FALL TERM...the year begins

Thousands of students began to pour onto the Michigan State College campus via cars, trains, planes and buses on September 16 for another year of classes, extra-curricular activities and social events. Dorms, co-ops and sorority and fraternity houses were again opened after a three months' vacation. Members of service organizations were on hand to help with directions and parking problems...

Hearing tests are one of the many features of orientation week for freshmen and transfers.

President John A. Hannah officially began Orientation Week by bidding all new students welcome in a formal speech given at the Auditorium on Monday morning. An informal reception was held in the Union the same evening.

Orientation really got under way during the week as new students were confronted with hearing and speech tests, comprehensive tests, physical examinations and registration.

One of the many services offered was that of the counseling staff in A-2, South Campus. Students were welcome for advice in not only scholastic and vocational problems but also in any personal conflict which arose.

Along with necessary tests and examinations of the week were orientation dances, "hag or drag"; open houses and smokers held by church and campus organizations to acquaint the new students with their respective activities, and the first introduction into the Grill, central meeting place for all.

Registration itself was perhaps the biggest adventure for a new student. It was filled with confusion, and closed sections, trial schedules, flu shots, aspiring publications salesmen, and finally a schedule for the coming term.

A registration worker checks the I.D. of a somewhat perplexed student.

Students in non-pref are assigned enrollment officers who guide them in courses until they decide upon a major field.

After duly showing registration and enrollment cards and paying fees, students had only one stop before entering the maze known as registering for classes. Each MSC student had his picture taken for an activity card. The student I.D. was one of his most valuable possessions, for without it he could not attend sports events, lecture-concert series, cash a check, or vote at a student election. It was for his own insurance and was his best means of identifying himself wherever he went.

Another gauntlet to run during orientation week was the buying of required textbooks at the Union Book Store. Mobs of students seemed to descend upon the two counters at the same time, creating an orderly chaos out of a usually serene store.

Union Board members take tickets and stamp hands at the informal Union Board dances in the Union.

By the end of the week, all upper classmen had returned for registration and the activities of the first weekend, which included many fraternity parties and the first football game of the year.

Students had made contacts at the orientation dances and open houses, and dates were in store for the weekend.

Many a new coed became acquainted with the Beaumont Tower tradition. In the true sense of the word, a girl is not considered a coed until she has been kissed under the Tower at the stroke of midnight.

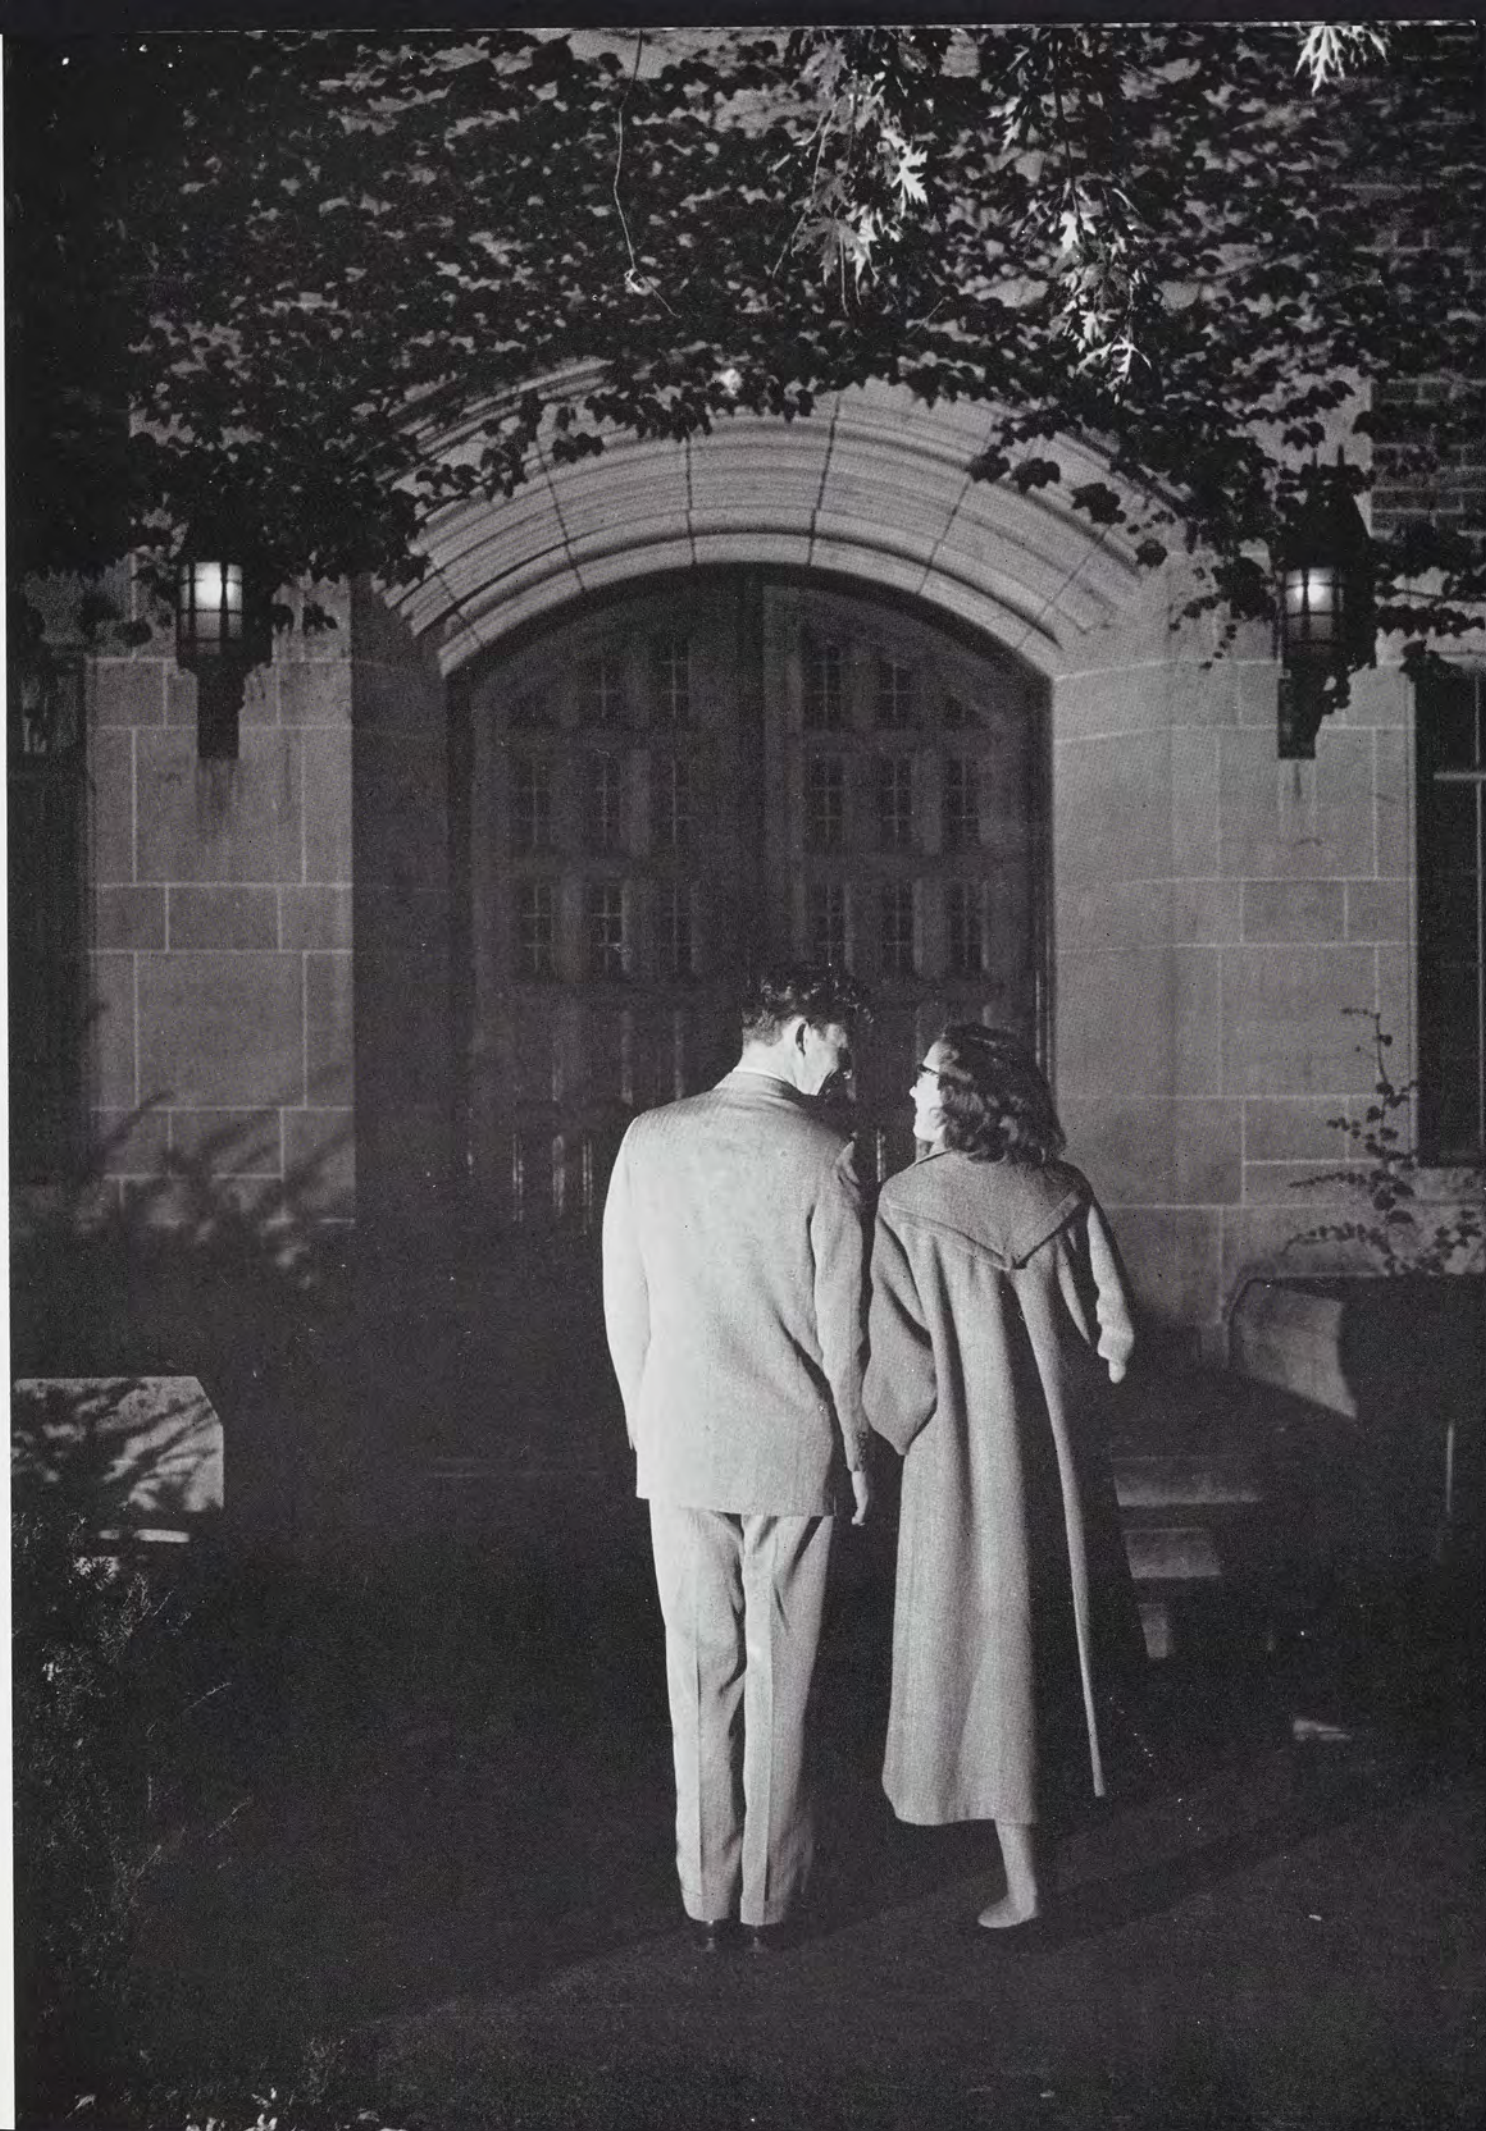

Registration figures showed that enrollment had risen slightly from the preceding spring term. Thirteen thousand, one hundred and fifteen students were enrolled during the spring quarter as compared with 13,593 in the fall.

A new ratio of approximately two men to every woman was established.

Following the pep rally on Friday night, the Union Board sponsored an all-college Pep Rally dance in the parlors of the Union.

A pep rally dance was held in the Union the night before the Oregon State game.

MSC Opens Grid Season

All of the excitement and anticipation that a brisk fall day and a football game can bring were present the afternoon of the first game. As in previous years, the opening game of the season was played with the Beavers of Oregon State.

The green and white State flags decorated the streets of downtown E. Lansing. Concession stands with vendors selling mums, banners, pins and programs dotted the paths to Macklin Stadium. Parking lots were filled to capacity and thousands thronged the walks leading to the stadium.

Although the game itself lacked the brilliant playing and polish which were evident as the season wore on, it was still a thrill to see the highly touted Michigan State team trot onto the field, especially for those who witnessed their first college grid tilt.

Oregon State proved a tougher opponent than predicted. State scored only once and sent the visitors home with a 6-0 defeat.

AP polls had ranked the Spartans number two in the nation a few weeks before they had actually donned their game suits and trotted onto the field to display their 1951 wares.

E. Lansing has one Catholic church, which is always crowded with MSC students at the Sunday services.

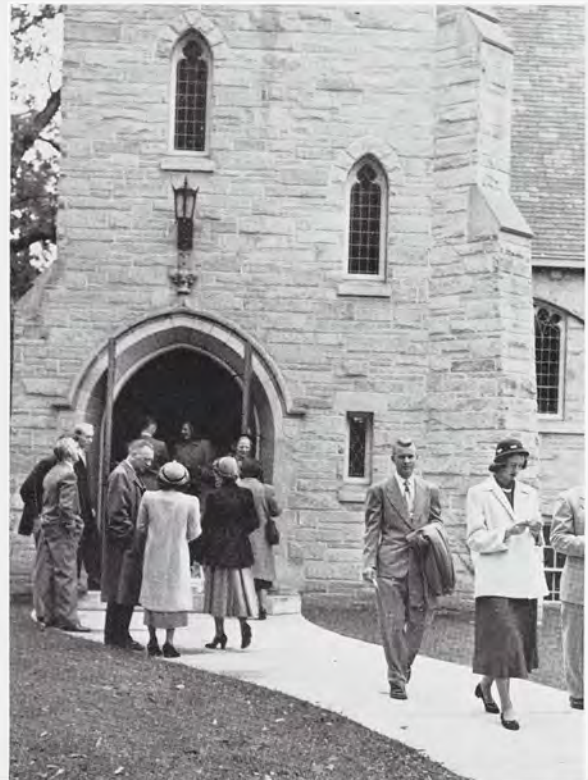

East Lansing Churches Serve Students

On Sunday mornings, skirts and sweaters, sport shirts and slacks and white bucks are replaced by pumps and dresses and suits as a large percentage of the State enrollment attend the various church services in E. Lansing.

All faiths are represented on campus, each having its own programs dedicated to help the student in his spiritual as well as his social life. Seven churches in E. Lansing of various beliefs and denominations serve the needs of the student body.

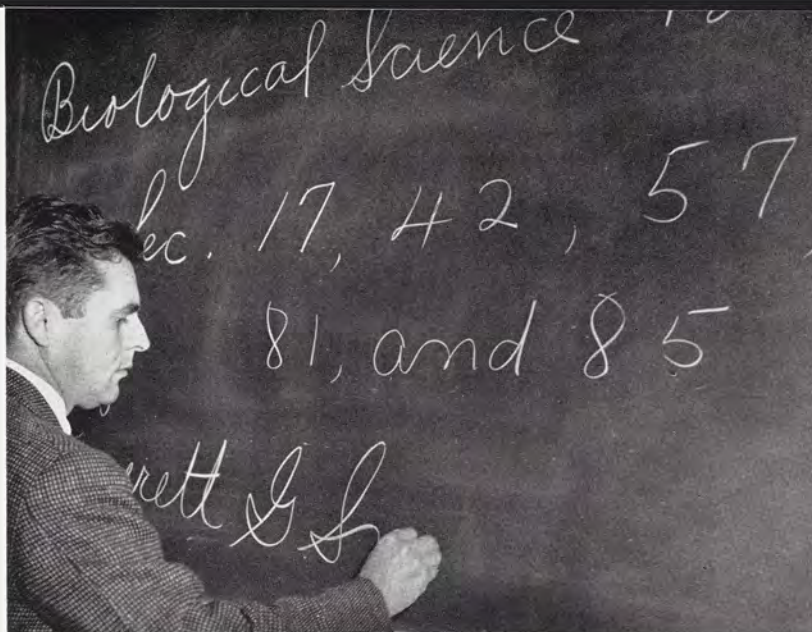

In conjunction with the churches are several religious groups, which include the Christian Science Organization, the Christian Student Foundation, Episcopal College Center, B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, College Lutheran Church, Newman Club, Spartan Christian Fellowship, Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A. These groups usually have weekly meetings, and have a wide program of religious and social activities.

Most recent addition to the list of E. Lansing churches is the College Lutheran Church, 500 Ann.

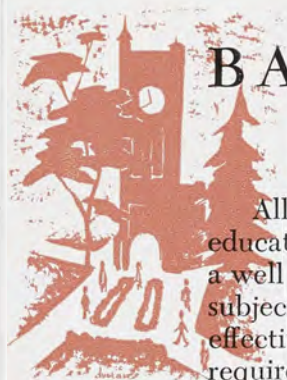

People's Church combines several denominations, including Presbyterian, Baptist, Congregational and Methodist.

All basic college students are required to take five of the seven basic courses, giving them a broad general background before beginning intensified work in their major fields.

BASICS AND BERKEY... where the student spends his time

All students were automatically enrolled in the basic college, a system of general education established at MSC during the war. Its main purpose was to give the student a well rounded background before beginning work in his major field. Five of the seven subjects offered, including written and spoken English, biological science, physical science, effective living, social science, history of civilization and literature and fine arts were required for graduation.

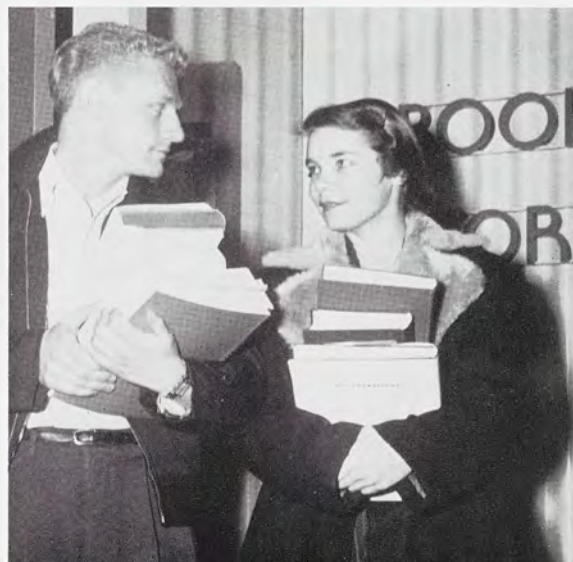

In past years, students were required to take a comprehensive examination at the end of each course, but in 1952, with a revision of the basic college in the offing, a new method was employed in which the course mark was determined two-thirds by the term mark and the remaining one-third by a comprehensive exam, given over the material covered to date, at the end of each term.

After completing work in the basic college, the students graduated to upper school and work in his major field.

Michigan State offered work in six major fields which lead to degrees in science and arts, business and public service, agriculture, veterinary medicine, home economics and engineering. A recent innovation was the school of nursing.

Much of the average student's time—basic college and upper school alike—was spent in Berkey Hall, largest classroom building on campus. With 53 rooms it has an hourly capacity of 3200 students each hour.

Between 75,000 and 80,000 books are sold each fall term.

Union mixers and dances are held nearly every week during the school year. They provide not only an inexpensive means of entertainment, but also a medium for meeting new people.

97,000 watch MSC down Michigan 25-0

Because of a Big Ten ruling, the practice of selling the MSC-Michigan game student tickets for the price of the tax only was outlawed, and all tickets were sold before students returned to school. Although the scarcity prevented many State students from witnessing the traditional rivalry with Michigan, a steady stream of cars could be seen leaving E. Lansing bound for Ann Arbor on the morning of September 29.

A capacity crowd of over 97,000 jammed the Michigan stadium to watch MSC smash to its largest victory over Michigan in their 44 meetings. The 25-0 win was the first time in 17 years that the Wolverines failed to cross the Spartan goal line.

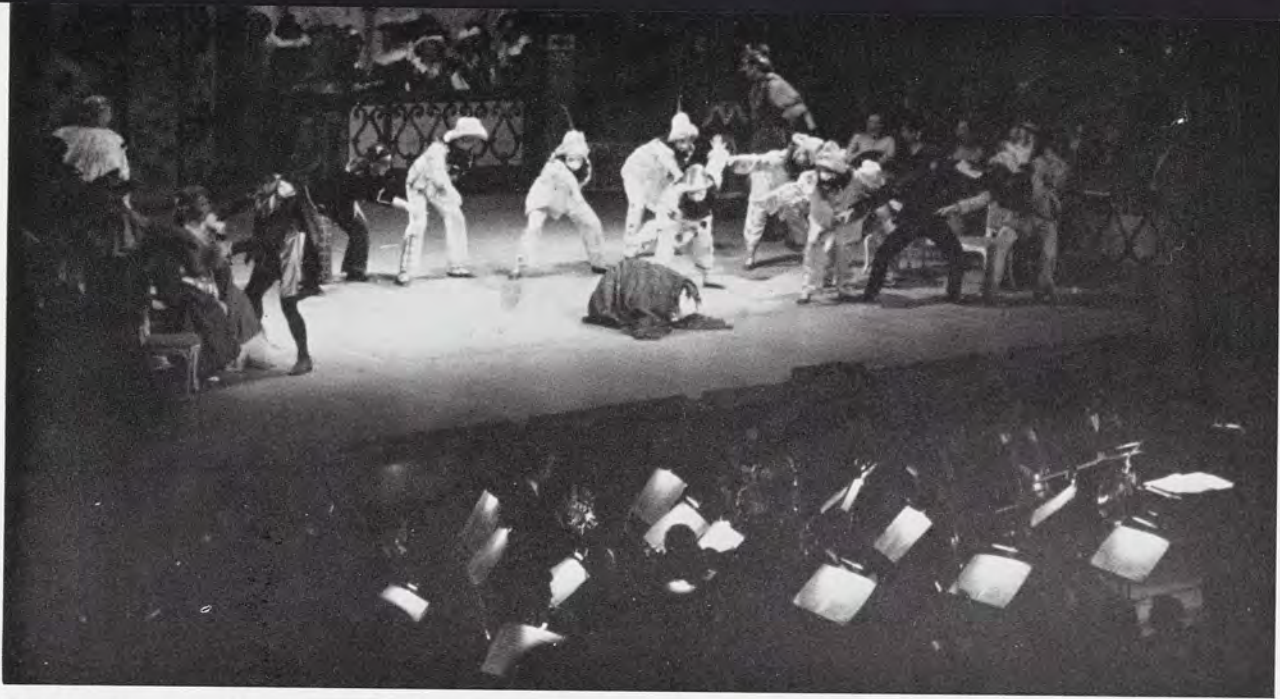

While State could be justly proud of the crushing defeat over the mighty foe, which saw the Spartans in the number one position in A.P. rating for the first time in its history, Michigan had every reason to be proud when its marching band went through formations during half time. The band, rated as one of the best in the country, spent more hours in practice per day than did the football team.

