Here is a book designed to show the spirit and vitality of Michigan State College as well as the scenic beauty and top educational system which is hers. MSC was on top in 1951. National recognition in education and sports became a reality during the year. The following pages show why . . .

Michigan State College "Shadows"

M.S.C., we love thy shadows
When twilight silence falls,
Flushing deep and softly paling
Our ivy covered halls.
Beneath the pines we'll gather
To give our hearts to thee,
Sing our love for Alma Mater
And thy praises, M.S.C.

full of football upset victories—and one upset loss—on the gridiron . . . Pete Newell's success story on the basketball court . . . when State almost went to the Rose Bowl and would have settled for the Cotton Bowl, but Big Ten said 'no' . . . President Hannah went to Washington to head the Land Grant college committee for college-age draft deferments . . . the Red Cedar was dyed red . . . the pep rallies on Grand River . . . and all of the topics of the day keyed to the gains and set-backs of the American army in Korea . . .

Off to war

Michigan State men wondered—like all America wondered—would this battle scene in Korea be repeated by scores more in the near future?

BUT IN 1951 . . .

other people made news too. The Korean war affected Michigan State College. Many boys left school to serve—others stampeded State's R.O.T.C. program to the point where it is now the largest in history. Since the war's outbreak in July, nearly 300 men have been killed each week. . . . Probably the next important story was the disastrous fire which ate all but the skeleton framework of the huge state office building in Lansing. Some state departments were moved to Quonset Village for temporary quarters. . . . Among top stories during fall term was the Long Island Express train, jammed with homeward-bound commuters, which crashed into an equally crowded local train stopped on the tracks near Kew Gardens, L. I. Seventy-eight persons died in the crash and another 340 were injured. It was New York's worst rail disaster. . . . General Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia University, was called back to general the United Nations forces in Europe. After making a tour of Europe, he told an Associated Press convention group that Americans should not be carried away by government leaders who "shoot from the hip" in giving answers to problems. He said, "Only an informed public opinion can win the peace." . . . General Douglas MacArthur was relieved of his command over UN forces by President Truman in April. The general and the president disagreed over Korean war policies. Upon his return to the United States, General MacArthur was received by unparalled parades of enthusiastic backers. He climaxed his return with a report to congress. . . . Michigan's Senior Senator, Arthur Vandenburg, died on April 19, 1951 at the age of 67.

Important activities take place on the MSC campus every day—some are routine matters, some annual events and others are "firsts." They all play an active part in the students' lives.

For the first time, graduation was held in Macklin Stadium. Its size enabled many more people to see the commencement exercises, previously held in Jenison Fieldhouse.

Last spring, Life magazine sent photographers to cover the Water Carnival. They wanted a red Red Cedar for their color shots and State students paddled up and down the river dying it red. Hundreds of pictures were taken, but were not used.

One of the most important activities spring term is the student government elections. A two-week campaign is carried out, largely through the use of signs and posters. However, many candidates canvas the living units making speeches and providing entertainment. Freshman class elections are held during fall term.

GROWING COLLEGE SPIRIT SPARKS STATE STUDENTS

Students surged onto Grand River after beating Michigan.

An outstanding junior is tapped at the May Morning ceremony.

Again pep rallies attracted many students as the Wolverine sponsored the first outdoor basketball pep rally of its kind. Part of the entertainment was provided by the Lambda Chi dixieland band.

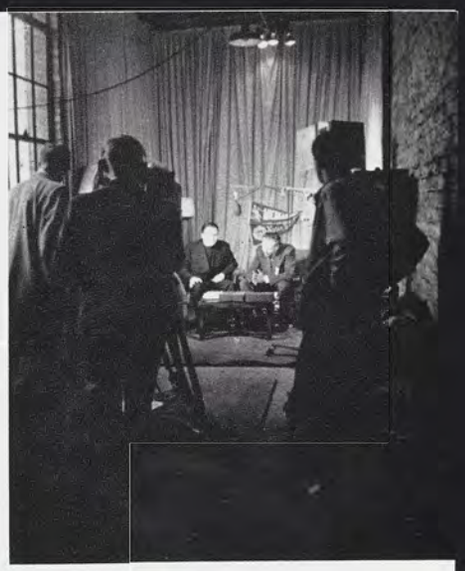

In addition to the top performances scheduled by the lecture-concert series, the First Drama Quartet, consisting of Agnes Moorehead, Charles Laughton, Charles Boyer and Sir Cedric Hardwicke, presented "Don Juan in Hell" to a filled auditorium.

The first rocks for the new chapel arrived winter term from old English cathedrals. The chapel, dedicated to State men killed by war, was finished in the summer of 1951.

The Senior Career Carnival, a tremendous success last year, has become an annual event. Held in the spring, the all-college affair offers an excellent opportunity for students to learn more about jobs in which they are interested, as well as many job placements for after graduation.

One of the most impressive events of the year was the May Morning Sing. Mortar Board and Tower Guard tapped 13 junior and 35 freshmen women for scholarship, leadership, character and service. The tapping took place in front of Beaumont Tower at 7 a.m. the first day of May.

Foreign students perform native dances at the International Festival.

Spring term enrollment dropped to 13,083 after the winter term enrollment of 13,838. This showed a loss of 1,591 students from the 1950 spring term enrollment of 14,674.

With fall came a new school year, and new worries for many of State's men students. One of their first stops at registration was to fill out forms for draft deferments because of membership in R.O.T.C. and enrollment in college—as if marks, activities and social obligations weren't enough to occupy their minds.

The "Voice of America" program came to State to record comments and opinions of students.

"... there's a college known to all, its specialty is winning ..."

Thousands of State students turned out for the pep rallies held at the Bandshell the night before football games. The night before the Michigan game, part of the crowd, led by a few students, turned into a "mob" as they continued their own pep rally on Grand River. The display resulted in a few minor accidents and traffic congestion.

After the long awaited Michigan victory, hundreds of MSC students surged onto the field, congratulating the team and State supporters, and leaving with goal posts, which were later presented to Coach "Biggie" Munn.

President Hannah and Father John Cavanaugh were televized just before the MSC-Notre Dame game in South Bend.

Winter term, the Voice of America came to MSC and recorded impromptu interviews which were broadcast overseas in an effort to help combat communism.

Campus posters play a large part in spring elections.

When a fire started in the cafeteria of Quonset Village in the middle of one night last summer, State students got out of bed to help firemen put it out. The Village, previously used to house men students, serves as living quarters for boys attending Wolverine Boy's State each summer.

3,600 ACRES OF BEAUTY

New wing of the Administration Building

Covering over 3,600 acres and with about 130 permanent and 900 temporary buildings, MSC has one of America's most beautiful campuses, as well as having one of the most modern and best equipped physical plants in the United States. . . .

Most of the buildings are scattered over 160 acres north and 380 acres south of the Red Cedar river. The rest of the acreage is used mainly as farmland.

Original cost of buildings and lands is approximately 48 million dollars.

A comprehensive building program is providing MSC with modern facilities in keeping with the wide and varied scholastic program conducted for students.

These new structures, include six dorms, 11 brick apartments, the Natural Science building, Electrical Engineering building, Physics and Math building, Agriculture Engineering building, Berkey Hall, and the enlargement of Macklin Stadium. Plans have been made for several others. The dormitories have all been built on a self-liquidating plan. Construction of a continuing education hotel, a new veterinary hospital and a memorial chapel is now in progress.

The buildings have been carefully planned and arranged in a setting where much of nature's attractiveness has been preserved by skilled landscaping. The sole project of the Buildings and Grounds department is the landscaping of the campus. All efforts point toward the maintenance and enhancement of its beauty. Grounds are frequently reseeded. There is an intensive program to keep students off the lawns in the spring. A huge variety of trees can be seen on the campus, many of which are of rare and imported species. They are labeled for easy identification.

At the heart of the campus is Beaumont Tower, which has one of the largest carillons in the United States. Its chimes may be heard every 15 minutes, as well as the half hour concert every weekday afternoon at five and Sunday at two o'clock. An afternoon concert is also presented each term.

"The Spartan," a statue of heroic proportions, and designed and constructed by a member of the art department staff, is located on a base south of the Red Cedar river, between Jenison Fieldhouse-Gymnasium and Macklin Stadium. The statue, symbolic of sports at State, is said to be the largest free-standing ceramic figure in the world.

PRACTICAL INSTRUCTION . . .

More than 1200 instructors and professors are ready to aid State students in their search for knowledge. Modern facilities in over 100 well-appointed buildings are available for the students, who spend from 12 to 36 hours in class each week.

Berkey Hall is the largest classroom building, with an hourly capacity of 3200 students.

Education is gained through sources other than labs, lectures and text book assignments. Many instructors feel that field trips are a valuable aid in learning.

. . . SUPPLEMENTS CLASSROOM WORK

Students of Michigan State College, where emphasis is placed upon a practical education, are rewarded with training for a useful and profitable career.

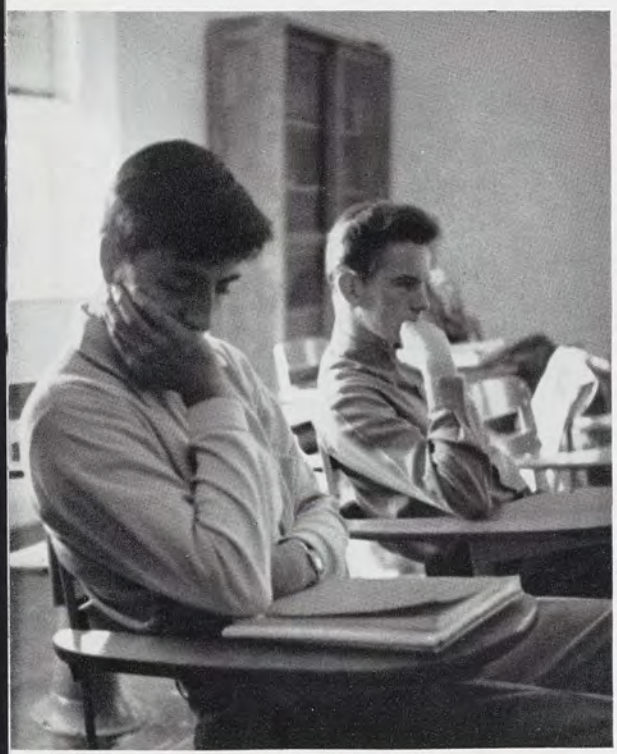

Because of its size, State offers a wide range of courses.

Its curricula includes every major field of study except dentistry, medicine, law and architectural engineering.

Courses are administered under eight major schools: Home Economics, Engineering, Business and Public Service, Science and Arts, Veterinary Medicine, Agriculture, Graduate Studies, and the Basic College. Undergraduate degrees in more than 80 fields of study and graduate degrees in 56 are offered. In addition, State has refresher courses and pre-undergraduate training. Pre-legal, pre-medical and pre-dental courses are also available.

ICE SKATING AND BIOLOGY . . . All in a Student's Day

Special attention is given to fundamental education. MSC has established a national reputation for pioneering in a system of general education, the Basic College. Its main purpose is to provide students with a general and well-rounded education before beginning intensive work in their major fields. Seven subjects are offered: written and spoken English, biological science, physical science, social science, effective living, literature and fine arts, and history of civilization. Each student is required to take five. At the end of each course, a comprehensive examination is given over the year's work. The Basic College was started during the war.

Rounded education—Skating

Basic College texts form the major part of the book stock. The average cost of a freshman's books is $42. Total costs of books are about equal throughout the departments. However, according to a survey, social service major's books rank lowest at $32, and engineering students pay the high of $67.

Between 75,000 and 80,000 books are sold each fall term. The English department requires more books than others, and vet medicine the least number. Some books for vet medicine and a few other courses are imported from England.

MSC RESEARCH RECEIVES NATIONAL RECOGNITION

Grants of thousands of dollars annually enable Michigan State College scientists to carry on extensive research in widely diversified fields.

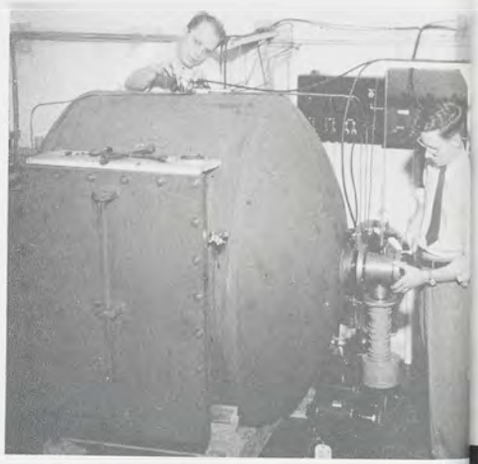

The largest grant received during the past year was $32,500 from the Carnegie Corporation of New York City to the Social Research Service, for setting up a socio-economic research center.

Among the projects which occupied MSC technicians were studies of the dietary needs of aging women, carried on by the Foods and Nutrition department, manufacturing methods of cast iron plow shares for use in Michigan soil, methods of increasing crop production, discovery of another wonder drug, aureomycin, which promotes rapid growth in baby chicks, improved packaging of frozen foods, and many studies of plant hormones, carried on in the newly completed plant science greenhouse which includes 57,000 square feet of space.

Through research by qualified scientists, MSC further expands its service to the people of Michigan.

Field Work Means Hard Work

Field practice is done by majors in police administration, journalism and teaching. Police ad and teaching students do their practice work during the school year, while journalism majors are required to work in some phase of editorial or advertising for at least six weeks during one summer. Summer camps are held for forestry, geology and art majors, and R.O.T.C. cadets.

The main purposes of field trips, field practice and summer camps are to give practical application to theory and to gain first-hand knowledge of the subject studied.

Field trips are taken in several courses, including the basic, physical science. Buses are usually chartered for the trips.

Despite its size and large student enrollment, Michigan State still retains its popular nick-name, "The Friendly Campus." The tradition of friendliness is an integral part of Michigan State College.

The well-balanced social and cultural program, including keen competition in the Big Ten, the intramural athletic program, the fine lecture-concert series, college-sponsored dances, and group-sponsored affairs all add to the congeniality of the college.

Experience in living in a large college community, which parallels the competitive society entered upon graduation, is also gained.

Twelve full-time counselors, on hand to help with any academic or personal problems, as well as instructors, dormitory, fraternity and sorority advisors add a "personal touch" to the friendly campus.

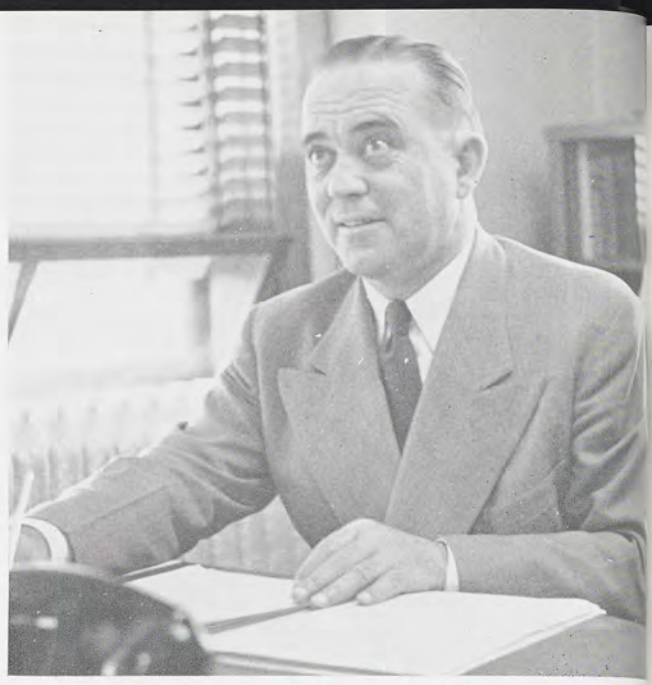

Just as much is learned outside of formal classes.

Throughout the United States and even here in Michigan, many fingers point to colleges and universities as the broadcasting mechanism for socialistic and communistic philosophies. We disagree at Michigan State. These pages are designed to present facts about a cross-section of the 1200 instructors on campus. An outstanding organization of each school was asked to select one of its most valuable instructors. These instructors have proven themselves as sincere, capable advocates of democracy to the student body of Michigan State College.

Dr. Wade O. Brinker—of the Vet Medicine department comes from Fulton, Ohio. He received his B.V.M. from Kansas State in 1939 and his M.S. from Michigan State in 1947. Dr. Brinker is married and has three children.

Unusual News Events . . .

DAIRY QUEENS

TEXAS STAR

SINGS ON DOUBLE STAGE

James Melton, nationally famous singer, takes time out before his appearance at Michigan State to talk with students. Melton appeared on the Lecture-Concert series during fall term.

Because of a capacity crowd in both the Auditorium and Fairchild Theatre, Melton sang to the whole audience at the same time. One stage connects both rooms.

3 R'S IN ALASKA

Don Berg, Traverse City junior, spent the winter of 1949 teaching school on Barter Island, 260 miles north of the Arctic Circle. Besides teaching reading, writing and arithmetic to his assorted classes of adults and youngsters, Don's claim to fame on the tiny five by seven square mile island was his success in having the first Christmas tree the inhabitants had ever seen flown in by plane.

THOUSANDS LAUGHED

The 1951 Wolverine staff photograhed more than 250 groups during the first six weeks fall term. In addition 2,300 senior pictures were taken during the same period.

All groups were not as good natured as the one at the right, and maybe it was a good thing.

CRUEL CULTURE

No, the Angel and Butterfly Zomba did not appear on the Lecture-Concert series.

This shot of two MSC faculty members was taken during a humorous skit depicting professional wrestling. Notice the agonizing pain of the fallen warrior and the apparent glee of the victor.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams took time out from campaigning in October to sign a fraternity pledge's egg. Carrying eggs during Hell Week is a traditional part of many fraternities.

JANUARY SWIM

Charles Crownover, Jackson freshman, dodged ice flows winter term to swim the Red Cedar for $10. Crownover is a member of the freshmen swimming team. He said he bought a 1951 Wolverine with the money. This fact somehow escaped the attention of the Wolverine promotion staff.

MSC WAS FILMED

Jam Handy, film producers of Detroit, filmed 'Post Mark East Lansing,' sequel to 'Waves of Green,' fall term. The color movie features Michigan State College and its activities. All of the 'actors' and 'actresses' are students or faculty members. The movie will be shown to high schools and alumni groups throughout Michigan.

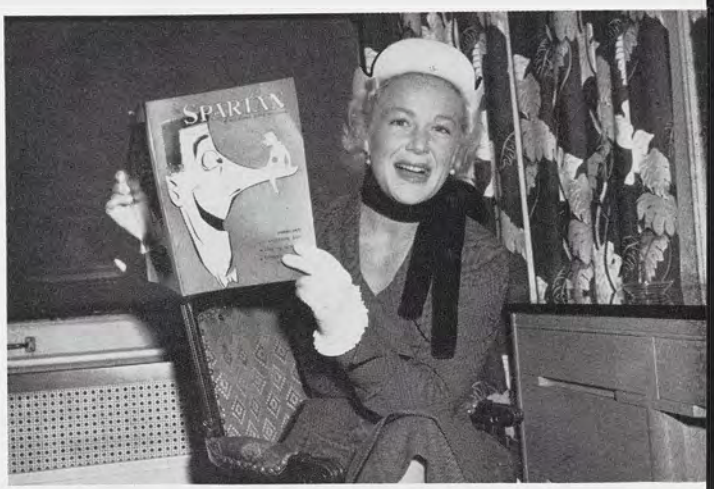

"FIVE-FOOT-TWO . . ."

Burl Ives, folk song singer, appeared at Michigan State fall term. At the left he is giving a few lessons to Wendy Decker, Saranac junior, and Amy Jickling, Dearborn sophomore. Luckily, Burl Ives came to State at the height of the 'Uke' craze and that is why the two state students show such intense interest. The professional minstrel is not playing a ukelele—it's a banjo.

BETTY HUTTON LAUGHED

FLAMING ARROWS

What could have been the highlight of the outdoor basketball pep rally winter term, turned out to be a dismal spark instead. Pre-rally news stories stated that Student Council President Bob Rombouts and Wolverine Editor Jim Brown would each shoot a flaming arrow at a gasoline-soaked pile of lumber, straw and last year's Wolverine cuts. Two things altered the plan. First, the Archers club was called in to shoot the arrows for fear Rombouts might miss the target and second, some pyromaniac threw a match into the gasoline which started the fire before the archers had time to draw back their bows.

KEY UNCONSCIOUS

EVERY ASPECT OF CULTURE IS OFFERED TO MSC STUDENTS

Cultural surroundings, as well as social and educational opportunities, inspire State students to mature development and polished demeanor.

The finest entertainment is provided by the Lecture-Concert series. Admission is free to students, in exchange for a coupon from activity books and presentation of I.D. The world's top speakers, musicians and dramatists make appearances so that students may be stimulated by the best thinking and cultural achievements of the day.

In addition, performances such as winter term's "Don Juan in Hell" by the First Drama Quartet are scheduled.

Religious and music facilities on and near the Campus also offer opportunities for cultural development.

Art displays are changed regularly.

People's church Sunday service congregations are composed mostly of Michigan State students and faculty.

RELIGIOUS GROUPS DRAW THOUSANDS EVERY SUNDAY

Religion enters into cultural patterns all over the world. At MSC opportunities for religious growth are created mainly through East Lansing churches. These are St. Thomas Aquinas, Unity Association, Shaarey Zedek Congregation, Christian Science, St. Paul's Episcopal, College Lutheran, and the People's Church which is interdenominational, including Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, and Congregationalists. Faiths other than these are practiced by many of the college's foreign students. Further religious opportunities are offered through student organizations in these churches and through courses taught by the college.

State students pray during Sunday vesper services at the People's church in East Lansing. The services are sponsored by the Christian Student Foundation.

Catholic students fill the St. Thomas Aquinas church in East Lansing each Sunday and at other services during the week. Newman club is the on-campus organization which helps direct student activities in the church.

Technical lighting and careful staging assume vital roles as the unseen hand in dramatic productions.

DRAMA IS AVAILABLE FOR ALL...

The house lights dim, a hush falls over the audience, the play begins.

Is it Shakespeare, Sophocles, Anderson? No, none of these. It is the "Indian Captive" being given to wide eyed children as they stop jibbering and wiggling to watch a pioneer girl, Eleanor, as she is taken captive by a tribe of Seneca Indians. Last summer the big building which serves as studio held 31 students from MSC and other colleges throughout the country. The studio doubles for everything from a classroom and discussion hall for evening lectures, to a square dance floor, and a starting place for painting expeditions into the surrounding countryside.

Mornings are devoted to watercolor, and the afternoons to oil, each student averaging 10 oils and 20 watercolors a term. Everyone has a chance to express themselves in their desired medium, whether they like conservative or progressive techniques of painting.

". . . MUSIC, MUSIC, MUSIC"

The music department was organized in 1902. At that time it offered only piano, chorus, choir, and glee club. Now the department has expanded to the capacity of two bands, an orchestra, a cappella choir, two glee clubs and a mixed chorus. There are over 278 music majors on campus. However, the facilities of the department are open to anyone interested. The major fields available are applied music, theory, public school music, and musical therapy. The music department also boasts a large circulating library of over 100 albums.

ROUTINE CAMPUS EVENTS – STUDENT'S LIFEBLOOD

More often than not, a student at Michigan State must make a choice between several college events going on at the same time. All through the year a host of student committees plan, build and promote dances, pep rallies, the Water Carnival and hundreds of other activities. There is plenty to occupy the State student when he isn't studying.

But the worth of spending time and talent on student activity committees, sometimes at the expense of classroom work, is not just the rollicking fun it gives to others. The real worth is to those who actually write the skits or hire the bands or pound the nails. It's the working together after the rest of the college has turned lights out which makes student activities develop strong personalities and foster co-operation and a working knowledge of sweat and tears. On this page and those to follow is a pictorial cross-section of routine campus events.

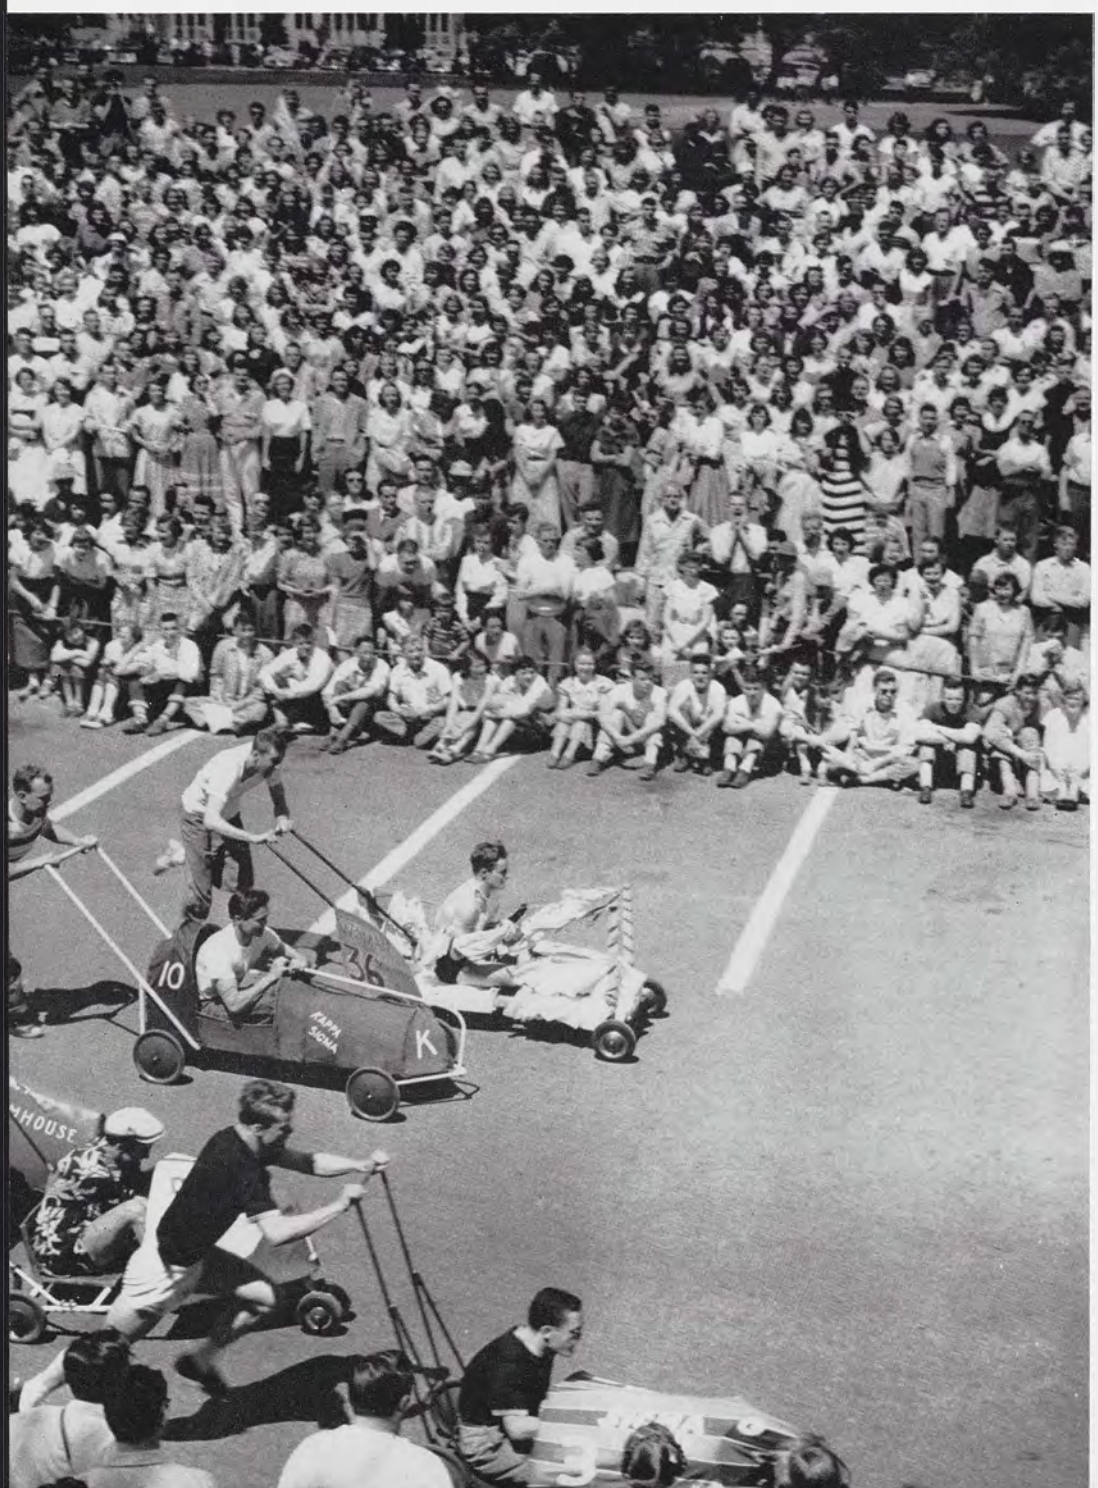

Many more have been omitted, but these pictured here are some of the outstanding activities which include the first day as a freshman to that final graduation day. Here are the events which will be remembered most by the 1951 graduating class and those to follow. Here are activities which lasted but a few hours and took months to plan.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Publications Row—
Union 3rd Floor

According to a recent survey, more than half of State's students participate in extra-curricular activities during their four years of college. On the following pages is a summary of the major activities. . . .

