GOOD WEIGHT.

Lillian Snell, teacher of the first grade in building No. 3, public schools of Windsor, turned quickly from the blackboard whereon she had been drawing a pert wren swinging on a spray of clover.

"Who is crying?" she asked, in a sweet, firm voice.

"It is little Agnes Gregory," volunteered a dimple-faced boy who sat near.

Miss Snell crossed the room and bent over the child.

"Agnes, little sunshine lassie, what is it? Can you not tell me all about Sobs were Agnes' only reply. Miss Snell kissed her gently, then went back to her work. When it was finished and the children all provided with work, she lifted the sobbing child and tenderly carried her to the teacher's desk. Here, somewhat removed from the curious little ones, Lillan set about soothing her pupil.

Agnes was a pretty fair-faced child of 6. She had sunny blue eyes and her hair, a golden chestnut, curled about her face and neck. Her clothing was clean, but well worn, and Lilian noticed the gaping hole in the tiny shoes as well as the thinness of the faded dress. Noticed it with a sympathetic that throbbed with something of the divine spirit of motherhood toward the children in her care.

Agnes' story was soon told. Her widowed mother had had no breakfast for her little ones.

"I don't care so much about myself, Miss Snell," the child went on artlessly, "'cause I'm mamma's brave girl, but when little brother Royce wakes up he will be so hungry, and he is only 3 years old. He does not know he mustn't cry."

A little more questioning and Lilian learned that some one owed Mrs. Gregory for sewing, also that she hoped to have dinner ready when Agnes came Lilian looked out into the driving storm of a January forenoon. She knew Mrs. Gregory, and her heart ached for the pale young mother.

Miss Snell was quick of thought and action. Ten minutes later Agnes was in a warm cloak room feasting in the dainty lunch Mrs. Snell had prepared for her daughter's midday meal. The young teacher had written a note and a list of articles of food and was at the door of the room across the hall. The teacher, Florence Fox, listened sympathetically to Lilian's story and to the suggestion that her own 12-yearold brother be called from the sixth grade to deliver the note.

"Of course, Fred can go," she cried, "and, Lilian, you say you have written to Mr. Davis the circumstances and asked him for good weight. I'll send an order to Cousin Hugh for a halfcord of wood, tell him the story, and ask him for good weight." A faint crimson flush stained Lilian's cheek, but she warmly thanked her triend and hurried back to her work. Mark Davis was a stout, genial-faced man of 38. He sat in his office, his morning's work at his book just finished. Through the open door he could see brisk clerks stepping about in the grocery store from which the office opened. There was an odor of spices, coffee, fruit and fish in the air.

"Eight hundred dollars more profit this year than last," the grocer said to she would go out again and apply to lantic, gulf and Pacific coasts?-Philahimself. "Somehow it don't do a man the city for charity.

any good to pile up money when he has no one to spend it on."

Here his reverie was cut short by the entrance of a clerk who handed him an envelope, saying: "A boy just brought this."

Two papers dropped from the envelope as he tore it open. The first was a list, including a loaf of bread, potatoes, crackers, dried beef, and a few other articles. He glanced over it and opened the other. It was Lilian's note:

"Dear Mr. Davis: A little girl in my rom is crying because she has had no breakfast. Her name is Agnes Gregory, and her mother is a poor widow who lives on the third floor of No. 4 Hampton street. Please send the things ordered at once. I will come in after school and pay for them. And, Mr. Davis, please give good weight. Truly yours, LILIAN SNELL,"

Mr. Davis had been a friend of the Snell family for years, and it was not the first time that Lilian had appealed to him for help in her charitable work. So that was not the reason that so strange a look came into his honest brown eyes.

"Agnes Gregory, and lives on Hampton street," he murmured. "It surely must be Margaret's child. Good God! Margaret and her child wanting bread!"

A half hour later Mark Davis was making his way up the stairs to the floor upon which Mrs. Gregory's rooms were situated. His knock at the nirst door was answered by a red-faced woman.

"Mis' Gregory, is it you air wantin'?" she asked sharply. "And it's no bad news you air after bringin' her, I

"I wanted to deliver some groceries a friend has sent her."

The clouded face cleared as if by magic. "Heaven's blessin' be on your head, then! Mis' Gregory, she's gone out, but I've her key here, and will unlock the door. That's her by, and a swate child he is."

Mark eagerly looked at the pink and white face of the boy. He held out a great golden orange, and little Royce sprang for it, his childish laugh echoing through the room. Then the grocer followed Mrs. Donovan to the home of Margaret Gregory.

It was a bare place, but clean and neat. Mark sighed as he noted the signs of abject poverty. While the deliveryman was bringing up the parcels, Mrs. Donavan volubly explained that Mrs. Gregory had gone to try to get money due her. The warm-hearted Irish woman had surmised that fortune was at low ebb with her neighbor, partly because of little Royce's unusual fretfulness, which had been quieted by a huge slice of bread and butter.

"She's worked her precious fingers 'most to the bone," she concluded, "but work's scarce, and I don't know what's ever goin' to become of her and her

The wood soon came. Florence's half cord had been re-enforced by a whole cord, perhaps because she had written her cousin that the needy widow was a protege of Miss Snell's.

As to Lilian's order for groceries, Mr. Davis had added to it a sack of flour, a ham, coffee, tea, sugar, apples cookies, cheese, canned fruits and meats, and a big bag of candy.

Mrs. Donovan went back to her own room, and the wagous rolled away. Mark hastily built a fire, then sat down to think how best to explain the liberty he had taken.

The bare room faded from his vision as he sat there. In its place came an old country garden overgrown with roses and clematis. It was June, and the air was heavy with the scent of many blossoms. By his side was a beautiful girl in whose curls the sunshine seemed entangled. He bent lower, and the rose-red lips of his companion murmured, "I love you, Mark." Still lower his head sank until his lips touched the ones that had uttered the sweet words.

A start, and he sat upright, glancing around him. That was ten years ago. He was poor then, and Margaret, beautiful Margaret Henson, had been the only daughter of a wealthy home. So their engagement had been forbidden. They parted, vowing eternal constancy. A year later Margaret became the wife of Vance Gregory, but it was not until months after that Mark learned of the treachery and deceit that had been employed to urge her to that step.

It was too late then. There was nothing to do but to endure. He had known for some time that Margaret was a widow and lived in the city. He knew nothing of her poverty, supposing that her means were ample To go to her now with a story of love had never occurred to him. She knew nothing of what had parted them. He could not blacken the memory of the man who had been her husband, the father of her children He sprang to his feet. There was no need of an explanation. He passed out, pausing for a final word with Mrs. Donavan.

"Tell Mrs. Gregory the things came from the teachers at No. 3."

"To be sure, Mr. Davis," responded the woman, who had recognized Mark, "I'll tell her all 'bout it. And many the blissin's of all the saints rest on your dear head!" Mark hurried away, leaving a shin ing silver dollar in Royce's hand.

It was only a few minutes after his departure that a thinly clad woman came toiling wearily up the stairs. It was Margaret Gregory. The woman who owed her was out of town. The needy mother had applied at several places for work, only to meet with re fusal. Then she had gone to a store and begged for credit, but in vain.

She had reached the end. There was but one way open. She would ask Mrs. Donavan to give her children their din ner. When she had rested and conquered the bitter rebellion in her heart

Margaret Gregory was proud. She was already faint for the want of food, yet she turned in loathing from the thought of a meal obtained in that way. It would be worse than death, but death does not come at one's call, and there were her babies.

A dry sob burst from her lips. She passed Mrs. Donavan's door in silence She must have a moment to herself before she could ask charity of one so poor as her kind neighbor. Hurrying on, she pushed open her own door.

A bright fire was blazing in the cracked stove. Mrs. Donavan had prepared potatoes for the oven and cut slices ready for frying from the ham. The open door of the wood closet showed a huge pile, while the table was heaped high with food.

For a moment she stood gazing wildly around her. Then she dropped on her knees, and with a shower of tears relieved her overwrought nerves.

The next day's mail brought a letter from Margaret to Mr. Davis. The writer had gone to Miss Snell to thank her. From the young teacher she had learned of Mark's connection with the affair.

It was an earnest, grateful letter, blotted here and there with tear stains. She accepted his generosity; for her children's sake she could not refuse charity. She referred to the friendship that had existed between their parents, but Mark was glad that she was too womanly a woman to even hint at the relation they had once borne to each other. When he finished reading the letter his heart was light, for he understood that Margaret knew of the treachery that had blotted the sunshine out of his life.

Mark went straight home and told his aunt, who was also his housekeeper, all about it. Mrs. Everts was knit ting before the open coal fire. She was a bright-faced old lady with soft white hair and a serene face. When he had finished she laid down her work and sat for a long time, gazing into the dancing flames.

"The only daughter of my old friend Rebecca Henson, in want of food," she said, a note of pain in her voice, "Mark you and I both have plenty of money, There is room in this house, and in our hearts, for Margaret and her babies. But she is proud. Go and ask her to come and sew for me. Tell her I am lonely and ask her to bring her little ones to brighten me up."

