I'm So Dry

By Arthur Nash Potatoes have gone to the dogs, Taxes have gone to the sky; They have taken the plank From the drinks I have drank And now I can't talk-I'm so dry.

They have run up the price Of tobacco and ice, When I look at my money I sigh; Cooked meats are roaring And fresh meat is soaring, I'm only happy when I'm snoring ... I'm so dry.

Whatever I buy The price makes me cry, Eggs, butter, beer are so high. I feel like jumping free From this awful misery. And go upon a spree... I'm so dry.

Now the only thing that's free, Is love for you and me And I'm going to try and gobble all I can. But blast my blooming eyes If they put a tax on drys, Then is when I dies-

I'm so drv. We are ready for your job Bring it in today,

Election

Despite the fact that Pine Grove had but one ticket the stickers brought out a good vote but the entire republican ticket as nominated won out.

In Bloomingdale the contest was most spirited and three democrats Glint Cleland, supervisor; Cecil Plum treasurer and Charles Rathburn high way commissioner, sllpped in. This ins. is quite unusual as the democrats; in this township.

Obituary

Charles Langdon was born on Dec. 24, 1851 and departed this life on March 26, 1929, aged 77 years, 3 months and 2 days.

He came to Michigan in the fall of 1871, making his home with a brother until Jan. 24, 1875 when he was united in marriage to Miss Ianza Ingersol. They lived in Cheshire, Allegan Co., until 1910 when they moved to Gobles where he has since resided. On May 2, 1919 his wife passed away leaving him to mourn the loss of a loving wife. On April 10, 1920 he was again united in marriage to Mrs. Caroline Harring who is left to mourn the loss of a kind husband, also one sister-in-law Mary F. Langdon of this place, many nephews and nieces and a host of friends and neighbors. He always stood ready to extend a helping hand when needed and will be greatly missed from the community in which he has lived so long.

He is the last of a large family who have preceded him.

Funeral was held from the home and conducted by Rev. Hayes. He was buried in Robinson cemetery.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank the neighbors and friends for their kindness and sympathy to me during the illness and after the death of my husband and for the beautiful flowers, and the minister for his comforting words.

INDIAN DIALECT STUDY IS URGED

Study of the languages of the American Indian, many of which are about to vanish with the disappearance of certain racial strains, offers a fertile and scarcely tilled field for the linguistic scholar, according to Prof. Edwin Sapir of the University of Chicago, who addressed the opening session of the Michigan Academy of Science, Arts and Letters.

Prof. Sapir, commending on the variety and complexity of "The Aboriginal Lauguages of America," declared that there are to be heard today in California a greater number of tongues than could be collected in the whole history of continental Europe, both ancient and modern.

The learning of Latin, Greek or Sanskrit is child's play compared with acquiring a mastery of the Navajo or Southern Piute languages, he declared, due to the apparent confusion of tenses and the numerous circumlocutions employed by many tribes to supply word deficiencies.

Prof. Sapir said, however, that, despite apparent dissimilarity between the tribal tongues, further study might permit a classification under not more than six general heads.

Such intensive study, he said, unquestionably would show many similarities with the languages of Asia, and might well be expected to throw additional light on early ethnic move-

Show Record Number Of Clubs for State

A record number of 4-H clubs and a total membership of 19,022 boys and girls enrolled in those clubs in Michigan during the past year is reported by the state club leader at Michigan State College.

If the percentage of the youngsters who finished their projects can be taken as a measure, 1928 was Michigan's banner year for 4-H clubs as 79.3 per cent of all members completed their allotted work. The clubs provide practical instructive work for boys and girls in all seasons of the

Turned It Down

The early magazines turned down all advertising that they could struggle along without.

Harper's monthly refused to pub lish adevrtising for thirty-four years after its founding. In the early seventies Fletcher Harper rejected an offer of $18,000 for the use of the last page for a year by the Howe Sewing Machine. The magazine was really a house organ, advertising the books published by Harper Brothers. Advertisements from outsiders were declined.

