Editor's Foreword

THE function of the Wolverine is to record the events of the passing years here at M. A. C. This is the book of the Class of 1917. In it we have attempted to observe the customs, the precedents, and the time honored usages of former years. We trust that in portraying the history of the past year on the campus, we have succeeded in these things.

But while we have given every deference to the past, we have made some departures from previous practice in the publication of the 1916 Wolverine. We trust that these changes will not be displeasing.

Those things which are said and set forth in the following pages are all of them offered in a spirit of friendship and comradery. We ask only that you receive them as they are given, and that this book may serve you as a not unpleasant reminder of your college days.

Michigan Agricultural College

Past and Present

By ADDISON MAKEPEACE BROWN

JOSEPH R. WILLIAMS
First President
1857

THE Michigan Agricultural College, one of the leading units in the educational system of Michigan, had its inception in the early discussion of a general system of education for the then territory. In bringing about this discussion and in crystallizing it into definite form, the state was most fortunate in having two wise, scholarly and far-seeing men, who left the permanent impress of their wisdom and foresight upon that most important of its functions—provision for public education. A debt of gratitude is due from the people of Michigan and of the country at large, to Isaac E. Crary, member of the constitutional convention of 1835, and John D. Pierce, the first superintendent of public instruction in this state, and indeed in the nation, for laying the foundations of the Michigan public school system, the first thoroughly comprehensive system of education to be adopted by any state.

In the first constitution it was made the duty of the legislature to encourage the promotion of intellectual, scientific and agricultural improvement, and in the act approved March 18, 1837, establishing the University of Michigan, specific provision was made for instruction in "practical farming and agriculture." So far as agriculture was concerned, however, these early efforts were not destined to eventuate into anything of permanent value for a number of years, and the final establishment of agricultural teaching in the state came about through agitation from quite a different source.

There had been early established (1849), and still exists, a quasi-official organization, known as the State Agricultural Society which at once interested itself in furthering the interests of agriculture. As a natural consequence, it began to urge the importance of scientific agricultural training for those who were to engage in farming, and numerous public addresses were made by its members and others insisting upon the establishment of an agricultural school. At a meeting of the executive committee of the State Agricultural Society held in December, 1849, Hon. Bela Hubbard of Detroit, offered the following resolution which, however, was laid upon the table for reasons not easily understood:

"RESOLVED,—That our legislature be requested to take such legislation as shall appear necessary or expedient for the establishment of a state central agricultural office, with which shall be connected a museum of agricultural products and implements and an agricultural library, and as soon as practicable, an agricultural college and a model farm." In January, 1850, at the request of the executive committee of the State Agricultural Society, Joseph R. Williams, who later became the first president of M. A. C., presented to the legislature "a memorial for a State Agricultural College in Michigan" which should be a branch of the State University. This memorial, for the first time, put up to the legislature the question of establishing the first agricultural college in this country and undoubtedly had its influence with the constitutional convention of 1850, for Section 11 of Act 13 of that document made the following provision:

"The legislature shall encourage the promotion of intellectual, agricultural and scientific improvement; and shall, as soon as practicable, provide for the establishment of an agricultural school. The legislature may appropriate the twenty-two sections of salt spring lands now unappropriated, or the money arising from the sale of the same, where such lands have been already sold, and any land which may hereafter be granted or appropriated for such purpose, for the support and maintenance of such school and may make the same a branch of the University, for instruction in agriculture and the natural sciences connected therewith, and place same under the supervision of the Regents of the University."

With the agitation for an agricultural school, a three-sided discussion sprang up as to its location and management and this continued for some twelve years after the College had been opened. The State Normal School was to be opened in October, 1852, and the law provided "for instruction in the mechanic arts, the arts of husbandry and in agricultural chemistry." In view of this, on September 21st of that year, Francis W. Shearman, superintendent of public instruction, wrote to J. C. Holmes, secretary of the State Agricultural Society, calling his attention to the provisions of the Normal School act in relation to agriculture, and apparently soliciting the co-operation and support of the Agricultural Society in building up an agricultural department at Ypsilanti. A little later in the same year, Dr. Henry P. Tappan, chancellor of the University of Michigan, wrote to Mr. Holmes, informing him that in anticipation of legislation carrying out the provisions of that section of the constitution above quoted, the University had organized an agricultural school as part of the scientific course recently established. It was clear that the University did not intend to let the opportunity for mothering such a school slip. The State Agricultural Society at first seemed favorable to a plan for making the school a branch of the Normal School or of the University, but the resolution addressed to the legislature while requesting that the school be made a branch of the University contains this significant language, viz: that "the contemplated school and farm should not be established in immediate proximity to any existing educational institution."

The legislature of 1853 did nothing about the matter, so it remained for the legislature of 1855 to pass the act necessary to establish the long talked of agricultural school.

Previous to this, the Agricultural Society had reached the conclusion that such a school should be entirely separate from any other institution and it laid its views before the members of the legislature effectively, as the result proved. The law provided that the school and farm should be located within ten miles of Lansing and that there should be secured not less than five hundred nor more than a thousand acres of land, and to the executive committee of the Agricultural Society was committed the selection of the site. The supervision of the school was intrusted to the State Board of Education. Such was the struggle to establish the first state agricultural school in America and to fix its location. As already stated, the question of its permanent abode was a mooted one for many years after, and even at the present time one hears an occasional murmur from some visionary propagandist touching this matter.

The committee named to select the site performed its function, a portion of the salt spring lands was sold and with the proceeds three buildings were erected, College Hall, the dormitory and boarding house known as "Saints Rest," and a brick barn now used as a carpenter shop. On May 13, 1857, the school was formally dedicated and opened with an attendance of sixty-one students.

Joseph R. Williams was elected its first president and delivered a very forceful and scholarly inaugural address, but, unable to bear the criticisms and discouragements inseparable from such an enterprise, he resigned in the spring of 1859, after but two years of service. During the interregnum, from 1859 to December, 1862, Louis R. Fisk was acting president, and following him came the presidency of Dr. T. C. Abbot, whose twenty-two years of service had a marked effect upon the character and development of the institution.

In a paper of this kind, it is manifestly impossible to follow this new child of the state through all the vicissitudes that accompanied its evolution into what it now is. Located three and a half miles from the city of Lansing, with a long stretch of road between that was at certain seasons well nigh impassible; with no means of communication except by foot passage or horse-drawn vehicle; with a forest to subdue before any progress could be made toward the real end in view; and surrounded by a carping, unsympathetic public, it need not be wondered that this institution came but slowly "into the sunlight." If mistakes were made, as was inevitable, the College was scoffed at; if new truths were discovered that should favorably affect agriculture, the farmers distrusted them and regarded them as the useless fruit of book farming.

So the long years of President Abbot's administration wore away, as the institution was slowly adapting itself to its task, growing a little stronger all the time, coming into a better understanding of the farm problem and of the farmer himself. Following Dr. Abbot in the presidency came successively, Edwin Willits, Oscar Clute and Lewis G. Gorton, the administration of all three extending only from July, 1885, to February, 1896. At the time of the advent of Jonathan L. Snyder, as president on the latter date, the student attendance was 356, or 13 less than it had been six years earlier, and there were evidences of mal-nutrition in the institution which was still as isolated from the outside world as in its earlier days. The total amount of funds available for that year was $109,473.39, only $16,000.00 of which were granted by the state. With an energy and perseverance that has characterized his whole administration, President Snyder set to work at once to quicken the pulse of the institution, and to breathe new life into its somewhat lethargic body. There was a quick response to his efforts in the growth of student attendance which has steadily continued down to the present time.

President Snyder saw the opportunity that opened before the College and spared no effort to prepare it to meet those obligations that were being rapidly thrust upon it. Lack of funds to provide for necessary growth and development has always been a handicap, and during the twenty years in which President Snyder has presided over the destinies of the College, there has never been a time when its real needs were adequately met. The material growth of the institution has largely taken place since 1900 when the Women's Hall was erected, together with the old Dairy building, now set over to the Forestry department, and the Dairy barn. Since then have come successively, the Power plant and tunnels, the water system, the Bath House, the new Wells Hall, the Engineering building, Agricultural building, additions to the Chemical and Botanical laboratories, the new Dairy building and the Veterinary laboratory. During the period under consideration, student attendance has gone from 356 to 2,010, and a new city has grown up at the College, connected by interurban line with the Capital City.

Dr. Snyder's resignation, which had been in the hands of the governing board for more than a year, was accepted to take effect September 15, 1915, and, as no successor had yet been selected, Dr. Frank S. Kedzie, for many years professor of chemistry, was very appropriately appointed acting president. He is conducting the affairs of the College with that energy and optimism so characteristic of him in everything that he undertakes.

THE PRESENT COLLEGE AND ITS WORK

The scope of the College has materially broadened since it came into being as the original state agricultural college of this country. This has been largely due to the federal legislation that has been enacted since its foundation in the interest of higher industrial education. When these various grants of aid were made by Congress and accepted by the state for the use of the College, it became thereby committed to a broader policy than was contemplated by its founders. The institution will be best understood if we think of it as a college of applied science. That such is today its character is beyond dispute, but the public has been slow to appreciate this evolution, and the institution suffered from a too narrow interpretation of its purpose and function.

As at present constituted, the College has three great fields of endeavor,—first the education of resident students in the various lines of work that are offered by its curriculum; second, research and experimental work in agriculture, which may in the future be extended into other fields, and third, extension work, or the carrying of the College to those who are unable to become resident students. For carrying on its educational work with resident students, the institution is organized into five chief divisions. These are the Divisions of Agriculture, Engineering, Home Economics, Veterinary Science and Science of Letters.

A brief survey of these will show the general character of the work in each. The subject of Agriculture has been so developed and differentiated since colleges were organized to teach it, that it demands a wide range of specialists to present it in all its ramifications. At M. A. C., the work is separated into three main lines,—general agriculture, horticulture and forestry, and these in turn become more or less subdivided to fit the varying needs of students. Every phase of agricultural activity is represented by appropriate lines of work and the aim is to give the student, both from the scientific and practical sides, a clear view of the subject.

The Engineering work falls into three main divisions known as civil, mechanical and electrical, none of which is as highly differentiated as at some other colleges; which is to say that the student is rather broadly trained in all of these lines and can without serious handicap pass from one to the other when he gets into the field of practical work. Students in agriculture are also taught such engineering as is germane to their occupation. The large amount of shop work given to the students in this division enables them to fit into industrial conditions, with the least possible embarrassment after graduation, and often gives them precedence over those from other institutions.