Mark bent to kiss the placid face. Thank you, Aunt Elsie. I see you understand." A few hours later he knocked at Margaret's door. He saw that the years had changed her. The wild rose bloom had faded from her cheeks, tears had washed the joyous light from her blue eyes, yet it was surely the Margaret that he had loved that stood before him.

She met him frankly and with undis guised pleasure. Her voice trembled when she undertook to express her gratitude. Mark made light of the whole affair and insisted on talking of their childhood days. The frutt and nuts he brought proved an open sesame to the hearts of Agnes and Royce, and they were soon on the best of terms with the caller.

Margaret was very grateful for the offer of work. She hesitated a little over accepting Mrs. Everts' kind invitation, fearing lest the children prove an annoyance. But when Mark drew a touching picture of the loneliness of his aunt she gladly consented to come It was arranged that the carriage come for the Gregorys the following after-

One morning, two months later, Florence Fox tripped across the hall of No. 3 and entered Miss Snell's room.

"Of course you are going to the wedding reception Thursday evening," she began. "I think it is such a lovely marriage, don't you?"

"Indeed, I do," Lilian replied warmto go m the afternoon and help with the decorations. The whole house is to be in green and white, smilax, ferns, roses and carnations Mrs. Everts says Mr. Davis cannot do too much for his bride, 'our dear Margaret,' the sweet old lady calls her."

"And I believe it all came about from your begging him to give her good weight." Florence cried, merrily, "He is obeying your request in an extravagant manner. And Lilian, is not that pretty pearl ring and the beatific expression on cousin Hugh's, face the result of my efforts along the same line of charitable work?"

The bell rang then, and the blushing Lilian was spared the necessity of a reply.-Hope Daring, in Womankind.

THE GOUT OF A KING.

WHY THE PHYSICIANS COULD NOT CURE IT.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Shows the Mistake of Shutting Out God from the Realm of Pharmacy and Therapeutics - A Benediction for Doctors.

Discourse to Doctors.

It is not often that men of one prohave much encouragement for men of another profession, but this ser-mon, prepared by Dr. Talmage, contains enthusiastic words of a clergyman to physicians. The text is II. Chronicles xvi., 12, 13, "And Asa, in the thirty and ninth year of his reign, was diseased in his feet until his disease was exceeding great; yet in his disease he sought not to the Lord, but to the physicians. And Asa slept with his fathers."
At this season of the year, when medical colleges of all schools of medicine are giving diplomas to young doctors, and at the capital and in many of the cities medical associations are assembling to con-sult about the advancement of the interests of their profession, I feel this discourse is appropriate.

In my text is King Asa with the gout. High living and no exercise have vitiated his blood, and my text presents him with his inflamed and bandaged feet on an ottoman. In defiance of God, whom he hated, he sends for certain conjurors or quacks. They come and give him all sorts of lotions and panaceas. They bleed him. They sweat him. They manipulate him. They blister him. They poultice him. They scarify him. They drug him, They cut him. They kill him. He was only a young man, and had a discase which though very painful, seldom proves fatal to a young man, and he ought to have got well, but he fell a victim to charlatanry and empiricism. "And Asa in the thirty and ninth year of his reign was diseased in his feet, until his disease was exceeding great; yet in his disease he sought not to the Lord, but to the physicians. And As a slept with his fathers." That is, the doctors killed him.

In this sharp and graphic way the Bible sets forth the truth that you have no right to shut God out from the realm of pharmacy and therapeutics. If Asa had said: "O Lord, I am sick. Bless the instrumentality employed for my recovery!" "Now, servant, go and get the best doctor you can find"—he would have recovered. In other words, the world wants divinely directed physicians. There are a great many such. The diplomas they received from the academies of medicine were nothing compared with the diploma they received from the Head Physician of the universe on the day when they started out and he had said to them: "Go heal the sick, and cast out the devils of pain, and open the blind eyes, and unstop the deaf ears." God bless the doctors all the world over, and let all the hospitals and dispensaries and infirmaries and asylums and domestic circles of the earth respond, Amen.

Balm in Gilead.

Men of the medical profession we often meet in the home of distress. We shake hands across the cradle of agonized infancy. We join each other in an attempt at solace where the paroxysm of grief demands an anodyne as well as a prayer. We look into each other's sympathetic faces through the dusk as the night of death is falling in the sick room. We do not have to climb over any barrier to-day in order to greet each other, for our professions are in full sympathy. You, doctor, are our first and last earthly friend. You stand at the gates of life when we enter this world and you stand at the gates of death when we go out of it. In the closing moments of our earthly existence, when the hand of the wife, or mother, or sister, or daughter shall hold our right hand, it will give strength to our dving moments if we can feel the tips of your fingers along the pulse of the left wrist. We do not meet to-day, as on other days, in houses of distress, but by the pleasant altars of God, and I propose a sermon of helpfulness and good cheer. As in the nursery children sometimes re-enact all the scenes of the sick room, so today you play that you are the patient and that I am the physician, and take my pre-scription just once. It shall be a tonic, a sedative, a dietetic, a disinfectant, a stimulus and an anodyne at the same time. "Is there not balm in Gilead? Is there not a physician there?" In the first place, I think all the medical profession should become Christians because of the debt of gratitude they owe to God for the honor he has put upon their calling. No other calling in all the world, except it be that of the Christian minis try, has received so great an honor as Christ himself was not only preacher, but physician, surgeon, surjet. ophthalmologist, and under his mighty power optic and auditory nerve thrilled with light and sound, and catalepsy arose from its fit, and the club foot was straightened, and anchylosis went out of the stiffened tendons, and the foaming maniac be came placid as a child, and the streets of Jerusalem became an extemporized hospital crowded with convalescent victims All ages have woven the garland for the doctor's Public Hygiene.

The medical profession steps into the court room, and after conflicting witnesses have left everything in a fog. by chemical analyses shows the guilt or innocence of the prisoner, as by mathematical demonstration, thus adding bonors to medical iurisprudence.

This profession has done wonders for public hygiene! How often they have stood between this nation and Asiatic cholera, and the yellow fever! The monuments in Greenwood and Mount Auburn and Laurel Hill tell something of the story of those men who stood face to face with pestilence in Southern cifies, until. staggering in their own sickness, stumbled across the corpses of those whom they had come to save. This profes sion has been the successful advocate of ventilation, sewerage, drainage and fumigation, until their sentiments were well expressed by Lord Palmerston when he said to the English nation at the time a fast had been proclaimed to keep off a great pestilence: "Clean your streets or death will ravage, notwithstanding all the prayers of this nation. Clean ye streets, and then call on God for help.

See what this profession has done for human longevity. There was such a fear ful subtraction from human life that there was a prospect that within a few centuries this world would be left almost inhabitantless. Adam started with a whole eternity of earthly existence before him, but tire line of susceptibility to suffaring. The clety.

paratively few years were left—only 700 years of life, and then 500, and then 400, and then 200, and then 100, and then 50, and then the average of human life came to 40, and then it dropped to 18. medical science came in, and since the sixteenth century the average of human life has risen from 18 years to 44 and it will continue to rise until the average of human life will be 50, and it will be 60, and it will be 70, and a man will have no right to die before 90, and the prophecy of Isaiah will be literally fulfilled, "And the child shall die 100 years old." The millennium for the souls of men will be the millennium for the bodies of men. Sin done, disease will be done—the clergyman and the physician getting through with their work at the same time.

The Dispensaries. But it seems to me that the most beautiful benediction of the medical profession has been dropped upon the poor. No excuse now for any one's not having scientific attendance. Dispensaries and infirmaries everywhere under the control of the best doctors, some of them poorly paid, some of them not paid at all. A half starved woman comes out from the low tenment house into the dispensary and anwraps the rags from her babe, a bundle of ulcers and rheum and pustules, and over that little sufferer bends the accumulated wisdom of the ages from Aesculapius down to the last week's autopsy. In one dispensary in one year 150,000 prescriptions were issued. Why do I show you what God has allowed this profession to do? Is it to stir up your vanity? Oh, no. The day has gone by for pompous doctors, with conspicuous gold-headed canes and powdered wigs, which were the accompaniments in the days when the barber used to carry through the streets of London Dr. Brockelsby's wig, to the admiration and awe of the people, saying: "Make way. Here comes Dr. Brockels-by's wig." No, I announce these things not only to increase the appreciation of laymen in regard to the work of physicians, but to stir in the hearts of the men of the medical profession a feeling of grat tude to God that they have been allow ed to put their hand to such a magnificent work and that they have been called into such illustrious company. Have you never felt a spirit of gratitude for this opportunity? Do you not feel thankful now? Then I am afraid, doctor, you are not a Christian, and that the old proverb which Christ anoted in his sermon may be appropriate to you, "Physician, heal thyself.' Another reason why I think the medical profession ought to be Christians is because there are so many trials and annoyances in that profession that need positive Christian solace. I know you have the gratitude of a great many good people, and I know it must be a grand thing to walk intelligently through the avenues of human life and with anatomic skill poise yourself on the nerves and fibers which cross and recross this wonderful physical system. I suppose a skilled eye can see more beauty even in malformation than an architect can point out in any of his structures, though it be the very triumph of arch and plinth and abacus. But how many annoyances and trials the medical profession have! Dr. Rush used to say, in his valedictory address to the students of the medical college, "Young gentlemen, have two pockets—a small pocket and a big pocket; a small pocket in which to put your fees, a large pocket in which to put your annoyances.