Scribner's pioneered in approaching the advertisers, and the new advertising agent, who began as space salesman for the magazines and later shifted his responsibility to the client, in corralling them. Railroads were the first advertisers to venture into the magazines

WOULD UTILIZE ARMORY AT IONIA

A new plan to make the Ionia Armory of even greater service to the community and to forge more strongly the spirit of friendship existing between business men of the city and Company H is announced by Lieut. Chester C. Black, officer in command.

It is hoped to perfect plans for the weekly use of the Armory facilities by business men. As the building provides a gymnasium floor, shower baths and similar facilities it is believed probable business men will welcome the opportunity to use them.

Lieut. Black in announcing the plan stressed the fact the company is not in need of funds and does not care about the financial end of the honorary memberships, but is interested in enlisting the friendship and moral backing of the business men.

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of dras-tic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Harbor Waterway WILL COMPLETE ALASKA SURVEY

The hope of locating accurately rich timber land and sources of water power, as well as gathering data for maps, has prompted the navy to complete an aerial survey of Alaska begun in 1926.

Three Loening amphibian planes late in May, the Navy department has announced. They will be accompanied by the U.S. S. "Gannet" as tender and a barge.

Lt. Commander A. H. Radford, U. S. N., has been recommended as officer-in-charge of the expedition. B. H Sargent of the Interior department will probably accompany him, it was

The survey of Alaska was begun in 1926 when a naval party made aerial photographs of the areas around Kitchikan, Wrangell, Petersburg and Juneau. Following this earlier work the Interior department told the Navy it would have required ten season's work by ground methods to accomplish what the aviator's had done in three months. In addition to the officer in charge of the expedition a graduate photographic officer and four trained enlisted photographers will probably be detailed to the survey.

The Navy's active interest in con-

Port Huron Store Joins Continental Grouping

Continental Department Stores, Inc., the newly organized mid-western store group which now controls department stores in Flint and Lansing, has acquired the J. B. Sperry Company of Port Huron, according to a recent announcement of J. S. Sperry, president of the latter company. Neither the management nor the personnel of the Port Huron store will be changed, it was armounced.

Authorized capitalization of the Continental Department Stores, Inc., consists of $5,000,000 in debentures, 200,000 shares of non-par convertible stock sold at $50 a share, and 300,000 shares of non-par common stock sold at $26 a share. Part of these securities remain unissued. The company is expected soon to announce an issue to finance the acquisition of the Sperry store.

The Sperry store was founded in Port Huron about 36 years ago, originally as a hardware store, by J. B. Sperry. After 15 years of operation as a hardware unit, it was changed over to a department store and has grown to be the largest institution of its kind in the city. Last year the gross business of the Sperry store amounted to approximately $1,000,-000: Mr, Sperry remains president of the Port Huron store and becomes a director of the Continental chain. Clare Sperry continues as secretary of the Port Huron unit.

that is now being made is to fill some orders for immediate use by the federal reserve banks. But when these orders are filled no more large bills will be made. "After that the entire personnel, including 400,000 employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing will be at work on the new small bills.

"To date 16,000,000 of the new bills have been completed and are piled up at the bureau. "By July 1 they expect to have 650,000,000 of these new bills com-

BOOST ACREAGE OF SUGAR BEETS

A meeting sponsored by the Owosso Chamber of Commerce is to be held here on April 21 to arouse interest in the crisis that is facing the sugar beet industry, and to secure greater acreage for the Owosso plant of the Michigan Sugar Company. Only greater acreage for all companies and an increased sugar tariff can save the industry, its friends say.

One of three plants of the Michigan company at Owosso, Saginaw and Lansing will not be operated next fall, it is stated. Which one it will be will depend on the acreage secured for this summer in each territory.

H. R. Martini, manager of the Owosso plant, said that the increase of 75 cents per ton in the basic guaranteed price had resulted in securing an increased acreage, although up to the time this increase was announced and the new contracts issued only one-tenth of the normal acreage for this time of year had been signed.