One of the most important features of the College is the work given in the Home Economics Division, in which there are now enrolled 288 young women from all parts of the state, a goodly number coming from the cities and large towns. It is the purpose of this division to teach its students, in a scientific and practical way, cookery, needle-work, house-management and all those arts that concern a well ordered modern home, and at the same time to give them such general academic training as properly belongs to educated people. Its aim on the technical side is to improve, simplify and facilitate household affairs, to the end that there may be more comfort and better health in the home, and at the same time more opportunity for the mother to develop intellectually and socially and make her influence felt both at home and abroad.

The Veterinary Division, rather recently established, needs only a passing mention as its purpose is very clear and definite. The aim in founding it was to build up a very high class school that should turn out professional veterinarians, capable of taking their place in the ranks with other professionally trained men, without apology either for themselves or their profession. A good start has been made and, with modern equipment for pathological and surgical work, we may look forward to most favorable results.

Back of all the technical work of the institution and the scholarship so important to its students, stands the Division of Science and Letters. So important are the basic sciences to the technical courses and so fundamental to scholarship is the literary work here given, that without these the whole thing would become a mockery. Chemistry, botany, zoology, entomology, and the modern science of bacteriology, constitute the very life blood of progress in technical knowledge and no person can aspire to scholarship without a fairly intimate acquaintance with the history and literature of the past.

The field of experimentation and research is the second of the great lines of endeavor with which the College is concerned. As the result of federal legislation, there is received from the treasury of the United States each year $30,000.00 with which to carry on work of this kind, and this is supplemented to some extent by the State. In the various laboratories special scientists are engaged in studying problems that may have a bearing upon practical agriculture. It is the purpose of the Experiment Station to investigate and study a great variety of natural phenomena with a view to discovering truths likely to be of interest or value to those engaged in agriculture. The scientists at this station in conjunction and, at times, in collaboration with, those of the other state experiment stations, and of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, form a great body of research workers whose efforts are constantly directed toward the elucidation of Nature's mysteries.

The application of the truths in this way established, to the great field of practical agriculture, is a function to be performed by men of quite another type, intermediaries between science and practice. Some of the results that have come from this source may be seen in the use of cultures for inoculating legumes, serum for the prevention of hog cholera, simple tests for determining soil acidity and lime for its eradication, insecticides and germicides for the protection of plant life, etc.

We come now to consider the latest step in agricultural teaching—organized extension work. We speak of this as the latest step, because it has received only recently its great impetus and assumed a well organized form; but M. A. C. was also here a pioneer, for she was the first institution to plan a series of farmers' institutes many years ago under the inspiration of Dr. Kedzie and Dr. Beal. For a number of years the College has had a number of field men whose duty it was to go out among the farmers and give demonstrations and instruction in their special lines, and in this way encourage and promote better methods of agriculture. The activity of the federal government in this field in recent years has greatly emphasized this work, and we are now just starting upon a program of college extension in agriculture and home economics that will completely dwarf all former efforts. With the passage of the Smith-Lever bill by Congress, the College will receive federal aid in 1923 to the extent of $133,000.00 for this purpose, provided it meets the conditions imposed by the act of Congress, one of which is that the College shall offset $123,000.00 of that sum by a like amount each year. When this fund reaches its maximum, the expenditures for extension work will be greater than the entire expenditures of the institution were as late as the year 1904. Already about twenty-five men and three women are devoting their time to this work, some employed wholly by the College, some employed jointly by the College and the United States Department of Agriculture, and some employed by the latter in co-operation with certain counties which bear part of the expense. The women who have been doing valuable work in this field for the Home Economics Division have at times been assisted by members of the senior class. This represents the first extension work done in the interest of women, especially country women, and has for its purpose the amelioration of home conditions.

The great diversity of agricultural conditions and production in Michigan, causes a much broader demand for extension aid than is the case in many, or even most, other states. On account of this, too, the College has had to respond more widely to the varying interests and to equip itself as a leader in practically every variety of agriculture known to the temperate zone.

In its three-fold field of endeavor, Michigan Agricultural College is doing a great work, and yet before it lie untold possibilities for usefulness in many directions. From the earliest times respect for labor and efficiency has characterized the atmosphere of the institution, and a more self-respecting and democratic student body can nowhere be found. A most wholesome social life pervades the community and permits the mingling on equal terms of rich and poor, urban and rural; may it always be so. Forbidding as the location of the College in the midst of a forest clearing at first seemed, yet the campus has been developed into one of the most beautiful spots in the country, a place that must leave a lasting impression in the minds of all students who see it in the full glory of its spring robing. It is unfortunate for the College

RANSOM E. OLDS

On April 22, 1916, Mr. Olds announced his contribution of a gift of $100,000 to the College to be devoted to the Engineering Department for the reconstruction of the engineering buildings. Mr. Olds' act insures the restoration of the Engineering Department on a firmer foundation than ever and has won him the friendship and respect of every student, alumnus and friend of the College.

that more Michigan people do not know its external attractions and its internal worth, for it has long suffered from being misunderstood; let us hope that this era is near an end.

LOSS OF THE ENGINEERING PLANT

Since this article was written, the College has sustained the loss by fire of its entire engineering plant and equipment, valued at about $240,000.00. This occurred Sunday morning, March 5th. It is well worthy of record, that, in spite of the sudden destruction of this great plant, in which over four hundred engineering students were taking their work, arrangements were made whereby all attended classes on schedule time Monday morning. The buildings are now being rebuilt and soon the Division of Engineering will again be established in its own commodious quarters. In this connection it is desired to make grateful acknowledgment for the gift of Ransom E. Olds, who contributed $100,000.00 for the rebuilding of the Engineering buildings. May others feel the compelling force of his example.

FRANK S. KEDZIE
President

FRANK STEWART KEDZIE

THIRTY-FIVE years of continuous service with the College by Dr. Frank Stewart Kedzie was rewarded on April 19, 1916, with his appointment to the Presidency by the State Board of Agriculture. The resignation a year ago of Dr. Jonathan LeMoynes Snyder, following twenty years of devoted labor as president, left the College without an executive. In its time of need, the board in September, 1915, called upon Doctor Kedzie to take up the guiding reins, and the events of the year have amply proved the wisdom of the board's selection. The appointment was made permanent this spring. Doctor Kedzie—our "Uncle Frank"—has triumphantly brought the College through one of the most trying periods in its history.

"Uncle Frank"—the name, used in all honor and respect, by which we know him best—is an M. A. C. product in the truest sense. He was graduated from the College in 1877, at the age of twenty-one, and since 1880, except for two years spent in study in Germany, he has been identified with, and a part of, M. A. C. He began as instructor in chemistry, and he has risen by merited service through all the degrees of instructorships and professorships to his present position as President.

He has done much during the year that has endeared him to the student body, and the high esteem in which he has always been held has in no wise been detracted from by his decisive conduct of the affairs of the College since the loss of the Engineering building. This loss he has turned into a victory which promises to fix the College more firmly than ever in its position as one of Michigan's two leading educational institutions.

ROBERT SIDNEY SHAW

Dean of Agriculture

Director of the Experiment Station

DEAN SHAW, to whom this book has been dedicated as a modest token of the esteem in which we hold him and the friendship we have for him, is the man—if this distinction may be credited to any one person—who has in a great measure been responsible for and directed those policies of the Agricultural Department of the College which have brought M. A. C. to its place of leadership in Michigan Agriculture. Dean Shaw, born in Woodbury, Canada, on July 24, 1871, was graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College in 1893. For five years following his graduation he managed the home farm, in Canada. From 1898 to 1902 he was Professor of Agriculture in the Montana Agricultural College. In 1902 he became Professor of Agriculture at M. A. C., and in 1908 he was made Dean. To this title was added, in 1909, that of Director of the Experiment Station.

GEORGE WELTON BISSELL

Dean of Engineering

THE ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT of the College has just emerged successfully from its severest trial. Dean Bissell, with the co-operation of the engineering faculty, which has borne the burden with him, has been superior to the struggle. Dean Bissell was born in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 14, 1866. He was educated in the public schools of Poughkeepsie. From 1888 to 1891 he was instructor in experimental engineering in Sibley College, Cornell. In 1891-'92 he was Assistant Professor of Engineering at Iowa State College, and since 1907 he has been Professor of Mechanical Engineering and Dean of Engineering at M. A. C. He is a fellow of A. A. A. S., and member of Sigma Xi, of numerous other national and state engineering societies and organizations.

GEORGIA LAURA WHITE

Dean of Home Economics

THE DEPARTMENT OF HOME ECONOMICS, during its recent exceptional expansion and development, has been ably guided by Dean Georgia Laura White, who possesses a combination of the theoretical and the practical, and a sympathetic understanding of womankind which superbly fit her for her office as Dean of Women. She attended Normal School at Fredonia, N. Y., graduated from Lake Erie Seminary in 1894, from Cornell in 1896, pursued post-graduate work at Cornell during 1898-'99, studied at Halle, Germany, in 1899-1900, and received the degree of Ph.D., from Cornell in 1901. She was Associate Professor of Sociology at Smith College from 1905 to 1911, and Dean of Women at Olivet until she took up her duties here in 1914.

RICHARD POPE LYMAN

Dean of Veterinary Medicine

THE DEPARTMENT OF VETERINARY MEDICINE, the youngest of the divisions of the College, owes no small part of its progress to the zealous effort of Dean Lyman. Dean Lyman was born at Concord, Mass., August 5, 1872. He was graduated from the Massachusetts Agricultural College in 1892, with the degree of B.S. Two years later he received the degree of D.V.M. from Harvard University. From 1894 until 1908 he was engaged in private practice in the east, and from that time until 1910 he was lecturer on Diseases of Animals, and Professor of Clinical Medicine and Obstetrics in the Kansas City Veterinary College. In 1910 he was appointed Dean of the Division of Veterinary Science and Medicine at M. A. C. Dean Lyman for several years has also been prominently connected with the American Veterinary Medical Association and other organizations related to the profession of veterinary medicine.

THERE appeared on the M. A. C. campus four years previous to the year 1916 a motley crowd of raw recruits—eager to strengthen and augment their inland and coast defenses. At once they went into training under the skilled and kindly tutelage of the Sophomores and the Faculty. The Faculty expounded learnedly or at length on subjects calculated to arouse their interest along lines leading to a desire for a more serious consideration of the necessity of preparedness. The Sophomores said: "Eventually—also—now," and proceeded to scrub the campus lawn with this unprepared contingent.