A Doctor's Sacrifices.

In the first place, the physician has no Sabbath. Busy merchants and lawyers and mechanics cannot afford to be sick during the secular week, and so they nurse themselves along with lozenges and horehound candy until Sabbath morning comes, and then they say, "I must have a And that spoils the Sabbath doctor." morning church service for the physician Besides that, there are a great many men who dine but once a week with their families. During the secular days they take a hasty lunch at the restaurant, and on the Sabbath they make up for their six days' abstinence by especial gormandizing, which before night makes their amazed digestive organs cry out for a doctor. And that spoils the evening church service for

Then they are annoyed by people coming too late. Men wait until the last fortress of physical strength is taken and death has dug around it the trench of the grave, and then they run for the doctor. The slight fever which might have been cured with a footbath has become virulent typhus, and the hacking cough, killing pneu monia. As though a captain should sink his ship off Amagansett, and then put ashore in a yawl and then come to New York to the marine office and want to get his vessel insured. Too late for the ship, too late for the patient.

Then there are many who always blame the doctor because the people die, forget-ting the Divine enactment, "It is appointed unto all men once to die." The father in medicine who announced the fact that he had discovered the art by which to make men in this world immortal him self died at 47 years of age, showing that immortality was less than half a century for him. Oh, how easy it is, when people die, to cry out, "Malpractice." Then the physician must bear with all the whims. and the sophistries, and the deceptions, and the stratagems, and the irritations of the shattered nerves and the beclouded brains of women, and more especially of men, who never know how gracefully to be sick, and who with their salivated mouth curse the doctor, giving him his dues as they say-about the only dues he will in that case collect. The last bill that is paid is the doctor's bill. It seems so incoherent for a restored patient, with raddy cheeks and rotund form, to be bothered with a bill charging him for old calo-mel and jalap. The physicians of this country do more missionary work without charge than all the other professions put together. From the concert room. from the merry party, from the comforta ble couch on a cold night, when the thermometer is 5 degrees below zero, the doc tor must go right away; he always must go right away. To keep up under this nervous strain, to go through this night work, to bear all these annoyances, many physicians have resorted to strong drink and perished. Others have appealed to God for sympathy and help and have lived. Which were the wise doctors, judge Piety and Medical ! kill.

Again, the medical profession ought to be Christian because there are professional exigencies when they need God. Asa's destruction by unblessed physicians was a warning. There are awful crises in every medical practice when a doctor ought to know how to pray. All the hosts of ills will sometimes hur! themselves on the weak points of the physical organism, or with equal ferocity will assault the en-be cut off the most of it and only com- next dose of medicine will decide whether or not the happy home shall be broken up. Shall it be this medicine or that medicine? God help the doctor. Between the five drops and the ten drops may be the question of life or death. Shall it be the five or the ten drops? Be careful how you put that knife through those delicate portions of the body, for if it swing out of the way the sixth part of an inch the patient perishes. Under such circumstances a physician needs not so much consultation with men of his own calling as he needs consultation with that God who strung the nerves and built the cells and swung the crimson tide through the You wonder why the heart throbs-why it seems to open and shuc, There is no wonder about it. It is God's hand shutting, opening, shutting, opening, on every heart. When a man comes to doctor the eye, he ought to be in communication with him who said to the blind, "Receive thy sight." When a doctor comes to treat a paralytic arm, he ought to be in communication with him who said, "Stretch forth thy hand, and he stretched it forth." When a man comes to doctor a bad case of hemorrhage, he needs to be in communication with him who cured the issue of blood, saying, "Thy faith hath saved thee."

I do not mean to say that plety will make up for medical skill. A bungling doctor, confounded with what was not a very bad case, went into the next room to pray. A skilled physician was called in. He asked for the first practitioner. "Oh," they said, "he's in the next room praying." "Well," said the skilled doctor, "tell him to come out here and help. He can pray and work at the same time." It was all in that sentence. Do the best we can and ask God to help us. There are no two men in all the world, it seems to me, that so much need the grace of God as the minister who doctors the sick soul and the physician who prescribes for the diseased body.

Christian Uscfulness Another reason why the medical profession ought to be Christians is because there opens before them such a grand field for Christian usefuplness. You see so many people in pain, in trouble, in bereavement. You ought to be the voice of heaven to their souls. Old Dr. Gasherie De Witt, a practitioner of New York, told me in his last days, "I always present the religion of Christ to my patients, either directly or indirectly, and I find it is almost always acceptable." Drs. Abercrombie and Brown of Scotland, Drs. Hey and Fothersh of England and Dr. Rush of our own country were celebrated for their faithfulness in that direction. "Oh," says the medical profession, "that is your occupation; that belongs to the clergy, not My brother, there are severe illnesses in which you will not admit even the clergy, and that patient's salvation will depend upon your faithfulness. With the medicine for the body in one hand and the medicine for the soul in the other, oh, what a chance! There lies a dving Christian on the pillow. You need to hold over him the lantern of the gospel until its light streams across the pathway of the departing pilgrim, and you need to cry into the dull ear of death, "Hark to the song of heaven's welcome that comes stealing over the waters." There lies on the pillow a dying sinner. All the morphine that you brought with you cannot quiet him. Terror in the face. Terror in the heart. How he jerks himself up on one elbow and looks wildly into your face and says: "Doctor, I can't die. I am not ready to die. What makes it so dark? Doctor, can you pray?" Blessed for you and blessed for him if then you can kneed down and say: "O God, I have done the best I could to cure this man's body and I have failed! Now I commit to thee his poor, suffering and affrighted soul. Open paradise to his departing spirit,' But I must close, for there may be suffering men and women waiting in your office, or on the hot pillow, wondering why you don't come. But before you go, O doctors, hear my prayer for your eternal salvation. Blessed will be the reward in heaven for the faithful Christian physi-Some day, through overwork, or from bending over a patient and catching his contagious breath, the doctor comes home and he lies down faint and sick. He is too weary to feel his own pulse or take the diagnosis of his own complaint. He is worn out. The fact is his work on earth is ended. Tell those people in the office there they need not wait any longer; the doctor will never go there again. He has written his last prescription for the alleviation of human pain. The people will run up his front steps and inquire, "How is the doctor to-day?" All the sympathics of the neighborhood will be aroused, and there will be many prayers that he who has been so kind to the sick may be com-forted in his last pang. It is all over now. In two or three days, his convalescent patients, with shawls wrapped around them, will come to the front window and look out at the passing hearse, and the poor of the city, barefooted and bareheaded, will stand on the street corner, saying, "Oh, how good he was to us all!" But on the other side of the river of death some of his old patients, who are forever cured, will come out to welcome him, and the Physician of heaven, with locks as white as snow, according to the apocalyptic vision, will come out and say: "Come in, come in. I was sick and ye visited me!"

Hanging Rock Near Massillon, Iowa. About one-quarter mile east of Massillon, Iowa, on the bank of the Wapsepinicon River, hangs a ledge of rock which makes a beautiful spectacle when viewed from the quarter-mile country bridge, just above. Just back of this rock, on the bluff, are two natural wells reaching seventy feet down into the solid limestone. It is said by some that these wells are infested by firedamp, which makes an examination impossible. These wells are as round and perfect as if bored by an augur.

Another peculiar phenomenon is the myriads of mosquitoes that gather about these wells during the warm summer months. It was claimed, some years ago, that curious musical sounds issued from these wells at midnight, but upon close examination scientists found that these musical disturbances were caused by millions of mosquitoes.

The fact of these natural wells are ouched for by any of the citizens of Massillon and surrounding country. The accompanying sketch is a very good one of the hanging rock, showing the wells on the bluff to the right.

The ancient Greeks used a species of limestone known as sarcophagus for making coffins. The peculiar quality of sarcophagus consisted in the fact that it would consume the human body within a period of a few weeks. It is said to have been found at Assos, a city of Lycia. The popularly accepted definition of the noun scarcophagus, it may be mentioned, is "a stone coffin."

Alexandre Dumas, or Dumas pere, lived from 1802 to 1870. His literary life began with the play "Henry III.," in 1829, and his labors continued to his death, a period of forty-one years. The number of novels, plays, poems and literary works of all descriptions produced during this time was enormous, few writers of any country exceeding in quantity the amount credited to this remarkable man.