LECTURE-CONCERT SERIES

A series of renowned concerts, lectures and world travelogues were presented throughout the year in the auditorium. Stanley E. Crowe, Dean Emeritus, was director of this lecture-concert series.

Highlighting the season was the Sadler's Wells Theatre Ballet which appeared on a two-night stand fall term. The ballet troupe, on a six-month tour of the U. S. and Canada, performed the full-length classic "Coppelia" before a full auditorium.

Also on a two-night stand fall term was the New York Center Opera Company which played Puccini's "Madam Butterfly" and Prokofieff's "The Love for Three Oranges."

Others on the fall term concert agenda included Patrice Munsell and Brian Sullivan in a joint concert; the Rodgers and Hammerstein concert; the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Rafal Kubelik; and Jennie Tourel, the mezzo-soprano.

Winter term, the Philadelphia Orchestra with Eugene Ormandy, conductor; Myra Hess, pianist; and the Norwegian Boys' Choir, directed by Ragnvald Bjarne appeared in the auditorium.

Lectures, another phase of the lecture-concert series, were given by Dr. Will Durant, philosopher; Donald P. Wilson, psychologist and author; Louis Fischer, writer and lecturer; Edward Weeks, editor of the Atlantic Monthly; Ogden Nash, poet and humorist; and Rear Admiral Ellis M. Zacharias.

Twenty-five world travel numbers were also presented in the auditorium throughout the year.

A dejected Ohio State squad leaves the field after a thrilling last period comeback gives the Spartans a narrow 24-20 win over the Buckeyes.

A few students were able to go to Columbus the day State met the Buckeyes in a magnificent game that reverberated throughout the nation.

Never will any State fan who saw the game forget the last seven riotous minutes when the Spartan squad unleashed a furious attack and roared through the Buckeyes' line twice to put a screen-story ending to what had seemed a lost cause.

The great stadium was a pandemonium of yelling fans. Stranger pommelled and embraced stranger.

That night, Columbus resounded with the Fight Song as the victorious Spartans celebrated. Names like Dorow, Janowitz, Carey, the Heidelberg, Carolyn and Neil House became synonymous with a day of glory and triumph for the Spartans.

THE DAYS BECAME BRISKER... and mid-terms approached

Fall term rolled on. The days became brisker . . . two of the biggest games of the season were over . . . and the students' minds turned to approaching mid-terms and formal dances. Or sometimes, when scuffling through the leaves en route to a 2 o'clock on south campus, the Spartan became aware of the vast area and beauty of this college he was affiliated with.

The original cost of MSC's physical plant was approximately 48 million dollars. The main campus consisting of 160 acres north and 480 acres south of the Red Cedar river houses most of the major buildings while the remainder of the 3,600 acres is used mainly as farm land.

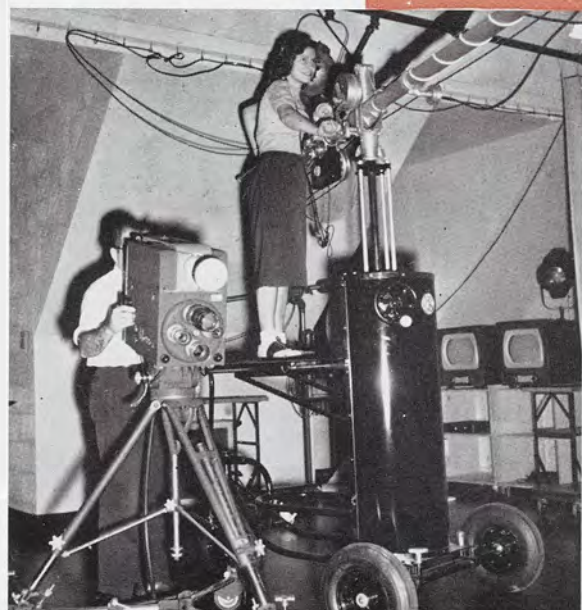

But these were only passing reflections, and the mind once again turned to the routine events of every day.

An all-college blood typing drive was held in the parlors of the Union.

Friday night picnics and weekend radio parties were on the active agenda.

Work in the field of television occupied class room and research hours for students and faculty alike.

LeRoy Bolden, outstanding freshman back, returns a Marquette punt.

Marquette was the next gridiron opponent. State almost slipped on that one. The Hill toppers were certainly keyed up for a big upset, and almost got away with it, but as in previous games, the Spartans staged a last quarter comeback, and went on to win the game 20-14.

One of the many features of the Union Building is the billiards room in the basement.

THE UNION BUILDING ... recreational facilities for all

Central gathering place for students was the Union Building, one of the most modern and well equipped student unions in the country. One of the main purposes of the building was its recreational facilities, used by the multitude of students for whiling away spare hours.

The basement of the building held bowling alleys, a billiards room, barber shop and cafeteria. The bowling alleys, which provided free shoes for students, were used for bowling classes, part of the physical education curriculum, and intra-mural bowling, as well as by the general public.

An art room and music listening room were special attractions of the third floor, along with student offices, including publications, Panhel and I.F.C., A.W.S., Campus Chest, A.P.O. and Student Government.

A Ballroom and several parlors made up the second floor, along with Alumni offices.

Cash register operator Lucille always has a friendly smile as she rings up numerous seven cents for coffee in the Grill each day.

THE GRILL...or grill-hounding

The Grill, or grill-hounding, was by far the most popular extra-curricular activity of the majority of students. Anything could happen here. Some of the most creative ideas were hatched over a cup of coffee, whether a campus activity, an afternoon picnic, or just meeting a new girl, and the consequent evolution of dating.

The Grill was the Stork Club of MSC, where everybody went to be seen or to see, to meet or be met. It was the one place all students had in common, greeks, g.d.i.'s, b.m.o.c.'s or athletes.

During away football games, it often became a listening center for students who could not see the game. Such a day was October 20 when Michigan State defeated Penn State 32-21 at the Penn State homecoming game in State College, Pa.

INTRA-MURAL SPORTS

While college athletic events took the spotlight on weekends, the all-college intramurals dominated the sports lives of the college students during the week.

Each fraternity, dorm and co-op was placed in a block, and there followed a series of games which resulted in block champions. These champions in turn played each other in semi-finals, and a champion team for each sport finally evolved.

Trophies were awarded for each intra-mural sport including football, basketball, swimming, bowling, golf, tennis, track and softball.

The women's housing units too participated in intra-mural sports. Although the interest was not as great, most of the living units sponsored teams in volley ball, swimming, bowling and softball. The Delta Gammas and Gamma Phis were unique in their football game, which resulted in a scoreless tie.

DORM ACTIVITIES

Although sports played an ever important part in the students life, there were not-to-be-forgotten term parties and open houses.

On the agenda of each dorm was at least one semi-formal term party during the year. The dance was usually held in the dining room or lower lounge which was decorated in the party theme. Often, favors were given to the guests.

Open houses were held throughout the year, with homecoming and Christmas being favorite events.

HOMECOMING...alums returned

"A flag on the play" could well have been the general theme of the homecoming game with the Pittsburgh Panthers. Nevertheless it was a wonderful game, and the phenomenal accuracy of the Panther's passing thrilled everyone.

The visitors played a beautiful game, leading by a small margin at half time, but proved to be no match for the Spartans.

The whole campus turned out to make homecoming weekend a success, with even the weather cooperating with a pleasantly sunny, but chilly, Saturday.

Amusing original ideas in displays were put up by every house, dorm and shop throughout the area greeting the returning alums as they poured into E. Lansing for the weekend festivities.

Parties and dances were organized to further the memorable weekend, with the biggest event an all-college Homecoming dance, at which the queen and her court were presented.

An elaborate display, made of thousands of hand made paper flowers, earned a second place for the Phi Delta Thetas in the men's division.

HOMECOMING DISPLAYS... all-college competition

Nearly every dorm, sorority and fraternity house spent hours in designing and working out what they thought would be a winning display in the all-college homecoming decoration competition.

The displays were erected the morning of the game, and judged just before noon on the basis of theme, originality and construction.

First, second and third place winners and runners up were announced during half-time at the game.

Although only a limited number of trophies could be presented for winning displays, the colorful and various ideas were the scenes of many spectators after the game and preceding the open houses and buffet suppers at fraternity and sorority houses.

The construction and clever wording of the Alpha Xi Delta's display earned them a first place in the sorority and women's dorms division.

Delta Tau Delta's "Sparty" was typical of the homecoming displays.

Using the "Ring the bell and win a prize" theme seen so often at carnivals and county fairs, the Alpha Gamma Rho's won the first place trophy in the fraternity and men's dorms division.

A tremendous number of students turned out at the Notre Dame pep rally the eve before the best game played by the Spartan 11.

The rally was illuminated by a huge bonfire as a result of a wood gathering contest initiated by the sponsor, the Wolverine, college yearbook. Carloads of wood of all sorts were gathered by the contestants. A group whose enthusiasm exceeded its strength was unsuccessful in bringing a telephone pole and settled for railroad ties instead.

West Shaw Hall was credited with the most wood gathered and second place went to East Shaw who had teamed up with the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity. The winning team was awarded a football, autographed by "Biggie" Munn and the team.

THE FIGHTING IRISH CAME TO STATE...

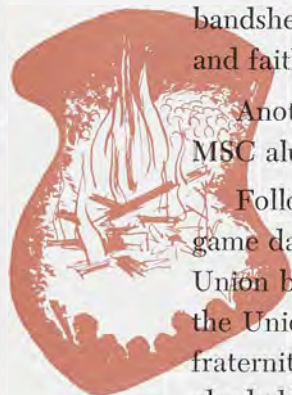

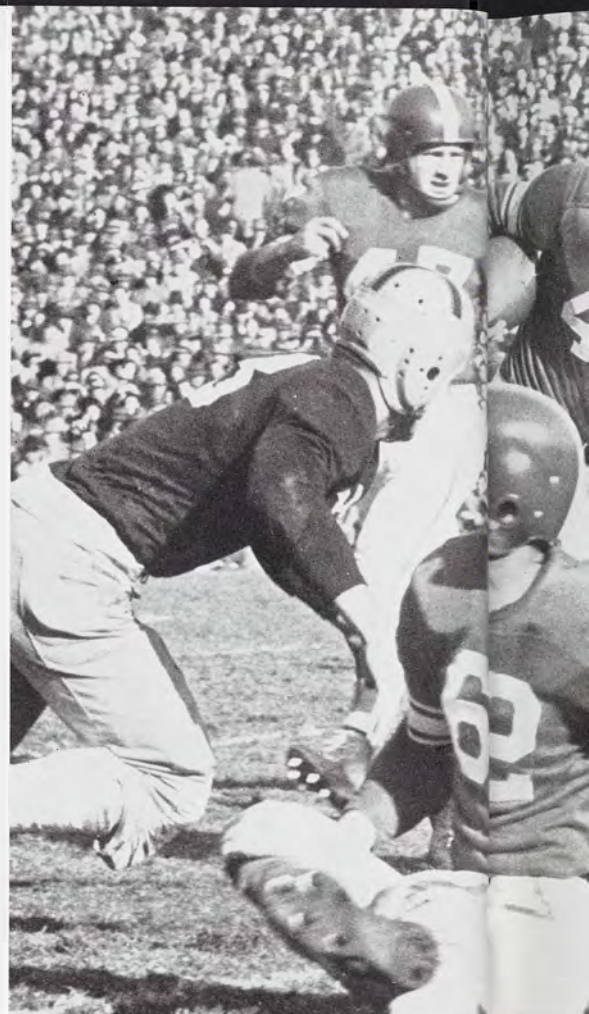

A roaring cheer went up for Coach Munn and his players as they appeared in the bandshell; and as usual, "Biggie" had a few words to say in appreciation of the ovation and faith displayed by the student body.

Another feature of the rally was a short speech by Sports Announcer Harry Wismer, an MSC alumnus.

Following the rally, a pre-game dance was held in the Union ballroom, sponsored by the Union Board. Several of the fraternity and sorority houses also held informal radio parties.

And everyone waited—and wondered.

A huge crowd gathers the night before the Notre Dame game in one of the season's most successful pep rallies.

Spartans driving Halfback Don McAuliffe rambles against the Irish.

Tickets for the Notre Dame game had been sold out since early August. The only available ducets were offered by scalpers to the tune of 25 dollars. And then the snow came. It didn't stop. Athletic Director Ralph Young sent emergency pleas to State students to help dig out the stadium for the big game with Notre Dame on Saturday.

and went home humble in defeat

On Thursday, the field still looked like a toboggan slide.

The price of tickets dropped to $3.60. Students answered the plea and headed stadium-ward with shovels in hand. Friday came and with it a change in weather.

Saturday was crisp and clear. The field looked good. Macklin Stadium was packed to over-flowing. This was the big game. State had come past Michigan and Ohio State, and this was the game that counted—you could feel it everywhere.

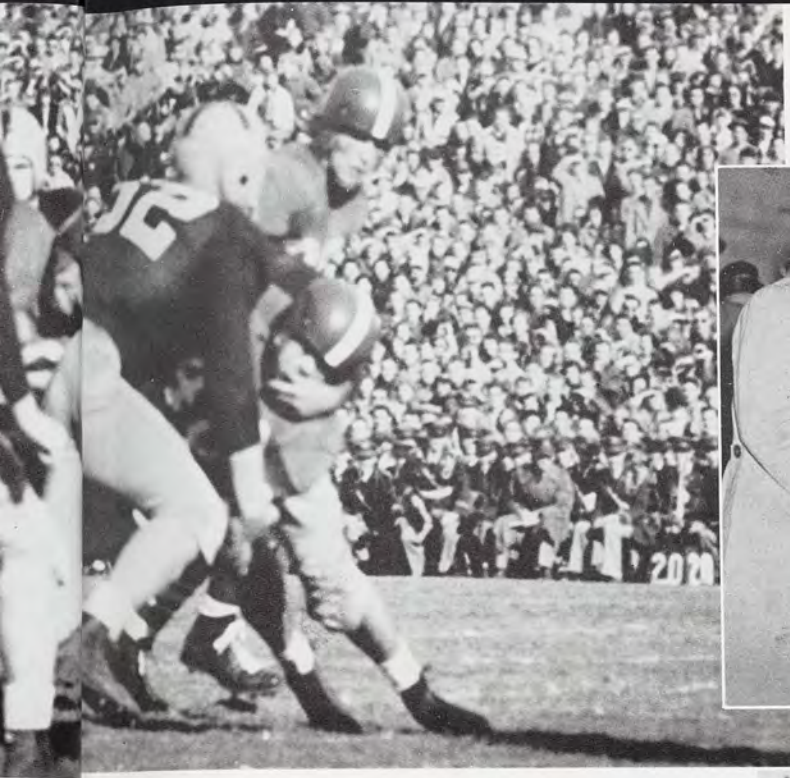

No one will ever forget the opening play of the game as Fullback Dick Panin made a terrific dash all the way through the Irish line for a T.D.

The fans went wild. Even those still coming up the ramps could feel the air vibrate as the crowd let out a tremendous roar. It was unquestionably the Spartan's day. Nothing seemed to go wrong. The team played a brilliant game which netted them a 35-0 victory over the "fighting Irish" from Notre Dame.

Upper Left—On that sunny November afternoon, T.D. after T.D. rolled the Spartan team right up the various poll ladders to the number one position of the nation's leading football teams. Co-sponsored by the speech and dramatics department and Theta Alpha Phi, dramatics honorary, a term play was presented during each of the four sessions of the school year.

Tryouts were held for three nights about two months before the presentation of Skylark, fall term play. After the parts were cast, nightly rehearsals were held in the auditorium until the day of the opening performance.

The play, which opened to the usual small first-night audience, closed with several curtain calls and ovations from a full house, totally won by the good work of the cast, on closing night.

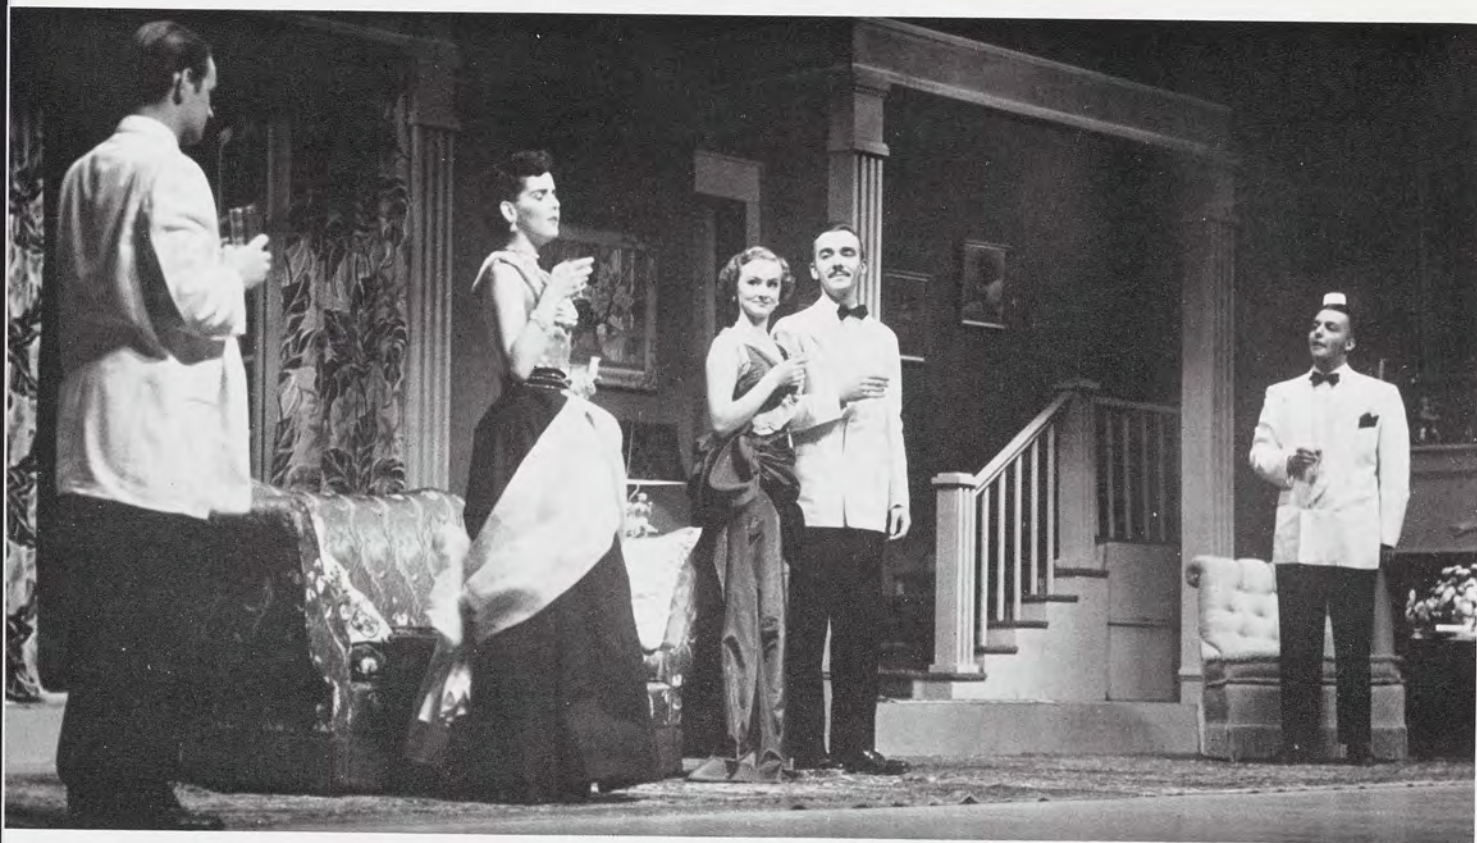

The speech and dramatics department has done at least one play per term for the past 15 years. The productions, cast, produced and directed by State students, offered points towards membership in Theta Alpha Phi, as well as fulfilling required work hours for make-up and construction classes.

A traditional event was the cast party, which followed the final curtain on closing night.

THE ENGINEERS' BALL

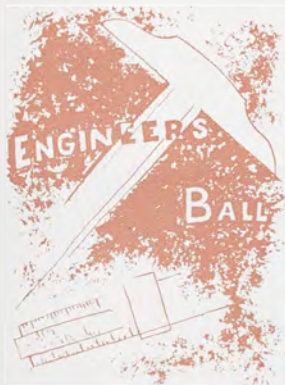

Each fall term, engineers put aside their slide rules and don formal clothes for their own semi-formal dance.

Drexel Lamb and his orchestra played at the Engineers' Ball held in the Women's Gym.

Although the dance was primarily for engineering students and their dates, left over tickets were available for students from any of the other schools.

The dance was the first sponsored by one of the six major schools of study at State.

The Women's Gym was also the scene for Saturday night hoedowns, sponsored by square dancing clubs and orientation dances held during the first week of school.

Engineering students put away their slide rules and take their girls to the semi-formal Engineers' Ball each fall term.

Small tables were set up for refreshment and intermission at the Ball.

Next to the Notre Dame game, no other gridiron battle of the season got more attention, but in a different manner, than the Indiana game.

State had been highly rated and acclaimed all season. Despite its last quarter comebacks, which often were the deciding factor in its game, the Spartans of Michigan State were famed as one of the best teams in the land, if not the best.

