Ernie

This is the beginning of a story of college life. Not all the glamour of movie and myth; not all the grind of study; but the glory of an all-'round life that includes a cross-section of all college activities.

A story of student life—work, of course; the grill, often; parties, both faculty and student; sleep, in and out of bed; football and baseball games; good skating; Profs Blair and Caswell in familiar poses—oh yes, and feminine vanity.

A DEDICATION

Your Wolverine . . . dedicated to you . . . and where you went . . . and what you did . . . during:

FALL TERM

Registration . . . Closed sections: "Don't stand still or a line will form in back of you"
Football games
Your first blind date
Your first "D"
"Quiet Hours"
Radio Parties
The Saturday class you got out of
The Saturday class you didn't get out of Coke dates
Finals

WINTER TERM

Formal season: huge text-book bill
Freshman long-terms: dedicated to both those who wrote them and those who handed them in
Your second "D"
Basketball
J-Hop
Snow Train
Soph Prom
The night you had three meetings at seven but so was the show
Finals

SPRING TERM

And look what happened to your New Year's resolutions by this time
Senior Ball in the new auditorium
Mosquitos at the band concert
Military parades
Baseball
Frosh Frolic
Roller skating
Canoeing; the time it didn't tip, and the only time you wish it had
Political Rally, Class Elections
Water Carnival
Commencement
Finals

FINAL: Summer Time!

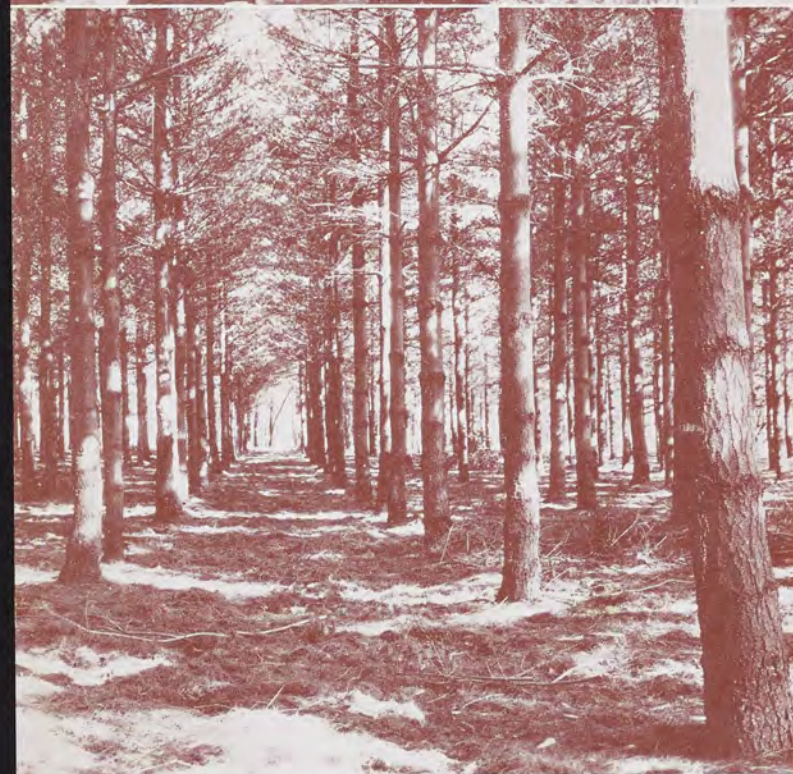

Bill Carlsen and the Engineers' Ball; Ray Stannard Baker and Don Francisco, two of State's most distinguished grads; Pluto on the football field and the Union Grill's new music box.

Kampus Kapers kommencing; a gallant gentleman; a relaxing gentleman; Miss Miller and a nursery school student. Such is life at Michigan State College.

CAMPUS

Still water, rocks and foliage contribute to a scene often visited by garden lovers, a favorite walking spot for couples on Sunday afternoon and an excellent background for aspiring photographers.

Planted in 1879 by Botanist Beal, these trees have developed into the present traditional Pinetum, first choice of canoeists, picnickers, steakroasters and campfirebuilders.

Canoe enthusiasts must duck their heads when curving under this old oak which juts out over the deepest bank of the Red Cedar.

VIEWS

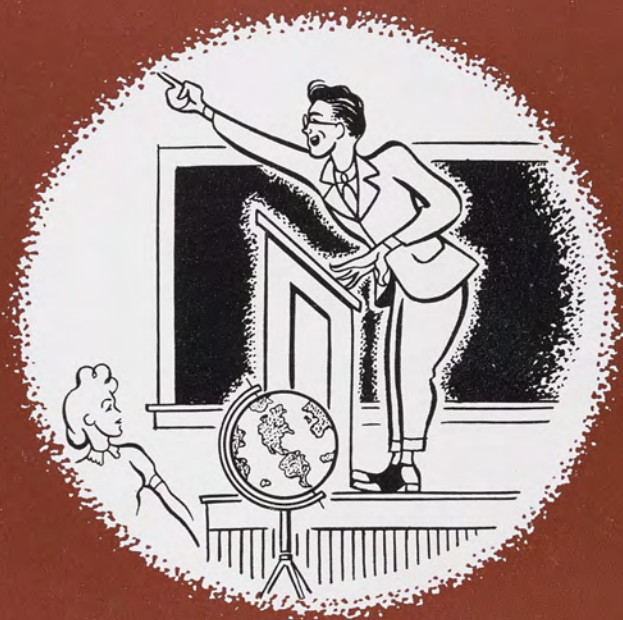

This thirty-year-old photograph was found in the files when the campus photographer moved to his new location in the auditorium. Today a picture of the same territory would show the Library, Woodshop, Olds hall and Beaumont Tower.

This simple dam keeps the river level high enough to float canoes all year. And ducks love to loaf or feed in the splashing water between the rocks.

Practically an established institution, the canoe livery has been the starting and ending place for many pleasant trips. The landing afforded by the new Farm Lane bridge will simplify river traffic; make loading and unloading easier.

Classes

And classes necessitate teachers and students. Here we see a story of coed Betty Jo Achard talking it over with faculty men Daubert and Stiefel.

Mortar Board, National senior Women's Honorary, was first established at Michigan State College in 1933, succeeding the local Sphinx organization. Qualifications for membership are scholarship, leadership and service to this campus.

The purpose of Mortar Board is to provide for the cooperation between societies here, to maintain a high standard of scholarship, to recognize and encourage leadership, and to stimulate and develop a finer type of college women.

Major projects of the year have been the Student-Faculty Coffee Hours in the mixed lounge at the Union. Because there has been more enthusiasm for them this year, it is hoped they will become a tradition.

During the year a party was given for girls off campus who were working for their room and board. In cooperation with Tower Guard, S. W. L. and the Athenians, Mortar Board sponsored a formal party. The organization also conducted a Marriage Course for seniors during Spring term.

Excalibur is the ultimate goal of every male student on campus. This senior men's service honorary requires three years of outstanding leadership and service to the college before becoming eligible for membership. The membership is limited to 13 and tapping takes place twice a year. As many as ten are tapped at the Water Carnival and the remaining at the annual Excalibur party the following term. It is the work of the organization to enforce and perpetuate college traditions. As last year, Excalibur is the co-sponsor of the senior marriage lectures given each spring term.

Blue Key, national honorary fraternity, was originated on the University of Florida campus. The Michigan State chapter organized and became affiliated with the national organization in 1927.

Members must be juniors or seniors, and are selected for character, scholarship, leadership, initiative and service. This year the chapter has forty-four regular members and five honorary faculty members.

Some of the services rendered this past year by the members have been acting as monitors at the Civil Service examinations in Lansing, assuming the roles of ushers and guides at various college functions and permitting the use of their bill-boards by non-profit organizations who needed them.

Each year the members hold an election to select the girl on campus who, they believe, comes the closest to being their ideal. Reigning sweetheart of the Blue Key this year is Margaret Andre, junior, Huntington Woods, Michigan.

Tower Guard is composed of sophomore women who, during their freshman year show outstanding qualities of character, scholarship, leadership and service performed on campus. New members are tapped at the annual May Morning Sing and are active only during their sophomore year.

Aims of its members are to further progressive womanhood by upholding high standards of character, to aid and support all worthy campus activities and to work for the advancement and recognition of Michigan State College.

Among the activities of Tower Guard are the teas for Lansing and East Lansing freshmen women, an annual dance in September, cooperation with Mortar Board for Lantern Night and assisting A. W. S. with the Freshmen Counselor system.

Nine years ago, the organization took its name from its unique meeting place, Beaumont Tower. Prior to that time it was known as the Q-Girls.

Green Helmet, symbolizing Spartan sophomore leadership, was organized for the purpose of aiding in the orientation of freshmen and promoting campus activities. The group, a local order, was organized in 1938. It is the men's sophomore honorary and requires the highest average of any honorary on campus.

Requirements for membership include a 2.2 average freshman year, and participation in extra curricular activities. New members are formally initiated in December.

The curriculum guidance conference, sponsored each spring term by this group, has received nation wide publicity, and requests for information regarding its structure has been received from numerous other colleges.

IN MEMORIAM

HENRY E. PUBLLOW

Terminating a useful and abundant life, the death of Professor Henry Eveleth Publow on March 3, 1940 was a great shock to the many who knew and loved him. In tribute, fond memories of the active interest he took in young people will long be cherished in the hearts of his friends and associates.

Professor Publow was born in Detroit on January 4, 1892, graduated from Michigan Agricultural College in 1914 and later received the degrees of Chemical and Metallurgical Engineer.

His educational career began in 1915 as a Chemistry instructor, was climaxed in 1936 when he was made Professor of Chemical Engineering and head of the department. He was author of numerous bulletins published by the Michigan Engineering Experiment Station. He was president of the Toledo Wire and Iron Co., Inc. His activities were many . . . a few include Sigma Xi, Alpha Chi Sigma, Beta Kappa, American Chemical Society, Phi Lambda Tau and Tau Beta Pi.

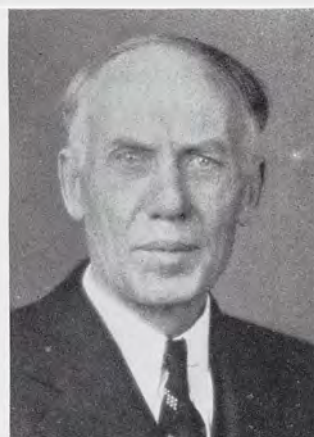

LEWIS L. RICHARDS

Michigan State College, in common with the entire music world suffered a great loss at the death of Lewis L. Richards February 25.

Mr. Richards, an internationally known artist of the harpsichord and piano, joined the college faculty in 1927. Under his direction the music department developed from a minor factor of college activity to one that attained national attention in music circles. The climax of his executive ability came only a few weeks before his death with the dedication of the new music building.

Mr. Richards was influential in bringing to the campus and community world renowned artists and musical organizations; in building up a staff of well equipped and qualified teacher-musicians; in presenting music of worth and beauty within the student body and of directly inspiring students with a sincerity of purpose, a true sense of value and a glimpse of the divine spark in music.

As a man and artist of the highest rank, Lewis Richards unselfishly devoted his life to the service of music and mankind.

EDWARD HILDRETH RYDER

After serving Michigan State and his community for many years, Mr. Ryder died in June 1939 following his retirement from college duties.

Mr. Ryder earned a teacher's degree from Michigan Normal in 1893, a B.A. and M.A. from U. of M. In 1916 Normal presented him with a M. of Ped., an honorary degree.

After gaining experience teaching in high school and acting as principal and superintendent of schools, he came to M.S.C. in 1905 as an instructor in history; in 1916 he had attained a professorship in that course. In 1925 Mr. Ryder was appointed Dean of Liberal Arts. He held this position in conjunction with his professorship until 1934 when he was relieved of the Dean's duties but retained the history position. Four years later poor health forced Mr. Ryder to retire from college service.

Besides his college positions, Ryder was mayor of East Lansing for seven years, a member of S.A.E. and active in the International Relations club. He belonged to Peoples' church where he was on the Board of Trustees, and a sponsor of Y.M.C.A.

Eloquent in its very stillness, death visited Michigan State . . . each time to take away someone dear to another . . . and each time to leave the college just a bit more sombre . . . just a bit more sincere . . . and just a bit more conscious that underneath a veneer of fleeting joy . . . life, like a stream, flows onward, obscuring but not concealing the rapids of sacrifice that others may strive on.

But, though departed, they did not live in vain. Their presence, either short or long, consecrated some spot, some joy, or some gesture deep in the heart of another. More eternal because the donor has departed, the smile, the glance, the encouraging word take on a deeper meaning in the memories of friends. They did not die because in death, their memories live.

Organizations

Marian and Dick run the rule making organizations—Sammie Yeiter belongs to all the clubs and Bill is always ready to fix the Union room.

Student Council is the elective student organization that has jurisdiction over all student campus activities. The council is the legislative body that has power to investigate and make recommendations on matters between the students and the college.

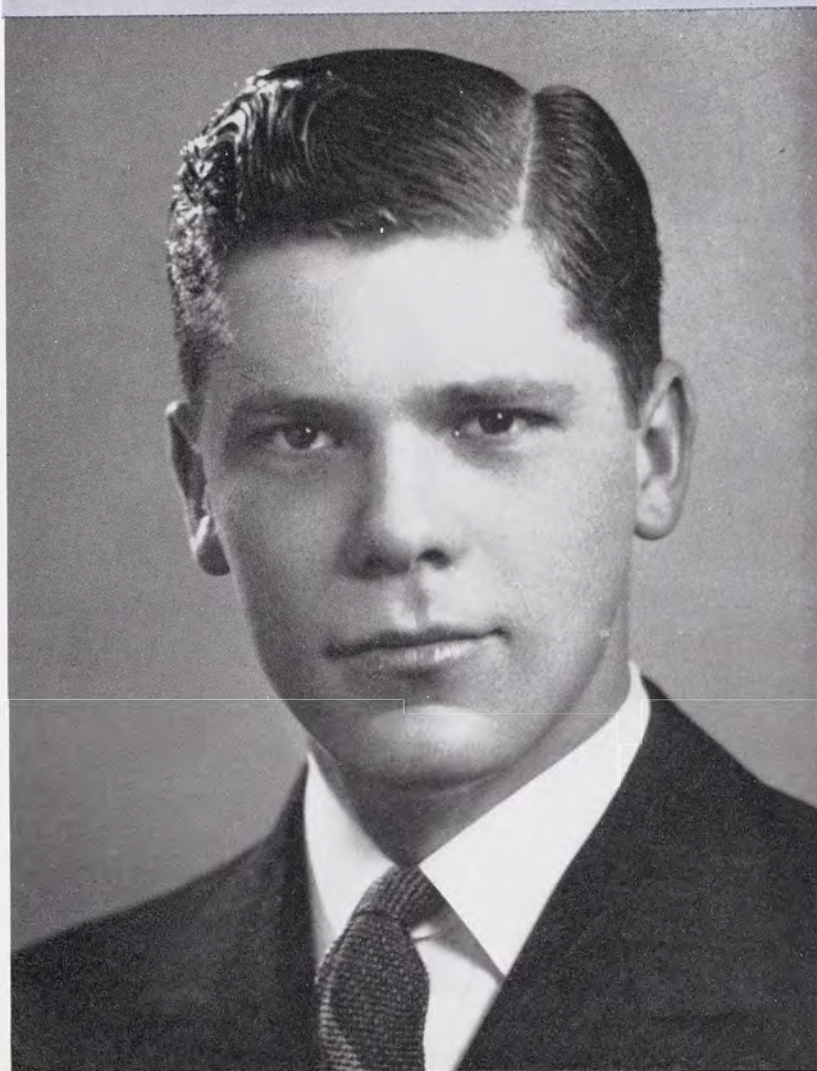

The most important duty of the council is that of acting as intermediary between members of student body and the faculty. Also it sponsors general and special college elections; aids in coordination of programs of several student honorary, professional and executive organizations and goes over plans of new organizations with view of accepting or rejecting authorization of such groups.

Membership of the Student council is composed of the president of each class, representatives at large, elected by members of those classes, and representatives from the following college organizations: Agricultural council, Panhellenic council, Associated Women Students, Michigan State News, Spartan Women's League, Interfraternity council, Independent Men's League, Union Board and Varsity Club. Dean of Men, Dr. F. T. Mitchell, has been faculty adviser of Student council for several years.

Student council is member of the National Student Federation of America. The Michigan State college group sends representatives each year to the Federation's national convention.

The council set up a seven man board to control the student financed forensic fund in December, 1939. The board is composed of three faculty members and four students.

MARIAN PATCH

Associated Women Students, founded at East Lansing in 1920, was formed with the purpose of helping establish and maintain high standards of conduct, both social and moral. The working unit of the present organization still functions with that purpose.

The reported success of A. W. S. is attributed to its strong democratic set-up, which consists of student elected and faculty members.

In order that their purpose be upheld, A. W. S. operates under two units, the Greater Council, which consists of elected members, and the Judiciary Board, which defines and interprets rules.

A. W. S., as part of its work, formulates such policies and plans as shall be of all-campus interest to women students. All campus projects may be presented to this group by committees or individuals wishing cooperation from women's organizations.

It is this organization that sets the house rules for girls' dormitories, regulates quiet hours and sets the coed permission time. During the year they are engaged in helping other women's organizations carry on their work.

The lecture course board attempts to present a well-rounded program of lectures by nationally and internationally known personalities. The committee was established by the State Board of Agriculture in 1912. Its activities are financed by a blanket charge on the student fees.

This year, adding to the series of speakers who have been presented by the board in the years since its inception, appeared Author Channing Pollock, Correspondent H. R. Knickerbocker, Senator Gerald Nye, Engineer Charles Kettering, Philosopher Will Durant, the Humphrey Weidman dance troupe, Economist Dr. Ruth Alexander, Critic John Mason Brown and First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt.

UNION BOARD

Standing—M. Andre, D. Brandow, T. Connelly
Sitting—E. Telford, J. Kelly, N. Barner

To give students a voice in managing the only building on campus they pay to use, the Union board is elected to cooperate with B. R. Proulx, Union head. Three members from the senior, two from the junior and one from the sophomore classes are elected each winter term. Within the board's jurisdiction lies the Union Memorial Building at the main campus entrance.

This year's members provided the usual number of dances, tea dances and a special party for students remaining on campus over the Thanksgiving holiday. As special services, they brought a nickelodeon to the Union grill, re-decorated the sun porch, and established a lost and found department.

Their crowning achievement, however, was to lay plans for a post office box at the west entrance of the building. To establish such a box for the convenience of the student body has been a perennial goal for Union boards.

The board of publications acts in the capacity of a board of control over all student publications, namely the Wolverine, Spartan, and Michigan State News, and receives a monthly financial and editorial policy report from each office. It is a representative body composed of student, faculty and administration representatives. The publications are represented by the graduate manager, editor and business manager of the Michigan State News, Wolverine and Spartan. Student representatives include Student council and A. W. S. presidents. The head of the publications department and advisers to the above-named publications compose the board's faculty representation. C. O. Wilkins, college treasurer and G. O. Stewart, alumni secretary represent the administration.

In an effort to organize the students of Michigan State's oldest division and to co-ordinate the activities of the various clubs within the division, the Agricultural council was formed in 1927.

The council, which revised its constitution and was reorganized last year, is composed of one representative from each student organization within the division and one representative elected from freshman, sophomore and junior classes. One short course student sits in the meetings but is not allowed a vote. The faculty is also represented on the council by one man from each of the major departments of the division. Any new club seeking admittance into the organization presents its constitution which must be approved by two-thirds of the present council.

Each year, in an effort to gain recognition for their division, the council sponsors the All-Ag Mixer and the Harvest Ball during fall term. Outstanding students are honored during winter term at the All-Ag Achievement Banquet, and in the spring term they sponsor the All-Ag Carnival.

Independent Men's league was founded in 1935 by non-fraternity students. The group possesses a charter from the National Association of Independent students. Aim of the I.M.L. is to provide opportunities for unaffiliated men to take part in activities.

Among activities sponsored are intramural athletics: touch football, basketball, and softball; intramural debating; and the Michigan State college weekly program, Radio Frolic of the Air. Several special services are also sponsored, including the nationally known date bureau, and a transportation bureau to secure rides for students going home over the holidays. Tea dances, winter term and term parties carry out the league's policy of promoting inexpensive entertainment. A major project is the annual effort to arouse more interest in campus problems and to increase voting in class elections.

"Woman suffrage at M. S. C." was an idea that in 1931 motivated two women of the class of '32 to found Spartan Women's League. To foster democratic ideals on campus and to provide a common ground for sorority and non-sorority women to work together is the purpose of S. W. L. today. Membership is open to any woman student enrolled at State.

Activities open each fall term with assistance of orientation of Freshmen students, and close spring term with a tea given for Senior women. Between these events are publication of an etiquette book, a weekly broadcast, a tea for transfer women and new faculty members, dancing classes, and a Coed Carnival exhibit. This year's organization sponsored the campus Red Cross drive and joined Mortar Board, Tower Guard and Athenian Women in giving a formal dance.

Each year S. W. L. presents a scholarship to some outstanding league member who could benefit from such a gift.

Operating for the first time under a new system, 1939-40 Michigan State News again brought students a complete well rounded picture of campus and outside doings three times per week.

The new system brought a graduate manager into the field whose main function was the coordination of the business and editorial policies. Victor G. E. Spaniolo III, last year business manager, was named to the position.

Success of the new set-up was insured by the largest staff of freshman and upper-class hopefuls ever to report for State News work. Staff size drew complaints from Managing editor Walt Rummel and Business manager Bill Collinge at times when length of the masthead bearing staff members' names became so long that stories had to be cut and ads shelved.

A marked drop in issue editor fatality in comparison to last year was noticable with only one change made when Wednesday editor Len Westrate turned over his reins to Marinar Alkire, first woman to hold such a position in three years; second in the history of the college.

NORWOOD HUBBELL

SPARTAN

In an endeavor to reflect student opinion, the Spartan magazine in 1939 adopted a new editorial policy.

An editorial board consisting of Norwood Hubbell, editor, and Earl Brigham, Jack Saunders and Rogers Ketcham, associate editors, was formed to replace the traditional managing editor in directing the policy of this monthly publication.

Troubled at the first of the year by a new campus ruling that prohibited soliciting by publications, the Spartan sales for the first three months were badly curtailed, but with the November issue student demand for the periodical increased so rapidly that the financial situation ceased to be a worry for George Cope, business manager.

This year the editorial board greatly changed the make-up of the magazine and by employing the off-set process was able to give the campus the most complete picture coverage it has had. It has proven to be a huge success.

Matrix, junior and senior women's journalism honorary, has as its aim the furthering of professional and social interests among coed journalists on campus.

Established last year by a group of publications women, the society enters on its second year with 24 active members. Requirements for membership are at least junior rating, 1.5 all-college average, and a B average in journalism. The local chapter is desirous of affiliating with a national women's honorary journalism society.

Aiming at this goal Matrix has published the annual election issue of the Michigan State News and helped NWS, men's journalism honorary, conduct last year's Michigan Collegiate Press Conference.

You know her name but you don't know her telephone number or where she lives? NWS has made such questions relatively simple by their publication of the Student Directory, best seller and most thumbed-through annual on the campus.

The NWS is an honorary journalism fraternity. The N, W and S stand for News, Wolverine and Spartan, any man doing outstanding work in any of these three major campus publications is eligible for membership. The purpose of the organization is to bring the year book, college newspaper and college magazine into closer cooperation with one another. The fraternity also endeavors to promote greater interest in journalism throughout the college.

Organized in October of 1938, the fraternity set to work immediately upon the Student Directory for that year.

In February they scheduled their second Collegiate Press Convention with journalism students from most colleges in Michigan attending.

Early in April NWS became affiliated with Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity. The first initiation was occasion for a state-wide reunion of members and five past S.D.C. presidents who made up the degree team.

DR. THOMPSON

D R A M A T I C S

Graduated from Hamline University in 1917, Dramatics Director Dr. W. Fawcett Thompson took only time enough to stick his B. A. degree away in a closet and send his cap and gown back to the rental company before hiking out for the mud splattered trenches of France to do his bit towards saving the world for democracy.

After twenty-six months with the American Expeditionary forces Doc substituted knife and scalpel for bayonet and spent over a year and a half with the United States Medical Corp where he became so proficient as an assistant sawbones that he won one of three French Medailles D'Honneur granted to Americans for outstanding medical service in France.

Shedding khaki for socks and buskin on returning to the states Thompson put in 11 years behind the lights playing with stock companies throughout the country. Call of the scholar took him back to University of Nebraska next where he received his M. A. and Ph. D. degrees. Nebraska claimed Doc for six more years as an instructor before he journeyed to East Lansing to accept a position as staff member of the English department of Michigan State College.

Later he transferred to the department of Speech and Dramatics as an instructor and director of all-college plays. This year's presentations have included "Our Town" and "High Tor" with "Henry VIII" taking spring term limelight.

Despite rain, wind and storm the "Shrew" was tamed last spring in the regular senior Shakespearian production. Rained out of her debut on Wednesday evening she was given a second chance in a Saturday matinee by the cast, Director Thompson and college authorities.

Thorton Wilder's Pulitzer prize-winning play, "Our Town" was college dramatists' fall term offering. A memory dream play, done without scenery, it was perhaps the best production ever staged here by an all-college cast.

Early this spring Spartan exponents of the 'sock and buskin' opened the theater of the new auditorium producing Maxwell Anderson's phantasy "High Tor." First produced in New York by Guthrie McClintic, the play won the New York Drama Critics' Award in 1937.

Theta Alpha Phi is the only honorary dramatics fraternity on campus. It was organized for the purpose of recognizing students who are active in the theater.

The Michigan Delta Chapter was established on this campus in 1924. Only those who have had two major roles in major campus productions, or their equivalent, are eligible to join. Backstage work and directing also are considered as possible points for membership. The presentation of an all college play each term and a Shakespearean play in the band shell spring term is used to promote interest in the theater.

Pi Kappa Delta is the youngest, but largest of the three national speech honoraries.

The Michigan Delta chapter was founded at Michigan State on June 8, 1921. The only requirement for membership is proof of ability in public speaking as shown by participation in inter-collegiate contests in debate, oratory or extemporaneous speaking. Speech instructors and debate and oratory coaches are also eligible for membership.

The primary purpose of Pi Kappa Delta is to stimulate and develop interest in intercollegiate public speaking, and to this end merit badges are conferred upon members who have shown outstanding or distinguished services to the club during the year.

The Alpha Lambda chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota was founded on State's campus in April 1930. Only those who working towards a music degree, have professional possibilities, and are in the upper one-fourth of their class are invited to become members.

The local organization annually gives a scholarship to an outstanding underclass music student. The national unit assists its members with the Hazel Ritchey loan fund from which worthy undergraduate students may draw in order to finish their study.

On October 24, 1939, Alpha Lambda chapter initiated Grace Moore, outstanding Metropolitan soprano as honorary member.

The fraternity sponsors an informal musical each month, a yearly vesper service, and a formal musicale once a term.

OFFICERS

SIGRID JOHNSON President
 JEANNE FULKERSON Secretary
 ANN L. KUEHL Advisor

Orchesis affords an excellent medium of expression for those women students who have engaged in basic courses in dancing and who wish to attain further development in this particular art. The purpose of the organization is the promotion of interest in the art of the dance. It endeavors to give members a better understanding of the fundamental elements in all the art forms.

Any woman student who is interested in the art of the dance and who has formerly shown particular promise in this form is eligible to become a member of the group. The candidate does not become an active member immediately but must spend a certain period as a try-out. The organization is a national dancing honorary, the local chapter having been established in 1928.

Established as Phi Eta chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon in 1931, members of this organization have been continually working toward their aim to promote higher standard of musicianship and scholarship and to foster a close friendship among the students of music in all American colleges.

