability to do; as a furnace improperly placed can never give satisfaction, and is a poor thing at any price. 6th, Facts. If you have the furnace question in mind, call and examine the Standard, and book your order for the Leading Furnace in the Market. Estimates furnished for all kinds of Hot Air Heatings.