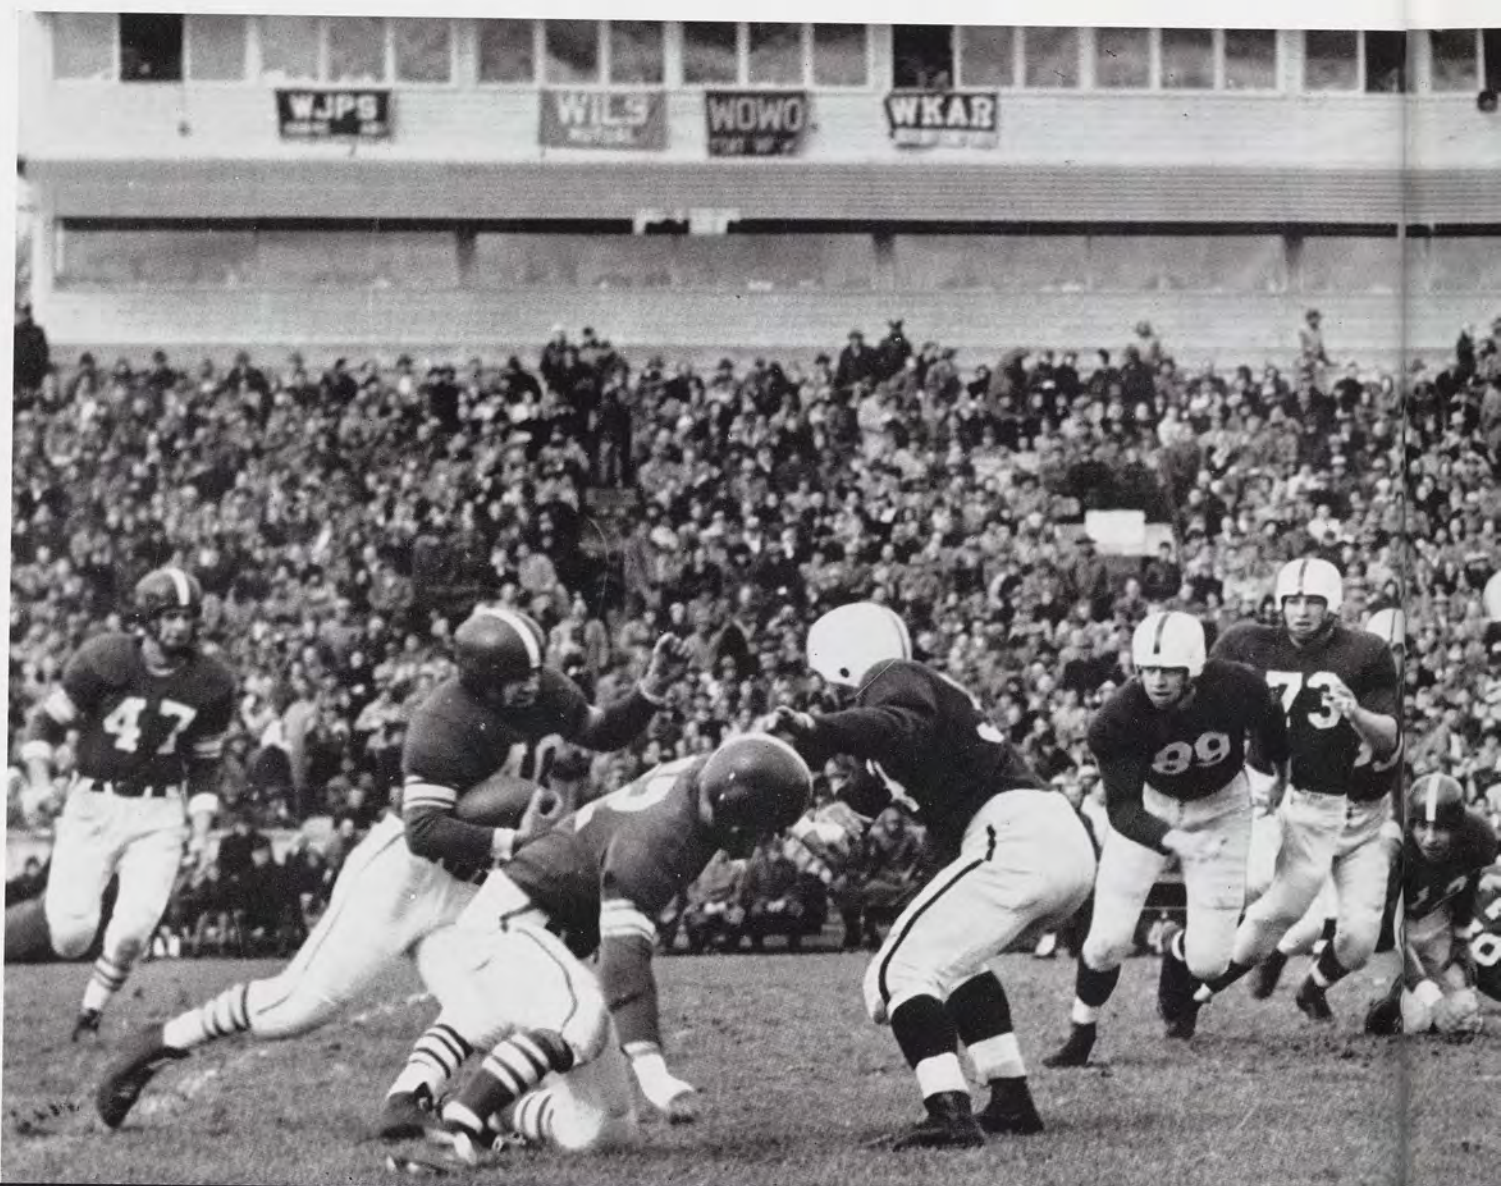

Indiana was supposed to be a comparatively easy victory. But the game proved otherwise. State slipped by with a 30-26 win, and only as a result of a last period drive.

For weeks afterwards, a verbal battle swayed back and forth across the newspapers. A sports writer was burned in effigy by the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity. The noise even brought a usually silent head coach to publicly stand up for his boys and blast at the various charges leveled at them. "You might remind them that we won," said Coach "Biggie" Munn.

That was the undeniable fact. True, State's performance was not what it was against Notre Dame. No one knew the reason. Perhaps the Spartans faced a never-say-die club who wanted nothing more than to beat one of the best teams in the land.

While the football team still loomed in the limelight, daily practices in Jenison field-house occupied several hours each day for the basketball squad.

Few spectators were on hand to witness the one-sided slaughter against Colorado in the last game of State's great undefeated season.

COLORADO . . . final victory in an undefeated season

The smallest crowd of the year partially filled Macklin Memorial stadium to watch the great Michigan State squad literally run all over the Colorado visitors, completing their unmarred victory record.

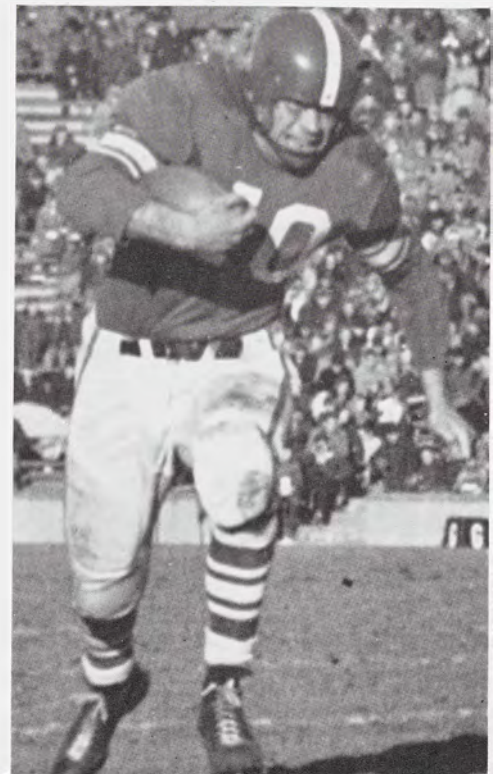

Because of an open date earlier in the season, the Colorado game was played during the four-day Thanksgiving vacation, and most Spartans listened at home. Still content over traditional highschool turkey-day games and a huge Thanksgiving dinner, students and faculty settled back to a very pleasant afternoon of listening. There was little doubt in their minds that State would polish off its season with a large margined victory, although some still remembered late-season upsets such as the Oregon State game in '49.

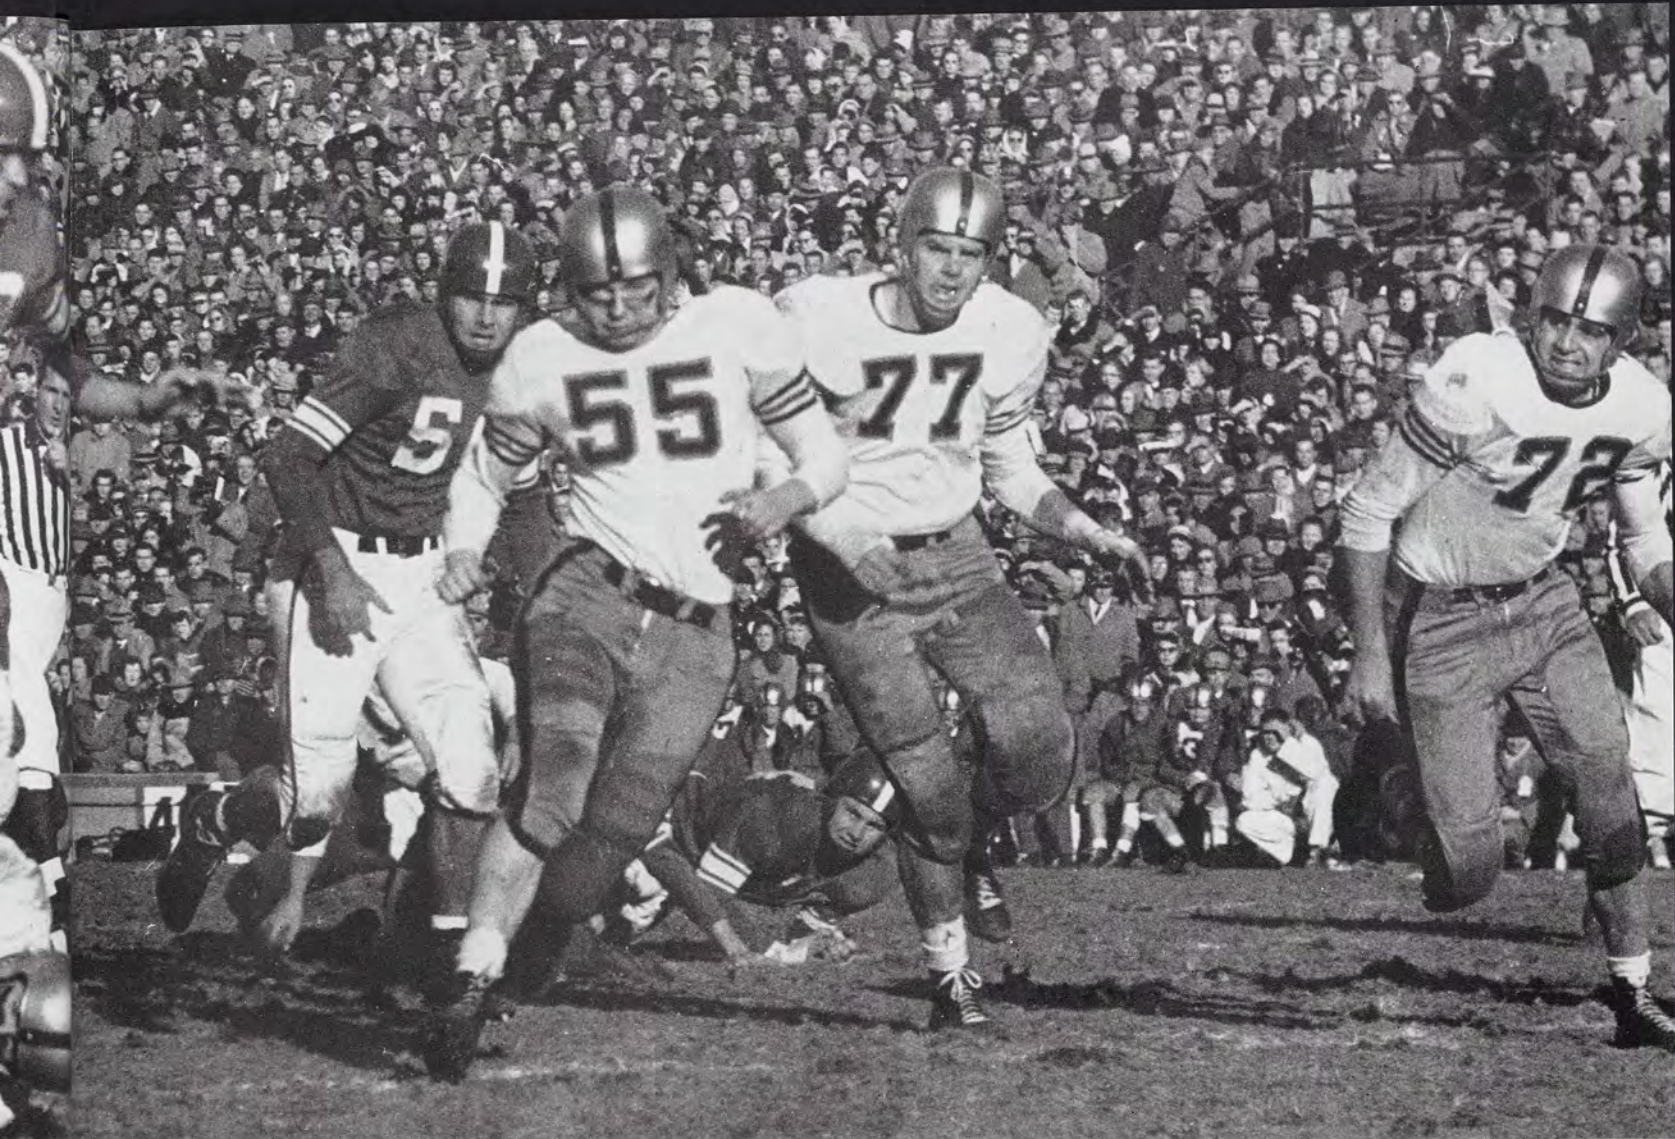

But Colorado never had a chance, as State rolled to a 45-6 victory.

considered it a glorious way to end a season and already looked forward to the coming year.

And thoughts turned from the most popular fall spectator sport to rapidly approaching final week, the Coronation Ball and an unusually long Christmas vacation.

Spartan defenders gang up on a Colorado back.

Over 100 exhausted runners, wearing the ribbons of their sponsors, crossed the finish line in the annual Turkey Trot on Old College Field.

TURKEY TROT . . . a turkey to the winner

Although it was bitterly cold, the annual turkey trot attracted many spectators who enthusiastically rooted for their favorites. Twenty teams, totaling 117 men, were entered in the big race run on a mile long course on Old College Field.

The teams, sponsored by sororities and women's dorms, which accumulated the most points went home with a nice fat turkey, which later became the backbone of a joint meal for the winners and sponsors.

Inaugurated as a permanent part of the vast intramural program in 1941, the Turkey Trot has grown increasingly popular over the years.

THE MILITARY REIGN

One of the most impressive formals of the year, the all-college Coronation Ball was held in the auditorium the weekend before finals began. Providing music for the dance, sponsored by the ROTC department, was Hal McIntyre and his orchestra.

In the weeks preceding the dance, honorary corps sponsors and cadet colonels were chosen from photographs of women's living unit representatives. The selection of the sponsors was made by the corps members themselves and their final choices were presented with capes and roses in one of the finest ceremonies held at any of the dances.

One of the most beautiful sights at Michigan State is the multi-colored lights on the huge Christmas tree at the entrance to the campus.

1,000 Lights Bring Color to State's Campus

A solemn and beautiful tradition on the Michigan State campus was the lighting of an outdoor Christmas tree, located at the Grand River entrance to the campus.

Thousands of students attended the lighting ceremony on the Sunday evening before finals started. The event was sponsored by the Pi Beta Phi's and Delta Tau Delta's.

President Hannah opened the ceremony with a speech and his 12-year-old daughter, Mary, threw the switch which lit the huge tree with a thousand bulbs in all colors.

Part of the ceremony included White Christmas and Adoremus Te Christi by the Men's Glee Club and Christmas carols in which the crowd added their voices. A reading of the Swedish legend, "Christmas Rose," was done by Mrs. Moiree Compere of the speech department.

Concluding the ceremony was the tapping of three new men as members of Excalibur, senior men's honorary.

The spirit of the Christmas season was also seen in the Union decorations, Christmas caroling to women's living units by men's living units and Christmas parties for underprivileged children, sponsored by various housing units.

Snow covered the 3,600 acres of the MSC campus.

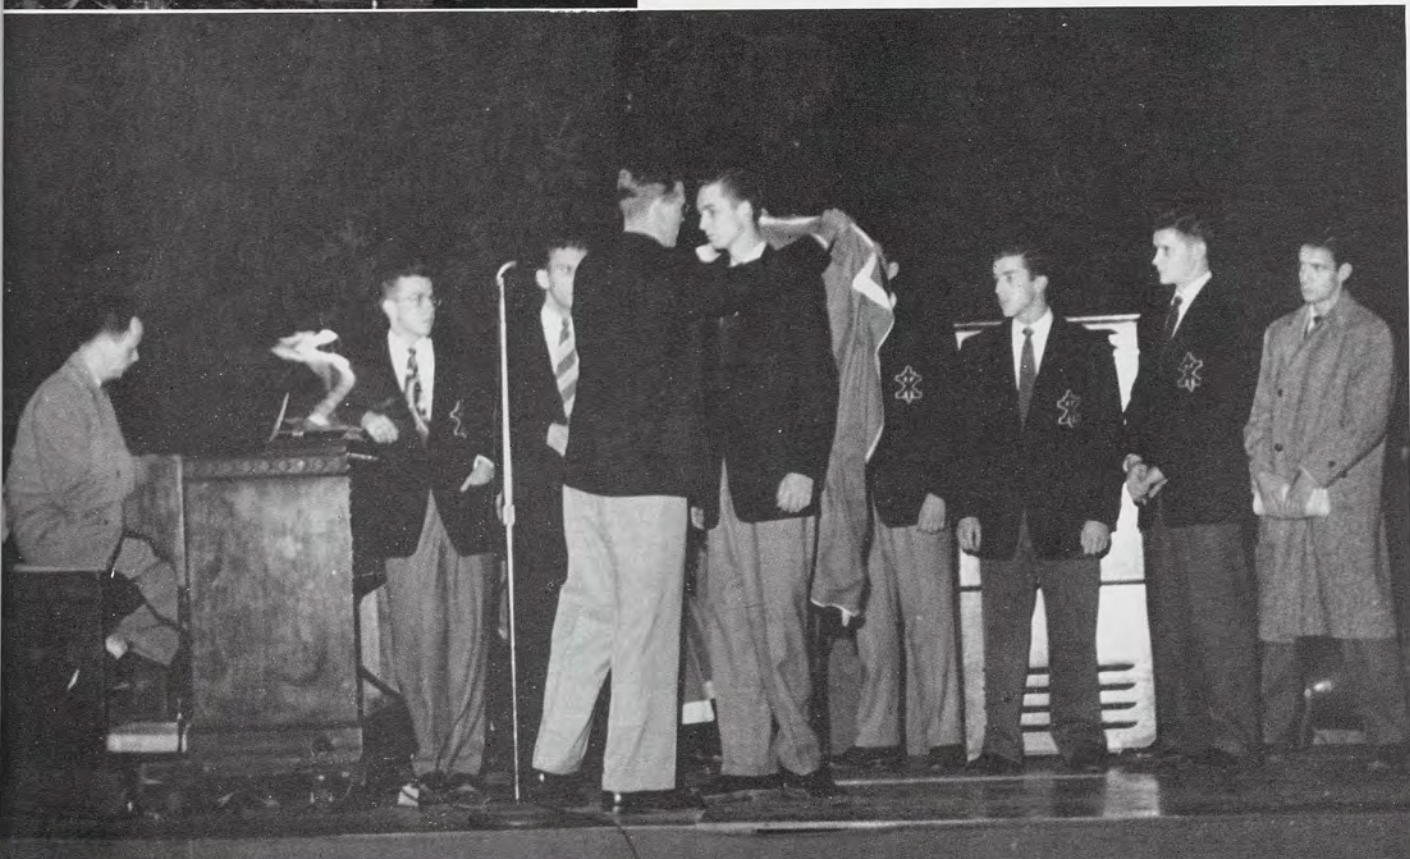

Group singing of Christmas carols followed a short program by the Men's Glee Club.

THE HANGING OF THE GREENS . . . and finals around the corner

Every room in the Union underwent a change as Christmas drew near. The Christmas spirit was carried throughout the whole building by beautiful greens and decorations carrying messages to the entire student body. The decorations were constructed and hung by the Union Board in the annual Hanging of the Greens.

But Christmas parties and festivities were shelved temporarily as students began reviewing and cramming for a week of finals which had been "crammed" into a six-day schedule.

Books which hadn't been opened for weeks came off their shelves and were dusted; the library and library annex became a hub of student interest; last minute term papers and projects were given a finishing touch.

For six days, most of the usual extra-curricular activity and socializing scaled off to a minimum. Even the Grill was comparatively empty.