Members are selected from junior and senior women who show extra musical attainment and keep within the upper one-fourth of their classes scholastically.

To form closer and more firm associations with members of the faculty and professional musicians, members take advantage of every opportunity to offer material aid to the music department.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

Although necessarily a volunteer organization, the Men's Glee club has become known not only on campus but throughout the state. Long hours of tedious practice come to a climax each year with appearances before various musical groups as well as concerts at Farmers' Week, the May Morning Sing, and the Christmas concert.

But all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, and the Glee club can't become flat. To keep in good tune, the club sponsors smokers during fall and spring terms, and a formal each winter.

Members are accepted from any division, subject only to a requirement that they be of good character and be able to carry a tune. Since membership is limited to 60, candidates passing a try out test are placed on a waiting list until a vacancy occurs. A key is awarded each member after two years' services.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

The Women's Glee Club is an organization open to any woman student, whether or not she is registered in the Music Department. Members are chosen by open try-out before the Director, and they are selected not only for their musical talent, but also for the manner in which their voice will blend with others in group singing.

Organized under the present system in 1927, the glee club has had as its objective the encouragement of women students to participate in extra-curricular musical activities, and thereby increase their musical ability.

The club rehearses three times weekly, one of these rehearsals being with the combined chorus, membership in which is compulsory. Programs are presented before various audiences not only on campus but throughout the state. Each spring term a concert is given for the enjoyment of the entire student body and faculty.

Michigan State College Symphony Orchestra is an organization of fifty musicians representing every department of the college. Led by Alexander Schuster, the orchestra is developing into a musical unit of professional capacity.

Aside from providing programs for college functions and making several out-of-town appearances during the year, the orchestra accompanies nationally known artists appearing on the College Concert Series. During the year Artur Schnabel, pianist; Emanuel Feuermann, 'cellist, and Lewis Richards, pianist, have played with the orchestra.

CHORUS

The chorus takes its place as a full-fledged musical organization for the first time this year. Choruses have existed on the campus for the last ten years, but there was never a definite organization. The first election of officers was held last spring and plans were made for coming activities.

Highlights of the season are the Christmas carol program, given December 8 in conjunction with the other singing groups, and the annual spring concert, in which it appears with the orchestra.

The chorus also shares this year with the men's and women's glee clubs and the a cappella choir in the presentation of the annual music formal.

Aim of the new group is to make the Michigan State College chorus the finest singing organization in the state. Membership is open to all students who possess sight reading ability, a passable voice, and enthusiasm for singing. At present there are approximately one hundred and fifty members.

Chorus, A Cappella Choir and Men's Glee Club director William Kimmel, came to Michigan State in 1935 as an instructor in music. He received his Bachelor of Music and Master of Music degrees at the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester, where he served as graduate assistant for two years before coming here.

A member of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, national honorary music fraternity, he also is affiliated with the American Musicology Society and the Music Librarians' Association.

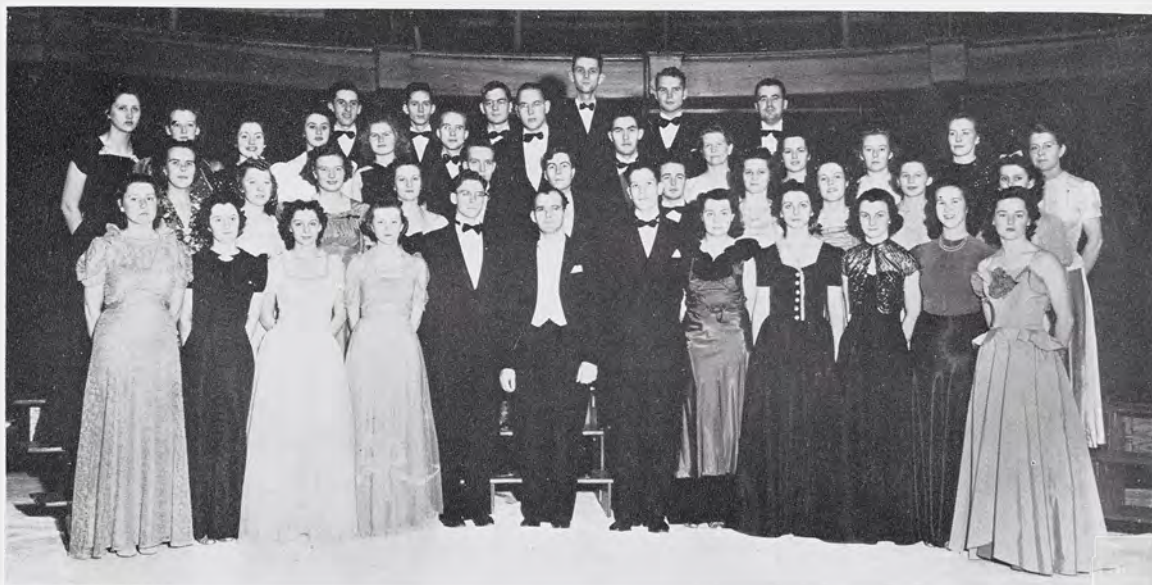

PIERSON BROWER

A CAPPELLA CHOIR

A cappella choir, one of the most popular singing organizations on campus, was started here five years ago by Mr. William Kimmel its present director. The choir gives about a dozen performances a year before various banquets and conventions in Lansing and nearby cities. Each year the group presents a Spring Concert which this year was held for the first time in the New Music building. In addition the choir appears at Sunrise Services in the Band Shell under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and takes part in the annual May Morning sing.

One of the specialties of the a cappella choir is the singing of old sacred liturgical music of many religious sects.

Membership in the Choir is gained by passing a competitive voice examination. At the present there are about 45 men and women in the organization.

The Gamma Epsilon chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia was established at State on November 22, 1938. It is the only men's musical society on campus and is prominent in the advancement of finer music in America, and the encouragement of American composition.

Eligibility for membership requires that the candidate be in good standing in all his subjects in the school of Music, have good character, and ability in leadership. The chapter as a whole has given much attention to creating a greater loyalty to the Alma Mater on the part of its members and the student body.

Highest stepping of all Michigan State organizations, the 100 piece band toasted Governor Dickinson with a "Hi Life" formation to the tune of the 'Beer Barrel Polka' at the Michigan game this year. Still feeling the effects, they played 'Over the Rainbow' at the Purdue game while standing in the shape of an umbrella.

Perhaps the boys were just reflecting some of the spirit caused by moving into quarters in the new music building which is quite a contrast to the old swimming pool in the armory where they practiced in the days of M. A. C.

For the past several years the band has been under the direction of Leonard Falcone who received his early training in Italy under the famous Danatelli. Formations and marching were supervised by Major Mark H. Doty of the Field Artillery.

State's varsity debate squad, 18 strong, once again swept through a very successful season of over 150 debates. Single contests were held with such traditional opponents as Marquette, Notre Dame, Michigan, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Purdue, and Indiana. In addition to these and other single events, the squad competed in several tournaments which included the State tournament at East Lansing, the Manchester-Huntington tournament in Indiana, the Pi Kappa Delta National tournament at Knoxville, Tennessee, and the Delta Sigma Rho tournament at Madison, Wisconsin.

During the 1940 debate season affirmative and negative teams of the varsity debate squad participated in several tournaments:

January 5, rebuttal drill at Albion College with Albion, Wayne, and M. S. C. participating. Each member of the squad presented an issue for three minutes and stood cross question for seven minutes.

January 13, fifteen practice debates at Hope College.

January 17, six decision debates at Kalamazoo College, Albion, Alma, Hope, and Western State taking part.

January 19, ten practice debates with Albion, Wayne and Michigan State Normal at Wayne University.

February 8, ten decision debates with Alma, Calvin, Central State Teachers College, and Hillsdale.

February 17, ten decision debates with Michigan Colleges under auspices of Michigan Intercollegiate Speech League.

March 25 to 29, National Pi Kappa Delta Tournament at Knoxville, Tennessee.

The work of the Spartan chapter of Y. M. C. A. can best be described in its purpose, as stated in the organization's constitution: "the Y. M. C. A. of Michigan State College is a fellowship of students and faculty men who are attracted by the teachings of Jesus. These men join together for the purpose of stimulating, through their personal living and through a dynamic fellowship, a Christian living which is intellectually mature, emotionally satisfying and socially adequate for the day in which we live and the future which we face."

Membership in the group is open to any man on campus, the only requirement being that they take a pledge to support the purpose of the organization.

Activities of the group for this year included a Christmas party, in cooperation with boys' clubs of Lansing, for underprivileged children, and a series of religious lectures sponsored during winter term. Speakers were also brought in for the bi-weekly meetings to further the idea of intellectual stimulation.

Y. W. C. A., founded on campus in 1894, meets weekly and membership is open to all women students. This year the girls have undertaken as their creed "to make Y. W. a center of friendliness for the girls on campus, in which every girl has a part in developing an open-minded awareness and a means of meeting the problems of world affairs, racial tolerance, and community and social service problems; to unite in the desire to find a religious way of life; and to reflect that living on campus."

Fulfilling these aims, the girls helped to receive the freshmen by sponsoring a "Welcome" coffee. A fireside chocolate for foreign students was another important event. The largest project was a "Kiddies" Christmas Party for underprivileged children of the vicinity.

Other undertakings of the group were the sponsoring of a Mortar Board student-faculty coffee, the filling of Thanksgiving baskets and the dressing of Christmas dolls.

The Michigan State College Hotel Association was organized as a means of binding all students enrolled in the Hotel Administration department into a close and friendly comradeship. Through the association, there is an opportunity to come into contact with leading hotel executives and to realize the more vital problems of the hotel business world.

The Spartan Hotel, a mythical institution in substance but nevertheless presenting its own special problems and transactions, has been organized. Members of the faculty act as the departmental heads.

In order to aid freshmen students, the organization presented a series of lectures this year, covering various phases of hotel management and also initiated a student councilor system in the department.

The Student Grange was founded in 1928 as a subordinate division of the National Grange. Membership is open to anyone interested in the advancement of rural education and activities, and at present is composed mostly of agricultural and home economics students. Their activities are many and varied, including a combined party with the 4-H Club, a degree team which travels throughout the state to initiate new members, a dramatics team which presents a play during Farmers' Week and a choral group to compete with other Granges. During Farmers' Week the group as a whole assists in the many activities that are a part of this conference. Their main purpose is to promote interest in agriculture and to provide a fraternal organization for students acquainted with its activities.

The Student Christian Union was organized under the sponsorship of People's Church in cooperation with the college and seeks to unite the college students of People's Church.

Mainly, the group is trying to promote religious living and fellowship, and to give experience in worship and religious education. All students of M. S. C. are eligible for membership and are urged to attend meetings and take part in discussions. The organization does not charge membership fees.

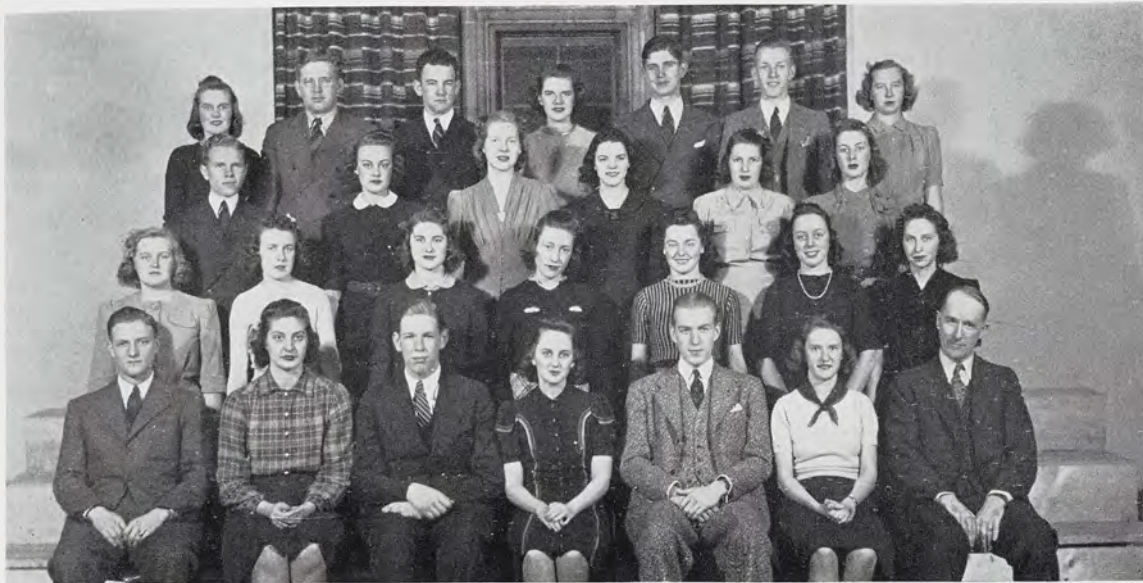

Every Sunday evening from five to seven-thirty o'clock, the group conducts a varied program for all students who are interested in practicing Christian freedom. It consists of vesper services at the People's Church, followed by a group supper, singing, and an informal meeting which features a guest speaker or a discussion group.

The Christian Science organization was organized on this campus in 1935 as a branch of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ Scientist, Boston, Massachusetts.

Besides serving the Christian Science students and faculty, its purpose is to make information on the religion available to those persons who are interested and to correct any misconceptions of questions which the students might have. Weekly meetings are held Tuesday evenings in the Peoples Church of East Lansing, and every year the group sponsors an authorized Christian Science lecturer to speak to the students of the college. This year's speaker was Peter V. Ross of San Francisco, an alumnus of Michigan State.

Although consisting mostly of Christian Science members, anyone may apply for membership and be interviewed for the organization. The group is affiliated with the Religious Council of the college; a council of all religious denominations.

With a membership of over a hundred, Hillel Extension is one of the largest of the organizations on campus. Activities are under the direction of an executive council which sponsors Hebrew classes and Friday evening coffee hours. It also holds Sunday evening meetings for the group and is responsible for a national oratorical contest.

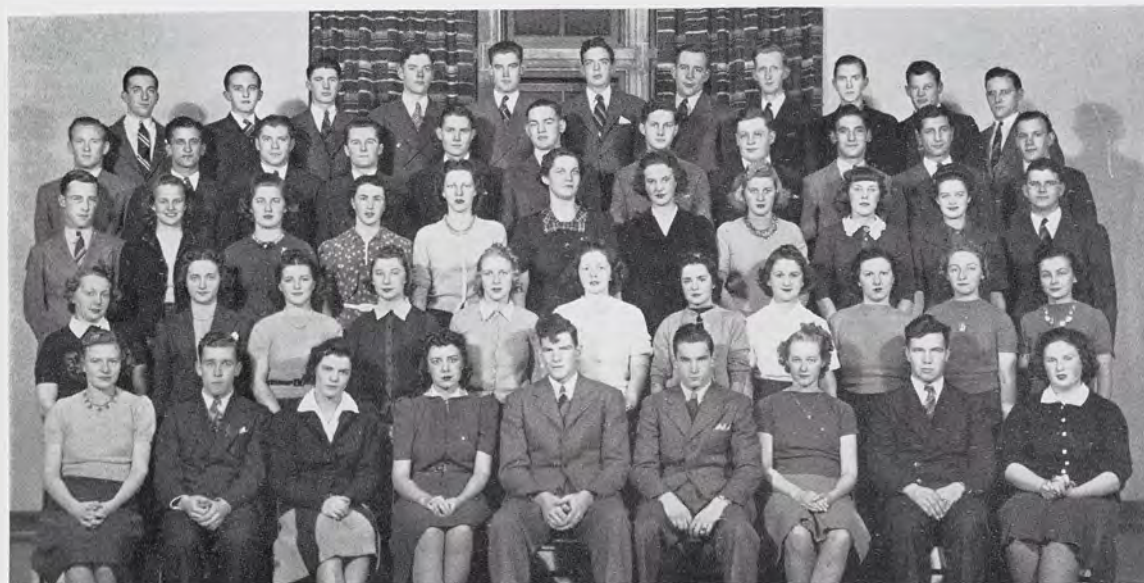

During the past year Hillel Extension received a charter from the national organization from which it received its present name. It is an outgrowth of the Jewish Student Club which was founded in the fall of 1937. This group continued until the spring of 1938 when the Brandeis Forum was founded. From this the present Hillel Extension evolved.

The Newman Club is symbolic of Catholic culture and fellowship which it promotes to the highest degree. The organization was founded here in 1934, having in mind a threefold purpose; religious, educational and social. All Catholic students on campus automatically become members. The club is affiliated with the Newman Federation, an international organization which is celebrating its silver anniversary this year.

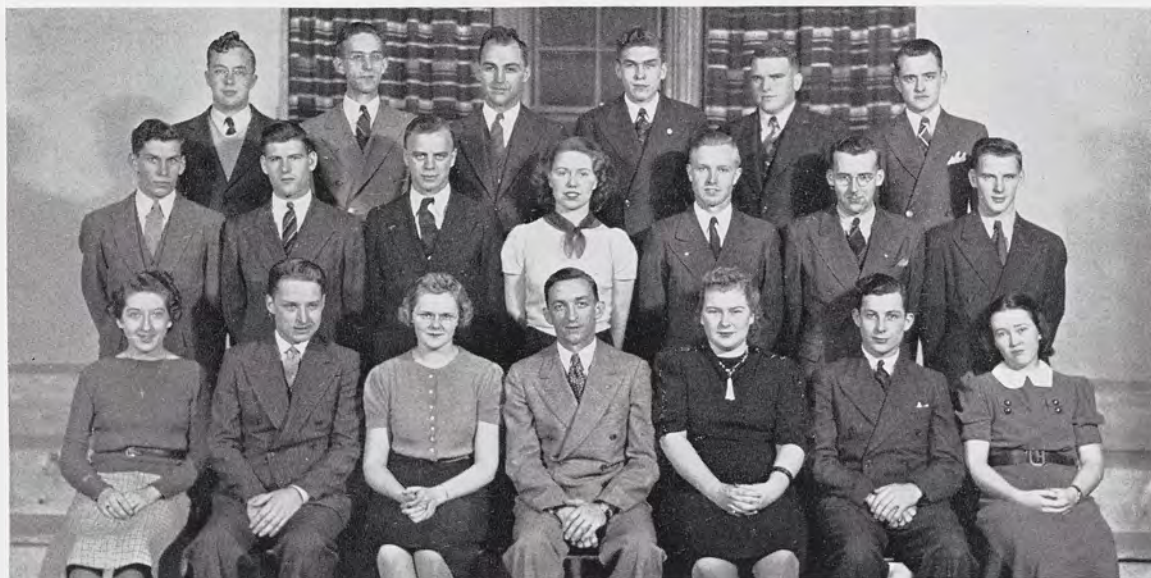

Supplementing his regular classes,

Father Winters, club chaplain, conducts an open forum each week at which any student may express and discuss his personal views on religious topics.

In addition to parties and educational study groups, the Newman Club sponsors a corporate Commission and breakfast each term. These social activities afford excellent opportunities for Catholic students to become acquainted with one another, in addition to keeping in contact with their religious activities.

"Whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men." Colossians 3:23

The objectives and purposes of the Spartan Christian Fellowship purposely are not many, but are adhered to closely. At the regular weekly meetings the Bible is studied and religious leaders of the nearby communities come to speak and lead various discussion groups.

It is affiliated with the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship of Canada, but is self sustained and self governed. Joint meetings were held during the last school year with a similar organization at the University of Michigan, and similar exchanges were scheduled with Wayne University and Michigan Normal late spring term.

To quote briefly from the constitution, any student of the college, regardless of denomination, who is willing "to declare his faith in Jesus Christ as his Personal Saviour and Lord, and who desires to make it his life purpose to witness for Him and to work for His Kingdom," is welcomed as a member of the Spartan Christian Fellowship.

Unaccustomed as I am to public speaking is not the way members of the Speakers Bureau begin their talks because they aren't unaccustomed to public speaking.

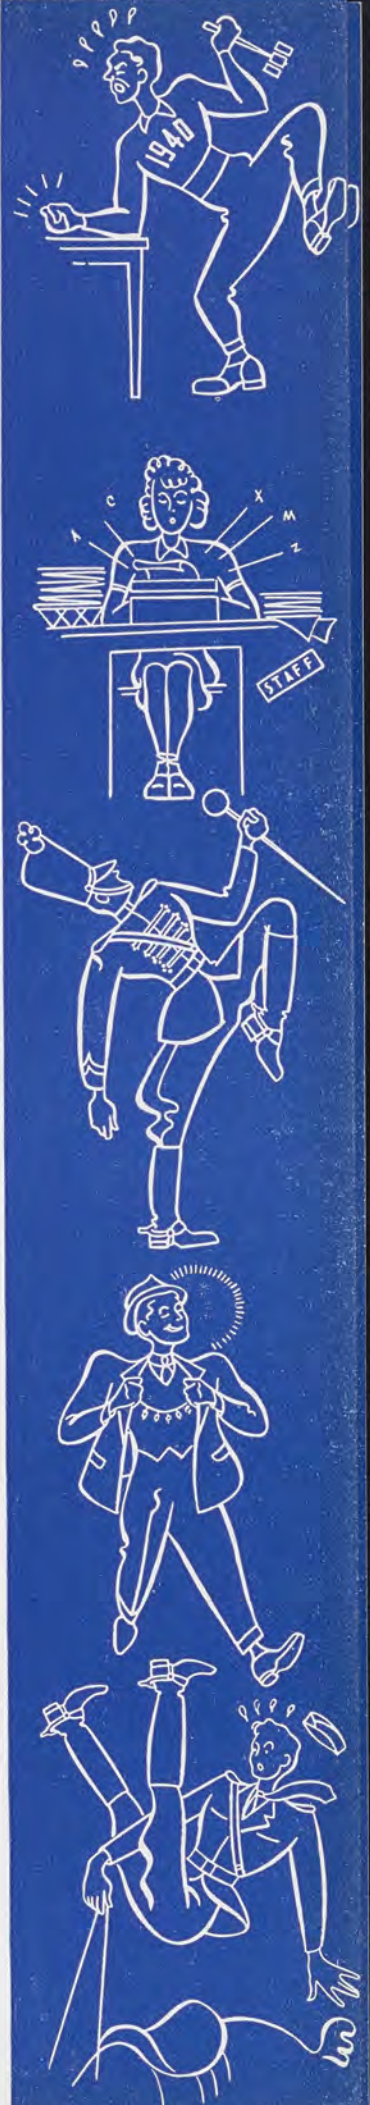

In fact, since the bureau was organized late in 1938, demands for appearances have become so great that the bureau has had to double its size in order to lighten the burden on any one member.

Speakers, selected from the student body, either as volunteers, or drafted because of unusual hobbies or experiences, will talk on subjects ranging from crime detection by a police ad student or Hawaii by a native Hawaiian, to walking as a hobby by a former Olympic champion. The bureau also maintains a staff to give dramatic readings.

The bureau will send a speaker anywhere for transportation expenses. Greatest demands comes from Lions, Kiwanis, or Rotary clubs, followed closely by Granges, Ladies Aid Societies, and banquets.

STUDENT CLUB

Student Club was founded in 1935 to satisfy the desire of many students for creative, democratic, and inexpensive social activities. Any undergraduate who is in accord with this purpose is welcomed as a member. Opportunities are offered to the member to increase his abilities as a leader in recreational activities.

In carrying out these purposes, the club every Friday evening offers a party catering to individual interests and planned in accordance with the season. These parties offer such diversions as folk dancing, circle games, hikes, dramatics, skating, swimming, music and picnics. The organization is governed by a cabinet of twelve students assisted by a faculty adviser and two church directors.

ATHENIANS

To fill a need for an organization which provides activities for non-sorority women, Spartan Women's league founded the Athenians in 1936. Since then it has achieved prominence and an increasing number of members. Its purpose is friendship; its aim is the participation in extra curricular activities for Michigan State women.

The Athenians have several projects, consisting of interest groups in drama, art, music and cooperation with other organizations in furthering college activities. They assist W.A.A. in sponsoring women's athletic contests and cooperate with the Independent Men's League in maintaining the date bureau. They organize fireside faculty conferences and this year jointly with W.A.A. and S.W.L. gave their first formal winter term.

Meetings are held every Monday night and every third meeting they have special speakers on various topics.

It isn't necessary to have been a 4-H club member before coming to college to be eligible to join the campus division of the club, but previous membership is helpful.

The major prerequisite is interest. The club offers an excellent opportunity for persons of similar interests to become acquainted.

The Campus 4-H Club sponsors and conducts a weekly radio program over WKAR, consisting of discussion of subjects interesting to the farmer. Programs covering State Fair activities are substituted for the regular program in fair week.

Chief aims of the club are to aid freshmen in orienting themselves to college life and to encourage short course students to affiliate themselves with the interests of the group.

Meetings are held twice a week with occasional social meetings and dances in place of business.

In order to achieve this, the club has provided a medium for the expression of student opinion, sponsored activities to promote faculty-student relationships, engaged speakers and encouraged other activities of interest to the group.

Junior, senior, graduate students, and members of the faculty in the Department of Sociology are eligible for membership.

The Hiawatha Club is a unique organization in that it is a social group composed entirely of upper peninsula students. First organized in 1935 under the name of the Upper Peninsula Club, its aims are to unite and aid students at State who are residents of the northern branch of the state and to advertise the college in that district.

Each year the club, in cooperation with the Hiawatha Club at the University of Michigan, sponsors a dance at some centrally located spot in the upper peninsula so that all college students in the U. P. may gather for a good time. In addition the local organization sponsors athletic teams in the intramural league.

One of the main activities of the Dairy Club is the financing of the Dairy Cattle and Dairy Products Judging teams. This makes the club an organization which takes honors yet is not an honorary, since this year as well as in the past these teams have won several honors.

Besides financing the judging teams the club secures speakers and provides entertainment and educational features at meetings for the benefit of its members. It performs a service and at the same time raises money by operating a cafeteria during Farmers' Week and by serving lunches and refreshments at dairy cattle sales and on Farmers' Day.

Membership in the Dairy Club is open to any student who is interested in dairying and its advancement.

The local chapter of Block and Bridle, Animal Husbandry fraternity, was founded in 1930, and is open to all agriculture students majoring or intending to major in Animal Husbandry.

The organization strives to diffuse among its members a clearer conception and a better understanding of their chosen profession, and to promote higher scholastic standards among students of Animal Husbandry. Frequent meetings, social functions and discussions are held to encourage members to maintain an active interest in their major field of study. Development of a closer relationship between students and faculty in the Animal Husbandry division is also one of the major objectives of Block and Bridle.

In addition to aiding its own members, the organization sponsors the Animal Husbandry Judging Team, aiding it both financially and by encouraging students to participate in all phases of livestock judging.

Kedzie chapter of the Alpha Zeta fraternity endeavors to promote among students of agriculture the attainment of high scholarship and character and leadership qualities. Those students majoring in the division of agriculture who have maintained a high scholastic average in all courses are eligible for membership in the organization. Widely known, Alpha Zeta has chapters in every state, with alumni on nearly every college faculty in the country.

Alpha Zeta, now in its 37th active year, in its dual role of service and honorary fraternity, is adding new services to its list.

Students majoring in Farm Crops and Soils are invited to join the Agronomy club, the Michigan State College chapter of the junior section of the American Society of Agronomy. A large part of the group's program is aimed at creating a more thorough understanding of the problems existing today and also to give a mutual understanding of the different problems and conditions they will meet upon graduation from these fields. During the school year outside speakers are selected to give the members information on these different problems.

The fraternity sponsors the Farm Crops Judging Team, which is financed by means of an annual concession booth which is managed by the members during Farmers' Week. The main purpose of the organization points toward the promotion of high scholarship plus worthy character and the quality of leadership in college and community life most desirable of students majoring in the field of agriculture.