Student council paid plenty at Spartacade.

Number 69170 looks through to more college activities.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Dean Crowe checks the foreign film series.

The wide scope and large number of State's activities and honoraries offer extra-curricular opportunities for any student. Activities range from Student Council to dance committees, while honoraries vary from those which demand a very high point average to those which are open to anyone in the field.

The governing body, of which Student Council is the core, includes Panhel, Inter Fraternity Council, Ag Council, Engineering Council and Union Board, Men's Council, Associated Women Students and Spartan Women's League.

Members of Student Council are elected by students in the district which they represent. Their term of office is one year. They govern the student body as a whole.

Panhel and IFC have jurisdiction over the Greeks, deciding upon matters such as length of pledgeship, quotas, rushing rules, and anything pertaining only to the Greeks.

Engineering Council and Ag Council have the ruling hand over these two schools.

Associated Women's Students is responsible for all the rules and regulations for coeds. These rules apply to all women students, whether they live in dorms, co-ops, or sorority houses. Men's Council acts in the same capacity over male students.

Supervising the activities of the Union is the primary function of Union Board. Members are chosen from petitions and informal smokers to serve on one of the several sub-committees. The heads of these committees form the Board of Directors, which regulates the organization.

THE JOURNALISM BEATS

"Publications Row" on the third floor in the Union, provides offices for the three main publications on campus, the State News, Spartan, and Wolverine. Editors are selected from applications presented to the Board of Publications. The News editors are elected each term, while the other two staffs hold office for one year.

Several of the schools on campus have a publication of their own which provides special interest for their students.

Because MSC is a land grant college, R.O.T.C. is required for all undergraduate male students. Each branch has an honorary to which outstanding members may belong. The Spartan Guard, for underclassmen, and the Officer's Club, for advanced members, include all branches.

One of the newest divisions to the speech department is the television division, now under construction. This will provide another chance for students to show dramatic ability, along with students' radio programs on WKAR.

Studio Theatre, Children's Theatre, Dionysions and term plays offer other opportunities for those with dramatic talents. Theta Alpha Phi, the dramatics honorary, is open to those who have accumulated the required number of points through active participation.

Frosh-Soph Council officers Sue Henderson, Sue Collins and Duane Vernon.

During Freshman Week, Blue Key, men's honorary, conducts a program designed to acquaint new students with the advantages of activity participation. Leaders from every branch of student activities are called upon to briefly summarize their respective honoraries, clubs, committees or sport. Election campaigning for the freshmen offices are held early fall term. This is the freshmen's first crack at working together on student activities.

Lantern Night, traditional ceremony for senior and junior women, is held spring term. This event is the long-awaited activity which is at the other end of the four years spent at Michigan State.

TALENTS ARE DISCOVERED

Auditions are held for membership in the bands, orchestra, glee clubs and choirs. These groups are in demand as entertainers not only on campus, but throughout the state.

The vast number of clubs open to anyone include sectional, curricular, and religious. Sectional clubs, such as the Arab club and Buffalo, N.Y. club offer opportunities for students from the same area to become better acquainted. They are mainly social organizations.

Nearly every branch of study has its own club. Membership is usually restricted to students in the particular school, although meetings are open to all. They are informative as well as social organizations. Movies and speakers are scheduled for most of the meetings.

RELIGIOUS TRAINING

Offering spiritual guidance, the religious clubs play an active part in many students' lives. There are clubs for each of the main denominations, as well as Spartan Christian Fellowship, Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A., which are open to students of any faith. Parties and informal gatherings are held by these groups.

Although winter term is often thought of as the most social, several all-college dances are held all year. Work on these dance committees offers another activity for interested students.

Again, practically every branch of study has its honorary as well as club. However, membership is usually restricted to those with a 3.0 or better.

For the most outstanding students there are five major all-college honoraries. Members are selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership, character and activities. For sophomore women, there is Tower Guard, while Green Helmet serves the same purpose for sophomore men. Mortar Board and Excalibur select senior women and men who have been very outstanding in their four years of college. Blue Key is open to upperclass men, who are chosen mainly for activities. Membership is restricted and candidates are tapped at impressive ceremonies.

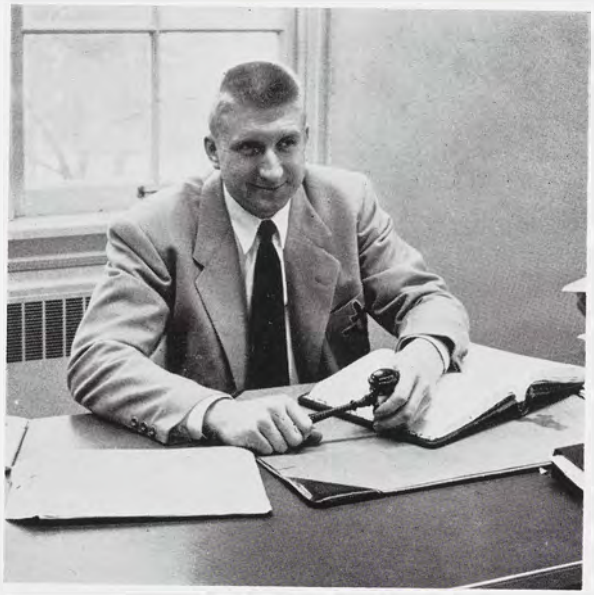

Extra-curricular activities are an important part of every student's life, and the number and variety of activities at State offer an opportunity for all.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Active and interested, the Student Council met weekly to discuss pertinent problems of the campus and to try to find a way of solving these problems.

The Student Council of MSC is made up of representatives who are elected from the various districts in which they live. These representatives act as the student governing body of the college.

The purpose of the Student Council is to control and co-ordinate student activities and organizations. One of its chief functions is its attempt to make these groups more effective and more active in campus life.

Under capable leadership, the 1950-51 Council did its best to operate for the benefit of the entire college population. With this as its aim, the Student Council sponsored the United Nations committee, the Campus Health committee, the N.S.A., and the Civil Rights committee. Besides taking action on issues of immediate importance, the Council also planned future policies. A few of these were the annual campus elections and campaigns which were regulated by the Council. In keeping with spring's gaiety, the Council sponsored the ever-popular Mardi Gras, which is one of the most unique dances of the year.

PANHEL COUNCIL . . .

Panhel representatives file bids for rushees.

The group of women that compose Panhel are just like any other group of college coeds, with one exception. They are the ruling body for approximately 1,000 Greek women in 16 different sororities. Panhel formulates the rules and regulations that guide sororities through rushing. It also acts as a court in passing judgment upon any of the sororities that fail to comply with the rules which it passes.

SORORITY GOVERNMENT

An important function of Panhel is coordinating inter-Greek activities in cooperation with IFC, the ruling body for Greek men. Greek Week, which takes place the last week in October, is an outstanding example of fraternity-sorority cooperation. The week starts with a Greek banquet, and progresses through exchange dinners and a round table to give the Greeks a chance to get to know one another better, and to discuss problems common to both organizations.

Panhel is composed of two representatives from each sorority, one junior and one senior. Each house is allowed one vote. The group adds to its activities by serving as "gray ladies" on the girls' floor of Olin Memorial hospital, running errands or carrying messages.

This May, Panhel and IFC held the first Big Ten Greek conference to take place at MSC. Representatives from all Greek organizations on the Big Ten campuses arrived to take part in the convocations, and to personally look over the famed State campus.

IFC doesn't regulate the number of smokers that each fraternity may have, but it does schedule open houses which enable the students to see each fraternity house and to meet more of the men. Violations of all pledge rules are judged by this organization.

Activities keep the IFC members busy. They sponsor a program of leadership training in which the officers of each fraternity gather in their respective groups to discuss problems of mutual concern to their particular office. All intramural athletic events are arranged in cooperation with the Intramural office. IFC members also worked on a new rushing booklet.

One junior member and one senior member from each fraternity are elected to serve on IFC.

Representatives of each fraternity are present to tell prospective pledges about fraternity life, and to tell them about their own fraternity.

Union Board, consisting of 14 directors and 75 students, creates and maintains necessary house rules and negotiates with Union management in regard to student grievances concerning the building's operation.

Some of its functions are week-end band and record dances, including two free dances during registration week. These record dances enable students to "dance to the music of the nations top bands" for minimum fees.

Other activities consist of sponsoring bridge and dancing lessons, showing movies of State's football games played away from home, conducting visitors on tours through the building, and opening the card room for student enthusiasts.

Added features are the bi-weekly "Party-Parties," Student-Faculty coffee hours, and the T.G.I.F. parties on Friday afternoon. Here, at these meetings, students may see their friends and relax during a break between classes.

ASSOCIATED WOMEN STUDENTS

The Activities Board of Associated Women Students is composed of 15 women elected by the women's organizations on campus. This board is the co-ordinating body for these organizations. The Activities Board helps prepare election schedules for women's organizations on campus.

Members of the Judiciary-Legislative Board of A.W.S. are selected by their housing units. The chief aims of the Judiciary-Legislative Board are to encourage high standards of social conduct and good scholarship from the women students at Michigan State College. The Judiciary Board also tries to promote a feeling of friendliness among the co-eds. A.W.S. sponsors many activities such as the all-college Activities Carnival, and traditional Lantern Night ceremony.

AGRICULTURAL COUNCIL

The Agricultural Council is one of the oldest and most active organizations on campus.

Composed of representatives of the various Ag clubs, the council serves as a co-ordinating body and seeks to promote a feeling of cooperation and friendship among the students in the School of Agriculture, through the sponsoring of several annual social events. During fall term, the council sponsors the popular Harvest Ball and Ag Convocation, held the second week of fall term.

Highlighting the activities of winter term, are the club president's dinner, held during the first week, and the Honors and Achievements banquet, at which awards are presented annually to the outstanding students in the several schools of Agriculture. The Ag Drag and Ag Field Day are held during spring term.

ENGINEERING COUNCIL

The Engineering Council is an organization coordinating all the engineering clubs at Michigan State. The council is made up of two representatives from each engineering club.

Meetings were held every other Wednesday night. The council was formed in 1939, but activities were discontinued during the war.

The Engineering Council's social functions are limited to sponsoring the Engineers Ball, and a few informal parties.

The Engineers Exposition is sponsored by the council with the aid of various other engineering societies. The third annual exposition was held May 11 and 12. During this time all the engineering buildings held open house and showed their latest equipment to those interested. Business concerns set up exhibits to show their modern machinery to the public. The exposition attempts to aid students in finding jobs after graduation.

BOARD OF PUBLICATIONS

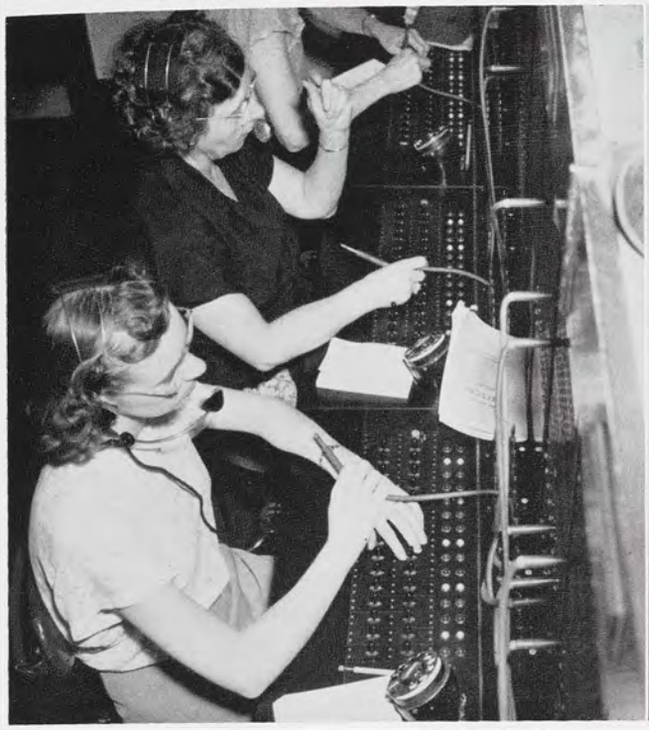

William McIlrath
Publication Director

Regulation of State's student-staffed publications is the work of the Board of Publications. Five administrative members, who hold permanent seats on the board, and three student representatives, who hold the position for one year, compose its membership.

The three student representatives include the editors of the Wolverine and State News, and one delegate elected from editors of the minor publications.

Problems of policy, budget and staff may be aired at the monthly meetings. Another important job of Board of Publications members is that of interviewing candidiates for editorial positions on all campus publications. Candidates must write letters of application to the secretary of the board which are reviewed at the meetings.

Secretary of the board this year was William McIlrath, new director of student publications. Although the secretary has no vote, McIlrath was able to serve as liaison between students and administration.

College switchboard operators put through calls for the publications.

AIDS TO PUBLICATIONS

Publications to most people mean pictures and words, pictures to look at and words to read. The various work of the photographer and journalist are within their comprehension.

But what of the hundreds of other jobs which must be completed before the picture or article can appear?

Channeling the many telephone calls which are required are the women at the college switchboards. To them go incessant demands to "get that call through in a hurry, got a deadline to meet."

Picking up broken flashbulbs and scrap paper, and scrubbing ink off the floor is the work of the Union building maintenance crew.

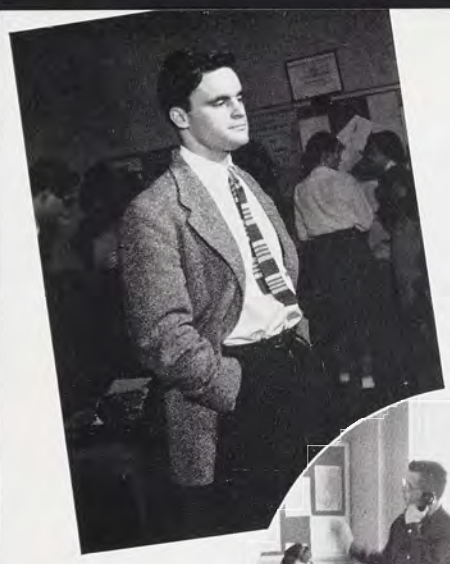

The college postal employees are entrusted with orders and photos for engravers, instructions to the printers, sales letters and a hundred other details which are just part of the work involved in putting out a campus publication.

Students enrolled in news writing, advanced copy editing and other journalism courses are required to work for the News. The rest of the staff is made up of hard-working volunteers no matter what their major is.

Since last year the paper has increased its size from four to six or eight pages. The sports, woman's page, and news coverage were more than doubled.

Mr. William McIlrath was appointed advisor for the college publications by the Administrative Board of the college. This does not influence the editorial policy of the paper.

The State News is a member of the Associated Collegiate Press and the Associated Press.

Over 100 active staff members worked together to produce the 1951 Wolverine. To these students representing every school on campus goes the credit for this yearbook. The job often required night sessions as well as off-class hours. Despite a drop in enrollment, the yearbook was able to equal in content and size last year's record breaking book.

To furnish all staff members with an understanding of the overall production of the book, a program of ten training sessions was held during winter term. The program, unique with this year's production, consisted of informative talks by each editor as to the contribution of his staff in relation to the entire book.

The 4,000 Wolverine copies sold this year surpass previous books by featuring a greater variety and quantity of color. An inside cover map of the Michigan State campus provides another outstanding improvement for the 1951 Wolverine.

MSC SPARTAN . .

The 70-member staff of the Spartan work to publish the campus humor magazine. This publication, packed with cartoons and features comes out nine times during the school year.

The Spartan celebrated its fourteenth birthday this year, having been founded in 1936 by James Hays III. Hays decided the campus should have an outlet for student practice in publications and as the MSC enrollment was rapidly increasing, he found many willing participants.

. . . . HUMOR MAGAZINE

The Spartan is a non profit publication, all earnings being put back into the magazine in the form of color pages, office supplies, and art supplies.

It is co-sponsor for the Homecoming Queen and also presents six "Spartan Dramatic Awards" every year for performances in Studio Theater, Fairchild, and Children's Theaters.

For variation in ideas, an exchange takes place with 100 other United States college magazines. These are filed and since there is no copywrite for college magazines, jokes and articles may be reprinted as in the Kleptomania spread.

Outstanding members of the staff receive a Spartan key at the Publications banquet. Depending upon the size of his job, a member may receive a gold or silver key.

SPARTAN ENGINEER

To keep students in the fields of engineering, chemistry, mathematics and physics informed of the most recent developments in their particular areas is the purpose of the Spartan Engineer. This student magazine is published every other month.

The articles include information on the latest happenings, usually of a technical nature. Articles by students in these various fields are accepted, along with material from outside sources.

The Spartan Engineer is represented on the Board of Publications. The magazine participates in the publication's banquet spring term, at which time the new editors are announced.

MSC VETERINARIAN

Although the MSC Veterinarian is published primarily in the interests of the students and faculty of the MSC School of Veterinary Medicine, approximately 1000 copies are circulated throughout some 40 states and 20 foreign countries. This technical magazine is published three times annually. Subscriptions are sent to other colleges, veterinarians, and interested laymen.

The Veterinarian is composed almost entirely of contributions from students, veterinary doctors, and other professional people living in all parts of the world.

Robert A. Baldwin, editor of the magazine, is supported by a staff made up of veterinary students and Dr. C. F. Cairy, faculty advisor.

HOMESTEADER MAGAZIN

Home economics and agriculture students combine efforts to turn out the Michigan State Homesteader. Founded four years ago by four men from the school of agriculture, the magazine has grown until this year 60 students make up the staff.

The Homesteader works with the goal in mind to offer home economics and agriculture majors experience in writing, and information in their fields. Besides general interest items, articles interpreting research from the professional point of view of home economics and agriculture students are included.

This year the staff is headed by a woman. Bettylou Terry, editor, is a senior in the School of Agriculture.

Strictly a student publication, the Homesteader is on the exchange list with many major agriculture schools and universities throughout the country.

The purpose of the arts is two-fold: they offer an opportunity for students to show their abilities, and they provide entertainment for their audiences. They are outlined on the following pages . . .

STUDENT ARTS

Modern interpretation of the dance is performed by interested students in classes led by Mrs. Bodil Chenoweth. During the Christmas holidays the troupe traveled to New York to present a program of four numbers.

THE THEATER IS AVAILABLE IN MANY FORMS

"All the world's a stage and all the men and women merely players" . . . . or perhaps "All the college is a stage and all the students potential players" would be more appropriate for State's emphasis on drama.

Yes, whether it is a term play, Studio Theater, or Children's Theater production, all men and coeds are welcome to the footlights of college dramaturgy. Naturally it is rather difficult for a husky six-foot male to portray Jack in "Jack and the Bean Stalk," which Children's Theater presented this year. However, there are vital opportunities opened for him . . . . perhaps along the line of shifting scenery or hoisting props.

Spring term 1950 "Elizabeth the Queen" by Maxwell Anderson was performed not only as the term play at the college but also at a matinee for 500 students on campus honoring the third annual MSC High School Drama Day.

During the summer session Ralph Duckwall directed "Night Must Fall" and presented it in connection with the Union Board in the Union Building.

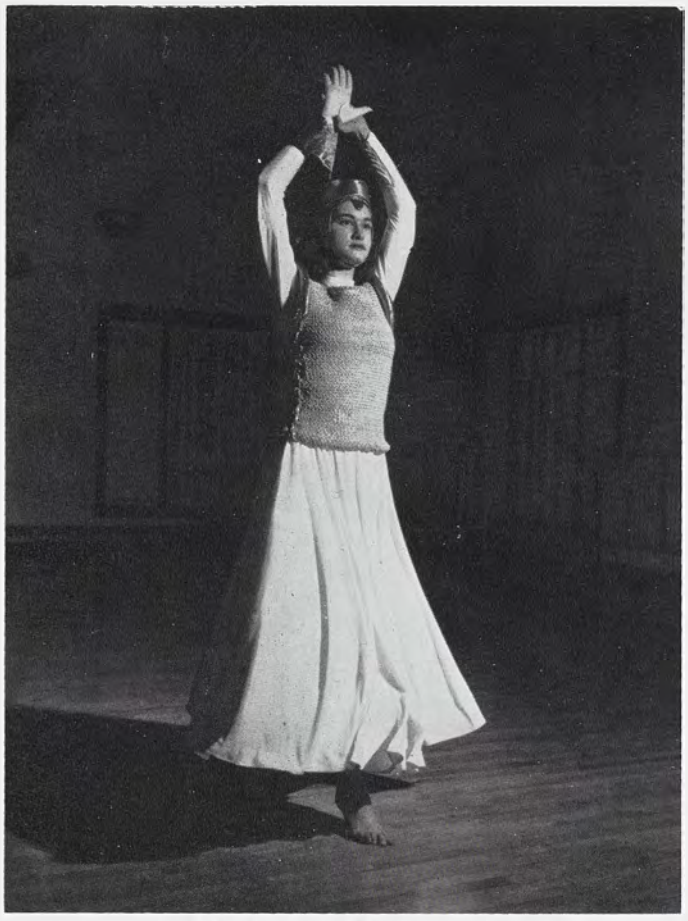

"In the time of your life, live." This was the theme behind Fall Term's play, the "Time of Your Life" by William Saroyan. The scenes in Nick's Pacific Street Restaurant, Bar and Entertainment Palace, and then in a New York hotel room provided an evening of enjoyable, lively entertainment. The well motivated play was interpreted by an able cast of 25 students.

Ginny Nye closely follows teacher Mrs. Bodil Chenoweth in a swirling dance routine.

Michigan State College troupes made country-wide tours.

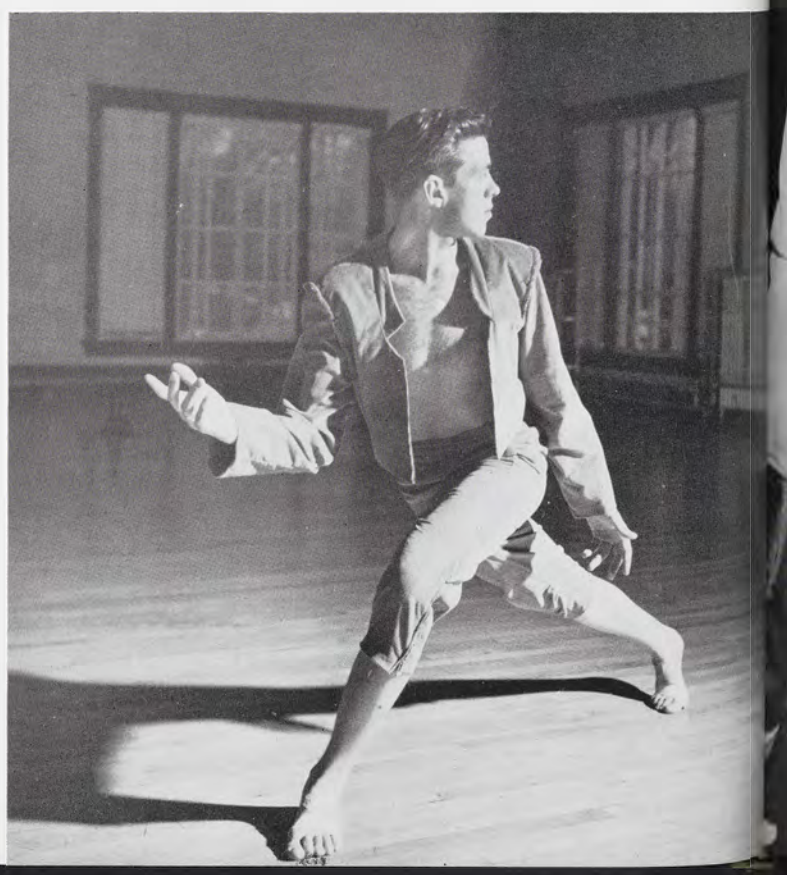

DANCING DEVELOPS POISE

Opportunities for participation in dramatics are numerous at State. As the major term plays presented throughout the fall, winter and spring terms do not afford sufficient parts for all college students interested in acting, the Studio Theater further supplements the openings for student enthusiasts.

Studio Theater provides a training program for those who want to act. Throughout the school year several one-act plays are presented by the group. The plays are directed by students taking courses in direction and therefore, offer practical and profitable experience for them. The majority of these one-act plays are presented without the aid of elaborate scenery. However, a few props are used.

At the conclusion of a one-act play two graduate assistants, who have been helping with the performances, offer a critique or constructive criticism to the actors of the play. This practice was initiated this year for the benefit of the actors and actresses.

During the year, Studio Theater presents one three-act play. Generally this is directed by a person as the thesis project for his masters degree. This year the three-act presentation was "The Corn is Green."

Dance team precision takes hours of practice.

MSC VARSITY BAND

Leonard Falcone, Director

Members of the MSC marching concert band returned to school two weeks early to prepare for the Oregon State game and the 1950-51 season.

Under the direction of Leonard Falcone and the new drum major, Gene Hickson, the band put on entertaining half-time shows for nine straight games.

After football season, coed musicians were added to the membership of the band.

During winter term, the band played for basketball games, a winter concert, and a concert in Hillsdale. They also had the honor of being the first MSC band to give a concert in Ft. Wayne, Ind., for the Musical Educator's National Conference.

Spring term, the band marched at the weekly R.O.T.C. parades and played for two spring concerts, the Senior Swing-out and for June commencement.

At a band banquet in June, the members of the marching band received awards corresponding to their number of terms of service.

MSC ORCHESTRA

The Michigan State College Orchestra, now in its 22nd year, was organized by Professor Alexander Schuster, who is still its able director. Prospective members are required to audition at the beginning of fall term. Students may, if they wish, receive one credit for playing with the orchestra. Many of the same musicians also play with the Lansing Symphony.

The group does not limit itself in respect to either composer or period. Its many programs offer a wide variety of listening enjoyment. The orchestra presents music for student programs and for organizations visiting on campus. It also offers ten scholarships each year to students who prove themselves worthy of the honor and wish to continue their music education.

Professor Schuster leads an Orchestra practice.

A CAPPELLA CHOIR

Helping the songsters of MSC to achieve a greater degree of finesse in the art of unaccompanied song, Dr. William Kimmel of the music department organized the A Cappella choir in 1936. In the 15 years of its existence the MSC A Cappella choir has become one of the finest of its type. Aspirant members are auditioned at the beginning of each fall and winter term.

The group meets weekly and practices under the directorship of Professor Richard Klausli.

The choir is in great demand by various groups throughout the state. These out of town appearances make up a major part of the choir's activities.

The choir is also very popular on campus, and its annual spring concert is enjoyed by the entire student body.

Professor Klausli directs A Cappella choir in a practice for their Christmas program.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

Prof. David Machtel, Director.

The Michigan State College Men's Glee Club, under the direction of Professor David Machtel, has been praised for its superb concerts at which everything from operatic numbers to negro spirituals are sung.

Every Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoon from five to six o'clock, the 55 members can be found practicing. Music majors do not always make up the majority of members in the club, for anyone who enjoys music may audition for membership.

The Men's Glee Club is not only known on campus, but throughout Michigan. Its fame can be attributed in part to the spring tour throughout the upper part of the lower peninsula.

In the spring, it presents an annual concert. The club also sings for the benefit and pleasure of the many who attend the conferences and conventions held on campus throughout the year.

Founded in 1911, the purpose of the club is to provide the student body and friends of the college with the very best in male group singing.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

The Michigan State College Women's Glee Club, one of the more aesthetically-inclined organizations on campus, was founded in 1928. During its 23 years of existence it has done much to further music appreciation among the students at Michigan State.

Tryouts for prospective members are held at the beginning of each term, when students may audition before Dr. William Sur, director of the Glee Club.