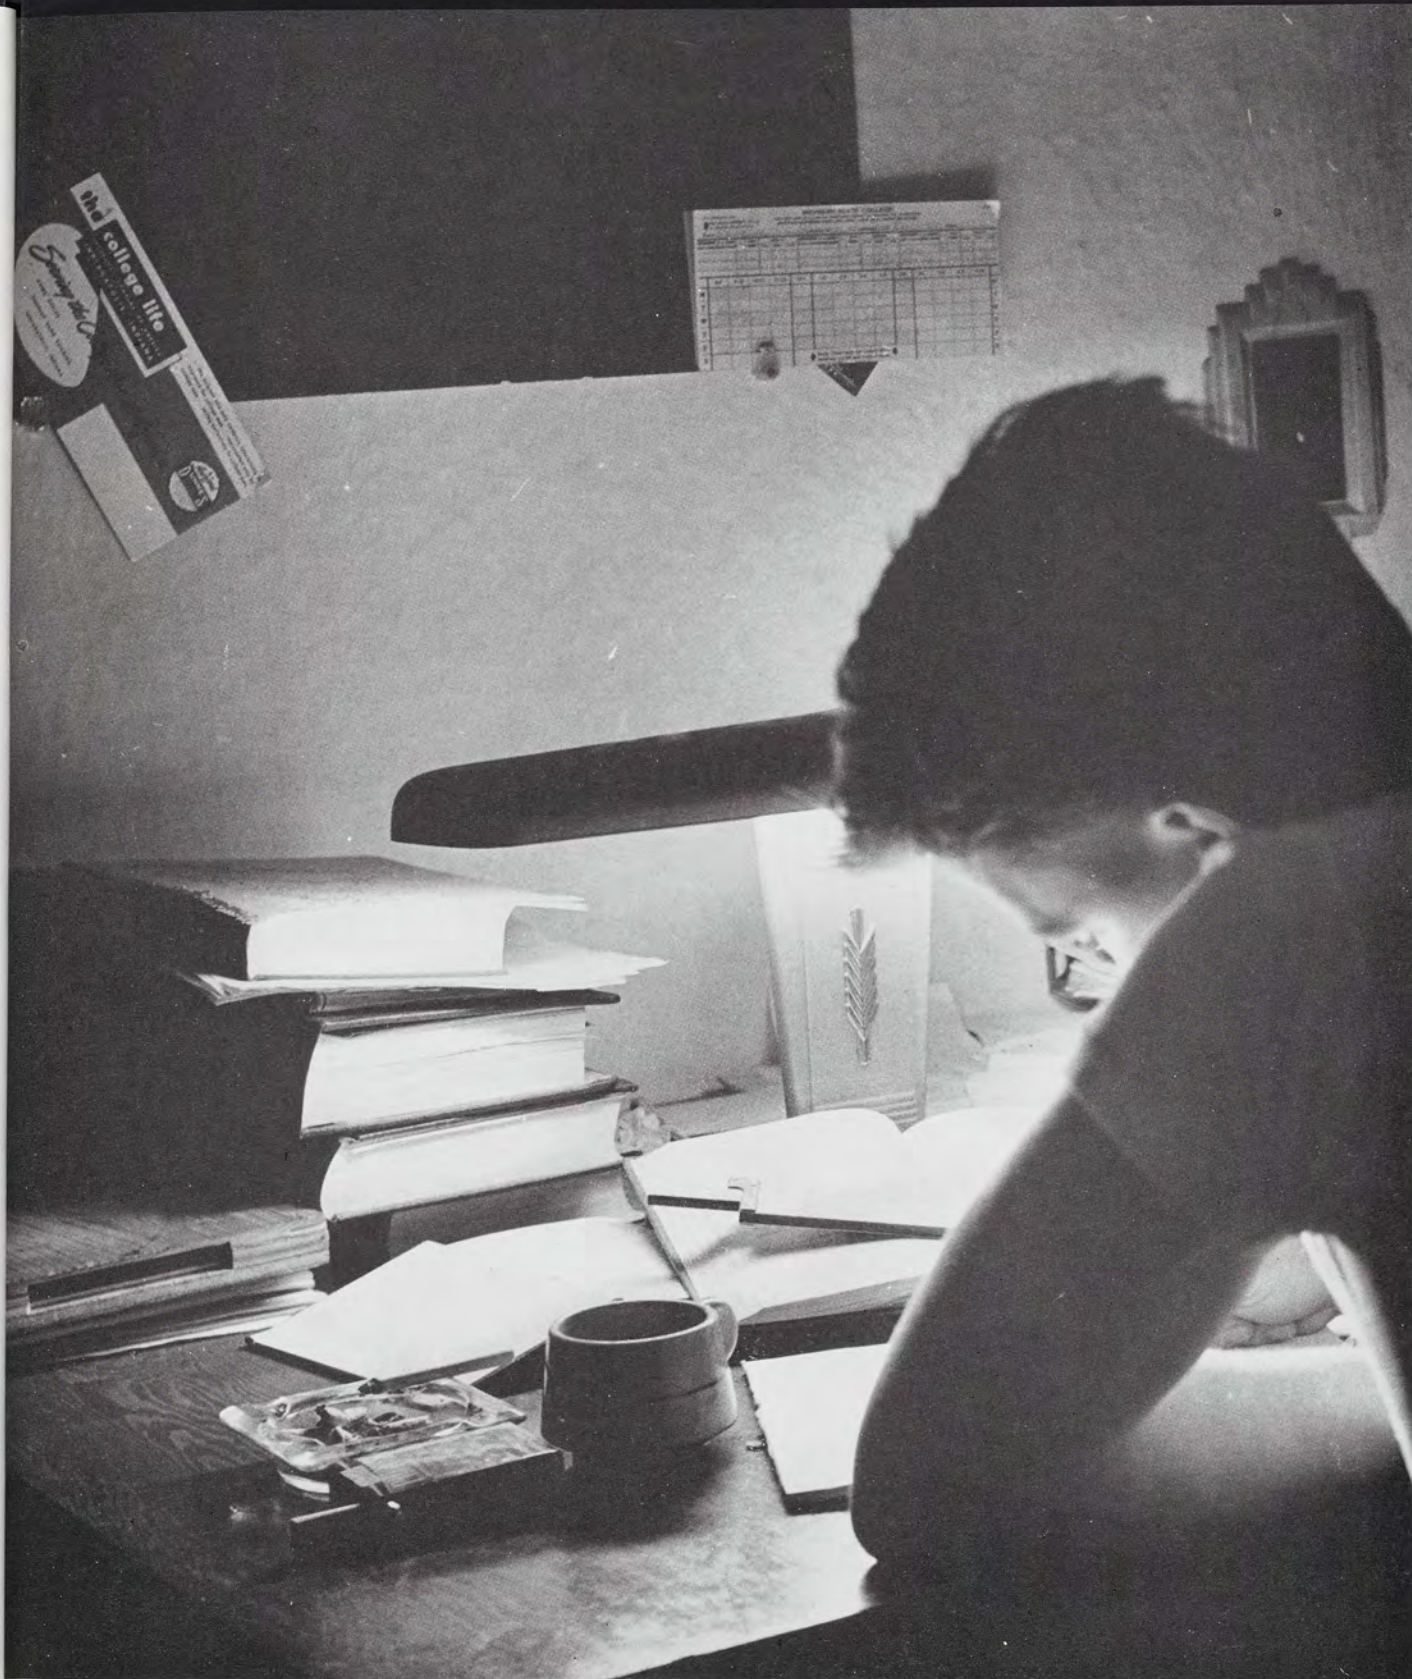

The students began to leave the campus, a few thousand at a time. At first, their absence wasn't noticed, but suddenly quiet and seclusion filled a place where activity and laughter usually reigned.

And only the Wolverine editors remained, pasting up 2400 senior pictures.

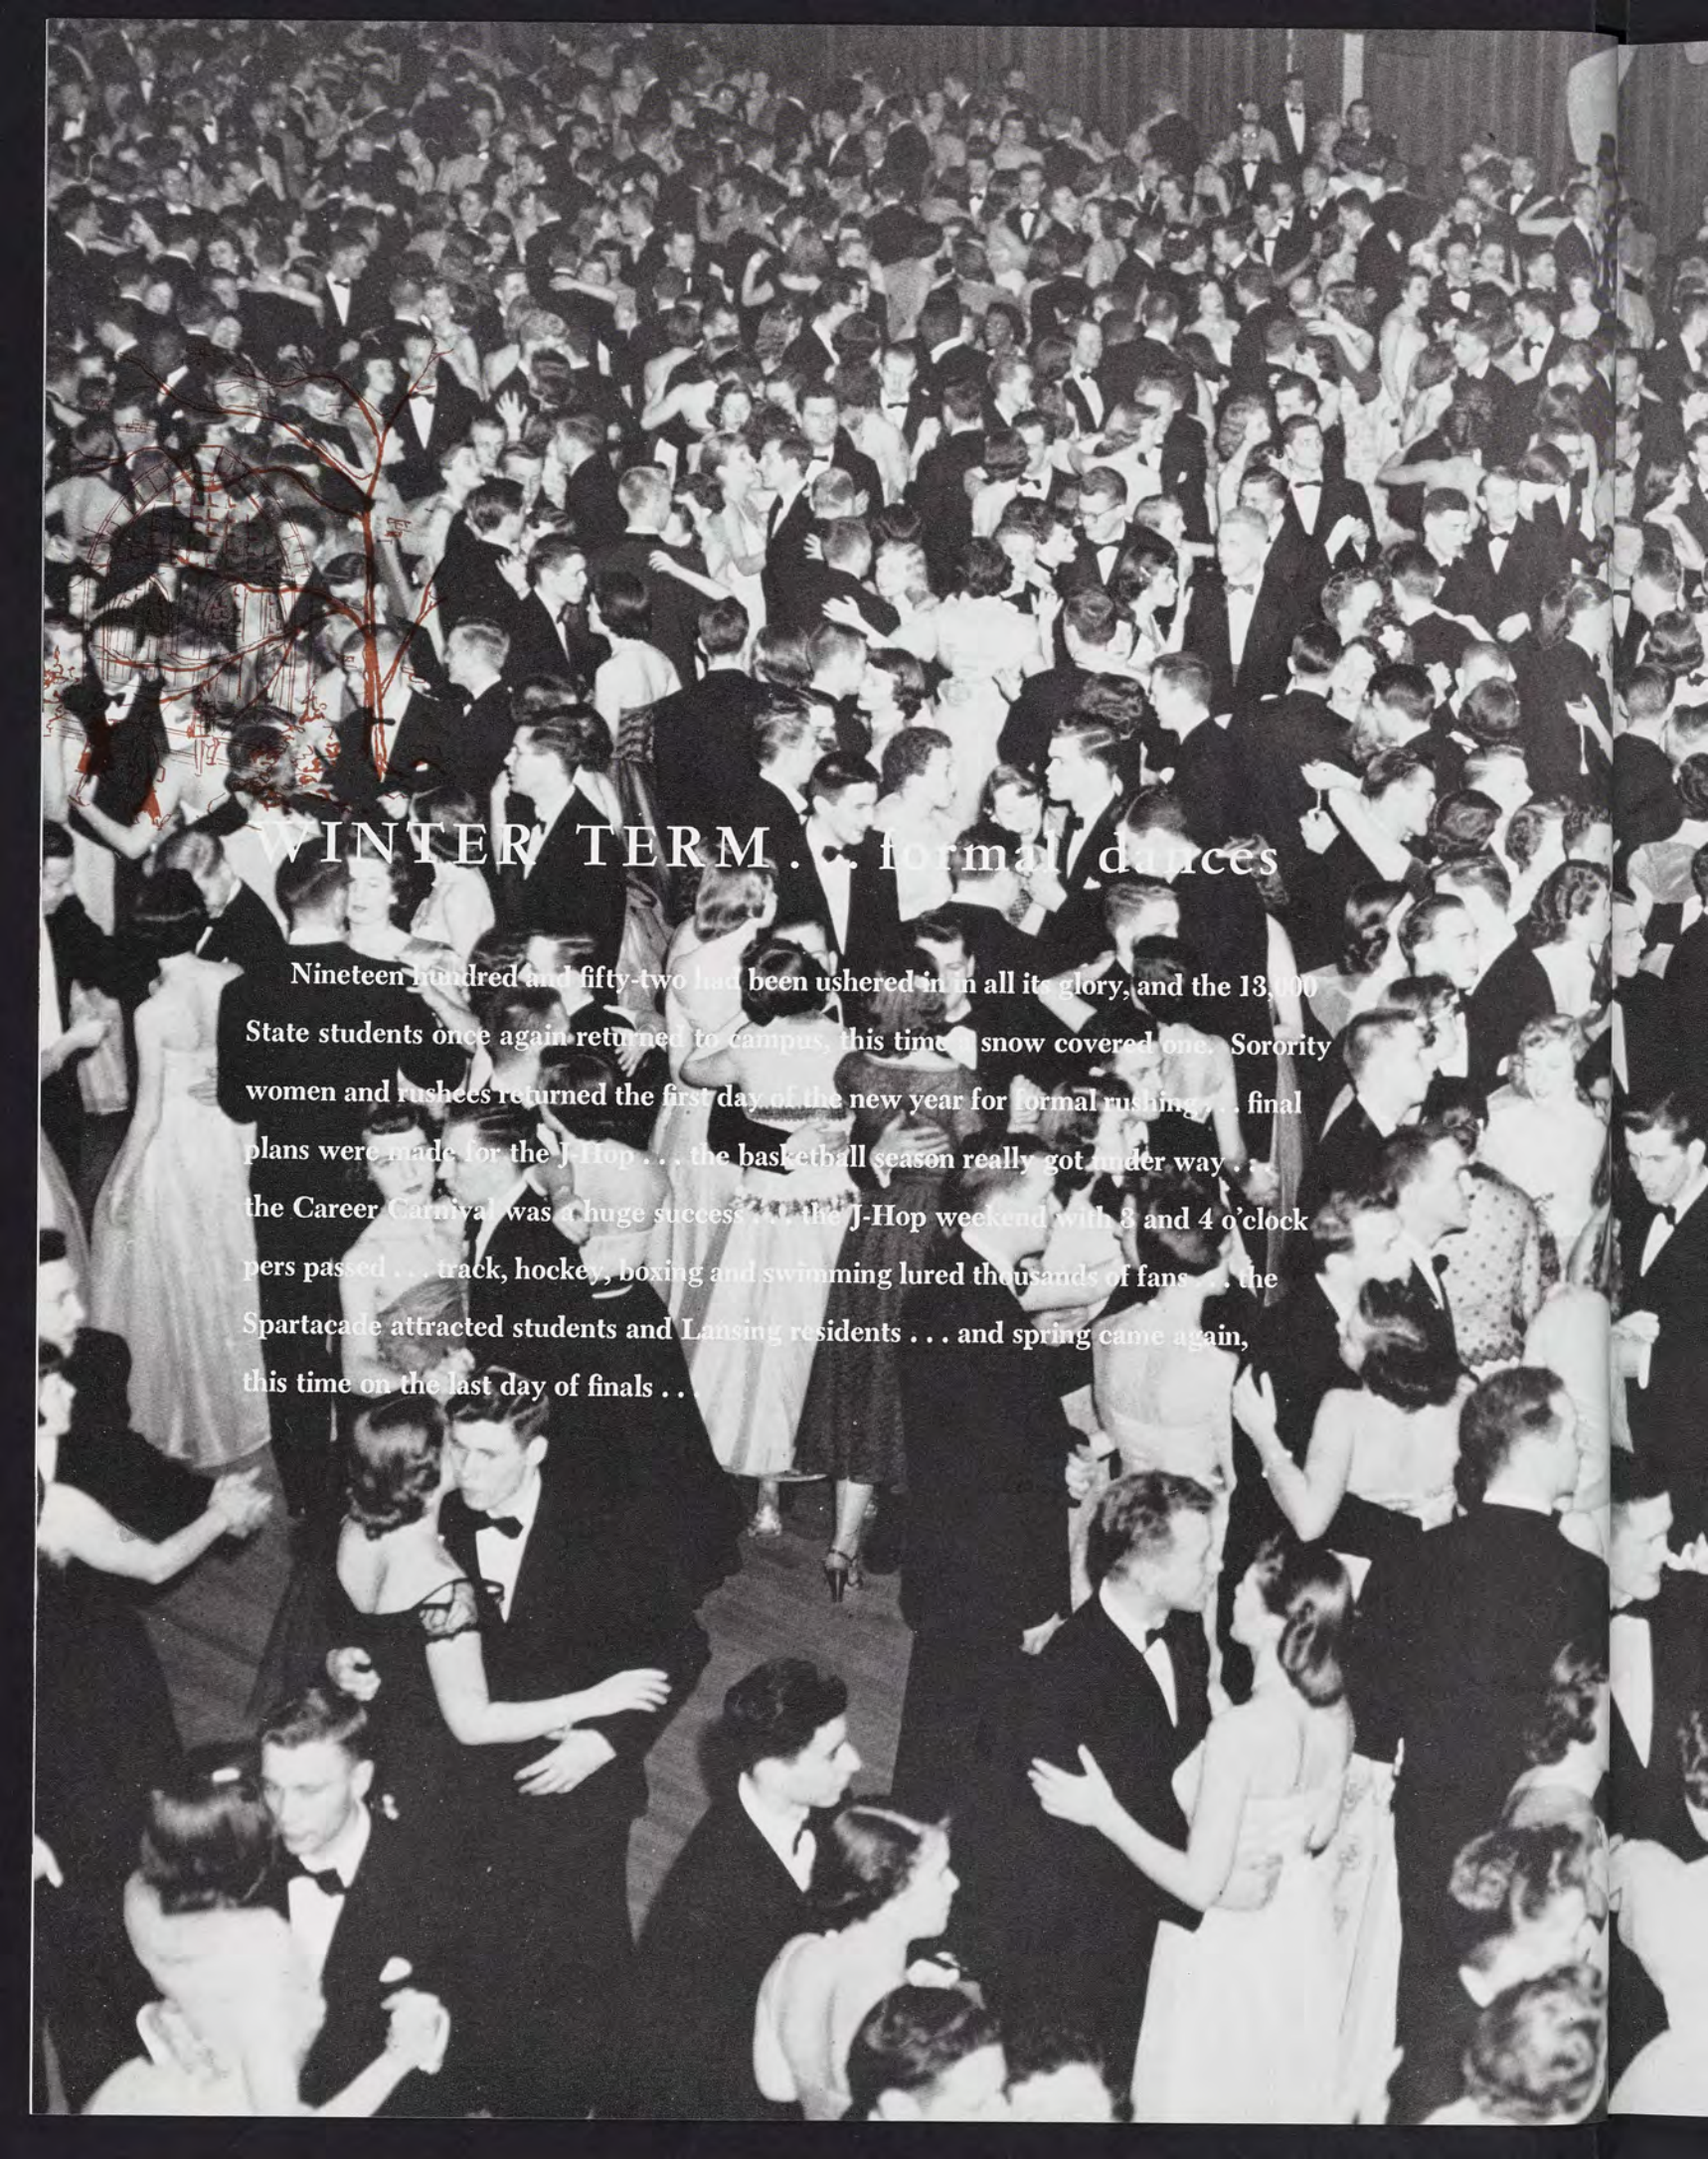

The meeting place of students switched from the Grill to the library annex.

During fall term, one and two o'clocks meant afternoon classes, but during final week, they meant late studying and cramming, spiked with black coffee and cigarettes, the night before a final.

WINTER TERM . . . formal dances

Nineteen hundred and fifty-two had been ushered in in all its glory, and the 13,000 State students once again returned to campus, this time snow covered one. SORORITY RUSHING . . .

formal parties and pledging

Formal sorority rushing began the second day of the new year, and lasted for two weeks. It was divided into four stages, with each sorority and rushee eliminating after each party.

While the rushees dressed in heels and dressy clothes for all except one stage, the actives planned costume, nautical, wild west and circus parties, and dressed according to the theme. Sorority members often wore formals for the final stage. The rushee could only return to one house during the last stage, and if she pledged, it was usually this house.

While men wondered if the parties would ever end, and the girls would be back in circulation again, rushees wondered if they would get the sorority of their choice.

For those who were confused, a counseling service was offered by Panhel.

But the hardships of rushing, the hiking through sleet, snow and ice, the selection of the right dress, the cutting of bids as the stages progressed, were soon forgotten when the rushees picked up their bids for pledging.

And for the sorority members, long hours of planning and decorating, and endless hashes became a thing of the past, to be forgotten until another year.

Now the rushee was a pledge, and had only to make her marks.

SKIING AND SKATING... offer winter recreation

While the J-Hop, fraternity and sorority term parties and classes occupied the major share of the students' time, winter term offered many weekends for skiing, tobogganing and skating for MSC's outdoor sports enthusiasts.

Along with private parties at the popular winter resorts were the Ski club's seasonal outings which were concluded with races at Boyne Mountain. Trophies were awarded to winners at a banquet held in the mountain's lodge.

Several students also attended the Olympic competition at Aspen, Colo., where three of Michigan State's coeds reigned in the queen's court over the activities.

Also on the winter sports agenda were skating and tobogganing parties held by fraternities and sororities and ice shows at the skating rink in demonstration hall.

Among the queen's attendants at Aspen, Colo., were Ruth Hawley, Joan Allinson and Aleta Axtmann.

Co-chairmen Jody Burlingame and Duane Vernon discuss final plans for the J-Hop with their committee heads.

COMMITTEES PLAN J-HOP

Eleven committees, completely composed of members from the junior class, planned the two-night stand of the J-Hop, biggest social event of the school year.

Under the coordination of co-chairmen were committees on patrons and chaperones, entertainment, programs and favors, decorations, tickets, publicity, band, finance, refreshments, theme and broadcasting.

Chairman of the patron and chaperones committee compiled a list and saw that printed invitations were sent to these individuals.

Intermission entertainment this year was furnished by campus talent, including such groups as an ensemble from the Men's Glee club, a quartet and a dance team. This local talent adequately replaced the professional entertainment of previous years.

The chairman of programs and favors met with representatives from several companies to select suitable favors for the coeds. This year a small gold compact engraved with a block "S" was uniquely packaged with the program. Thirty-one hundred compacts were distributed during the two nights of the dance.

Decorations followed the modern trend in art work. Abstract shapes lined the edge of the balcony, a figured mural formed the stage backdrop and a huge mobile was suspended from the ceiling of the auditorium. Unusual lighting brought out the brilliant colors of the decorations.

The business of the ticket chairman and his committee was to draw up the design of the tickets, have them printed, and to supervise distribution.

The J-Hop was brought to the attention of all students through various sources by the publicity committee, advertising was done through newspapers, radio and local merchants, as well as campus posters.

Ray Anthony and his band was selected from a vast number of nationally prominent musicians by the band committee.

Because of the efficiency of the finance committee, the junior class netted a profit this year.

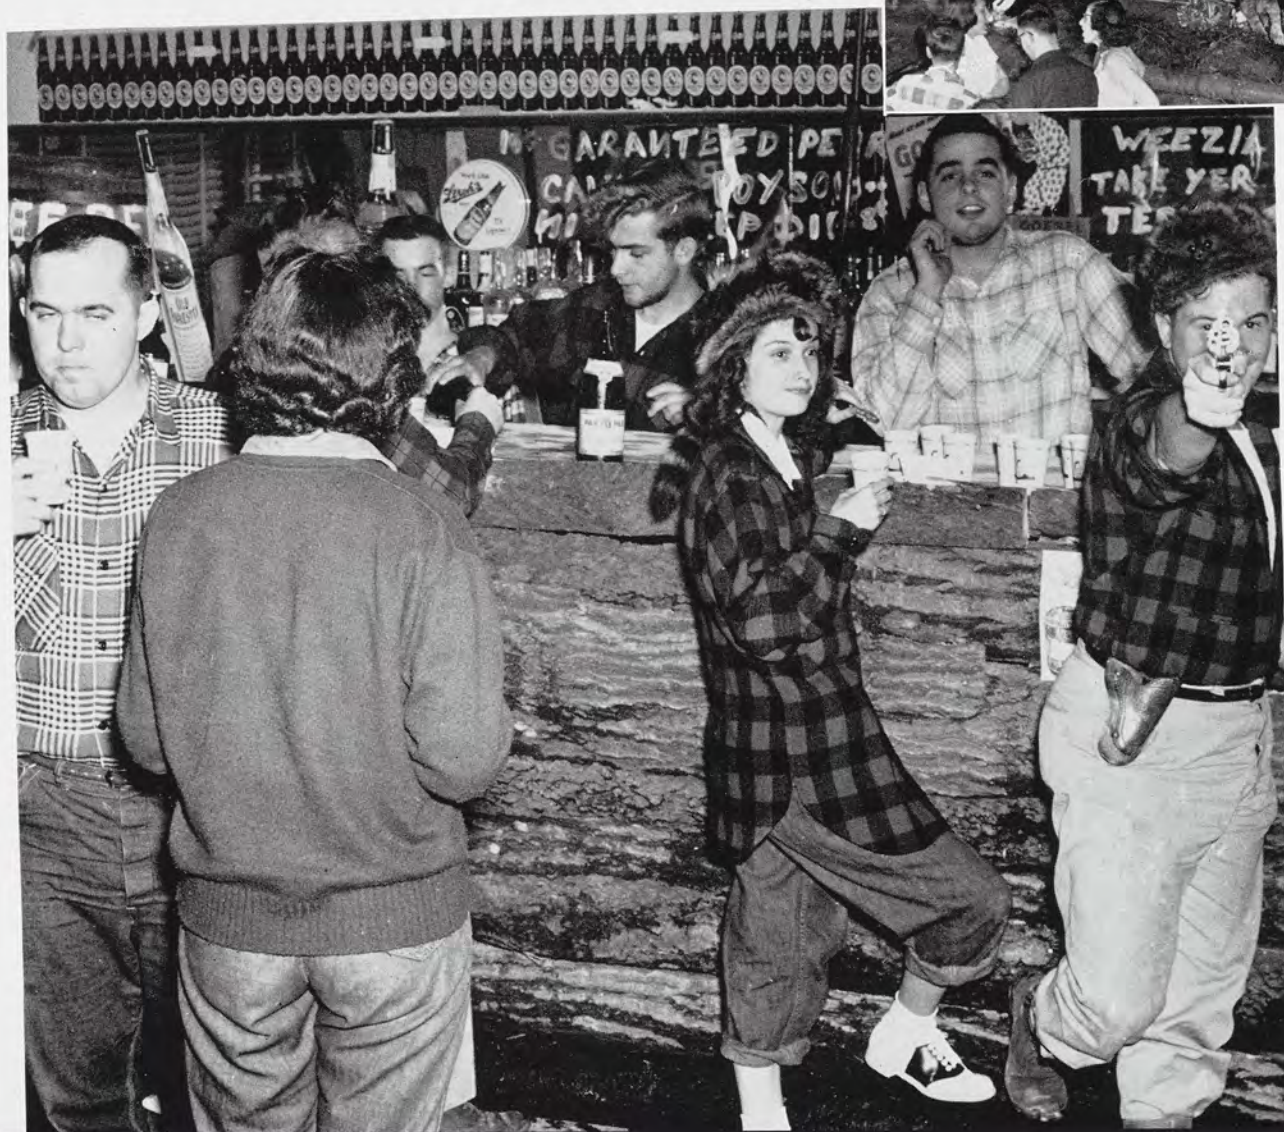

Prior to the first general J-Hop committee meeting, a committee met and drew up several possible themes. From this emerged the theme of "Out of this World."