TAU BETA PI

Founded in Lehigh University in 1885, Tau Beta Pi, national honorary engineering fraternity was established at Michigan State College in 1892. Members are elected from senior Engineering students who are in the upper quarter of their class.

Meeting once a month, Tau Beta Pi invites as guest speakers men who are successful engineers. This is done in order to give the student an idea of practical application of the principles which he learns in college. Specialized fields are also discussed.

Its outstanding campus activity is the sponsoring of a tutoring class for those engineering students who feel they need help.

Initiations of new members are held fall and winter terms of each year.

Phi Lambda Tau, local honorary engineering fraternity was founded in 1925 for the purpose of promoting good fellowship among engineering students at Michigan State

Actual requirements of the organization are not published, but extra-curricular activities and personality are taken into consideration as much as scholarship.

Activities of Phi Lambda Tau include a series of good fellowship noon luncheons, enabling the students to get acquainted with the faculty and other students, and to discuss current student problems. They also present members of the teaching staff and prominent figures in engineering as speakers on various phases of the course, as well as choosing the most outstanding Senior engineer. This is done by using a ballot filled out by the faculty to find the three highest, one of which is chosen by the members. The organization is open to any student in the engineering division, who meets the requirements.

An organization that consists of mechanical engineering students who desire to become more acquainted with the engineering profession is the Michigan State College branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. The purpose of A. S. M. E. is that of acquainting the students with industrial conditions through the use of inspection trips of manufacturing plants and by presenting speakers who are well equipped with Mechanical Engineering principals in the world. Motion pictures and exhibits are provided by manufacturing concerns.

The organization offers encouragement to its members and assists them on technical subjects and projects. Leadership is stressed and many opportunities for planning meetings and assuming responsibilities are presented.

All members of the Electrical Engineering department are invited to become members in the M. S. C. branch of the A. I. E. E., a national professional fraternity. The local branch functions as a member of and carries on the duties similar to that of the national fraternity. The group was founded by M. M. Cory on April 2, 1918, for the benefit of creating a closer relationship between students of electrical engineering and faculty.

Outstanding speakers are presented throughout the year to acquaint members with different fields of science and to give an idea of what is expected of them in the future. The club encourages and helps in the preparation of technical papers and exhibits of its members.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CIVIL ENGINEERS

Just to prove to themselves and any other doubting Thomas that they are builders, members of the American Society of Civil Engineers each year construct building displays which are exhibited during Farmers' Week and the Michigan Road Builders show. Another part of the groups' program aims to create a closer relationship among students and a mutual understanding of problems faced both by the students and faculty of this department.

A local chapter of a professional fraternity, the organization also shows students some of the problems faced by an engineer in the field. This is accomplished by educational trips, talks and motion pictures. The organization is open to senior, junior and sophomore students of civil engineering.

Any student in Chemical Engineering at this college is eligible for membership in the Michigan State Chapter of the Chemical Engineers.

The local organization was started for the purpose of bringing about a closer relationship among those students who have chosen Chemical Engineering as their field of endeavor.

Aside from furthering friendship among its members, the society is dedicated to the purpose of imparting to them a better understanding of the principles of engineering in general and of this particular branch of the science specifically. It also aims to acquaint the student with a knowledge of the ethics of his profession and to prepare him for membership in the parent organization after graduation. Through regular meetings theory and practice presented to the students more informally than is possible in the classroom.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF AGRICULTURAL ENGINEERS

Since winter term of 1937 when a group of students majoring in Agricultural Engineering formed an organization, the Agricultural Engineering club has grown in membership and activities. One of the major objectives of the club was attained last year when it was recognized as the Michigan State College branch of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

Meetings are held once every two weeks throughout the school year, at which time speakers are frequently asked to discuss with the members such topics as are connected with the practical application of theories learned while in school.

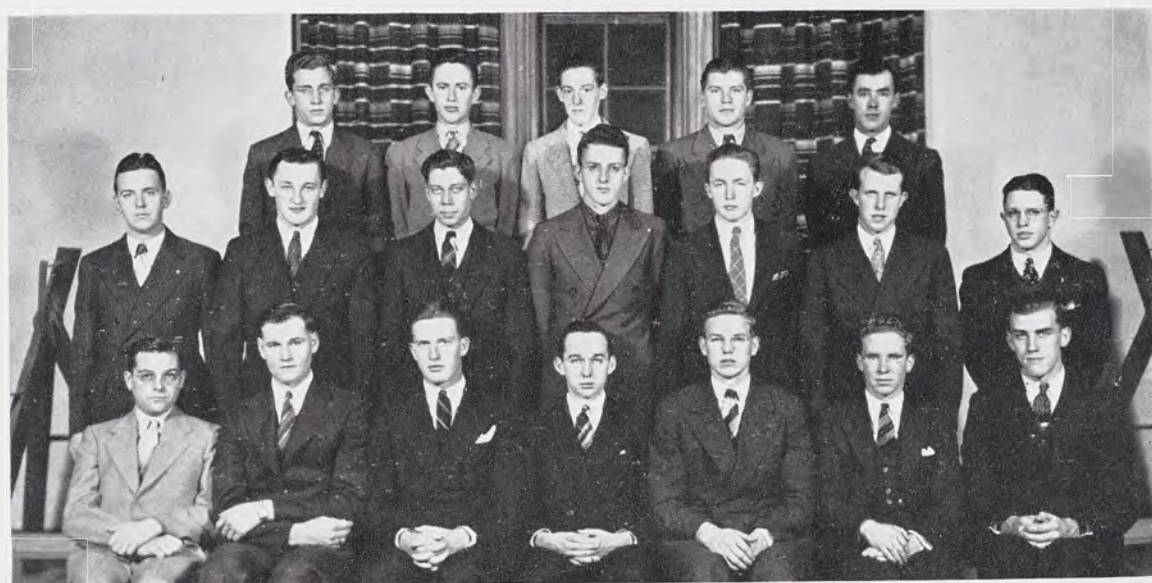

The principal objective of the club is the promotion of higher scholastic standing among students of agricultural engineering and the encouragement of members to understand more of the different phases of their particular course.

Furthering interest in the field of veterinary medicine is the aim of Alpha Psi, national honorary fraternity. Membership is limited to those who excell in veterinary sciences. Students working toward a degree in medical biology or veterinary medicine are eligible for the fraternity.

During the year Alpha Psi sponsors a lecture course which includes speeches on unusual diseases among pets and live stock, as well as experimental cures with animals. Aid is offered to those interested in opportunities for graduates outside of the Veterinarians' private practice, such as teaching and work in biological and pharmaceutical laboratories and stock farms.

OMICRON NU

Alpha chapter of Omicron Nu, national honorary Home Economics sorority, was founded at State in 1913. Good scholarship is the first requirement for membership which is determined by elections held twice a year; during fall and winter terms. Purpose of the honorary is maintenance of high scholarship, more intensive research, and leadership among members within the Home Economics field.

The Snyder Scholarship Cup is annually presented by the organization to the sophomore Home Economics student who throughout her freshman year has ranked highest in scholastic achievement. The group sponsors lectures by notable faculty members and those active in research, and holds open meetings for all Home Economics students. Each spring term Omicron Nu sponsors a tea honoring students who have attained rating on the college honor roll for the previous year. For the benefit of the college, the group conducts a sale of uniforms worn by all students in Home Economics each term.

"The interests of the home and the homemaker" are the interests of the Home Economics Club. With a membership close to 350, representing the whole division of Home Economics, the Home Economics Club pursues a wide range of activities, including a radioprogram, sending speakers to high schools, exploring vocations in Home Economics, managing the gift shop and show-cases in the Home Economics building, regular contributions to the State News and maintenance of foreign scholarships.

The weekly 15 minute radio program which provides talks on home arrangement, recipes, clothing, and similar subjects, is enjoying an ever-increasing response.

Juniors and seniors are organized according to majors and hear speakers from the vocation in which they are interested. The club is a professional group and sponsors no social activities. It is affiliated with the Michigan and the American Home Economics Association. All women enrolled for the four-year Home Economics course are eligible for membership.

AMERICAN

In 1927 a Junior Section of the American Veterinary Medical Association was founded at Michigan State College. The only restriction for membership has been that the applicant must be an undergraduate student in Veterinary Medicine. As a part of the national A.V.M.A., the undergraduate member automatically becomes eligible to senior membership in the national association upon graduation.

Besides preparing the undergraduate for this step, the Junior section endeavors to offer an opportunity for closer, more friendly, student-student and student-faculty relationships. Emphasis is placed, too, on a broad educational program including lectures by many men prominent in veterinary fields.

Annual social highlight of the pre-medical division, the Medicine Ball, is also Junior A.V.M.A. sponsored.

Xi Sigma Pi, national scholastic honorary fraternity for forestry students, was founded on the campus of Washington University in 1908. The Beta Chapter was established in our college in the year 1916, which gives it the distinction of being the second chapter in the United States. The promotion of high scholarship and professional standards are the two main purposes of this group. Membership requirements are on the basis of high scholastic average and promise of professional success. During the past year the organization has been the sponsor of a series of lectures concerning forestry and its related fields. Its members also maintain an active interest in the Forestry club.

HOMINES LEGIS

An organization unique in the purpose of furthering professional contacts for its members is Homines Legis, the Police Administration honorary. The organization is a local fraternity with membership limited to those students with sophomore status and a 1.2 average. Any member is eligible for election to office if he is not serving his term in the Police barracks.

The organization was founded by the first Police Administration class in 1933. To promote interest in Police Administration is the chief goal of the group. Members meet every other Thursday to foster fellowship, further cooperation and to give students an opportunity to meet men who are successful in their profession. After the speeches students have a chance to ask questions and to meet the speaker. Many members have secured positions through these contacts.

Trips to various state and city police posts enable members to see a practical application of facts studied in class rooms.

The purpose of Forestry Club is to bring students and faculty together and acquaint students with the work which is done in the forestry department. The club is a social organization and any student of any class in agriculture is eligible for membership.

The group meets every other week in the forestry cabin which was built by the students in 1935. Speakers for these meetings are usually from the conservation department or connected in some way with forestation.

Cabinet officers of the club are in charge of any activity that goes on in the forestry division.

Delta chapter of Pi Alpha Xi, national floriculture honorary, was founded in 1928 for men students majoring in floriculture who are outstanding in that field. The purpose of the fraternity is to promote higher scholarship among its members, and to establish cordial relations between floriculture students, educators, and professional florists.

At an annual banquet held the first week of winter term, a judging team was selected to attend the national flower show in Houston, Texas, following a yearly practice.

Speakers from the faculty and horticulture profession speak informally on subjects related to this field at regular meetings. Members are also urged to present their experiences in floriculture to the group.

HORTICULTURE CLUB

The Horticulture Club was established here as a local organization in the early nineteen-hundreds with the purpose of creating a closer relationship between the students of horticulture and those assisting them in their studies. Membership is open to anyone on the campus interested in this science.

Activities of this organization include regular meetings at which practicing horticulturalists and instructors in that science informally present subjects related to this field and informal discussions are held in an attempt to bring about a greater appreciation of the practical application of the principles that they have learned in the laboratory and class rooms.

Organized in 1923, Tau Sigma attempts to create a better understanding and relationship between the Liberal Arts and Applied Science Divisions.

The entrance requirement is that an individual be in the upper two percent of the junior class. Outside activity is not required.

Tangible evidence of the honorary's endeavor is illustrated in the pamphlet "Study Habits" which is written and edited by its members as an effort to produce better scholastic grades in the two divisions. Closely correlated to this is the awarding of prizes to the two sophomores of each division who had the best scholastic rating in their freshman year.

SIGMA EPSILON

Sigma Epsilon was organized in the fall term of 1930 as a local fraternity for students majoring in Business Administration and Economics in the division of Liberal Arts. In January, 1931, the organization became an honorary. Candidates for membership must be juniors or seniors who have an all-college scholastic average of 1.5 and an average in Economics courses of 1.75. Optional membership consists of graduate students and instructors in the departments of Business Administration and Economics.

To stimulate and maintain a friendly relationship among its student and faculty members is the purpose of the fraternity. This purpose is made effective by devoting its meetings to social activities and discussion of causes and effects of current business and economic developments. From time to time representative speakers from the world of business and public service are invited to present such developments and problems to the group and occasionally open showings of industrial films are held.

La Cofradia, local Spanish honorary, was formed to allow those students who have proved their interest in the Spanish language by showing excellent scholarship to assemble and speak and hear the Spanish language in a more informal way than is possible in the classroom. Further, the club tries to acquaint its members with Spanish customs, ways of living, literature and history. Lectures are given for the organization by students and faculty who have traveled and studied in Spanish speaking countries.

Each year La Cofradia sponsors a radio program in cooperation with other language organizations.

Requirements for membership are a B average or better in Spanish and not less than a C average in other studies.

Sigma Gamma Upsilon Fraternity is an honorary society for the purpose of bringing about more interest in the hotel administration course, and to promote a better feeling between students and hotel men. Speakers chosen from successful hotel men, advise members how to best prepare themselves for their work, and explain some of the problems that will confront the students upon graduation.

A student who is outstanding in scholarship and who has had actual hotel experience may be elected to membership in Sigma Gamma Upsilon. Business meetings are held regularly during the school year and activities include a trip to the Mid-West Hotel Show in Chicago each winter.

Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, is an organization of former Boy Scouts dedicated to service to the student body, the faculty and the college and community. Membership in the organization is open to any college student who is in accord with the ideals of clean living and service to the community as taught by the B. S. A.

The fraternity does everything in its power to render service to the college. A. P. O. sponsors the interfraternity sing, the ice revue and winter carnival, gives a dance at homecoming and holds an Eagle scout conference each year. Members also handle the housing and information booth during Farmers' Week and are assistants to the deans during orientation week. A weekly radio program serves as a band to those interested in scouting.

Founded here in 1939, Sigma Alpha Beta is a local honorary organization whose purpose is to further the study of bacteriology and to create and develop interest in the subject among the students. Meetings are of the discussion type and usually feature talks by men connected with educational and industrial bacteriology.

Qualifications for admittance into the organization include writing a passing entrance examination, good scholastic standing, and a sound general knowledge in bacteriology. The organization differs from other honorary societies in that it limits its activities to bacteriology and related sciences.

Crowning achievement for the Dairy Products Judging Team came when they won the grand trophy prize at the Eastern Intercollegiate Dairy Products Judging Contest. This event was held in Springfield, Massachusetts, on September 20th. It consisted of judging and scoring samples of butter, cheese, milk and ice cream, and not only did the M. S. C. team take the sweepstakes prize, but also won high individual honors.

Animal Husbandry Judging team is chosen from the most expert members of a regular course in judging. The team practices daily in preparation for trips which takes them to important breeding establishments throughout the state or to judging contests. Practice meets are held periodically with other collegiate teams and the squad competes in most of the larger stock judging contests, including the International Stock Show at Chicago.

Because of two important judging events being held at the same time in widely separated spots, there were two dairy cattle judging teams this year. One team, coached by Mr. Horwood, attended the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield, Massachusetts, the other team headed by Mr. Scheidenhelm competed in the Waterloo Dairy Congress, Waterloo, Iowa. Both groups, sponsored by the Dairy Club, more than repaid the faith placed in them by their fine showings.

Members of the Farm Crops Judging Team compete in two important events, The National Intercollegiate Crops Judging Contest at Kansas City and the International Crops Contest at Chicago. Under the sponsorship of the Agronomy Club, the team practices daily in the three phases of judging: grain grading, seed identification, and grain judging.

COLONEL GRIFFITH

Colonel F. D. Griffith, Jr., United States Cavalry, is in his second year as Professor of Military Science and Tactics here at Michigan State.

NORMAN HENDERSON

MILITARY

Purpose of the R. O. T. C. is to aid in preparing a well-trained and organized Reserve to defend this country in time of need. Two years military training is required for all male students at Michigan State college, as at other land grant colleges. Those who desire and can pass the necessary physical and scholarship requirements are admitted as advanced officers for the remainder of their college career.

Training program for advanced students consists of class instruction and maneuvers which counts as college credit as does training in the basic divisions. Also each officer must attend six-weeks summer training camp, customarily between his junior and senior year.

Divisions now represented in the department are Cavalry, Coast Artillery, Field Artillery and Infantry, thus giving the student a wide range in his choice of instruction.

Official organ of those enrolled in the R. O. T. C. is the Officers club, whose members include all advanced officers. This club serves as a unifying body for military students and carries out all necessary business in this regard.

CAVALRY

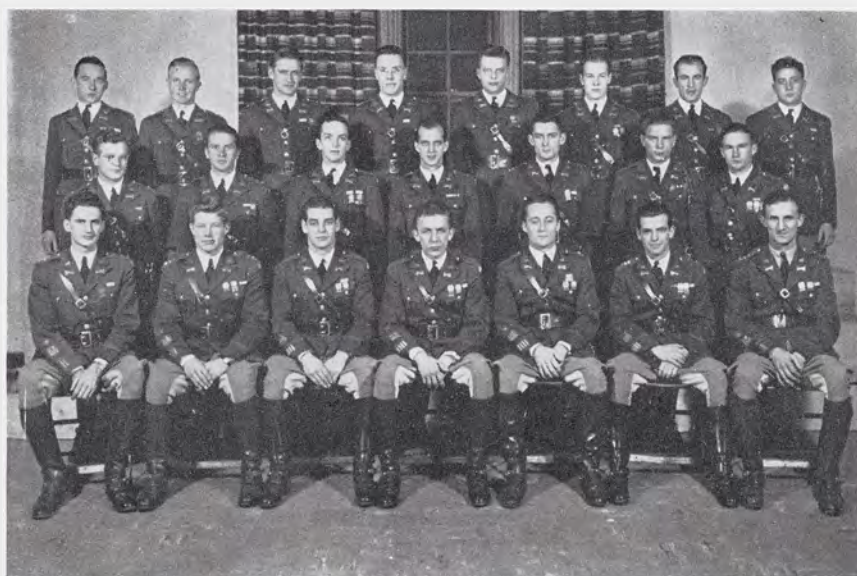

Instruction in the Cavalry unit covers principles of mobility, surprise and fire power as applied to present day conditions of warfare. This year, with an increase in enrollment, there were approximately eighty horses and equipment at the disposal of the unit, with a total value of approximately $15,000, a considerable increase over last year.

The Cavalry is the smallest of the four divisions, consisting of 410 basic students and 60 advanced officers. Work in the Cavalry unit leads to a commission in the Cavalry reserve.

COAST ARTILLERY

Second largest in size, the Coast Artillery unit numbers 640 basic students and 79 advanced officers. Instruction covers the control and operation of anti-aircraft and coastal defense guns.

To offer a more complete course, a new anti-aircraft gun, the latest of its type, was added this year to the list of special equipment. This gun is equipped with a continuous electrically operated data computer and transmitter. Four years work in the unit leads to a commission in the Coast Artillery reserve.

PERSHING RIFLES

Taking their name from the commanding officer of the American Expeditionary force during World War I, Company D, third regiment of Pershing rifles was organized in 1934 as an honorary organization for basic military students. The unit is almost entirely a drill organization, striving for perfection in drill tactics and manual of arms.

The unit each year awards bronze medals to the first year basic student considered outstanding in each of the R. O. T. C. corps. Socially it sponsors meetings, smokers and an informal dance. It also sends a drill team to an intercollegiate drill meet.

Mortar and Ball strives at all times to instill in the hearts of all deep-thinking college men the need of the United States for the Officers Reserve Corps, the Reserve Officers Training Corps and the National Defense Act, thereby creating in these men a desire to become Reserve Officers. It was founded for the purpose of encouraging, developing and preserving the highest ideals of the military profession, promoting American citizenship and fostering a closer and more efficient relationship between the men in the service.

The organization is a National Coast Artillery honorary whose members are selected from those men who have proved themselves outstanding in the corps, and whose qualifications include a high degree of leadership, honesty and friendliness in both military and college work. Mortar and Ball was founded at the University of Minnesota in 1920, and the local chapter, Battery E., First Regiment, was established in 1930.

SCABBARD AND BLADE

Scabbard and Blade, national military organization, is the only group which links all divisions of the R. O. T. C. into a single body. The Michigan State College chapter was chartered in 1914, and became known at the time as Company K of the First Regiment. Advanced students who have shown outstanding ability in military science and who have the required scholastic standing are eligible for membership.

The organization attempts to unite the military departments of American universities and colleges into a closer relationship, to spread intelligent information on the military requirements of our country, to preserve and develop the essential qualities of good and efficient officers, and to prepare the members to take a more active part and to have greater influence in the military affairs of their country. The foundation of Scabbard and Blade is the belief that military service is an obligation of citizenship and that the greater opportunities afforded college men for the study of military science places upon them certain responsibilities as citizens.

PISTOL TEAM

Telegraphic matches are the unusual feature in the Michigan State College Pistol Team schedule. The team shoots on the local range, then by telegraph reports its results simultaneously with other colleges throughout the nation. Last year the team won 13 out of 22 such meets, ranking fifth in the United States.

Awards to team members differ from those given for other sports in that the letter is mounted on a sheath, which in turn is mounted on the school sweater. With the exception that each member must be enrolled in R. O. T. C., eligibility rules are the same as for any other college sport.

The team, founded in 1935 by Major Stanford, is being coached by Captain C. E. Hixon of the field artillery.

The R. O. T. C. Rifle Team was organized to promote better marksmanship among individual members and to foster competition with the teams of other colleges. This year was the fourth time that the team has won the Sixth Corps Intercollegiate Trophy, never having placed lower than third in several years of competition. Among numerous other victories of the year was a triumph over the traditional rival, the University of Michigan.

kaleidoscopic view of State's Athletic Life.

DIRECTOR
RALPH YOUNG

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

Genial Ralph Young, rotund athletic director at Michigan State was caught exercising again. This time he was jumping at a conclusion—That Michigan State has one of the fastest growing and most complete athletic departments of any college in the country.

And perhaps he isn't far wrong for in his years at the college, he's seen the department grow until Spartan teams are considered formidable foes by any college in the country. For many years, Young and John Kobs handled the coaching themselves, but with the department's increase, others had to be added to take on additional duties. Now Young devotes the major part of his time to administering the department and delegates most of the coaching to others. However, he still is active around the track team.

During the last few years, Young has seen his dream of a life-time come true. First it was an increase in the stadium, then the new track plant, and finally to crown them all, the new $1,400,000 Jenison field house which gives state an athletic layout equal to any in America.

ASSISTANT ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

If variety is the spice of life, then L. L. Frimodig, assistant director of athletics, certainly should be tangy. For Frimodig has handled duties ranging from his present position to the equally important job being Lord Mayor of East Lansing.

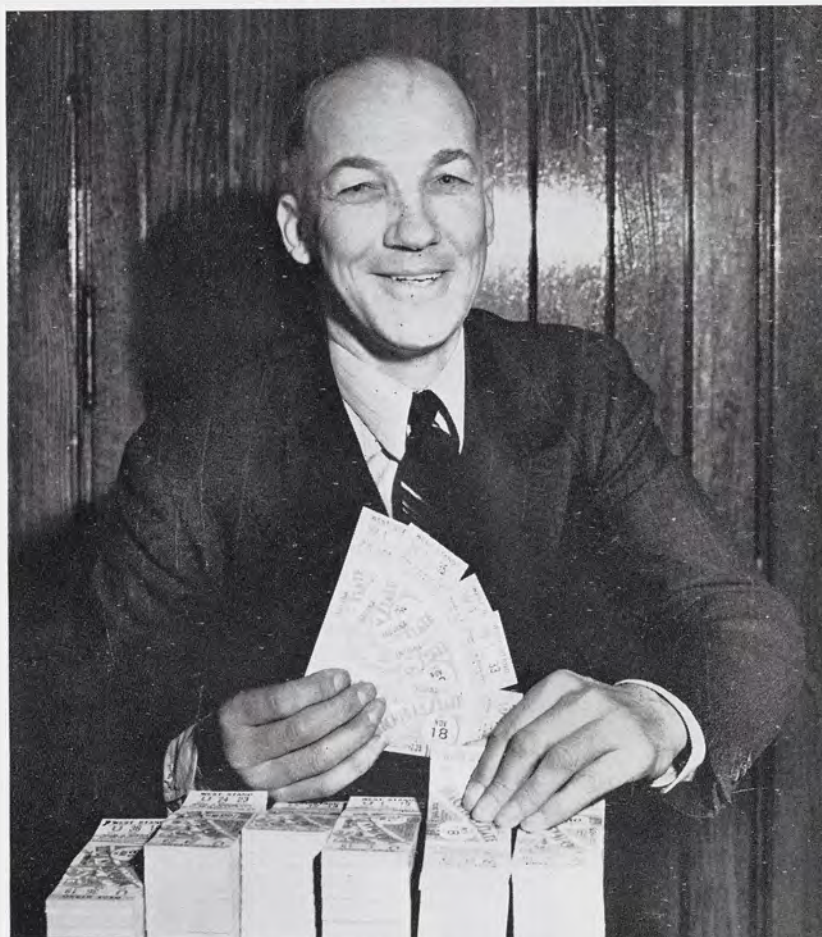

Frim also has another distinction—he's probably the most titled man at Michigan State. Right now, he can be addressed as assistant director of athletics, associate professor of physical education, director of intramural activities, or freshman baseball coach. what's more, they'll all be correct for Frim holds all these jobs. No wonder he stopped being mayor!

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR L. L. FRIMODIG

A graduate of the college, Frim has spent most of his life with the athletic department. After graduating from M. A. C. in 1917, one of the few Spartan nine-letter men, he was away only two years before he returned to take a minor berth in the athletic department. He's been with the department ever since.

If you'd like to know what the immortal George Gipp was like Frim can tell you. They're both from Calumet in the northern Michigan copper country. Frim thinks it too bad Gipp couldn't have come to State.

Frim also is known widely for another activity. If you want to buy athletic tickets, see him.

VARSITY CLUB

Unofficial policemen as well as official strongmen, the Varsity club was organized in 1915 to promote a high standard of athletics and fellowship among varsity letter winners. However, its voluntary enforcement of the "no smoking on campus" rule and its overseeing the tradition of the freshman "pot" at $.35 per head are better known functions.

Probably the club's most important service, however, lies in its regulation of the frosh-soph games each October. The organization serves as adviser to each class and acts as umpire to prevent, in so far as possible, blood-shed and mayhem among the participants. The club also grants an award to the senior member with the highest scholastic average during his years on campus.

COACH BACHMAN

Coach Charlie Bachman didn't have his most successful season last year, but true to his motto he's "looking ahead." With their ranks sadly weakened by graduation, Bachman had a task building up material from his inexperienced squad which didn't click until late in the season. But next year Bach hopes to have a team which will rank well up with his past squads which have won 42, tied 5, and lost 13 games in the seven years he's been at State.

With ideas of becoming a lawyer, Bach attended the Notre Dame law school, but after playing bang-up football for Knute Rockne, he decided to be a coach. Before becoming mentor at Michigan State, he coached at De Pauw, Kansas State, Northwestern, where he was known as the boy coach of the Big Ten, and at Florida.

But you should hear him as an after-dinner speaker!

ASSISTANT COACHES

Gordon Jake Dahlgren handles guards and centers. He was running mate to Spartan All-American Sid Wagner in 1935-36.

Joe Holsinger played at Kansas State, coached at Wisconsin. He's an excellent golfer.

Agony Al Agett works with kickers and passers. A scientist, he instructs in chemistry during the summer.

To Tom King, ex-Notre Dame end, goes much of the credit for State's fine lines. He's an insurance man on the side.

Four years ago, a young man came out of C.C.C. camp, determined to get an education.

When commencement exercises close this spring, Lyle "Rocky" Rockenbach will have achieved this goal he set for himself and incidentally, have won the coveted football honor, most valuable player award for 1939.