The diameter of Mars is nearly 4,200 miles. Its volume is about one-seventh and its density four-fifths that of the earth. A stone let fall on the surface of Mars would fall six feet the first second. The light and heat of the sun at Mars are less than one-half that which we enjoy. Its days are nearly of the same length. Since, however, its year is equal to nearly two of ours, the seasons are lengthened in proportion.

The following experiment, which illustrates in a pleasing manner the actual formation of halos, has been given by Dr. Brewster: Take a saturated solution of alum, and, having spread a few drops of it over a plate of glass, it will readily crystallize in small, flat octahedrons, scarcely visible to the eye. When this plate is held between the observer and the sun or a candle, with eyes very close to the smooth side of the glass plate, there will be seen three beautiful halos of light, at different distances from the luminous body.

Surpliced choirs, wearing the vestment row used under that name, date back to about the eleventh century. when that particular modification of the ancient alb and rochet was introduced and the name was also invented. At that time it was found awkward to put on the old narrow-sleeved vestments over the furred dresses which the dignitaries began to wear to protect themselves against the cold and drafty churches; so the garment was made looser and the sleeves widened into their present wellknown shape to get rid of that difficulty, and the name of sur pelisse (that which is worn over a fur dress) was given to the altered vestment.

The National Solons.

The Senate made good progress on the tariff bill Tuesday, advancing to the important metal schedule. During the day paragraphs covering marble and stone, china, glass, brick and tiles were completed, with a few minor exceptions. The Senator from South Carolina, John L. McLaurin, who succeeded the late Senator Earle, was sworn in at the opening of the sersion. This establishes the personnel of the Senate as it will remain for some time—namely, Republicans, 43; Democrats, 34; Populists, 7; Silver Republicans, 5; vacancy, 1 (Oregon); total, 90. The House passed two minor Senate bills, but because of non-existence of committees could do no other work. How-ever, a lively attack was made upon the policy of holding up appointment of committees until after the Senate finishes

The Senate Wednesday made greater progress on the tariff bill than in any day since the debate opened, completing more than half of the important metal schedule. Early in the day Mr. Tillman of South Carolina secured the adoption of a resolution directing the Judiciary Committee to inquire into the recent decisions against the South Carolina dispensary law, with a view to reporting such legislation as might be desirable. The Senate in executive session spent some time in discussing whether confirmaabsence of a Senator opposing them. Without settling the principle involved the Senate allowed the nominations to go over. Senator Turner objects to the confirmation of these nominees because their predecessors were removed from office, which, he claims, was an unjustified procedure on the part of the execuwith the tariff.

The Schate again made good progress on the tariff bill Thursday, covering about ten pages of the metals schedule and all most completing it. The House proceed ings were enlivened by the attempt of Mr. Terry (Dem.) of Arkansas to secure con sideration, as a privileged matter, of a resolution for the immediate appointment of the committee on foreign affairs. It was ruled out of order and an appeal taken from the decision of the chair was laid on the table by a strict party vote. Several bills were passed by unanimous consent. The Frye bill to prevent collisions on certain harbors, rivers and inland waters of the United States and the Senate resolution for the relief of the El Paso flood sufferers, amended so as to make the appropriation of $10,000 available out of the unexpended balance of the appropriation for the Mississippi flood sufferers, were passed and the conferen report on the Indian appropriation bill was adopted.

The Senate had a period of speech making Friday, and as a result little progress was made on the tariff bill. The advance covered about two pages or seven para-graphs, and brought the Senate up to the wool schedule, the first item of which was considered but not completed.

When the Senate laid aside the tariff bill Saturday night it had reached the sugar schedule, which has been the subect of so much interest and conflict. During the day many of the paragraphs of the wood schedule had been agreed to, but that restoring lumber to the dutiable list at $2 per 1,000 feet proved the greatest tumbling block since the debate began. Mr. Bacon (Dem.) of Georgia gave his support to the committee rate, saying it was essential to the lumber industry of the South. He also spoke in favor of a revenue tariff so adjusted as to give equal benefit to all industries. Mr. Bacon and Mr. Vest clashed several times on tariff doctrine, Mr. Vest expressing his regret that a Democratic Senator would aid in restoring to the dutiable list one of the three products-lumber, salt and woolwhich the Wilson bill put on the free list. Mr. Clay of Georgia also spoke at length schedule and other features of the bill.

The enthusiastic. wheelman has an idea that a ride before breakfast is very beneficial. A short ride may be but in nine cases out of ten it has just the opposite from the desired effect. According to experiments with the dynamometer, a man is precisely at his weakest when he turns out of bed. The muscular force is greatly increased by breakfast, but it attains its highest point after the midday meal. It then sinks for a few hours, and rises again toward evening. The chief foes of muscular force are overwork, and the other extreme, idleness. Many of the great workers of the world, if not all, have been early risers, but early risings ought always to be supplemented by early breakfasting.

A correspondent writes warning sufferers from influenza against the indiscriminate use of antipyrine. He says: 'My physician, a distinguished man, told me this morning that he ascribed the great death rate from influenza in France to the careless use of antipyrine. It seems there is a lotion, the name of which I forget, largely composed of antipyrine, which French people have ready against the malady. If they take small doses it will not do much harm. But they are not content with small doses when they have influenza, and it kills them. Death, of course, is then erroneously ascribed to influenza, the fact being that 'they die of their medicines." -- Westminster Gazette.

Hens Hatch Them.

The hens of China lead busy lives. When not engaged in hatching out a brood of their own kind they are put to the additional and novel task of hatching fish eggs. Chinese cheap labor collects the spawn of fish from the water's edge, put in an empty eggshell, which is then hermetically sealed with wax and placed under the unsuspect ing setting hen. After some days the eggshell is removed and the spawn, which has been warmed into life is emptied into a shallow pool well warmed by the sun. Here the fish that soon develop are nursed until strong enough to be turned into a lake or stream.

A Wholesome Superstition.

Among the numerous superstitions of the Cossacks there is none stronger than the belief that they will enter heaven in a better state if they are personally clean at the time they are killed. Consequently, before an expected battle they perform their toilets with scrupulous care, dress themselves in clean garments, and put on the best they have.

Try Grain-O! Try Grain-O!

Ask your grocer to-day to show you a package of GRAIN-O, the new fooddrink that takes the place of coffee. The children may drink it without injury as well as the adult. All who try it, like it. GRAIN-O has that rich seal brown of Mocha or Java, but it is made from pure grains, and the most deli-cate stomach receives it without distress. ¼ the price of coffee. 15c. and 25c. per package. Sold by all grocers.

THE "GROWN-UP" DAUGHTER'S DUTY TO HER MOTHER.

You can only have one mother; therefore, when her step is growing slow and her mind gloomy with forebodings, and you can see that her whole nervous system is upset, it is your filial duty and privilege to attend to her in time! Mother is approaching the most critical period of her life.

The change of life, that The change of life, that is what mother is dreading, and no wonder, for it is full of peril to all but the strongest

There are some special and very wearing symptoms from which mother suffers, but she will not speak of them to any one. Help her out; she doesn't know what to do for herself! Shall I advise you? First, send to the nearest drug store and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and see that mother takes is regularly, then write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., giving all the symptoms and you will receive a prompt reply telling mother what to do for herself. In the meantime the Vegetable Compound will make life much easier for her. It tones up the nervous system, invigorates the body, and the "blues" vanish before it as darkness flees from the sunlight. You can get it at any reliable druggist's.

Mrs. Louis Strong, Harris Hill, Erie Co., N.Y., says: "I have been troubled with falling of the womb for years, was advised to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took thirteen bottles and received great benefit. When the time for change of life came I suffered a great deal with faintness and palpitation of the heart. I got one bottle of the Vegetable Compound and one of Blood Purifier and was relieved again. I was thereby enabled to pass through that serious period very comfortably."

Ripans · I abules

Especially was this true if I had had a restless night, as you know is not an uscommon thing with head-workers. My stomach," continued he, "is under the standard as to strength and it used to seem at hose times to act only indifferently and sometimes to even stop work. Clouds would come before my vision and then a slight nausea would be felt. Years of that sort of thing had made me know the symptoms as well as I know my name, but since I learned about Ripans Tabules I have practically overrome the difficulty and it is not often that any one gets as enthusiastic over anything as I do over them. Now-adays, whenever I recognize the old familiar symptom, DOWN GOES ONE OF THE BLESSED LITTLE CONCENTRATED BOOMS,

And in a few minutes the visual clouds lift, discomfort passes away, my stomach apparently resumes its operations and at half past 22 or 10 clock I go out for my usual rather hearty luncheon—all in delightful contrast with my fermer practically ruined afternoons which I used vainly to seek to escape by fasting and various doses.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates a discussed condition of the kidneys. When string attains it is while a condition of the providence. urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving path in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects fasblity to hold urine and scalding pain in peasing it or had effect. corrects mapnity to note urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effect following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the avercodings effect of mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggies price fifty cents and one dollar. # CONVICTS FIGHT FIRE

OUENCH FLAMES IN THE LAN-SING, KAS., PRISON.