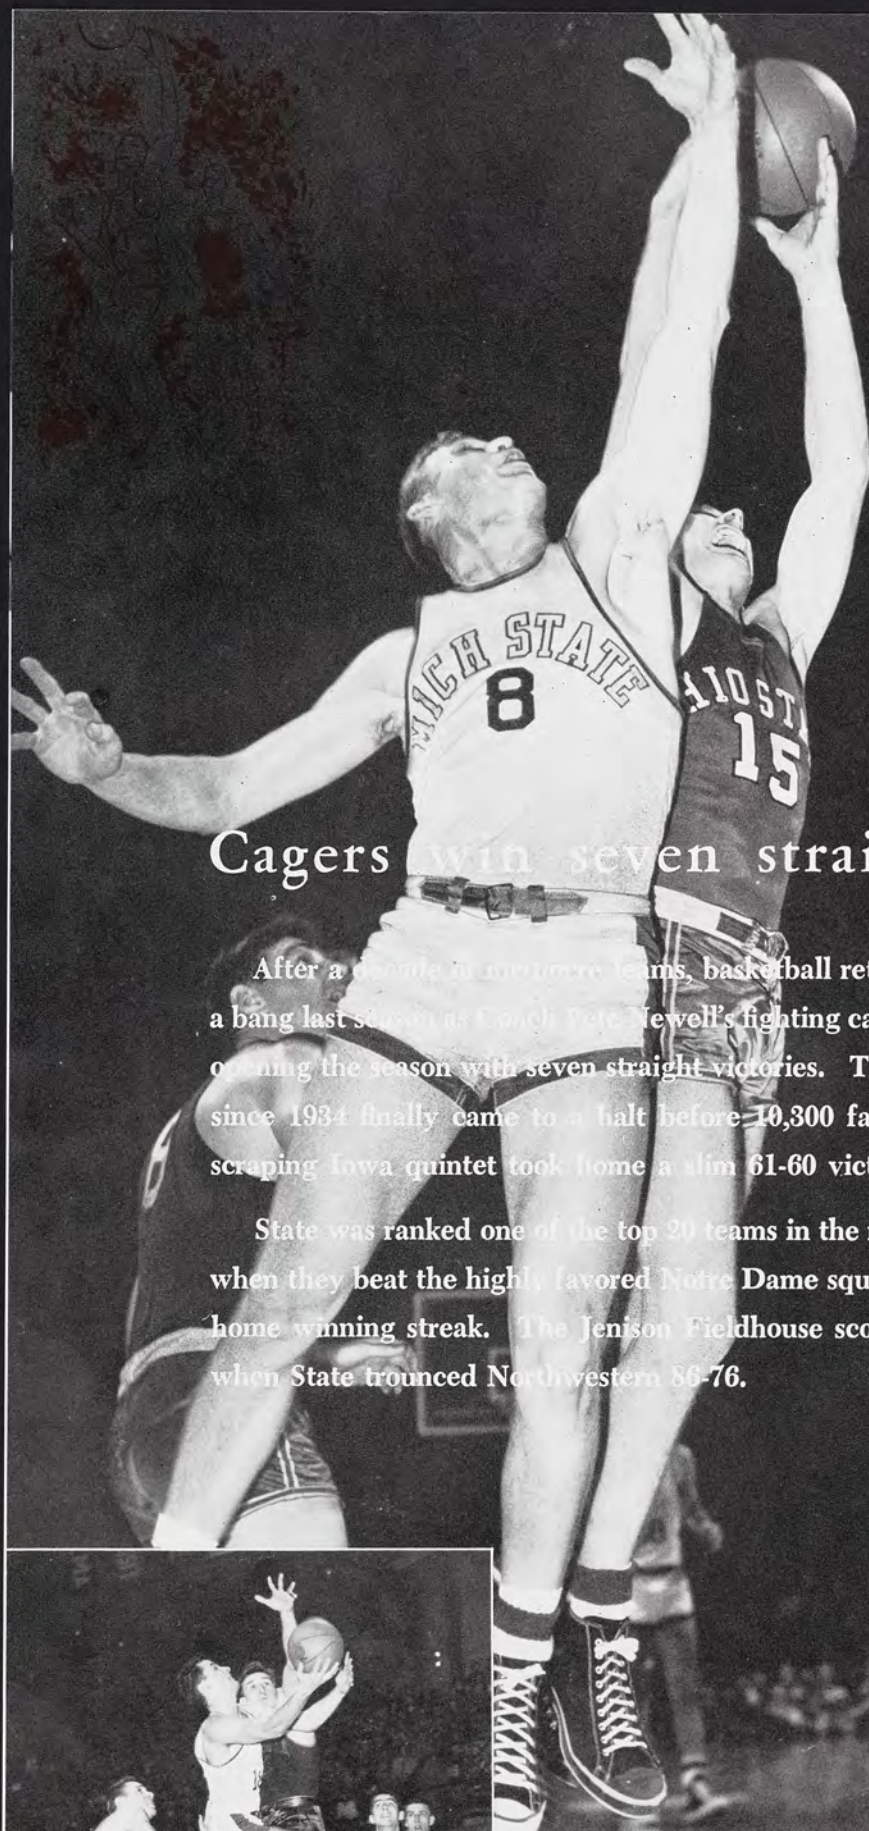

A 15-minute broadcast was given over national and local stations each night.

Cagers win seven straight

After a decade of mediocre teams, basketball returned to the Spartan campus with a bang last season as Coach Pete Newell's fighting cagers surprised the sports world by opening the season with seven straight victories. The Spartan's longest win streak since 1934 finally came to a halt before 10,300 fans in Jenison Fieldhouse when the scrapping Iowa quintet took home a slim 61-60 victory.

State was ranked one of the top 20 teams in the nation in the Associated Press poll when they beat the highly favored Notre Dame squad 66-52 to snap an Irish 20-game home winning streak. The Jenison Fieldhouse scoring record was also plowed under when State trounced Northwestern 86-76.

FARMERS' WEEK

Nearly 40,000 persons visited MSC for the 38th annual program of farm information, demonstrations of new devices, crop and livestock exhibits, and entertainment during Farmers' Week.

The urgent need for better production through improved methods was stressed in morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

Advice on dairy improvement and sire selection was given to farmers attending the dairy program at Fairchild Theater.

High points of the week were a "Horse Day" program which featured the nation's top teams in a pulling contest, hog and sheep judging events and an afternoon livestock auction.

Also on the program of events was a style show staged by the college home economics department and a free variety show featuring 4-H talent.

Macklin Field was used this year to house some exhibits, while other displays were in the agricultural engineering building, the livestock pavilion, poultry building and the new loose type dairy housing barn.

J-HOP ... biggest dance of the year

The J-Hop—formals, soft lights and music, pre and post dance parties, 3 and 4 o'clock permissions, and a semi-formal and formal night. The auditorium with its startling decorations, lights that illuminated yet didn't reveal, and the smooth pulsating rhythms of Ray Anthony and his orchestra all blended together and formed varicolored moods among the many couples who packed the dance floor at the Friday and Saturday night J-Hops.

Excellent intermission entertainment was provided by the junior class, sponsor of the dance.

Those who went on the semi-formal Friday night or the formal Saturday night, and the girls who went both nights, verified that the theme, "Out of this World" was very appropriate.

WINTER SOCIAL SEASON CONTINUES

With the J-Hop a big weekend of the past, students settled down to the more routine events of classes, midterms and extra-curricular activities, but the usual social whirl of winter term continued.

On the agenda of the many formal dances and term parties was the Crystal Ball, sponsored by the men and women's co-ops. A queen and her court were selected from the women's cooperatives to reign over the dance.

Exchange dinners and desserts between sororities and fraternities, dorms and co-ops were scheduled every week.

Often, after a freshly fallen snow, fraternities challenged neighboring sororities to snowball fights. After an hour or so of raging battle, the students usually descended wet and hungry into the rec room of the sorority house for cookies and hot chocolate.

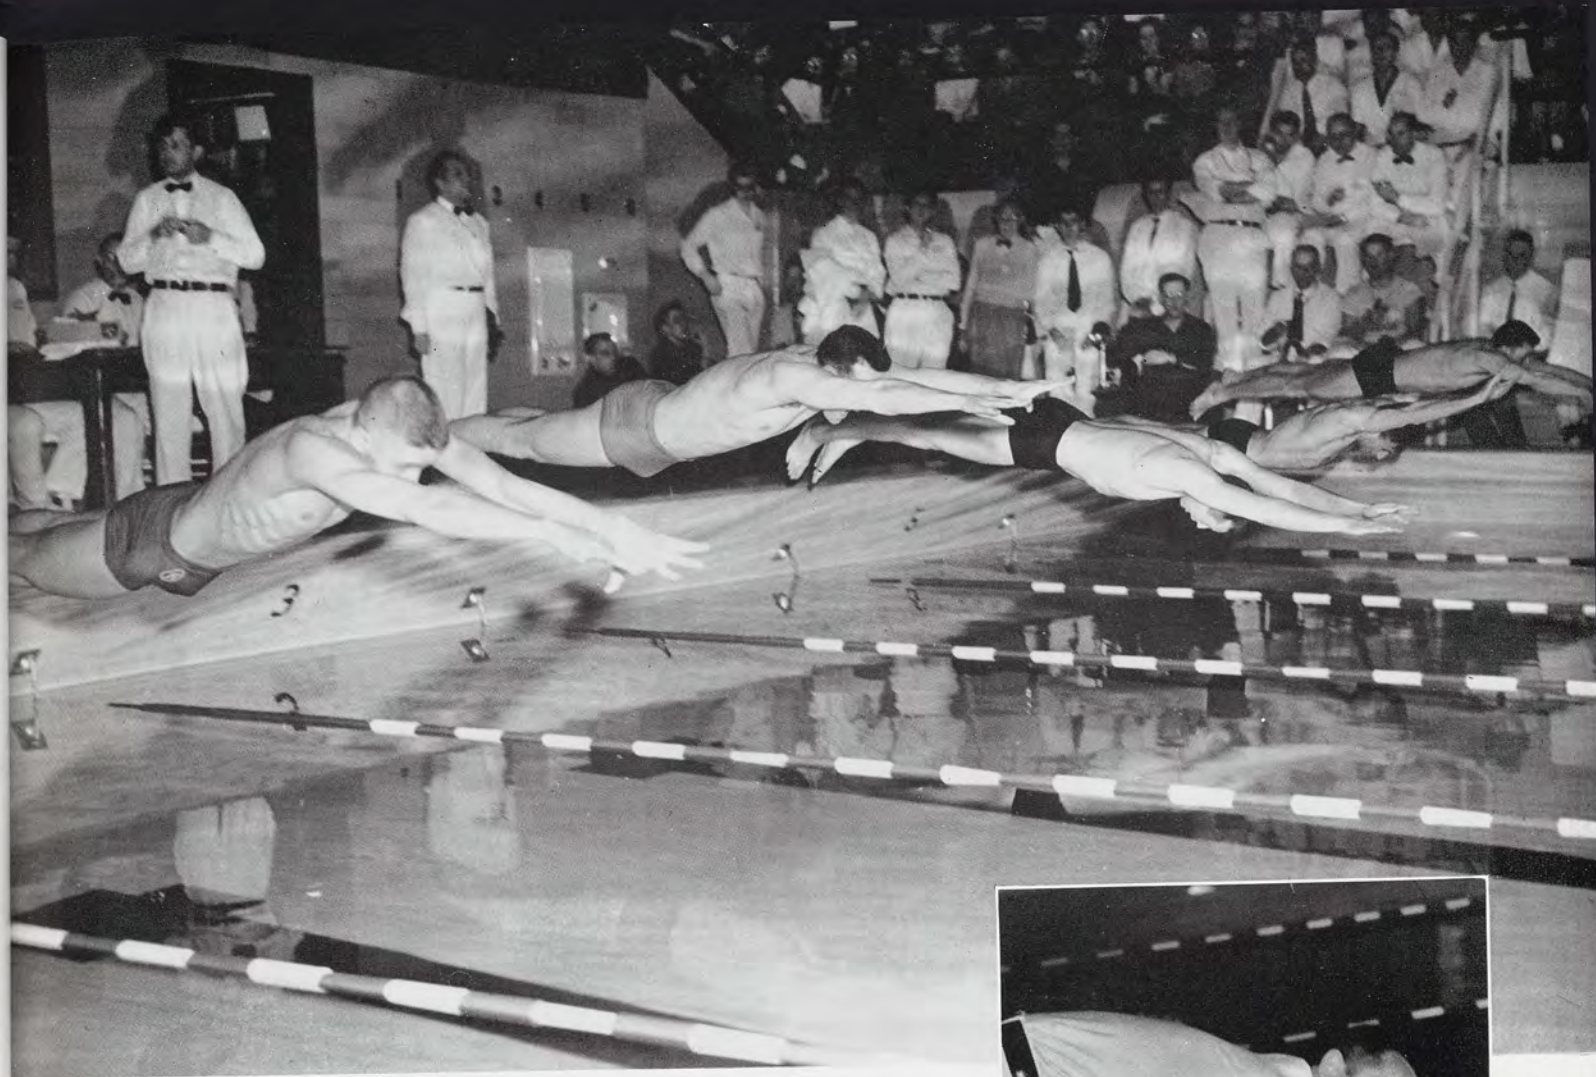

Costume parties, such as Wild West, pajama, South Sea islands and "yard and a half", were also popular during the term.

Highlighting the term were the formal dinner dances, usually held at hotels or country clubs. Decorations carried out the themes of the dances, and favors were presented guests during dinner.

WINTER SPORTS

Over 1000 MSC students participated in the intramural program at State during the past year. As might be expected, football, basketball and baseball were the big attractions. Gaining in popularity were the other team sports and many individual tournaments as well, such as horseshoes, boxing, free-throw shooting, and badminton to mention only a few.

The purpose of the intramural program was to give the student who is unable to play varsity athletics, whether he lacks the skill, time or desire, a chance to participate in these sports against other students of equal skill and experience.

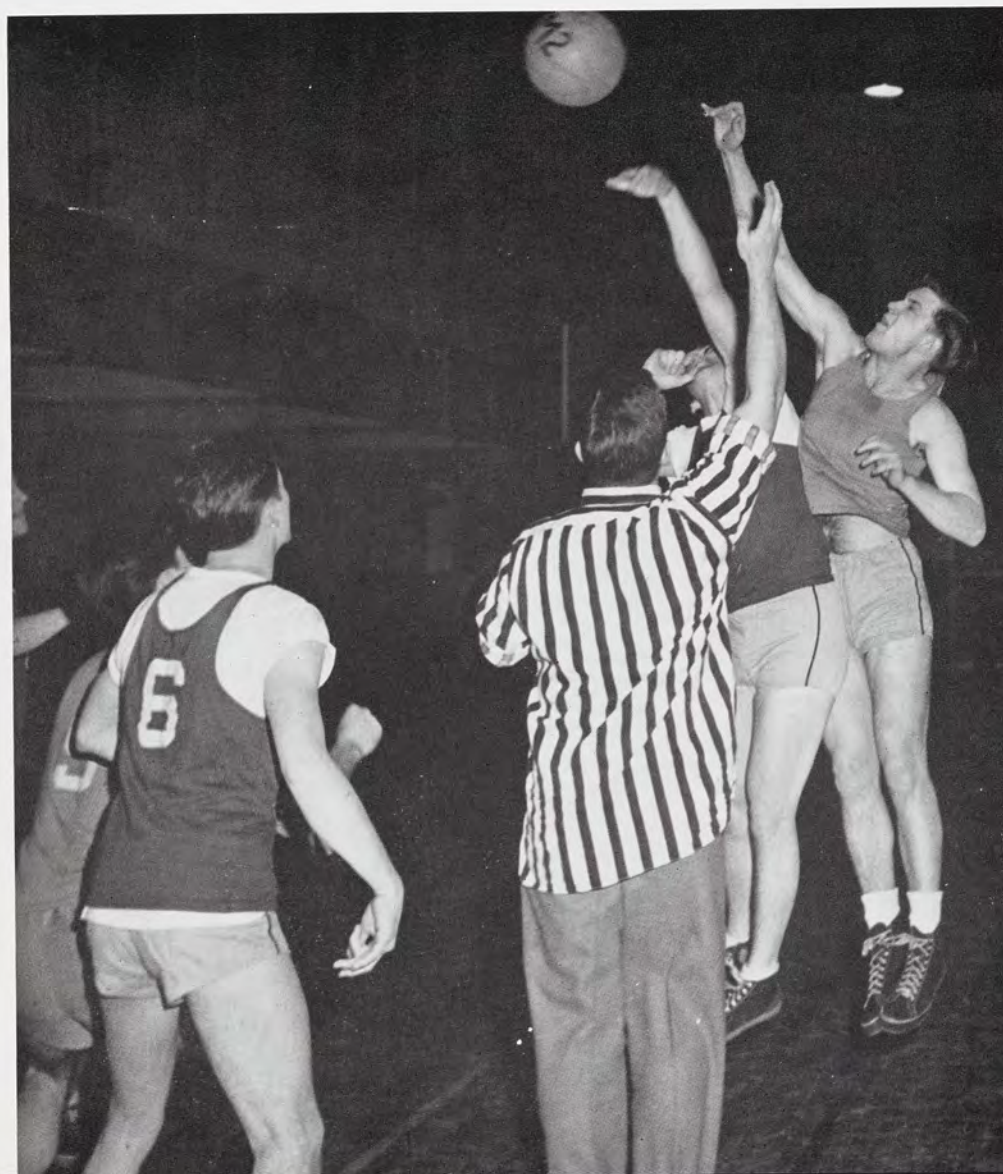

That the program was successful was evident with the ever increasing participation. Intramural director Wayne Tinkle and his predecessor, Frank Beeman, deserved much of the credit for the success of the IM program on the Spartan campus.

WINTER TERM PLAY

When the final curtain closed on the first American performance of "Rose Without A Thorn," winter term play, there was thunderous applause and three deserved curtain calls.

The play, with brilliant directing and resplendent costumes, was a tribute to all those who love a lover. It told of the fate of Katheryn Howard, doomed to atone for unchastity and of King Henry VIII, whose tragedy it was to fall in love with her, his "rose without a thorn."

The imaginative set created the spaciousness that must have been Hampton Court. The only inconsistency in the production was the fact that the 1952 male coiffure seemed oddly out of place in a 1540 production.

Pictures and activities of outstanding seniors are posted in the showcases of the Union each week.

GREEK DINNER DANCES...

term parties highlight winter term

For most sororities and fraternities, winter term was term party time. Formal dinner dances were held almost every weekend during the term in leading hotels.