Machine Is Invented To Turn Up Subsoil

A novel machine, the purpose of which is to drill through the top soil to the subsoil, raise the subsoil, and deposit it at the surface, has been invented by a German engineer, it is stated in advices from the Consul General, at Hamburg, G. Bie Ravendal. just made public by the Department of Commerce.

The full text of the advices follows The machine is moter driven and looks much like a heavy tractor. Its most important adjunct is a boring tube which is driven in a forward diagonal direction to the required

This tube is revolved and the shovellike blades attached to it are described as collecting the subsoil through slits in the tube's surface, whereupon the subsoil is raised to the upper end of the tube. by means of a screw gear, whence it is deposited behind the screen in a ridge two feet high.

This invention may prove, it is said, of inestimable value to north German farmers, especially to those along the German littoral, much of which was covered by the sea in past ages. In these regions, and also in numerous lowlands, there lies not very deep, a layer of calciferous marl, which farmers have long been accustomed to use o improve their heavy soil.

The usual method has been to dig large pits out of which the valuable 'blue sand"-so-called because of its blue-gray color-was extracted and distributed over the whole surface of the soil. Crops, grown on soil thus treated, were one-third greater than those grown on untreated soil.

The extraction of this blue sand became, in the course of time, very expensive and unprofitable to marsh land farmers, owing to the difficulty of obtaining suitable laborers, and to them good brooding conditions and the continually rising scale of wages. As a result during the last few decades the marsh lands of Dithmarschen, Hanover and Oldenburg have a soil which is lacking in lime, and which is becoming more and more unfit for the cultivation of such vegetables as require hoeing.

Dressing the fields with finely ground carbonate of lime cannot be substituted for the blue sand because, according to a report issued by the Hamburg State Botanical Institute, in addition to being a fertilizer, this blue sand has a physical and biological effect on the soil, making the clods porous and thus offering the bacteria of the soil more advantageous condition of life.

Poultry

CHICK BUYER'S RESPONSIBILITY

At this season of the year poultrymen all over the United States are buying or hatching chicks to go into their brooder houses and eventually replace the old stock which is now busily engaged in making a good income for its owner. In times past most of the old stock was replaced by chicks hatched at home, usually with hens but sometimes with small size incubators.

More recently, however, commercial hatcheries have been producing more and more of the baby chicks which supply this replacement stock. Undoubtedly they are doing a good job of filling this need for each year finds many of the former chick buyers, as well as new buyers, back purchasing chicks from their favorite hatchery or hatcheries.

Such conditions indicate more clearly than promises that the hatcheries, as a rule, are living up to their guarantees. They are supplying chicks of the quality that the customer has a right to expect for the money which the spends. They are supplying a full count of chicks on all orders and are quite generally shipping on the date on which they promise to make shipment. Most hatcheries are going even further than this and are offering advice and suggestions to their buyers as to how to handle the chicks to get best results.

But hatcheries alone cannot make the chick raising business profitable to the buyer, even though they do live up to all of their promises. The buyer has a responsibility toward the hatchery, just as the hatchery has a responsibility to the buyer. The buyer owes it to himself and to the hatchery from which he purchases the chicks to give good feed. He owes it to himself because of the financial loss which he will incur if he does not give the chicks a fair chance. And before making any complaint to a hatchery, in all fairness, the buyer should ask himself, "Have I given these chicks a chance to make good on the claims made by the hatchery?"

The chick deserves a fair chance. The buyer should acquaint himself with all of the facts concerning approved chick brooding and feeding practices and should be properly equipped to handle chicks before he

Wounded Trees Should Be Treated Promptly With Paint and Tar

An exposed surface on a fruit tree, from injury or removal of a limb, is an invitation for fungi and wood-boring insects attact it, and should be promptly disinfected and covered with waterproof coating. If a limb has been cut off, paint the edge of the bark and cambium with shellac while the cut surface is still moist. Apply a disinfectant such as common creosote.