All Were "Trusties," and Made No Break for Liberty-Gigantic Railroad Project-Spain Will Not Swap Horses While Crossing the Stream.

Fire in a Penitentiary.

Nearly 1,000 men, who are imprisoned in the State penitentiary at Lansing, Kan., passed an unusually uncomfortable hour Friday night. Fire broke out in the prison about 9 o'clock, and soon all the men held within the walls were in an uproar. The fire seemed to be spreading rapidly in the tailoring establishment and the chapel, and the imprisoned men cried and begged of their keepers to be released. Finally the flames became so threatening that fifty convicts, all of them trusties were released to assist the officers in their struggle with the fire. There was no break for liberty, but the men performed their duty heroically, and the fire was ultimately quenched, after a damage of about $8,000 had been done.

Canovas and His Former Cabinet to Remain in Charge of Affairs.

A Madrid dispatch of Sunday says: As the only practicable method of solving the crisis, Senor Canovas is to continue in power. The new ministry will be practically the same as the former one. The Duke of Tetuan continues Minister of State. It is popularly supposed that Gen. Weyler will be recalled. At a cabinet council held Sunday afternoon at his residence Senor Canovas, the Premier, announced that the Queen Regent had renewed his powers and those of the Cabinet, in terms most flattering to him and his colleagues. It is understood that the Government does not contemplate any immediate change in the supreme command in Cuba. The surprise and displeasure of the various sections of the opposition are not easy to describe.

JAMES LEWIS IS HANGED.

He Suffers the Death Penalty on the Gallows at Fairfax, Va.

James Lewis, colored, who was recently convicted of attacking Mrs. Reidell, was hanged Friday at Fairfax. Va., in the presence of about fifty people. The crime for which Lewis suffered was a brutal one and stirred the indignation of the people of the surrounding country almost to the lynching point. He had three trials in as many days, the jury in the first two cases being unable to agree and in the last trial declaring him guilty and imposing the death penalty. He asserted his innocence until Thursday, when he admitted his crime and also confessed to others of a similar nature, for one of which he served a term in jail.

VERDICT IS FOR SEARLES.

Decision Rendered in Favor of Sugar-Trus Witness In the case of John E. Searles, the sugar trust witness, Judge Bradley or-dered the jury to bring in a verdict of acquittal, holding that the questions asked the witness by the Senate Committee were not pertinent, and, if so, were not within the jurisdiction of the committee. The judge's opinion was exhaus-tive. It had been reduced to writing. He pointed out that Mr. Searles had testifled specifically that no money had been contributed by the sugar trust to the national campaign or for the purpose of influencing legislation or the election of United States Senators. As to the local contributions, Mr. Searles had tes-tified that he did not know how the contributions had been used, by whom or for what purpose. The questions put to the defendant were claimed to be pertinent to the second and third divisions of the Senatorial inquiry, namely, as to whether the sugar trust had contributed sums to campaign funds with the purpose of influencing the election of a United States Senator and whether any Senator had been a party to a compact with the sugar trust. Certainly, the judge said, a simple investigation as to whether the sugar trust had contributed to a campaign fund would be an unwarranted search into the private affairs of the company and plainly beyond the power of the Se The Senate Committee had reported that no testimony had been produced to show that the sugar trust had made any contributions to any national campaign fund or for the purpose of affecting legislation. If money had gone for the purpose of electing members of State Legislatures who in time would elect a United States Senator, it was beyond the power of the United States Senate to go behind the election of legislative members.

EARTHQUAKE IN MANY STATES. Old Mother Earth Gives to Several Cities

Severe Shaking-Up. Cincinnati was visited by an earth-quake on Monday. Precisely at 1 o'clock, in different portions of the city, the vibra tions were so plainly felt that typesetters engaged upon the seventh floor of news paper offices were so startled that they left their work and ran to the floors be low. In the telephone exchange the shock was keenly felt by the operators, and operators of the Western Union Telegraph Company also felt the building sway back and forth. The United States Weather Bureau reported that the shock was distinctly felt in the Government building. In several of the down-town restaurants the same thing was felt, and in the kitchens the tins on the walls rat-tled. The shock was felt in the Canadas, many Ohio cities, Washington, the Virginias, Maryland, Indiana, Pennsyl-

Wife Murder Charged.

Adolph L. Luetgert, the Chicago sausage manufacturer, who is charged with murdering his wife and destroying the body in a vat of chemicals, was held to the grand jury Tuesday afternoon by Justice Kersten. For a week the defendant has been before the police justice on a preliminary hearing. Nearly all of the time of the court has been consumed by the examination of the State's wit-nesses. The defense declined to present any testimony, and the attorneys battled for the release of the defendant on the ground that the State had not made out its case. When the court rendered the decision Luetgert sat at the rear of his attorneys. As the justice reviewed the case briefly the defendant leaned forward, his hand resting on a chair in front. and listened intently to every word spoken by the court. When the court reached that portion of his decision which sent the sausage-maker to the cell to await the action of the grand jury his face was like marble. As the justice stated that the evidence was sufficient to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Mrs. Lueigert was dead and that there was sufficient circumstantial evidence to connect Luetgert with the case as the probable agent a slight tremor of the lip was all that was noticeable.

PULMONARY DISEASES KILL A GREAT MANY IN CHICAGO.

Consumption and Pneumonia Prevalent-Pennsylvania Miners Postpone the Threatened Strike - Cleveland Declines to Represent Venezuela.

Remarkable May Record.

Remarkable statistics in regard to the Chicago death rate are shown by the monthly report of the health department, made public Thursday. During the month of May 416 deaths were caused by lung troubles-208 by pneumonia and the same number by consumption. Yet the death rate from all causes is greatly reduced from that of one year ago, and the fatality among children is less than has ever before been recorded. There were 1,709 deaths from all causes during the month, as against 1.804 for the same period last year. In April of this year 1,728 persons died. The report shows the following comparative death rate per 1.000 persons: April, 1897......12.98

May, 1897......12.41 fants under 1 year of age is marked. In May of this year the deaths reported were The number recorded for May, 1896, s 477. The death rate among coildren between the age of 1 and 5 years is not only less than last year, but with that of infants is the lowest of which the city has any record. Under this head the report shows 266 deaths in April, 1897, 224 in May, 1897, and 236 in May, 1896. Another interesting feature of the report is a comparison of the death rate between the white and colored population of the city, establishing a record never before kept by the city. The percentage of deaths per 1,000 of white population is while that among the colored people is 23.27. The authorities of the health department are at a loss to account for the high percentage among the colored people, unless the explanation be found in the fact that they are more susceptible

Crank Sends the Speaker a Letter Threatening Assassination.

The Washington detectives have fixed ipon an eccentric young man named Monroe as the party who wrote a threat ening letter to Speaker Reed, in which it was strongly intimated that if he did not change his policy and permit certain legislation to be enacted he would be killed. Monroe made himself conspicuous during the Coxey invasion three years ago and is known to the authorities as the "Boy Detective." He is an excitable person. who, under ordinary circumstances, would be considered harmless, but under pressure of excitement might feel himself alled upon to re-enact the role of Guiteau. He was confined at one time in St. Elizabeth's, an institution on the outskirts of Washington for people of unbalanced minds. Speaker Reed was in no manner disturbed over the receipt of the threatening communication referred to, but some of his friends were exercised and placed the matter in the hands of the police, who were not long in locating the responsibility, to their satisfaction, at least. Their suspicions were at first aroused by the young man's persistency in following Speaker Reed, and further by his industry in circulating the story of the letter among newspaper men.

Pennsylvania Workers Still Demand 69 Cents

a Ton. There will be no strike of the 23,000 miners in the Pittsburg district for the present. This was decided at Thursday's delegate convention, and is largely due to National President Ratchford's address advising moderation. Resolutions were adopted demanding a uniform rate of 69 cents per ton for mining, but deferring the strike until such time as the national executive board should consider it advisable. The convention was one of the largest ever held in Pittsburg, there being 96 delegates, representing over 100 mines.

SETTLERS IN DANGER.

CHEYENNE INDIANS START ON THE WARPATH.

Rumors that at Least a Dozen White Men Have Been Killed - Further Slaughter Likely to Follow if Troops Do Not Interfere.