A similar result the second year, at the hands of the 1917 recruits, made evident to the '16ers their crying need of organization, and improved methods of warfare. Many unique and notorious incidents took place during the year, which showed the perverted course which the originality of the unorganized mind may take.

Another year saw them as veterans, putting into practice the theories which they had learned, and attempting to direct their ability and energy into the proper channels of intelligent warfare. They became an organized, co-operative body, with distinctive ideas, striking out successfully along untravelled paths, striving in unison toward the highest and most efficient methods of defense.

And, finally, they became known as seasoned (multiplied by four or five) veterans, with an enviable past and a desirable future, working with well-defined ideas and ideals of final preparedness, anxious to stand in the firing line and put to actual test their courage, their enthusiasm, their optimistic spirit, their self-confidence and faith in humanity.

CLASS HISTORY

Being the entry of a few of the precocious preps.

Walt Wright and his steam roller.

Clem Fry comes ALL the way from Ashbury Park.

THE YEAR 1913

The MAIN CLASS Enters.

Entering as Freshman.

Seeing Prexy

Flag Rust

Scenes after the scrap

BASKET BALL CHAMP'S.

Just a moment please

While the Operator changes Reels

THE YEAR 1914

- AS Sophs we find ourselves -

Our class meetings were very successful - W. Wright pres.

Once more we win the rush.

At THE BARBECUE - WE BURY THE HASKET WITH THE TRESH

Our Soph party - was a success

We have no trouble winning the cane rush.

The Sophomore Year was certainly a great one
Just a moment Please....

Reel 3
THE YEAR'S ISSUES
AS Juniors
We now take the stage...

Mr Mike Hoodas - Miss Fry president - elected Vice-Pres in place of Mr Moon who was notable to return to school

Miss JAWAII Elected sec

Mr Vershoor Keeps his eagle eye on the funds-

Member they had a hard time posting up Abbey Hall.

Again we have the Basketball Championship-

And the Hop was some dance-

Our final efforts were with the Wolverine - we hope this Book meets with your approval and is the best ever
Yours in pop class 1917

The Year in Review

THE past year in M. A. C. athletics has been, in large measure, one of success. In football, baseball, basketball, track and tennis, Aggie teams more than broke even, attesting the right of the College to recognition as one of the leading factors in intercollegiate sports in the middle west. Under the generalship of Coach John F. Macklin, the winning habit seems to have become quite permanently fixed.

In football the work of Coach Macklin and his aides, Gauthier, "Dutch" Miller, Gifford and McWilliams, got results in the complete vanquishment of Michigan. But one defeat interrupted a season of otherwise complete victory.

The baseball squad, while behind the football team in its proportion of wins, was nevertheless a good one, closing the season with an average of .571. Michigan, as in football, was again among the Aggies' victims.

The basketball quint, despite the fact that it was made up mostly of new recruits, acquitted itself creditably, though its performances, due chiefly to the big number of green recruits, was not quite up to the mark of the other teams. Its work, however, was such as to insure a good squad next winter.

The track season was easily the most successful in the history of the College. Notre Dame managed to make away with a majority of points, but notwithstanding this, the team put up a game fight. The year's work on the cinders was otherwise unmarred.

The tennis team also upheld its end of 'varsity sports by making a clean sweep of the spring card. In tennis the year was easily the best the College has enjoyed.

During the year, as a whole, the work of M. A. C. athletes in the branches of sport, in which they competed, was such as to mark the season as one of the best the College has ever had.

The year also saw the retirement of some of the best men who have ever graced M. A. C. teams, but the regrets over their departure have been made less poignant by the fact that the amount of first rate material still in College is such as to insure at least a respectable showing in the year to come, though the enactment of the three-year rule on January 1, 1916, will make the task one of perhaps more difficulty than has been true heretofore.

Athletic Board of Control

WITH the going into effect of the three-year rule in M. A. C. athletics, on January 1, 1916, general supervision of athletic affairs of the College passed from the hands of the coaches, where it had previously reposed, to the control of the Athletic Board. This board will in the future work with M. A. C.'s athletic directors in all the business affairs relating to campus and 'varsity sports.

The Season of 1915

FIVE victories won, out of a possible six, was the way the season's results tallied up last fall when Coach Macklin mustered out the football squad—a record entitling the team to rank with the best that have ever defended the Green and White. The year wound up a series of four years of general football success—four years in which we have chalked up victories over Michigan, Wisconsin, Notre Dame, Penn State, Ohio State, and a number of lesser lights. The season of 1915 was a good one.

The team was a real one. The Oregon Aggies may dispute the claim, but there is little argument on the point in the environs of Ann Arbor. The strength of the 1915 squad quite upset followers of football who happened to occupy seats in the Ferry Field bleachers on October 23rd, last, but those few who had the opportunity to cast an eye over the squad during the preliminary workouts in the training camp at Pine Lake, were not so astounded. Some 30 men reported for the early drill, and they were 30 stalwarts who early showed signs that they would be a factor in the season's football ceremonies.

The early omens were well borne out when the season opened. Olivet was disposed of 34 to 0; Alma was laid quietly away by a score of 77 to 12, and Carroll College was routed 56 to 0. Then came the Michigan game at Ferry Field on October 23. The score was M. A. C. 24, Michigan 0, the most overwhelming defeat ever administered to any Michigan team by an M. A. C. eleven.

But while fans and members of the squad were still celebrating the Michigan game, the Oregon Aggies arrived on the scene and before the team was aware that it had a real opponent to conquer, the westerners had run up a good lead, which was increased so substantially that the final score was Oregon 20, M. A. C. 0.

The affair rather aroused the team and it was still in this condition when Marquette came to play what for us was the last game of the season. Marquette suffered the consequences and was sent back to the famous Milwaukee with a 67 to 6 whaling.

Fifteen men participated in the 'varsity's work during the season, under the leadership of Capt. Blake Miller. Blake, more like his old self than at any time during the two previous seasons, was at his old, baffling, elusive tricks in dodging tacklers and working the ends for steady gains. Michigan found him particularly slippery. And along with his practical technique of the game, he used good headwork and cool generalship on the field, fully justifying the wisdom of the squad in electing him to the captaincy. The only unfortunate thing about his work was the fact that it was his last as an M. A. C. 'varsity man. This June Blake will win his sheepskin, and in his going M. A. C. will lose one of the best gridgers who ever lugged a ball for the 'varsity.

Jerry Neno DePrato may be mentioned here as another stellar performer, if not the main cog in the Macklin machine during the season. As an all-around handy man, Jerry at fullback was without a peer on the team. He battered the line for unfailing gains, worked like a demon on the defence, was impenetrable in his interference running, punted faultlessly, and drop-kicked when the occasion demanded it. His work may be summed up in a sentence—he won the all-American record for individual points scored, making a total of 185, and the additional all-American record for touchdowns, of which he made 37. He was prominent among the all-western selections by the sport writers and was accorded frequent honorable mention among the candidates for all-American recognition. On his graduation this month the team will lose a fullback whose place will not easily be filled.

In the way of "phenoms" the honorable Gideon Smith, left tackle, must be given his due. Gideon's playing of his position was one of the notable things of the year in central western football. He was a mountain of strength in the line, but his greatest value to the team lay in his almost uncanny faculty for doping out the other fellow's intentions. If close tab had been kept in the matter, it would undoubtedly have been demonstrated that Gideon broke up more enemy plays before they were started than did any other man on the team. Coach Macklin paid him the tribute of classing him with the best tackles he has ever seen, while critics generally accorded him favorable mention. Gideon leaves with the rest of this year's seniors.

One of the most consistent of the backfield men was Hewitt Miller at right half. Hewitt, notwithstanding the fact that he was not overblessed with weight, was nevertheless one of the most dependable members of the squad—good for downing his man in time of need, sure in carrying out the right fellow in running interference, and a consistent ground-gainer with the ball. He likewise is among those who will go this June.

Howard Beatty, in the backfield, afforded another of the season's surprises. Beatty, after struggling along in obscurity among the reserves for three years, suddenly burst into the calcium in the early games of the season with a series of long end runs that won him a regular rating with the backfield division. He demonstrated his right to his spurs with more big dashes on Ferry Field. He is the fifth of the 'varsity football men who will take his adieu this spring term.

Early in the season it sort of looked to fans that the coach might find some difficulty in developing a man to take the quarterback position, but a little later on the difficulty developed into the problem of choosing between Bob Heubel and "Brownie" Springer. The contest ended with about an even division of the spoils. Heubel at quarter was one of the steadiest, clear-thinking field generals the Aggies have ever had, while Springer rated about on a par with him. Springer showed special ability as a back, despite his shortage of beef. Between the two, the coach found the early-season quarterback difficulties easy of solution. This pair should be highly valuable assets to next fall's squad. The 1915 season was their first with M. A. C.

On the ends the team was well protected from flanking movements by Ralph Henning, C. O. Butler and Clarence R. Oviatt. Henning, captain-elect of the 1916 team, was aggressive to the limit of propriety. His tackling was sure, he sized up the other fellow's intentions in a hurry, and he showed 24-carat quality in dependability.

At the other end of the line, Butler, playing his first season with the team, was one of the prizes of the year. He was handy in getting down under the ball on punts and passes, he carried the leather every now and then for good gains, and he generally made the left extremity unsafe for visitors.

Oviatt, in the capacity of emergency end, was one of the gamest fighters on the squad, notwithstanding a handicap in the matter of weight. His work was deservedly rewarded with a monogram.

The line was one of the best in years. Hugh Blacklock, at right tackle; Herb D. Straight, at right guard; Del VanDervoort, at left guard, and Lyman L. Frimodig were the big factors in its strength.

Blacklock, playing his third year with the team, and his second on the line, proved to be resourceful on defence, and an unusually valuable man on offense. His backfield training, received in 1913, stood him in good stead. Drawing him back to carry the ball for line plunges was one of the most effective ground-gaining dodges that Coach Macklin worked during the season.

At right guard, Straight played a game that allowed the backs plenty of time to get under way. His 200 odd pounds of brawn made his particular section of the line a hard place to break through and enabled him to do a good turn in breaking up opposing combinations. His work was particularly commended in the sporting columns.

Del VanDervoort, at left guard, proved to be another doughty individual whom visiting teams found a great deal of trouble in handling. Working with Gideon Smith, he kept holes well plugged up and made others when they were needed. Another of his specialities was getting down the field for punts and tackling vigorously. He will help much next fall in keeping the line up to its old standard for steadiness.