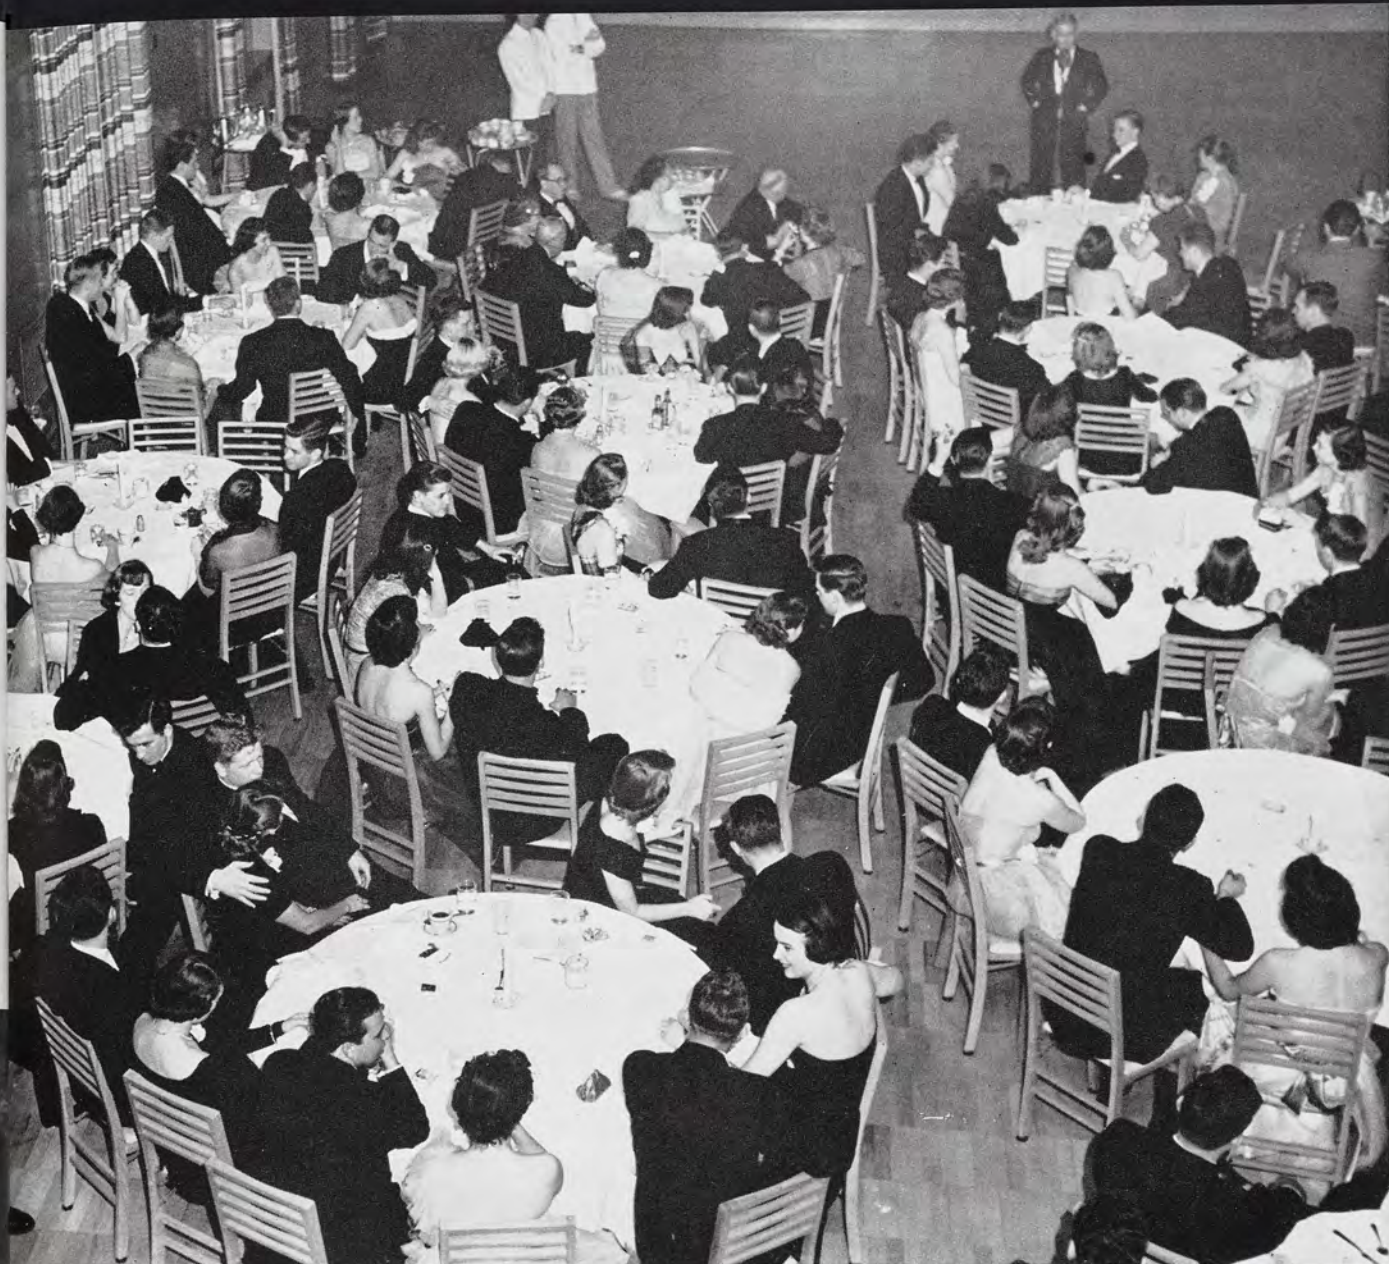

Greek letters and colors usually provided the decoration for the dances, and dates were presented with flowers and favors during the dinner.

Intermission entertainment was usually provided by members of the organization.

One of the most popular nights for a pinning was the term party, and as a result, many fraternities weathered the sleet and snow to serenade their pinned girls.

RELAYS HIGHLIGHT SEASON

As in the past, the Michigan State Relays, which annually bring the nation's top track and field competition together in Jenison Fieldhouse, highlighted the Spartan's indoor season.

Records in six events fell by the wayside in one of the most successful renewals of the classic.

The Spartan's crack shuttle hurdle relay team, with sensational sophomore John Corbelli in the anchor slot, gave State its only win in the relay series. Corbelli came back in the intermediate low hurdles to give the Spartans their sole victory in the individual events.

SPARTACADE... profits for charity

Beating drums, barking cries and blaring band music filled the air as the Spartacade got under way for its annual one night stand at the Jenison field house.

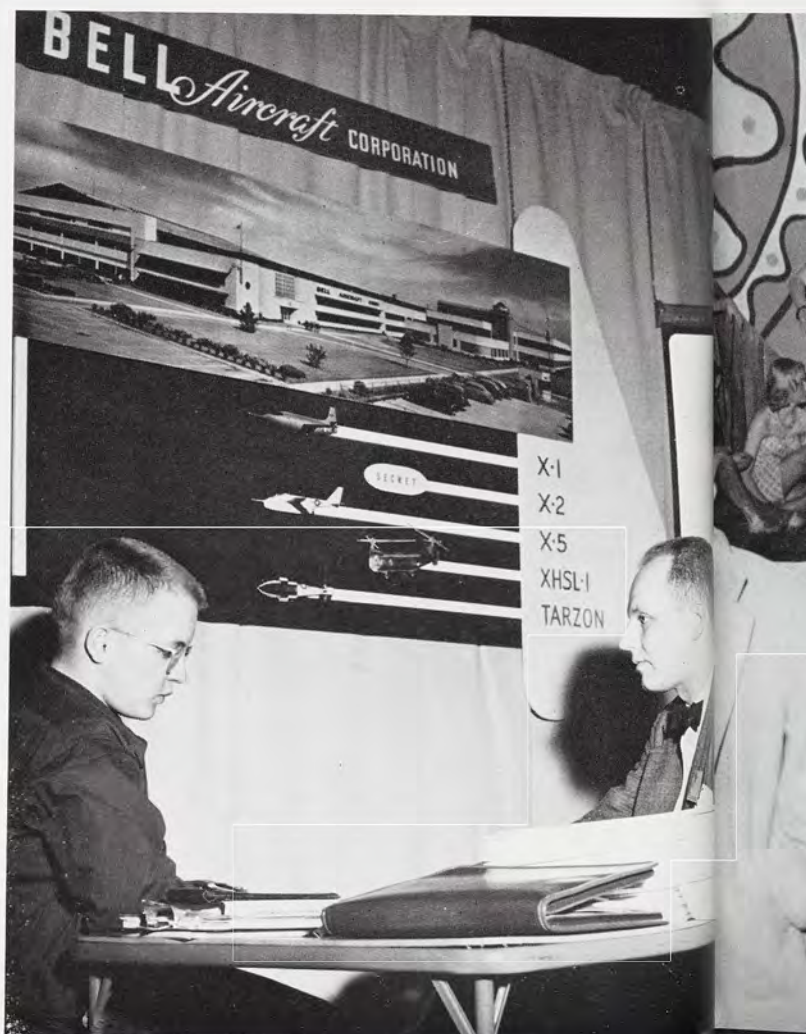

This year's event was the biggest success in its history. Nearly $3,000 was collected at booths and the U.M.O.C. contest.

Men and women's living units teamed up to present shows such as the Safari of the darkest Africa, vaudeville shows, or gaming houses.

The U.M.O.C. was selected from the five finalists, and crowned by Mrs. Gonon.

Trophies were awarded to first and second place winners in the participation and non-participation groups.

Commencement exercises were held for the first time for fall and winter term graduating seniors.

Pi Kappa Phi and Alpha Gamma Delta won first place award in the Spartacade non-participation division with their Safari show. Gross intake was figured at $2,891.90.

Final voting for MSC's ugliest man was held at the Spartacade. The first place trophy went to Jim Mitchell, sponsored by the Zeta Tau Alphas, with 22,777 votes.

SPRING TERM... and graduation

Spring term and sun tans . . . late registration for returning Florida vacationers . . . another registration and the Spinster's Spin . . . 11 o'clock permission for senior women . . . baseball and hot dogs . . . canoeing and late minutes . . . spring fever and cutting classes . . . R.O.T.C. parades and rain . . . the Wolverine came out . . . the Senior Ball and Commencement announcements . . . wedding plans and job offers . . . seniors left and returned for graduation exercises . . . finals for underclassmen and another summer vacation . . .

One of the first events of Spring term was the International Festival, sponsored by the foreign students on campus, and under the chairmanship of Charles Winburne of the written and spoken English department. The purpose of the festival was to show similarities in respective foreign cultures to those of the United States.

An over-capacity crowd was treated to entertainment in the form of small skits and native dancing during the evening's program. Eleven booths were erected around the auditorium, each representing a continent and displaying various objects typical of their countries.

"Know Your Neighbor" was the theme for the International Festival, held in the auditorium.

THE SPINSTER'S SPIN... spring term officially started

Sponsored by A.W.S., Mortar Board and Tower Guard, the biggest dance of the term was a sell out and a tremendous success.

Although an annual affair, decorations and plans for this year's spin were tied in with the Leap Year theme.

The dance was representative of a complete reversal of the usual dating procedure. Not only did the coeds ask their dates, but they picked them up, took them out to dinner, ordered corsages and took care of all checks.

With the first semi-formal dance of the term past, students again settled down to classes, and the inevitable spring fever that came with warm weather.

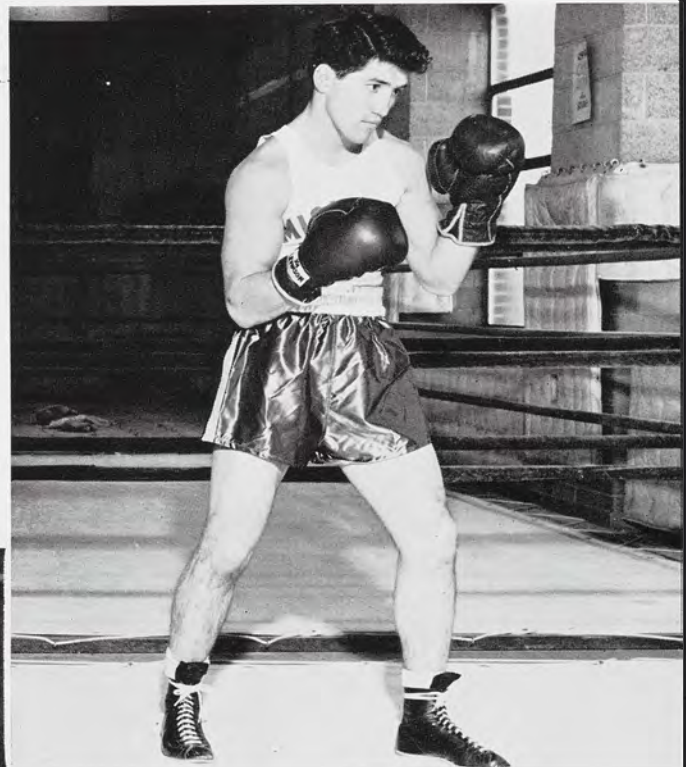

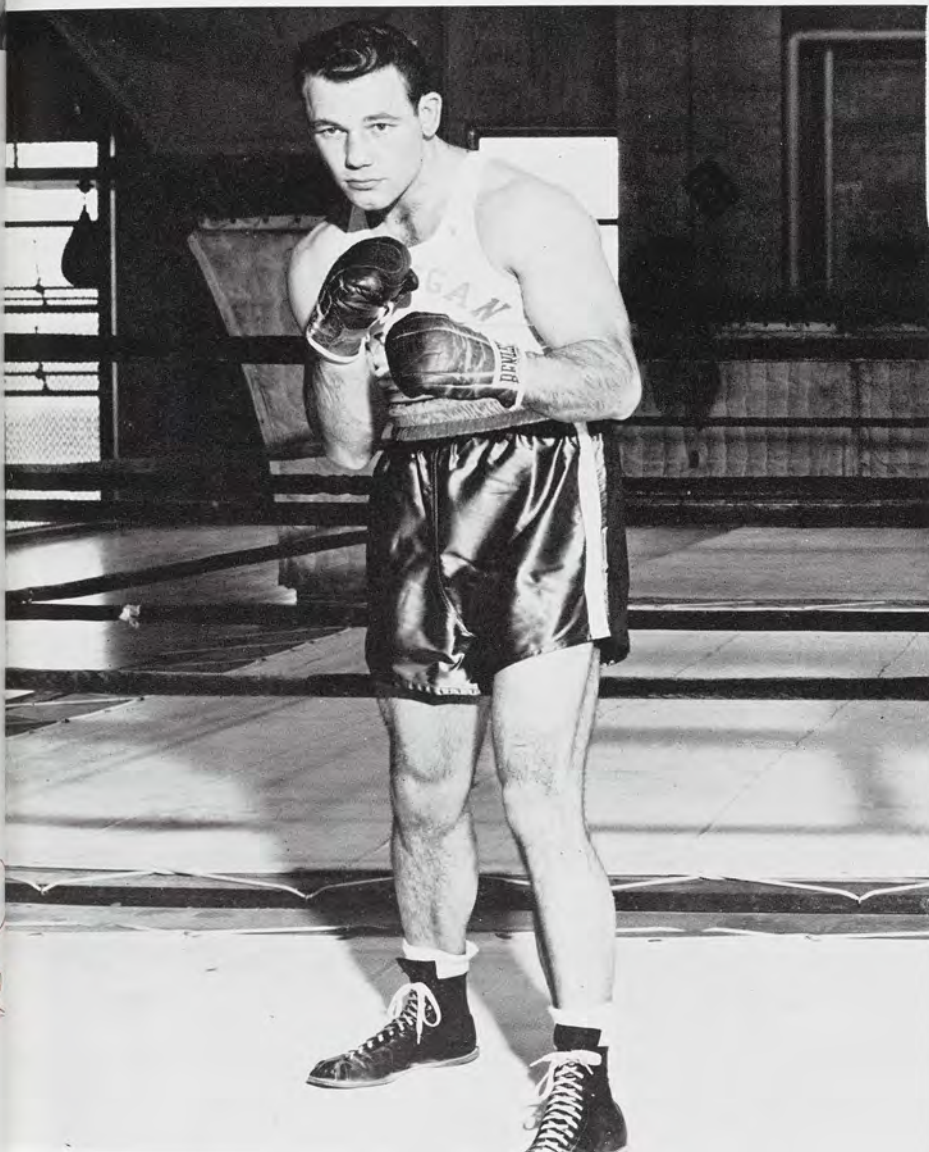

Storm coats made way for cottons and Greek pins; the lawns and secluded areas on campus were highly populated with couples; and the canoe shelter came out of hibernation for another spring.

Students loiter on the steps of Berkey Hall until the last possible minute before leaving the sunlight and spring fever behind for an hour or two of classes.

State was second going into the finals in the N.C.A.A. championship meet in 1951. In order to win the championship, MSC had to win both of its fights, and so it did. Jed Black finished his opponent off early and became the national collegiate champ in the 145 pound division.

Chuck Spieser had to win against Idaho's highly touted Larry Moyer. The fight went its full allotted rounds, see-sawing back and forth between the almost evenly matched fighters. However, in the last round, Spieser unleashed a final attack and got the decision and State the title.

Another important event in the spring of 1951 was the first collegiate humor magazine conference, initiated and sponsored by the Spartan. Invitations were sent to every campus mag in the nation, and the response was encouraging.

A dinner was served the delegates in the Union on the evening of their arrival.

The conference itself was divided into three main groups, each covering subjects in the magazine field: editorial, advertising and circulation promotion. Ideas were exchanged and discussion periods were led by a few national magazine representatives who attended the conference.

The success of the project was clearly indicated at the last meeting when a motion was carried to meet again next year at the same time and place, the Michigan State College campus.

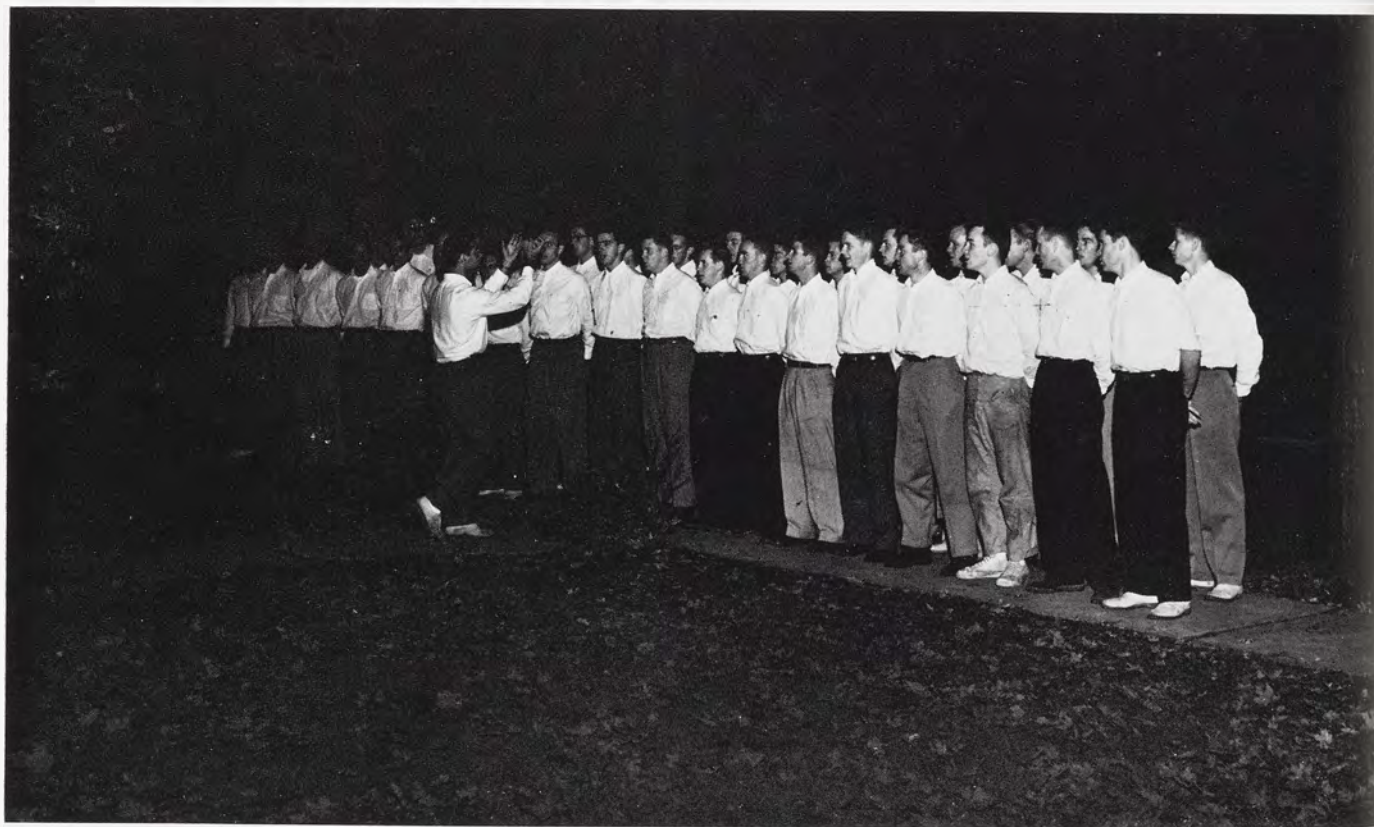

Practice sessions for the sorority and fraternity sings were begun.

Sun porches on both men's and women's dorms were heavily populated as were the favorite swimming spots of the students. Sun tans and picnics became common pastimes. Even the Grill began to empty out, as students turned out of doors for the recreation and social activities.

And the young man's fancy again turned to other affairs than studies and extra-curricular activities as fraternity pins moved from sports shirts to cotton dresses.

AND THE EVENTS THAT FOLLOWED . . .

Alarm clocks weren't necessary as the Scabbard and Blade pledges made their rounds at the women's dorms.

The annual Scabbard and Blade pledges' serenading of women's dorms at 7:00 a.m. took a new twist as the women retaliated and serenaded the boys' dorms, creating much confusion and editorial uproar in the State News. A series of midnight bugle calls, early morning swims in the Red Cedar, and threatened camping of entire dorms followed. But the familiar hut, two, three, four of the pledges will undoubtedly be heard again next spring.

BASEBALL . . . takes limelight in spring sports

John Kobs, successful Spartan baseball mentor, added another feather to his collection as he combined some sensational sophomore stars and some proven veterans to come up with a fine season record of 17 wins and nine losses.

Brightest of the sophomores was slugging outfielder Darrell Lindley, who led the team in batting with a .418 mark. Lindley's batting average was the highest achieved by a State batter since 1933. The veteran Vince Magi, captain of the '51 squad, was also brilliant at the plate. He set an all-time school record by hitting safely in 21 straight games.

Fine batting averages were also turned in by first baseman Bob Ciolek with .337 and catcher Bill Bower with a .319 mark.

Bob Dangel led the pitchers with three wins to his credit. He did not lose a single game while posting a 2.97 earned run average. Gus and Bob Carlson also won three games each. Gus was charged with one loss and Bob with two. Don Quayle was the workhorse of the squad, hurling 39½ innings. Quayle split even in four games.

Coach Kobs, in his stay at MSC, has compiled an outstanding record. His teams have won 340 games while losing 217. He was an outstanding athlete himself at Hamline University where he won 13 letters. He is also a member of the NCAA and AAU Olympic committees.

Part of the intermission at the first dance sponsored by the J-Council was a series of barber shop songs by the journalism faculty.

THE PRESS-PASS BALL... journalism-sponsored dance

For the first time, the journalism honoraries of MSC sponsored their own dance, the Press Pass Ball. The informal dance was held in the Union ballroom, and had intermission entertainment and pictures by Kappa Alpha Mu. Theme for the decorations were the three major publications, the Spartan, State News and Wolverine.

Although not limited to students in the school of journalism, the dance attracted mostly aspiring young journalists and their dates. It followed the annual Matrix Table, held by Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary.

Visitors travelled from many states to attend the activities of Parents' Day.

PARENTS' DAY

Coordinated with the annual Visitation Day was Parents' Day, planned by the Alumni Office.

The event was designed to acquaint people with the college, its functions, and to answer their questions. Guides and transportation were available.

The faculty, counselors, placement officials, housing officials, scholarship director, admissions officers, deans and administrative officers were at the service of all the visitors.

Copies of the State News and pamphlets containing MSC literature were available for the visiting parents and friends.

Many students with an art major spent a few weeks at Leelanau during the summer.

Field Trips and Summer Work

Many of the schools required field trips and or a summer of work in the field before graduation.

Included were work on a newspaper or magazine by the journalism department; summer camp for advanced R.O.T.C. students; and field trips for psychology, education, agriculture and many other courses. Many instructors and departments believe that the student can learn more by doing and seeing than by class room lectures.

May Morning Sing

At seven o'clock on the first day of May, Mortar Board, senior women's honorary, tapped 12 outstanding junior women on the basis of high grades, outstanding leadership and service to the college; and Tower Guard, sophomore women's honorary tapped 35 freshmen women, on the same basis, at an impressive ceremony beneath Beaumont Tower.

Original modern dance numbers constitute the program of the Orchesis show each year. The show is entirely produced by members of Orchesis, modern dance honorary.