Under the direction of Dr. Sur, the group practiced every Tuesday and Thursday from four to five p.m. The public was given the opportunity to hear the results of these rehearsals when the Glee Club sang at the Boys' Vocational School, broadcasted over WKAR, and united with the Men's Glee Club and A Capella Choir to present the annual Christmas Concert.

One of the biggest events of the year for the group was their Spring Concert, preceded by a banquet for the coeds and their dates. One of the highlights of this program was the presentation of Fred Waring's arrangement for women's voices of Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker Suite.

WKAR SERVES . . .

Student talent is tape recorded—then broadcast throughout the state. Many Radio graduates go directly to commercial stations as announcers and writers.

Farm news is broadcast every day to Michigan farmers.

. . . ALL OF MICHIGAN

The college radio station, WKAR, is one of the oldest educational stations in the nation. It spreads good will for MSC as far as 80 miles around East Lansing. From sun-up until sunset its transmitters send out educational services and entertainment. It does not carry advertising.

WKAR represents in its programs every department at MSC from veterinary medicine to music. It also makes campus activities known through announcements of athletic events, Water Carnival, and many others, besides programs sponsored by student organizations.

State's "Uncle Bob" holds the attention of youthful radio listeners.

Classical, as well as popular music, is played on Station WKAR.

Membership in most honoraries is restricted to those with a 3.0 or better in their majors, and the all-college honoraries have several qualifications. The following pages summarize these organizations. . . .

BLUE KEY . . . Junior and Senior Men's Honorary

President Jack Boerema talks it over with Secretary George Bradford and Steve Brandsorfer.

Founded originally at the University of Florida in 1924, Blue Key was initiated at Michigan State College three years later as a junior and senior men's honorary. The chapter at Michigan State is now one of the largest in the country.

Every fall term 35 junior and senior men are tapped at the annual IFC-Panhel dance. These men are chosen on the basis of outstanding leadership, extra curricular activities, service to the campus, and high scholarship. Blue Key adheres to the principals of loyalty to the school, stimulation of school spirit, cooperation with the faculty, encouragement of leadership, and maintenance of scholarship.

As well as being an honorary, Blue Key is a service organization. The men sponsor helpful and education talks by representative student leaders for freshmen during orientation week. Blue Key also combines with other student organizations in helping with the annual campus clothing drive. In addition the members publish a newsletter of campus happenings and notices.

EXCALIBUR — Senior Men's Honorary

Excalibur, founded at MSC in 1921, is a local honorary for senior men. Comprised of thirteen outstanding seniors, this organization represents one of the highest honors possible for a State man to receive.

Members are chosen on the basis of extra-curricular activities, outstanding leadership, scholorship, character, and service to the college. As has been done in the past, ten men were tapped at the annual spring Water Carnival, and the remaining three joined the ranks of Excalibur at the IFC-Panhel dance during fall term.

The basic purpose of the organization is to bring together student leaders from every major phase of campus activities and to coordinate all functions on an informal level.

Every Tuesday noon during the year the Excalibur men met to eat lunch together and discuss current campus problems. They also held one meeting with Mortar Board in order to become acquainted with the activities being carried on by the women of this honorary.

This year the traditional jackets worn by the members of Excalibur were light blue-gray with a red "X" emblem on a yellow background.

GREEN HELMET — Sophomore Men's Honorary

Green Helmet plans worthwhile activities for all the students.

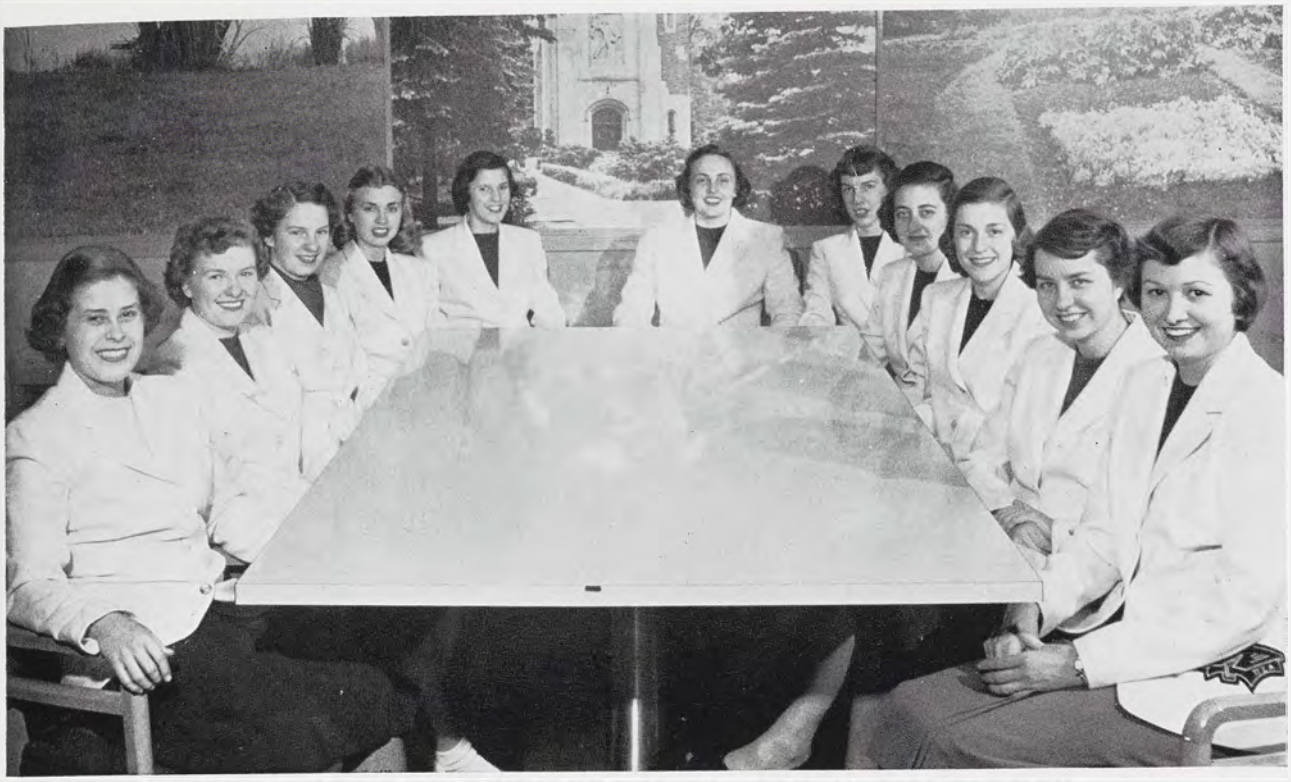

Green Helmet was founded at MSC in 1938 by Dr. Fred T. Mitchell, past dean of men. It is a sophomore men's honorary which serves to reward and recognize outstanding leadership. Along with the scholastic requirement of an all college 3.2 or better, members are selected on the basis of leadership, character, and participation in extracurricular activities.

Members are tapped at a special ceremony spring term. When a member goes active he is presented with a key.

Fall term, a smoker is held to help make freshmen men feel more a part of MSC by acquainting them with the campus, its traditions and its faculty.

This year, as in the past, a tutoring service was conducted by the Helmet men. It was available to all MSC students on application.

The main social event of the year was the annual dinner with Tower Guard.

MORTAR BOARD — Senior Women's Honorary

The highest honor to be obtained by a senior woman is membership in Mortar Board. The thirteen women who comprise this national senior honorary are tapped by the preceding group at the May Morning Sing.

Scholarship, leadership and campus service are the basis for selection. The coeds are chosen from the upper 35 percent of the senior class. Twenty is the maximum number of women who may be elected each year, but thirteen has become the traditional number at MSC.

Truly a service organization, Mortar Board members undertake many projects as a group, in addition to fulfilling leading roles in other campus organizations.

The marriage lectures each spring term are sponsored by Mortar Board, which schedules speakers, distributes tickets and ushers at the lectures.

Lantern Night, traditional ceremony for senior and junior women spring term, and the Spinster Spin, all-college semi-formal dance March 30, are planned by this honorary.

Freshman mixers, teas and parties for foreign students, compilation and posting of the Dean's List in the Union, and ushering at graduation in June are a few of Mortar Board's other activities.

As a symbol of their organization, the members wear white jackets with a black and gold emblem on the pocket. These jackets and their black and gold mortar pin will always stand as a goal for under-class-women.

Mortar Board members discuss their projects at one of the Thursday night meetings.

TOWER GUARD . . Sophomore Women's Honorary

Tower Guard, the only honorary organization on campus for sophomore women, was founded at Michigan State College in the fall of 1936.

Each spring term 35 women are chosen on the basis of outstanding character, scholarship, leadership and service during the fall and winter terms of their freshman year. After being tapped at the impressive and traditional May Morning Sing, preceded by a serenade the night before, these girls serve a pledge period of three weeks. They are then active members throughout their sophomore year. As juniors, they become alumnae.

The purpose of Tower Guard is mainly concerned with service to MSC. It supports worthy campus activities, plans and carries through effective student counselor systems for freshmen, and works wholeheartedly for the advancement and recognition of the college.

Throughout the year, members participate in many varied activities, some of which include reading to blind students each week, assisting bewildered students during registration week, and participating in orientation week functions, as guides and traffic directors.

ALPHA DELTA SIGMA . . . Advertising

Membership in Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising honorary, is limited to college men who are advertising majors and those who have had some experience in the specific field.

Don Francisco chapter was brought to the Michigan State College campus May 7, 1949. This is the forty-fifth chapter to be established. The honorary was founded at the University of Missouri in 1913 by John B. Powe.

Alpha Delta Sigma brings young men together who have a common basic interest in the broad field of advertising as a life-time profession.

The organization recognizes those students who have already begun to work and become acquainted with experiences in the field, whether in high school, college, or any other advertising venture.

One of the newest services of Alpha Delta Sigma is the honorary's assistance in publicity for any campus organization which seeks its help. The honorary also has many interesting guest speakers at its meetings to provide further knowledge to students on the professional advertising level.

ADS members study newspaper promotion and advertising from papers all over the country.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA . . . Service

An APO helps another hospital paitent.

Membership in Alpha Phi Omega is open to all college men who have had experience in the boy scouts. APO is strictly a service organization, not an honorary and not a social fraternity. It is the only Greek letter society acknowledged as such in the world.

Last year the Beta Beta chapter at Michigan State received the Silver Achievement Award for its outstanding work.

APO's have originated many well known campus traditions. Among these are the Interfraternity Sing held each spring, and the Homecoming Dance with which APO now helps the Central Michigan Alumni Association. In 1950, the "Ugliest Man" contest was established as an aid in securing funds for the Campus Chest.

Major campus services are undertaken by this group. APO originated and helps with the project of finger printing the students at registration for purposes of civil identification. Also it conducts a hospital service in co-operation with Panhellenic Council whereby patients are visited each day and errands run for them. Ushers are provided for the Student-Principal convocation held each fall term.

American Society of Civil Engineers

The American Society of Civil Engineers, a national organization, founded its student chapter at Michigan State College in 1921. The aims of the organization are the same as those originated with the parent society. It strives to provide the opportunity for the introduction of professional associations, the dissemination of engineering knowledge and the promotion of fellowship among civil engineers.

To promote technical knowledge, ASCE has secured men prominent in the engineering profession to address its members. Harry Conrad, president of the Christman company and senior contact man, has been instrumental in bringing the deans of Michigan contractors here.

Membership in the student chapter is open to civil engineers who have completed three terms or more of work under this school. In addition, freshmen interested in civil engineering are invited to attend the meetings of the ASCE. The society's organization room is open to all interested students. They are invited to make use of the magazines and pamphlets kept there.

JR. A. V. M. A.

Ninety per cent of the students enrolled in the School of Veterinary Medicine are members of the Junior American Veterinary Medicine Association at MSC.

The aims of this united group of under-graduate veterinarians are to promote a friendly spirit among the majors, to gain professional knowledge, and to make the facilities of the national organization available to its members.

The Spartan chapter, which was founded at MSC in 1927 by a small group of 12 charter members, is sponsored in conjunction with the Vet Council.

All under-graduates enrolled in the School of Veterinary Medicine are eligible for membership in Junior A.V.M.A.

The bi-monthly meetings gave the vet majors an opportunity to meet each other outside the classroom. Usually local practitioners gave lectures on the aspects of veterinary practices. The members were kept informed of the latest advances made by research almost as soon as the discovery had been made.

Educational movies and a social hour with the Auxiliary group, which includes wives of members, were held at one of the bi-monthly meetings. The wives of members held classes every week in order to learn the language of veterinarian operations, animal diseases, and other veterinary terms. The women promoted a friendly spirit among themselves and become better acquainted with the work of their husbands through these meetings.

The members published the MSC Veterinarian, which is a quarterly journal, now in its tenth year. The journal presents the latest developments in the field and serves as the alumni record. Awards were presented to the staff, and the new staff members were announced at the publication banquet in May.

The group held many social events during the year. Fall term, it presented a Bench show, which was so called because dogs were put on a stand for judging. The group was host to members of the Michigan Association conference of post-graduates in January.

KAPPA ALPHA MU

Photographers discuss shooting all-college dances.

Campus publication photographers are united in the local chapter of the national photo-journalism honorary, Kappa Alpha Mu. State's 25 KAM members are all working publication photographers. Those invited into membership must have shown outstanding ability in photo-journalism.

Aside from taking the majority of pictures that appear in all of the major campus publications, Kappa Alpha Mu members photographed the contestants for homecoming queen. The contest finalist's pictures were sent to William and Mary where the homecoming queen was selected. The honorary was this year a co-sponsor of the homecoming queen event.

Pictures of 1,100 couples were taken by KAM photographers at this year's J-Hop. The idea, new with the 1951 J-Hop, was received with enthusiastic student response.

The weekly Kappa Alpha Mu meetings were frequently high-lighted by talks from celebrated photographers of both commercial and amateur standing.

This March twelve members from the Michigan State chapter attended the KAM National Convention at Baylor University in Waco, Texas.

Last spring for the second consecutive year, the Michigan State chapter of Kappa Alpha Mu was selected from 22 national chapters to receive the plaque as the outstanding member group in the country.

PORPOISE – Swimming

The year 1930 found Porpoise fraternity, national swimming honorary, forming the local Beta chapter at state. From the beginning its aim has been to sponsor and encourage swimming, diving, water safety, and water sports both on and off campus.

Fall term the fraternity produced its seventh annual water show entitled "Water Maniacs on Detour." The crowning of the porpoise queen and her court plus the dedication of the memorial plaque introduced the program. Other features of the show were group swimming, stunt diving, and comedy acts, all of which were originated and executed by members.

All activities of porpoise are under the guidance of Coach Charles McCaffree Jr.

Each year the Hubert E. Gluske Memorial award is presented to the outstanding member of the varsity swimming team. The award, a plaque upon which the name of each year's recipient is engraved, was established in 1942. A small plaque which he may keep is also given to the winner.

To wind up the year's activities there is the annual Swimmers' Food Bust spring term. Many outstanding swimmers and coaches from various high schools throughout the state are invited to attend.

The combined efforts of the best thespians at MSC produce best results. Therefore qualifications are set high enough to insure only the best as members. In order to belong to the organization, a student is required to have a certain number of points, given for participation in any college dramatic production. This includes not only acting, but directing, backstage work, publicity, etc. Junior rating is also required for membership. Many of the members are enrolled in departments other than the department of speech, dramatics and radio.

Since 1937 Theta Alpha Phi has sponsored or co-sponsored the term play. Within the past year they have produced Maxwell Anderson's "Elizabeth the Queen," "Time of Your Life" by William Saroyan, and Fay Kanin's "Goodbye My Fancy." During summer term they put on another play, "Night Must Fall."

Members of the organization work not only on term plays, but also in Studio Theater, Experimental Theater, and Children's Theater.

TAU BETA PI — Engineering

Tau Beta Pi, the national engineering honorary, is open to any junior engineer who is in the upper fifth of his class, or any senior engineer who is in the upper eighth of his class providing he has a "B" all college average.

Tau Beta Pi was founded at Lehigh University in 1884, "to mark in a fitting manner those who have conferred honor upon their Alma Mater by distinguished scholarship and exemplary character as undergraduates in engineering, or by their attainments as alumni in the field of engineering, and to foster a spirit of liberal culture in the engineering colleges of America."

There are at present 86 chapters with a total of 59,490 members throughout the United States. Tau Beta Pi's two publications are the official magazine, The Bent, and The Council Bulletin, which is published four times per year. The convention, normally meeting annually, is the legislative body of this organization.

This engineering organization strives for virtues other than high scholarship, however. The new pledge must be in extra curricular activities, possess a fine personality, and be a cooperative individual. After pledging a period of nine days, writing themes and papers and passing examinations on the constitution and other Tau Beta Pi matter, the pledge is ready to be initiated into the honorary.

Fraternity officers, Lawrence Turner, William Little and James Jursik, study the books.

The honorary is open to students in the schools of Science and Arts and Business and Public Service who, in their junior year, have maintained not less than a 3.2 all college average.

Prospective members are invited to join the honorary and wear a wooden key until the initiation service and following banquet, when they receive their gold and black keys.

Annual project of the Tau Sigma's is preparing an effective study sheet entitled "How to Study" at the beginning of the year. These are distributed to freshmen and new students who face the problem of adjusting to college life and developing their study habits. Personal study aid will be given students by Tau Sigma members on request.

Scholarship plaques were awarded to students in Science and Arts and Business and Public Service who, during their freshman year, maintained the highest scholastic average. The awards were presented at the winter term banquet which members gave in honor of the new initiates of Tau Sigma.

The Grill seems to be a good place for president Al Schroeder to talk over the Tau Sigma meetings with Marianne Kingsbury and Pat Gilpin.

Their main purpose is to promote and encourage varsity athletics, and to strengthen the mutual interests of the athletic department, the Alumni Varsity Club and the active varsity club.

Brains as well as brawn are required for membership. This means the scholarship point average set up by the rules governing intramural athletics plus an exhibition of outstanding athletic achievement and service to the school.

All Varsity club members are presented with a life-time pass which admits them free of charge to all home athletic events.

ALPHA EPSILON RHO – Radio

With a long role of former members active in professional radio throughout the country, Alpha Epsilon Rho offers sought-after recognition to students who have shown outstanding ability in the field of radio.

A tiny gold microphone flanked by rows of pearls is the official badge of these students who have earned their membership in the MSC Delta chapter of this national honorary radio fraternity.

Third term sophomores and upperclassmen who have accumulated 20 points by participation in live microphone work of excellent quality, may become candidates for membership. Many appearances on the air in either an acting, directing, script-writing, or technical capacity are necessary before a student can compile the required points.

The one-half hour weekly dramatic show, "Radio Workshop," is sponsored by Alpha Epsilon Rho. Many original student scripts are produced. This year, for the first time, programs were taped in the radio classroom studios of the auditorium and then sent to college station WKAR for broadcasting.

As a community service, Alpha Epsilon Rho presented demonstrations to high schools, women's clubs and civic groups in the vicinity to show how radio shows are produced. This program was undertaken soon after the chapter's founding in the spring of 1943 by Joe A. Callaway, director of MSC's radio education.

After taking in 18 new initiates in April, Alpha Epsilon Rho now has a membership of 25 active students. Two delegates from the chapter attended the national convention at Columbus in May. This convention is held as a part of the annual meeting of the Institute for Education by Radio.

The organization strives to unite students and faculty and thereby promote animal husbandry work. It also encourages a higher scholastic standard among the students.

Livestock and meat judging teams were sent to Kansas, Chicago, Illinois, and Fort Wartle, Texas to compete with teams from other colleges and universities. These trips allowed the students to obtain practical experience and to test their knowledge and skill.

The club sends an annual report into national competition. Last year it placed third.

The members sponsored the Little International Fitting and Showing contest as well as the annual Ag Field Day.

Fall term included the alumnae breakfast, faculty student night, and a booth in the activities carnival.

The big event of the year was the horse show presented winter term.

Spring term, the club participated in the land parade. Social events included a banquet and a picnic.

Campus 4-H Club

The Campus 4-H Club was established at Michigan State in 1937. The purpose of the club is to develop leadership among its members. In the fall, the Campus 4-H club sponsors a meeting which representatives from all the 4-H clubs in the state attend. While here, these representatives attend a football game, and in the evening a party is given in their honor.

Canadian Club

The Michigan State College Canadian club was organized in the fall of 1949 by interested Canadian students. Beginning as a purely social club, it now has developed into a discussion group. Two of its topics this year were "Canada's Part in the Korean Conflict" and "Canada's Court System." Non-Canadians are invited to these discussion sessions.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

One of the outstanding events that took place on the MSC campus in 1934 was the formation of the Christian Science organization. In the United States there are 100 such organizations and seven in foreign countries. These groups are strictly religious and are based on and operated in accordance with the manual of the Christian Science church by Mary Baker Eddy.

The main objectives of the group are to unite the Christian Science students at MSC in friendship, to give information about the faith, and to teach the Bible and the various Christian Science manuals. All who come in contact with the organization are told of the healing truth of the absolute power of an everpresent God.

The group does not hold any social functions for its members. However it does sponsor two lectures a year on the Christian Science beliefs. These lectures are given by members of the Christian Science Board of Leadership, who tour the country speaking before student groups.

This year the speakers were Peter Biggins, C.S.D. from Seattle, Washington and Margret Morrison, C.S. from Boston, Massachusetts.

CHRISTIAN STUDENT FOUNDATION

The Christian Student Foundation was established to serve the spiritual needs of Protestant students of Michigan State College who are attracted by its interdenominational program. It is the official student fellowship for Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, Congregational, Evangelical and Reformed students, and is affiliated with the World Student Christian Federation through the United Student Christian Council of North America.

Because it is an independent interdenominational organization, the Foundation doors are open to all students, regardless of race or creed. The College House, next door to the People's Church, is the headquarters for this group of Christian students.

The purpose of the Foundation is to lead students to a more abundant life, through Christ. This means Foundation provides opportunity for each student to find his own special niche. Activities include worship, social service activities, creative art, music, and social life. At the College House, the Christian student finds friends who help him to formulate and make concrete his own ideas on living.

Sunday night vesper programs at People's Church are the high spot and focal point for the Foundation's activities. Outstanding religious leaders are featured. Afterwards a student-speaker forum and coffee hour are held where students have the opportunity to exchange viewpoints and gain new insights into the complexities of life.

Of special interest to individuals at the College House are the ping-pong room, the photography dark room, arts and crafts group, drama group, and the C.S.F. choir. Cell groups and Bible study groups are also active.

DAIRY CLUB

The Dairy Club was founded at Michigan State College by dairy students. It is a local organization formed for the purpose of promoting a common bond for all students and faculty members interested in dairying and its advancement.

Membership in the organization is open to all students who are interested in dairying as a profession or who are taking dairy courses. They devote much of their time in furthering the educational purpose of the club by having speakers who represent a cross-section of the dairy industry and its many phases present at their meetings so that an overall view may be presented to the members. Along with this program, the club also sponsors trips to various dairys and dairy plants for the purpose of studying occupational conditions there.

The Dairy club also sponsored two judging teams. The Dairy Cattle Juding team went to the National Dairy Cattle Congress held at Waterloo, Iowa. The Dairy Products Judging team attended the Dairy Exposition in Atlantic City, N.J., where they took fourth place from among teams representing 26 colleges.

This year the club was also very active socially. In May they held their annual Dairy club steak fry which featured a traditional baseball game between the manufacturing and production majors. Instead of holding their well known "Dean's Milking Contest" this year, they decided to try something different and held a "Queen's Milking Contest." In order to promote student-faculty relations, the club held the annual Bean Feed for students and faculty members.

In past years the Dairy Club has sponsored the Little International Judging Contest and Farmer's Frolic in conjunction with Block and Bridle, an animal husbandry organization. This year the tradition was upheld, and these two clubs presented their coordinated activities during Farmers' Week, extending invitations to all interested students.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB

The International Club, founded in 1945 on the M&C campus, is open to all students. The main objectives of the club are to acquaint students of different lands with the customs and cultures of other unfamiliar lands, to obtain outside speakers to talk about education in other countries, to show movies concerning the activities of various lands, and to provide a social life of informal entertainment.

This year the club boasted an enrollment of 308 active members, coming from 49 different countries.

To establish international understanding, the club takes part in numerous campus activities including intramural sports, the water carnival, activities carnival, sponsors the International Teas held the first Sunday of every month at the Center, and cooperates with the Center in sponsoring the annual Christmas and Thanksgiving parties.

In addition to these activities, the club sponsored the annual all-college Cosmopolitan Ball winter term. This festival is presented for the American students who attend the program and see different nationality groups presenting programs typical of their native country.

Participation in radio broadcasts over the college station on Sunday afternoons was another feature of the club. A few members were chosen to discuss informally their country's politics, economics, social life and customs.

Under the direction of the adult education department, trips were sponsored to nearby communities where the foreign students and Americans spent a few days together in developing internationalism.

The publishing of a bulletin, "International Club News", was a new project for the club. This year news of various home lands, politics and social news was included in the 20 page bulletin.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB

The Psych club was founded by a group of students at Michigan State College in 1950. Its purpose is to discuss discrimination and political problems and to hear educational speakers. The Psych club sponsors round-table discussions, including a symposium each term with the faculty. The members attend many social functions including parties, picnics, and dances sponsored by the club.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION CLUB

PEM club meets twice monthly, once for a business meeting and once for a "Play Night." These latter meetings include several types of activities. Fall and winter terms, members play basketball and volleyball and in the spring, outdoor events claim their attention. Last fall, Coach Collins of the wrestling team gave some pointers on defensive tactics in judo.

SOCIETY AUTO ENGINEERS

The Society of Automotive Engineers is the professional association serving as the center of technical thought and discussion for engineers of the automotive industry. It is associated with seven other schools which conduct a district meeting once a year. This year it was held at MSC in April. Highlight of the program was a race with jet-propelled cars.

Although organized primarily by former Navy men, the club is now open to any MSC student, regardless of sailing experience. Summer practices are highlighted by intercollegiate racing, climaxed by a regatta in the fall.

STUDIO THEATER

Studio Theater is open to freshmen and sophomores who are interested in dramatics, and to upper-classmen who are not members of Theta Alpha Phi. One-act plays and scenes from great plays make up a portion of the group's schedule, and each term a full length play is presented. Included in this season's schedule were Moliere's "The Imaginary Invalid," which was done in arena style, and George Kaiser's "From Morn to Midnight," an expressionistic play.

SPARTAN WOMEN'S LEAGUE

Founded at Michigan State College in 1931 for the purpose of service to college individuals and organizations, Spartan Women's League has become an active organization initiating and maintaining many service projects over the entire campus.

The group is headed by a controlling board consisting of the club officers and committee chairmen. SWL is divided into groups, each working independently on one of the various projects of the club, and each girl working on one or more of the committees. Such groups as publicity, membership, and recognition committees are included.

Each spring the recognition committee is in charge of a breakfast for Tower Guard members and their newly tapped initiates. Throughout the year SWL honors new organizations and honoraries with recognition parties. Also during spring term Spartan Women's League sponsors the Spinster's Spin in cooperation with Mortar Board and Tower Guard. This is an all college semi-formal dance to which the women invite their escorts.

This year the project committee introduced the combination dorm and co-op sing including both men's and women's housing units. In addition, they sponsored several student discussion groups.

Work was done by the art and publication's committee on a booklet intended for new students. It contains information on the technicalities and procedures of the activities of Freshman Week and explains such things as how to make out schedules and how to go through registration in the most efficient manner. The booklet contains illustrations necessary to give the new students a picture of Michigan State College and to clarify its various orientation processes. Spartan Women's League held faculty-student coke hours several times each term for the purpose of getting better acquainted and for better understanding.

Luncheon meetings every Wednesday were held in Old College Hall. Each term one social party was sponsored by the group.

TWO X FOURS

The Light Construction and Lumber Merchandising Club, better known as the "Two X Fours," was founded at Michigan State College in 1948, and has now expanded from a few interested students to over 30 members. Primarily for the purpose of discussing and sharing of topics and knowledge of mutual professional interest, the "Two X Fours" also aids in placing its members in their chosen field.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS CLUB

The Industrial Arts Education Association was organized on State's campus during the winter term of 1950. The club has a triple objective. It clarifies the purpose of industrial arts education and promotes a medium for united action on problems of common interest to the group. It also stimulates an interest and understanding of problems found in the teaching of industrial arts.

AMERICAN FOUNDRYMEN SOCIETY

The American Foundrymen society was organized in September, 1949 by engineering students at Michigan State. Officially recognized by the college, the chapter held its formal initiation last May. It now has 47 members, making the chapter the second largest in the United States. Interest in foundry work is promoted by movies and industrial speakers and sponsors. Inspection trips are taken to foundries in central Michigan.