The wood should then be protected with a heavy coat of coal tar. Or inmonthly magazine. The paper was stead of applying the two materials separately, put on a mixture of onethird creosote and two-thirds coal tar. On small surfaces, grafting wax gives good results.

Low Sheep Prices Due Now

Losses from mid-winter lambing have been quite heavy in central northern Michigan this year due to the severity of the weather, this being but another form of proof of Pritchard's Weather Forecast accuracy. It is this loss at lambing that helps to set sheep prices. A more rough estimate is obtained by the irregular cycle of price.

In the past, the low point of the cycle has been reached three to seven years after the high point. The year 1925 was probably the high point and this would put 1929 close to the low point. In previous cycles the low price point was reached in 1895-6, 1903-4, 1911-12 and in 1920-21. The next low point year is due now.

Sheep numbers continued to increase during 1928 and the lamb crop this year may show some increase above last year, according to a late agricultural report from the government. Michigan alone shows an increase of 66,000 more sheep over a year ago.

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless thay may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

NICE WORDS WON'T DYE a dress or coat...

Neither pretty pictures nor colorful adjectives will dye a dress or coat. It takes real dyes to do the work; dyes made from true anilines.

Next time you have dyeing to do, try Diamond Dyes. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree they are better dyes.

You get none of that re-dyed look from Diamond Dyes; no streaking or spotting. Just fresh, crisp, bright new color. And watch the way they keep their brilliance through wear and washing. They are better dyes because they contain plenty of real anilines—from three to five times more than other dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon for any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. A Disturbed

Decision By A. W. PEACH

Sometimes it seems as if into our moments of supreme happiness fate dropped a regret or disaster that Charles Alden, C. W. Alden, George Al-! immediately comes prefty near to dissolving that happiness. So it seemed to Richard Marsh as he read and reread the letter upon his desk. The preceding evening he had gone to the little cottage at the end of the broad street where Avery Wells lived with her pleasant-faced mother, and there, in the home-ke quiet of the cottage living room, he had looked into Avery's dark eyes and asked the question as bravely as he could, which she had answered in a whisper.

He had spent most of the night dreaming in his rooms, building castles. He loved the village, and the village people trusted him. His future did not promise giory and gold, but it did promise happiness with Avery to share it with him. And now, from beyond the grave, Brinner had reached with bitter ingenuity to wreck a dream he could not share.

Marsh turned to the letter. It was from a law firm in Philadelphia. It said in precise phrases that Edgar Brinner had died, that in his will a bequest of $100,000 was made to Miss Avery Wells.

He knew that as far as he was concerned two things were plain; he could not marry Avery if she accepted this money bequeathed to her by his old and bitter rival; yet that sum of money meant for her and her mother independence and comfort, the removal of worry, after long years of severe and frugal living.

One thing he was sure of: if Avery knew how he felt, she would not accept the bequest. Marsh reasoned, "I cannot ask her to give the fortune up; and Brinner knew I would not. Funny, how a dead man in his grave can tangle up the living."

Under the stress of his suffering memories, his thinking became a bit hazy, but he came to a decision. He heard the jingling sleighbells, the hearty greetings as men came into the post office below him; faint as they were they were clear enough to make him think of the wholesome, friendly life of his village. With the thought came his decision. A friend in a northern city had written to him repeatedly to join him where opportunity was wide and money ready. He would go, refuse to assume charge of the fund and shut the door quietly but firmly in his little house of

A week passed. He did not see Avery, and pleaded as an excuse that he was very busy. He was-in the grievous business of slowly sundering all ties that bound him to the home of his boyhood and his man-

Sometimes he was doubtful of the wisdom of his purpose, at times when his great longing for Avery broke through the barriers his judgment had set, at times when the dream castles loomed so brightly on the hills that they seemed almost real. But ever and anon he returned once more to his decision. the incident that Then came clinched the matter. A friend had come in, his voice athrill with the news. "Dick, what do you think? Brinner has left Avery $100,000! What makes you start? The news? I should think it would. And, say, Avery is going to accept it!" "I stopped in to get her to sing at the church fair, and she told me about it-said she would. She was happy as a lark over it." His friend's face grew sober. "I suppose this will make a little difference with you, but not serious."