Cheyennes in Revolt,

The Cheyenne Indians have gone on the war path in Montana and are said to have killed almost a dozen men, including five United States soldiers. The Indians have no reservation, but roam over the southern part of the State. The white settlers are up in arms and the women and children are being sent into the northern towns for safety. The Cheyennes make the Lame Deer agency their headquarters. Hoover, a sheep herder, was recently shot by Indians while herding sheep. He was killed because he caught several Indians killing sheep. This so incensed the stockmen that they have armed themselves and will fight to protect their homes, help and stock. Two companies of colored cav-alry from Custer were ordered to the agency Wednesday, and Saturday a courier arrived from the agency with the information that George Walters, the postmaster, and Lou Alderson, a stockman, had been shot and killed; also that the Indians had shot into the cavalry and killed five men and had sixty armed cowboys surrounded. The cavalry from Fort Keough and Company E of the infantry left for the scene. There are certainly grounds for fear. The Cheyennes are determined and they are being re-enforced by renegade Crows. Rosebud rancher received a consignment of rifles and ammunition at this point. Settlers have moved all their families from near the

While the inquest was proceeding sixty men under Legislator James Brown ar-rived on their way to the agency. The Sheriff pleaded with them to return and told them sixty of them against 400 or 500 Indians armed and such fighters as the Cheyennes are would be helpless. The Sheriff learned that the crime was committed by three of the band led by White Bull, who said a day or so previous that his heart was bad; that he wanted to eat white man's heart. The agent said that he knew one of the murderers, and thought with a little time they could find the others, would arrest them, and turn them over to the civil authorities with what evidence they had. He had requested a sufficient force of soldiers to surround the Indians, and said he would cut off rations till the murderers were turned over. The Sheriff and committee went back to the main body, which had been augmented by twenty men from the Rosebud, and made report. Though there was much dissatisfaction at the turn affairs had taken, they agreed to disperse for two weeks to allow the agent time to make the arrest. If not then done the original plan of attacking the Indians is to be carried out. The women have been gathered at several ranches for protection under a guard of ten or for the Weather Bureau.

Last month will go down as the coldest May on record. In the records for the last twenty-six years, beyond which time the Weather Bureau can tell us nothing, no May can be found which gave as low an average temperature by two degrees as the month just ended. The lowest rec-ord on the weather man's books for May was in 1875, when the thermometer went down to 25 degrees, but this was an exception rather than the rule. In Chicago May 1 showed a temperature of 33 de grees and the following day went only one better. These were the coldest days of the month, and May 19, when the mercury ran up to 81 degrees, was the warm-

He ran so far in advance of the flying host that he robbed even the second and third men of much of their honors. Henry O'Brien captured the time prize, his figure being 1:03:08. He broke the record for the Wheeling course, which is a fraction under twenty-five miles. Smedley is 51 years old. His training has been going on for only two weeks. He worked so hard during the race that he was dead—physically—at the end, and had barely enough breath left to tell the jam which brought him congratulations to carry the good news to his-

There have been cleven Chicago road races. They have all been well contested, and some of them have produced wonderful performances. The race grew out of a hare and hound chase on the old style high, or ordinary, wheels back in 1886. That was on Thanksgiving Day, however, instead of Memorial Day, which has been the date of the race every year since. In the next year, 1887, cycling interest in Chicago grew marvelously. There were several fellows in the hare and hound chase of the year before who had speed ambitions. They came together early in the spring and talked about a repetition of the chase, but decided that a genuine road race would be better sport. The first Pullman road race, as the event was then called, was the result. It was run on Memorial Day over the Pullman course every year after until 1894. Then it was transferred to the North Side and changed in name to the Chicago road race.

It almost invariably happens that the rider who wins the race is an unknown. He is usually some fleet fellow whose speed is underrated by the handicapper and who has the luck in not being thrown in any of the many collisions that occur along the course. With the winner of the time prize, however, it is differnt. He is usually a rider of experience whose speed is known and has often been proved.

EARTH IN A QUAKE.

Slight but Distinct Shock Causes Alarm in Many States.

A distinct but slight earthquake was experienced Monday throughout the South Atlantic and Middle Southern States. It is stated at the Weather Bureau at Washington that the direction of the wave was from south to north, but reports received from various sections are conflicting. Savannah, Ga., was the furthest point south at which the tremor was felt, while the northern boundary of the wave was middle Maryland. West it was felt as far as Knoxville, Tenn. The disturbance seems to have been most severe in the Appalachian Mountain re-

The shock was felt in Cincinnati and suburbs. The printers ran out of the Times-Star office. Occupants of other buildings were alarmed and at Coney Island, Chester Park, the Zoological Gardens and elsewhere there was conster-nation among the holiday crowds. At the lagoon on the Kentucky side there was a panic among several thousand people on the grounds. The waters in the lagon were so rough that the life-saving crew went to the relief of those out in the electric pleasure boats. At Knoxville, Tenn., two distinct shocks were felt. Several large buildings were badly shaken two chimneys fell. In Charleston. W. Va., the earthquake was felt all over the city. In many buildings the furniture was moved by the vibrations. The people were panic-stricken and many ranout of the large business houses thinking the buildings were about to tumble down. The vibrations were from north to south and lasted fifteen seconds.

A distinct shock was felt in Louisville, Ky., but no damage was done. The shock perceptibly shook Asheville, N. C. Hundreds of occupants of buildings ram into the streets. At Indianapolis many persons felt the shock. Visitors to the court house tower thought the building was falling and hurried down.

Coldblooded Murder of Alexander Boulton at Newberry by a Worthless Drunkard-Trouble Over Taxation at Manistee-Big Mortgage Foreclosed.

Another Brutal Crime.

At Newberry Richard Palmer stabbed Alexander Boulton through the heart Saturday evening about 6 o'clock. About 6:15 Richard Palmer went to Boulton's house and said he wished to see Boulton on business and they went over to David Riberg's saloon and were in there a few minutes when Palmer called for a drink, but could not pay for it, and Boulton, not being a drinking man, did not drink and they sat down. Palmer, who was under the influence of liquor and without any provocation whatever, drew a large jackknife and stabbed Boulton through the heart. Boulton fell to the floor and Thos. Boulton, son of the deceased, came in and his father said, "Tom, I'm done for," and died. Palmer sat in his chair for fifteen minutes before the officers came. does not realize what he has done. A Queer Case Ended.

One of the most peculiar cases ever tried in the Lenawee County Court has just ended at Adrian in a compro Oliver Allen, an 80-year-old bache lor, who died near Clinton last November willed all his property, valued at $25, 000, to the superannuated preachers fund, and the educational board of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Seven nephews and nieces contested the will on the grounds of incompetency and that the deceased had been unduly influenced by church people, but were defeated in the Probate Court. The case was then appealed by them to the Circuit Court. At the last moment, however, a compromise was effected, by which the church agreed to pay $7,000 to the relatives. The testator made his will seven years before his death and cut off a maiden sister, who had lived with him all her life, without a cent. Fortunately she died before he did. For seven years prior to his death, the old man did not go to church, and the fact that he left so large a sum for mission purposes was considered strange.

The plea they will make is that he was drunk when he shot his wife and therefore not responsible, and that he was angered by his daughter until he lost all control of himself.

The Michigan weather crop bulletin says: "The weather has been favorable for rye, meadows, pastures and field work, but too cold for much growth of other vegetation and for the germination of corn and oats. The cold, wet ground has rotted some corn and necessitated considerable replanting, some correspondents saying that a second replanting has been necessary in some of the southern counties. Outside of rye, meadows and pastures nearly all vegetation has been at a standstill. The condition of rye, meadows and pastures is generally very fine; pastures provide ample fodder and meadows promse a splendid hay crop. The continued cold, wet weather which delayed oat seeding so much has decided many farmers not to sow as much oats as was originally intended. Fruit has not been injured to any general or considerable extent by the frosts, and is now in blossom as far north as the upper peninsula.

Chicago Chronicle: It is customary in some States for the members of the Legislature, when the hour to adjourn sine die arrives, to turn themselves into hoo ilums and act in the most disorderly manner. It is a common practice, too, for members, otherwise respectable and fairly honest, to appropriate the State's property, carrying away whatever is not nailed down. The wind-up of the Michigan Legislature was distinguished by a most disgraceful orgy, during which a valuable painting of Lafayette was ruined by having books thrown through it, and other property of the State was also damaged. Of course, this affair will never be investigated. Such things never are. The State goes on from year to year replacing inkstands, stationery, waste baskets, law books and other property stolen or restroyed by its legislators, without ever trying to compel the culprits to restore the articles or reimburse the treasury.

Tax title speculators are somewhat elated over the decision of the Supreme Court which was handed down in the case of Joseph S. Hilton vs. Azuba Dumphey. The opinion is by Chief Justice Long and disposed of an important question. The plaintiff brought suit in ejectment, claiming possession of defendant's land by viitue of a tax deed. The deed was issued for an unpaid drain tax, all the other taxes on the property having been paid. The defendant contended that there is no authority in the tax law empowering the county treasurer to bid to the State lands assessed for a drain tax. There was also a question as to whether the sale was a lawful one, but as the defendant did not take advantage of this defect, if one existed, it is held that the question could not be raised in this collateral proceed ing. Upon the question that the tax lay has no application to the sale of lands for drain taxes the court says: "It is true that these drain matters are not regarded as matters in which the State, county or township has a pecuniary interest, but the drain law provides that such taxes are to be collected in the same manner as State and other taxes are collected.' The court was in error in concluding that the judgment should be in favor of the defaukant. Under the facts found the judgment should have been found for the plaintiff. Such judgment will be entered here with costs of both courts to the plaintiff." It is said that a young woman who is under hypnotic control in Mount Clemens "sings in a language she doesn't understand." She may be fitting herself for ar operatic career, in which case she will sing in several languages that no one else understands.