PROMENADERS

The Promenaders, a dance club, was founded in 1949 to further the interest in folk and square dancing. An outstanding feature of the club is the demonstrations, in which members exhibit dances for various groups all over Michigan. In addition, the club sponsored an all-college Hoedown each term. Membership is open to all those interested in folk dancing, but is limited to 60.

It is a fellowship of students and faculty men whose purpose is to further the development of Christian ideals and promote the advancement of a Christian society. The "Y" sponsors the Spartan Forum, a weekly discussion group. Current issues are debated by qualified persons over WKAR.

Y. W. C. A.

State's YWCA chapter, established in 1894, is an active group. Members receive leadership training in clinics and are encouraged to increase their understanding of international affairs by faculty fire-side meetings and panel discussions. WINGED SPARTANS

The Winged Spartans is a group of Michigan State College students who believe that flying in a club can be cheaper and more fun.

The purpose of this club is to provide low cost flying for members, to promote a general interest in aviation, and to provide flight instructions if desired.

Membership is open to all students, staff, and faculty members. Students who are not yet 21 must obtain written permission from their parents or guardians to become members. The non-refundable lifetime membership fee is $35. Dues are $5 per month whether you fly or not. Solo flying costs $3.60 per hour. These rates are set just high enough to cover the cost of flying. Individual insurance policies are required by the club.

The Winged Spartans is a non-profit corporation and operates just like any other business corporation. A board of directors consisting of president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and five other members are elected to manage the business of the club. The meetings are held from time to time in the Old College hall at the Union Building.

At the present, the club owns and operates two airplanes. One is a Piper Cub. It has a tandem seating arrangement. The other plane recently purchased by the club is a spin proof Europe. This side-by-side seater cruises at 125 miles per hour and can be used by qualified members for cross country flight. This new plane has such features as a tricycle landing gear, 24 gallon fuel capacity, and a two-way radio. The club's planes are located at the Capital City Airport and they are maintained by the Herbert Aviation Company.

Occasional breakfast flights, inter-collegiate flying meets, cross country flying or night flying are a part of the training of the Winged Spartans. Frequently club members fly home for the week-end. Picnics, dances, coffee hours, movies, hayrides and many other social activities are enjoyed by the club members of the Winged Spartans.

On the following pages are the pictures and story of the Reserve Officers Training Corps of Michigan State College: the instructors, the enlisted men, spring parades, summer camps, and corps sponsors . . .

MILITARY DEPARTMENT

R O T C

A student interested in military science and tactics couldn't go wrong by selecting the program offered by the Reserve Officers Training Corps Detachment. The MSC unit is not only the third largest in the country but it also contains a greater variety of corps than is represented at any other college or university.

A cadet at MSC has a choice of eight army corps or either of two Air Force fields. This year over 2600 students enrolled for training in either the Anti-Aircraft Artillery, Armored, Infantry, Field Artillery, Military Police, Ordnance, Quartermaster or Signal Corps. Courses in Air Force Administraion and Logistics and Air Force Engineering and Maintenance were attended by over 600 future airmen.

In the course of their training, cadets receive practical instruction in organization, leadership, tactics and discipline which will be of future value to them either in the service or in industrial or professional careers.

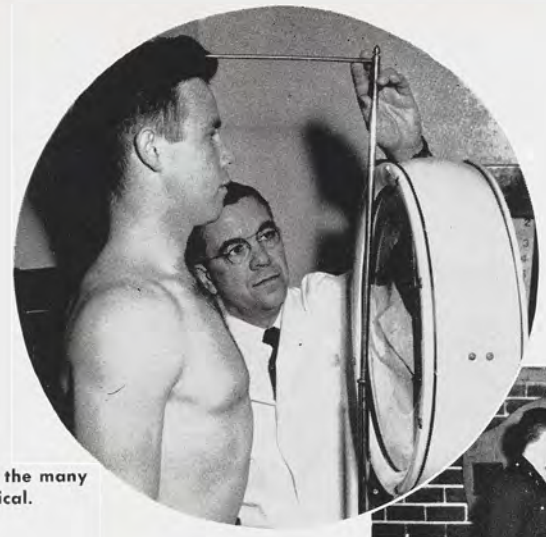

Colonel Dissinger awards cadets Don McGregor and Blaine Strimple gold bars upon receipt of commissions at the final spring parade.

STANDARD OPERATING PROCEDURE

An advance cadet barks a command as three basics try their best during their first rifle drill.

Colonel Dissenger escorts Honorary Colonel Dee Weinberg at the fall Coronation Ball from the stage after she received honors from the entire Corps.

Representatives of Jacob Reed's Sons adjust one of the 1200 uniforms which the firm makes for advanced ROTC cadets each year.

COLONEL CHARLES E. DISSINGER

Professor of Military Science and Tactics

Although the control of the operation of Departments of Military Science and Tactics and Air Science and Tactics is vested in the President of the college, matters pertaining to the ROTC programs are coordinated by the Commandant.

Colonel Dissinger, serving his third consecutive year as the Commandant, holds the Distinguished Service Medal for his work as Director of Mobilization with the Army Service Forces during the Second World War.

LT. COLONEL GEORGE O. COMMENATOR

Professor of Air Science and Tactics

Colonel Commenator is the second person to head the Department of Air Science and Tactics. After World War II he was commanding officer of the 9th Air Disarmament Group which had the dual mission of disarming the German Airforce and surveying the German production methods which produced the Luftwaffe. Holder of the Bronze Star, Air Medal, and ETO ribbon; he flew many B-26 combat missions over Europe.

AIR FORCE ADMINISTRATION–LOGISTICS

In order to put an Airman's entire life history on one sheet of paper M/Sgt Yeske explains the necessity of making information concise on this type of record form.

Although great emphasis is being placed on technical developments within the Air Force, the role of the bookkeepers and logistic personnel cannot be overlooked. Technical developments without control of personnel and supplies would leave the Air Force in a highly disorganized state.

To assist in meeting the requirements of the Air Force for junior officers, the Air Force ROTC unit trains students as administrative and logistic specialists; while at the same time teaching them the essential characteristics of leadership.

Field trips are conducted to supplement classroom teaching and this year cadets were flown to Chanute Air Force Base at Rantoul, Illinois to observe administration and logistic functions.

This year the six-week summer camp has been eliminated due to the overcrowded facilities at all Air Force bases. The present plan will permit Air ROTC cadets to attend summer camp immediately after graduation instead of between their junior and senior years.

Gay.

AIR FORCE MAINTENANCE–ENGINEERS

Captain Morrison outlines the mechanical features of a new type reversible propellor to three Engineering cadets.

The "fifties" has been termed "the decade of air decision" and one of the decisions already made is the emphasis which must be placed upon technical training for Air Force officers.

The Air Force ROTC unit has as a mission the Air Force "Aircraft Maintenance and Engineering" training of engineering majors in the ways of the officer. Mysteries of jet propulsion, the why and how of aircraft construction, and the complexities of the electrical system of the latest long range bomber are only a few of the problems into which these cadets delve.

Field trips were made this year to the Jet Fighter Base at Mt. Clemens, Michigan and to the "Test Bed" of the Air Force at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio.

ARMORED CAVALRY

As Cadet Perry manipulates the elevating mechanism of a 75mm cannon on the light tank, Major Townsley shows Cadet Willis what Perry is accomplishing.

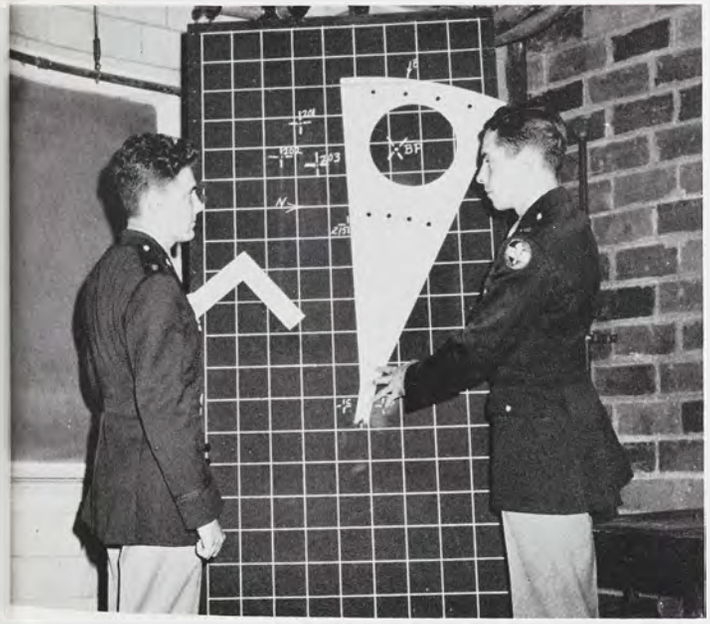

The Armored branch (formerly the Armored Cavalry) indoctrinates our future tank commanders in the principles of armor employment. Being a highly mobile arm, Armor requires great flexibility of mind, concept, and knowledge of formations, and to this end all Armored cadets are trained in tactics, supply, tank gunnery and all other fundamentals required of a tank platoon commander.

The tankers of Michigan State spent their six weeks summer tour at the Armor School at Fort Knox, Kentucky. Tactics, gunnery, tank driving, organization, and a memorable three day bivouac, helped to fill the forty-hour training week. Of course, Louisville with its good old southern hospitality and the Post dances at the Officer's club helped fill a few of the spare hours.

Row One—Howard G. Ling, Donald J. Cullen, Capt. Robert W. Samuel, Capt. Paul G. Krotts, M./Sgt. Leander O. Rudinger, and Allen J. Leweke. Row Two—David C. Corkill, James H. Bause, Leo F. Baumgartner, William R. Barton, Kenneth M. VanPatten, and Harry F. Canfield.

FIELD ARTILLERY

At the plotting board, two future artillerists plot the position of enemy objectives in respect to their gun position.

No longer can the traditional field artillery caissons be seen rolling along the dusty road, pulled by the venerable army mules. Gone also are the red-legged cannoneers who first sang the celebrated caisson song.

But the spirit and team work that was part of the old gunners is ever present in these untried artillerists of today. With powerful prime movers replacing animals and caissons, and 155mm rifles and new self-propelled weapons you can be sure that "where ere you go you will always know" that the MSC ROTC field artillery cadets will be rolling along with all of the corps traditional spirit. This was proved during the six-week summer camp at Fort Bragg, North Carolina where the artillery cadets practiced the principles of gunnery by not only firing the weapons but displaying precision with them as well.

SIGNAL CORPS

From the highest headquarters in Washington, D.C. to overseas theater headquarters and fighting units, communications flow over Signal Corps operated radios and wire channels. The march of military events is recorded and preserved by Signal Corps photographers on still and motion picture films.

To "get the message thru," the Signal Corps unit orients its cadets in the overall operations of the Signal Corps. Training includes instruction on wire, radio, message center, signal supply and photographic methods. A maximum amount of time is spent on practical work with Signal Corps equipment.

At the Signal Corps Summer Camp at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, cadets receive further training with the emphasis on field operation. Appropriately named the home of the Signal Corps, Fort Monmouth provides an abundance of signal equipment and a highly qualified instructor staff to round out a cadet's training and experience.

QUARTERMASTER CORPS

The Quartermaster Corps procures, stores, distributes and accounts for more than 70,000 items of supply, and in addition performs many services necessary to their use, maintenance and repair. This tremendous volume of service and supply makes the Corps one of the largest business enterprises in the world. It is fortunate that the underlying principles of accounting, marketing, procurement, management, storage, distribution, food handling and textiles as taught in college are equally applicable to military and civilian business operation.

The Quartermaster Corps therefore looks to the ROTC program as a primary source of officer material, and ROTC courses are taught with the idea of supplementing the college work with the Military phases of Quartermaster work.

The summer camp program at Fort Lee, Virginia, is designed to give "on the job" training in the practical aspects of both garrison and field operations.

MILITARY POLICE

Military Policemen dust finger prints by the iodine method.

Whether in garrison or front line, the Military Police officer keeps order and logistical security. His job calls for great tact, firmness, and unwavering judgment. He is active in military government and criminal investigation. Few military positions are more exacting or more influential, wherever troops are stationed.

To find out how these things are accomplished fifty-four cadets, representing MSC's first year advanced Military Police unit, journeyed to Augusta, Georgia, last summer to attend the six-week training period at Camp Gordon. There they joined forces with some 250 cadets from other universities throughout the nation to see the Army method of Military Policing after hearing about it in classroom.

ORDNANCE BATTALION

The ordnance battalion men practice loading a 57 MM mortar.

What is Ordnance? To quote Ernie Pyle, the famed war correspondent, "Men of the Ordnance Department are the mechanics, the craftsmen, the fixers and suppliers of the army . . . they find the normal satisfaction that comes from making things whole again instead of destroying them."

The Ordnance Corps, as it is now called, has developed the radio-operated VT fuse, the bazooka, the General Patton tank, and the recoilless rifle. Ordnance men assemble, disassemble, and do the major repair work on vehicles; they rebuild tires, and repair everything from watches to artillery. Truly they are the craftsmen for the fighting instruments of the Army.

Ordnance ROTC graduates receive advanced education at arsenals, with industrial organizations, and at leading universities.

INFANTRYMEN

The Infantry unit develops the all-important qualities of leadership and teaches the technique of employing small units essential to the Infantry platoon leader.

Classroom work is restricted for the most part to theory. Summer Camp gives the student an opportunity to make practical application of those things learned in the class room. Each student fires the rifle, carbine, automatic rifle, machine gun and the mortar at summer camp besides participating in numerous tactical problems.

All this is necessary because the Infantry officer of today is the key to success in battle. To keep his know-how in tip-top shape, he attends schools, travels widely, serves in command and staff jobs with famous Infantry divisions, the Airborne, the Constabulary and the Armored Divisions.

He is the jack of all missions, and no mission can succeed without him.

Practice begins on the 75 MM recoiless rifle in the Pines behind Demonstration Hall.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT

Anti-aircraft Artillery weapons range from the small deadly 50-caliber machine guns firing simultaneously in groups of four to the larger 90mm and 120mm guns with automatic radar control firing at unseen enemy aircraft flying at high altitudes.

Anti-aircraft Artillery is organized and trained to perform the dual mission of firing accurately at both aerial and ground targets. In its aerial role AAA provides protection from attacking enemy aircraft to vital objectives in both the United States and the war theaters. In its ground role AAA fires accurately at such targets as tanks, troop concentrations, communications centers, and artillery positions.

In the ROTC program, the most accurate and current information on Anti-aircraft Artillery tactics is presented in the classroom. At summer camp the ROTC Cadet actually performs the jobs that he will be required to know or perform after he has received his reserve commission and is assigned to an Anti-aircraft unit.

These ROTC cadets are sighting and training a 40 MM anti-aircraft gun.

CORPS SPONSORS

The Army of the United States claims that, "We may not have the best, but there are none better." That is how some 3,000 men of the ROTC feel about their Honorary Regimental Colonel and Corps Sponsors.

This fall the entire ROTC elected to the rank of Honorary Colonel, Dolores Weinberg, and to accompany her on her military staff each branch selected a sponsor. These girls were given their commissions at the annual Coronation Ball when they received the traditional white capes and diamonds.

SPARTAN GUARD

The Spartan Guard halts momentarily before the Statue of the Spartan before entering the parade ground for the first spring term parade.

This year marks the fifth year of the basic military honorary known to all the campus as the Spartan Guard. It is composed of Basic ROTC cadets who have proven outstanding military scholars and who are interested in advancing their military knowledge in leadership and precision drill. Members of this organization are distinguished by their white leggings, gloves and helmets, green shoulder cords and special lapel pins.

The Guard has been active both on and off the campus during the entire school year. During fall term it acted as guard of honor at the Coronation Ball, rendering honors to the Corps Sponsors. Winter term it presented close-order drill exhibitions.

For spring term parades it marched in a separate parade unit. Its marching excellence in the Holland Tulip Festival was recognized by its being presented a special award of merit. The Spartan Guard was also the honor guard during the Spring Commencement Exercise. Like regular ROTC Units, the Spartan Guard has its own Corps Sponsors.

Three MSC cadets dismantle the famous "grease gun" used by the Military Police as a close combat automatic weapon. This 45 caliber machine gun fires a bullet which will knock a man to the ground regardless of where it hits him.

ATHLETICS

Cager takes shot.

Michigan State athletic teams have come a long way since their humble beginnings. Many more peaks may be recorded in the future but the present period is one which will always stand out from the point of national recognition. The following shows why. . . .

Biggie Munn—Coach of the Year.

Carey forces opening to sink shot in Indiana game as Means and Stauffer stand by for the rebound. The game ended with State on the short end of a 37-47 score.

SPOTLIGHTED SPORTS

The year 1950-1951 marked the beginning of an era in MSC sports. The Spartans were no longer independents last fall as they began to compete for Big Ten championships in most sports. State did not compete for the Big Ten football championship. They will begin that in 1953.

MSC proved to the other members of the conference that it would not be a push-over on the athletic fields. Among their major accomplishments were second place finishes in the conference swimming and cross-country meets, third places in both track and wrestling, and victories over three Big Ten gridiron opponents. One of the football victims was the University of Michigan, conference champions and Rose Bowl victors. Another coveted grid triumph was a thriller over the fighting Irish of Notre Dame. Many records and individual titles were also claimed by Spartan athletes.

Perhaps the biggest single moment in a season filled with thrills was the long-awaited pigskin victory over Michigan. After losing squeakers for two successive years, the 1950 Spartans beat the Wolverines, 14-7 at Ann Arbor. Sonny Grandelius and LeRoy Crane were the Green and White heroes as they each scored a touchdown.

Another highlight was the 36-33 triumph over Notre Dame. Notre Dame, less formidable than in previous years but no push-over was fired to a fever pitch. Pep rallies and "Beat Michigan State" signs dotted South Bend's streets.

Great defensive play by end Jim King and linebacker Doug Weaver, combined with a strong running game gave the Spartans an early lead, but when the dust had cleared it was Bob Carey's field goal that proved to be the margin of victory.

The record of eight victories against a single loss served notice to the other members of the Big Ten that the Spartan gridders will be rough to handle when they enter actual league competition. Besides Michigan their conference victims were Minnesota, and Indiana. Both the Hoosiers and Gophers were whitewashed by the Green and White. Indiana lost 35-0 and Minnesota was beaten, 27-0.

NCAA MEET

Also during the fall the Spartans were host to the 12th annual cross-country meet. They came within two points of upsetting a highly-favored Penn State team as they were thwarted in their attempt to capture their third straight NCAA title.

In their first attempt for the Big Ten title, the harriers were runner-ups to Wisconsin by five points.

Winter term of 1951 saw exciting matches in the eight indoor sports.

The swimmers led the way with nine victories against one defeat in dual meet competition and finished second to Ohio State in the championship meet. All-American Clarke Scholes and sophomore sensation Bert McLachlan paced the Spartans by copping two individual championships each.

Scholes took the conference championships in the 50 and 100-yard freestyle events while McLachlan was top man in the 220 and 440.

Jubilant Spartans.

Another coveted prize was the second successive win over Michigan. The victory in 1950 was the Spartans first over the Wolverines in a series dating back to 1922.

Taking two individual titles, the wrestling team finished third in the title match. George Bender and Gene Gibbons climaxed an undefeated dual meet record by annexing the 167-pound and 177-pound conference crowns. The grapplers won six of nine matches during the regular season.

NEWELL TAKES OVER

A new coach and different style of game paid dividends for the basketball squad. Pete Newell became head coach and installed a controlled ball system which won 10 of 21 games for the State quintet. The squad was virtually the same as that which won four and lost eighteen in 1949-50.

The cagers won five of 14 tilts in Big Ten competition to place seventh in the conference. Their defense was the best in the Western Conference and fourth in the nation. Among the State victories were two over Michigan, the first time in 17 years the Spartans have swept the annual series.

Paced by Jesse Thomas the indoor track team took third place in the conference championship match. Thomas, who starred in nearly every meet all season, also sparked the State attack in the annual Michigan State relays at Jenison fieldhouse. The Spartans split their two dual meets. They trounced Iowa and were edged by Wisconsin.

Tossing the coin.

HOCKEY IMPROVES

Hurt by the loss of first-stringers Gabby Marek and Rae Johnston the boxing team failed to live up to pre-season expectations. However, they posted a 4½-3½ victory over the NCAA co-champions, Gonzaga. Maryland and San Jose both beat the Spartans by 4½-3½ scores. The loss to San Jose was the first home defeat since George Makris took over as boxing coach in 1947.

Standouts of the squad were light heavyweight Chuck Speiser and sophomore Jed Black.

The 1950-51 hockey squad showed marked improvement over the previous year's winless team by notching six victories while losing 11. It was only the second year of intercollegiate competition for the Spartans.

Mel Stout, who consistently took top honors in the events he entered, paced the gymnastics team to a five-won, three-lost dual meet record. Coach Charles Schmitter's fencing squad had the same dual meet record.

In the spring of 1950 Spartan teams competed outside of Big Ten competition for the last time.

Five record-breaking performances featured the outdoor track season.

The two-mile relay team of Dave Peppard, Bill Mack, Warren Druetzler and Don Makielski blazed to a new world's record of 7:31.8 in the Los Angeles relays. Mack also set a new varsity mile mark of 4:12.2 and Druetzler broke another record with a 9:33.6 performance in the 3000-meter steeplechase. The other existing mark fell to sophomore Bob Carey in the shotput.

Scramble for the ball.

STATE'S SPORT YEAR . . .

Sonny Grandelius, behind the blocking of tackle Don Coleman and quarterback Al Dorow, carries the ball toward the enemy goal line.

John Moore, one of the Spartan basketball team's centers, tries a hook shot.

If Spartan football teams can do as well against Western Conference opponents after they become participating members as they did this year, the other nine teams in the league can expect many blue Saturdays.

Three Big Ten teams fell prey to the Green and White juggernaut in 1950.

The MSC gridders teed off on their Conference opponents with a long awaited 14-7 victory over last year's conference champs, the University of Michigan. The Munnmen after failing six points in '48 and three points in '49, were not to be denied after being humiliated by the Wolverines for 10 consecutive years. The Spartan touchdowns were scored by Bob Carey and Everett "Sonny" Grandelius.

Indiana was the next conference team on State's schedule, and the Spartan's could do no wrong as they humbled the Hoosiers, 35-0. Grandelius, the brilliant Michigan State All-American halfback, had a field day as he scored three touchdowns and piled up an amazing 177 yards in 25 carries. Indiana was held to a meager 30-yard total in net yardage while the MSC eleven garnered 339 yards.

The following Saturday, Coach Biggie Munn's charges romped past an outclassed Minnesota squad, 27-0. The entire Green and White line turned in another excellent performance, holding the Gopher offense to 144 yards. Captain Leroy Crane sparked the MSC attack, scoring one TD, and picking up 96 yards through the middle of the line.

DIRECTED BY RALPH H. YOUNG

Michigan State has good reason to be proud of its fine athletic plant, one of the most modern in the nation, and the lions share of the praise goes to the Spartans' tireless Ralph H. Young.

Young arrived on the MSC campus in 1923 after he accepted the job of athletic director, a position he has held for the past 28 years. In addition to holding down the top administrative post in the athletic department, Young also served as head Football Coach for five years and varsity track coach for 18 years.

Under his able guidance, the college has developed an athletic plant second to none. Gymnasium and Fieldhouse, with a seating capacity of 12,500, the recently renovated Macklin Field, with a seating capacity of 50,089, and the latest addition, the indoor MSC Ice Arena. The facilities for baseball, track, tennis, and other sports are also among the finest available.

His tireless efforts were rewarded when Michigan State was officially accepted into the Western Conference in 1949.

Among his other accomplishments, Young was one of the co-founders of the Central Collegiate Conference.

As an undergraduate student at Chicago, Washington and Jefferson, and the University of Michigan, Young built up a splendid reputation for his outstanding gridiron ability, and has the unusual distinction of playing football for two of the greatest names in the history of collegiate football, Fielding H. Yost and Amos Alonzo Stagg.

THEIR AIM . . . TO BUILD MEN

Fred Stabley, Sports Editor of MSC's Department of Information services, and his assistant, Bud Erickson, discuss one of the many problems which they handle.

Under the guidance of Athletic Director Ralph H. Young, Michigan State has developed a coaching staff second to no other school in the nation. Most of the Spartan coaches excelled in their respective sports in their pre-coaching days and back this up with successful collegiate coaching records.

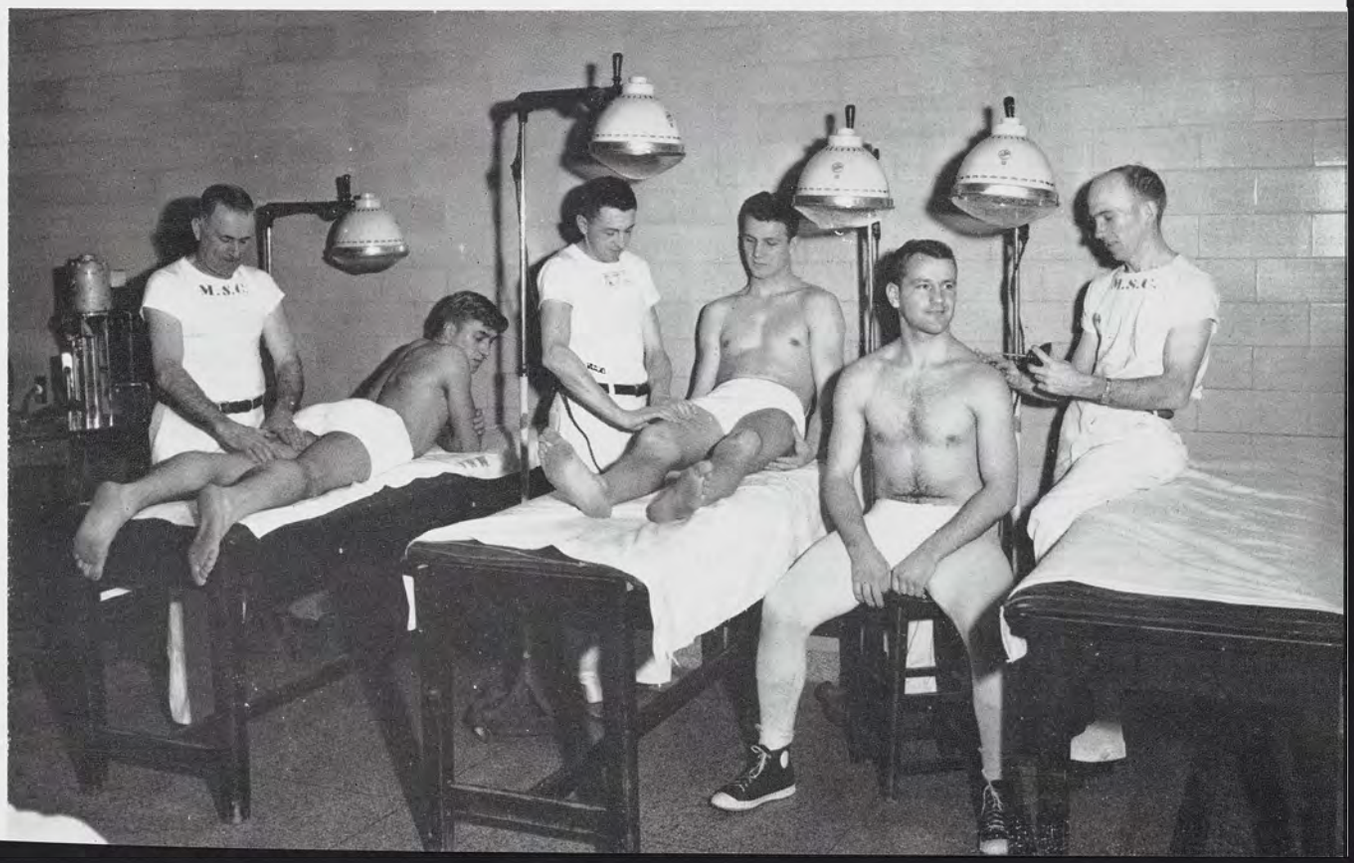

Consistent with Western Conference aims, Michigan State requires all athletes to maintain rigid scholastic standards, the primary objective being to build better men through athletics.

Jack Heppinstal tops all others in the athletic department in years of service to MSC with 37. He is followed by Lyman Frimodig with 32, Leon Burhans, 29, Ralph Young, 28, John Kobs, 27, and Ben Van Alstyne who has 25 years to his credit.

Working in close contact with the athletic department is the sport staff of the Department of Information Services, under the direction of Fred Stabley. It is their job to keep the public aware of what is happening at all times on the MSC sports scene.