Short (5 feet, 9 inches), chunky (184 pounds), fast enough on interference to keep ahead of most ball carriers, smart enough to diagnose opponents' plays and fearless enough to stop them, Rocky is an ideal guard. Besides all this, he's a spark-plug on the field, always fighting, always leading ahead. His three varsity football letters and his freshman numerals prove his merit. In addition to his football work, Rockenbach found time to be a good forestry student and president of the varsity club.

When Rocky enrolled at State, he was determined to become just about the best forester this college ever had. He might have succeeded had it not been for football, but after three years' competition, he's decided to take up coaching. Rocky's playing excited more than usual interest from professionals with scouts from Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago keeping an eye on him. So far, however, Rocky hasn't given them much encouragement.

"This past football season was not the most successful one that I have engaged in, but strangely enough, it was by far the most interesting."

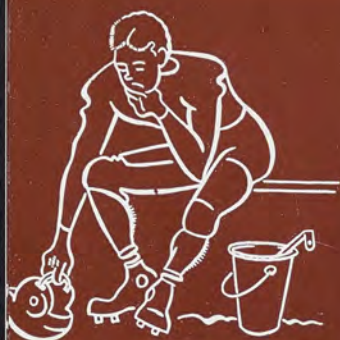

The speaker, Charles W. Bachman, was commenting on Michigan States 1940 football campaign shortly after the season ended. And to be sure, the coach's statement was just about as true as they come. Even Professor Quiz would have given Bachman one hundred points for this answer to the Question, "How do you compare the 1939 season with your other years at Michigan State?"

Seven may be a lucky number for some people, but when the grizzle-faced mentor started his seventh year at Michigan State, he knew it would take more than a charm to produce a winning team. An early season prediction by Bachman, who said the Spartans would probably drop four games, eventually became a reality. The 1939 football edition of the State won four games, lost four and tied one in the school's most grueling gridiron program.

CO-CAPTAINS

Some people like to sing before breakfast, but if you ask Mike Kinek, co-captain of the football squad, what he does, you'll be surprised to learn that he toots his trumpet.

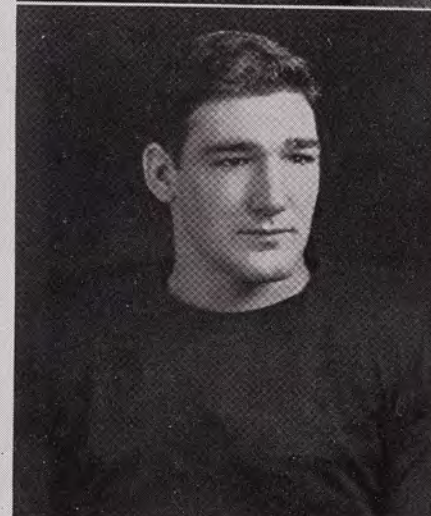

Besides being an asset at the right end post of Michigan State's forward wall, Kinek is also a very accomplished trumpet player.

Once Mike was offered the opportunity to tour Europe with a national student band, but he declined the offer so he could complete his education without any interruptions.

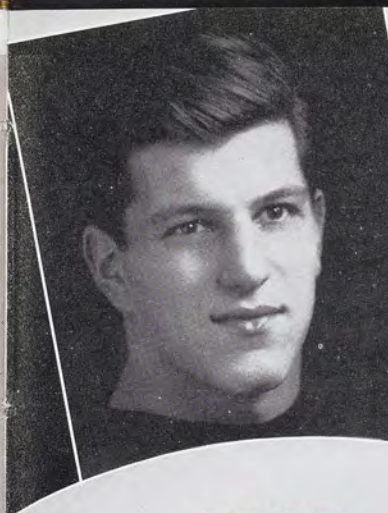

Kinek was a regular in his sophomore year. His well-built frame, weighing 193 pounds and standing an even 6 feet, left a deep impression on Charley Bachman the first time he saw the big flanker. Mike got his start in high school at Whiting, Indiana, when his four sisters made him get out and learn to play football. Since then, he developed into one of the most effective blockers in State gridiron history. Kinek was also a better than average pass receiver.

"Rocky" starred in a fast-moving backfield while playing for the Crystal Lake, Illinois, high school under the tutelage of Coach Owen E. Metcalf. At the suggestion of James Van Zyl, a former Spartan star, he entered State in '36 and became a guard because of his speed and aggressiveness. Given an honorable mention by the Associated Press for his all-around ability this past season, "Big Rock" will be sorely missed when Michigan State gridgers step out to face the opposition next fall.

As sophomores gained experience and were able to take their places in the regular lineup, the team showed a gradual improvement—an improvement that should continue in 1940. There were a few minor relapses, but on the whole, the squad displayed twice as much flash and form in its final games as it did early in the season. That is what made the season interesting for Bachman.

Opening for the fourth straight year against Wayne University, at Macklin field, Michigan State found the Tartars a more stubborn foe than anticipated. The score was still 0-0 and the clock was ticking away the last ten minutes of the fourth quarter.

After Bruce Blackburn had been thrown back to the 20 yard line on an attempt end-around play, sophomore Buck Crosthwaite took over. On third down he rifled a looping pass into the corner of the field. The crowd of 23,000 largest ever to see a football game here, watched Bill Kennedy, another sophomore back, take the pass and step over the goal line.

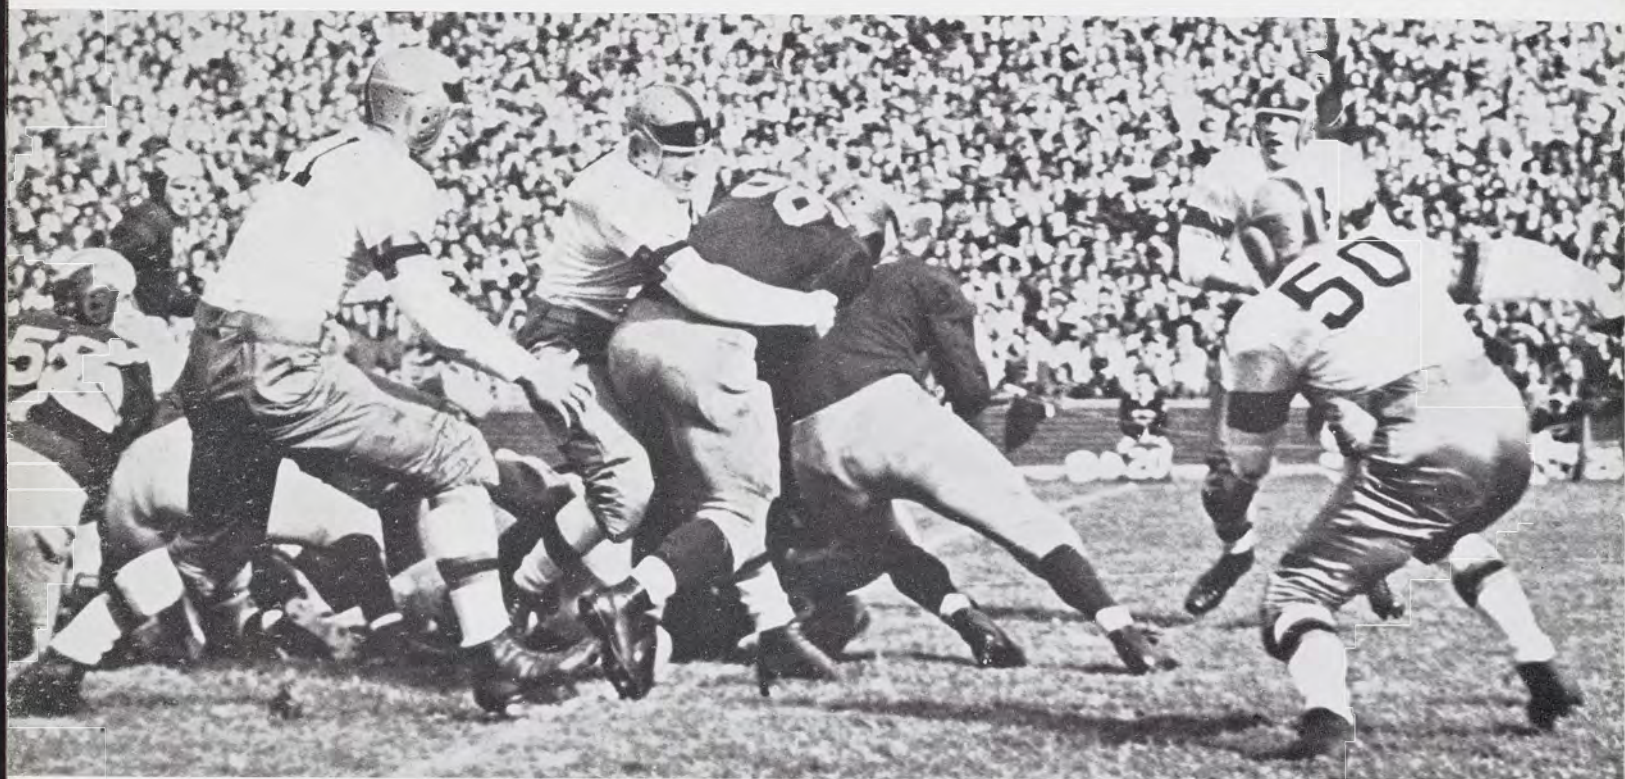

Of course the Michigan game is the biggest event of the athletic year. These photos show the State team dragging down Wolverine back-field men in the second half. State wore white jerseys to stand out against the Michigan blue. Below is Wy Davis trying to get through tackle . . . it looks like he is surrounded by opposing linemen and half the other backfield.

Lyle Rockenbach, brilliant Spartan guard, added the extra point. In the minutes that followed, a safety and one more touchdown were added. Bill Batchelor, State center, threw Bob Luby behind the goal for the safety and Rockenbach ended the late spree by intercepting Joe Mohr's pass on the 11 yard line and sprinting across the goal.—Michigan State 16; Wayne 0.

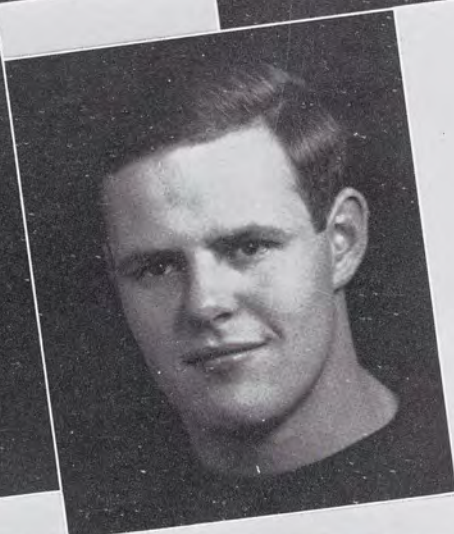

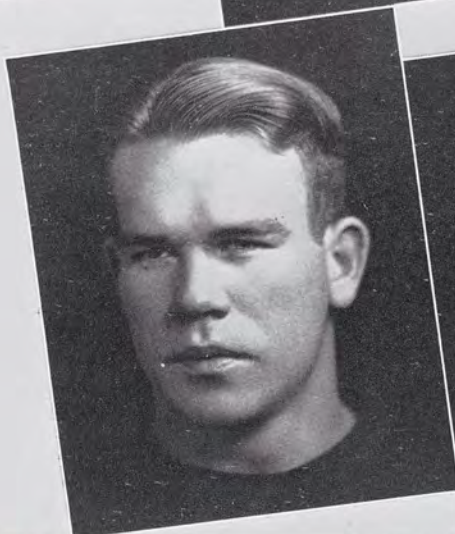

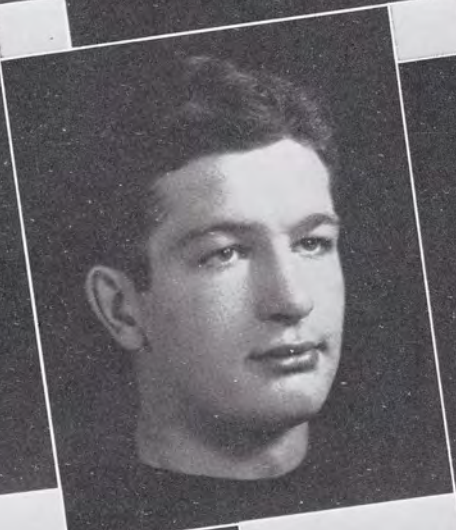

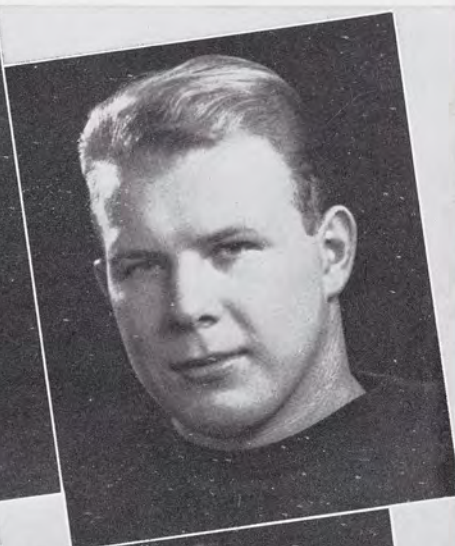

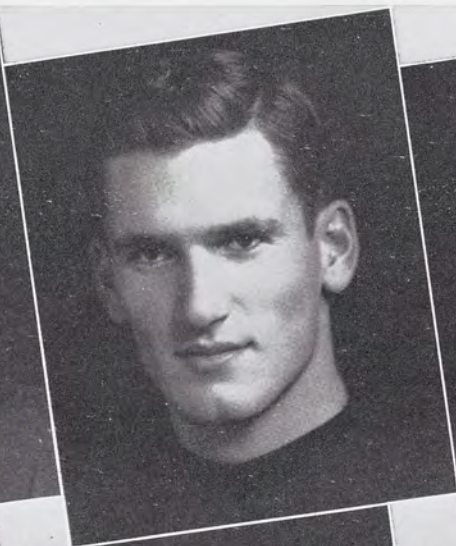

The following week a horde of 68,000 spectators turned out at Ann Arbor to witness the battle of battles, between Michigan and State. All during the one sided first half, State was pushed around. Two minutes after the opening kickoff, the Wolverines marched from their 35 yard line to State's 3. Then Paul Kromer whizzed around end to score.

On the first play of the second period, Tom Harmon crashed over from the 2 yard line for the second touchdown. And twice in the second quarter, once from the 5 yard line and again from the 4, Harmon passed to Forrest Evashevski for touchdowns.

And then it happened. Starting the second half, Michigan State began moving faster than a prairie fire. Dave Nelson, Michigan quarterback, took the ball from center and faded back for a surprise pass, but it wasn't a surprise to Bill Batchelor, alert State center, for he whizzed up to grab the ball on Michigan's 23. There was no stopping "Wild Willyum" who smelled the touchdown dirt.

Boom! Rah! State! The kick-off, signalling the start of another game . . . Wy Davis (middle picture) getting under way, pursued by Indiana's huge negro end, Harris. Paul Griffeth gets a worm's eye view of the play . . . A medal should be given the unfortunate lad who ends up at the bottom of this pile-up.

Pre-game warmup and last minute instructions to the starting line-up by Coach Bachman . . . clarifying a decision: two "refs" inform the opponent of an alternative, much to the apparent disgust of Wyman Davis . . . "Hey, Bruck! Wait for me!" says "Howie" Pound (No. 32), as Les prepares to plunge through the opposition.

In the fourth quarter with the ball on the Spartan's 35, Kennedy faded back and shot a pass to his left. Wyman Davis snagged the ball and was on his way with the fleet Harmon and Kromer losing ground as he lengthened his strides. The damage had been done, however, and Bachman's boys had to take it on the chin for the second straight year from the Wolves.—Michigan 26, Michigan State 13.

Then came the high cry of the season on the next Saturday when State encountered Marquette. It was a long cry, a hard cry, and a mournful cry, but eventually the Spartans dried their tears and went on toward bigger and better things. It all happened late in the fourth quarter when Marquette cashed in on a dusty clause from the rule book.

With the score tied, 14-14, Wyman Davis was called on to punt from his goal line. Davis lifted a 30-yard kick, and Batchelor, racing down under it, raised his arms as if to catch it. He withdrew his arms as the ball dropped, but field judge Roy Knipschild ruled that he had interfered with Marquette's opportunity to make a fair catch. Given the option of putting the ball into play either at the scrimmage line or by a free kick with the State team lined up at least 15 yards away, the Hilltoppers selected the latter choice. The winning margin followed when Robert Kemnitz' free kick from the 15-yard line was good.—Marquette 17, Michigan State 14.

The next week saw an injury-riddled squad drop State's third straight contest to Purdue at Lafayette, Indiana. Inexperience on pass defense played an important part in this setback as the Boilermaker's slippery end, Dave Rankin, made several circus catches. The big fast Purdue team waited until the second half to do their scoring, but when it came, it was disastrous to the Spartan cause.—Purdue 20, Michigan State 7.

It only took Wy Davis about 10 seconds to zig-zag 23 yards to Illinois Wesleyan's goal line with the Titans leading 7-6, but the most frightening part of his feat to Spartan fans was that only 36 seconds remained in the game. It was this dash that saved State from an ignominious defeat by an underdog foe.—Michigan State 13, Illinois Wesleyan 7. Badly outplayed in the first half, at the end of which they trailed 3-0, Michigan State's gridders came back like the Spartans of old to score two touchdowns and a victory over Syracuse. Wy Davis scored one touchdown on a short pass from Ed Pearce and threw a 35-yard aerial to Bruce Blackburn for the other.—Michigan State 14, Syracuse 3.

The following week State went on a long trip to San Francisco to face Santa Clara. Hopes were high that the Spartans would revenge a 7-6 decision from the previous year, but pass catching played a greater part than hopes in this game. Bill Anahu, Bronco end, gathered in a long pass early in the contest for the only score.—Santa Clara 6, Michigan State 0.

A large Homecoming crowd saw one of the best games of the year played against Indiana the following Saturday. For four periods they watched the State attack click with finesse but score only one touchdown when Wy Davis cut over right tackle from the 8-yard line. The Hoosiers deadlocked the score in the second half when Joe Tofil cracked over from the 1-yard stripe.—Michigan State 7, Indiana 7.

Then came the year's most pleasing exhibition for Bachman when the Spartans wound up their schedule with Temple. It was in this game that sophomore Mike Schelb gained 180 yards, more than any other back had gained all season. Jack Amon tallied the first touchdown from the four yard line in the opening period, and Wyman Davis scooted 19 yards for another score in the third quarter. Les Bruckner and Bob Sherman booted a field goal apiece.—Michigan State 18, Temple 7.

BENJAMIN VAN ALSTYNE

Basketball Coach

Since his arrival at State in 1926, the Michigan State basketballers have acquired a formidable, nation-wide reputation under the careful guidance of Coach Ben Van Alstyne. "Van" has abandoned his old style of play and inaugurated a modified "fast break" which, aided by the lucky, little red lantern, has spelled the downfall of some of the country's strongest teams. Coach Van Alstyne has felt the sting of injuries to several members of the squad at various times of the year; but, even so, he manages to place a creditable quintet upon the floor on all occasions.

Following dictates of past custom, Spartan basketballers gathered together after the final game of the season to elect honorary team captains for the year.

When the final choice was announced, a pair of the long, lanky boys were wearing the laurel crowns. Marty Hutt, cagey cager from New York State and Max Dalrymple, Port Huron's contribution to State hardwoods were the ones chosen as co-captains.

Both stars in their own right, Marty and Max were never a pair to forsake the team for individual glory. If the gang needed a point to put them over the top, and the other boys were having an off night, it was Hutt, the Calm, who swished the nets with a one-handed pitch or an arching "long tom." If the rest of the team temporarily lost sight of the hoop, Lightning Max took things in his own hands for a few minutes to dump in a couple of tricky dog-shots.

Last season marked three years of consecutive service under Van Alstyne for both men. "Van" will find it difficult to uncover replacements of the high calibre of these two Spartan lads.

When Spartan hardwood heros tucked Temple University in the victory bag 44 to 28 to wind up a tough 1939-40 season and took a look at the record book they found themselves sitting on top of a .700 season average with 14 victories and 6 defeats.

Boasting the best all-around cage squad in recent State history led by diminutive Chester Aubuchon, called by many the outstanding collegiate cager in the country this year, and with Marty Hutt, Max Hindman, Bob Phillips, Joe Gerard and Max Dalrymple doing a top-flight supporting job Head Coach Ben VanAlstyne started off a heart breaking schedule against Kalamazoo, December 4.

The boys looked dull polishing off the Hornets 42-22 and didn't recover before meeting the Wolverines of Ann Arbor the following Saturday. But they came back against Washington State to show joy at the end of final week in what was probably the last game the Spartans will play in the Vocational Fieldhouse to trounce a highly touted western five.

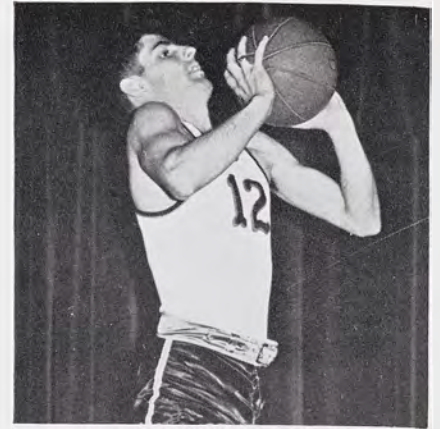

A long vacation swing on the far side of the Rockies saw the Van men nudge over Creighton twice, drop a thriller to California, a second to Oregon State and then come back to beat the same team the next night and end up the long swing by pushing Loyola around to the tune of 30 to 22.

Back at home and ready for another term the boys finally got into the new Jenison Fieldhouse and to show their appreciation sent a great Tennessee five back to the southlands shaking sad heads over a 29 to 20 defeat.

The Syracuse Orange was next to fall to the Spartan crusher and bowed out on the short end 31 to 29. Panting and breathless from nine games in three weeks, the boys took a week's breather and then dropped an over-rated Marquette gang 48 to 19, only to fall to the Michigan Wolves the same week in a hair-raiser that saw State lose out in the last few minutes of play.

Second long trip of the season started the next week and State's train-weary cagers fell victim to Clair Bee's Long Island outfit 34 to 25 and then dropped a yet-disputed last minute thriller to Temple 40 to 42. Bouncing back to trip Baltimore 39 to 28 Spartans came home still ugly over the Temple dispute and made a highly touted Wisconsin team suffer a one-sided loss.

The mood hung on and Wayne fell next 46 to 29 but a ten-day rest and an air-plane trip to Marquette softened Spartan hearts and the Hilltoppers got off easy with a mere 21 to 17 drubbing.

Wiry "Chet" Aubuchon spots a left-hander with the aid of Bob Morris while Mel Peterson (No. 9) looks on.

Voluntarily adopted as a good-luck charm for the State cagers, by its discoverer, Manager MacDougall, this ancient red lantern has smoked its way into the hearts of the entire team and every Spartan fan—thereby earning itself a permanent place on the varsity players' bench.

Joe Gerard, the "Hoosier Hurricane," flipping in another counter.

Revenge for the earlier questionable Temple victory on the eastern trip rang up sweetly to the tune of State 44—Temple 28 as Van's boys ran off the neatest game of the season in the finale March 1.

All in all the season can be looked back on with malice towards none but Temple and a feeling of a job well done. A hectic schedule with tough teams bunched together and long breathers combined to keep Spartan cagers breathless or lackadaisical and Van Alstyne scratching his head. But a .700 average looks good in anyone's league and with a majority of letter winners returning next year prospects for 1940-41 look sweet indeed.

Besides a season of cracker-jack basketball the Van men had a bit of extra fun spread along the way here and there. It was while on the western vacation trip that student manager Everett MacDougall pulled a smoky, red kerosene lantern off some by-road detour sign so passing motorists wouldn't run over it and swore it was the good luck charm Spartan cagers needed.

And though it didn't look so good for a couple of games immediately afterwards, Mac alleviated suspicious glances by a mumbo-jumbo and polishing ritual that turned the trick and raised the lantern's value so high in players' eyes that all Van's protest of smoke-smell failed to dislodge the jinx-chaser from its bench position.

Then too, it's pretty well decided after that Marquette air jump that State basketballers will avoid traffic and mingle with the birds on most outstate trips hereafter.

The air route saves time and money for students, costs little more to the college and keeps players in better mental condition than long, overnight train hops that tell plenty on an opponent's floor the night of the game.

Two-to-one says it's "Aubie" baffling four-fifths of the Marquette team in the game which had the Milwaukee fans shaking their heads in disbelief at the final score of State 47, Marquette 19.

COACH JOHN KOBBS

John H. Kobs, head baseball coach at Michigan State College, has developed many teams at State. This year, hampered by the loss of several regulars through graduation and other circumstances, and being held up in practice by unfavorable weather, "Jawin' John" has surmounted these difficulties by putting on the field a baseball team that represents the typical fighting of Spartan athletic teams.

Kobs, besides coaching baseball, coaches the freshman football teams. An athlete in his own right, John Kobs was an eleven letter man.

When it comes to coaching, as his teams' records will indicate, he has contributed much toward the athletic prestige that Michigan State enjoys throughout the nation.

BASEBALL

The 1939 Michigan State Baseball team encountered a difficult schedule for the season, but acquitted itself well by rolling up 13 wins while being charged with 10 defeats, many of the latter by one-run margins.

Suffering the loss of Glen Rankin, ace pitcher, to the ranks of professional baseball, Coach Kobs was none too cheerful at the outset of the season. However, the pitching talent developed satisfactorily and, backed by State's usual fine fielding, the team fared remarkably well.

State opened its baseball season during spring vacation with its annual invasion of the South. Having had little outdoor practice, Spartan batters experienced much difficulty against the University of Georgia pitcher; and, although George Munroe pitched a good game, Georgia won, 3-2, in a 10 inning game. The following day, Michigan State won from the same team, 5-4. Duncan, a sophomore infielder, looked very good.

The first game with South Carolina was rained out, but State took the second, 10-5, Bob Hall pitching. Then reaction set in, and Duke shut State out, 3-0. Eric Tipton, All-American football player, made several sensational catches in the outfield. Wake Forest allowed State three hits while winning, 1-0. Angered by two consecutive shut-outs, the boys from the North beat West Virginia twice, 7-5 and 6-4. On this southern excursion, the team averaged .245 in batting and fielded .935. The up-and-coming sophomore, Norm Duncan, led the batters with an average of .418.

Dem Hall is the site of informal practice when rain and snow make outdoor work-outs impossible.

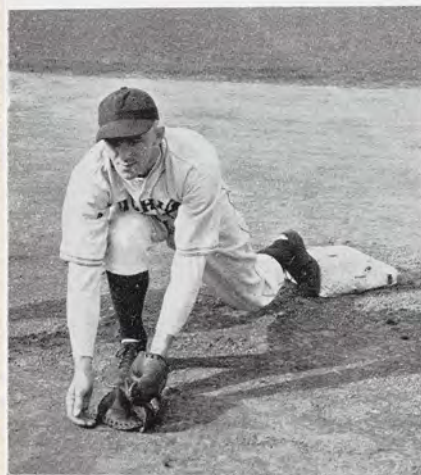

Co-captain Sam Nuznov gets chummy with a member of State's bitterest rival, Michigan.

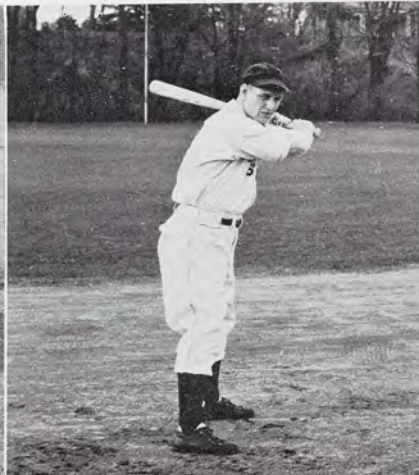

Gymnastics? No! Members of the State Frosh squad limbering up before settling down for serious practice.