A new center hove into view with the appearance of Frimodig on the squad. It was feared, following Vaughn's retirement in 1914, that the center position would be a hard one to fill, but Frimodig filled it and did the job thoroughly. Much of the consistent ground gaining by the backs during the season was contributed to by Frimodig's sure snapping of the ball, and his ability to block out would-be tacklers afterwards. Despite the fact that the season was his first on the 'varsity grid squad, Frimodig played the game like a veteran. He will be back in harness this coming season.

Last of the new recruits was Fick, reserve half. Fick didn't know he had any football possibilities in himself until the coach called him out and put him to work. His lack of previous training handicapped him, but he nevertheless showed sufficient going power to win himself a regular rating. Fick is one of the men to whom fans are looking to help patch up the holes left by the retirement of DePrato, Blake and Hewitt Miller, and Beatty.

The team as a whole proved itself a smooth-working, effective football unit, and one which should make a favorable showing in 1916, notwithstanding the going of a half dozen veterans.

The 1915 Baseball Season

"THE 1915 baseball season at M. A. C. was a success because we beat Michigan," declared Capt. A. L. Bibbins at the close of the season as the members of his team were awarded their certificates of membership in the Varsity Club. "Regardless of results in other games, the College must remember that we won from the University two out of three, and decisively showed that M. A. C. possessed the best team of any school in the state."

The deciding Michigan games formed the bright spots of the 1915 season. After losing to Syracuse and Notre Dame, the Aggies came back strong with Blake Miller in the box and defeated Michigan at Ann Arbor 3 to 1. Of the two games played at East Lansing, the first went to the University 8 to 1, largely through the efforts of Sisler. On the following day, M. A. C. won the series by taking the deciding game 4 to 2.

The season was a success both from the total of games won and runs scored. Eight games were won by M. A. C. out of fourteen played. M. A. C. scored 76 runs to 40 by opponents throughout the season. Notre Dame proved the stiffest competition encountered, winning both at East Lansing and South Bend. Syracuse took a closely played game 4 to 3. Barring these three contests, the year was M. A. C.'s almost from start to finish. The first five games were Aggie victories.

The lineup during the season was as follows: Pitchers, Miller, Weeder, Springer; catcher, Captain Bibbins; first base, Frimodig; second base, Williams; third base, Fuller; shortstop, Fick; outfield, Hood, Thomas, Clark, Brown, McWilliams.

Captain Bibbins was the only man lost to the team by graduation, but his place will be hard to fill. With a team of veterans, prospects for the 1916 season look bright, however. "Chief" Fuller is the new captain.

1916 Basketball Season

A SURVEY of the 1916 basketball season indicates that M. A. C. came out on the right side of the ledger, at least from the standpoint of total points scored. The final figures gave M. A. C. 407 and our opponents 401. The score was more than satisfactory when it is taken into consideration that the coaches were compelled to develop a team from practically "green" material. Captain Frimodig was the only really seasoned veteran available. With his two years' experience on the 'varsity back of him, he was the life of the team from the start. His record for the year was 66 baskets, netting a total score of 132 points.

Ricker and Hood, were next in line, the former with 50 baskets to his credit and the latter with 38. Ricker helped to boost his total score by acting as chief thrower of baskets from fouls.

McClellan, the captain-elect for 1917, did not join the team until late in the season because of injuries sustained during the football season. As a result he did not have an opportunity to show up as well as in former years, when he was a regular member of the 'varsity five. At the close of the season, however, he was going good, and promises to be an important part of the M. A. C. scoring machine in 1917.

Rigby, Wood, Miller, and Sheffield all contributed much towards the success of the season and were awarded monograms for the first time. All four of these men will be available again next winter. Brown, Vevia and Spencer played in a number of games and deserve honorable mention. The latter will be lost by graduation, but Brown and Vevia can be counted upon for the 1917 team. Of the old men, Ricker is the only one to be graduated.

The 1915 Track Season

THE year 1915 will be remembered by the M. A. C. fans as marking our graduation from the small college class in track athletics, for prior to last spring only the smaller colleges of Michigan were taken on the schedule. But in 1915 the team stepped out into "fast company" by meeting Notre Dame. The result, although not a victory, was satisfactory to the fans. In all other meets Coach Gauthier's men came through with flying colors. The triangular meet with Alma and Olivet proved to be one sided with M. A. C. earning twice as many points as the other two squads combined. The Michigan All-Fresh fell before the Aggies by a score of 70 1-3 to 59 2-3.

Monograms were awarded sparingly, for by the new policy of the athletic department, a track letter will in the future mean just as great an achievement as a reward in baseball or football. In all six letters were given out as follows: Clarence Loveland, Earl B. Sheldon, Jack Brusselbach, Howard Beatty, Clayton F. Barnett, and William W. Blue.

M. A. C. Cross Country, Nov. 6, U. of M. 1st, Albion 2nd, M. A. C. 3rd.

Three cross country runs were entered by the Green and White, and in each an excellent showing was made.

In the Detroit "Y" run held at Belle Isle on Decoration Day, Coach Gauthier's men took first honors, and in the second run staged on the Island on Thanksgiving Day, they again placed. On November 6, M. A. C. staged the first intercollegiate cross country run ever held at East Lansing. It proved so successful that another will be held in 1916. Competition in this run was keen, but M. A. C. managed to take third honors.

Tennis in Review

The tennis team enjoyed an unbroken string of victories during the 1915 season. The year opened with an abundance of material from which a 'varsity squad composed of L. C. Moskowitz, as captain; C. R. Crozier, V. C. Taggart, Otto Verguson, Miss Ruby Clinton, and Miss Haidee Judson was chosen. All were awarded monograms at the close of the season.

Six of the most prominent colleges in Michigan opposed the team but the most these could take was five sets. M. A. C. won twenty-eight sets, or nearly six times as many as all opponents combined.

Class Football

THE class football struggle in 1915 was almost entirely between the Seniors and Sophomores and it took two games between these squads to decide the campus title. The initial contest resulted in a scoreless tie between the second year and fourth year men. The week following the Juniors put a promising team in the field against the Seniors, and had it not been for a fumble in the first half, this game, like the opening contest, would have resulted in another scoreless tie. Injuries resulting from this contest made it impossible for the Juniors to continue the season and the game scheduled with the Sophomores was forfeited.

With the Juniors out of the running it remained for the classes of 1916 and 1918 to stage the closing and deciding battle. Neither team made a score during the first three-quarters of the championship tilt, but a successful pass by the Sophs and a triple pass fake brought the ball well up into the Seniors' territory, where a drop kick by Lynn Brown turned the day for the 1918 men.

Class Baseball

THE class of 1915 won a just claim to the class baseball championship by completing the entire campus schedule without a defeat. The "champs" started the season with a veteran lineup. Armstrong proved to be the "old reliable," so far as pitching was concerned. Fred Adams and "Fat" Taylor alternated at the other end of the battery. Tye Cobb proved to be a good imitation of the "Georgian Peach" as first baseman, and during the latter part of the season, his playing stood out so strongly that Coach Macklin drafted him for use on the 'varsity reserve squad. Engle at second base and Fisher at third, completed an infield which made things interesting for the opposing teams.

A variety of men officiated in the garden, including Dinan, Finch, Decker and Hulbert. Ricker played part of the season at shortstop. In addition, there were several other players who were used for short periods and who helped in the winning of the title.

Second honors were awarded to the class of 1917 which went through the season with but one defeat. The class of 1916 rated third and the Freshmen occupied the cellar.

Class Basketball

THE Juniors in 1916 made a clean sweep in the class basketball series and were awarded the championship without a defeat recorded against them, making the second class basketball championship won by the class of 1917.

For the first time in the history of class athletics at M. A. C. the short course students were allowed to enter a team in the class championship series, but the Juniors put these boys away in easy fashion with a score of 36 to 20. The Freshmen were next disposed of and the Sophomores followed, though they offered a little more opposition and held the champs to a score of 25 to 24. The Seniors were laid away in the final game of the season, 16 to 8.

The Rifle Team

Sergt. P. J. Cross, Coach

WITH Sergt. Paddy J. Cross doing the range-finding, and tipping the boys off to a few of the intimate tricks of the sharp-shooter, picked up in his thirty odd years in the service, the rifle squad this season won the national intercollegiate gallery championship for the second time, duplicating its feat of 1914. During the series of 13 matches, the squad shot a series of 12 perfect scores of 1,000 points each. The only match in which the team failed to register the full 1,000 was in the first match, when the score was 998. The aggregate score was sufficient to down the Washington State Aggies, who placed second in the national contest.

Beta Sigma

Senior and Junior Fraternity

Organized 1915

BETA SIGMA was organized during the past year originally as a purely social fraternity. Its purpose henceforth, however, will be to develop into a campus honorary body. Members will be elected from among those men in the Junior and Senior classes who have been prominent in college activities. A few men were chosen from the Sophomore class last fall, but in the future membership will be restricted exclusively to the two upper classes.

TWENTY-FOUR years ago this chapter was established at M. A. C. with the distinction of having been the first to receive its charter from the parent body at Lehigh University. It was also the first honorary fraternity to be established at this College.

But the year 1916 marks another beginning for Alpha chapter of Michigan, since the fire which destroyed the engineering building left nothing of our rooms or anything within them. Every member of the Tau Beta Pi is boosting for the reconstruction of the engineering building and a greater M. A. C.

THE Holcad is the official campus newspaper, published weekly, during the College year, by a student staff. It has thrived and grown greatly in the hands of the present editors. Constant adherence to the slogan "Devoted to the Interests of a Greater M. A. C.," has contributed much towards both the literary and the financial success of the publication in the past year.

M. A. C. Association

For students while in College there are various organizations to which they may belong—the literary societies, debating clubs, technical clubs, and others—all of which advance their interests and those of M. A. C. After graduation, however, there is but one organization which can accomplish these aims. This is the Michigan Agricultural College Association. And it embraces in its membership not only the graduates, but also all former students who have completed one term's work. This association meet annually at the College at commencement time, the former students returning in groups of classes that were in College together. Another meeting is held each fall when a "home-coming" is scheduled at the time of one of the most important football games.

The M. A. C. Record is the official organ of this association, and the College, recognizing the value of the united support of the alumni and former students, has appointed a permanent alumni secretary whose duty it is to edit this weekly organ and keep a record of the doings of the former students. The powers of the M. A. C. Association depend largely upon the way the M. A. C. Record is supported, for it is through this that the members may be kept informed as to alumni sentiment, the growth of their Alma Mater and progress of their fellow members.