There is much more to an athlete's life than just playing the game. Three Spartans undergo another phase in the training room where the after-game bumps and bruises are taken care of.

High on the west rim of Macklin Stadium is one of the most completely modern press boxes in the country. News and radio men fill the window-paneled rooms at every game and their every wish is attended to by Michigan State College.

Spot lighting basketball team members and coaches before each home game was an idea brought to State this year by Coach Pete Newell.

Picking up papers, cups and almost everything else is a day-long task after each athletic event. State prides herself in a clean campus and athletic facilities are no exception.

The ice rink in Dem Hall is constantly being resurfaced for smooth skating. Water bags are pulled across the ice with this equipment which permits a thin layer of water to freeze.

Behind The Sports Scene . . .

Few people realize the tremendous amount of time and effort put forth by the men behind the scenes in preparing for any sporting event and cleaning up details long after the fans have departed.

The ticket office, under the direction of Lyman L. Frimodig, must begin preparations months in advance of any major sporting event, taking orders for tickets, distributing them and sending complimentary passes to all former major letter winners.

They must also answer to the thousands of alums and students who seem to think that all 50,000 seats are behind the 40-yard lines.

Another busy man on campus is Fred W. Stabley, Director of Athletic Publicity, who with his staff of one full-time and three part-time employees keeps the press informed on everything that is happening, has happened, or is going to happen on the MSC sports scene. They also provide press box facilities for the host of reporters, radio sportscasters, publicity men and scouts from future opponents who cover every Spartan game.

In addition to all this they must provide for refreshments for the working press, field passes for photographers and trips to each locker room after the game.

After the game is over, it's time for another crew to start cleaning up. After some of the football games, it took nearly the whole week to prepare the stadium for the next week's game.

Ear phones are used by the wire services and newsmen in Jenison Fieldhouse. Here the officials' bench at the edge of the court communicates with the press box high in the fieldhouse.

On the edge of the press box way up in Macklin Stadium, these photographers shoot movies and stills of Spartans down on the field.

MICHIGAN STATE EVEN SURPRISED HERSELF

Bench backs players.

The 1950 grid season will long be remembered by everyone in contact with Michigan State's Spartans during that campaign. It was the most successful year, percentagewise since 1934, and without a doubt, the most outstanding season from the standpoint of national acclaim in the annals of MSC football.

Head coach Clarence "Biggie" Munn, the two-time All-American great when at Minnesota, shorn of 21 lettermen by graduation, was not given much of a chance to improve on his 1949 season by the nation's sportswriters.

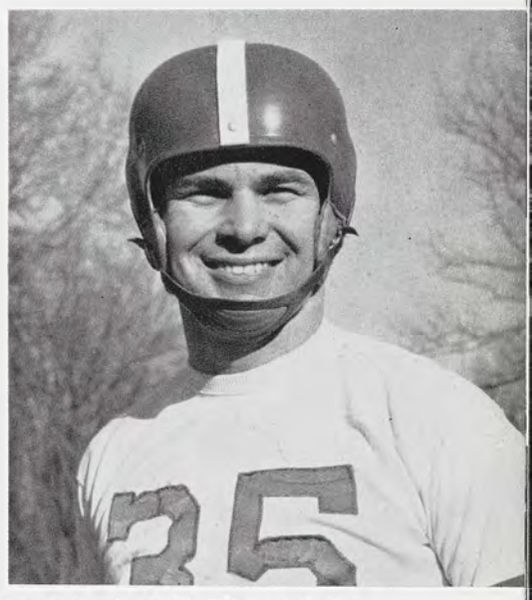

But Biggie fooled 'em.

Out of green sophomores and inspired veterans he molded a team that proved too much for eight of nine opponents.

All-American halfback Everett "Sonny" Grandelius led the way. The Muskegon Heights senior gained a total of 1,023 yards on the ground to set an all-time MSC record, at the same time becoming the seventeenth major college player in the history to accomplish the feat. Grandelius also tallied 72 points to tie the mark previously established by George Guerre.

1949 loss to the Beavers. Bob Carey put in a strong bid for All-American honors as he tallied 20 points.

The following weekend the Spartans bounced into the No. 2 slot in the national ratings on the strength of their 14-7 upset of Michigan.

Sonny Grandelius sliced across the Wolverine goal line in the first period to put the Spartans in front.

After Bennie Oosterbann's crew tied the score in the third period Captain LeRoy Crane lugged the pigskin across to sew up the win for State.

The following Saturday, the Spartans were given a rude jolt in the form of a 34-7 defeat by Maryland. Grandelius gave State rooters something to cheer about with a 67-yard touchdown gallop early in the third period.

However the Green and White bounced back to celebrate Homecoming with a 33-14 triumph over William and Mary. They followed this with a 34-6 trouncing of Marquette.

Then came the game that fans had waited nearly a year to see. Notre Dame, less formidable than in previous years, but still no pushover, was fired to fever-pitch for the Spartans. Both teams played inspired football with the Spartans coming out on the long end of a 36-33 count.

Brilliant defensive play on the parts of end Jim King and linebacker Doug Weaver, coupled with a strong running game helped the Spartans to an early lead, but in the end, Bob Carey's 37-yard field goal proved to be the margin of victory.

Grandelius scored three times in the Spartans' next game—a 35-0 whitewash of Indiana. The halfback tallied on runs of 4, 16 and 25 yards to extend his scoring streak to seven games.

MSC's rout of Big Ten opponents was completed when they rolled to a 27-0 win over the Gophers of Minnesota.

Pitt's Panthers were the third squad in a row to be shutout by the Spartans. Untimely fumbles held the score down to 19-0. The Panthers ended Grandelius' scoring string at eight consecutive games but failed to cope with the threats of Bob Carey, Dick Panin and Vince Pisano.

SMASH RIGHT

Sonny Grandelius rips off one of the long gains that got him an All-American ranking. The action took place during the Oregan State game which opened the Spartan 1950 football season at Macklin field stadium. State opened the year in impressive syle by trouncing the Beavers, 38-13.

Captain Leroy Crane with Don Coleman leading the interference breaks through the Oregon State line. Crane, a fullback, will be missed next year. He is a senior. The captain carried the ball 109 times during the year and gained 534 yards for a 4.5 average. Coleman was a standout tackle all season.

Things weren't all easy for the Spartans even in victory. A William & Mary back intercepts a pass intended for Al Dorow as the official and two W & M backs look on. Despite plays like this the State squad came out on the long end of a 33-14 score and won the five games following this tussle.

1950 WAS A PEAK YEAR

Joyous return from South Bend.

Ten seniors bowed out of the MSC gridiron picture at the close of the 1950 season, leaving behind them one of the best records ever compiled by a Green and White football team.

Missing from the 1951 squad will be ends Dorne Dibble, Hank Minarik and Jimmy King; tackle Gene Stroia; guards John Yocca and John Tobin; center Jim Creamer; and backs Jesse Thomas, Everett "Sonny" Grandelius and LeRoy Crane.

Grandelius and Dibble were both named to All-American teams while many of the others received honorable mention.

Minarik, Crane and Thomas were all outstanding for the full three years they were on the varsity squad, and Stroia, Yocca, Tobin, King and Creamer were all regulars last year and saw considerable action the previous season.

Some of their names are destined to go into the records beside the all-time greats in Spartan athletics, and none of them will be soon forgotten.

Spirit is one of the most important things to an athletic team. Michigan State's cheer leaders do their best to instill that spirit with antics and cheers.

Leading cheers at athletic events isn't the only function of the cheer leaders. Here they lead the yelling at the pep rally when the Notre Dame basketball team came to State.

STATE'S 'TOMORROW' MEN . . .

A record number of candidates, over 200 of them, answered Freshman Football Coach Steve Sebo's call for freshmen interested in playing football at MSC. The job of training them went to Coach Sebo and his eleven-man staff of full time and part time coaches.

Their job was to teach fundamentals, both offensive and defensive, and to acquaint the gridiron aspirants with Head Coach Biggie Munn's system. The huge squad was divided into teams, and scrimmages were held each evening from the time school started in the fall until the season ended on Nov. 9th. Round robin scrimmages were held, climaxed by a weekly game. On various occasions, the freshmen were sent through their paces against the varsity to give them a taste of what lay in store for them the following season.

Forty-four letters were awarded to the most likely candidates. They face the big test in the spring, when Coach Munn gets his first real chance to look them over.

Everyone can't make the varsity. These men practice with the freshmen team in the hopes of landing a first-string berth later.

. . . THE FRESHMEN

Sebo said his charges showed a lot of pep and enthusiasm and appeared anxious to make a berth for themselves on the varsity squad in the spring.

While it would be premature to try to compile a list of candidates expected to make good in the fall, there are many from whom big things are expected and who should prove a credit to the team and to Michigan State College.

1950's freshman team may prove very important to Spartan football hopes. These gridders will be Seniors when State enters Big Ten pigskin competition in 1953.

Sonny Means scores in the Notre Dame game.

The 1951 MSC basketball team completed their first season of Western Conference play with a 5-9 record and an overall record of 10 wins against 11 defeats. It was virtually the same squad that won only four of twenty-two games the previous season.

The Spartan's defense was the best in the Big Ten, and they finished fourth in the nation in that department. Their lack of scoring punch was the deciding factor in their seventh place ranking in Conference standings.

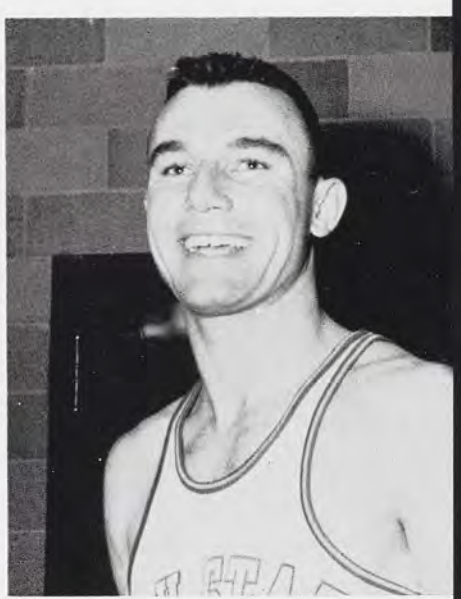

Center Ray Steffen led the team in scoring with 186 points for an average of 8.9 points per game. He was closely followed by Bob Carey, who totaled 174 points for the season.

The Spartans will lose only two members of the squad via graduation this year—Steffen and team Captain Jim Snodgrass, who finished the season with 92 points.

The Green and White cagers nosed out their opponents in scoring with 1032 to 1007. They averaged 49.1 points a game and held opponents to an average of 48.1.

Highlight of the season was the double win over the University of Michigan, the first time in 17 years a Spartan quintet has taken both games in the annual home and home series. Just as sensational was the near win over the Conference champs, Illinois, who staged a last minute rally to overtake the MSC five.

The team's record was a high tribute to Coach Pete Newell and his able assistant, John Bennington, who developed last year's squad into a hustling, smooth working combination.

Peter F. (Pete) Newell, MSC's new basketball coach brought with him to Michigan State the reputation of being one of the nation's finest young cage mentors. Newell came to State after coaching the 1948-49 National Invitational champs, the San Francisco Dons.

AUSPICIOUS ENTRANCE . . .

By pulling upsets and near upsets, the Spartan basketball team, in its initial year of Western conference play, served notice that it has no intention of becoming a door mat in Big Ten competition.

The cagers opened their conference schedule by defeating a highly-touted Northwestern quintet and proved it was no mistake by downing them again later in the year. Next they lost a 53-52 contest to Wisconsin in the game's waning seconds.

State got back on the winning trail by downing Michigan.

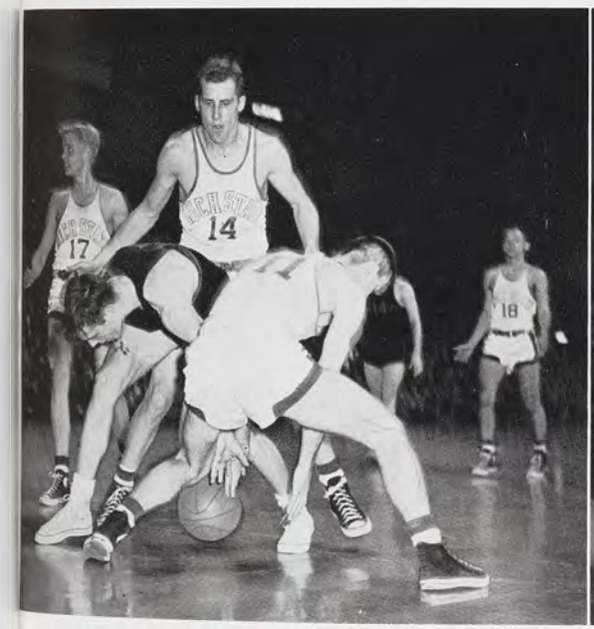

Then came a road trip on which the squad lost two games to the bottom teams in the league, Ohio State and Purdue.

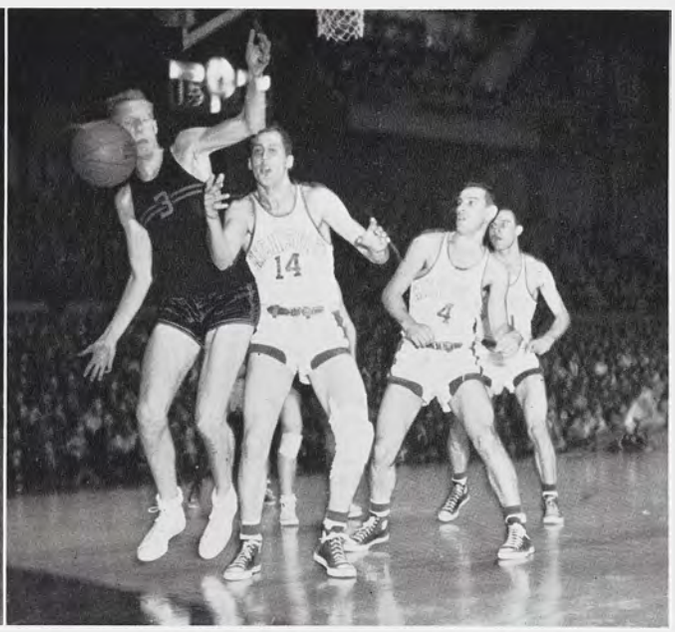

The MSC five bounced back to score wins over Minnesota, Northwestern and Michigan before falling into a late season slump. They lost to Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois. A last minute rally by the Illini, conference champs, gave them a 49-43 victory and prevented the Spartans from turning the title race into a turmoil.

STATE BASEBALL TEAM WON 19, LOST 9 IN 1950

More runs across for the Spartans.

Sparked by heavy hitting and good pitching, the 1950 Spartan baseball team compiled an over-all mark of 19 victories against nine losses.

Following the Southern trip, on which it won three tilts while losing five, the squad returned north to register 16 wins and three defeats.

Their impressive record won the Spartans a spot in the four-team playoff for the NCAA regional berth. But the Wisconsin Badgers ruined State's hopes of national recognition with a 13-6 triumph.

Lou Bloch was the workhorse of the pitching staff as he racked up seven wins without a defeat during the regular season His earned run average was a highly respectable 2.11. Bob Carlson had the lowest ERA with 2.04. He won three while losing one.

Led by Charlie Joblonski's .409, the team had a .282 batting average. Second baseman Ab Cummins placed second with .366 while outfielder Vince Magi recorded a .356 average. Magi also led the team in home runs with seven.

Captain Jack Kinney batted in 31 runs to lead the team in that department. He was also second in round-trippers with six and batted .327.

State started the trip through the south by losing a 14-12 slugfest to Clemson. However they came back the next day to trounce the same team, 18-5. After beating South Carolina the Spartans lost four games in a row before beating Richmond, 7-2, to end the tour.

Returning north, the Green and White defeated Michigan, 6-5, in the first game of the regular season. Later in the season, when the teams met again, State won, 7-6. Both games were decided on ninth inning rallies and Bloch received credit for both victories.

WINNING STREAKS COMFORT SPARTANS

Following the first win over Michigan, the Spartans went on to defeat Purdue twice, 8-5 and 9-3, before Ohio State handed the MSC squad its first loss of the regular season. The score was 4-1. However the Green and White came back to take the second game of the series, 6-3. They then defeated Notre Dame, 11-10 before dropping a 5-3 decision to Iowa. Again the diamondmen came back to split a two-game series as they edged the Jayhawks, 7-6. The triumph started a seven-game winning streak.

Michigan, Wayne twice, Michigan Normal, Detroit and Notre Dame all tasted defeat before Western Michigan won an exciting 11 inning 7-2 tilt at old College field. The Spartans evened the following day by copping a 5-1 decision from the Broncos to start another winning streak. They beat Detroit 4-3 and won both ends of a double-header from Bradley to end the regular season.

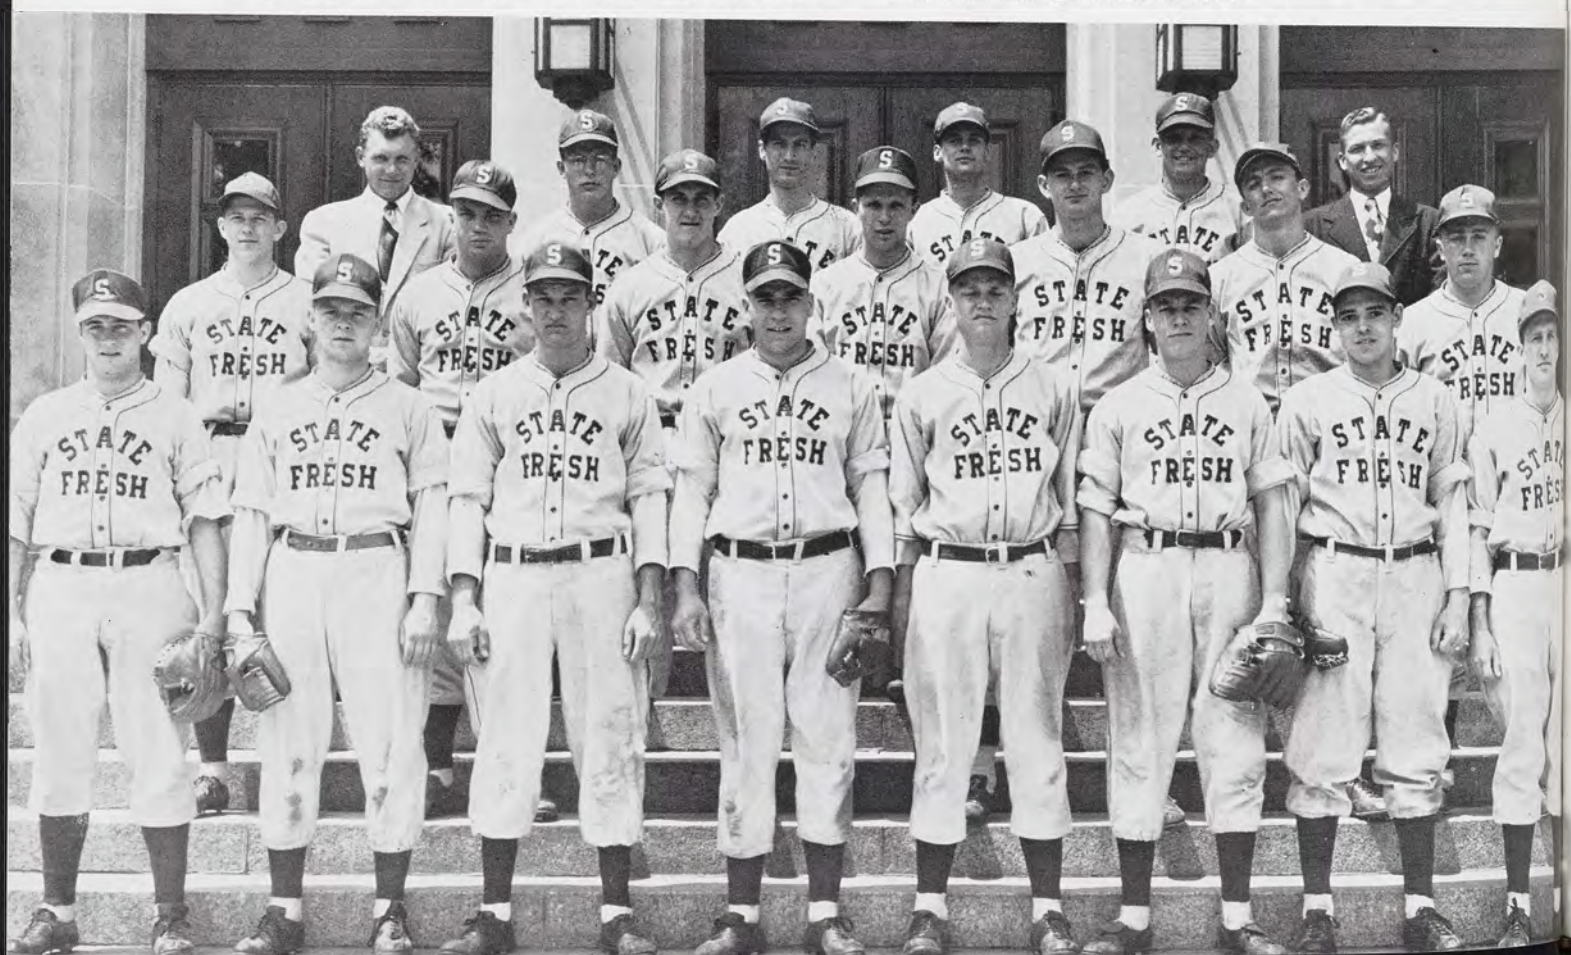

Vince Magi, captain-elect of the 1951 varsity team, is thrown out at first during the 1950 season.

FROSH AIM FOR VARSITY BERTHS

Freshman baseball Coach Harold Throop's call for all frosh interested in playing baseball at MSC was answered by nearly thirty candidates. From these diamond aspirants must be chosen at least ten who are capable of contributing to the future success of the varsity squad.

Big Ten rules prevent freshman teams from scheduling other teams, so Coach Throop arranged games with the Jayvee and varsity squads to give his charges a taste of what collegiate competition will be like.

GREEN CROSS COUNTRY TEAM MATCHES BEST IN NATION

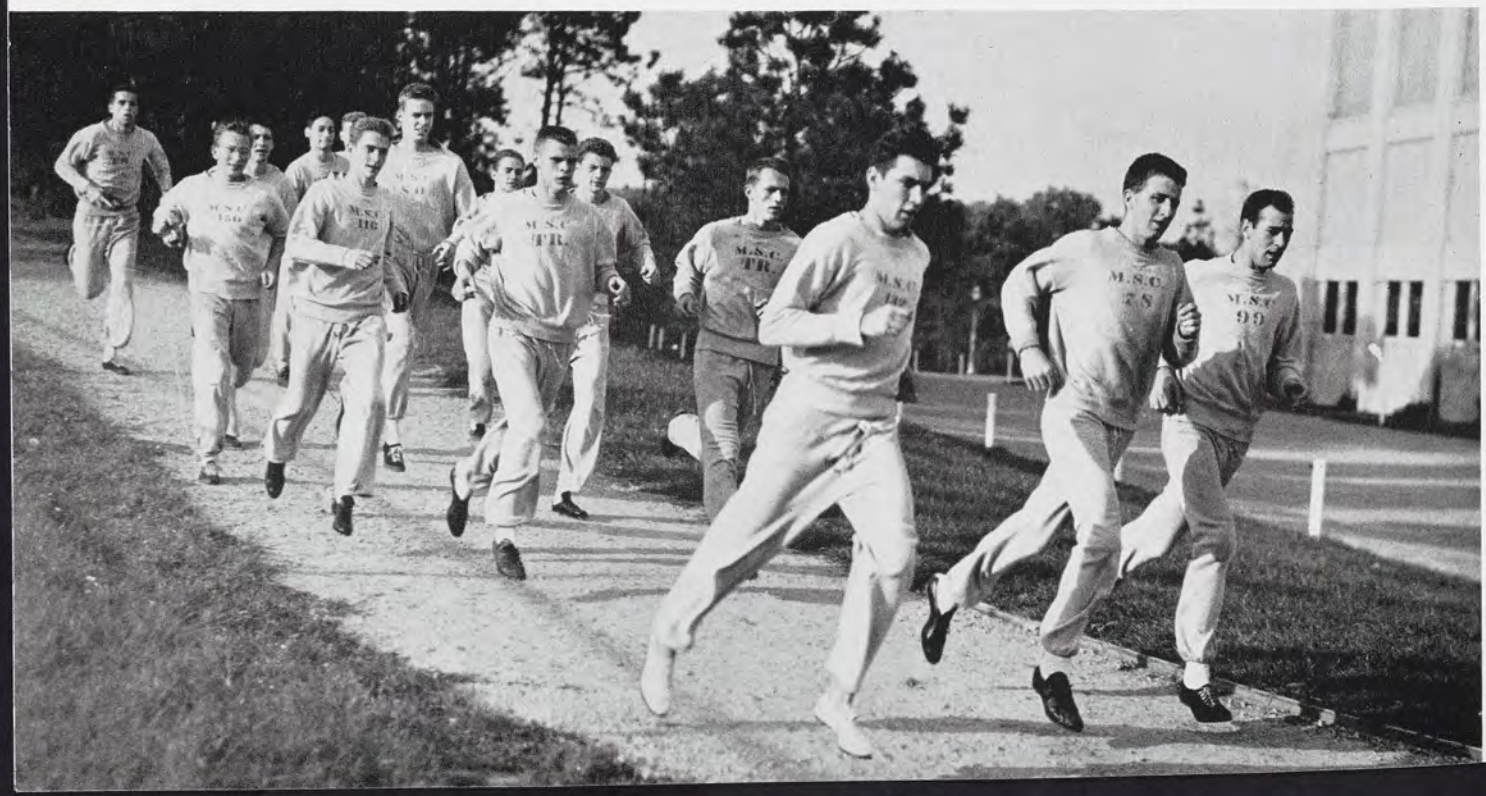

Mickey Walter breaks the tape for the Green and White.

Hard hit by the graduation of the nucleus of last year's squad, Coach Karl Schlademan faced a complete rebuilding job in fielding the 1950 cross-country team. However four top-flight sophomores and three seasoned veterans again made the harrier squad one of the best in the nation.

Led by Captain Warren Druetzler, one of the country's top distance stars, the Spartans took runner-up positions in the Big Ten and NCAA meets, won the junior AAU crown and placed fourth in the IC4A.

Warren Druetzler, Mickey Walter and Jim Kepford lead the squad in a few practice laps.

Captain Warren Druetzler edges past David Allison of College of Wooster to take second place in the NCAA cross-country meet held at Michigan State.

In dual meet competition, Schlademan's crew swamped Purdue and Ohio State before losing to Penn State.