After limbering up against the southern teams, the Spartan team set itself for its regular schedule, which promised to be anything but easy. Such fears were realized; after being rained out of two games with Ohio State, the Spartans lost when Michigan Normal came from behind to win, 13-11, in a game which featured a home run by George Owens in the fruitful fifth inning in which the Staters scored six runs.

Michigan was able to garner 12 hits from Derrickson's pitching, but could not bunch them. State registered a 6-3 victory. This game was an exhibition of smart fielding and base running on the part of our players. In a return engagement, Michigan, led by Pink and Peckinpaugh, who collected four hits apiece, whipped State, 13-5. A disastrous seven-run first inning for Michigan gave them a winning margin which they never relinquished.

An exhibition match with the Jackson Prison team should be mentioned. Sam Nuznov hit a homerun that is said to be the longest hit ever seen at that field. Owen had a perfect day at bat, four hits for four turns at the plate.

The Kobsmen came to life against Ohio Wesleyan, laying down a barrage of nineteen hits and winning, 17-7. Diebold and Dahlstrom hit safely three times apiece.

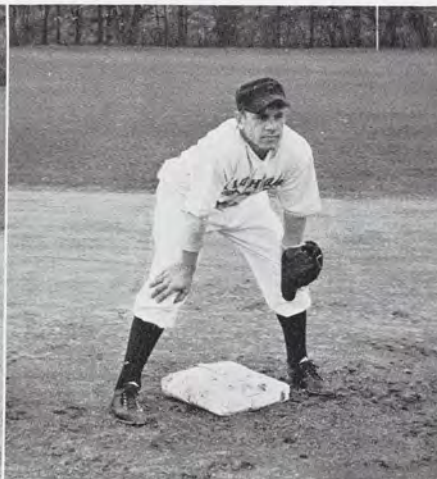

Notre Dame was another victim of State's batting power. In this game, the lads only got eighteen hits. Owen hit a homer and two singles; fielded brilliantly. Dahlstrom, Casey Klewicki and George Stark had three hits each. Paul Derrickson gave up 12 hits again, but he tightened in the clinches, preventing Notre Dame from scoring profusely. Game score was 14-9.

Indiana's pitcher, Wilshire, was one of the best pitchers to face State for he held Spartan batters to four hits, including two of the scratch variety. Miller pitched very well for State, although he was a trifle wild the first inning. Poor fielding in the ninth inning let in four runs to run up a 7-0 score in Indiana's favor.

Ohio University eked out an 8-7 victory over State in an eleven inning game. Occasional lapses in the Spartan's defense, coupled with the ability of Ohio players to cash in on breaks, decided the final outcome of a hard-fought contest. When all seemed lost, Al Diebold, the Spartan sparkplug, tied things up in the ninth only to see Ohio pull the game out of the fire in the eleventh inning. Monroe pitched nine innings and Hall finished the game.

A capacity crowd, perfect weather and the pitcher caught in the act of serving a State batter part of his "stuff."

Break it up, fellows, the "ump" won't give in—he looks pretty tough, anyhow.

Safe by a mile! Well—there's no harm in trying.

Following these two defeats, the Spartan team evidently decided to dispense with losing games for a while, and tromped on Hillsdale, 7-4. Art Libbers, after a shaky start, settled down and pitched the whole nine innings, allowing nine scattered hits. Jakubowski, a sophomore, broke into the lineup and showed up well in the disputed right field position.

Minnesota then appeared on State's schedule, but the Kobsmen disregarded the reputation associated with Big Ten schools and beat them, 8-3. Paul Derrickson, pitcher, allowed the football kings 10 hits; but he gave these up when the bases were not occupied. Sam Nuznov, State's capable first baseman, helped his average by slamming out two triples.

Toledo University fell before the Spartan onslaught in a 5-0 shutout. Monroe worked a fine game giving three lone hits. Casey Klewicki supplied the fireworks by banging out a homer with two teammates on base.

Prosperity was too much for "our boys," they lost to Wisconsin, 7-5, partly through the completion of three State errors. To aid Wisconsin, Henricks, a pitcher, stepped into the batter's box in the role of pinch hitter and nonchalantly bagged himself a home-run with two on.

Michigan State had no trouble conquering Armour Tech by the score of 5-2, but Michigan Normal returned to dispose of the Spartan group, seven runs to one. State carved themselves exactly three hits in this game.

There is one unusual play that is seldom seen in baseball: Wisconsin at bat, no one out, and a man on first and second base; the batter hit a line drive to Duncan, who caught it on the fly at his feet; he then stepped on second and threw to first base to complete a triple play. The amazing possibility of this play was, that Duncan could have easily tagged the man running from first to second, thus enacting a triple play single-handed, had he wished.

Notre Dame again lost to State, 4-3. Monroe gave up nine hits, but, as usual, he was stingy with the hits at crucial stages, as can be seen by the fact that he struck out eight men.

Western State, a rival of long standing, came out of a very short game on the long end of a 2-1 tally. Michigan State players could get but four hits, while their opponents got eight hits, six of them in the first three innings. State retaliated in their last game of the season by downing Western State, 1-0, on a total of three hits. Western State was unable to score, although they hit twice as many times as the State lads.

COACH LAUREN P. BROWN

When soft-spoken Lauren Brown traded his running spikes for a stop-watch and took over Spartan distance runners a few years back it was a lucky day for those who like to travel on their own power.

For Brownie ran the hills and dales himself as a State student and he learned all the tricks of training and running so well that it was no problem to transfuse his knowledge to his charges.

A seemingly tedious taskmaster at times he knows all the answers and often his boys accuse him of having written the book. But everyone of them would go to bat for him at the drop of a hat and as for his success as a coach, well—take a look at the record.

TRACK

Faced with a suicide schedule in dual meet rivalries plus competition in the nation's bigger track meets, Michigan State's track team did not come through the 1939 season with too much success according to the victory ledger, but it did produce a pair of individual stars who have never been rivaled in their particular events in Spartan track history.

The tracksters faced seven dual meet foes, and bowed to five of them. However, those two victories over Notre Dame and Purdue, were much the sweeter for they were both upsets over highly-rated teams. The Spartans did continue their domination over intra-state rivals by taking the Michigan Intercollegiates and Michigan A. A. U. meets without much trouble. They were also a surprise fourth in the I. C. 4-A outdoor classic. In the Central Collegiate indoor and outdoor meets they placed fourth and fifth respectively.

What State lacked in all-around brilliance, it made up with the phenomenal performance of its two stars, sprinter E. Wilbur Greer and jumper Walt Arrington. Although hampered greatly by a leg injury in his final year, Co-Capt. Greer turned in 9.5 second 100-yard dash before his injury to gain the ranking as the nation's No. 1 sprinter of the year. Arrington, only a sophomore, cracked four varsity jumping records and stamped himself as one of the country's leading jumpers for the next two years.

Six new varsity records were established and one was tied during the season. Greer's 9.5 century constituted a new mark, while his 7.4 seconds time in running the 75-yard dash at the Illinois Relays not only cracked the varsity standard, but also tied the world's record for the distance.

Arrington's three new varsity records were: broad jump, 24 feet, 3¼ inches; high jump, 6 feet, 4½ inches; hop step and jump, 46 feet, 7½ inches. He also leaped 6 feet, 2¾ inches for a new indoor mark. Gayle Robinson tied the varsity indoor record in the 40-low hurdles in the other outstanding individual performance. A medley relay team of Don MacInnes, Barry Ryan, Ray Osborne, and Roy Fehr topped the best previous varsity time.

State started off its indoor season, which failed to produce a single victory, by bowing to Notre Dame, 65 to 30. The annual trip to Ann Arbor was an inglorious affair as State was given a 77 to 18 whipping. An injury-riddled squad dropped a 78 to 31 count to Marquette.

It remained for the first outdoor appearance of the year to provide what was probably the biggest single thrill of the year. Running in the colorful Texas Relays, Greer finished more than three yards in front of the best sprint field of the year to capture the 100-yard dash in 9.5 seconds, within one-tenth of a second of the world's record. Since this was his first test on outdoor cinders, Greer loomed as a certainty to at least tie the world's mark before the season finished.

However, the following week in the Kansas Relays he pulled a leg muscle at the finish of the century, and never fully recovered. In spite of the injury he limped across the line in second place. Arrington took a second in the broad jump, while the four mile relay team easily won first place.

J. SCALES

W. SCALES

L. BRUCKNER

The Spartan performers failed to turn in their best results in the Penn and Drake Relays, with Bremer's 190 foot javelin toss for third place in the former standing as the best mark.

The outdoor dual meet season got off to a rosy start as the Spartans upset Purdue, 76 to 54, before a home crowd. In this meet Arrington began his record-breaking spree by cracking both the broad and high jump marks for the first time. Greer was a surprise entry in the century, and hobbled in first. Other State winners were Bill Carpenter in the 220, Rudy Yovonovitz in the high hurdles, Dick Frey in the two-mile, Starr Keesler in the pole vault, Ernie Bremer in the javelin throw, and Les Bruckner in the discus.

Marquette followed up its decisive indoor victory by trouncing State 91 to 45, by Bremer turned in three blue ribbon performances to salvage some glory. The husky weight specialist copped first place in the shot put, discus throw, and javelin throw, and then added a third in the high jump.

R. FEHR

W. GREER

G. ROBINSON

Penn State won 11 out of 15 first places to topple State 74 to 57. Arrington broke his broad and high jump mark in this meet. The Spartans slammed that event. Frey in the two-mile and Ed Van Auken in the two-mile accounted for the other State firsts. Biggest thrill in this meet came in the 440-yard dash when Co-Capt. Bob Hills and MacInnes were both nipped by a Penn State right at the finish line of the quarter mile.

Surprise of the dual meet season was saved for the final meet against Notre Dame when the mile relay team of MacInnes, Fehr, Cooley and Hills won that final event to decide the outcome in State's favor, 70 to 61. It was in this meet that stocky little Greg Rice, the Irish captain, sped around the Spartan oval eight times to a new American two-mile record. His time was 9:06.4. Rice also won the mile run, and Faymonville, giant Notre Dame weight star, gave one of the best discus tossing exhibitions of the year in winning his event with a throw of just inches under 160 feet. Crippled Greer won the 100, Yovonovitz and Robinson scored one-two in both hurdles, while Arrington repeated his usual double victory.

E. LAUTENSCHLAGER

R. YOVONOVITZ

Bremer, Yovonovitz and Arrington were all double winners in the Michigan Intercollegiate. Eddie Lautenschlager, the former national interscholastic half-mile champion, made a great recovery of form to take his event.

In post season appearances State took a fourth in the I. C. 4-A. championships, and a fifth in the Central Collegiate. In the New York City classic Arrington won the high jump, Yovonovitz ran his best race to place third in the high hurdles, and Van Auker finished third in the two-mile. Greer made a valiant effort in the short sprint event, but his leg failed to hold up and he was forced out in the semi-finals. Bremer scored State's only first place in the Central Collegiate when he won the javelin throw.

CHEER LEADERS

State's 1940 cheerleading squad won unprecedented honors for the school when two of the members made All-American. Head cheerleader Sam Yeiter and Bud Fontana were picked by leading sports writers and Gamma Sigma, national honorary cheerleaders fraternity, from a crop of over 700 of the nation's best cheer leaders to be members of the All-American Cheerleaders' Team. This is the first time any man from this school has received the award, and having two out of a squad of eleven makes it even more distinctive.

Probable cause for this year's success was the enthusiasm shown by those trying to win berths on the squad. Twenty-five men report for practice in the fall, and of this number 16 made the grade as team members. This is twice as many as were ever on the squad in the past.

Top row—R. Hoerner, W. Zabriskie, A. Porter, H. Moore, J. Dodge, S. Yeiter
First row—D. Connell, L. Necci, J. Young, C. Marshall, B. Fontana, J. Harper, P. Althen, E. Guy, C. F. Marshall

Undoubtedly the next most important factor contributing to the boys' success was their hard work. During football season, which is the time the boys really show their wares, they practiced two hours a day, three days a week, to get the fine coordination necessary to get the crowd in a frenzy at the proper time.

Feature attractions of the football season was the 300 foot banner at the Wayne game, bearing the taunt, "Spartan Special Today—Wayneburgers with Tartar Sauce." This was the longest sign ever displayed in Macklin Stadium. In the annual clash with Marquette, the Golden Avalanche, Sam and the boys started things off with a bang by piling golden boxes high in the air in the center of the field and then sent them scattering with a smashing charge.

Success of the squad this year as in the past only serves to emphasize that good cheerleading, a combination of personality, physical fitness and hard work, is really an art and not just play.

CROSS COUNTRY

Faced with the task of rebuilding more than half of the team, cross country Coach Lauren P. Brown again brought Michigan State's harriers to the top of the national heap.

Sparked by the great galloping of Roy Fehr, the Spartans opened their home season with a 24-33 triumph over Penn State. Fehr again led the Green and White pack to a 26-29 win over a treacherous Pittsburgh layout.

Indiana, the stumbling block of many of Brownie's teams, handed State their only dual meet loss with a 23-32 decision. Fehr and Michigan State easily captured the Michigan Intercollegiate crowns, and a week later the Spartans captured their 7th straight Michigan A. A. U. title, but this time it was sturdy Ed Mills, the captain-elect for the 1940 team, who led the winners.

Once the ruler of the I. C. A. A. A., the Spartans for the second straight year placed second behind Manhattan in the New York city classic with 70 points. The Jaspers won with a low of 42.

But in the combined National Collegiate and Central Collegiate Conference extravaganza over the Red Cedar course, the Spartans led by the great come-back of Capt. Dick Frey nosed out Wisconsin by three points for their first national championship with 54 points. Indiana, the defending champs, were third with 84.

The Spartans diminutive captain, hindered for the most part of the season by a tendon injury, closed his hill and 'dale campaigning by reeling in his fourth straight All-College crown, to tie the record by another great Spartan mite, Coach Lauren P. Brown.

Jerry Page won the all-fresh run, and another promising yearling, lanky Bob Monroe, annexed the novice crown.

SWIMMING

Michigan State's 1940 swimming team may not be the best ever produced here but they did succeed in writing new varsity records into the books for seven out of the eight regular dual meet events in the last season before discontinuance of the gymnasium pool.

All in all the State tankers formed as potent an aggregation as Coach Russell "Jake" Daubert has had in a long time, winning seven victories out of nine meets with a squad composed of three veterans and the remainder, sophomores.

State's first test of the season was Ohio Wesleyan, who succumbed peaceably, 52-23. The next opponent, the Purdue Boilermakers, fell by a strikingly similar score of 52-23.

Sporting a record of two consecutive wins, the Spartans dropped a one-sider to Wayne, 56-19; but came back to swamp Toronto, 55-20.

After this successful encounter on foreign soil, State returned home to face Michigan and absorb the worst defeat a Spartan squad has ever been handed by one of Coach Matt Mann's teams, 70-14.

Victory in the final event assured State of a 44 to 31 triumph over Indiana. In Cleveland the tankers turned back Western Reserve, 52-23, and followed up by trimming Kenyon College, 45-30. State was at its best in its last meet of the season, drubbing University of Cincinnati, 58-15.

TENNIS

Michigan State net men ended the season above the 500 mark in percentages with ten victories and five defeats. Coached by C. D. Ball, they had a harder time with the weather than with many opponents.

Most unusual match of the season was a nine and a half hour marathon that the Spartans dropped to the University of Cincinnati by an 8-1 score. This contest, scheduled for the afternoon was rained out, but with a show of Spartan spirit, both teams went into action, not only against their opponents but also against the weather. Matches were played one at a time in Demonstration hall until the meet was finished late at night.

Toledo University offered little resistance as the Spartans won 9-0. Continuing in their march, State conquered the previously unbeaten Notre Dame squad 6-3. The Michigan State-Illinois meet left little for spectators to desire as the Spartans finally pulled away to win again by 6-3. Herman Struck, Michigan State Co-captain, displayed top form in this meet, especially in his doubles match.

Western State Teachers College from Kalamazoo, ancient Spartan foes, fell next victim to the State squad in a close 5-4 meet. Two long singles matched, Gibbs of State vs. Taylor and Rawitz of State vs. Sims, were highlights.

Two defeats at the hands of Michigan rankled State, but in these matches, Rawitz derived some satisfaction. A transfer from the University, he defeated his former alma mater in both singles matches. The University of Virginia gave the Spartans their worst beating by a 9-0 score late in the season.

GOLF

The 1939 Michigan State golf team opened its season on a raw, windy day against the Big Ten champs, Northwestern. Little practice and the inclement weather spelled defeat, as the opposition won, $11\frac{1}{2}$ - $6\frac{1}{2}$.

The next match still found the State boys suffering from lack of practice; Toledo also drubbed them decisively, 13 - $4\frac{1}{2}$. Undismayed at these two losses, the Spartan linksmen recovered enough poise to win handily from Wayne University, $14\frac{1}{2}$ - $3\frac{1}{2}$.

Up until the Michigan match, individual scores were of an indifferent nature, but Captain Roy Nelson made the headlines by carving out the best score of the season, a par-smashing 68, to aid in defeating the University, 10-8.

Ohio State put a damper on the winning ways of the Spartans by squeezing out a 10-8 victory. This was the last defeat of the year for VanAlstyne's squad, for they took complete revenge in a return match with Toledo, gathering in all 18 points. The lads won from Wayne, 10-8, in a return match, which again found "Moon" Nelson discarding par for a 70.

Michigan State golfers were the only Spartan athletic team to dominate Michigan, for they trounced that foursome again, $11\frac{1}{2}$ - $6\frac{1}{2}$, to climax another successful golf season for State.

The Michigan State boxing team faced the 1940 season with veteran members in all but the two lightest weight divisions. Despite this fact the Spartans scored three ties and lost three matches.

Every member on the team did his best, but State opponents would not succumb to defeat. Captain Clint Braidwood performed well throughout the season, turning in his best fight at Wisconsin by winning State's only victory from the mythical U. S. collegiate team champions.

Joe Cestowski, captain-elect for the 1941 season, was the outstanding fighter on the team, losing but one fight, and that to the Wisconsin champion in the 165 lb. class. Joe won a decisive victory over Healy, the Syracuse boy who was Eastern Intercollegiate Conference champion. At Penn State he earned a draw in a fight that was termed the best of the year at that school.

Cestowski was the lone entry for State in the National Collegiates which were held at San Francisco. Braidwood could not go because of a heavy scholastic schedule. After beating the Penn State boxer, whom he had fought to a draw previously, Joe lost in the semi-finals to a very good man.

Hardest blow of the year was the sudden death of Ernie Dunn, heavyweight, who was one of the most colorful and spirited of the entire team.

WRESTLING

Shortly after throngs of celebrating merry-makers and their subsequent hangovers heralded the beginning of another year, Coach Fendley Collins and his troupe of wrestlers set out to show the midwest that Michigan State College was a power to be respected on the canvas mats of this section.

Suiting their actions to their thoughts, the Green-and-White clad matmen opened with a pair of lightning-quick victories over Wheaton College and Northwestern University; and then journeyed to Columbus to meet Ohio State in one of the season's toughest contests, ending in a story-book finish for a 14-14 tie.

Again in the home fortress, the Collins-coached grapplers preserved their undefeated record by cutting down the Nebraska cornhuskers, 22-6.

Then came the Wolverines. Always a powerful opponent in a wrestling ring, the 1940 edition of the University of Michigan mat contingent proved no exception, and it was the Wolverines all the way to a final score of Michigan 23, State 8.

Although they felt the Michigan defeat rather keenly, the Spartan battalion quickly bounced back to the credit side of the ledger and solidly trounced West Virginia and Case.

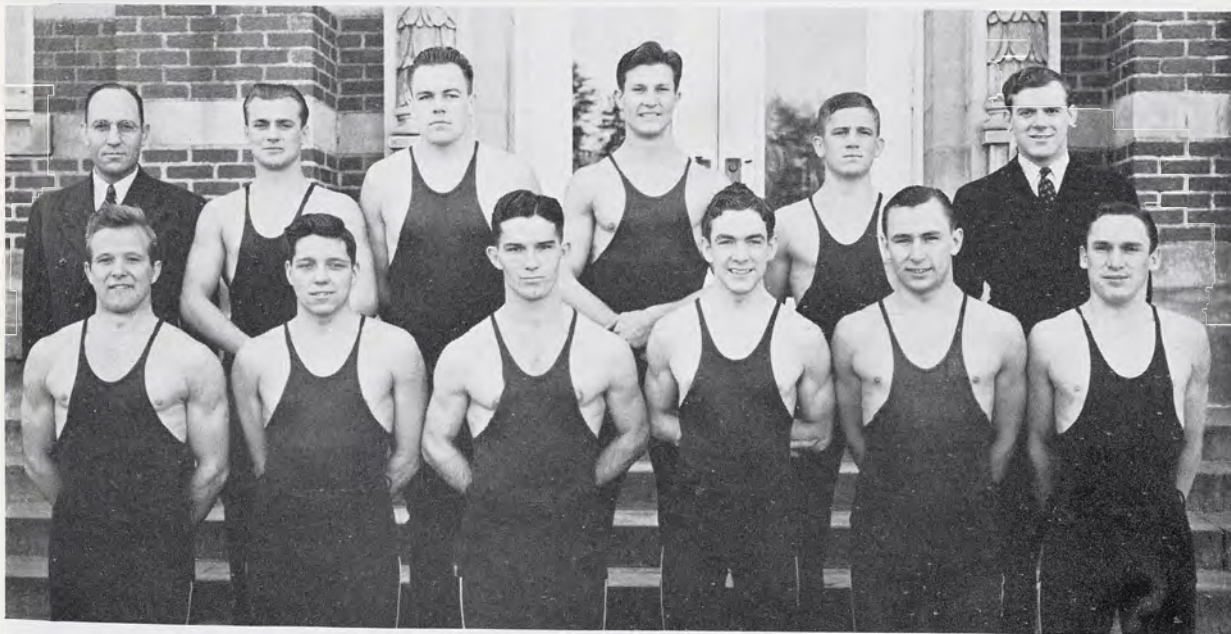

In their final match of the year, however, the Michigan State grunt-and-groaners again met defeat. Kent State, well respected by midwest mat teams, administered the setback, winning easily, 24-6.

Boasting the only indoor polo field among mid-western colleges, but possessing no outdoor field, Michigan State's riders are able to schedule only a few collegiate matches each year. As a result, State's competition comes mainly from teams of the Michigan Indoor Polo Association, which draws membership from central Michigan.

The Spartan squad was weakened by the loss of Captain Manuel Arteaga through graduation and it was mid-season before the team started to click. Consequently, State failed in its defense of the association trophy which it won last year.

In intercollegiate competition, two matches were lost and one was won. Playing outdoors with no previous practice, the Spartans lost to Iowa State and Illinois. Indoors, the varsity triumphed handily over Ohio State, rated one of the better teams nationally.

A feature of the season was a game played for Finnish relief in which the State team met the Hollywood All-Stars, headed by band-leader, Buddy Rogers. Playing one of their best games, the Spartan trio rode to a 10-10 tie before an enthusiastic crowd.

Although several players are due to graduate, chances for another good team next year have been increased by the fine showing of the "B" team, which took second place in the Polo Association "B" tournament. Members of the "B" squad also played in the intercollegiate matches to gain their varsity awards and valuable experience.

FENCING

Michigan State's varsity fencing team led all winter sports with an official record of eleven victories, no defeats. State lost a practice meet at the first of the season to Lawrence Tech, but retaliated by defeating "Tech" twice after that, thereby winning the Michigan Intercollegiate Championship Trophy for the second time in the history of State fencing.

The season was the second in which Charles Schmitter of Detroit has coached the varsity—a season marked by a series of unusual individual records. All three members of the foil team, Gerry Richardson, Captain, Ben Bisgeier, and Bill Hammond had 80 per cent averages. George Grenzke led the sabre team with a 75 per cent average.

Other distinctive performances were turned in by Garth Oswald, star epee fencer, who won the State Novice Epee championship and placed second in the State Junior Epee championship. Not far behind Oswald in individual action, William Hammond made a fine showing in placing third and fourth, respectively, in the State Novice and Open Foil championships, qualifying for the Midwestern and National championships. In the last two meets, Hammond tied for second place, but lost out in points.

George Willis, Francis Thalken and Oscar Sussman rounded out the team. Harry Chandler acted as manager.

The aim of the Women's Athletic Association is to stimulate interest in athletics among Michigan State women. Its motto is, "A sport for every girl and every girl in a sport."

W. A. A. has two open meetings during a term to which every girl on campus is invited. The members presented a sports style show at their first open meeting during fall term and motion pictures of fencing and skiing at the second. As in years before the group was represented at the Co-ed Carnival this year, where each sport offered at State was demonstrated by a short skit. The organization also operates a food concession at Demonstration hall during Farmer's Week, and a candy counter in the gymnasium, profits from which are used to cover yearly expenses.

Membership in the organization may be attained by earning 100 points in co-ed competition accompanied by a "C" average. To retain her membership, a woman must continue to earn 25 points a term. Every girl has an equal chance to participate in volleyball, baseball, hockey, tennis, fencing, golf, archery, swimming, and basketball.

Awards are presented each term, and they include a large or small "S" or freshman numerals. Highest of honors given by W. A. A. is the inscription of a woman's name on the "Honor Roll." For this distinction, a girl must earn 1,500 points.

GREEN SPLASH

In 1927 Green Splash was organized for Michigan State co-eds to stimulate interest in swimming and other pool activities.

Eligibility for membership is determined by the maintenance of a "C" average scholastically, the passing of the Senior Life Saving test fall term, and swimming on the class team winter term. The aspirant's name is then submitted to the active members for consideration and approval.

The outstanding project of the year is the winter term production of a water pageant. Presentation of the pageant, besides the various land effects and water formations are the result of ingenuity and imagination on the part of the Green Splash members. Each year a new theme is carried out. The group also sponsors the all-college "date" nights at the pool throughout the school year.

Scherma Scotto was first organized in 1937 as the Women's Fencing Club of Michigan State College. Later the group was re-named Scimitar, chartered and reorganized under a constitution. The second name was dropped as a courtesy to the men's fencing club last fall when the latter joined the national organization of the same name.

Club members instruct freshmen women in the art of fencing, and choose pledges from those who earn their fall term W. A. A. points. Pledging is carried out during winter term, as is the election of officers.

Scherma Scotto's usual schedule of intercollegiate meets includes University of Michigan, Wayne University, Olivet, Highland Park Junior College and the University of Detroit.

Though meetings are held every Wednesday night, members often take advantage of other nights when the gymnasium is available.

Fun, the keynote of the club, is well displayed by the annual social calendar of picnics, overnight outings and other get-togethers.

GIRLS' SPORTS

Women's physical education department and the Women's Athletic Association—known on campus as the W. A. A.—combine to present a program of sports so varied as to appeal to the needs and preferences of every woman student.

Individual sports and team competition appear side by side to provide the greatest possible development. For the girls interested in inter-class and inter-organization competition there are hockey, baseball, swimming, basketball, and other tournaments. Individuals are provided for with such sports as tumbling, archery, tennis, swimming, fencing, and badminton.

With unrestricted use of the gymnasium women's sports program promises to be more varied than ever before—if such a thing is possible.

Changing seasons don't necessarily mean any cessation of sports for women—they just change their activities to suit the weather.

Winter offers skating and skiing for the hardier, but an indoor program is being carried on at the same time—basketball teams for class and extra-curricular points, badminton for skill, and tap and natural dancing for grace.