Every student who leaves M. A. C. should get in touch with the local organization which he finds in his home community, or, if none exists, he should get busy and start one. The possibilities for good that may come out of a thoroughly and properly organized M. A. C. Association are many. With the added support of each graduating class this association is bound to be reckoned with wherever the Michigan Agricultural College is concerned.

C. S. LANGDON, '11, Alumni Secretary.

Student Council

STUDENT government, during the past year, has been administered with exceptional efficiency by the Council. In former years there was frequently pronounced criticism of Student Council activities, largely through a misunderstanding of its real functions, but this has entirely passed away and the board has taken its rightful place in the direction of campus affairs within its jurisdiction.

Intersociety Union

UNITY of action among the literary societies on subjects of mutual interest was immensely promoted during the year just passed through the offices of the Intersociety Union. This influence extended also to the promotion of athletic relations between the organizations, resulting in the formation of a bowling league which was fruitful of much sport during the winter term. The bowling title was grabbed off by the Hesperians, who managed to keep a safe lead straight through the series.

Liberal Arts Council

A SERIES of lectures and entertainments, harmoniously combining instruction and entertainment, were presented during the course of the year under the auspices of the Liberal Arts Council. Speakers brought to the Armory under their direction were people who had accomplished things in their various fields, and as such they exerted no small inspirational influence upon the student body. A few of the notable persons who appeared on invitation of the Council were Maud Ballington Booth, John A. Lomax, J. S. Knox and Suamus McManus.

'Varsity Mandolin and Glee Clubs

THE 'Varsity Glee and Mandolin Clubs in 1916 enjoyed the most successful season in their history. In the course of a tour about the state during the spring vacation the organization entertained large audiences in a dozen towns and cities. Liberal financial support, which enabled the clubs to better than break even, contributed further to the year's record.

Engineering Society

THE interest in the Engineering Society during the year has been unusual. The fine caliber of the speakers at the meetings is in a large measure responsible for this interest. The annual winter term banquet was a huge success, one hundred and seventy-eight being the attendance. Every engineer should belong to this society.

1916 Hort Show

Horticultural Club

Organized 1902

THE Hort Club is somewhat of a technical club. Membership is limited to the faculty, and Junior and Senior students specializing in horticulture. Weekly meetings are held. Prominent speakers from this and other states are secured to discuss new and valuable problems. The club holds an annual Horticultural show in January which is rapidly growing in size, popularity and value.

The State Horticultural Society has always shown a very friendly attitude towards the club, giving $60 in prizes each year for distribution among Senior and Junior members who do creditable speaking and fruit-judging at the annual state meeting.

THIS organization came into being in the autumn of 1913 in response to the demand for a better fraternity among the married students of M. A. C. Irregular meetings were held thereafter until the constitution was completely revised and perfected in 1915. It now provides for five regular meetings per term. Married students and their wives are eligible to membership and become active members after a favorable vote of the society and the payment of fifty cents dues per term.

Barry County Club

THIS club was organized during the fall term of 1915. Its chief aim is to effect a closer relationship between the Barry county students at M. A. C. During the few months the organization has been in existence it has been progressive. More active work is planned for the spring term, including a systematic campaign in the Barry county high schools.

THE Grand Rapids Club was organized several years ago for the purpose of promoting Grand Rapids interests at M. A. C. and M. A. C. interests at Grand Rapids. This year was the most active one of the organization's existence. A dance was held in Grand Rapids during Christmas vacation and plans are under way for one this spring.

M. A. C. Union

THE past year witnessed the bringing forth at M. A. C. of a new organization—the M. A. C. Union. Its object and purpose, as set forth in the newly adopted constitution, is “to promote the social welfare of the students of the Michigan Agricultural College, and to foster a wholesome spirit of social chivalry and good feeling among its members.”

The banding together of M. A. C. men and women into a general campus organization for promotion of their mutual social interests, was a result of the great expansion and growth which has marked the career of the College in recent years. The increasing enrollment of students, it was observed, wrought changes from the old order. Students found it increasingly difficult to meet and know each other, as was possible when there were but three or four hundred persons on the campus. The Union was accordingly organized as a medium for bringing members of all the classes together for general social sessions and “mixers.”

First steps towards the launching of the Union were taken early in the winter term, when the M. A. C. Alumni Association, members of the faculty, and the Student Council, got their heads together and worked out plans. These resulted in February in the sending of C. Samuel Langdon, alumni secretary, and Earl R. Trangmar, to Columbus, Ohio, to attend a convention of student unions at Ohio State University, and to bring back ideas for M. A. C.

Following this move, the Student Council, co-operating with committees of the faculty, alumni and students, drew up a constitution, and this was adopted at a general mass meeting in the Armory on the evening of April 13, making the Union a living thing. On April 29, the first board of governors was elected by the classes—three members by the Juniors, two by the Sophomores, and one by the Freshmen. In addition, the faculty have two representatives on the board, and the alumni one.

The first efforts of the Union towards bringing the students together have been highly successful and there is every indication that in the future its aims will be fully attained.

1915 Rushes

THE Class of 1919, which but few persons had previously observed to be present on the campus, made its presence known with more force than formality on the afternoon of October 2, 1915. The Sophomores may perhaps remember the date. It was the day of the annual Soph-Fresh rushes—and the Fresh, their shining school-boy faces glistening pink in the sun—that was before the rush—celebrated their advent by vanquishing the men of 1918.

However, it was no easy struggle. President Carl Brownfield of the Soph cohorts, led his men well, but not well enough. It was pretty much a nip-and-tuck battle all the way. The Fresh, guided by the strategy of A. J. Patch, finally came off triumphant, though with but a bare majority of the day's points.

There were no casualties, other than the loss by the Fresh of their hitherto rosy complexions.

THE DANCERS

BALL ROOM

The 1916 "J" Hop

THE "J" Hop of the Class of 1917, in the Masonic Temple, on the evening of February 25, was the crowning social achievement of the College year. Charming girls, beautiful gowns, dreamy music and a fairy-land of decorations, to which members of the class added the spirit of true hospitality, made the function one which those who attended will long pleasantly recall as one of the big things of their College lives.

The Hop opened with a reception by officers of the class and the patrons. Then followed a banquet. President Carlyle C. Hood presided as toastmaster, introducing a list of speakers who offered a program of after-dinner speeches that set a new fashion in M. A. C. banquet entertainments. C. C. Fry gave "The Review of Reviews," Miss Janice Morrison spoke of "Everybody's," E. F. Carlson dwelt entertainingly on the "Woman's Home Companion," T. W. Keating unfolded some highly charming details of "Life," Miss Elsa Scheuren pictured a promising "Outlook," and Ralph B. Henning handed down a select collection of rulings from "Judge."

The dancing opened with the grand march, led by the president and his guest, Miss Florence Welsh, of Rochester, New York. Finzel's orchestra of Detroit, furnished the music.

Oh, yes, and there were favors—silver coin cases for the girls, with their initials engraved thereon, and waldemars—this is no elaboration—for the men. The waldemars were each of them decorated with a "J"-17 in silver.

The hearty co-operation of every member of the class in the preparations for the party was the big thing which made it a winner, but the committees played no little part.

These committees were the following:

General Arrangements—C. C. Hood, Chairman; Josephine Fry, L. H. Verschoor, A. L. Turner, A. J. Patch.

Finance—W. D. Thompson, H. A. Morse, W. R. Wright, F. W. Whalen, C. C. Fry, Catherine Crane, Beatrice Jakway.

Program—A. G. Kettunen, Chairman; A. M. Comb, W. B. Adams, Marjorie Moore, Nellie Freeden, David Blair.

Printing and Engraving—R. D. Kean, Chairman; E. R. Trangmar, G. H. Dettling, J. B. Chynoweth, J. D. Roberts.

Decorating—E. C. Heubner, Chairman; H. L. Waterbury, D. L. Peppard, H. C. Rather, W. H. Cornelius, H. P. McLean, C. H. Donaldson, H. A. Fick, J. J. Brusselbach, H. R. Henning, Haidee Judson, Lucy Moran, Josephine Carver, H. R. Warner.

Banquet—W. J. Clark, Chairman; L. R. Leavitt, George F. Miller, Eva Britten, Dorothy Doris.

Toasts—H. D. Straight, Chairman; W. D. Kimmel, R. E. Cashin, Edna Tussing, Bernice Hales, G. O. Stewart.

Music and Dance—E. F. Carlson, Chairman; B. W. Straight, R. W. Sheehan, W. A. Davidson, Dorothy Lillie.

Favors—Helen Perrin, Chairman; Ada Knevels, C. R. Crozier, S. B. Lee, B. B. Hall.

Eligibility—J. B. Rasbeck, Chairman; T. W. Keating, K. B. Spaulding, L. L. Frimodig, Emily Castle, Louise Halladay.

The Fire

ON THE morning of March 25 the Engineering building and shops were reduced to ashes by a fire which is supposed to have had its beginning in the cement laboratory. From the main Engineering building the flames leaped to the Engineering shops, and while the campus volunteer department fought valiantly with what hose and water it could bring to play, its efforts were futile, though it was able to sufficiently delay the progress of the blaze to enable the saving of most of the shop machinery. Wells' Hall was saved, but only after the east end had been singed and Wells' Hall dwellers driven out. The total damage done by the fire was estimated at $240,000.

The loss of almost the entire engineering equipment left the College stunned. This condition, however, was but brief. Despite the fact that it was Sunday, Acting President Frank S. Kedzie called the faculty together in special session, and the ruins had scarcely ceased smoking before a new schedule of classes for the engineers was formulated. It worked so well when sessions began on Monday morning following the fire, that not a class was missed.

Still those who failed to take into account the M. A. C. spirit were doubtful as to the future of the Engineering department. The doubts were but short-lived. Before the week was out Acting President Kedzie and Secretary A. M. Brown had plans well under way for the reconstruction of the burned buildings.

These plans have progressed so well that the work of constructing the new Engineering building and shops has already been started, with every likelihood that they will be ready for occupancy when College sessions begin this fall.

The sum total of the effect of the loss of the Engineering building has, in the light of recent developments, been beneficial rather than otherwise. M. A. C. spirit has been made stronger than ever, while the engineers, all of whom have displayed the truest devotion to the College, will be provided with a newer and more modern department when they return for the work of 1916-1917 College year in September.

On April 22 the gift of $100,000 to the College by R. E. Olds greatly relieved the burden placed on the College by the heavy drain on funds for reconstruction.