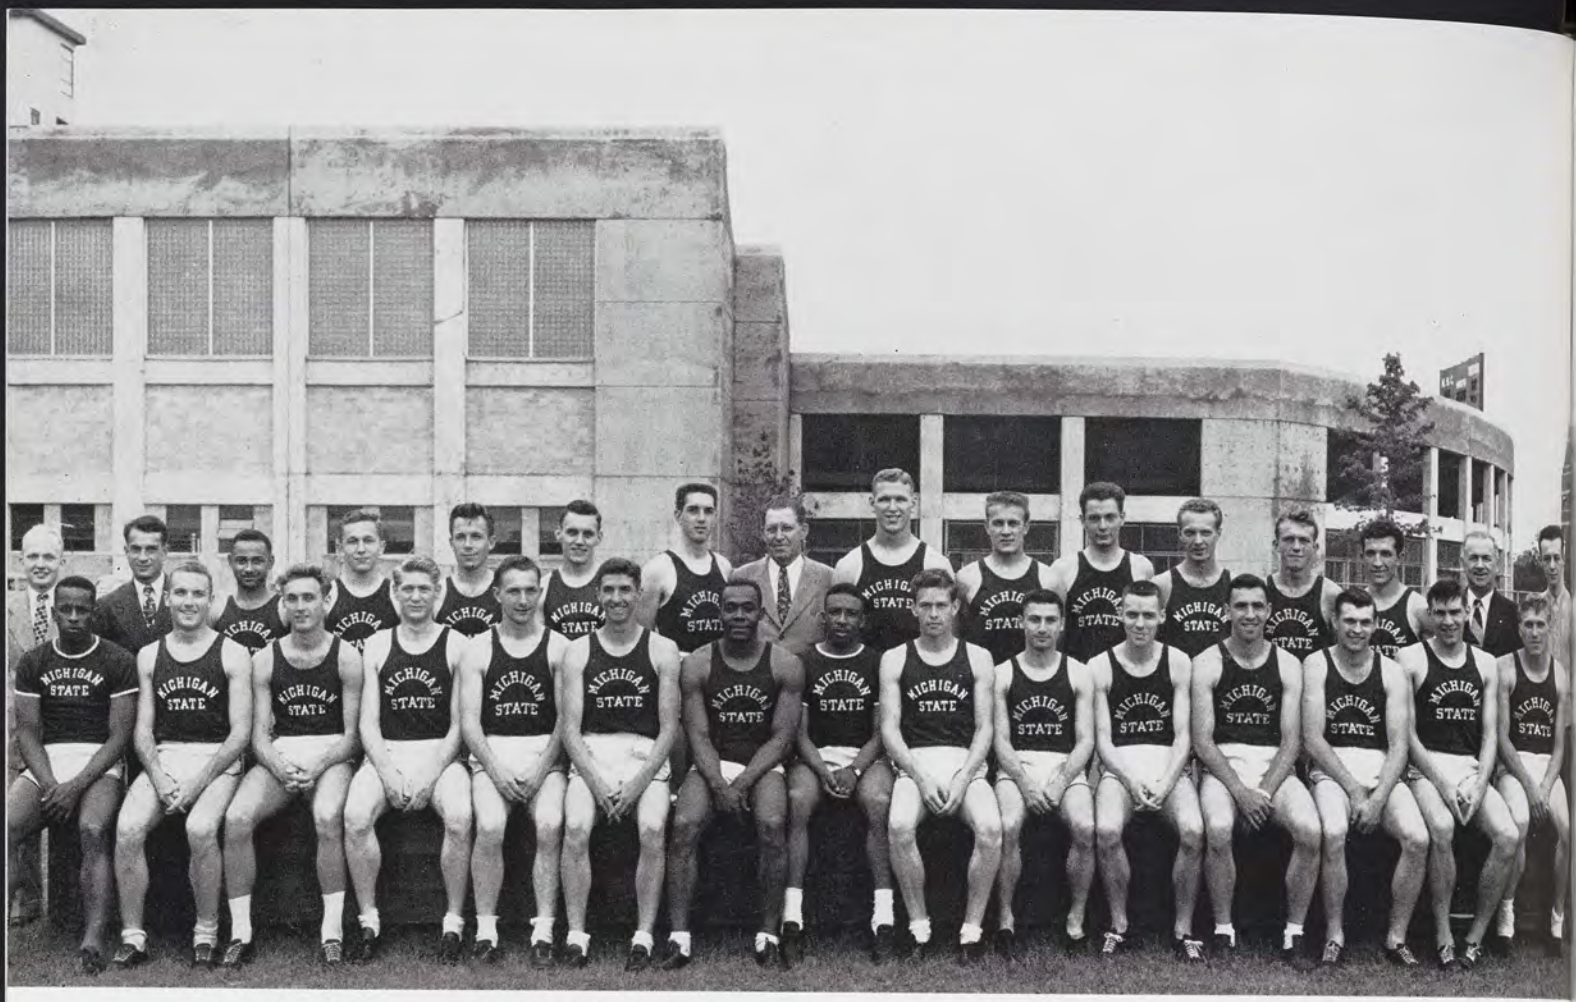

The twelfth annual running of the NCAA, held on the Spartans home course, saw the local entry within two points of upsetting a highly-favored Penn State crew. The final score was 53-55 over the snow-covered course as the Spartans' bid for their third straight NCAA title was thwarted. Druetzler led MSC with a second place finish. Sophomore Jim Kepford placed eighth.

Fighting for their first Big Ten title, the harriers celebrated their entry into conference competition with a second place finish, five points behind Wisconsin. Druetzler led the way again. This time he finished fourth, while Kepford placed eighth.

Kepford paced the Green and White to the junior AAU crown with a second place finish. Mickey Walter took third with Jerry Zerbe copping fourth.

The sophomore-studded squad beat Purdue 20-39 in their only home dual meet. Druetzler took second with Don Makielski, Dick Roberts, Kepford and Walter all finishing in a tie for third place. The Spartans made it two in a row with a 20-37 victory over Ohio State.

Penn State handed the harriers their only loss in Dual meets by trimming the State squad, 19-44. Makielski gained some prestige for the Spartans by taking second place.

TRACK SQUAD SETS RECORDS

Boasting only a handful of veterans from the 1950 Spartan track team that set 12 varsity, a host of Central Collegiate conference and IC4A records and a new world's mark, Coach Karl Schlademan faced a rebuilding task for the indoor season of 1951.

Gone were the stars that made State the top track power in the nation.

Captain Warren Druetzler, Don Makielski and Jesse Thomas were the only top runners back for State's first year of Big Ten competition.

The Spartans combined their few veterans with some top-flight sophomores and came through with the biggest surprise of the Big Ten indoor meet.

They finished third and had the top point-getter in Thomas.

STATE RETURNS AS TRACK POWER

In 1950, the outdoor team set five records highlighted by the performance of the two-mile relay combination of Dave Peppard, Bill Mack, Makielski and Druetzler that blazed to a cinder-burning new world's record of 7:31.8 in the Los Angeles relays.

The thinclads swept to five victories while losing only once in regular season competition. They tied Michigan Normal for the Central Collegiate conference crown and placed third in the IC4A. Mack, besides being a member of the two mile relay team, also set a new varsity mile mark of 4:12.2.

Sophomore Bob Carey broke the shotput record in his first taste of varsity competition while Druetzler kept the Spartan's record-breaking ways going with a 9:33.6 performance in the 3000-meter steeplechase.

It looks like another victory for the MSC relay team.

A Spartan discus thrower unleashes another mighty heave.

In their first team competition of the year, MSC snowed under Northwestern and Pen State in a triangler meet at Jenison fieldhouse.

Thomas pulled an iron man stunt by sweeping to three firsts and one second. Druetzler was a double winner with impressive victories in the mile and two-mile events.

In two dual meets before the Big Ten showdown meet, the Spartans beat Iowa 68-46 and were edged by Wisconsin, 57⅝-56⅛. Thomas was the big gun again by taking an unprecedented four first places against Wisconsin and two firsts and two seconds against Iowa.

Druetzler took first in the mile and Makielski notched top honors in the 880.

STATE PLACED THIRD IN BIG TEN CHAMPIONSHIP

After starting fast by taking 10 places in the preliminaries, a 14-man squad placed third in the Big Ten championship meet.

Thomas took seconds in both hurdle events, a third in the 60-yard dash and a fourth in the broad jump.

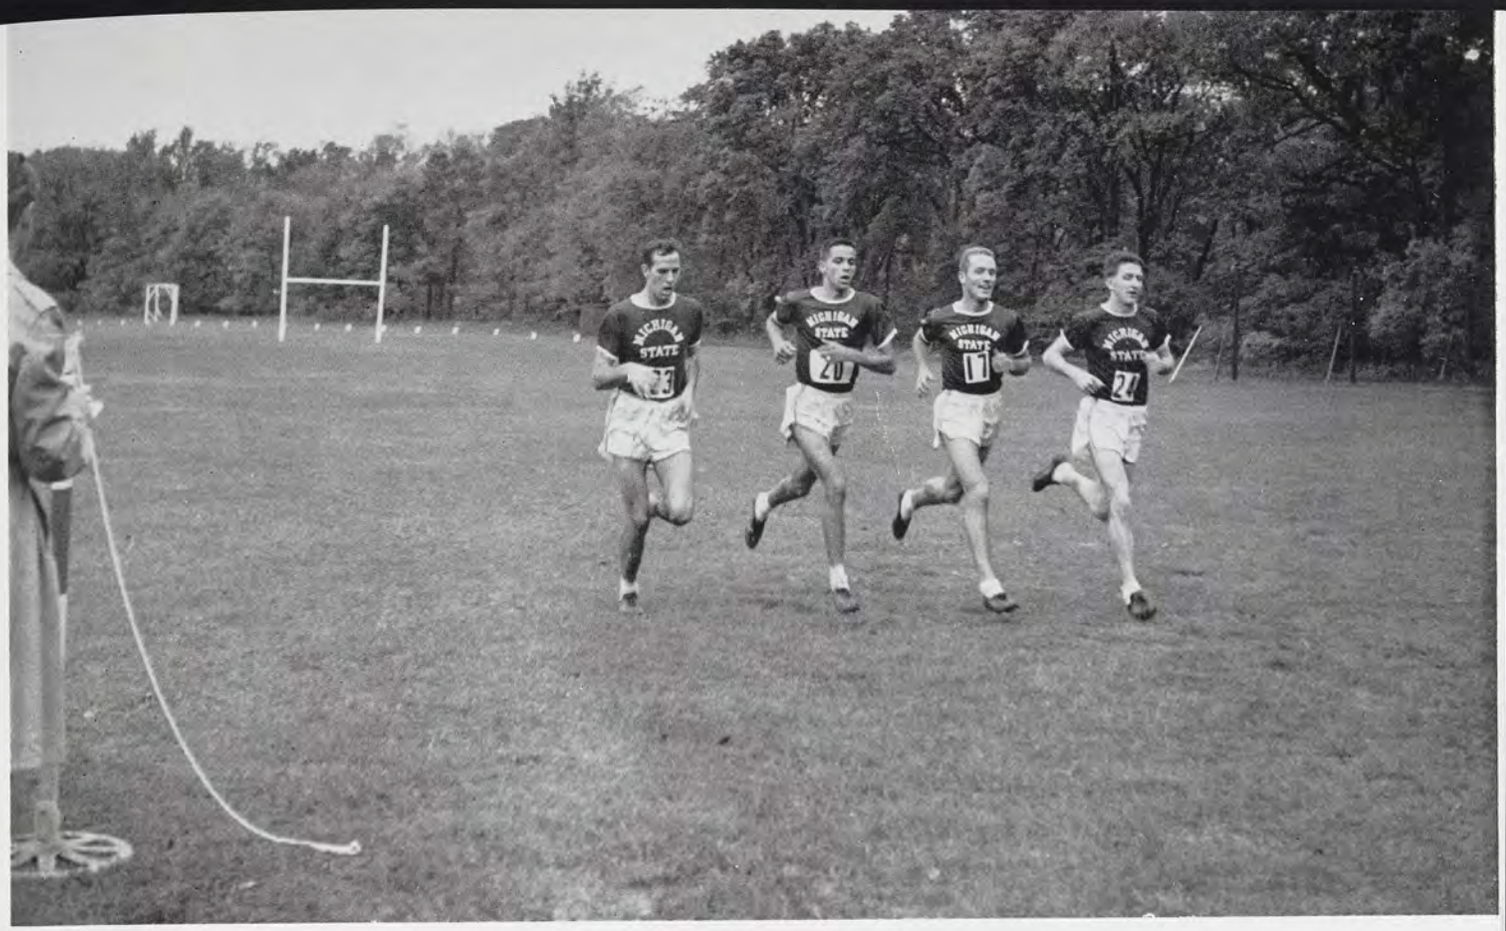

Art Ingram, a sophomore, pulled an upset by placing second in the 60-yard-dash. Makielski took runner-up honors in the 880 in a photo-finish loss to Len Truex.

Dick Hensen placed third in the low hurdles to round out State's scoring.

At the Knights of Columbus annual classic, Thomas took second in the high hurdles and Makielski placed third in the 1000-yard run.

Shown at the left is the quartet of Spartan trackmen which set a new world's record for the two-mile relay. Bill Mack, Don Makielski, Warren Dreutzler and Dave Peppard were clocked in at 7:31.8 in the Los Angeles coliseum relays.

Jim Kepford, Dick Roberts, Don Makielski, and John Walters all finish in a tie for third place in the Purdue dual meet.

NEW WORLD'S RECORD . . .

The mile relay record also toppled to the 1950 thinclads as Dick Henson, Lee Jones, Makielski and Jack Dianetti came through with a new 3:17.6 mark.

State started outdoor competition with a twin victory in a triangular meet at Columbus, Ohio. They defeated Penn State, 65½-38 and Ohio State, 65½-57½.

Then came one of track's classics—a triangular meet pitting three of the nation's top outdoor teams. Southern California won the meet at the Los Angeles coliseum with 96 points. The Spartans edged Yale for second place by two points, 34-32.

The Green and White beat Penn State in a dual meet, 82-59 and closed its pre-tournament season with a 78-57 victory over Notre Dame.

At the annual IC4A classic in New York the State cindermen placed behind Yale and NYU with 22 points. Yale racked up 42 for top honors while NYU scored 24.

Along with Michigan Normal, Schlademan's crew monopolized the annual CCC event. They finished in a 31-31 deadlock.

Michigan State opened the 1951 indoor season in the AAU relays at Ann Arbor. The State two-mile relay team of Paul Shek, Jim Kepford, Makielski and Druetzler took the Spartans' only first place in the relay events.

The surprise of the meet was the showing of the frosh team that ran unattached and placed heavily. Another unattached State student, Adolph Weinacker, smashed the AAU record in the one-mile walking event.

After the AAU, the Spartans played host to most of the top teams in the nation at the annual Michigan State relays.

Thomas was the spark-plug of the State attack as he took runner-up honors in the high hurdles, fourth in the lows, and tied for fourth in the broad jump.

The Spartan distance medley team chased the winning Wolverines to a new world's record. Don McEwen, the meet's top runner, was the anchor man for Michigan.

BOXING

In pre-season estimates, the 1951 boxing squad looked like the best in MSC history, but the loss of two key men proved disastrous to the high hopes.

Heavyweight Gabby Marek was declared ineligible on an NCAA ruling and 165-pounder Rae Johnston voluntarily quit the squad to maintain a high pre-med grade average.

In the first match of the season, State crushed the Quantico Marines 6-2, then just before meeting West Point, Marek was lost to the team and the Cadets squeaked by the Spartans 4½-3½. State battled to a 4-4 tie with Minnesota and edged national co-champions Gonzaga 4½-3½.

The Spartans lost the next two matches with Maryland and San Jose by identical scores, 4½-3½. The loss to San Jose was the first home mitt defeat since George Makris took over as boxing coach in 1947.

Standout on this year's squad was light heavyweight Spieser. Another bright spot of the team was 145-pounder Jed Black. Team captain Hank Amos led the squad in the ring and out with his spirit and humor.

Highlight of the boxing season was the NCAA championship finals held at East Lansing for the second time in three years.

WRESTLING

Two individual titles and a third place finish in the championship meet featured the Spartan wrestlers' entrance into Big Ten competition.

George Bender and Gene Gibbons, who were both undefeated in dual meets, climaxed this record by winning the 167-pound and 177-pound Big Ten crowns.

The Michigan State squad was edged out of second place in the championships by one point. They scored 19 while Michigan tallied 20. Ohio State won with 26.

During dual meet competition the grapplers won six times while losing three. They defeated Pittsburgh, Indiana, Wisconsin, Purdue, Illinois and Northwestern. State was undefeated at Jenison fieldhouse.

Iowa State Teachers, 1950's NCAA champs, Ohio State and Michigan scored dual meet victories over the Spartans.

Injuries hampered the team all season, as Coach Fendley Collins lost three first-stringers during the year.

Long hours of practice go into turning out one of Coach Fendley Collins' usually top-notch wrestling teams. Here two Spartans engage in a practice session while other team members look on. The grapplers won six of nine matches during the dual meet season and placed third in the Big Ten championships.

GYMNASTICS

The daring young man on the flying trapese—or high bar.

Paced by Captain Mel Stout the Michigan State gymnastics team won five dual meets while losing only three. He consistantly took top honors in events he entered.

State travelled to Columbus, Ohio, to meet Ohio State in the first match of the season. They suffered a 52½-43½ defeat despite Stout's 24 points.

The gymnasts took on Wisconsin and Chicago in a double dual meet and came up with respective 64-32 and 67-29 victories.

Stout's four firsts paced the Spartans as they dumped Michigan for the first time. The score was 56-40.

Notre Dame was outclassed as State took all the first and second places in a lopsided 77-19 win. Indiana fared little better as they lost, 64-32.

The Gophers of Minnesota tumbled the Spartans 51-45 and Illinois sent State down to a 54-42 defeat.

SWIMMING

In their first crack at the Big Ten championship the MSC tankers finished second to Ohio State after completing their dual meet season with nine wins and a single loss.

State defeated Michigan, Northwestern, Purdue, Iowa State, Iowa, Bowling Green, Minnesota, Wayne and Indiana. The lone loss was to Ohio State.

Throughout the season it was the one-two scoring of All-American Clarke Scholes and sophomore sensation Bert McLachlan that gave the Spartans national acclaim as one of the top teams in collegiate ranks.

Scholes stroked to conference championships in the 50 and 100-yard freestyle events while McLachlan took top honors in the 220 and 440, and second place in the 1500-meter.

Former Olympic swimmer George Hoogerhyde, concluding four years of varsity competition, was what Coach Charles McCaffree termed the "workhorse" of the squad. He was consistent scorer in all freestyle events and also teamed with Scholes, Dave Hoffman and Jim Quigley in the relays.

Rolf Campbell makes like a swan off the low board.

Charles Bryan, William Pierson, Robert Schaefer, Alan Walker, James Redding, George Carr, Coach Charles Schmitter, Allan Jones, Raymond Totte, Dwight Patton, John Van Dagens, Fred Freiheit, Raymond Monte, and Robert Bristol.

Fencing calls for lightning nerves and quick action.

FENCING

Boasting a season record of seven wins against three defeats, the MSC fencing squad has a good chance to become the first team in Spartan history to win a Big Ten championship.

The saber team, led by John Van Dagens, showed remarkable strength, losing only to Wisconsin. Van Dagens won 25 of his 29 duels for an impressive .863 average.

Ray Todde was tops in foil competition with 23 wins and only seven losses and Bob Schaefer was high in the epee events. Schaefer's work was especially impressive as this was his first season with the epee.

The Green and White swordsmen chalked up wins over Wayne, Chicago, Ohio State, Buffalo, Northwestern, Iowa and Detroit, while losing to Illinois, Wisconsin and Notre Dame.

The prospects for next year look good, according to fencing Coach Charles Schmitter, with nine of the 13 lettermen returning.

Row One—Wally Deutschlander, Gus Carlson, Bill Finnerman, Bob Rebou, Dick Lord, Jim Doyle, Bill McCormick, Neil Bristol, Bill Blair, George Bolton, Connie Buck, Ray Brooks, Bill Calvert, Joe Suarez, Bob Gorman, and Charley Roche.

HOCKEY

In their second season of intercollegiate competition the Spartan hockey team showed a vast improvement over 1950's winless squad. They racked up six victories against 11 reversals.

Three victories each over the Ontario Aggies and Michigan Tech accounted for the State victories.

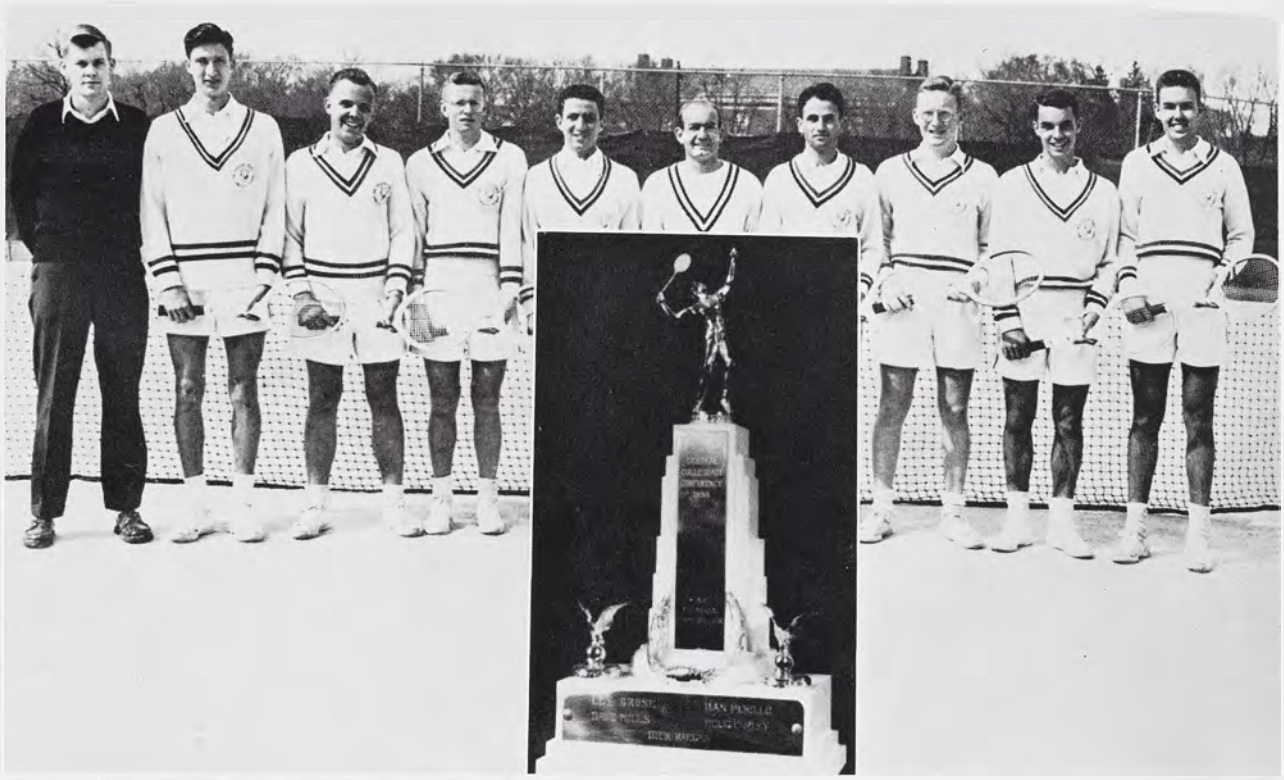

The Gophers of Minnesota were responsible for four of the Spartans' losses. North Dakota, Michigan, and Denver won two games each from the Green and White. Michigan Tech administered the other loss.

State's first line led by center Bill McCormick, with Co-Captain Bill Blair and Neil Bristol at the wings, highlighted the season's schedule.

This line led the squad in scoring with 47 points, including 23 goals. McCormick won the race for individual scoring honors with 19 points.

1950 TENNIS TEAM

A backhand which was missed

Coach Frank Beeman's sophomore-studded tennis squad bowed out of CCC competition in 1950 with its second championship in three years.

Led by Len Brose, Doug Curley and Dave Mills, the Spartans won seven matches while losing four.

They opened the season by trouncing Detroit, 9-0 and followed with victories over Wisconsin and Notre Dame before losing to Illinois. State bounced back to trample Purdue, 7-2, but Michigan kept its 20-game winning streak intact by dumping the Spartans, 7-1.

Beeman's charges came back to trounce Ohio State and Wayne before losing to Indiana, 6-3.

Meeting Michigan again, the netmen gave the Wolverines some anxious moments before bowing, 5-4. They ended the season with an 8-1 triumph over Western Michigan.

Rex Newman, Biff Hills, Coach Van Alstyne, Bob Tansey, Don Perne and Jack Zinn.

1950 GOLF TEAM

Coach Ben VanAlstyne's golf team finished the 1950 season with a .400 record.

The bright spot in an otherwise mediocre season was the close race for the team's medal honors. Spartan captain Rex Newman beat out Cliff Taylor by posting a 76.1 average to Taylor's 76.2.

Bad weather for practice sessions was one of the greatest handicaps the team faced.

They started the season by trouncing Western Michigan twice during the opening week-end. The scores were 35½-3½ and 36½-2½.

Detroit started them on the losing trail by handing them a 17-10 loss. Illinois whipped the Spartans, 20½-9½ and Michigan beat them, 15½-11½ before the Green and White bounced back to beat Wisconsin, 20-7.

Three more losses followed as the Spartans bowed to Purdue, Michigan and Notre Dame. The scores were 18-9, 15½-11½ and 16-11.

State ended the season by avenging the earlier loss to Detroit. In the second encounter, the Green and White defeated the Titans, 18½-8½.

Coach VanAlstyne stands by for suggestions during fast competition.

The organization's program includes meets with Wayne, Highland Park Junior College, and Ohio State. In June, 1950, these fencers won the Michigan inter-collegiate fencing trophy. Several members participate in Amateur Fencing League of America competition.

GREEN SPLASH

Green Splash, women's swimming honorary, was founded at Michigan State in 1925. The group was organized as an American Red Cross life saving corps.

In 1927, it changed its name to Green Splash.

The purpose of the organization is to further, promote, and support an interest in all water activities among the women students at Michigan State.

The main event of the year is the water pageant, presented each spring. The show features synchronized swimming and individual and duet numbers. The group also sponsors the Spartanettes, women's swimming team. Throughout the year it promotes an interest in swimming by holding weekly splash parties, open to all women students.

The requirements for membership are an all college 2.0, a senior life saving certificate, participation in the swimming pageant, passing of a required swimming test, and membership on an intramural team.

THE SENIORS

President Klein welcomes Big Ten senior officers.

Commencement, the beginning of a new life, the ending of four college years. The following pages tell how the seniors spent those four years, the classes, the extra curricular activities and the social events. . . .

Two more Seniors of the Week.

A new tradition—senior carving table.

SENIOR ACTIVITIES

With three college years behind him, the State student enters his senior year, a year packed full of activities, honors and traditions, culminating in graduation.

One of the first events for the class is the Senior Ox Roast held at Old College Field following one of the football games. Barbecued ox sandwiches are served at this all-college event.

Each week, two outstanding seniors are honored by being chosen "Senior of the Week." They are selected by a committee of the Senior Council on the basis of outstanding service and contribution to their class throughout their college years.

The Senior Council consists of 14 members, representing a cross section of the class. Third term juniors petition and are appointed by senior class officers. The Council, along with the officers, decides matters of general policy for the class.

This year, for the first time, senior officers played hosts to visiting officers of the senior classes of Big Ten schools.

Every Wednesday evening at 7, seniors invaded the Old College Hall of the Union for a coffee hour. These nights found seniors carving their initials on "their" table, a circular table in the middle of the room. The table also shelved a large jar where contributions were willingly accepted for "free" coffee. Informal talks are sometimes given by qualified members of the class, such as team captains, publications editors and social chairmen. The movie, "Postmark, East Lansing," as well as others, offered variety to the hour throughout the year.

Don Wall and Ann Porter, co-chairmen of the Senior Ball.

A senior pauses to look at the "Senior of the Week" pictures.

SENIOR SWINGOUT

These informal gatherings came to an end with the impressive senior swing-out which took place the week before graduation. Seniors gathered at the buildings of their respective schools, joining the procession as it passed. After a complete tour of the campus, the class congregated in the college auditorium, where President Hannah talked to them. The alumni officers for the Class of '51 were elected. The senior gift to MSC was also announced at this time.

Interested students volunteered to represent the alumni club in their sections of the country. After being appointed, these representatives organized MSC Alum clubs.

State is host to Big Ten Senior Class officers.

CAREER CARNIVAL

The Senior Career Carnival was held, for the second time, in April. Personnel and other interested people, from all branches of industry and business, discussed various aspects of their businesses with students. Interviews with individual students were held. It provided an excellent opportunity for after-graduation jobs.

The senior traditions were climaxed spring term. All senior coeds were granted 11 o'clock permissions Monday through Thursday nights. This additional hour allowed enough time for the coeds to attend the senior dances. These informal gatherings, providing a final chance for seeing many college friends, were held in the Union.

Lantern night, one of the most memorable nights to senior women, took place in the latter part of May. Senior women carrying lanterns, led a procession around the campus, ending at the bandshell. The lanterns were then presented to underclasswomen, while outstanding seniors were honored for participation in extra-curricular activities.

The male members of the class had their "special privileges" too. It has long been a tradition for underclassmen to toss all graduating senior men into the Red Cedar river. Another distinguishing sign was green cords, worn only by senior men.

The last favoritism shown to seniors was the elimination of final examinations spring term, giving them more time to devote to the Water Carnival.

Orland Scheuner, Chairman of Senior Career Carnival.

WATER CARNIVAL

By far the most extensive project of the class was their sponsorship of the Carnival. This annual event is held the week preceding graduation exercises. The theme, chosen from suggestions submitted in a campus-wide contest, was "Quote Me Mister." All sororities, fraternities, and campus housing units construct floats, depicting some phase of the theme. Usually a men's unit and a women's unit combine to build one of these floats.

The themes for individual houses were drawn late winter term. First sketches were started early in the spring. Actual work was begun in the back yards of the housing units about three weeks before the Carnival. Everything moved to the Red Cedar river, scene of the event, about two days before opening night, where the final touches were added.