When spring comes, there is no limit to sporting variety for sun-worshippers—tennis, archery for Maid Marians, golf, baseball, canoeing, and roller skating. Field hockey on tangy fall days is the sports prescription for many women.

Swimming is one of the most important year round activities. Courses ranging from elementary shallow water wading to the most complicated of high dives are offered.

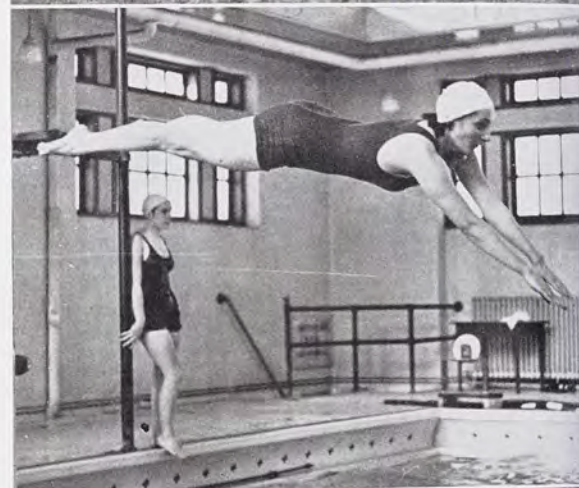

Water safety is emphasized throughout the year, both by the department and by W.A.A. Members of Green Splash, swimming society, teach a course in Red Cross life saving, leading to the senior life-saving badge, while every spring special instruction for prospective life guards is offered.

But all swimming is not for work—play periods are provided too. Green Splash and other organizations sponsor numerous splash parties throughout the year, and open swimming hours are provided for.

Inter-scholastic competition is not confined to men at Michigan State. Fencers carry on a series of meets with many Michigan schools, and usually come through triumphant.

Hockey teams met the University of Michigan teams during the fall term, when they divided honors. In addition to meets, the local W. A. A. chapter sponsors and attends field days throughout the year.

Truly all-college in its extent, members of women's athletic teams are composed of representatives of all divisions and departments. Officers of the athletic organizations represent innumerable interests, and majors are not the only women to win tournaments.

THELMA COGGAN

To encourage friendly relations among sororities, supervise rushing, encourage higher scholarship and to govern all inter-sorority relations; this is the purpose of Panhellenic council on the campus of Michigan State College.

The council consists of two representatives from each sorority, one being a senior and the other a junior. These 22 women serve on the council for one school year.

The officers are not elected but rotated from one sorority to another every year.

During the year the organization sponsors many campus events. Outstanding among them are the Panhellenic Ball, held each year, the Panhellenic Sing, Style Show, and Coffee Hour.

In its function of promoting fraternity life and activities to the best interest of the college, the Interfraternity council is composed of one member from each men's social fraternity recognized by the faculty. The council guards the best interest of the fraternities, acting as advisory board in all matters of dispute between its members, and resists anti-fraternity legislation by placing fraternity standards in a light above reproach. It aims to be a recognized force in the consideration of student life and college problems, and in promoting all college athletics.

This year the council sent the largest delegation in the United States to the annual National undergraduate fraternity conference at New York City. Among the group's many accomplishments is the setting up of one of the first successful cooperative buying plans in the country for fraternities and sororities, instituted by Ted Mackrell, Kappa Sigma representative, in conjunction with the college. The council has also established a modern rushing system in keeping with the growth of the college. Each year it awards a scholarship and athletic cup to the deserving fraternities.

Founded in 1915 as the Inter-society board, the organization was changed to the Inter-society union in 1923, and the Panhellenic council in 1924. In 1925 it was first instituted as the Interfraternity council.

Another year has passed and Alpha Chi hits a new high in graduating 15 seniors. We'll certainly miss petite black-haired Becky Lord, last year's Snow Queen, and sweet Rosemary Lee, president of Mortar Board, with an eye on a certain "Pop Gunn." And then there's Ruthie Baker, with her sprinkling can, and the plants galore, and Margie Buechner, a great girl to whom we always turn . . . Helen Spleet, who never tires of a snappy Double Solitaire game . . .

Irene Nelson, who, being treasurer, has taken all our cash . . . Mary McCormick, with an ear for "Oh, Johnny Oh," and what will we do without Mary Ann Bauer's "Glamour Girl" smile; Jean Pack, this year's Cavalry Sponsor; Margaret Vosler with her quiet dignity.

Jeanie Wilson, Vice president, blonde, who doesn't look at all like a Chem major . . . and our prize rifle shot, Jane Harvey . . . Ruthie Rigterink, with her never-ending posters . . . Margaret Stanton's going too, with a pin to boot, and lastly our president, Virginia Pfander, whose steady hand has made Alpha Chi know another happy year. Our hat's off to you, Seniors . . . Lots of good luck.

Dear Editor:

Although only three seniors are leaving the A O Pi gang this year, we certainly will notice a big difference without them next year. Frankly, we wonder just how we'll get along without Nancy Brown who has been a wonderful president and Pan Hell representative with her "efficiency plus." There is only one thing that obviously annoys her, so here's a warning, don't call her "Beautiful"

Brown. She'll be right in the groove for teaching after whipping around to all the various meetings she conscientiously attends. They say at practice house, she's a right fine cook too.

Don't think we won't miss Jane Wise too. Jane is known as just about the most friendly gal 'round these parts. We're hoping she'll get an institution (restaurant or something to you) to manage right near home because she just lives a few blocks from the house.

And then there's that good-looking Sawyer kid. Jean sure got a bang out of being told she looked austere a few weeks ago. We hope that isn't the general impression because she's really quite slap happy and gobs of fun. But then if she leaves, maybe someone else will get a chance at the telephone.

Yours,

A. O. Pi Girls.

It'll seem strange without Barb Stiles and her sweetness, Jeanne Peterson, our cute "Little" Pete; and Jeanne Houghton to help us with rushing parties.

Of course we mustn't forget Fauvette Johnston, our Social chairman, who planned our term dances so well; or Peg Taft with her original vocabulary. Also Margaret "Mugs" Kane, the little blonde who was always ready to help with anything; and Lillian Russell with her usual vim, vigor and jokes.

With the scholarship cup for 1939 tucked under their belts, the Chi Omega girls vowed to continue their 1.6 all-sorority average, the highest of any group on campus.

A Chi Omega from every class sits on the A. W. S. Board, and Dottie Dunn snared the hearts of the infantry when they elected her corps sponsor.

Fall term delight came when Charlotte Whitten and Mildred Schoedel captured the debate title in the inner sorority tournament.

Winter and spring term tragedy came when the sisters realized that just as freshmen come and seniors go, coeds pledge, but actives exit.

Seniors Alice Amsden won't be trilling for initiations next year, and Emily Telford won't be designing parties; Jean MacDonald won't be stewing over her S. W. L. duties; Doris Schoedel will be cleaned out of the Wolverine office; Peg Lee and Betty Loudon won't be jitterbugging in the front room; Jerry Von-Eberstein's black eyes won't be snapping; Jane Coons won't be turning in all "As" for the Chi Omega records; Barbara Sears won't be holding every office on campus; Jean Bruce won't be luring Spike over to the house and Dorothy Connell's southern drawl will soothe us no more.

BUT I DON'T THINK HE REALLY MEANT IT...

Kappa Delta songs won't seem the same next fall without Margaret "Petie" Plowright's soprano voice leading them and Marion Boyd's alto bringing in the harmony.

Politics and music go hand in hand with the K. D. seniors. Kappa Delta presidency, Mu Phi Epsilon Vice-presidency and the college symphony orchestra have filled Marion's senior year, while Petie was kept busy being sorority treasurer, president of Mu Phi Epsilon, and a first soprano in Michigan State's Glee Club.

"Swan Song" has been sung for the old Sigma Kappa house as the Sigma K's new colonial home is being completed on M.A.C. avenue. Next fall will find them residing on "sorority row" with their newly acquired housemother, Mrs. Elsie Wells of Kalamazoo.

New ideas abounded when Frances Bates, president, and Naomi Croel, rushing chairman, returned from the Fiftieth Golden International Convention of Sigma Kappa. Many of the girls also attended the Regional Conference at Pittsburgh in April.

"Oh, Johnny" had that sentimental meaning for the sorority as several of the girls received pins and rings from "Johnny."

Youngest sorority on campus, Epsilon Chi may well pride itself on the progress it has made since it was founded, May 2, 1938. Charter members include Margaret Ascher, Celine Borr, Jeanette Danin, Beatrice Fishler, Rhea Kaufman, Betty Kamins, Bernice Labonsky, Jesse Levin, Shirley Levinson and Betty Rosenblum. Since then the active membership has been doubled, and they have recently added eleven new pledges to their ranks. Miss Hoffman of the Home Economics department acts as advisor.

A mixer in the Forestry Cabin, a roller-skating party, and the winter formal at the Hotel Olds mark the highlights of the social calendar.

An item not to be overlooked is the fact that the sorority was officially recognized by Panhellenic council fall term. Unless we miss our guess, this organization is going to "go places." Who knows? Perhaps in the near future there may be a new house to add to Sorority Row. More power to you, Epsilon Chi!

Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity began as a literary club, Alpha Literary Society, with meetings held on the 4th floor of Wells Hall. Born in the heydays of '29 the organization went through the depression, growing constantly. The lean years of '32-'36 were overcome by the hard work of the members and their leader and advisor, Mr. Alex Cohen. In 1934 the organization, although still suffering from the blow the depression had dealt it, affiliated itself with the Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity. Since then the group has grown in size, spirit and activity and at this time the present organization is looking forward to the time when a new house will be theirs. Mr. Edward Simon was appointed Faculty advisor last fall.

Another June, and another exodus from Spartandom by another outstanding gang of Beta Kappas.

At future homecomings in the old stronghold of 729 East Grand River, grads of the class of '40 will gather in a big circle by the front-room fireplace with Blackie, the gargantuan mascot pup stretched lazily in the center.

And it won't be hard to guess what the bull sessions will be about. At least an hour could be burned if we should happen to start on Doc Bratt's one-and-only romances. And then, how Spring comes and seniors swing out for farther fields While we all hope that they'll find greener pastures . . . and skies that are a little bit bluer. They deserve them, for they've done pretty good jobs in the four years (or more) that they've been here.

And they'll be missed you'll have to look quite a ways to find someone better at prexy-ing than Art Robillard . . . or anyone that's any better at maneuvering all the lads into paying their house-bills than Charlie Sabo . . . he wasn't even subtle about it. Garrison was a lot of fun . . . he'll be missed a lot . . . wonder who he'll find to propagandize at. And Georgie Bignell . . . he'll be able to be with that Detroit girl of his all the time.

They come and they go, like the moon or a tooth-ache . . . but Augie Lange never knew which he was doing. And how we will miss Vince Sauve and his piano playing . . . the boy is good . . . and he'll stay that way. So long, Chris Jensen . . . we hope you and all the rest of the boys have the best of luck and the most of happiness . . . like the song "Star Dust"—you'll be long remembered.

Departing with the class of '40 are fifteen graduating seniors. Soon we'll be missing Bob Day, whatever good that can be said about him has already been said . . . by Bob; Bennie Ralph Bennett, the house's No. 1 rationalizer; Jimmie LaDu, two can fit under your band cape as well as one, eh Jim? . . . Rolly King, the great conservator of energy; Bud Withey's, "I'm going to start studying tomorrow night."

We will also miss Marvin Cooley, the hunter, and his frozen duck; John Magielsie and his antique car; Bunny Brier, wot an athlete! Wot a head waiter! Dave Cowden and his famous last words, "If everyone cooperates, we can get a lot more accomplished"; Lew Stewart with the gal friend in Jackson—"the little girl who wasn't there", when Lewis was!

How will we get along without Bill Boniece's joke about the Navaho Indians; or Bill Meuleman, nightly burner of the midnight oil; or Bob Mayo whom you will find at the Alpha Chi house most of the time; or Sam Pratt, the house comedian; or Bob Fichtel, a great club man, (the Tony Club?)

When in the future, members of this year's graduating class meet one another they will be sure to remember prexy Bob Bronoel and his "entirely unconstitutional, irrelevant, and—and—and" . . . "Egore" Bonk of the seal-like laugh . . . Don Anderson's unruffled calm . . . Boughner's perpetual smile . . . "Lord" Byron, the third floor hurricane . . . "Flub Dub" Cope, Spartan Business manager—the boy who keeps the house phones ringing . . . Jim Harlan's paint can and his excess of women . . . "Bucko" McDonald, the married man, and his week-end trips home . . . Don Marshall's faithfulness to his Lansing woman . . . Pete Munroe, the house scholar . . . Roy "Peter" Nelson who is forever thinking up ways and means of making money . . . "Sleepy Jim" Shieve—"boy, am I tired, I wish I was home in bed" . . . Steward Bill Dewey leading the mass exodus out to the annex at 11:30 every night for a "snack" . . . The quietness of the dorm . . . the spring term backyard nudist camps and "river parties" . . .

The 'Tic House on the Hill is once again ready to discharge another group of seniors into a world that is waiting but by now wary—the world of business and commerce.

Soon to leave will be Paddy Beaver "The All American Boy" and Tony's own personal angel . . . "Look out I'm on my way to another meeting" Thorburn who has compiled statistics to prove that Thorburn is right 99 44/100% of the time . . . "Casanova" Stone whose motto is "It's better to have loved and lost—" . . . Harry Nylen whose droll humor has enlivened many moments . . .

The house will miss "Junior" Moon the rollicking steward whose boast, "giggles and fun for all" has certainly proven true . . . "Iron Head" Richardson who can get a 2.5 average and still have plenty of time left to get around in . . . "B(censored)—much" Helbig who after a five year stay still has the house guessing whether he is an engineer or not . . . "Hoiman" Mouw who pays for room and board at the house, but can more usually be found at the Theta house (it is even rumored that he makes an occasional visit to Olds Hall, but this has not been confirmed) . . . "Chicago" Tebbets who "Hath no greater love" . . .

There are the livestock men Andy "Stonewall" Jackson and Ned "Whitey" Bayley. Andy is the boy who checks up to see that the house work is done; smokes a pipe as only Jackson can. Ned is the house journalist. He edits our newspaper and knows genes and blood-lines as well as most of us know the union grill.

Then there are those serious minded Smith-Hughes men, Leonard "Egg"

Eggleton of Poultry Club fame and Herman "Buck" Newland who got his name riding steers in the rodeo.

Our fraternity artist and owner of the house's outstanding mustache is William Lyons who hopes to be employed in Forestry.

From soap to sandwiches: Keith "Rusty" Russell is the one who is supposed to take care of these purchases. An Ag Engineer, he hopes to be a rural electrician.

Last but not least, is the versatile man about town, politician James Beal (no relation to the garden) Kelly. Jim has more activities than our dog has fleas, is a Dairy major and hopes to be a salesman or publicity man.

Leaving this year is the largest senior class in the history of the house, and the seniors of course say it is not only the largest, but also the best. Among those missing next fall will be: Neele Barner, shiek of the Union desk who claimed to know every co-ed that ever walked by his corner . . . Dick Drew and his jumping ice boat . . . Charley Dutton and Howard Hunt, the psychologists . . . Pete Genter of the military boots . . . Fred Griswold and Ted Mackrell promoting their Buffalo excursions . . . Bob Heath and his slide rule . . . Jack Gauntlett may be missing before this time . . . "Snake Hips" Leiphart takes his tape measure from the house . . . House cribbage Champ Wayne Linton will be able to play eight hours a day . . . The house will no longer have to endure Everett MacDougall's Saturday afternoon operas . . . Dave "I don't brown the profs" Noble . . . Bob Reid and his five credit course in Colliers . . . Roger Schacht and his perennial weekend trips to Wyandotte . . . Dave Schlaeger, goes with his arnica and adhesive tape . . . Don "Fellows" (there is so much of him) Thrall who holds the dubious distinction of being the only man ever serenaded by the Alpha Chis, will have to surrender his official position as Alpha Chi Sweetheart . . . Al Yanz, pride of the house Bowling team.

Thus they go, they entered four years (or more) ago, all looking pretty much alike and feeling rather awed by the apparently important seniors of that year.

"The time has come," the Seniors said, and so they packed their last clean shirts. With the core of Eve's apple bulging in their throat, they walked out the door. Thirty-four of them, major participants in the greatest merger in the history of greek letter societies. Max Dalrymple, a combination of honor student and varsity basketball; Elmer White, editor of this Wolverine; Art Tompsett, the accomplished wire-puller and hope-to-be tonsil puller; and Christy Blough, the provider. Bunny Follette, who knows good food and served it; Bob Hume and Dick Miles, who know every signpost from here to Detroit; Ed Priest, who got his exercise by walking up to South Williams every night; and "Swish" Reeves, the fastest man on the fraternity football field, and "Dirty" John Boughton. There are lots more, but there just isn't space to tell about them. They were "all good fellows, each one the others friend," and, even if they did make an awful racket in the dorm, we hope and know you'll be back! Good Luck!

This year the Phi Chi Alphas lose seven veterinarians by graduation. Among the "horse doctors" we find the following: Frank Bartol, the honor student who would rather sleep than eat; Antoon Busser, who leaves his scalpels for leading roles in the college stage productions. Then there is William Magrane, the connoisseur of swing recordings; we must mention Merle "Mike" Mallo of hill-billy fame; of course, Carl Webster will be remembered as the playboy of the Vet division and we can't forget Robert Johnson of the fiery hair or James Leary the fashion plate.

We say farewell to two floriculturists; Henry Kass, our Boy Scout and Joe Vaydik, the golfing gardener.

In the Smith-Hughes field are "Casanova" Albert Kienitz and Max Louks, the pride of the future farmers.

Forester Fred Haskin returns to the woods, and Ag Engineer Ferris Wilson says good-bye to his Art classes.

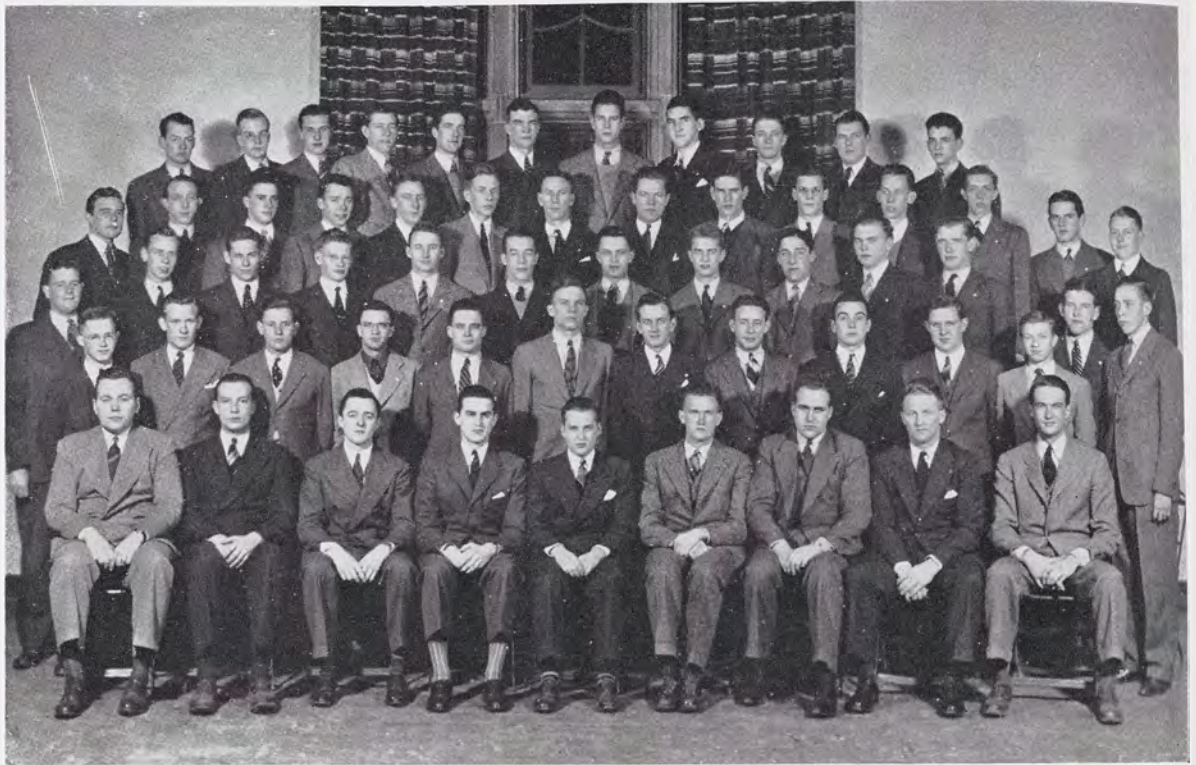

We trust that Robert Godfrey will get over the hurdles of the business world as he did on the track. Here's a "so long" to William Butt our joy boy actor.

This winds up our roll for 1940. Good luck, gang, don't forget Phi Chi Alpha.

Phi Tau started the year off with a bang by giving a radio party when the fall term initiates were honored. The fall term formal was held at the house, and the traditional "circle-dance" gave the seniors an opportunity to show their ability in shagging and jitter-bugging. Under the direction of Johnny Wright, a Christmas dinner was given for eight underprivileged boys from Lansing.

Prexy Bayard and Norm Henderson wrote the words for Pete Beal's new song, "Phi Tau Stomp," which has given the chapter aspirations to winning the Inter-fraternity Sing. A friendly battle between the sophs and seniors raged, but the "wise old men" could not do much against the stronger set.

Over ten pledges took formal initiation on February 3, followed by a dinner at the house to fete the new members. The winter term formal at the Olds was held on February 10.

Much to the enjoyment of the chapter, some of the brothers passed their pins throughout the year, and the boys were well supplied with cigars from time to time. Four members of the class of 1940 accounted for some of the pinning.

The Pi Kapps anticipate big doings in August when most of them invade Chicago to swell the number of their brethren at the fraternity's national convention. We understand the more worldly-wise among them have prepared an eye-opening itinerary for their more callow brothers.

The "Alpha Theter Stater," a chapter publication sent to all alumni as well as other chapters each term, has been a favorite project of the Pi Kapps for the past two years, and has been issued intermittently for fifteen years. It features news of old grads, whose interest in the chapter is thus kept alive.

The boys are quite proud of their rise from the lower brackets scholastically, and although they haven't yet threatened to take the lead, they are well up in the upper half, shattering a tradition of earlier years which frequently saw them battling for the bottom rung.

One time-honored Pi Kapp custom has been throwing the graduating seniors in the Red Cedar in the spring. This year the underclassmen were expecting to have their hands full, what with the largest graduating class in years daring them to "come on and try it."

The majority of graduating seniors are uniformed militarists. Russ Norem, the one man brain trust, while not upholding the quiet dignity of the Assigned reading room, is over Lieutenant-Coloneling for the Infantry department; Ralph Norvell, the glamour-boy, lets A.C., Sarge Fields, the Studio Theater, and the modeling of Oldsmobiles draw on his time; George

Hale has taken Police Ad to heart and wants to go back to Arkansas and be a mounted revenooer; Joe Flake has Penny, his caissons, and his "two-fer" seegars; Bernie Johnson likes Rosie, his boots, and his job at Woolworth's emporium about equally well; Don Janz is convinced that his four-cylinder '37 would make a good staff car on the coast. The pacificists are Pat Henry and Gil Sherman. Pat thinks that variety is the spice of life and arranges his nightly dates accordingly. Gil, who strangely resembles Mischa Auer, pines over his books and little Jean back home.

The pseudo-popular slogan, "W.P.A., here we come," will not be heard around the Sigma Nu house this year as the 1940 graduates prepare to receive their diplomas. Sigma Nu has graduates in nearly all fields of extra curricular activities.

We're especially proud of the scholastic standing of our seniors led by our president, Charles Harmon, with an all-college average of 2.7. In varsity athletics we were well represented by Gene Ciolek, Gerald Drake, and Dick Publow in foot ball; Dick Frey as cross-country captain and track; George Grenske in fencing and Herm Marabell and Marty Hutt in golf and basketball. Bob Buzenberg and Bob Spinner were varsity baseball managers.

We aren't going to forget Ted Grace and his interfraternity athletics, nor Don Farkas—the lad who's engaged to Shirley Harrison; nor Doc Yale—the silent, the tall, the blond.

We'll long remember the military-minded fellows such as Gordon Publow and Dave Sherman . . . and the honorary-inclined lads, Bob Ballard and Paul Gage. And Al White and his class-activities won't be beyond recall.

As for our ace politician, Dick Nahstoll, now president of the Student Council, we'll remember how he started his career with a bang—on Union Board, and how he added his name to the many honoraries.

The only professional fraternity with a house on the campus is the distinction that Alpha Chi Sigma, National Chemistry fraternity, holds at State.

It was organized here 11 years ago. The fraternity originated at the University of Wisconsin over 25 years ago.

Alpha Chi Sigma has three main purposes: to bind together members in a lasting friendship; to strive as a body for advancement in the world of chemistry, and to aid members in personal attainment.

The fraternity pledges men on a selective basis and only men who show promise and who intend to devote their lives to chemical engineering are asked to join. Alpha Chi Sigma functions very much like a social fraternity. It rushes certain picked men, pledges them and after a certain period of time formally initiates them into the fraternity.

The fraternity is aided by its faculty advisor, Ronald Warren, instructor in chemistry.

DORMS AND CO-OPS

In times gone past, dormitories have more or less played the role of the forgotten man. It is to show that they have not been entirely deserted that these pages are dedicated. Submitted for your approval and for the first time this year, is this section devoted to the residents of Mary Mayo, Sarah Langdon Williams, Louise H. Campbell and North Hall dormitories for women and to the men living in Abbot, Mason, and Wells Halls.

Beyond the lobby and into their rooms, the Wolverine takes you for a kaleidoscopic view of the informal life of Joe College and Sally State. It's ladies before gentlemen, please!

When you meet a coed in the morning, you would scarcely think she had just arisen from a good night's sleep, perhaps because she hasn't. Day begins for the typical dormitory woman somewhere between 6:30 and 7 each morning; that is, if she wants to eat, it does. After 15 or 20 minutes spent in dressing, she's ready for breakfast. Having eaten, it's off to classes, usually until noon.

With lunch begin the day's social activities. After a chatty meal, cafeteria style (despite the two cigarettes and a sandwich rumor) the women match wits and tongues across a bridge table from 12:30 until 1. Classes then take up most of the hours from 1 until 4, when coke dates become in order.

Dinner, the day's only formal meal, is served from 6 until 7, offering both nourishment and a chance to catch up on gossip. From 7 until 10 is free for dates, library study, room study or just plain living. Curfew sounds at 10 on week nights and usually is followed by studying until 11:30 when most lights go out. Popular study costumes are pajamas.

Weekends vary routine, dinner is earlier, informal and dates come between 8 to 10 and last until 12:30. No date weekend is complete without the feminine equivalent of a bull session at which women talk, usually munching tid-bits and dressed in pajamas. Chief topics on week ends are men; on week nights, men, studies and life problems.

Organized women's activities include a party each term, formal in the winter and semi-formal otherwise, and exchange dinners with other dormitories. Informal radio parties made their appearance this year. Among the semi-organized activities is the tubbing of residents who have newly-acquired fraternity pins.

The man's day starts much the same as the woman's except that Joe can, and generally does, get up a little later since he doesn't have to do quite so much pruning and primping. In fact, some of the fellows come panting into class at 8:15 looking as though it had been all pruning and no primping. For the most part however, Joe College is a pretty well dressed lad, and State men are justly proud of their ability to stroll around in pressed trousers, clean shirts, and neat neckties. Nor is a shined shoe a rarity.