An amusing story is told of how the late Lord Fitzgerald discomfited a treasury official who was sent over from England to complain of the excessive expenditure for coal in the Lord Chief Justice's court. He received the man, and listened gravely and formally while the latter stated his errand and enlarged upon the importance of economy in the matter of fuel. At the conclusion of the discourse, he rang the bell, and, when the servant appeared, said: "Tell Mary that the man has come about the coals.

"You and I, mon," said the Scotchman, "will occupy the berths, and the wee laddie"—indicating the distinguished statesman---"can just lie himself down on the floor."

The papers are full of tales just now of how the late composer, Brahms, treated pianists and singers who were eager to get his criticism. If one of these aspirants for his favor was fortunate enough to find him at home and be received, Brahm's first concern was to seat himself on the lid of his piano, a position from which he rightly deemed few would have the temerity to oust him. If this failed, he had recourse to the statement that the instrument was out of tune. "Oh, that does not matter," remarked one courageous individual. Perhaps not to you, but it does to me," replied the master. On one occasion, he was just leaving his house when a long-haired youth, with a bundle of music under his arm, hailed him with: "Can you tell me where Dr. Brahms lives?" "Certainly," answered the master, in the manner; "in this house, up three flights," and so saying, he hurried away.

Signor Arditi, the musical conductor, whose baldness is well-known, wore a wig only once in his life. It was in New York, and he bore as philosophically as might be the surprise betrayed by the orchestra at his novel appearance. But, while the musicians were tuning up, he began to feel uncomfortable. Presently the door opened and Alboni peeped in. Arditi knew that the prima donna had an ineradicable abhorrence of wigs. "Where is Arditi?" she inquired of one of the company. "Here am," replied the conductor, rather shamefacedly, stepping forward. She looked at him for a moment, and then burst into laughter. "What, Arditi!" she called; "is it indeed you in that wig? Never, in the world! My good friend, I should never be able to sing with that before me. Here!" With one bound she seized upon the unfortunate wig, dragged it from his head, and threw it to the other side of the room. He did not replace it; and though he always fancied that a wig would become him, he never again wore one.

A Curious Natural Phenomenon. One of the most curious natural phenomena, and one which has never yet been explained by the philosophers, is that in reference to the expansion of freezing water. The case of water is a singular exception to all natural laws of expansion by heat and contraction by cold which apply in cases of all other known liquids. When water is freezing, it contracts in bulk down to the point where the mercury reaches the reading of 391/2 degrees, or 71/2 degrees above freezing, from which point it slowly expands according to the intensity of cold. No other liquid is known to possess this remarkable property, except that certain metals expand slightly in passing from a liquid to a solid state. But if heat be applied to water after it has cooled down to a temperature of 391/4 degrees—the point where it is ready to begin expanding. should a greater degree of cold be applied-it will immediately expand by the universal law. But should we lower the temperature to 32 degrees it will expand by its own special law. Another curious point to be noted here is this—the amount of expansion is as great in water lowered from 391/2 degrees down to 32 degrees as it is in water that has been heated so that the temperature runs from 391/2 to 47 degrees. These points are certainly odd and curious and worthy of attention and experiment

'A Philosopher Corrected.

When Benjamin Franklin went to Paris as the representative of the revolted American colonies, he had to be presented to the King, and it was a matter of some solicitude with him how he should array himself for that ceremony.

He was anxious not to be considered lacking in respect for the French court, where much formality regarding dress was observed; but he knew it would be an affectation for so simple a republican as he was to imitate the court dress. He decided, therefore, and wisely, to appear in a plain suit of black velvet, with white silk stockings and black shoes.

Nevertheless, he deemed it best to make one concession to the French fashion of the time by wearing a wigsomething which he had not been accustomed to do. He ordered of a wigmaker the largest one the man had, and in season for the presentation the man himself brought the wig and set about trying it on.

But do all he could, the man could not squeeze the wig on the philosopher's head. He tried and tried, and also essayed to convince Franklin, against the evidence of his senses, that the wig was a fit. Finally Franklin said:

"I tell you, man, your wig is not large enough."

Upon this the Frenchman threw the wig down in a rage.

"Monsieur," he said, "that is impossible. It is not the wig which is too small. It is the head which is too large!"

Accepting the rebuke as deserved, Franklin went to the presentation without any wig, and found there that the simplicity of his dress and the honesty and candor of his manners won him more esteem at the court than any concession to fashion could possibly have Life Saved by Hanging.

Charles Peachey, of Marblehead, Mass., who has been discharged from the Salem hospital, is the only man in the world with a mended backbone. The surgeons had to hang him literally by the neck in order to mend it. But they succeeded, and his case is now attracting attention. The patient had been at the hospital since Oct. 24. All that he requires now is time in order to make him as good a man as he was before his back was broken.

The case has been one of great interest from the first. Peachey was picking apples from a tree at the Crowninshield farm, when the limb broke and he fell a distance of twenty feet, striking on his back. Upon examination it was found that his back was broken, and he was sent to the Salem hospital. In order to reduce the fracture it was necessary to resort to unusual methods. It could not be done with the patient lying in bed or in any other ordinary position. It was necessary to hang him by the head and neck. So suspended in midair, the trunk was tightly bandaged with strips of cotton cloth saturated with plaster of paris. When this dried his form was held and supported firmly. This uncomfortable suit of clothing was not removed until Nov. 15, when it was found that the fractured vertebrae had knit together successfully. The backbone had been broken right on a line with the shoulder blade, and the spinal cord had been lacerated. had also been healed.

The patient is now able to sit up in a chair. He is able to move his head and arms, but has no control of his body below his shoulders yet, owing to the paralysis of the nerves. This, however, will be only temporary.

The Koman Who Wouldn't.

A pretty peasant maiden in one of the suburbs of Kharkoff, Russia, was recently coerced by her relatives into consenting to marry a small proprietor of the neighborhood for whom she entertained a special dislike. The wedding party appeared before the altar of one of the city churches. The service went on until the officiating priest put the usual question, "Wilt thou take this man," and so forth. The girl to this replied with an emphatic negative, and all the persuasions of her friends failed to change her resolution.

The wedding party returned to the house of the bride's parents, who again vainly endeavored to shake the girl's obduracy. The unfortunate and un-willing girl was then soundly beaten, not only by her parents, but also by the friends of the bridegroom. She was carried back weeping to the church by the wedding party, and the marriage ceremony was recommenced. Again came the crucial question to the bride, and once more the unhappy girl, with tears and blushes, resonantly exclaimed, "No! A thousand times, no!" and appealed earnestly to the protection of the priest, which was readily granted.

The commercial museums were formally opened at Philadelphia Wednesday by President McKinley, who presided during the attending exercises at the American Academy of Music. He delivered a speech in response to Mayor Warwick's address of we come, and then at night, in a notable banquet held at the Bourse, which celebrated the tenth anniversary of the Manufacturers' Club of Philadelphia, as Well as the opening of the commercial mu seums, the President delivered an impromptu address.

The ceremonies, which were most impressive and interesting, were given an added importance by the distinguished character of the assemblage. Besides the President and his party, including the members of his cabinet and the foreign ministers, the guests included the delegates attending as representatives of their countries from South America, Central America, Mexico and even more distant points.

The banguet was probably the most notable ever given on this continent. It was notable not only in point of numbers, neary 1,500 persons participating, but in the distinction of the chief guests. Besides President McKinley there were seated at the table of honor Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, Attorney General Mc-Kenna, Congressmen Dingley, Dalzell, Grosvenor. Heatwole and Tawney; the ministers from Mexico, Brazil, Chili, Argentina, Venezuela and other South American governments; the Chinese minister, and a number of other eminent officials from the capital.

The hall in which the dinner was held covers an entire block in area. It was gor-geous with light and color. Ensconced in a compartment formed by walls of flags at one end of the hall was the Marine Band, under Director Fanciulli, which alternated with the Germania Orchestra stationed at the other end. To avoid undue delay in reaching the toasts, the serving of the banquet was promptly begun.

The following crop and climate bulletin for the week has been issued from the Chicago office of the weather bureau:

Illinois—Week generally unfavorable, but no material damage by light frosts. Some corn still being planted, also little replanting, but cultivation general, although too cold for good germination and growth. Wheat heading short and much cheat; oats, pastures and meadows generally good; clover cutting this week in southern section. Fruits generally very promising. Strawberries still being marketed in large quantities.

Wisconsin—Week cold and dry, with heavy frosts. Ice formed in central and west counties, but special reports indicate damage to fruit and other crops comparatively slight. Corn planting about completed. Oats, barley and spring wheat fair. Winter rye heading and promising well.