The parade of floats was preceded down the river by the flower bedecked float of the Class of '51, on which were seated the king and queen of the carnival. The king was the class president and the queen, the class secretary. On the third and final night, impartial judges selected the top three floats among both the single and double entries. These were awarded trophies donated by local business concerns.

Preceding the final showing of the Water Carnival were various contests which exhibit water skills. Eliminations were held in the afternoon, with the top contestants performing that night. These events included log rolling, canoe tilting, canoe races, and so forth. Winners were presented with trophies.

On the afternoon of the final performance, a land parade was held. Convertible-drawn floats toured the campus. These floats were constructed by various clubs and honoraries active on campus. The parade ended at the auditorium where cash awards were presented to the winning floats, and a student variety show followed by community singing brought it to a close.

One of the oustanding social events of the class was the Senior Ball, an all-college semi-formal dance held in May. Favors were presented and late permissions granted to the attending coeds.

Seniors also presented the senior play during May.

And so, four years of college life is climaxed with graduation. This year, graduation exercises were held in Macklin stadium for the first time.

ATHENA'S
HOLIDAY

THE GREEKS

Have another cookie, Rushee.

About 25 percent of State's women students and 14 percent of its men are affiliated with social fraternities. Their important traditions, activities and events are summarized in the following pages. . . .

"We furthermore pledge . . ."

Elaine Strick crowns Barbara Gleason during the Greek Olympics.

GREEK ACTIVITIES

Since the first national Greek fraternity was formed at State in 1873, 16 sororities and 23 more fraternities have been added on this campus.

Soon after, Panhellenic Council and Inter-Fraternity Council were established as governing bodies over the groups. A junior and senior member from each organization represent their group on the councils. These governing bodies have jurisdiction over such things as rushing, scholarship, and various social functions. One of Panhel's newest projects is inviting foreign students to dinners at the sorority houses.

Greeks emphasize friendliness and cooperation between houses during "Greek Week." Biggest social event of the year for the councils is joint sponsorship of the "Greek Serenade," an all-college semi-formal dance, which brings the week to a close. Decorations include large replicas of the Greek pins. Comparable to the "Greek Serenade" is the Greek pledge formal, held winter term, by and for the pledges, in order to better acquaint them with each other.

Panhel limits the membership of sororities to 65, while fraternity membership is unlimited.

RUSHING TAKES TIME

One of the most important functions of the Greeks is rushing. An all college 2.0 is required for rushing. Fraternities hold rushing smokers each term. In addition, rushees are invited to dinners at the houses, and can be pledged at any time during the terms.

Formal sorority rushing is restricted to winter terms, while informal rushing may be held spring term. Formal introductory teas are held fall term, and the first two weeks of winter term are devoted to the continuation of rushing. Four stages, varying from informal to formal parties, are held during these two weeks, concluding with formal pledging. During informal spring rushing, rushees are invited on coke dates and to dinners at the houses. Spring rushing is held particularly for those girls who did not make their marks fall term.

Pledges are given three terms to make their marks, which vary from a 2.0 to a 2.5 according to the group. The term after the required marks are made, the pledge goes active.

BIG TEN CONVENTION

For the first time, State's Panhel and IFC played host to the national convention of the Big Ten Panhel and IFC organizations. Representatives stayed in various sorority and fraternity houses. A week crammed full of activities was concluded with the "Greek Feast." The Feast, once an annual event on State's campus, was resumed this year. This afternoon and evening affair, where dinner and dancing were featured, was held at a fraternity house spring term.

Social functions are many and varied. All social activities, complete with chaperones' names and the date of the event, must be registered in the Dean of Women's office two weeks in advance.

Popular fall term are radio parties and open houses. Radio parties are usually informal, and feature dancing, singing, bridge, and casual entertainment. Usually, open houses are held after home football games. After the homecoming game, buffet dinner is often served to alumni, actives, and guests. In many of the houses, fall term is brought to a close with a Christmas party, for underprivileged children. Many of the groups also serenade the various living units with Christmas carols.

Highlight of winter term is the formal dinner dance, where actives and pledges fete their favorite dates with an evening of dinner, dancing and partying. Crested favors are presented to the guests. Alumni often return for this, the climax of the social year for the Greeks.

Another big event for the Greeks is J-Hop weekend. Open houses before the dance, and breakfasts after it are popular with most groups.

Some of the Greeks now hold their term parties spring term, along with the many picnics, costume parties and trips to nearby lakes. Definite themes characterize the costume parties, with hard times, nautical, Hawaiian, and circus ideas prevalent.

Exchange dinners and desserts are held throughout the school year.

For two nights during spring term the bandshell, weather permitting, is the scene of the sorority and fraternity sings. Two cups, one permanent and one traveling, are presented to the winning sorority and the winning fraternity. If one group wins first place for three years, it gains permanent possession of the traveling cup. Impartial judges award points on specific qualities. The groups placing second according to this system also receive a cup.

A treasured possession of any college coed is a fraternity pin. Soon after the pinning, the coed is serenaded by the fraternity with several of its songs, climaxed with the sweetheart song. If the coed lives in a sorority house, her sisters usually reply with their sweetheart song.

Traditional tubbing after a pinning.

GREEK ATHLETES

Another activity of the Greeks is inter-sorority and inter-fraternity athletic competition.

Women's sports include volleyball, bowling, basketball, swimming, and baseball. The competing groups, including dorms, are divided into blocks. Semi-finals are played off by block winners, and to the final winning team is presented a trophy.

Fraternity sports are conducted in the same manner, but competition is restricted to the Greeks. Their sports include touch football, bowling, basketball, swimming, baseball, golf, tennis, and track.

Exhibition games are sometimes played with a sorority competing against a fraternity.

Scholarship plays an important part in every Greek's life. The coveted scholarship cup is awarded each term to the sorority and fraternity with the highest point average. Once again, a three-term winner gains permanent possession of the cup.

Competition within individual houses is promoted through scholarship dinners. Menus for such dinners often include steak for those who raised their point averages and beans or mush for the others.

Local chapters contribute to national projects with money, gifts, and individual aid. Locally, the chapters sponsor parties for underprivileged children, blind children, and foreign students.

Groups also go to Percy Jones hospital to entertain wounded veterans.

The Delts help call students to State's first outdoor basketball pep rally with their huge bicycle bell.

DORMS and CO-OPS

Posed Scholars

DORMS and CO-OPS

For a large percentage of State students, the 32 dorms and co-ops provide a "home away from home" for nine months of the year.

There are 12 dormitories and six co-ops for women, and six dorms and eight co-ops for men. For the first time since the war, Quonset Village was not used for men's housing, while Wells Hall, formerly a men's residence, was converted into a living unit for women.

Student government is centered in the inter-dorm council and the co-op league. The inter-dorm council is composed of one representative from each living unit and decides major issues concerning the dormitories as a whole. The co-op league acts in the same capacity for the cooperative houses.

Individually, each dorm and co-op has its own government. Officers are elected by majority vote of residents. The lengh of office is usually one term, although this varies with each living unit. The officers, floor counselors, and housemothers form the house council which decides matters of penalties, social activities and government.

Each year, delegates are selected to represent Michigan State at the national Big Ten convention for dormitory government.

Presidents of living units, as well as presidents of other organizations and publications editors, meet once a month in President Hannah's parlors in the Union for dinner and a discussion of any important issues. Representative faculty members are also present.

Spring term, a formal dinner for officers is given by the housing management.

Dorm men stop to look at the first issue of the Delphic Oracle on the bulletin board.

GOOD GRADES URGED

Scholarship is stressed by dormitories. Midterm grades of students not doing acceptable work are sent to the floor counselors. Cups are given to the men's and women's dormitory and cooperative house with the highest point average. If one living unit receives the highest point average for three terms, the cup becomes a permanent possession.

Dinners are held for students with a 3.0 or better the preceding term.

In general, activities are the same in all living units. Exchange dinners, record dances, open houses, faculty teas, and term parties are held.

Several times each term, exchange dinners are held between living units. An allotted number of residents of each hall have dinner at one dorm, while an equal number go to the other.

Informal record dances are held in rec rooms, which are also open for entertaining guests on Friday evenings, Saturday afternoons and evenings, and Sunday afternoons.

Three term parties are held a year, one of them a semi-formal dance. Themes of the others vary from "sock hops" to tea dances.

Intra-mural sports offer diversion from study. These sports include football, volleyball, bowling, basketball, swimming, and baseball. Rotating trophies are awarded to the dorms of winning teams.

Students relax in one of the three-man rooms in Shaw Hall.

Women's dorms sponsor teams from men's living units in the annual Turkey Trot won by West Shaw last fall.

Spring term offers a chance in all-college competition. Last year, Shaw Hall took first place in the Lambda Chi Push Cart race, a yearly event.

Efforts of the last half of spring term are devoted to construction of their floats for the Water Carnival. Usually a men's and women's group combine their talents.

MANY ACTIVITIES

Some of the unique activities of the dorms include the choir of Abbot Hall and the newspaper of West Shaw Hall.

Abbot's choir, a recent innovation, is the only group of its kind on campus. The men of the choir, all residents of Abbot Hall, sing at various college functions.

Shaw Hall's Delphic Oracle was the first illustrated newspaper to be published by a dormitory. It contains sports news, social events, social news, feature articles, letters to the editor, and a movie guide.

Residents play pool in Shaw's recreation room.

CO-OPS SAVE

As well as providing a chance for learning, students of the co-ops decrease the cost of education by doing their own marketing, cooking, and household work.

Biggest social event for the co-ops is the Co-Hop, a semi-formal dance held winter term. A queen is elected from the members of the women's co-ops. Parallel to this is the Inter-Dorm dance, also held winter term. A college bus provided transportation from the women's residences to the semi-formal dance held in the lower lounge of Shaw Hall.

CLOCK WATCHERS

The most striking difference in the regulations governing the men's and women's living units is time. While men have no restrictions, women must abide by the rules set up by the counselor of women's office. Regular closing hours are 10:30 Sunday, 10:00 Monday through Thursday, and 1:00 Friday and 12:30 on Saturday nights. In order to enforce these hours, college coeds are required to sign in and out of their living units. Half an hour extensions are allowed after all college-sponsored functions such as lecture-concert series, term plays, and foreign movies. Each girl is allowed six late permissions each term. These hour and a half extensions may be taken only on week nights.

Late minutes are given to girls not conforming with the regulations set up by AWS. An accumulation of 15 late minutes means a weekend night "campusing"—no phone calls, no callers, no leaving room from eight that evening till eight the following morning.

And what conclusion can we draw? It's a man's world.

Coeds decorate the dorm Christmas tree in time for their party for underprivileged children.

Suzanne Chubb, Marilyn Kirn, Jean Mayer, Betty Jo McGlone, Patti Woodard, and Norma Verhage listen anxiously to the MSC-Notre Dame football game.

Signing out for the evening are Liz Collins, Joan Perry, Audry Frappier and Marilyn Slear.

Coeds gather in the rec room for birthday party.

East Mayo, the oldest women's residence hall at Michigan State College, has had a busy year packed full of interesting activities.

Last fall at the beginning of the term, old timers were surprised and pleased to see that the lounge, sun porch, and smoker had been entirely redecorated. The new furniture greatly brightened up the rooms in comparison to the furnishings the girls had last seen spring term.

One Saturday just before Christmas vacation, the East Mayo coeds invited 80 delighted boys and girls from the Tower Gardens for a party. Santa Claus was there and presented each child with two gifts, one practical and the other, a toy. After much entertainment and lots of refreshments, the children left, weary but beaming. Two girls in the residence were hostesses to each boy or girl so the child was never alone at the party.

In the spring the traditional lantern dance was given on the terrace. This dance, carrying the theme of a Venetian setting, is the high point of East Mayo's parties.

A rip-roaring flapper party started off East Landon's social whirl fall term. A speak-easy in the recreation room, girls and their dates in appropriate costumes for the flapper days, topped with a Charleston contest went together to make a perfect evening.

Winter term the girls had a match-me sock-hop. The couples danced in stocking feet and matched outfits, to records of the nation's top bands.

East Landon was also busy with exchange fraternity, faculty, and scholarship dinners, as well as sponsoring entertainment for veterans at Percy Jones hospital.

PHILLIPS HALL

The 950 men of Phillips Hall have been in a busy whirl this year with many social functions topping the list. A Christmas party delighted 30 underprivileged children between the ages of four and eight years. Entertainment was provided by songs and story-telling and after refreshments Santa Claus arrived in all his glory and mystery to the pleasure and amazement of wide-eyed children. Several record dances were given in the lower lounge throughout the year. The traditional Christmas record dance was a huge success. Also among the social events were open houses fall and winter terms, exchange dinners and Saturday afternoon mixers with women's dorms, and Mother's Day events. Within the dorm the precincts had parties and the precinct with the highest scholastic average was honored at a banquet.

Among the "Who's Who" on campus from Phillips Hall are Inter-Dorm Council president, Men's Council president and a former Phillips man, the Student Council president. Phillips also boasts having one of the first TV sets on campus.

The newest project was "Phillips Funnel," the weekly newspaper. This paper was organized and first published winter term and contained such items as cartoons, precinct information, and movie reviews. "Phillips Funnel" was initiated by the General Council of the hall composed of the president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer. From there the work was taken over by volunteers who wrote for and published the paper.

ELSWORTH HOUSE

Elsworth Cooperative house, the second oldest cooperative on Michigan State's campus, celebrated its tenth anniversary this year with the opening of its newly constructed home at 711 West Grand River Avenue. This achievement made Elsworth the first cooperative at Michigan State to build a new house. The organization's former home was located at 218 Albert Street, where it had been occupied by the group since its founding in 1940.

Elsworth house was named for Dr. R. H. Elsworth, a former member of the Michigan State faculty, and a member of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The two main social events at Elsworth House are the annual Senior Dinner which is held each spring, and the Alumni Dinner which is held following the Homecoming Game in the fall. The house also has several informal term parties throughout the year.

In the way of activities during the past year, Elsworth House took first place in the Inter-Co-op softball league, and was able to make a respectable showing in other intra-mural sports. At the annual Lambda Chi Alpha "Junior 500" pushcart race last spring, Elsworth for the second successive year won the award for the most humorous entry, with the theme of "Cheaper by the Dozen."

HEDRICK HOUSE

Hedrick House, founded at Michigan State College in 1939, is the oldest cooperative house on the campus and it has the distinction of being the first in the nation to be both owned and operated by the college students.

The co-op not only maintains fine economical housing facilities for men, but it also provides social training experiences for its members. Term parties and several exchange dinners with the women's co-ops are a part of the Hedrick House social calendar. Homecoming brings many alums back for a reunion celebration to meet the new members of the house, talk of old times, and listen to the news of campus events.

Among its activities can also be listed the publishing of "Wind Through the Pines," an informative paper established to keep the graduates up to date on current events in the house.

A favorable balance between social and academic functions is also maintained. Records show this unit has achieved the cooperative scholastic trophy for two consecutive terms.

Twenty-five college men now live in the house at 903 East Grand River in which they enjoy a feeling of friendliness, unity and self-government. There are some non-resident members who share in the work and activities and do not live in the house but in living units elsewhere.

Howland House, with a membership of 47 men, is the largest co-op house on Michigan State's campus.

Honors in scholarship, various campus activities and sports went to the men of Howland House during the year. They were awarded the Inter-Co-op scholarship trophy and won first prize in the Turkey Trot for the second consecutive year.

Their athletic program, sponsored by the Inter-Co-op Council or by the college, consisted of football, basketball, ping pong, horse-shoes, bowling, and softball. They also entered the Junior 500 Pushcart Race spring term.

Howland House was the third MSC co-op to become a member of the North American League of Student Cooperatives, an international organization of student co-ops in the United States and Canada. Members help publish the monthly magazine "Co-ops on Campus" and advise students in co-op life. This organization also aids members in obtaining jobs through the Cooperative League of America, serves as a clearing house for co-op problems, and issues membership cards which entitle holders to guest privileges in any member co-op in North America.

Row One—Walter J. Bogus, William E. Simon, Howard A. Maddox, Lawrence R. Herbst, Gerald F. Collamer, Melvin Sandler, and William M. Tulip. Row Two—Carl G. Biener, Henry R. Bondarenko, Elwood J. MOTTS CO-OP

To provide a suitable residence for men students at Michigan State who want to develop qualities of leadership, self-advancement and cooperation is the major purpose of Motts Cooperative house. The house was established in 1947 and named after George N. Motts, professor of economics at MSC, who was instrumental in establishing the co-op housing plan for men.

The house is operated on a democratic plan with all members willingly participating in the house operations, food purchasing and preparation, and meal planning. They are rotated in the various job positions. The cooperation that is necessary for the functioning of the house leads to the furtherment of brotherhood and a chance for the individual to develop his fullest capabilities.

Among the main activities of Motts house is its active participation in intramural sports. The 22 members were engaged in the football, basketball, bowling and softball leagues.

Many successful social events were planned and completed by the house. Each term an informal party for members and their dates was held. Radio parties and open houses spotted the year's social calendar for fun and gaiety. Exchange dinners were held with the other co-ops to enable members to become better acquainted.

BEAL HOUSE

Although Beal House is the youngest co-op on campus, it has demonstrated in its two years of existence a cementing force for its members who represent five states. This is a result of such varied activities as excursions to and from the Redwings' home games and fishing trips to Northern Michigan.

The inimitable Bath Tub club is continually growing as additional members of the co-op become engaged, receive four letters in one day, or graduate from the ranks. On such occasions they are tubbed in cold water.

This year, plans were made to strengthen the alumni club of former Beal House members. An official meeting was planned for the club at Homecoming next year.

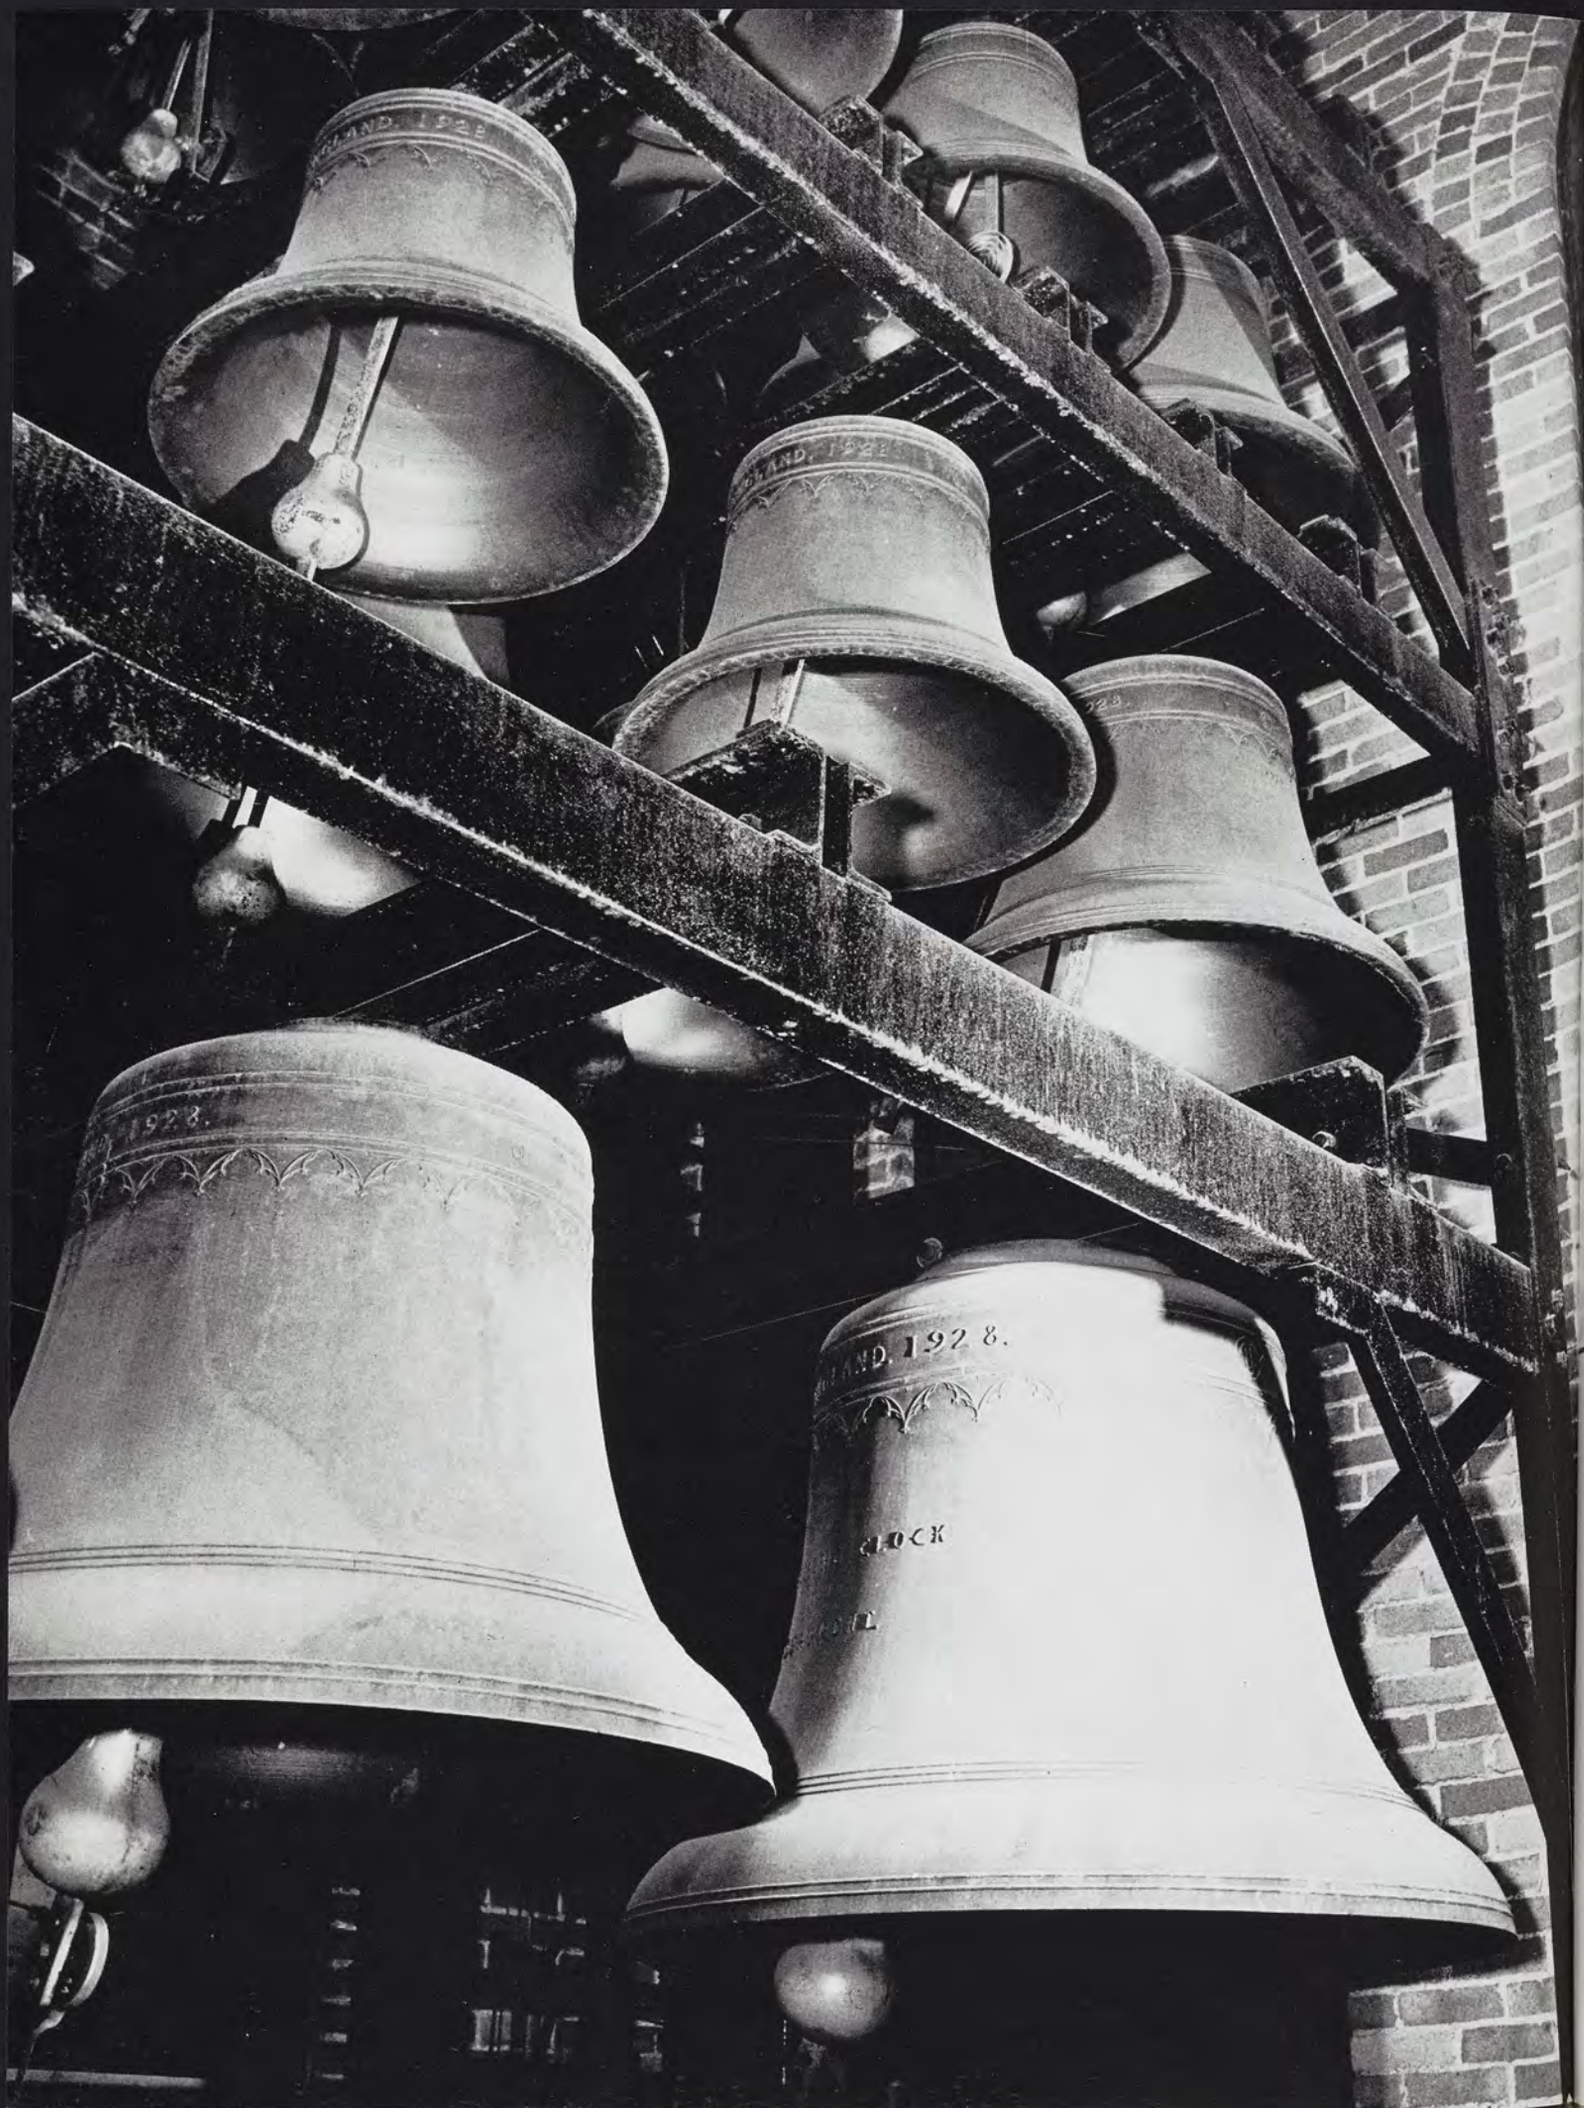

Exchange dinners held throughout the year enabled members to become better acquainted with members of other houses. The Alpha Gamma Rho's and Rochdale House can testify to the excellence of Beal House's student chef. These exchange dinners, interspersed with occasional after-dinner speakers give a variety to the co-op's social life.

Through cooperative effort in cooking, cleaning, washing dishes and all the elements of planning involved, the men of Beal House gain experience and knowledge which they feel will help them after graduation.