THE DEFENDERS

Poster Night, 1915

WILD scenes attended the annual bill-posting stunt of the Sophomores on the night of Wednesday, September 29, 1915, when the legions of 1918 sallied forth to slap up their posters warning the Fresh of the dire events in store for them on Rush Day, October 22.

At 11 o'clock sharp the leading Soph scaling squad, headed by Warren C. Heustis, leaned a ladder against the walls of Williams and proceeded with great dispatch to bill the hall. A general engagement, opened with a fusillade of eggs from waiting Juniors, ensued instantly along the entire front. Heavy casualties resulted in the 1918 ranks, which broke and fled. A moment later they returned with reinforcements headed by Carl M. Brownfield. The united Sophs stormed Williams and carried the first floor, but in attempting to reach the second deck, they were foiled by H. C. Rather, who held the stairs, after the manner of that renowned "Horatius at the Bridge." Rather's valiant stand enabled the Junior rescue division, led by "Red" Granger, to get into action with a fire extinguisher.

A wash-out among the Sophs followed and the hall was cleared of the invaders.

Renewed attempts by the Sophs to paste posters on the outer walls brought a deluge of soup, eggs, and luscious fruits from the windows, but the 1918 men, under cover of a heavy fire of tomatoes aimed at all projecting heads, finally forced the Bills' men to retreat and posted their labels.

Meanwhile similar scenes were enacted at Abbott Hall, where for two hours the attempts of the Sophs to throw their scaling ladders against the walls were foiled. The engagement, as at Bills', was attended by a general exchange of horticultural compliments between defenders and assaulters. At 1 o'clock in the morning, Abbott Hall ammunition finally gave out. This, and the fact that the Sophomores fire was raising havoc with heads and windows, forced the Abbotteers to retire. The Sophs followed up their success by billing Abbott, and the battle was over.

THE BONFIRE

The 1915 Barbecue

BOILED beef and buns, done up "a la barbecue," with cider on the side, were served out to a large and hungry throng of 2,000 or so students and guests on the evening of October 29. The Sophomores, as is the custom on Barbecue Night, were the hosts of the evening, and the beef and biscuits were a peace offering to the Fresh, signalling the cessation of fall hostilities between the classes. It was a gay night, and while the Sophomores distributed good cheer, a bonfire blazed and a battery of orators entertained with appropriate sentiments from the platform. B. W. Bellinger presided as master of ceremonies.

THE TROPHY

Inter-Society Bowling League 1916

BOWLING was added to the list of campus activities during the past winter term through the organization by the Inter-Society Union of an Inter-Society Bowling League. Teams from twelve societies competed in the pin series, which were completed on the evening of April 20, when the Hesperian squad copped the campus title as a climax to a string of 33 victories out of a total of 36 games played. The men who did the trick for the "Hess" were W. B. Miller, H. H. Miller, H. G. Smith, R. E. Cashin, N. A. Kessler and L. D. Fisher. The Hesperians acquired the Inter-Society trophy as part of the spoils.

N. O. Weil of the Columbians, won first place in the competition for the individual high average of the season; H. G. Smith of the Hesperians, won second position in this competition, and A. L. Brown of the Aurorians, third.

First honors for the highest three games went to K. J. Hendershott of the Olympics; second honors were attached by W. B. Miller of the Hesperians, and third by A. L. Brown of the Aurorians.

A. G. Kettunen of the Eunomians, made away with the initial prize for high single game; H. A. Fick of the Olympics, won second honors in this department, and T. Carver of the Delphics, placed third.

Many times in lectures dreary,
I have pondered weak and weary
O'er a question, just a question;
But it gives my brain congestion.

On his head is rapping, rapping;
As his class he grimly faces,
What is it his finger chases?

Phylean—Cultivate strong language, the stronger the better.

Phi Delts—Acquire the social arts, but for the love of Mike, don't overstudy.

Hesperian—Be affable. Be a glad-hander. In short, be a man of parts.

Dorian—Join the Y. M. C. A.

Columbian—Train for long-distance running.

A FEW OF THE TWENTY REASONS WHY THE COLLEGE COTTAGE IS SO POPULAR

Gallery of the Great

THE strictest rules have been adhered to in the election of student high lights to a place in this hall of notables. Only those were chosen whom popular opinion quite generally concedes are leaders in campus politics, or are otherwise defective, and who would pay the fee of five bones required of all persons exposed herein.

MYRLE E. BOTTOMLEY

THIS is one of the favorites of Charlotte. Just why this should be so is not easy to explain. It is one of the mysteries about Mr. Bottomley. As a landscape gardener, this newly-elect to the Gallery of the Great, has done some artistic trimming of unsuspecting people, but his specialties have been parks and Parkers. He was the best editor the Holcad ever had. If you don't believe it, ask him.

GEORGE H. DETTLING

HERE we have one of our few surviving toreadors, a popular hero long admired for his prowess in the bull pen. We would like to say more about Mr. Dettling, but thus far the $5.00 fee from Mr. Dettling has not been forthcoming.

GORDON COLUMBUS EDMONDS

IN Gordon Columbus Edmonds the College has a man of much promise—much promise but little pay. As has been mentioned elsewhere, Mr. Edmonds is our only campus exponent of the graceful art of wearing a pencil behind the ear, after the fashion of our best known counter-jumpers. Mr. Edmonds' adeptness in this practice well illustrates the usefulness and value of a liberal-sized auditory organ.

CLEMENTS COLLARD FRY

IT is the opinion of the editors that this name should not have been Clements Collard Fry, but Katherine Collared Fry. However, he has since escaped and the point is perhaps not well taken. Mr. Fry's right to a position in the Gallery of the Great lies not in the fact that he has paid in his $5.00, but rather in his intrinsic merit. During the four years of his College career he has steadfastly aimed to keep out of the A. Z.'s, and he has thus far succeeded.

RALPH BURTON HENNING

however—not the bad end.

THIS is the person who inspired the writing of that pleasing ditty entitled, "Sadie Salome Go Home." Mr. Henning has achieved much of his notoriety through his artistic pirouetting, but he is much more widely known through his fight against the Automatic Telephone Company. Mr. Henning is of the opinion that all telephones should have operators. He knows most of those hereabouts. It would be doing an injustice to Mr. Henning not to more thoroughly identify him—this is the end, the 'varsity end,

GLENN IRVIN HOBBS

MR. HOBBS is introduced into this column to give it an air of respectability. He does not properly belong in the company herein exhibited, but this should not be held against him. Mr. Hobbs has achieved his greatest recognition through his association with the Y. M. C. A.—the "You Must Come Across" association. If you will do him the honor of a personal call, Mr. Hobbs will advise you whether it is "You Must Come Across" with the angels, or with the kale.

THOMAS WILLIAM KEATING

MR. KEATING sneaked into the Gallery of the Great via the side door, as is the habit of Grand Rapids citizens (after the hour of midnight). He is a member of the K. K. K., otherwise known as the Kute Kids Klub. His effervescent humor is one of the reasons why the 'Ties are 'tic'lish. Mr. Keating is a bear with the ladies. He modestly admits it.

FRANCIS IRVING LANKEY

IF you will read closely, you will observe this is a poetical name. Read thusly—Fran-cis' Irv-ing' Lank-ey'—and you will note that it is iambic trimeter—very poetical indeed, accounting in a measure for his highly temperamental nature. Of him it may be said, "Music hath charms, and so have musicians." Mr. Lankey's genius in coaxing rhythm from the ivory has kept him in silk socks these several moons. He professes to be immune from feminine blandishments.

JOHN WASHINGTON O'CALLAGHAN

He paid in his $5.00, but we hate to tell it. Let it suffice to say that he sings "How Dry I Am" with great piquancy.

A. J. PATCH

Mr. PATCH should be spoken of with only the utmost reverence and respect. He is the one genius par excellence, 99 1-9 per cent pure, whom the campus boasts. Union Lits are so jealous of him they keep him locked up where his brilliance won't fade the rest of the wall flowers. No, the coquettish glances and winning smiles of the maidens are not for him. They are for his brother. Mr. Patch is also the man who put the moss in Moscow. That's his home town, you know. He is noted, too, for his extraordinary facility in recognizing work while it is still far distant—and then lengthening the distance. Recounting of all his fine points, however, would crowd the book. Suffice it to say, he is A. J. Patch, occasionally referred to as A Jay Patch.

KARL ANDREW PETERS

KARL ANDREW is our campus edition of the Ladies' Home and Fireside Companion, and he is quite generally subscribed for. No function is complete without him. He holds the marathon record for long distance dancing in the shortest trousers. He also has the most extensive collection of dance programs in captivity. Mr. Peters, of course, owns his own dress suit.

EVERETT GRANT SMITH

THE effete east, you have heard of it? No? Ah, then cast a glance hither. Our Mr. Smith is the personification of the east in all its effeteness. In the east the Smiths are some pumpkins. But this is the west. Mr. Smith is the deadly rival of Mr. Peters in the struggle for social supremacy. It is believed the honors are divided about fifty-fifty. Mr. Peters leads in quantity, i. e., number of functions attended. Mr. Smith leads in quality, i. e., display of social arts. Yes, it is true. Even Mr. Peters admits it. Mr. Smith in his interpretations of the modern dance makes even the divine Terpsichore seem to limp like a cow with a sore hoof. Ah, his dancing, it is heavenly! Inquire almost anywhere at the coop.

HERBERT DAY STRAIGHT

THIS is the wooden shoes exhibit, direct from Holland. However, Mr. Straight never speaks of this in public. It is a private matter, so don't mention it. He prefers to be known as the College expert in conducting sieges. His progress has been phenomenal, though the Castle is still holding out. S. O. S. signals indicate that relief might be appreciated. Mr. Straight also plays football, so they say.

LOUIS SILAS WELLS

LOUIS SILAS WELLS, editor, president, debater, etc., etc., etc., etc., represents what education will do to a man. After four years the Silas is the only remaining vestage of what Adrian did to him. Friends are beginning to believe he may yet amount to something. He has several of the marks of genius. His hair is exactly of the correct length and curl. Notwithstanding his connection with the Alpha Zetas he will probably graduate this June.

HUGH MARK VAN AKEN

MR. VAN AKEN is a man of parts, though some of them are missing. He was elected to the Gallery of the Great on the strength of his showing as a yell master. He can yell, more about less, than Jim Helme. Is he a comedian? Oh, yes—yes! Surely! Only he has requested that nothing be said about it.