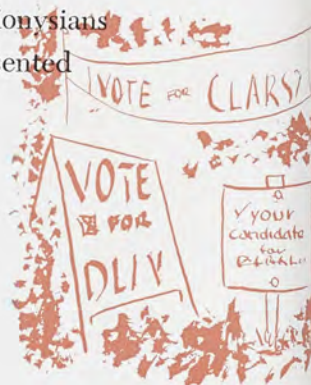

LECTURE-CONCERT SERIES... and student produced shows

The student activity book, received each term at registration entitled free admission to all sports events and programs on the lecture-concert series for its owner.

The lecture-concert series, a series of lectures by famous persons and concerts by philharmonic orchestras, famous ballet troupes and operas, was arranged by Dean Stanley Crowe. The culture that it brought free of charge to each student was invaluable.

Also on the agenda spring term was the student produced Dionysians show, written, produced, directed and acted completely by students.

All those who participated in the event were given membership cards to the Dionysians society. Dionysians is a charter member of a national musical comedy group represented on most campuses of the nation's major universities and colleges.

Ralph Bunche gave a lecture on world events as a special feature last spring. With him are Dean Lloyd Emmons and President Hannah.

It Happens Every Spring

Student elections for congress and sophomore, junior and senior class officers became the week's main event late spring term.

Walks leading across campus to Beaumont Tower and Berkey Hall literally blossomed out with campaign posters of all colors and varieties. Sleek convertibles and old hot-rods were thrown into carrying campaigners to the voters. Friends were drafted to wear placards, dummies or anything that might possibly catch the voter's attention to inform him that this particular individual should be the people's choice.

Students turn out to cast their votes in campus elections.

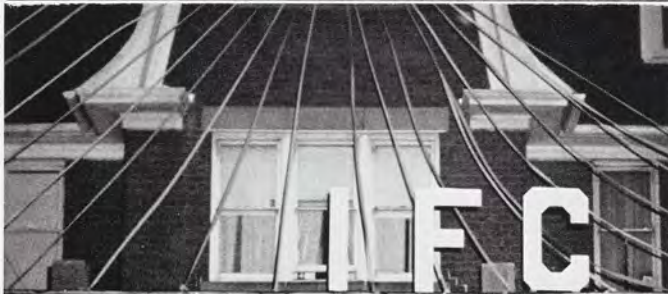

Many townspeople, as well as students, are attracted to the Greek Feast.

THE GREEK FEAST

SENIOR BALL

Seniors attend their last college formal as an undergraduate. The all-college dance, an annual affair, attracts mostly seniors.

Spring graduates attend the Senior Swingout, one of the last of their college activities.

FINAL SENIOR ACTIVITIES... climax of college career

Graduation loomed near in the future for last term seniors at registration spring term when their deficiencies were checked for the final time, applications for diplomas were made out and the last day for ordering commencement announcements was announced.

Caps and gowns were ordered, senior women were automatically given 11 o'clock week night permission and a final round of parties and traditional activities began.

Senior dances were held weekly toward the end of the term in the ballroom of the union, and the Senior Ball offered a last chance for a formal during undergraduate days.

Officers of student governing groups and editors of publications cleaned out their desks and prepared final reports for those who were to follow.

Excalibur and Mortar Board tapped new members to succeed them.

Lantern Night, a traditional affair, was held in the Band Shell. Senior women, carrying lanterns and robed in caps and gowns, listened to an address by President Hannah and awarded roses to outstanding coeds of their class. Climaxing the program was the passing of the lanterns to members of the junior class.

The Senior Swingout, led by the president of the class, and collecting seniors in front of their respective schools, was held at the auditorium. President Hannah started the evening affair with a farewell message to the class, followed by election of alumni class officers and announcement of alumni regional representatives.

Classes ended for the graduates the last week of May, and they left the campus to return a week later for the Winter Carnival, final project of the senior class, and commencement exercises, held in Macklin Stadium on Sunday afternoon.

While the judges total points, the fraternities combine forces for a few songs.

SECOND BIG TEN TITLE FOR SPARTANS

Pulling one of the greatest upsets in the long history of the annual classic, a green Spartan cross country team gave State its second Big Ten title.

Led by Capt. Jim Kepford who finished fourth, the Spartans relied on team balance to score a 49-point total, 13 better than runner-up Wisconsin, the 1950 champ and the favorite for the meet.

Boasting one of the youngest teams that have won the event, five out of seven MSC entries were running in a major collegiate race for the first time. This plus the fact that Kepford was sidelined with an injured rib most of the season

FROSH-SOPH DAY...a battle between the classes

The tug-of-war across the Red Cedar River, with the two classes pulling against each other, determined the weak from the strong, and officially ended the day.

Parent's Weekend

For the first time, a weekend for the parents was sponsored at Michigan State.

Open houses and teas were held along with the regularly scheduled events as the Frosh-Soph day, the Green and White game and a home baseball game.

Parents were taken on tours of the campus as part of the program.

The Wolverine Arrives

Distribution of the 1951 Wolverine began in the Union Bookstore the last week in May, as truckloads of the yearbook arrived at the Union from the binders.

Although a few engraved copies had been distributed the week before to members of the faculty and Board of Publications, the first student copies were handed out at this time. Books were distributed to owners in the bookstore until classes ended for the term.

Art Exhibitions

Besides exhibitions of collections loaned to the college from museums and galleries in Michigan, the art room on the fourth floor of the Union displayed outstanding works of students enrolled in art. Organized by the art department, the student exhibitions show expressions in ceramics, modern and abstract arts.

The Mardi Gras

Because of the limited number of dances that could be held in the auditorium, the Mardi Gras was held in the Union Ballroom. The annual costume ball was sponsored by the Union Board.

PUBLICATION'S BANQUET

A banquet for publications workers, advisors and company representatives officially ended a very successful year for the college paper, book and magazines.

Following the dinner, old editors announced new heads and were awarded keys and advisor Bill McIlrath was presented with a special award for distinguished service in the line of duty.

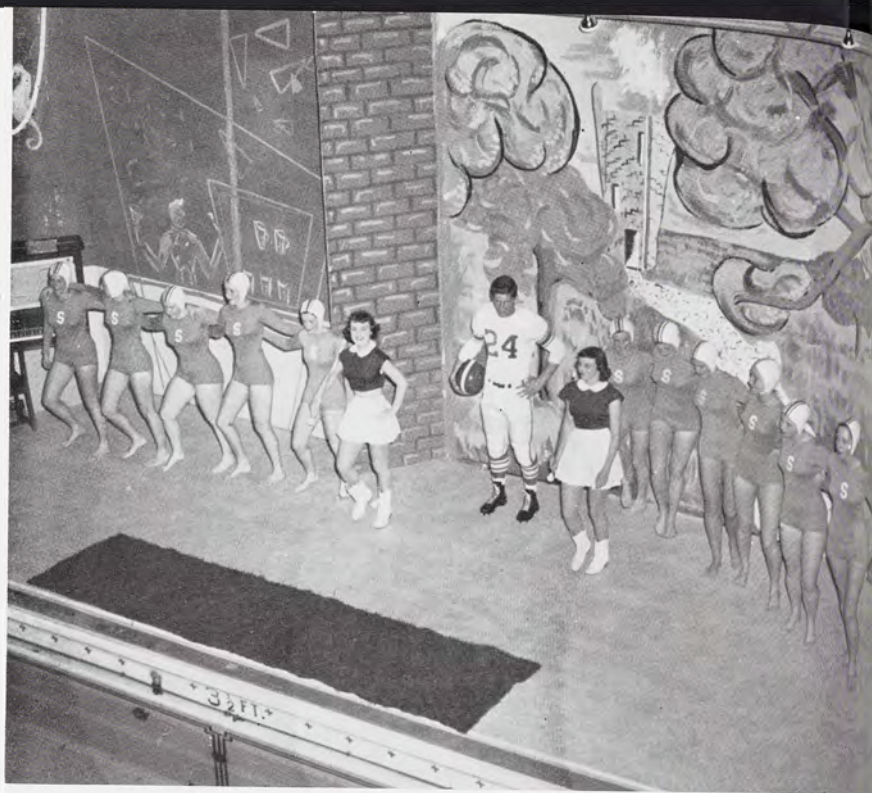

The program ended with competitive skits by the three publications. The first Wolverine was presented during its skit, and the State News won the tin trophy for the cleverest entertainment.

For three nights, the Green Splash honorary treated the audiences to a well produced show of diving, comedy and a beautifully coordinated synchronized swim act.

The theme of the show was "Big 10" and consisted of a total of 10 acts, each representing a school in the conference. The general consensus held that it was one of the best water shows ever performed by the honorary.

Scenery, costumes, lighting and directing were all done by the members.

Union Board Convention

Every college in the nation with a student union or center that was interested in new ideas for the betterment of its individual organization was eligible to send delegates to the Union Board convention held on the MSC campus last spring.

Michigan State students and representatives had every reason to be proud of their union, for it ranks as one of the finest of its kind in the United States.

Men use their sun decks as much as the women during spring term.

CANOEING

Many an afternoon and evening were spent canoeing on the Red Cedar as the warm spring weather became warmer. At busiest hours, all the canoes were in use at the college canoe shelter behind the band shell.

Whether canoeing to Pine Etum for a picnic, to Okemos to the golf course, or just for a few hours enjoyment, this water sport was a favorite among State students.

JUNIOR 500... pushcart race

The queens' stand, starting line ups and bleachers full of cheering students all blended together to create an atmosphere of excitement as the annual Junior 500 pushcart derby turned the usually placid circle drive into an afternoon of colors and hectic activities.

Trophies were awarded to the winning team and the most humorous entry, as long as it went around the one-mile drive.

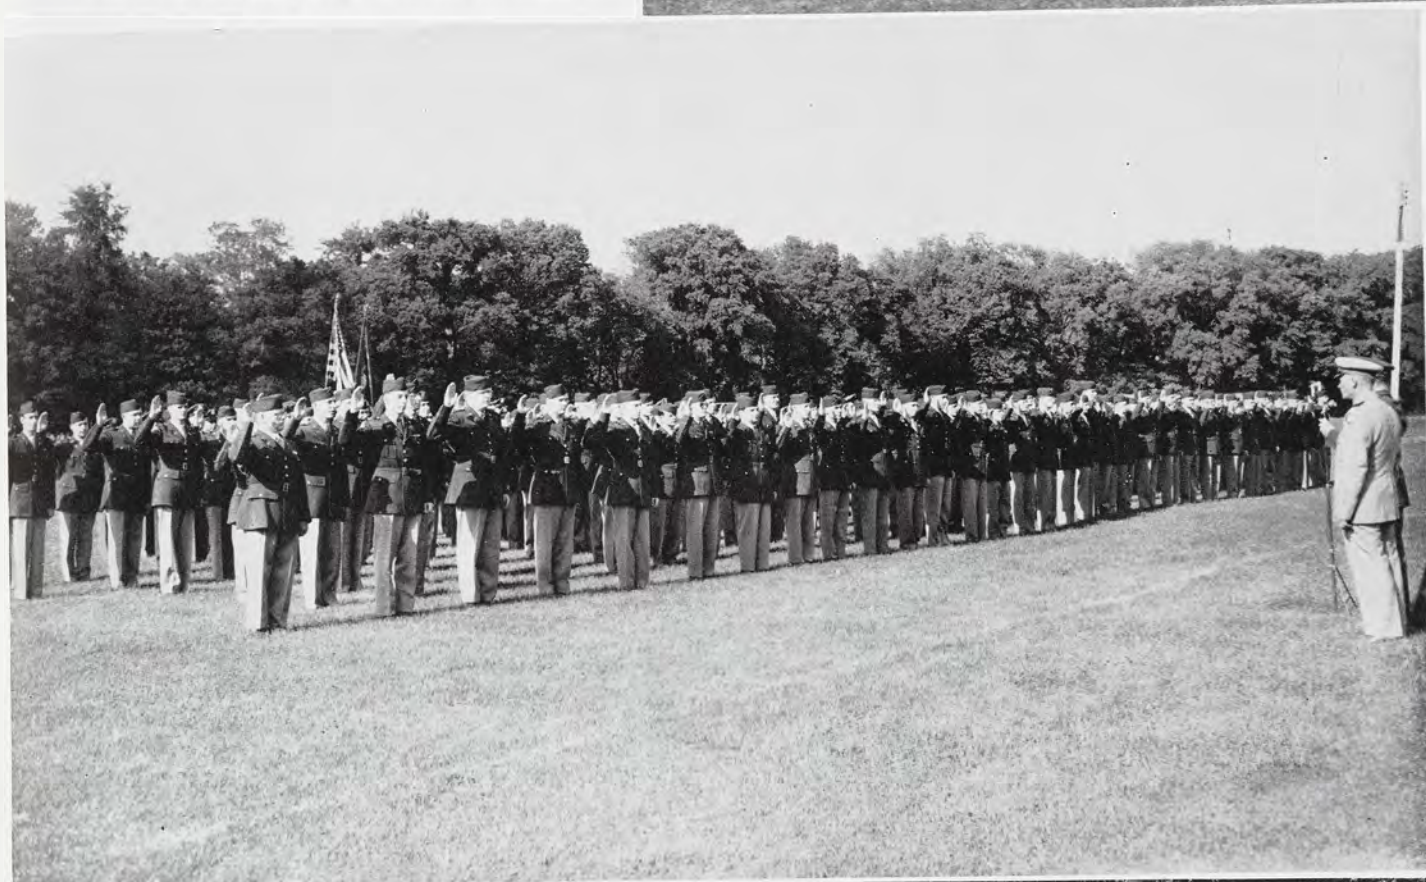

Sponsored by Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, the derby has been a spring term event for the past four years. The Lambda Chi crescent queen and her court of co-sponsors, each coed representing one of the entries, reigned over the affair.

Official starter was President Hannah, while Dean King was flagman.

Each team entered in the race sponsored a queen from one of the women's housing units.

R.O.T.C. . . . parades and commissions

The old tradition of receiving a dollar for a first salute to a new baked officer was heavily practiced when the senior R.O.T.C. students received their second lieutenant commissions during the last week of senior classes. It was a proud day for the new officer as his girl pinned those shining new bars on his tunic, a day long looked forward to through parades, drills, classes and a not-to-be-forgotten summer camp.

Preliminary sketches and planning for the Water Carnival began winter term, when chairmen and committee members were named and men's and women's housing units combined and drew themes for their floats.

The general and individual themes for the colorful affair were selected from student submitted entries, with the winner receiving a $50 war bond.

Early construction and painting was done spring term at the various living units, and a few days before the carnival, the floats were moved to the Red Cedar river, where final touches were made.

Final painting and construction takes place on the banks of the Red Cedar.

THE WATER CARNIVAL

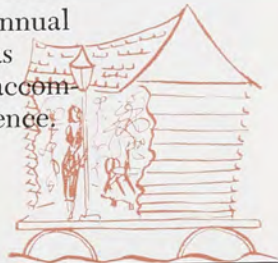

For last minute finishing and repairing, temporary docking facilities were put up along the banks of the river below Shaw Hall.

A special edition of the Spartan magazine was a program for the three-night carnival, presented the weekend of graduation. Concessions and pie throwing booths were set up behind the bleachers, and canoeing and log rolling contests preceded the actual show.

Although handicapped by a rainy opening night, which also seemed to be an annual event, the show ran smoothly the following nights and a very colorful scene it was as each float drifted down the Red Cedar in all its colorful and dramatic splendor, accompanied by the announcer's voice and a generous amount of applause from the audience.

Grand prize winning float is "Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow you may die" sponsored by Delta Zeta and Delta Sigma Phi.

The Water Carnival theme in 1951 was "Quote Me, Mister," and the floats were interpretations of familiar sayings, as "Eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow you may die" and "Of cabbages and kings."

Although the deepness of many themes and the dramatic scripts which accompanied each float became rather tiresome and created a rather gloomy atmosphere, the Carnival was a beautiful spectacle, as each entry floated past the bleachers and under the bridge on the Red Cedar river.

The first float, constructed mostly of flowers, carried the president and secretary of the senior class, who reigned as king and queen over the event.

The last activity sponsored by the senior class, the Water Carnival closed the night before graduation. During intermission on the final night, new members were tapped for Excalibur, senior men's honorary.

Trophies were presented to winners in the water events, and duplicate trophies to each of the two groups whose combined forces produced a grand, first, second or third place winner.

First place trophies go to the Delta Delta Delta-Beta Theta Phi float.

21 Floats Pass the Bleachers

East Mayo and Kappa Sigmas combine forces to produce a prize winning float.

The humorous float of the Alpha Chis and AGR's was a pleasant relief to a rather gloomy series of world events. The float received a third place trophy.

JUDGING

Each float was a tribute to its creators' imagination and efforts, and it was no easy job for the judges to decide upon the best presentation.

Prominent local merchants and visiting Detroit businessmen, each a judge of a particular phase of a float, were seated in the judges' stand. Floats were awarded points on the basis of continuity, construction and design.

Final decisions were grand prize, Delta Zeta and Delta Sigma Phi; first prize, Delta Delta Delta and Beta Theta Pi; second prize, East Mayo Hall and Kappa Sigma; and third prize, Alpha Chi Omega and Alpha Gamma Rho.

Five judges awarded points to floats on a specified criterion.

One of the traditional senior events, senior women march to the Band Shell in the Lantern Night ceremony.

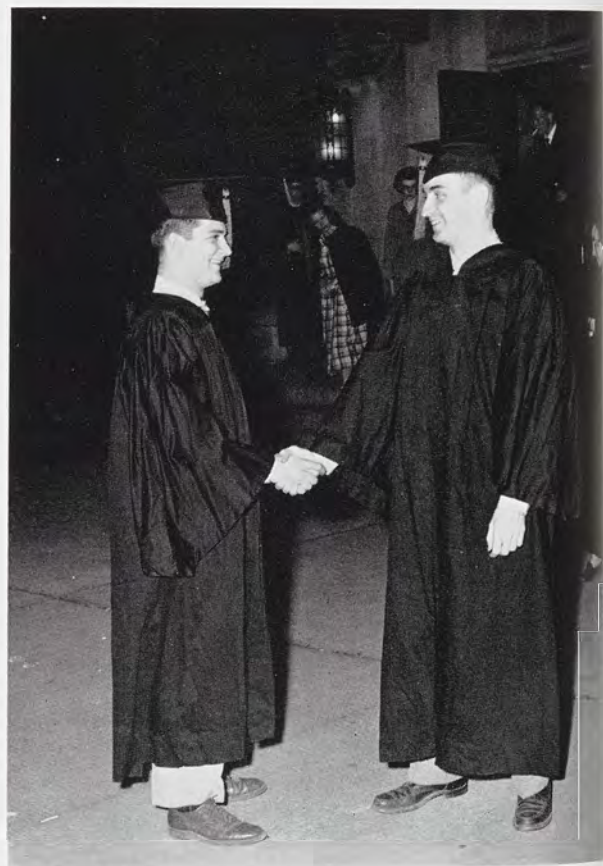

COMMENCEMENT...in Macklin Stadium

A series of senior activities and privileges preceded the commencement exercises for the graduating class of 1951. Among them was Lantern Night, at which senior women donned caps and gowns and marched to the Band Shell for a short program and presentation of awards to outstanding senior women. The ceremony officially ended when the lanterns were passed to underclassmen. The Senior Swingout was held at the auditorium. Seniors met in front of their respective schools and the parade gathered momentum as each school joined the formation. An inspiring speech by President Hannah opened the ceremony, and alumni class officers and representatives were presented. Weekly senior dances were held in the Union ballroom. And of course there were 11 o'clock permissions for the senior coeds and no finals for graduating seniors.

And there was graduation. The ceremony was held in Macklin Stadium for the first time. Although the outdoor graduation was threatened by a cloudy sky, the rain held off until the seniors and graduate students had received their diplomas.