Established in 1855

It has been a pleasure to work with the enterprising, enthusiastic, intelligent body of students of State College in the production of this school annual. Nowhere in the country could be found a more dynamic and forward looking student body or a college, the usefulness of which is stronger and better because it is founded basically on roots laid deep in the soil itself.

State College, throughout its history, has stood for the fundamentals of American liberty—for individual freedom, for individual enterprise, for fair play in sportsmanship. And so it is that all who come on to the campus feel the pulse of Americanism and lift their heads a little higher by breathing the atmosphere of this great institution.

STATE TROUNCED NORTHWESTERN TWICE

Above—Sonny Means brushes through the Northwestern team to score an easy two points. The Spartans whipped Northwestern both times during the 1950-1951 season.

Left—From the moment the starting line-up was given the spirited send-off by Coach Newell, State went all-out until the final whistle.

BEN FRANKLIN SAID—

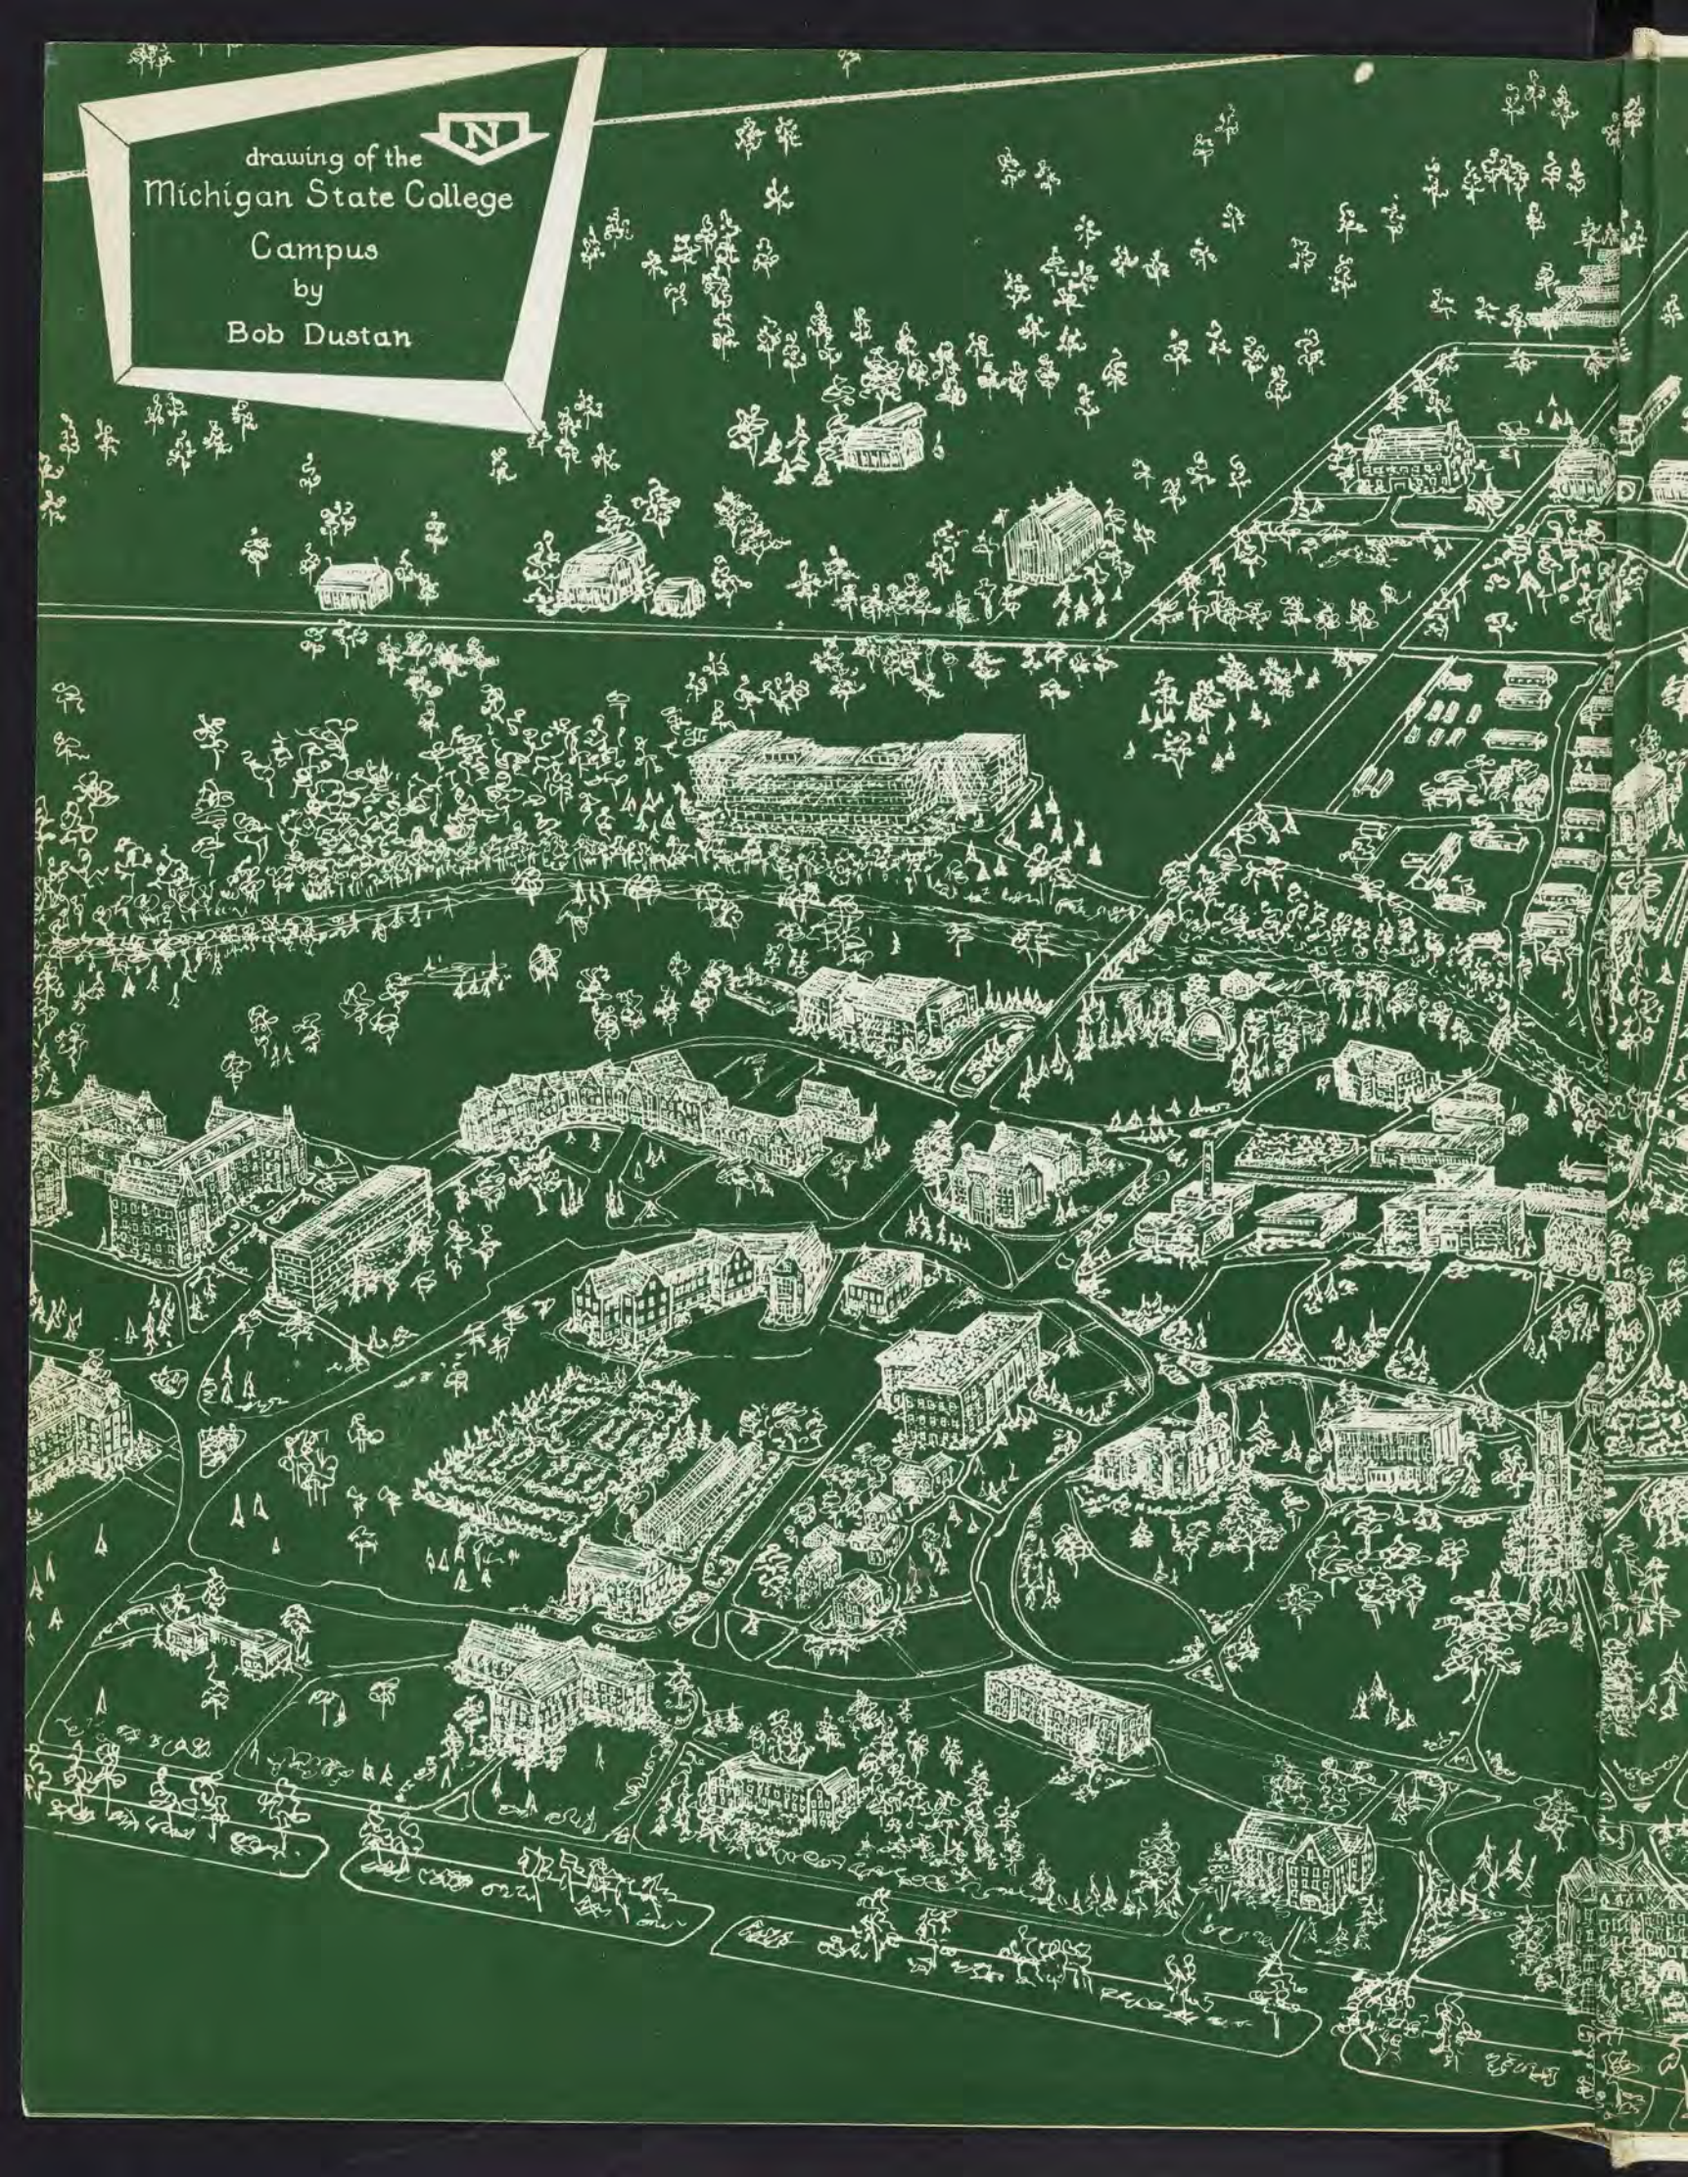

"The next thing most like living one's life over again seems to be a recollection of that life, and to make that recollection as durable as possible by putting it down in writing."

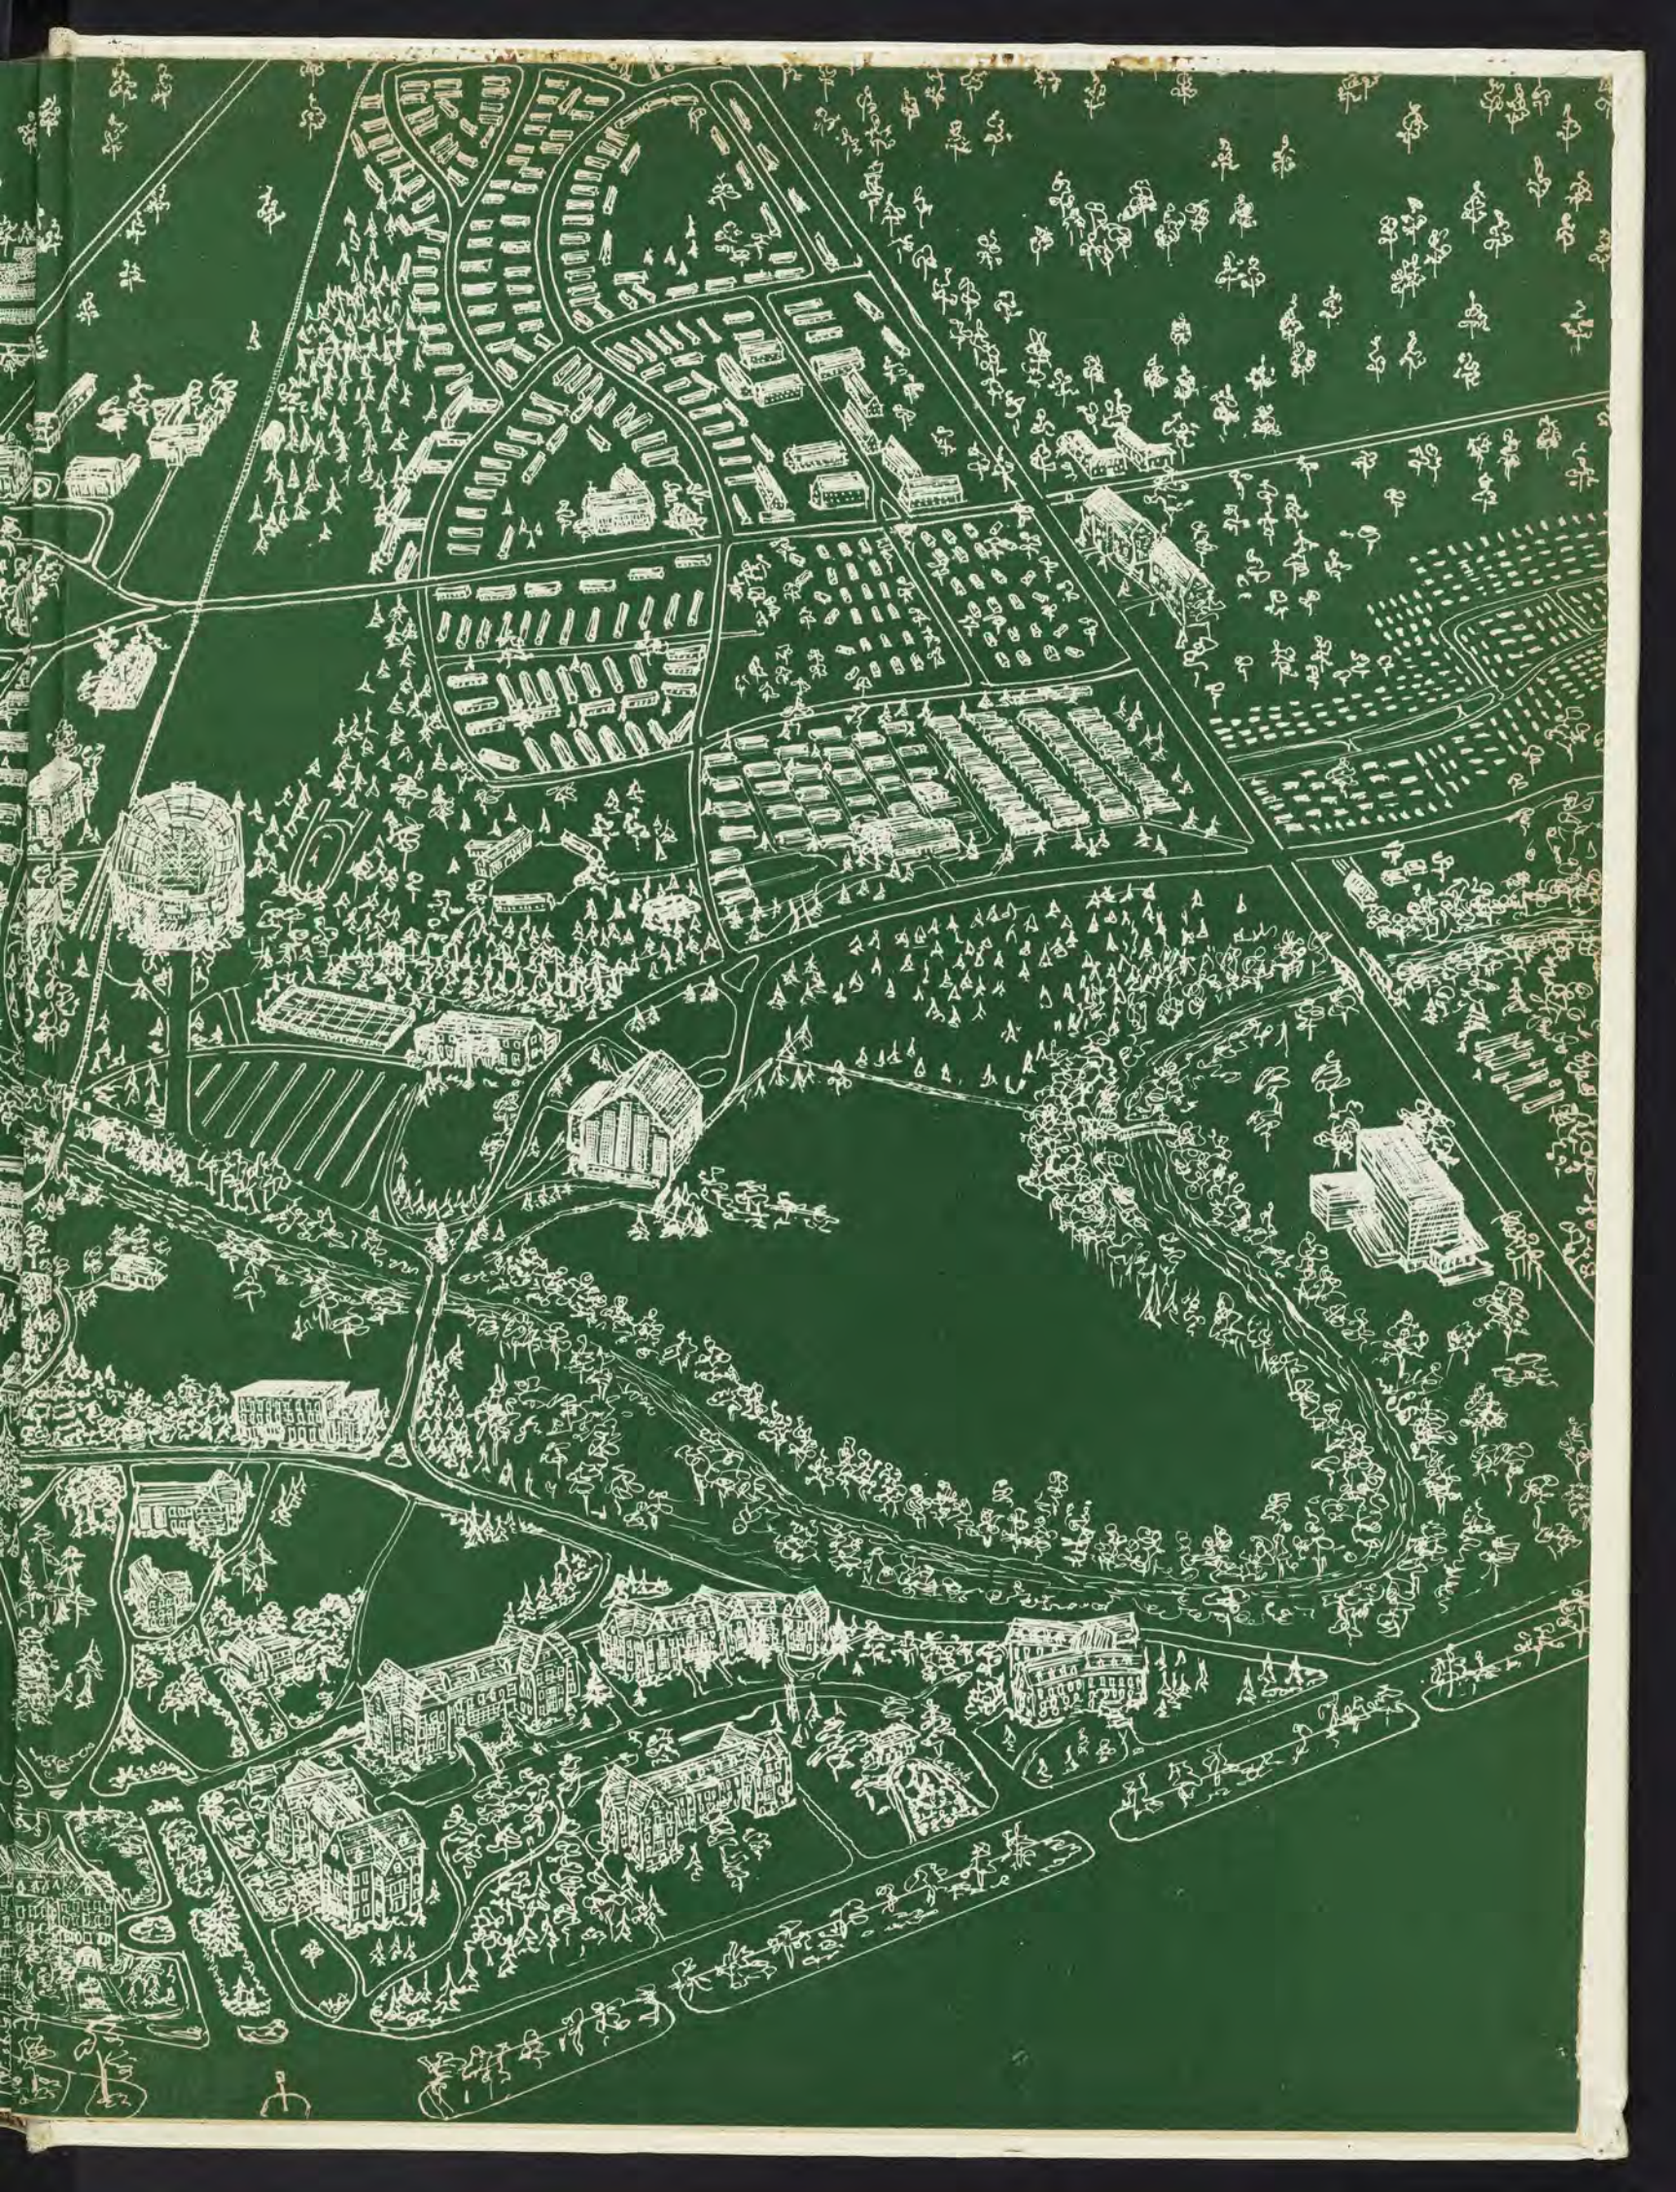

. . . and pictures, too, the staff of the 1951 Wolverine might add.

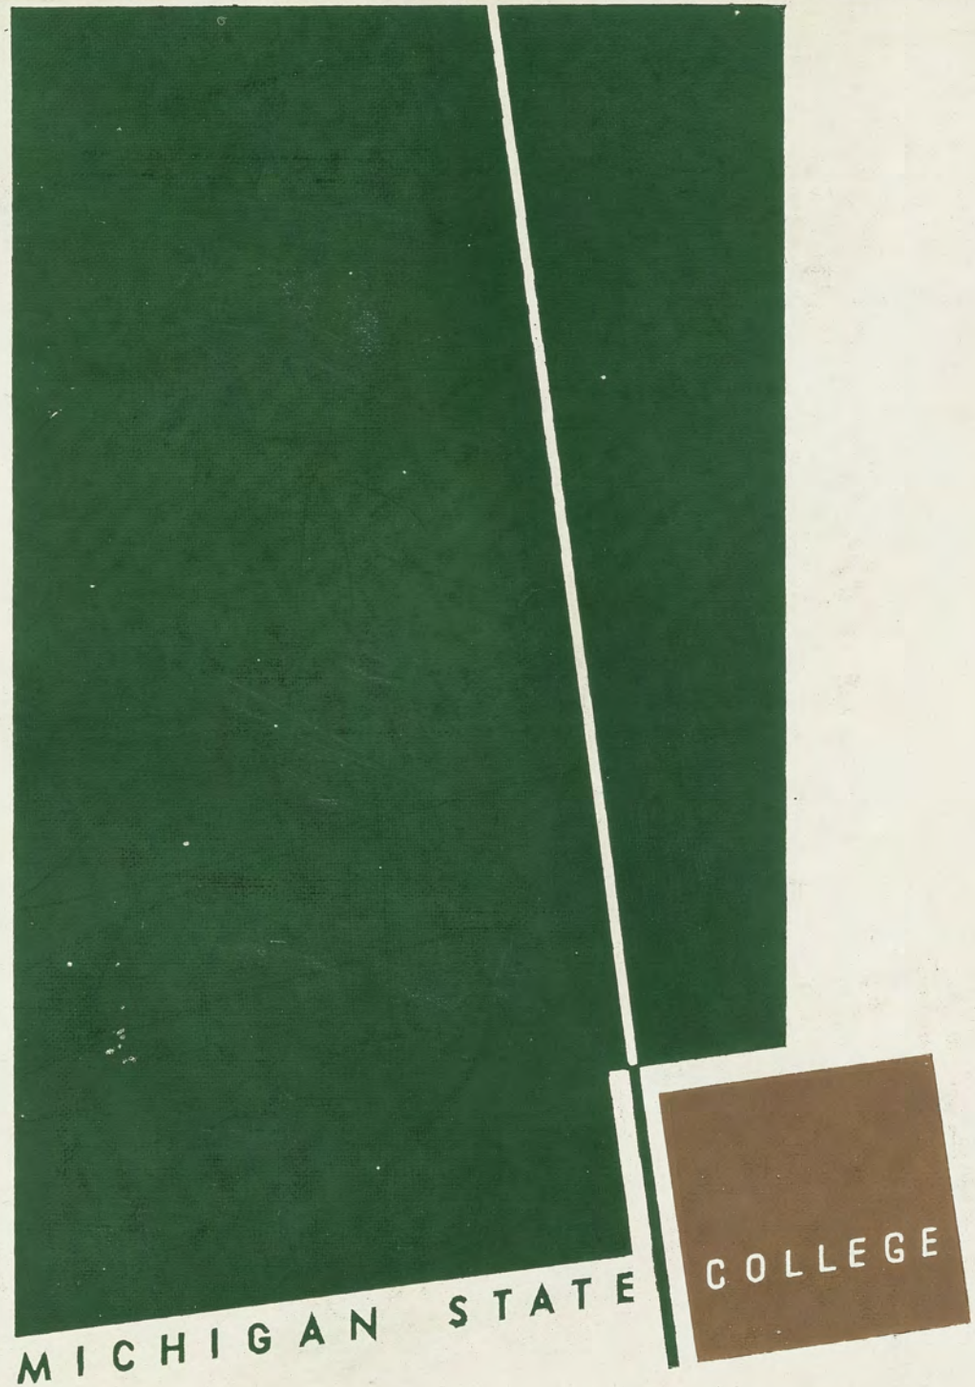

It has been the aim (perhaps unknowingly) this year to practice just what Ben Franklin suggested—to give the students and friends of Michigan State College the most complete collection of memorable events which the corps of photographers and writers could gather. We feel that your copy of the 1951 Wolverine will become even more valuable to you as the years roll on.

Thank you for giving us the opportunity of serving you.