While he won't admit it, Joe does about as much chatting at meals and in his room as does Sally. It is pure idealism to say that studies monopolize his conversations, but it is equally as untrue to assume that deep subjects are avoided. On the contrary, religion, politics, general school affairs and personal plans for the future are common topics and give evidence of the more serious side of the college student.

As do the women, the men have term parties and radio parties, and well organized serenading of women's dorms and sororities is far from uncommon.

Dorms & Co-ops

Boasting a membership of all the residents of Mason and Abbot Halls, the Mason-Abbot club has as its purpose the assisting in the control and direction of the activities of the residents in the halls. Its primary regard is for the general welfare of the men living in the halls and it seeks to foster a consciousness of unity and responsibility among the members.

Consisting of a Judiciary Committee and a General Council, the government of the club is representative in nature. The Judiciary Committee which consists of the eighteen counselors and the Residence hall advisors is responsible for investigating complaints or infractions of the house rules and for making recommendations to the General Council in regard to disciplinary action.

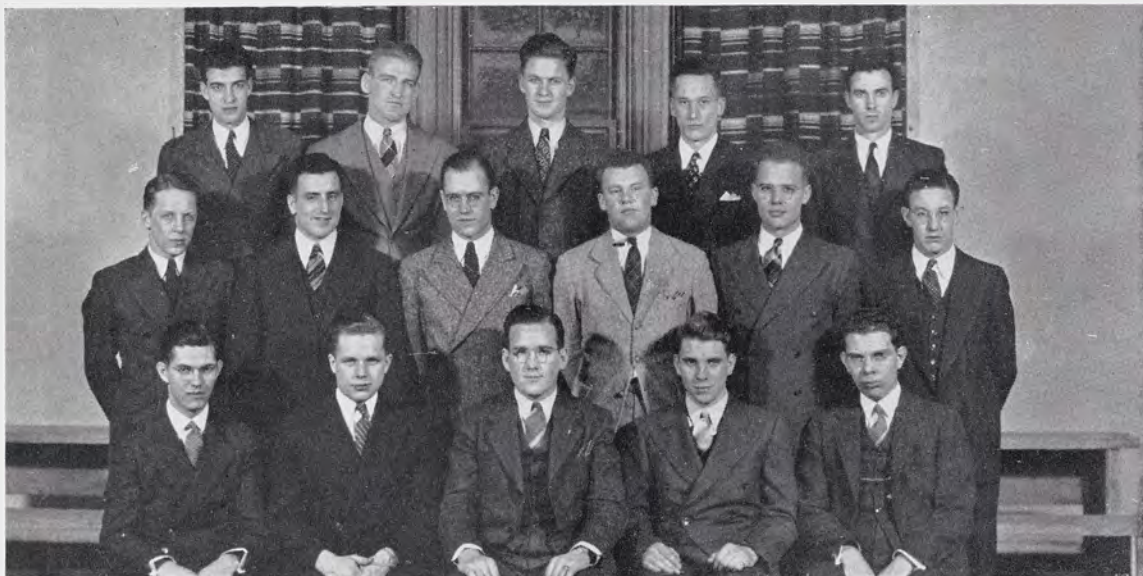

Acting as the legislative body of Mason-Abbot club, the General Council is composed of the eighteen councilors appointed by the Dean of Men and staff, and two representatives from each of the eighteen precincts elected by resident men. The residence hall advisors, Dr. Luker and Mr. Geil, serve as ex-officio members, and the council is presided over by the hall president. In accordance with the democratic ideal, provision is made for referendum.

Members of the Mason-Abbot club function cooperatively to further mutual gains and to keep dormitory life interesting and alive. One of the club's latest yet most important innovations is the publication of its own newspaper. While the paper does not exclude items of general campus interest, it is mainly concerned with the happenings in and about Mason and Abbot halls. To keep members posted on the outside world, the club subscribes to several daily newspapers and a large number of magazines ranging from Time to Esquire.

MASON ABBOT CLUB

With the aid of Mr. Beachum, Dr. and Mrs. Luker and Mr. and Mrs. Geil, the club sponsors many social activities. Held almost every week are exchange dinners with girls' dormitories. Another near-weekly feature is the holding of radio parties in the lower lounges of each hall. Each party is arranged and handled by three precincts of each building. While two separate dances are held, any resident of either hall is free to attend either one, and may wander from one to another if he so desires.

Intramural sports such as touch football, basketball and softball are sponsored by the athletic department of the college, and competition is based on precinct membership, each precinct having its own team. Bowling receives a little attention from a few groups, but for the most part is not considered as an intramural sport.

Mason and Abbot Halls

Main entrance of Mason Hall which faces west and overlooks the greater part of the campus.

First of the dormitories in the proposed quadrangle which someday may house all men students, Steven T. Mason hall bears the name of Michigan's youngest governor.

As is its counterpart, Abbot hall, Mason is designed for 438 men, and with the exception of four singles in each, all rooms are double. In each dorm there is a recreation room equipped with pool and ping pong tables, and a lower lounge containing card tables inlaid for chess or checkers. A dark room is also offered for the benefit of photo bugs. Cafeterias supply all meals for residents, and from noon till eleven p.m., a grill offers between-meal snacks.

Mason, like Abbot, is divided into nine precincts, a single precinct comprising the 42 to 54 occupants of each floor of each wing. At the head of every precinct is a counselor whose duties range from helping students with calculus to getting them dates. Counselors have most work at the beginning of the school year when freshmen are freshest, and aren't too sure of the score. None the less, not a day passes during the year but what some problem confronts the counselor. For one thing, it is up to him to keep scholastic records of all the men in his group. When a student gives evidence of having difficulty, the counselor investigates and tries to help him over the rough spots. To freshmen this service is especially valuable, though occasionally a fifth or sixth year senior also benefits.

Upon the shoulders of the counselors rests the task of maintaining order and quiet. This is a man-sized job under any conditions, and they unanimously agree that it is their toughest assignment, especially when the fellows get playful, as they do occasionally —as in the case of the overgrown chicken coop which was deterred in the process of being moved, and left on the dormitory's front lawn. When college authorities ignored repeated requests to remove that coop, the men took matters into their own hands and removed it themselves—with some gasoline soaked rags and a match. Needless to say, no one toasted marshmallows over that fire.

Hot enough to toast almost anything however, are the Mason-Abbot vs. Wells hall pajama brawls which occasionally take place on the Wells lawn. Usually no hard feelings result, and when all parties concerned admit a draw, the entire group, friend and foe alike, make the rounds of the women's dormitories and the sororities and do some serenading which can be heard to the four corners of the earth—(and sounds it).

At times, a considerably better grade of serenading is heard, and can be attributed directly to organized efforts on the part of groups from both Mason and Abbot. This year a 35 or 40 man Mason-Abbot glee club was organized, and even when not compared to the after-the-fight singing, the results are surprising.

Mason hall lays claim to several very interesting residents, the best known of whom are Prince Singkata (Sing to you) Tongyai of Siam, and Jack Dunn of Hawaii.

ANGELIC LOOKING—AREN'T THEY?

Facing east and away from the center of the campus is the main entrance to Abbot Hall.

Abbot hall, twin to Mason, is the second building in the proposed quadrangle of men's dormitories, and is also the second building on campus to be named in honor of T. C. Abbot, former president of this college.

While the older Abbot hall also served as a dorm, first for men, then later for women, it now serves as a music practice building and harbors practice sessions instead of bull sessions.

Not to be outdone by Mason, the new Abbot has its sessions too; several men have recording pick-up sets with microphone attachments that make it possible for them to send out "programs" to any and all residents who choose to listen. And those who do listen are many, for the programs are indeed singular. Weather and time reports, jokes, precinct quartets, dorm news, general observations, yes, and personal opinions about things and people make up the usual broadcast. The not-so-big men favor this medium when it comes to telling the very, very big men and the counselors just where they stand. These sending sets are also used in transmitting music to the lower lounges of each hall when the weekly radio parties are held.

ABBOT HALL

LLOYD H. GEIL

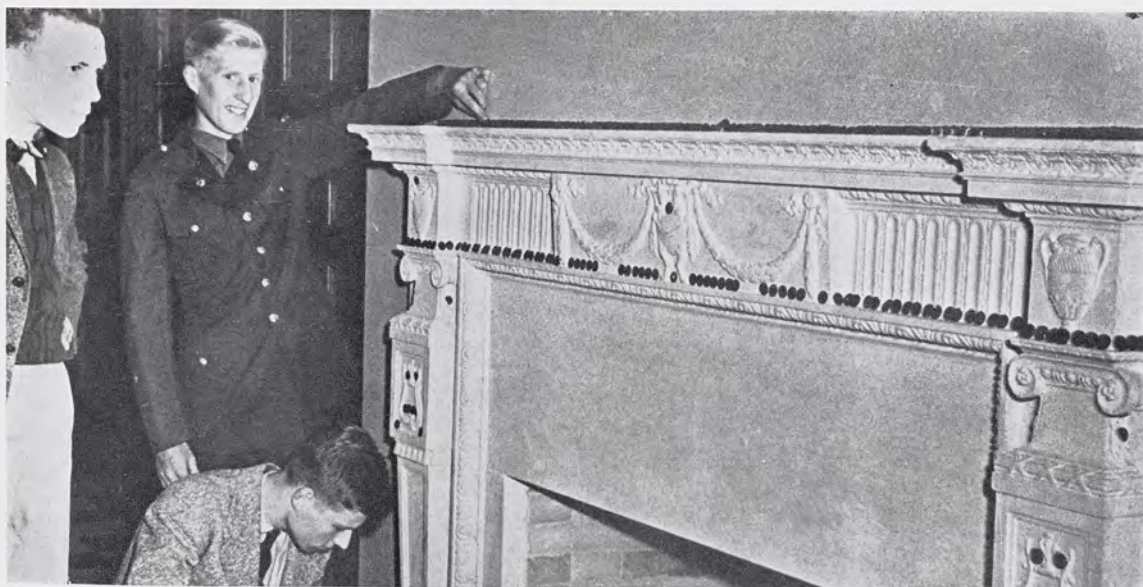

Assistant Professor of Journalism
Faculty Advisor of the Wolverine

Editor of the Alumni Record
Resident Manager of Abbot Hall

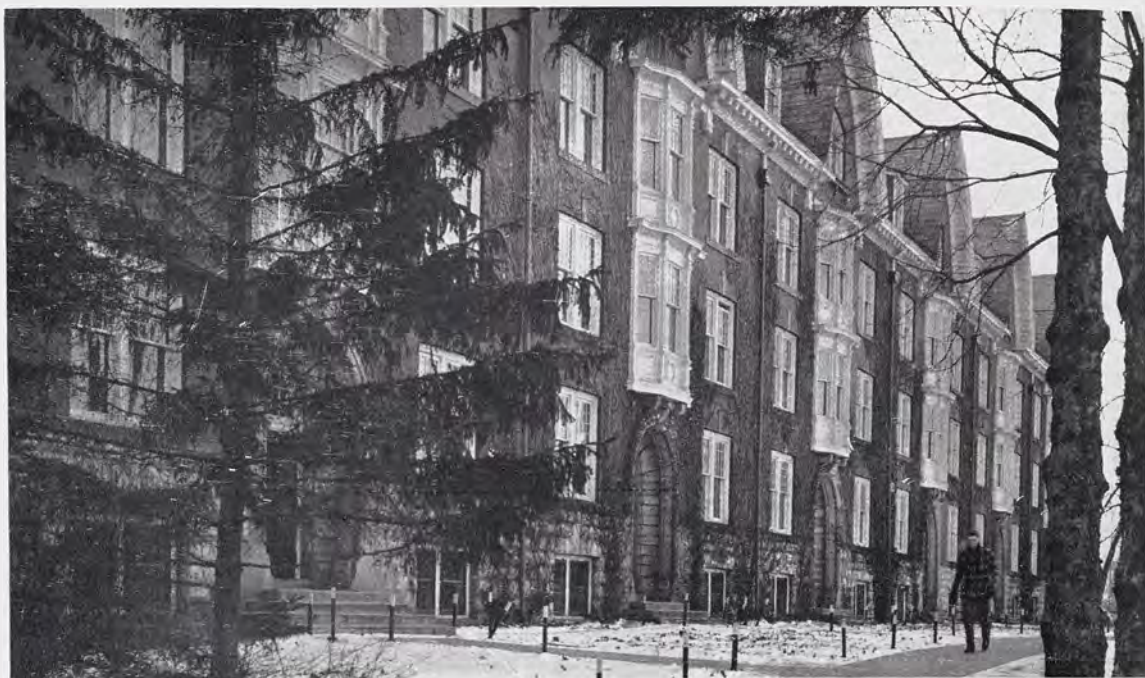

Not all the stir is vocal by any means. The fire hoses conspicuously located in each precinct cause counselors the most trouble and worry, and afford other student residents the most fun. On one occasion a group of first floor men had a brainstorm that literally and figuratively inundated Abbot. By means of a long rope lowered through a third floor incinerator opening, a first floor fire hose was unceremoniously hauled up and stretched out on the third floor. The water was turned on, and before the upstairs men could locate the other end of that tube, the stairs were emulating Niagara.

In spite of events such as this, most entertainment is well planned, well executed and much enjoyed. It is in this respect that Mrs. Luker and Mrs. Geil play a very important part. As social hostesses of Mason and Abbot respectively, they are actively concerned with all social events, and their efforts make possible the success of parties, dances, dinners, etc., which otherwise would be impossible.

WELLS HALL

Once upon a time, when the world and Michigan State college were both young, and State boys were known as "The Aggies," there was built on the campus a structure named Wells hall. That was back in the days when the old and much populated Williams dormitory for men was affectionately called "Bed Bug Alley" and the Women's building went by the name of "The Coop." Nevertheless, Wells stands for—and in spite of—much tradition.

The oldsters who designed the building put up six separate and unconnected divisions under one roof. The idea being that in this way a reasonably quiet and well disciplined dorm would be the natural result of the segregation. And the principle has proved practical.

However, four years ago, an applied science student decided to carry on a scientific experiment and began by holding matches under a fourth floor fire sprinkler. Unsuccessful, the scientific brain turned to a cigarette lighter; much better results. When the water was turned off and the fire alarm silenced half an hour later, everyone was all wet except the administration which promptly took steps to discourage any further experimentation, either of scientific nature or otherwise.

All but two of the rooms in each division are double. The front rooms overlook the heart of the campus; from the back rooms can be heard the sound of the Red Cedar flowing over the dam.

The separate sections are under the common supervision of a joint council consisting of the six division councilors and two representatives of each division. Mr. Ronald Heath, housing director for men, serves in the capacity of an ex-officio member.

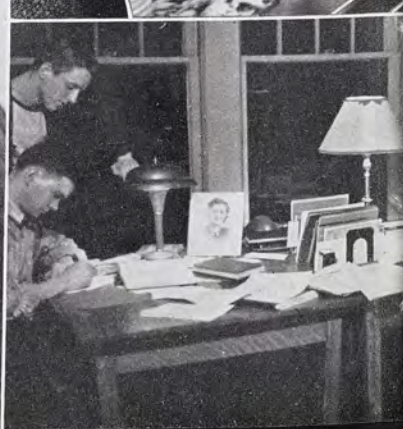

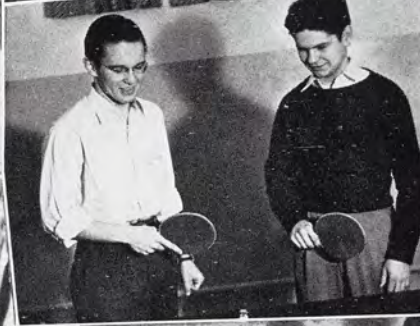

Top row—A. Boyce, H. Macy, J. Keith
First row—M. Jones, K. Pfister, H. Chapman, G. Heath

While Wells hall is like other dormitories in having a boarding club, it is unique in that membership in the club is purely optional, and not limited to residents of Wells.

Other than the intramural sports in which all dorms participate and bull sessions familiar to every college student, Wells offers facilities for cards, pool and billiards, and is in general as well equipped as any other dorm on campus.

LOUISE CAMPBELL

Louise Campbell hall, named after a former director of Home Economics, is the newest of the girls' dormitories. So new is it in fact, that when the girls moved in last fall, they found some of the doors missing, a few hallways lacking paint, and a bevy of odd items yet to be completed.

While the unfinished state of the building did not within itself cause the girls any great hardship, the process of completion often made it necessary for workmen to frequent the dormitory. Therein lay the difficulty, as one girl discovered when, minus a few important articles of clothing, she went into a third floor phone booth to answer a call only to find her exit made awkward by the appearance of a workman nearby in the hallway.

Nevertheless, the obstacles were surmounted and Campbell had a successful year. The girls of North and South Campbell each elect a council and house president, but joint meetings are held alternately in North and South, the presiding officer being the president of the side in which the meeting is held. The girls all eat in the same dining room, and all activities are carried on jointly. In addition to Sunday evening teas to which guests are invited, Campbell Hall, as do all dorms, holds one dance each term.

Miss McDaniels, dormitory house mother hails from Texas, and served last year as house mother of the Union dorm. Assisting her are Mrs. Muir in North Campbell and Mrs. Hildebrande in South.

Last word in construction and design, the building houses 300 women. Most of the rooms are built for two women, but there are a few single accommodations, as well as two "dorm rooms," each of which is designed for eight people. Recreation rooms in both sections contain card and ping-pong tables. One corner of each room is also given over to sewing machines.

Handy kitchenettes offer ironing facilities and hot plates for cooking. Built for washing heads as well as clothes, the laundry room is fitted out with scalp basins and driers, all of which aids the coed in maintaining her natural beauty.

SARAH LANGDON WILLIAMS

A long, long way from the men's dormitories and every other part of the campus is Sarah Langdon Williams hall. Named after the wife of State's first president and nicknamed "Bill's Place," the building is best known for its steep and numerous steps which have sapped the strength of many a Williams coed trying to beat the curfew.

It is also known for the trouble it has with aviators. The birdmen have the habit of flying over the dorm every time a few of the women decide to make use of the otherwise private sun porch. Here, entirely shielded from everywhere but above, Williams coeds delight in basking their uncovered shapeliness in the noon-day sun. Therefore, the sound of a low-flying airplane creates quite a stir on the balcony, and the sight of one causes nothing short of panic.

Williams' well known, well liked house mothers, Mesdames Thompson and Gill have both been in the service of the college for some time, the former having preceded Miss McDaniels as house mother in the Union dorm, and the latter having served in the same capacity in old music building when it was a women's dormitory.

The dormitory is divided into two sections; as in Campbell, however, all political and social activities are jointly handled. Politically, each section is represented by a house president and a council which participate in joint meetings. Socially, Williams, as do all other dormitories, sponsors one dance each term, has teas every Sunday evening, and in addition holds a pajama party just before each Christmas vacation. Rounding out dorm life, the intramural sports which receive active support of the coeds comprise soft ball, volley ball, field hockey, table tennis and bowling.

Structurally, Williams is similar to both Mayo and Campbell. Having but one dormitory room and only a few singles. For the comfort of its 300 residents, the building is fitted out with fully equipped recreation and smoking rooms as well as utility kitchenettes. Its roomy lounges are luxuriantly furnished with pianos, armchairs and davenportes.

MARY MAYO

Oldest of the women's dormitories is Mary Mayo hall. Built eight years ago, the dorm lays claim to much tradition, best known of which is the practice of dunking girls who become engaged via either pin or ring. More tradition is the portrait of Mary Mayo, early advocate of coeducational institutions, which hangs one term in East Mayo and the next in West. In the absence of the picture, the losing section sports tapestries to cover the light spot left on the wall by the absence of the large sized portrait.

West Mayo's fish pond is not tradition within itself, but the late cupid ornament erected in its center for the purpose of attracting wary males did too good a job and one black night last fall was removed to quarters unknown. While as yet not heard from, rumor has it that the statue met an untimely end at the hands of the enterprising gentlemen who were attempting to collect it that sad Sunday morning.

Differing from Campbell and Williams, individualism characterizes each section of the dorm, and except for the Spring party which is held jointly by East and West Mayo, all activities are separately sponsored. Even the dining rooms are separate. The one common ground is the central kitchen in which food is prepared by specially trained dieticians.

Mayo's beautifully furnished, piano equipped reception rooms are equal to any on campus and their lounges are far more secluded than most. With the exception of ten women, Mayo's 300 occupants live in double rooms. While no provision was made for regular recreation rooms, card and ping-pong tables set up in the basement serve their purpose well.

Housemothers Richards and Coburn are justly proud of the women in Mayo. So are the women in Mayo, as is shown by the fact that Mayo contests South Langdon's claim to the nicest looking girls on campus. Every man to his own taste, however.

NORTH HALL

An entirely separate unit is North hall. The only dormitory located off campus, the building is as independent from college system as a college owned building can be. Although subject to the same rules and regulations as other dormitories, the management of North hall is left largely in the hands of Senior advisors Mr. and Mrs. Lamphear and Junior advisor Janell Leathers. A State graduate in Hotel Administration, Mr. Lamphear supervises and manages the dining room and kitchen, and sees that the building is properly maintained. Mrs. Lamphear alternates with Liberal Arts Senior Leathers as house mother.

Formerly the Campus Hotel, North hall was acquired five years ago by the college, and has been a women's dorm ever since. The keynoting of friendliness and informality makes North hall congenial and sociable, and cooperation is the password. Except for the cooking, practically all the work involved in running the dorm is done cooperatively by the women residents, and any heavy work necessary for the upkeep of the building is done by male students.

Winter and spring faculty teas and a spring picnic augment the usual social events, and at the close of each school year, graduating seniors are honored at a farewell candle-lighting service.

Our Scotch Prexie, Robert S. Shaw, was thoroughly groomed for his responsible position. Twice, first when President Kedzie left in September, 1921, for two months, and second when President Friday left in June, 1923, for a similar length of time, Mr. Shaw was appointed acting president. So when Mr. Butterfield left in 1928, Robert S. Shaw found himself in the president's chair, a chair which he has been comfortably sitting in ever since, with credit to the school.

Mr. Shaw, a native of Woodburn, Ontario, Canada, graduated from the Ontario Agriculture College at Guelph. His first teaching position was as Professor of Agriculture at Montana College, the same college where Mrs. Shaw taught, and where he courted her and, in 1901, married her.

After four years at Montana had given Shaw experience and a wife, Michigan State College hired him as professor of practical agriculture. By 1909 he had stepped into the position of Dean of Agriculture and accepted the additional responsibilities of directing the experimental station and taking charge of extension work.

Mr. Shaw's special field is animal husbandry and for years he directed Glencairn, his farm, as a hobby. Here he conducted experimental work and cultivated shrubs and many of the trees now growing on our campus among the evergreen trees. He gave us Norway Spruces, White Spruces, Concolored Furs, Douglas Furs, Colorado Blues, Spruces and Junipers. Among the Broadleaf species he gave us are Hard Maple, Soft Maple, Elms and Box Cedars.

President Shaw isn't able to shrug off his interest in the college when he goes home; he makes his presidency an all time job.

Though he likes to fish, Shaw seldom takes time off to visit his summer home at Bear Lake, but his enthusiasm for young people, his football game attendance, and his pleasure in watching M. S. C. grow, (regular agriculture undergraduates grew from 209 to 456 during Shaw's deanship) provide him a tonic as relaxing as a Spa cure or summer vacation.

Interesting sidelight on Mr. Shaw is his baseball career, in fact our president once broke his finger while pitching a ball game in his college days.

Often during the apple season, the president will send bushels of apples from his farm to various offices about the campus including a basket for the dean of women or a publication office.

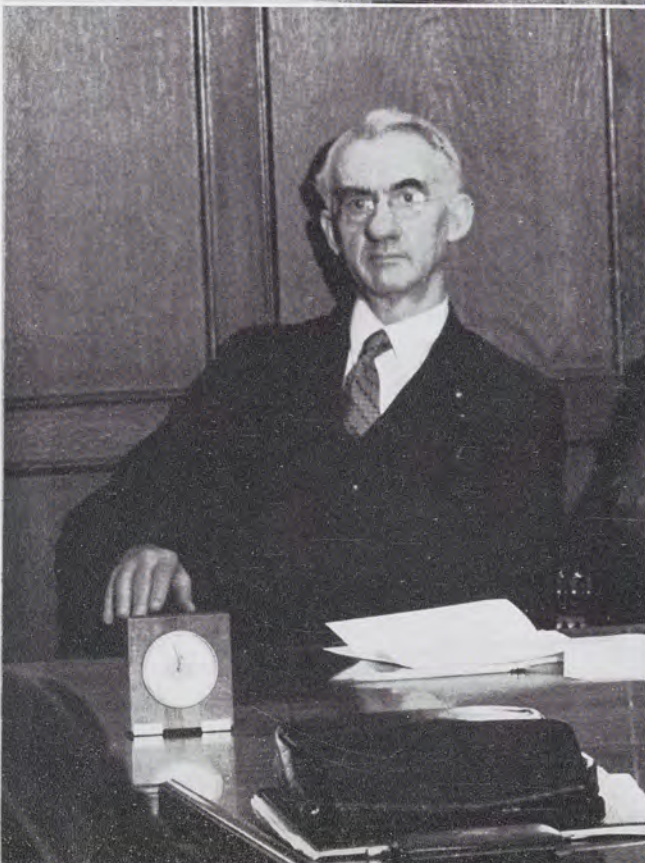

Here's the president celebrating his tenth anniversary as head of Michigan State in 1938. The flowers were removed immediately after the photographs were taken and work proceeded as usual.

And prexy likes to walk about the campus, stop and chat with students or workers. He talks with Floyd Porter, official handyman around the Administration building.

This shot was enlarged from a group picture of the Board of Agriculture. The president is more or less a middle man between college business or faculty problems and the Board. No simple task.

Running a school the size that Michigan State has grown to be is no simple task. If you don't believe it ask any of the executives pictured on this page. Responsible to the State Board of Agriculture, they enforce the rules of that body and lay down a few laws themselves. Always glad to talk over student or campus organization problems, some officer of those pictured above is available for advice, or in case of rule violation, some officer is also ready to check up on the law breaker. But as do all good administrative officials, the heads of State work for the best interests of the college in every instance.

In two campus buildings you can find the offices of nearly all the people who keep State's wheels turning. Alumni Secretary Stewart, Dean Mitchell and Union Manager Proulx can be found in the Union; Secretary Hannah, Summer School Director Crowe and Registrar Linton hold forth in the Administration Building; Librarian Towne, naturally enough, spends his time in the Library. Bill Krieg and Mrs. Button help you find your way around the campus.

CHAIRMAN BERKEY

THE BOARD

McPHERSON AKERS JAKWAY MASSELINK SHAW BERKEY BRODY HANNAH WILKINS

When the Michigan Agricultural College was founded in 1855, it was not sufficiently large to warrant a special state body to control it. Contrary to expectations of many farmers of that day, the school grew, and the legislature of 1861, through Act 188, created a six-member State Board of Agriculture to govern the college.

The following year President Lincoln signed the federal land grant college bill, and the State Board was given the task of administering Michigan's share of these grants.

In addition to the six members of this first Board of Agriculture, the Governor of Michigan and the president of the college were ex officio members. The six were appointed every two years by the governor by and with the consent of the state senate.

When delegates to the state constitutional convention of 1907-1908 had completed their work, the new constitution provided for election of six members to the State Board of Agriculture at the spring election of 1909, and for two members for a term of six years at each succeeding biennial spring election. The state superintendent of public instruction and the president of the college were designated as ex officio members. It is this law which is in effect today.

Board members serve without salary, but receive necessary expenses incurred in performance of duties of their office. State law requires the Board to meet quarterly, but at the present time, meetings are held once a month and oftener when required by special activities.