WALTER RESIDE WRIGHT

MR. WRIGHT is an actor of talent. He plays politics. His role is pilot of the roller. It was in his cruising aboard this craft that he spoke those undying words, "My College, Wright or wrong, but may she ever be Wright." When he isn't pursuing his hobby, Mr. Wright occasionally attends classes, though before all else, his statesmanship led to his election to the Gallery of the Great.

He adored her. He sighed like a furnace—we don't know particularly why it should be like a furnace, but all bonafide heroes do it. He gazed upon her with the soulful gaze of a sick calf. Yes, the truth is out. He was in love with her, ardently, devotedly, deliriously wrapt up in her. But his pleadings counted for naught. She would have none of him—no! never!

Our hero was discouraged. He was downcast, even as a man who has invested his all in war stocks. Still this hero was not of common clay. The Lees had never been known to accept defeat and Shelly was no exception. He would not be put off.

"Why is it you spurn me thus," he queried with deep emotion. "Do I lack manly beauty? Is it because I am poor? Or-or-no it cannot be! I command you! Tell me!" And he towered over her in well simulated rage.

She quavered. She wavered. And then she said: "I can never love a man who doesn't wear a sport coat."

THE THEMIAN GERMAN

This was one of the really tony hoe-downs of the season. The hostesses certainly "put on the dog," as is attested by the fact that Mr. Harrington Adams of Chicago—(yes, THE Mr. Adams)—was present as cotillion leader to keep the traffic moving. He did this quite successfully. Mr. Van Taggart led the processional with his customary consummate dignity. It is conservatively figured by certain authoritative persons in close touch with the society, such as Mr. C. R. Crozier, that the party cost a right smart bit.

The function was unmarred by any unforgivable breaches of parlor procedure, notwithstanding the presence of Mr. "Pinkie" Whalen, Mr. "Ernie" Carlson and Mr. Lyman Frimodig. Mr. Lloyd Leavitt succeeded on this occasion in keeping his fair partners from skidding under the feet of the dancers.

According to the most reliable accounts of the evening's hilarity, Mr. Freddie Zehner was the only really disappointed person present. Mr. Zehner said he always thought they served weinerwursts and pretzels at Germans. Mr. Zehner, (pronounced without the umlaut) was further disconcerted when he too suddenly entrusted his frail form to an insufficiently reinforced chair.

The function was also notable as being the fifty-seventh attended during the term by Mr. Carl Peters, our well known devotee of St. Vitus.

The affair, altogether, was pronounced a quite dazzling success—so dazzling, that Miss Mary Coughlin was compelled to don her snow glasses.

THE 'TIC FORMAL

The society editor regrets to report that this function was really too exclusive to be publicly exposed to vulgar comment in the columns of this plebian publication.

The editor apologizes additionally by being forced to confess that when he was assigned to cover this function he forgot his jimmy and dynamite and so was unable to break in.

THE SORORIAN WINTER TERM

Words fail to adequately convey a true conception of the elaborateness of this ball. The society editor himself had the excruciating pleasure of being among the honored guests on this occasion. Other regular customers were Mr. Si Pate, Mr. Leonard Verschoor, Mr. Mait Comb, and a number of others not generally mentioned in polite society. Among these were Mr. Arthur Sheffield and Mr. Ralph Henning.

The music was dreamy, but not nearly so much so as Miss Katherine Macdonald, Miss Josephine Carver, Miss Helen Hancorne and Miss Dorothy Towne.

But perhaps the most charming of the hostesses, if any may be said to have been more charming than the others, was Miss Laura Cole, who held a large and appreciative audience speechless by her brilliant conversational powers.

The feature number during which every dancer wore a mask was one of the star hits of the evening. Mr. Henning said he more than enjoyed this dance for the reason that it was the only one of the evening which he obtained without difficulty.

AT THE WINTER TERM FERONIAN

The Feronians charmingly hypnotized a very select group of admirers with a winter-term, borrowed dress suit function that was quite the pinnacle of the season's social strivings. Not least among the guests was the Rt. Hon. "Pucker" McWilliams, who attended in a specially chartered open-faced uniform which, however, was quite well suited to the function. Mr. "Kike" Hood was poignantly embarrassed early in the evening by a beer stain on his lily white vest, probably put there—so Mr. Hood said—when the vest attended the Plumbers' ball in Grand Rapids. Mr. Hood finally, with much cleverness, spilled a stopper of punch over the guilty spot and so allayed suspicions of those who didn't know the inside history of the wes'-coat.

The party passed off without anything in the way of rowdiness, though it was only by earnest efforts that kind friends of Mr. "Dick" Sullivan dissuaded him from creating a scene. Richard was quite wrought up by the fact that his partner had inconsiderately given away two dance numbers of the program total of twenty-four. The diplomacy of the mediators made it unnecessary to call in the cops.

A solo dance was one of the very ne plus ultra features of the evening's entertainment. The fair young dancers simply outstripped each other in their graceful interpretation of the terpsichorean art.

No review of the party, it must be added, would be complete without mention of the fact that Miss Lucy Moran was belle of the ball.

The decorations of the evening were Wright's colored orchestra from Columbus, in our neighboring Buckeye state.

The young men in attendance, and especially the 'Tics, enjoyed the function to the full, and this pleasure was augmented by the fact that they were not required to pay any of the bills.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE SOCIETY LIFE

Mr. Everett Grant Smith thinks there is an abominable lack of good dancers on the campus, that is, dancers as judged by the Smith standard.

Mr. Henry M. Harper says, "I own my own dress suit."

"Really," announces Mr. K. F. Kreuger, who of late has been prominent in faculty circles, "I do not think it adds to the pleasure of an evening to be required to change partners."

"It has been my experience," Mr. Leonard Verschoor informs the editor, "that talent never goes unrequited. I believe this explains my exceptional popularity with the ladies."

Lectures I Have Heard

By A. J. PATCH

EIGHT-FOUR, a few belated individuals run up the steps, rush to the door, and then tip-toe to their seats. Eight-five, the door closes in the face of a poor unfortunate. From behind the lecture table a voice with a cheerful, schrunchy sound, like a lion biting off a missionary's leg, says, "Not today, not today. Come back tomorrow, through my office." The speech is followed by a laugh which somewhat resembles the death song of an ancient bellows.

"Now boys and girls," the lecturer says, "we will take up chlorine this morning."

Immediately three experiments are started simultaneously.

"Here children is some salt water in this eudiometer, I shall pass an electric current through the solution. Watch closely. Aha! You see! Number 208, what is the color of the gas in the right hand tube?"

Number 208, who can barely see the apparatus, grips his seat and fearfully guesses, "Blue."

"What?"

Again from 208 comes the doleful "Blue."

Several snickers are heard from fellow victims.

"You are thinking of the color of the trousers that you wore back on the farm," says our professor, and again the sound of the bellows' death rattle arises.

The lecture proceeds and a couple more goats are sacrificed on the altar of education.

"Here we have iodine, it is also one of the halides. They are called halides because Ide Halley discovered them. Iodine is found in some seaweeds. It gives the color to the ocean water and forms the principal food of bluefish. You, up there. Yes, you with the blond curls. Are you chewing gum? Oh, you're tooth aches? Well, shut the door on the outside. Now children, for your own good, I must tell you that as chemistry is the most important subject in the course, I shall not permit you to pass till you thoroughly understand it. Before tomorrow read the chapter in Kalenberg on halides, bring in your note books tomorrow, and prepare for an examination on Thursday."

THE bell rings merrily, and the class leaves with the air of a group of reprieved criminals. Five minutes later they are again assembled. The roll is taken. Number 16 is vacant.

"Does anyone here know anything about Mr. Bailey?"

A voice from the rear answers, "Yes, he's absent."

The lecture begins, "Now gentlemen, before we start I want to impress upon you the importance of botany. The world lives upon plants, and without plants there would be no life. Life depends upon plants, life always has depended upon plants, and it always will. A proper knowledge of any life can only be had by a thorough study of plant life. This morning we will study Myxophyceae. This is commonly known as the blue-green alga. Its principal habitat is small duck ponds where it is used by the mosquitoes for nesting places. On this chart you see Myxophyceae in its natural state. Observe how wildly it stares around. Its children are sick and Doc. Yak is away on a vacation. Myxophyceae reproduces by fission along its horizontal axis. If the fission is along the vertical axis the specimen is not Myxophyceae but Vertisliceaceae. For tomorrow bring in your lecture note books and read pages 16 to 86 in your text books.

Again the life-saving bell rings. Once more the victims disperse and re-assemble.

ANOTHER warden of student happiness commences. "Gentlemen, for tomorrow you will do the first fifteen problems on page 73, then take the odd ones on pages 75 and 76. The text from pages 67 to 96 will require quite a lot of study. Turn in your note books tomorrow and before we go any further I want you to realize the importance of mathematics. Your daily life depends upon the aptitude with which you master problems. Only the study of mathematics can give you this necessary mental training. Your happiness depends on mathematics. Many men have spent their lives studying this science. Pythagoras was one of these. He worked 16 years on one proposition and when he found the solution he was so pleased that he said, 'By gosh, at last!' Everyone will please pass to the board without your books and prove that a line passing through a given point in space will always pass through that point unless said point is removed, or the line gets run over by a 'Tin Lizzie.'"

CLANG! clang! The bell ringer in old Williams once more earns our undying gratitude. When the gang gets together again, it is seated in the live-stock pavilion, where a few worried cows look beseechingly at the ring master.

"Gentlemen, today we will take up Jersey cattle. Before the next class period read chapters 23, 24 and 25 in Plumb's. For reference work I have put books on the reference shelf in the library. Read pages 19 to 107 in Milkem's 'Raising Jersey Cows for Pleasure,' in Triwedge's 'Dairy Types,' read pages 19 to 223. Write out a comparison between Jersey cows and milch goats and write to the Jersey Cattle Club for its circulars.

"We have here a string of Jerseys. They are small because their ancestors were fed on a little of nothing. The Jerseys originated on the island of Jersey, which is about the size of a township and a half. Every night the ocean sneaks up to the island and washes away a piece as large as Texas. The people of Jersey are progressive. I want to say right here that progress and the study of animal husbandry go hand in hand. The success of all your future endeavors depends on what you get out of this course. As I said before, Jerseys are raised for the purpose of obtaining milk. Of course they do not give much milk but a person always has hope. That will do, that will do! That whistle blows at 11:30 and this class period is over at 11:40. If you want to scuff your feet take a course in street cleaning. Now"—But just then the tolling of the bell interrupts.