Michigan—Weather favorable for rye, meadows, pastures and field work, but too cold for much growth of other vegetation and germination of corn. Cold, wet ground has rotted some corn, causing considerable replanting, while oats come up slow and look yellow. Several frosts, but damage light. Corn planting well started.

Minnesota—Cool weather and deficient rainfall have retarded corn, grass and truck. Early sown wheat stooling well; late sown small grains need rain. Irregular stand of corn caused by defective seed. Hay prospects good. Insects injuring plums and apples. Damage by frosts slight.

Iowa—Week cool and cloudy, with deficient, rainfall, except scattering localities. Corn planting practically completed and cultivation general. More replanting necessitated than earlier reports indicated. Conditions more favorable for grass, oats and wheat than for corn.

Indiana—Little rain fell and continued cool weather, with light frost; too cool for corn, which comes up yellow. Wheat, rye, oats and clover continue in promising condition. Meadows promise large hay crops. Tobacco plants are being set out.

Nebraska—Cold weather has caused corn to germinate and grow slowly, but has been favorable for grass, rye, wheat

ALTGELD IS ACCUSED

Former Illinois Governor Blamed for Globe Bank Cresh.

Startling assertions in regard to former Governor Altgeld are made in the report of the special Senate committee which investigated the misappropriation of the University of Illinois funds by Charles W. Spalding, late of the Globe Savings Bank of Chicago.

The charge is made that Mr. Altgeld was a very large borrower from the bank at the time Spalding became the universitt treasurer, and that he was a large borrower during his entire term as Governor. When the bank went down Mr. Altgeld, the report charges, was in debt to it, while his Unity Building collateral was worth only 50 cents on the dollar and his Ogden Gas stock collateral had no commercial value.

The declaration is made that the bank was practically insolvent in 1892 and that this must have been known to Mr. Altgeld as well as to Mr. Spalding. Further, it is found that Mr. Altgeld, when elected Governor, was both a stockholder and director in the Globe Bank, and as such should have had knowledge of its precarious condition. Then the report adds 'the committee believes he was acquainted with its condition."

FULTON LOSES THE WOODMEN.

Head Camp at Dubuque Orders Headquarters to Rock Island

At the national convention of Modern Woodmen in Lubuque, the headquarters were ordered removed from Fulton to Rock Island in sixty days. It was decided to hold the next head camp at Kansas City. Charges of the misappropriation of funds made against the head officers were not considered by the convention. The law prohibiting membership to liquor dealers was so amended as not to affect those in the order before such legislation was enacted.

The first coins really deserving the name of United States coinage were struck off as "pattern pieces" by Benjamin Dudley, at the instigation of Robert Morris, and were laid before Congress in 1783 as specimens of what the coinage should be. They were a "mark" and a "quint," and thus described: The "mark"-obverse, an eye, the center of a glory, thirteen points. cross equidistant, a circle of as many stars. The "quint" is similar in design, the value on reverse being noted. STRUNG UP BY A MOB.

NEGRO LYNCHED BY FRENZIED PEOPLE OF URBANA, O.

Mob's First Attempt Was Met by Deadly Volleys of Rifle Bullets-Authorities Didn't Interfere with the Second Attack.

Night of Awful Sensations, 4

"Glick" Mitchell, the Urbana, O., negro brute, has paid the penalty of his foul crime with his life. An outraged people took the law into their own hands and meted out to him the punishment he so richly deserved and obeyed the command and wish of his prostrate and, as announced, dying victim. He was hanged to a tree in the court yard Friday in broad daylight, after a night of horror and tra-

Recently Mrs. Eliza Gaumer, the widow of the late publisher of the Urbana Democrat, was criminally assaulted by Chas. Mitchell, alias "Glick" Mitchell, a notorious negro, who was arraigned Wednesday, but his victim was too ill to appear in court. The man was taken to her home for identification. As he entered the door she raised herself on her elbow and exclaimed: "The brute! Hang him! How dare you face me, you brute!" In default of $1,000 bail Mitchell was locked up in the city prison, but on account of the feeling was removed to the county jail the same night for safe keeping.

From the time of his arrest threats of lynching were made, and Sheriff McLean took all precautions to prevent it, securing from the Governor the services of two companies of militia. His indictment by the grand jury, his plea of guilty and the sentence were all recorded within tour hours Thursday evening. His sentence was to twenty years' imprisonment, and he was to have been taken from the Urbana jail Friday to begin the term.

Thursday night the jail was surrounded by a threatening mob. News of the intended attack on the prisoner reached the officers of the court in the afternoon, and they called on the Governor for militia to protect Mitchell. The local company was ordered out, and took up lodgings under arms in the jail. At 2:30 o'clock Friday morning a mob attacked the jail with sledge hammers. The militiamen fired into the crowd, killing and wounding many of the attacking party and repening the assault.

At 7:10 o'clock in the morning a company of militiamen arrived from Springfield, O. The crowd, already enraged at the authorities, rallied for another at-tack on the jail. This time the authorities made no resistance. None of the men in charge had the nerve to order another volley turned into the bodies of -s towns-The negro was hustled out of his cell and hanged to the nearest tree in the presence of a howling mob of 2,000 persons, over 500 of whom were women. The feeling is intense against the sheriff for allowing the National Guards to fire on the people, and there is a very general approval of the work of the mob.

IS PATRIOTISM DYING?

Sporting Events Crowd Out Memorial Services.

Judging from the newspaper reports and other appearances Decoration Day has lost its character and significance in New York, writes William E. Curtis to the Chicago Record, when telling of the observance of last Memorial Day. no longer an event to revive patriotism and stir the memories, but is almost wholly given up to athletic exhibitions and sports. The old battle flags are honored, the Stars and Stripes float from every public building and from the windows and roofs of many residences, and the Grand Army posts still march with limping steps to the cemeteries, but the great mass of the people do not give a moment's thought to their debt to the dead. ceremonies at the tomb of Gen. Grant, at Greenwood, and at other silent camping grounds, where, as an old veteran remark ed, his comrades had been put to bed with a spade, but the participants were mostly ae survivors of the war and the wid and orphans of its dead. The people at the cemeteries numbered hundreds, while over 30,000 saw Howard Mann win the Brooklyn handican: 24,000 saw a haseball game between the New York and Pittsburg teams; a similar crowd witnessed a boat race on the Harlem river, and every branch of outdoor sport had some special attraction to celebrate the holiday Newspapers are a fair index of public interest on these subjects. They give a page to sporting intelligence and a column to the ceremonies of Decoration Day. In one paper I counted twenty-four columns filled with sports and four columns to the soldiers' monuments and cemeteries. It is a serious question whether the historic significance of the holiday is to be lost, and whether the public mind is becoming so absorbed with athletics, games and turf gambling that it cannot devote one day in the year to the expression and cultivation of patriotism.

About seventy guests were present and the gay and rich costumes with the pretty decorations afforded a pleasing scene under the brilliant gas light. At 10 o'clock the company was enlivened with dancing to the sweet strains of Wurzburg's orchestra of Grand Rapids. The spacious veranda was enclosed and lighted with gas and Japanese lanterns, and afforded room for five sets to dance at one time, the musicians, six in number, occupying the reception hall. Refreshments were served from small tables in the diningroom from half past eight till all were served, rosebuds being the table decorations. Delicious lemonade was served during the evening, presided over by Master Wycliffe Clark.

Those present will long remember this delightful evening and pronounce Mr. and Mrs. Keeler adepts in social entertaining.

Carleton, Mich. A most remarkable instance of the efficacy of Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer in the treatment of nervous troubles Vitalizer in the treatment of nervous troubles is a popular topic in this place. It appears that Mrs. Henry Greene, who resides just outside of the corporation, had suffered many years from a peculiar female trouble, and was advised by the attendant physician, Dr. S. A. Du Paul, to go to Harper Hospital, Detroit, for a surgical operation; that being her only hope to recovery. She followed the her only hope to recovery. She followed the advice and the operation was successfully advice and the operation was successfully performed, but resulted in such a shock to her nervous system that she was stricken with nervous prostration. They were unable to review her from that condition and so not apply that condition and so not the second stripe and s to revive her from that condition and so notified Dr. Du Paul, and at the same time sent her home as a probable incurable. Dr. Du Paul used all known means to help her without effect, in fact she grew worse. She could not raise her hand to get the smallest particle of food to her mouth, was a complete physical wreck. Fortunately Dr. Du Paul knew something of the virtue of Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer in the treatment of such cases and determined to try it. The effect was almost miraculous. She began to improve at once; it induced refreshing sleep, quieted her turbulent nerves, strengthened her entire nervous system, restored her to tified Dr. Du Paul, and at the same time sent quieted her turbulent nerves, strengtuened her entire nervous system, restored her to health, and she soon gained 20 pounds of good healthy flesh. Dr. Du Paul reports that only four bottles of the medicine were