"Serious!" Marsh laughed bitterly. his mind whirling at the thought of her acceptance. He had hoped in a dim way she would refuse the money. "Serious? No, except I'm going to leave the village for good!'

The realization dawning upon him that he had given himself away under the strain, he swore his friend to silence, and he heard him pounding the stairs, muttering as he

He turned to his desk. Dusk came down over the village. He did not hear Avery until she stood beside him.

Then she spoke, and the office seemed filled with pleasant music. "Dear, Ted swore to keep his word to you, but he came to me; said he would keep no such fool promise as he made you. I think I know all that is wrong. They wrote me of the money, as Binner told them to, that you were to have charge of it. You want me to have it for what you think is mother's happiness and mine, and you won't come to me if I do take it. You see, I know. Why, I couldn't take it. I couldn't be happy with it. I love you, the village and the ones I have known from girlhood. I couldn't touch a penny of it, because I knew how he got it. You see-" He rose to his feet trembling. "But you accepted it!"

Her white teeth gleamed a bit in a smile. "For others! I'm going to turn every cent of it over to that hospital for crippled kiddies; you know, the one we visited. That visit nearly broke my heart-seeing them, I'm going to make his money forget its black past. Oh, my dear, I simply must have you! I simply must! Take me and say-"

The door opened slightly, and Ted stuck his head in, gasped at what he saw and with the utmost skill softly, lingeringly, gently closed it.

Nora, Wake Up

At Gobles Opera House Friday Eve, April 12th

CAST OF CHARACTERS

Bridget Honora Calahan (Nora), an up-to date daughter. Marie Waber Mrs. Peggy Calahan, her old fashioned mother......Anita Stimpson Danny Millens, Johnny's friend, in love with Nora............Max Brown Mrs. Edmonton, an ultra modern mother......Roberta Dorgan Edmond Edmonton, her son, a four flusher......Chester Ray Katie Schwartz, an obliging neighbor......Clevah Woodhouse

SYNOPSIS

On this summer morning we find Nora and her mother in the living room of the Calahan home, the former giving Mrs. Calahan a few points on modern mothers. Johnny and his friend, Danny, home from college, liven up the scene a bit. Edmond appears on the scene, with the fake oil stock, which Nora, with a bit of persuasion and tears, convinces Mrs. Calahan she should buy.

Then comes the second act. Nora's dream. We find what the upto-date daughter knows about cookery. Mrs. Calahan com es home, transformed from an old fashioned mother into an up-to-date flapper She causes much embarassment for Nora by giving to Edmond Nora's hand in marriage. Danny comes in just in time to help Nora and he plays up to her when she says that they've been engaged for a month. Carlyle startles all by announcing that he is going to marry Mrs. Calahan. Nora, Danny and Johnny leave home when they are told. Nora wakes up after her dream and finds she loves Danny. Her dream has caused her to dislike Edmond. Ed and his mother come to the Calahan home intending to pay them the money lost in fake oil stock. Carlyle comes and "shows them up" as being crooked and Mrs. Calahan is happy. So, "after the rain came the rainbow."

Primitive Hostelries

The Romans are credited with having invented "hotels," which were first known in Italy as "Osteria." They were slovenly places, without host, cook, waiters or beds. In fact, all they gave the traveler was shelter from the weather. He had to bring his own bedding and food and do his own cook-

Snail's Dug-Out

Snails dig themselves into the ground in winter and remain torpid, cementing up the opening to their shells. They breathe through a small hole in the "cement," too small to allow the entrance of water, but large enough to allow sufficient air for their feeble respiration.