We have 55 minutes to surround our dinner and prepare for the afternoon's engagements. Dingy'-i-tee-dong, the old gong summons us to more trials and tribulations.

THE class collects on the first floor of the engineering building. A thirty-foot blackboard, filled with pictures that look like the frame-work of a dog kennel, stares us in the face. The roll is taken. Number 73 is absent. The instruction begins in this manner.

"Now gentlemen, one unexcused absence in this course means a condition. We do this for your own good. We only have two terms to do two years' work in and we must go fast. I am sorry this is so, for physics is the most important subject in school. The work really ought to extend through all four years. For your next lesson take the problems on pages 117 and 118. Read the chapter on mechanics of solids and do this special problem, which I will read to you. If a body weighing 1,285 1-3 pounds generates 200 megacalories of heat while sliding down a plane 10 feet long inclined at an angle of 45 degrees, how much more will the right horse pull than the left horse when the horses are hitched to the body by an eveners on which the right horse is $1\frac{3}{4}$ inches nearer the center than the left horse, the pull being up a six per cent grade in the dead of winter." Then follows 45 minutes of what looks like a demonstration of perpetual motion, accompanied by a chorus of male voices singing physics formulae. Once in a while, during a lull, we hear a voice say, "Do you understand this, do you see that." Of course we do, how could we help but understand.

At last the bell rescues us, but we meet again. This time we have with us one who can invoke the shade of Shakespeare or unerringly quote Cody's Business Letter Writing. A few precious minutes are wasted taking the roll. Our instructor says, "For tomorrow, you will please write five selling letters, two hurry-up letters, one letter ordering goods, a 500-word theme on 'Why College Hall Should Be Saved,' and review Cody as far as we have gone. This may seem like a lot of work to you, but it should not take over three hours, and it should be remembered that your future success depends upon the time you put upon this subject. Mr. Blocked, in your last theme I noticed the phrase 'a nice crowd.' Now crowd implies vulgar jostling, and should not be used in connection with nice. Will some one suggest a phrase to replace the one in question. Well, Mr. Jones, what is your suggestion? An 'interesting gathering of people.' Yes, that is quite good. Now Mr. Blocked read us a sentence in which you use that phrase. Mr. Blocked reads 'An interesting gathering of people brings out a bunch of rare birds.'"

AT THIS point our old rescuer, the bell, calls us over to the Bact'y building. The first 15 minutes are taken up by an exam. Something like the following occurs:

"Hey Bill, let me take your book. Say Shorty, for Pete's sake bring your own book, I have to use mine. Hey Fat, what's the answer to the third question? Bottom yeast. Bottom yeast. Yes. Say why ain't it top-yeast? Because the book says it ain't. Well, all right I'll take your word for it. I guess you wouldn't lie to me."

Then in walks our friend the professor. "Pass the books over to the aisle. For the next time read pages 112 to 173 on soil bacteria. Today we will take up the bacteria of milk. The bacteria of milk are very good illustrations of the dependence of man upon the lower forms of life. The science of bacteriology is the most important in the world and it is just in its infancy. Now you take a quart of milk, draw over its surface one hair, and immediately 25,000,000 bacteria have found a happy home. You have all observed butter that resembled a fish tug in one respect. It's all due to bacterial action. Mr. Jones, do you come to this class to sleep? We study disease bacteria, but we do not make a specialty of those of sleeping sickness. If you will please sit up and try to look moderately intelligent we will proceed with the lecture. Thank you. Now gentlemen, the greatest truth found in the study of bacteria—"

BUT, alas, we never learned the greatest truth, for the bell rings, calling us to learn the mysteries of entomology. A few boxes containing dried specimens of unfortunate insects are passed around. The lecture begins.

"In the first box you will find a mosquito. Note the antennae closely. You will see they are constructed in a peculiar manner. These antennae are used by the mosquito to find his mate. When the beautiful nights in June come, the mosquito will sit mournfully on some tall bull-rush. Another of the tribe in passing makes that humming sound so familiar and pleasing to us all. The sound causes a vibration in the waiting insect's antennae. He clambers off his perch and flies musically through the beautiful moonlight. Soon we hear two mosquitos singing. They are building an apartment house.

"In the second box we have an adult nut-weevil. Notice the long caudal appendage resembling a stinger. Thereby hangs a tale. This insect lays her eggs in the acorn, and the appendage is used in the process. The beautiful creature bores a hole from the tip of the acorn down to the base. Placing an egg in the top of the hole, the stinger is used to push the egg down through the acorn. Then the busy bug starts to pull out the improvised ramrod. Here is the tragic part. You will notice that the stinger is very long as compared with the insect's legs. Perhaps a rain the night before has made the acorn slippery. When the stinger is half withdrawn the insect's feet slip. Lo! suspended by the stinger she hangs in mid-air. Her feet will not reach the acorn, neither has she wing power enough to extract herself. Her wings flutter desperately for a short time and then are still. A passing breeze ruffles the feathers on the back of her neck. She does not move. Behold, another bug has perished.

"For tomorrow read pages 63 to 196, tonight capture ten beetles and bring them to laboratory tomorrow for identification. Spend a lot of time on this subject, for of all the studies in the world entomology is the most instructive and important."

The bell rings an alarm and we go to war.

In the year of 1915 I predicted that as long as this book be read, the store mentioned herein would ever continue to be the acknowledged leader in its line.

I predicted that now and at future times as then, the same store would be the acknowledged leading furnishings store in this community.

This Store's Policy

THE policy of this store is to be clear in its principles, simple in its forms, just in their application and prompt in their execution. To deal with prices and goods along fair and equitable lines. To institute reforms wherever we find the service lacking. To render justice quickly and surely. To have the road to economy clearly outlined and point truly. To be civil, attentive and appreciative whether the purchase involves little or much. And—looking to the betterment of values—never stop striving to make them more and more deserving of the price.

The Department Store Makes it Easy for Men to Lower Expenses—

Is so big and strong—has so many advantages and conducts its business in channels so fair—and withall, so businesslike—that—

Buying more—and buying for less (thus) selling more—and selling for less—it MUST help to lower expenses!

Individual mahogany-and-plate-glass cabinets never made the cuffs of a shirt wear longer or the colors come from the laundry in better condition. And never did such surroundings make the garment a bit more fashionable.

Intense as the opposition has been—MEN'S Stores—in Department Stores—are here, and here to stay.

Men have come to realize that it's foolish to spend a dollar for an article, just because it's taken from an individual mahogany-and-plate-glass cabinet, and bought in a Clothing Store called "exclusive," when the Department Store offers merchandise of equal value, a third to a half lower in price!

So, again—we say:

LABORATORY FURNITURE EXPERTS
KEWAUNEE, WIS.

There was a young man from Port Huring
To girls he was quite some alluring,
Till one day the poor dub
Joined the bachelor's club,
And now Walt is safe from securing.

There was a deceiver named Fry,
Who said he would come by and by.
The corner's still there
But the girl has gray hair
And she thinks he has told her a lie.

Let us talk about Kate quite awhile,
She wears a most gladsome bright smile.
A smile that refreshes
And ensnares in its meshes,
As the hands spin around on the dial.

There was a bold, bad man, named Trangmar
You might as well understand right now that there are some things which even a limerick writer will not do. Trangmar, the idea! All hands on deck to throw this case of ripe eggs overboard.

JOHN DEERE SPREADER

THE SPREADER WITH THE BEATER ON THE AXLE

Only hip high to top of box. Big drive wheels lighten draft but do not interfere with loading. Simple in design—no clutches or chains to bother—no adjustments necessary—only half as many types of casting. Main working parts on rear axle where they can't get out of line and bind, thus cause heavy draft and breakage.

HERE ARE THREE EXCLUSIVE FEATURES ON THE JOHN DEERE

1. Beater on the axle—nothing else like it.
2. Revolving Rake—load moving back to beater revolves the rake. This decreases the draft and prevents bunching of the manure. Even spreading insured.
3. Ball Bearing Eccentric apron drive. Requires no attention, not even oiling. Works wonders in the operation of the spreader.

WIDE SPREAD ATTACHMENT

Taken off or put on in few minutes' time—makes spreader quickly adaptable for all field conditions. Spreads manure evenly to extreme edges. Simple in design. Does not add perceptibly to draft.

Next comes the sad tale of poor Will,
Who met a wild Ford on a hill.
Poor Bill ran so fast
Nine Fords he quick passed;
But the tenth made mince-meat out of Bill.

A fat man gets credit from none.
He ought to be toting a gun,
So when some poor smelt
Hits him on the belt,
He could shoot the joker for fun.

PAPEC

PNEUMATIC
Ensilage Cutter

A durable, efficient machine, capable of elevating silage to the top of any silo. Six fan blades instead of usual four. Runs at low speed—600 R.P.M. 4 to 8 H.P., gas engine will run the small and medium sizes, and thus save in less power used. Cutting parts, strong and rigid, stay in perfect alignment. One-piece semi-steel frame insures permanent rigidity. Easy to feed, set up and take down.

Send for 1916 Catalog, fully describing the many superior features of the Papec.

—Is the Sport Section of the Detroit Sunday News- Tribune.

Because

No Sunday newspaper in the country can show such an array of sport experts nor a choice of sport photographs to equal the Sunday News-Tribune's. It has the best in every line of sport.

Among its writers are:

Irvin S. Cobb, the greatest newspaper reporter the country ever produced, and considered by a great many people to be the best writer in America today.

Herbert Reed, who is absolutely the best football expert and leading writer and authority on college athletics in the United States.

Parke S. Davis, Princeton's member of the football rules committee and the leading statistician of the gridiron.

Joe S. Jackson, the country's leading baseball authority and the greatest analyst of the national pastime.

Waldo Dane Edenburn, who knows as much about auto racing as any man outside the pits and who can write more intelligently about the sport than any fellow who signs his name to an auto race story, or any who does not sign it.

Tom Gahagan, who can write about harness horses in a style that will make you read his stories even if you cannot tell a trotter from a delivery wagon. His word settles most any argument on horse racing.

Jimmy Standish, Michigan state golf champion and runner-up for the western amateur title, who writes about golf as well as he plays the game.

Edward Speyer, who knows a great deal about golf and even more about tennis.

Added to these men of journalistic and sport fame the Detroit Sunday News-Tribune presents the athletic news of Michigan colleges written by the best available men at the various institutions.

The staff of writers who contribute to the sport section of the Detroit Sunday News-Tribune has been gradually increased and will be made even more efficient this year. We want the very best writers and photographs obtainable for your entertainment and instruction.