The Board of Agriculture has general control and supervision of the college and all property belonging to it. The legislature has also given the Board plenary power to adopt ordinances and regulations not in conflict with state laws which it may deem necessary to successful operation of the college. It also establishes and regulates the course of instruction and grants degrees. With the advice of the faculty, the Board also prescribes the books to be used in the institution.

Salaries and duties of the college staff, and also power of removal, are vested in the Board by state law. This body also appoints a secretary and treasurer for the college, who hold office at the will of the Board.

HOSPITAL

Michigan State students who happened to return with a 'tummy ache in September became a trifle confused. When they trekked to the time honored old hospital, what should they find but a cooperative house filled with co-eds. But the ills which the sight of 37 co-eds didn't cure soon found relief when students remembered that the new $270,000 Olin memorial health service center was open.

Named in honor of Dr. R. M. Olin who headed the college health service for 13 years before his death late in 1938, the new center is equipped to give medical attention comparable to that available in any city. Normal capacity is 45 patients but in an emergency 60 can be accommodated—a sufficient number to handle anything short of an epidemic—then no hospital is large enough.

If a student needs an operation, a complete operating room is available; if he's lost his watch, the center has X-ray apparatus to see if he swallowed it; if he has pneumonia, there's an oxygen tent, and if he wants his toes toasted, the physio-therapy department has been enlarged and re-equipped. If all these fail, he ought to die, but an undertaker isn't available.

Since all this equipment is valueless in poor hands, the college has guarded against that too: Dr. C. F. Holland heads the service, with the assistance of Dr. Leonard Folkers and Dr. Louise Schnute, the college's first woman physician. Miss Candance Appleton heads a staff of twelve nurses that take much of the dreariness from being sick. It's nearly worth being sick to get into their care, but they don't advertise the fact.

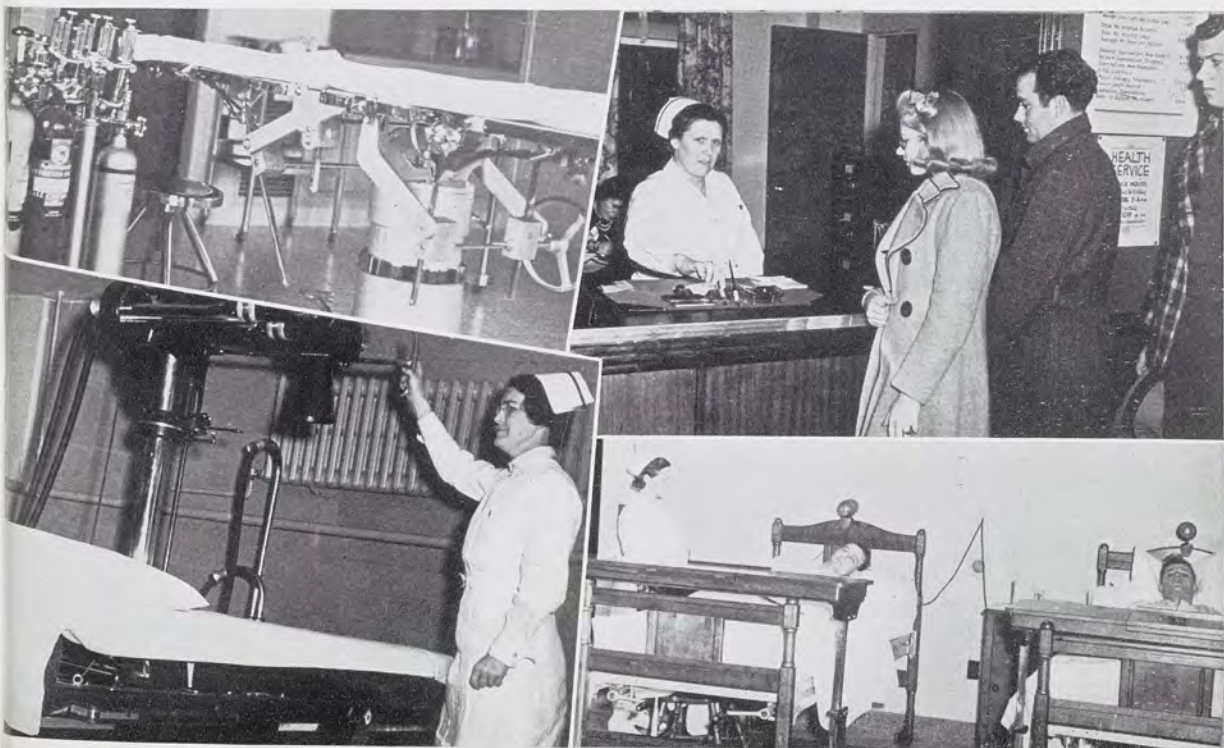

With more the appearance of a hotel lobby than of a hospital, the new health center represents the most advanced ideas in hospital design. Patients for ordinary treatment enter a walnut finished corridor and are registered at the hospital desk. From here they pass to a waiting room finished in walnut and furnished with padded chairs and colonial tables.

After leaving the waiting room, the first signs of hospital appearance are noticed either in the dispensary or a doctor's office. If convalescing from surgical treatment, one may spend his time in one of the nine private rooms. Otherwise he will go to any one of the available four six-bed, two five-bed, or the several two or three-bed wards. All rooms are furnished in non-glare color scheme and with a home-like atmosphere.

An innovation is a sun-porch where patients may smoke, thus relieving one dread of hospitals faced by every smoker.

Student Interest

Registration is a device to prove the mettle of any newcomer. The freshman becomes merely a number, is finger-printed, photographed, run through the maze of scheduling classes, and goes forth with a pot to dodge upper classmen.

At the freshman mixer new men try to keep gate crashers from getting the pick of the feminine crop.

At the frosh-soph games each class attempts to annihilate the other. But hostilities are called off when the presidents of the two classes shake hands and the sophs treat the frosh to a barbecue and bonfire.

Senior Week and the course is almost run.

Heads high and a wavering wonder in their hearts nearly 1,000 students leave the halls of academia to foray in a world of which they have heard much and know little.

So they make the most of that last week. Freshman memories, already grown ancient, are revived; last, lingering looks are cast at campus landmarks that will not be soon seen again, and campus tours are the individual order of the day.

Then there's all the traditional ceremony, scoffed at by underclassmen, and suddenly become important during this last week.

Senior women pass down the symbol of responsibility to those who will follow them in the secret rituals of Lantern Night. And laughter and gaiety echo the campus 'round as senior men swing the ladies from rustic bowers. Following a carefully planned swing-out route the class in long file make their last meandering stroll together.

And finally the swings are deserted and a more serious aspect is introduced as the graduating class president hands the gavel of authority to the incoming senior president.

But too soon the too-short week is history. Gone is the senior play and the last term senior dances. Graduating coeds suddenly realize long-coveted and much-prized 11 o'clock permission is a thing of the past and that from now on their time is their own. And graduating men take a second look at that last check from home and have sudden qualms over the possibilities of the next one.

And graduating day is at hand. Proud fathers and mothers gather in front of the bandshell to see an aim accomplished—a goal passed. Dignitaries are presented and those who have won fame are honored with special degrees. Prexy's face is serious but his eyes smile. And pride shines from the countenances of deans and teachers. They have done another job and it is well.

Then there are those for whom the ceremonies are planned. Solemn-faced they make stately march to appointed places in front of the bandshell. Solemn-faced they sit in long rows, wearing their tassels on the right for the last time, and are told of a waiting world.

And some are cocky and some are afraid. But all are glad when the speaker is done and the long trek to the stand begins. Diplomas stacked three feet high look ominous at first but a quiet handshake and a special word from Prexy makes an individual matter out of seeming mass production.

They are alumni.

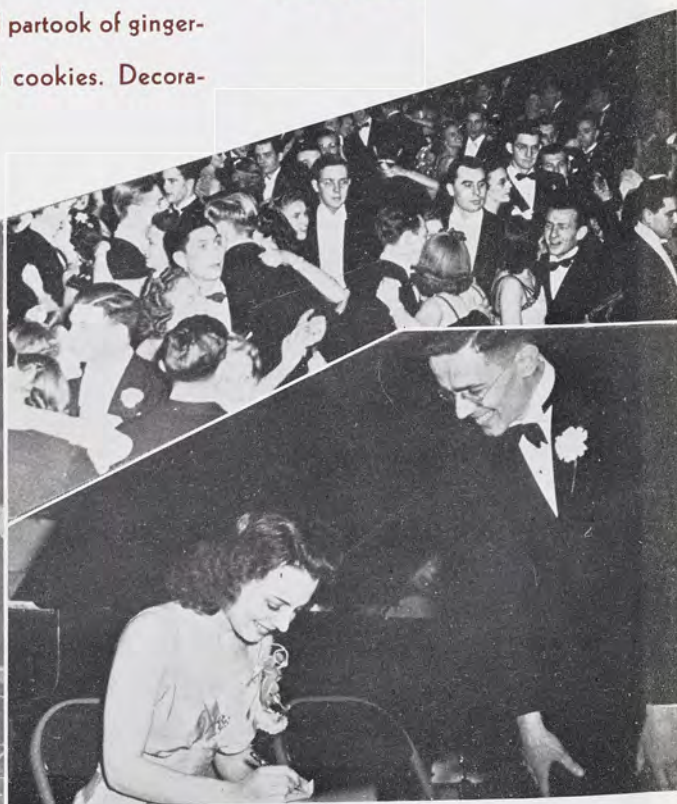

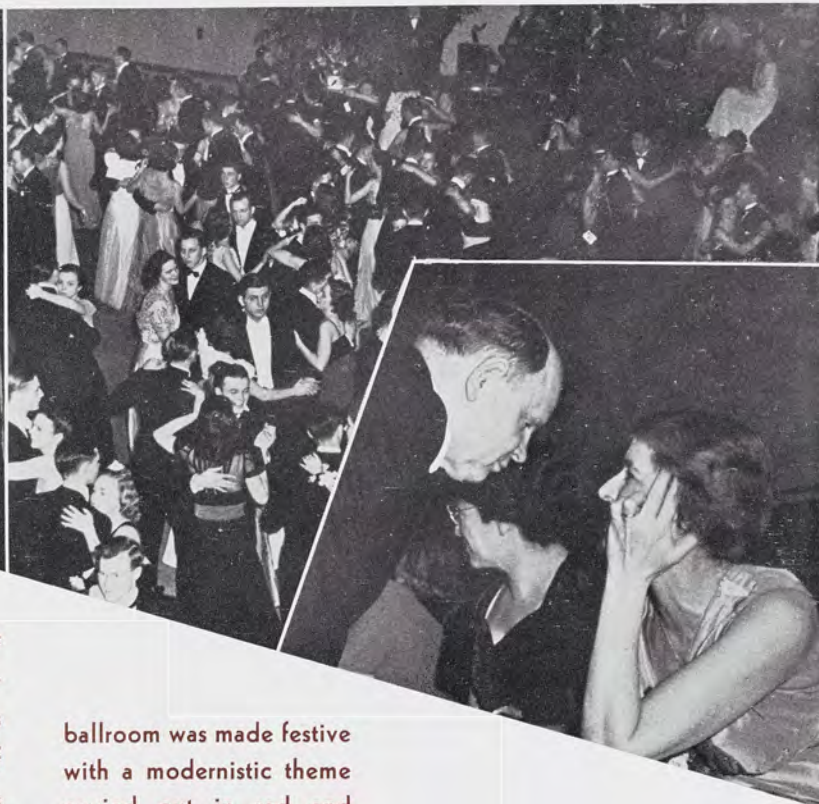

Under the direction of Class prexy Scales and General chairman Kilborn the class of 1940 gave its last formal party. First dance in the new and as yet unnamed auditorium and only spring formal, the Senior Ball marked the termination of the formal season. The larger dance floor permitted attendance of 950 couples who danced to the music of Larry Clinton and partook of gingerale and cookies. Decoration theme was "A Study in Color" and featured unusual lighting effects to coordinate the several "Color Studies" written, arranged and played by Bandleader Clinton with the gay shades of the spring dresses.

Taking advantage of the traditional 4 o'clock permission, 500 couples danced to the music of Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra. Nineteen forty-one's J-Hop had the distinction of being the last annual J-Hop to be held off campus in the Masonic Temple. The ballroom was made festive with a modernistic theme carried out in red and silver tinfoil. A miniature Beaumont Tower in the center of the floor lighted the entire room. Forming the background on the stage was a silhouette of the campus, while on the opposite side of the room streamlined figures identified the party and the class. Unusual favors for the party were white leather purses with white leather programs inside for the girls and gold key chains for men. Helen O'Connell, blonde vocalist with the orchestra made a hit with the autograph hunters and their little white books.

True to Soph spirit of trying to outshine all other winter formals, this year's group under the chairmanship of Ed Morey put all their efforts into securing the right band for the occasion. When they ran into trouble on their original date, they switched the party to March 8, formerly reserved for the Senior Ball. This made the prom distinctive for another reason: being the last college formal party to be held at the Masonic Temple.

Reason for the change was the music of Woody Herman, of "the band that plays the blues" fame. Against a star-studded background of blue with silver foil for contrast, Mr. Herman and his boys with charming songstress Carol Kaye gave out in a manner that brought joy to the sophomores and even amazed the staid upper-classmen.

The new Gym, the new Music building and the new front to the Veterinary clinic. Then there's the Psychology palace, formerly the Liberal Arts office but now the house of psychologists, white rats and students.

WATER CARNIVAL

Illuminated by batteries of multi-colored spotlights, the story of man's conquests since the beginning of time glided down the Red Cedar. This was the presentation of the 1939 edition of the annual water carnival, with Joe Ruhe, President of the class, and Miss June Olive, Vice-president, reigning King and Queen, leading the pageant.

Depicting social influences and historical happenings, 35 floats presented this carnival story of man in pantomime and then slipped silently past the floodlights and into the darkness. From the Cro-Magnon Age through the era of Charlemagne; from the Renaissance and Joan of Arc to Columbus and the beginning of America, events that changed the course of mankind passed in review. Other floats representing man's social struggles over temperance, patent medicine, woman suffrage and the depression, combined with such unforgettable happenings as the triumphs of Napoleon, the gold rush, the influence of jazz, and the conquest for speed to tell a story that is vital and human. Profiting from man's past mistakes, the final float presented an optimistic note with "Looking Ahead."

Previous to all this glamour and splendor were a series of water events that entertained the audience with everything from log-birling to co-ed canoe-loading contests.

Ladies just love to dress up and they all like to have their pictures taken. Charlotte poses prettily at one of the formals. The men on the other hand, like to put on old clothes and just bum around. They get a chance at this picnic.

The photographer has a nice job—he meets all the girls. But then just think of those lucky dogs who get walked around the football stadium by campus queens at the preview to the annual dog show.

Prince Sing comes from Siam but one of these pictures was taken on campus—guess which one.

College students go to classes at times—they even go to Physics lab—when the weather is bad.

Beal garden is the place where freshmen take their girls walking on warm spring evenings and where pictures are taken on sunny spring days.

The cheerleaders manage to keep in the public eye even if they have to form a pyramid to see the crowd.

The band boys' mule acts in traditional form. He won't even respond to the beautiful carrots offered him. He is particular—like all State students.

CROSSFIRE

by OSRIC

Almost no one, except everybody I know, realizes that in his own quiet way Neville Chamberlain possessed a tremendous sense of humor. I recall very clearly the rainy afternoon that myself, Mahatma Ghandi, Mike Kinek, Eddie Guest, Singata Tongyai, Robert Maynard Hutchins, Herman Goering, and a group of other young blades and gay Lotharios were standing outside the Smoke Shop, when Chamberlain came by in a milkwagon drawn by a pair of spanking bays.

Partly because I had just been down at Leon and Eddies drinking Tom and Jerries with Mike and Herman, but mostly because the crowd egged me on—Johnnie Boughton in particular kept nudging me with the sharp end of his pogo stick and leering through the rain: "Ask him if we can borrow his umbrella. Go ahead, ask him"—I stepped to the curb and flagged down the famous British premier with my tropical helmet.

"Hi ho there your excellency," I shouted. "It certainly is raining this afternoon, isn't it?"

For the moment, even in my tipsy condition I realized that a gross breach of etiquette had been committed, and the crowd—even though they were largely responsible for its perpetration—were stunned by such effrontery. And the fate of the British empire for an instant hung in the balance.

But the Prime Minister—truly great man that he was—proved fully equal to the occasion. Surprised by my ribald greeting in the act of buttoning his ulster about his neck, he came back with a rare flash of wit: "Yes, it certainly is." And after leaving a quart of chocolate milk at the Hicks Apartments, drove on.

For a moment we were struck dumb by such skillful repartee and magnanimous democracy, but then Marshall

Dann (M. A. C. ex '05) leaped in front of the crowd and demanded "Three cheers and a Tiger for his Excellency" which we gave with a right good hearty spirit, and Mahatma Ghandi ordered drinks all around.

Yes, I remember it as if it were only yesterday: Moscow, the sleighbells, the little Gypsy dancer at the Mardi Gras, Chris Beukema turning to cheer the boys over the last mud-hole during the graduation parade with a ringing "Hmsglhhoortlyuigh gjkhmmphjh!", Bob Riordan's under-slung chest and pipe, the night I turned down a date with Hedy Lamarr, the 1935 Michigan game, someone shouting "Don't cheer boys, the poor devils are dying" during a lab. experiment with white rats, Danny Wheeler being read out of the Nazi party, the Kappa Sig formal, and last of all a great English statesman's sparkling comment on the weather: "Yes, it certainly is."

As a matter of fact it was only yesterday. Yesterday when I met John Abbot Clark grading his test papers by throwing them from the roof of Morrill Hall. "The ones that make the best sailplanes are automatic A's" Clark explained to me, as the other two walked off. "What do you think of the 1939-1940 school year?" And immediately that incident of the rainy afternoon came to mind, and I answered: "Yes, it certainly is." And that seemed to settle it for the time, although I noticed that when my paper appeared he purposely creased it too far back of center and let it plummet to the ground. But then none of that happy group realized at the time that tragedy was soon to intervene.

It was only an ordinary day, that September 1st. School was still twenty-four days away and everything seemed at peace. And then suddenly a disheveled Hespie burst into the room waving a newspaper. "It's war," he gasped. "WAR!" And before he could regain his breath enough to explain that Hitler had invaded Poland in Europe, three advanced military students had fainted, seventeen more were under the tables, and one had even hurriedly discarded his Sam Browne belt and was edging toward the basement with a pad and pencil pretending to be the meter man.

Yes, probably the European War was the biggest news of the Fall term. It took the starch out of more than one of the campus' potential Pershings and left them about as rigid as the trouser crease in a basic R.O.T.C. uniform. And it provided the college-at-large with some new material for conversation during those Autumn receptions. There was a reception for new co-eds, a reception for new East Lansing co-eds, a reception for new faculty members, an All-college reception, dorm receptions, sorority receptions, fraternity receptions—in fact everybody was given a reception except the Spartan Magazine which needed it worst of all.

Buried in the sub-cellar of the library the Spartan was dramatically exposed as being the only college humor magazine in the nation published from a vault—although many readers had long suspected as much and not a few unkindly remarked upon it as quite appropriate. But the Spartan came through, to set an unprecedented record of publishing an October issue in October, a November issue in November, a Christmas issue in December, a formal season number in January, and several choice accounts of the editor's girl troubles. In eight months the Spartan came through with seven issues, which was far superior to what the football team accomplished in an equal number of tries.

Speaking of football—but then let's not speak of football. Let it speak for itself; it's tough enough. The record was certainly an open book. At least the column reserved for marking down State victories was. The pushovers like Purdue, Indiana and Temple provided some unexpected competition, but against the high-powered offensives of Wayne and Ohio Wesleyan the spark was missing. And through pure coincidence both teams were unable to fit in with the 1940 State schedule. But then it isn't fair to expect too much of football. Things might be different if it could go out and solicit stellar players to attend a certain school as the Chess Teams do in many of the Eastern colleges.

Then too the season wasn't as much of a failure as it could easily have been. True our eleven didn't beat Michigan, though they came close in the second half, but the Theta Chis alone after the game drank the whole Ann Arbor student population under the table. And the end of the trail found the pugnacious puss of Bill Batchelor rightly glaring from the All-American selections, and the sports nabobs flipping coins to see whether Willie or Wyman Davis was coming up for next year, and which was which. And when winter term brought a penny arcade ruckus about football players going out for other sports, the grid-iron powers proved that football is still the kingpin at Michigan State. According to Webster a kingpin is usually in the center of a frame.

The Lambda Chis were in the center of a frame too when they concluded plans for a national merger with Theta Kappa Nu. Lambda Chi Alpha may have humored itself that it was assimilating Theta Nu, but Theta Nu and everybody else knew that it was the Lambda Chis that were being taken in. Any fraternity that collects Elmer White, Bunny Follette, Christy Blough and Ed Young without even having the right to disown them in public is definitely not adding to the credit side of the ledger. But then on the other hand if the Theta Nus could admit affiliation without blushing with Ed Priest, Bill Lee and Glen Van Volkenburgh the books balance. A fair exchange is no robbery—provided the bad bargain is mutual. (Continued on page 424)

The bad bargain was one-sided when the Sophomores and Freshmen met in the annual Class Day games. A handful of disillusioned but grim Sophs had to stand the rush of a horde of yelling Frosh, who, steeped in the best collegiate traditions of back numbers of "College Humor," "Frank Merriwell and Bill Stack at Yale," and "Ned Grant at Carter," were not only fully determined but even insistent on giving their "all" on the blood-stained field for Class and Alma Mater. Yet, even though they took a worse beating than Earl Parchman's piano, when the dying sun cast its last rays on the internecine strife, the Sophomores still held the field and could claim a moral, if not a physical, victory. A moral victory it was indeed, with the victory belonging to Dr. Holland and his vigilant College Health Service, who put the Freshman class back together again with court-plaster and piano wire. The moral was that interclass mayhem is fast becoming one of the relics of the feudal age of American colleges when Good Knights weren't always good nights and chivalry and Ford were attributes of every true collegian.

"Thank goodness," remarked the Dean of Women's office, "We've finally gotten the girls out of the Union."

And the reference wasn't to the mixed lounge or the grill. The third and largest of Michigan State's girls dormitory was dedicated November 19 with candlelight and applesauce. The official opening of Louise H. Campbell Hall marked a period and a question mark after a phase of Union history that saw it a stabling center for everyone from maudlin alumni to inarticulate 4-H'ers to co-eds who waited with high and futile hopes for a reprieve to Mary Mayo or Sarah Williams. After the girls moved out and sleeping in the Union was confined to the classrooms, the space occupied by the dormitory was turned into organization rooms and storage space for wornout members of the faculty.

One or two other scene-shifts on the campus stage stood out. Someone had a used R.O.T.C. corps kicking around the place that needed a sponsor. Ordinarily the only kind of a sponsor a corps needs is a good first rate mortician or a little chloride of lime. But the soldier boys were different; they wanted inspiration instead of interment. And Ruth Taylor was the lucky little girl who was chosen to mother the whole Michigan State disorganized militia. This meant that she had the inestimable privilege of eating dust at every Tuesday parade while the sagging serried ranks slouched by. And then of course she received a free admission to the Military Ball—which was a little better than the drum major of the band did—proving that some of the advanced cadets were not only officers, but gentlemen, by Act of Congress at least.

Someone found an old autograph of Horace Greely in a library book, although one school of thought still maintains to this day that a bookworm swam through an inkwell and was over-enthusiastically blotted on the fly-leaf before it had even gotten well into the first chapter. Dr. Holland came to the aid of the lethargic student by announcing that anti-sleep pills were detrimental to personal health. It was apparent that it was not more anti-sleep pills that were needed but more anti-sleep instructors,—there were enough pills in the classes already. Another event of stupendous unimportance was the official banning of hayrides, brought about by a mild case of allergy on the part of the East Lansing Police.

And finally 1939 will go down in history as the year of the double Thanksgiving. When President Roosevelt proclaimed November 23 instead of the traditional last Thursday, November 30, half the country drooled in anger. Michigan and M. S. C. strung along with the President, but the lucky stiff in Colorado and Texas got two full-time Thanksgivings. Jim Burgess, noted Union Grill economist, declared the whole affair to be a Trend and blamed it on the Hollywood double feature. The principal result of all the fuss and fuming was to leave people a little uncertain about the exact date of Christmas.

But December 25 came and went and statistics proved that more socks were hung on Santa Clauses on New Year's than on the five preceding Christmas Eves. I met one of the five later at the J-Hop. "Hello Eve," I shouted cordially, as she swept by in a strapless formal with a Chinchilla jacket over her arm, "I'm glad to see you're back." Later she eloped with me in her evening gown leaving her escort to take the wrap. But then we were all devil-may-care's in those days with no sense of responsibility. Like Jimmy Dorsey and Joe Goundie who provided the entertainment at the J-Hop. Joe had the original ideas, but Jimmy had the brass. And it was really news when someone found Goundie's shoes under the refreshment table without Goundie in them. He was out on the floor instead.

But in my opinion, and I was not in the least influenced by the comp that took me to the Soph Prom, the J-Hop was not the outstanding party of the year. The outstanding party was named Carol Kaye, who appeared with Woody Herman's band. When the dance was over some of the boys could even remember her singing. The Soph Prom marked the peak of the Formal party season which lasted through Larry Clinton and the Senior Ball in the new auditorium with two thousand people mulling around like the onlookers at a fire. There were times at the Senior Ball when some of the committee claimed that the music could actually be heard. But it was believed to be mere propaganda. But all told the whole top hat season was a great success with only the horse show seeing more uncomfortable people in more borrowed formals trying harder to enjoy themselves and succeeding less. Of course at the horse show even the horses were in tails.

Bill Collinge and I were just climbing down the catwalk above the auditorium when we met Mrs. Roosevelt. She was supposed to be at Michigan State for the lecture series, but in half a day she had covered all Lansing, all East Lansing, three townships, the auditorium, four dormitories, the Union, met personally two hundred students, made three speeches, and discovered four buildings and a faculty member that the college had forgotten even existed. Next to the Ballet Russe and Fritz Kreisler, Mrs. Roosevelt was the most vital and timely attraction offered by lecture board since Smedley Butler and Sergei Rachmaninoff. Michigan State College at least was ready to turn out for a third term for Mrs. Roosevelt.

Anything was anti-climax after the students voted the State News back on the fees. Nine hundred voted for amputation but 5,000 loyal souls reasoned: Something is better than nothing; no State News is nothing but, the State News is; the State News off the fees means no delivery; the State News on the fees means no delivery; the State News must be kept free to protect the students' rights, and besides it's less effort to put an X in the top circle. So the State News was kept on the fees.

Nothing else much of importance took place after that. Jack Teagarden was instrumental in the success of the Frosh frolic—at least his arrangements were instrumental. The Spartan finally came out on time at the Water Carnival. A bunch of foolish looking seniors participated in the Swing-out. Lantern night suddenly arrived, like a hangover after the Mayday Sing. And then, finally Graduation.

My great Uncle knew a man who graduated from college once—but he could never describe him accurately enough for the police to catch him. I still remember that dim June morning when great Uncle and I went roller skating together for the last time. As we paused by Beaumont Tower to light up a cubeb, Arvid Jouppi came by wearing a neat doeskin vest with a percale lining and a borrowed mortarboard.

"Just what," great Uncle asked, "are you doing in here my good man?" Arvid read the last page of copy and opened a window. "I thought," he smiled, "this would be a good place for a Finnish."

Well, isn't it?

"IF I WERE an editor I'd make sure of two things—first, that my editorial experience would not make me lead a dog's life, and second, I'd not be consistently in the dog house with every one including my instructors because of my yearbook activity. My way would be to choose an outfit that does more than put their feet on my desk and pat me on the back. I'd call for Indeco service because it is complete and the best help an editor can get in producing an unusual annual within his budget. Ask the staff on this book if I'm not right."