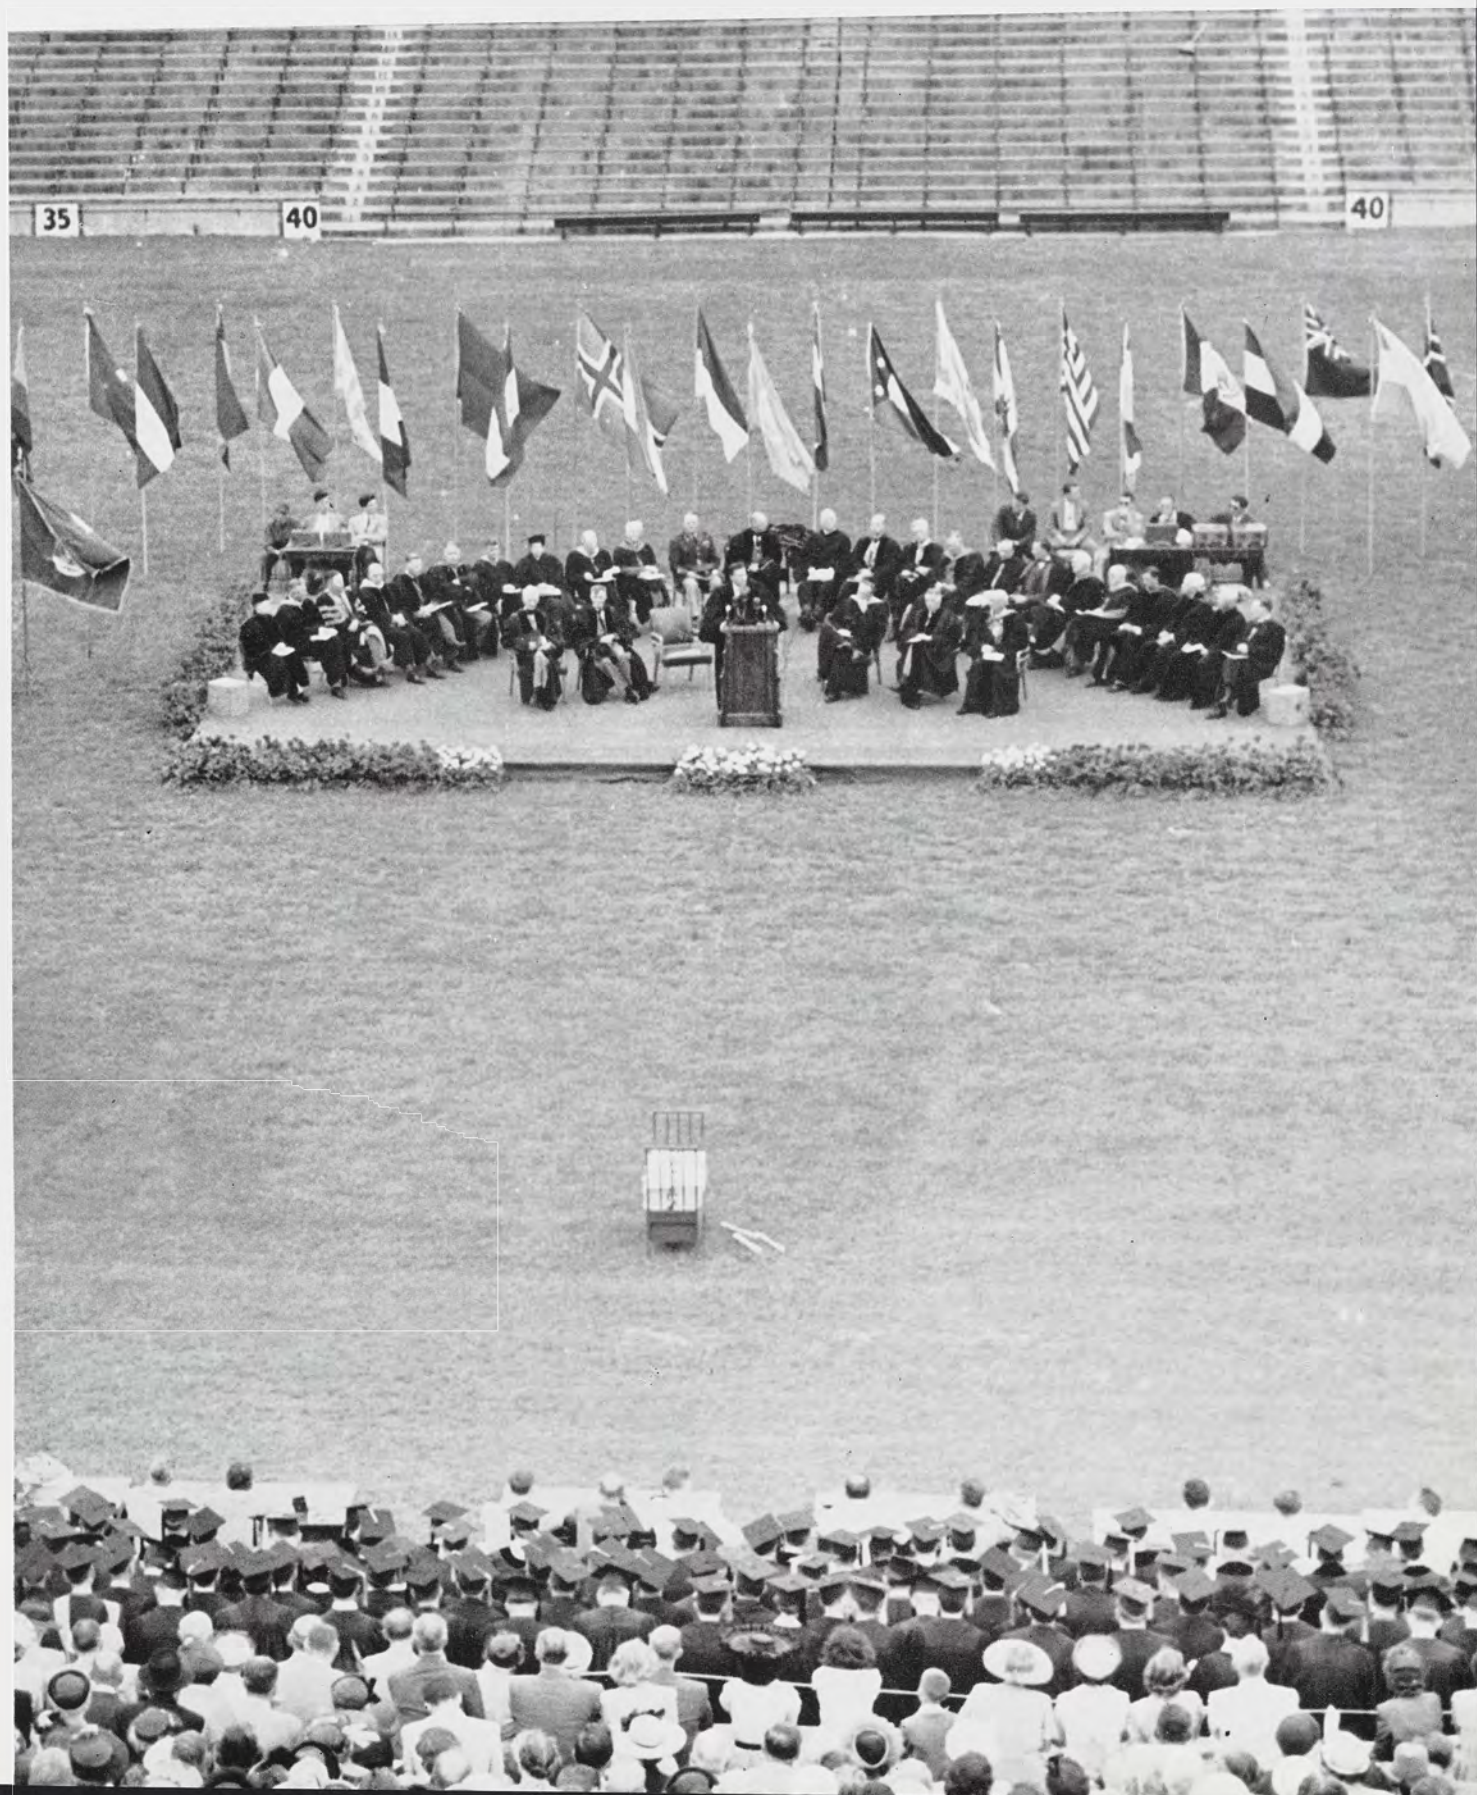

The commencement address was given by Nelson A. Rockefeller.

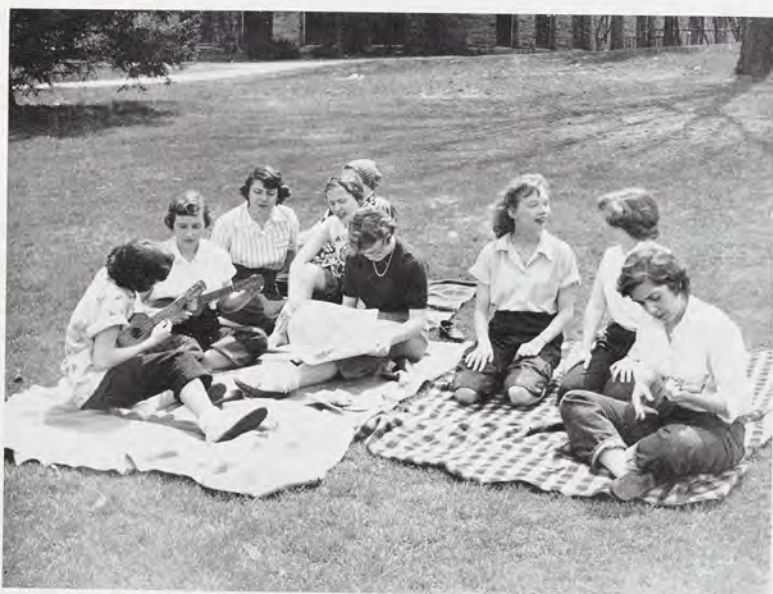

President Hannah and the deans of the schools presented the seniors with mock diplomas as they filed off the field.

COMPS AND FINALS . . . and summer vacation

Graduation and the departure of seniors meant one thing to most students—final time and comprehensive examinations were here again.

Although finals were about the same, the warm weather and anticipation of a long summer vacation often created an attitude of indifference. As for the comps, working the cross word puzzles in the State News had prepared many, while others spent hours reviewing the year's work. Students sat on hard wooden seats for four hours under the watchful eyes of the many proctors, and made patterns with little black marks.

But final week also meant last minute packing and saying goodbyes to a roommate and friends or the other half of a pinning; plans to meet during the summer, and one or two last minute picnics.

Departure day was long looked forward to through the cold dark winter term, and stimulated even more by the warmer and more exciting days of spring. After nine months, everyone was glad for a rest.

Parents got a complete summary of the term's activities as they helped lug armload after armload of belongings to the family car. It always seemed that there was twice as much as there had been at the beginning of fall term—but everything was indispensable, and would be back again next fall.

Four hours and 300 objective questions make up the comprehensive examination.

Careful packing and fitting is essential as coeds transfer vast numbers of suitcases and belongings from their rooms to trunks and backseats of waiting cars.

ADMINISTRATION

THE ADMINISTRATION OF MICHIGAN STATE COLLEGE . . .

The administration of the vast physical plant which composes Michigan State College is in the hands of men whose years of experience make them specialists in their fields. These administrators—the president, the State Board of Agriculture, the deans and their assistants—and some of their chief duties appear on the following pages . . .

Roberta Larsen stops in President Hannah's office to discuss a student problem with him.

ADMINISTRATION ... BEHIND THE SCENES

On the shoulders of the State Board of Agriculture, the Administration, the deans, and their assistants, rests much of the efficiency of the college. But not to be forgotten are the many people behind the scenes, on whom we come to depend, yet seem to know so little about.

Did you ever wonder how the snow disappeared from the walks after a heavy winter snowfall or how the leaves were whisked away on a brisk fall morning? This is accomplished through the efforts of the members of the Campus Planning and Grounds Maintenance Department. These men are on the job at daybreak and deserve much of the credit for MSC's reputation of having one of the most beautiful campuses in the country. Besides the manual labor involved, many hours of planning are necessary to achieve this distinction.

On duty day and night are the "trouble shooters" of the Buildings and Utilities Department. They are on the lookout for damaged equipment and faulty fixtures. A crew of 250 is regularly employed with approximately 100 students hired for part time jobs. They are also the ones who pick up the newspapers, scrap papers, broken pencils, etc., that are left in the classrooms and in the halls, clean the blackboards, empty waste baskets, and polish the floors.

Very few students realize the tremendous amount of departmental mail which is handled strictly through the college and never even sees a U.S. Post Office. The mail is picked up several times daily at the various collecting depots on campus, sorted in the college post office in the Administration Building and distributed.

Channeling the many telephone calls between the different departments are the college switchboard operators. There is always someone on duty during the 24 hours of each day.

Richard A. Geer, director of housing, and Elizabeth A. Corbishley, assistant director of student housing.

Jack Harper and Norma Taschner, college employees, run student grade cards through IBM machines.

The Department of Foods and Stores takes care of receiving, storing, and dispatching of foodstuffs—meats, fresh vegetables, dry groceries, and the like. It serves the dining rooms of the residence halls, the Union, and the Kellogg Center.

These are but a few of the various groups of people who contribute to our comfort and well-being while at school and help to make MSC a college of which we can well be proud.

PRESIDENT JOHN A. HANNAH

In 28 years President John A. Hannah has risen from an MSC undergraduate to a nationally recognized educator and administrator.

Born in Grand Rapids, Michigan, October 9, 1902, he attended the University of Michigan for one year before receiving the B.S. degree from MSC in 1923. In 1941 he was awarded an honorary doctor of agriculture degree from MSC, and in 1944 an honorary doctor of laws degree from U. of M.

President Hannah first achieved international recognition as an extension specialist while a member of the MSC staff. In 1935, he became secretary of the State Board of Agriculture and in 1941, was the unanimous choice of the Board to succeed retiring President Robert S. Shaw.

During his eleven years at the helm of MSC, President Hannah has achieved an outstanding record and has served in executive capacities with an increasing number of important groups.

He has served as a top official of the Association of Land-Grant Colleges and Universities since 1949, when he was elected president of the organization.

The MSC president is on the advisory board for President Truman's Point Four program. He also holds membership in the Advisory Committee on Higher Education of the Council of State Governments; the National Committee on Boys' and Girls' Club Work; the Joint Committee of the U. S. Department of Agriculture on Agricultural Services to Foreign Areas; and in three important committees of the American Council on Education, which are: Committee on Problems and Policies, Committee on Education and National Security, and Committee on Relationships of Higher Education to the Federal Government. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, and Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Detroit Branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE

Michigan State College is under the control of a constitutional board known as the State Board of Agriculture. Six members are elected from the state at large for a term of six years, two members being elected at each biennial spring election. Members are Forest H. Akers, Detroit; Winifred G. Armstrong, Niles; Clark L. Brody, Lansing; Sarah Van Hoosen Jones, Rochester; Frederick H. Mueller, Grand Rapids and Connor D. Smith, Standish. The State Superintendent of Public Instruction is an ex-officio member of the Board.

The President of the College is appointed by the State Board of Agriculture and is, under the constitutional provision, the presiding officer of that body. The Board likewise appoints a Secretary and Treasurer, both of whom hold office at the will of the Board. These ex-officio members include President John A. Hannah, Secretary Karl H. McDonel, Treasurer and Comptroller Philip J. May, and Superintendent of Public Instruction Lee M. Thurston. Meetings are usually held on the third Thursday of each month in the board room of the Administration Building.

James H. Denison serves as Administrative Assistant in charge of Public Relations and the MSC Press, and William H. Combs as Administrative Assistant on Academic Matters besides being Dean of the All-College Division.

Secretary Karl H. McDonel handles such things as Personnel, Purchasing, Buildings, Utilities, Ground Maintenance, Dormitories and Food Service.

Philip J. May is Comptroller and Treasurer and is responsible for Accounting, Auditing and Payroll.

Tom King, Dean of Students, has Starr Keesler, Director of Alumni Relations, and Dr. Charles F. Holland, Director of Olin Memorial Hospital, to assist him in his work; and Robert S. Linton, College Registrar and Secretary to the Faculty, with his staff handles all student admissions, classifications and records besides supervising the registration procedure.

In addition to these capable men, there are many others who contribute to the "behind the scenes" program which makes MSC the well-administered college that it is.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES . . .

Included in student activities are the vast number of extra-curricular activities as well as class and home work and social life. Some of these outside interests are student governing groups, publications, clubs and honoraries. On the following pages are the how, why, when and where of these various organizations . . .

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

It is often said about a fellow State student that he or she is "in everything on the campus." This statement really bites off quite a chunk. Delving deeper into the matter, information turns up to the effect that there are 167 clubs and honoraries on State's campus! With many students belonging to more than one honorary and often holding membership in several of these clubs, it is no wonder that they are dashing off to meetings nearly every night of the week. Some persons who add their names to MSC's enrollment list hardly have time to arrange classes on their busy schedule of activities. Nevertheless, it is realized that extra-curricular activities add to a fuller college life and offer opportunity to become better acquainted with other students.

There are five top honoraries at MSC. These are: Green Helmet, Sophomore Men's Honorary; Blue Key, Junior and Senior Men's Honorary; Excalibur, Senior Men's Honorary; Tower Guard, Sophomore Women's Honorary; and Mortar Board, Senior Women's Honorary. These five demand not only high scholastic averages but also service to the college through campus activities and fulfillment of the qualifications of leadership and fine character.

There are approximately 50 other honoraries which derive their membership from students with outstanding scholarship and ability in a particular major field or a sport.

The clubs and organizations at MSC appeal to the wide and varied interests of the student body. Some of these interests groups are: sports, religious, dancing and acting. Other clubs unify students of a major field as elementary education or engineering. There are several clubs with memberships comprised of students from a definite geographical section whether it is a section of the United States or a country in Europe, Asia or the South Pacific. Most clubs hold regular meetings at which the group may have a speaker, movies, refreshments or round table discussions.

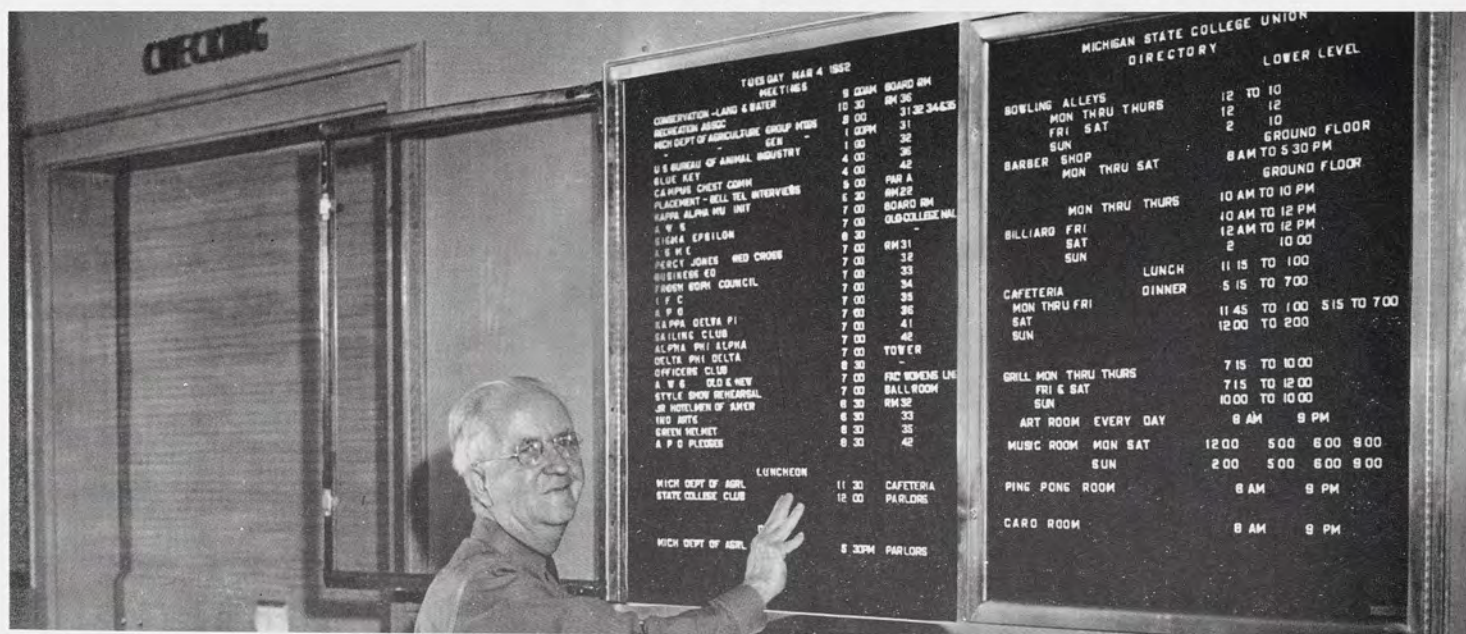

Publication's Row—third floor of the Union.

Another field for interest, this time in the journalism line, is the campus publications. It is not necessary to be a journalism major and it is interesting to note that most publication staffs have a variety of majors represented.

With a club or honorary available for every interest, it is little wonder that extra-curricular activities play such a large part in the Spartan's life.

Charlie Wren posts the day's activities in the concourse of the Union.

Gaylord Sheets, president.

The representatives of MSC's Student Congress are elected by districts in proportion to the population. These districts are defined in a Congress ordinance. In addition to these district representatives, an officer of every major group on campus attends Student Congress meetings. These major group officers, however, act only as an advisory group and hold a non-voting membership. Such organizations as AWS activities and judiciary, Union Board and the Co-op Council are representative in this manner.

STUDENT CONGRESS

The Student Congress is the student governing body of Michigan State College. Representatives from all living groups on campus make up this organization which meets weekly to discuss problems common to the entire student body. Its main objective is to organize, control and coordinate student functions and organizations on campus. The group has, as one of its primary goals, the making of campus organizations more efficient and active.

The Student Congress is in charge of all campus elections and campaigns. It sets up the rules which must be followed for these activities.

STUDENT GOVERNING BODY

During the fourth meeting following the election of new members, the Congress elects by secret ballot from among its members a president and a speaker. Among his duties, the president carries out the executive functions and appoints the treasurer, executive secretary, and creates "such agencies as he deems necessary to carry out the executive functions of the student government."

The speaker acts as an advisor to the president, presides over meetings in his absence, and succeeds him should the office become vacated.

Student Congress is composed of representatives elected by student vote; and an officer of every major governing group on campus, who hold a non-voting membership.

Cabinet members Jim Slezak, secretary of highschool cooperation; Bob Housedorf, secretary of organizations; Stan Brown, secretary of state affairs; and Dale Rhoades, treasurer.

Judiciary Board

STUDENT CONGRESS

The All-College Judiciary is made up of the counselor for women, counselor for men, a representative from the all-college Women's Judiciary and Men's Judiciary respectively, and three members from the student body at large, appointed by the president of the student government.

The All-College Judiciary meets once every two weeks and upon 24 hours notice when a special case arises.

The Board offers advisory opinions, judges infractions of student congressional ordinances, constitutionality of any student organization, governing group or Student Congress. Students may also appeal to the Board if they break college rules.

Campus Chest is an organization which coordinates all charity drives into one week of solicitation and special events held during spring term. This method of collection is more efficient and less demanding on the students than collecting for each separate charity.

The Campus Chest is a Student Government agency controlled by a six-man commission. The Commission is a policy making board which decides such problems as the number of charities to include, the percentage of money allocated each, and all other administrative affairs of the Campus Chest.

The proceeds from the drive this year were turned over to the World Student Service Fund, 30%; the National Scholarship and Service Fund for Negro Students, 20%; the American Heart Association, 15%; the Spartan Nursery, 15%; the American Cancer Society, 15%; and the Lansing Community Chest, 5%.

Last year the drive netted $5,000.

Special events, such as the Spartacade, an annual carnival held in Jenison Fieldhouse winter term; a Faculty Auction; a Kick-off banquet; the Showdeo; a Jazz Concert, and a Faculty-Queens softball game are sponsored by the organization.

Campus Chest Week was held from April 28 to May 2 this year. A green feather is the symbol of the campaign.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

Panhellenic Council forms the rules and regulations that are used during sorority rushing. It further acts as a court in forming judgment upon any sorority that fails to fulfill these rules which it passes. Two representatives from each sorority, usually one junior and one senior, are elected to serve on this ruling body which governs approximately 1,000 Greek women in MSC's 16 different sororities. Each sorority has one vote in the council. Throughout the stages of rushing parties these women are on hand in the Panhel post office in the Union Building to answer any questions that the prospective pledges might have. After the rushing season passes, Panhel members spend much time revising and bettering rushing porcedures for the next year's program.

Meetings are held once a week throughout the school year. During fall and spring terms the members meet at the various sorority houses while winter term the meetings are held in the Union.

IFC, the ruling body for fraternity men, works in co-operation with Panhel Council to give over all co-ordination to the Greek activities. This is one of the most important functions of Panhel.

Greek Week is a very good example of this fraternity and sorority co-operation. This event takes place the last week in October. The week commences with a Greek banquet. After numerous exchange dinners and a round table during which they discuss problems common to both groups, the fraternity and sorority members get a good opportunity to become better acquainted. Concluding the activities of Greek Week is the annual Greek Serenade which is primarily limited to fraternity and sorority men and women. Panhel co-sponsors this dance as one of its many activities.

SORORITY GOVERNMENT

Inter-Fraternity Council officers Jim Sackett, Bob Dustan, George Bradford, president; Jim Mitchell and Ran Leech. These officers, composing the executive council, meet every week.

IFC, composed of two members from each fraternity, holds its meetings once every two weeks.

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL

About the third week of school, fraternity rushing, which is much different than sorority rushing, begins with a smoker in the union concourse. At this first meeting, representatives from each fraternity are present to explain to the prospective pledges about fraternity life. They also answer any questions about their own fraternity as to pledge fees, point averages, length of time on campus and the number of present openings for members.

IFC regulates all of the open houses following this smoker which serve to acquaint the men students with each fraternity house on campus. The rules for these open houses enable the fraternity men to meet as many prospective pledges as possible. Violations of all pledge rules are judged by fraternity members serving on this organization.

FRATERNITY GOVERNMENT

IFC is an organization which sets up all the general rules and regulations for the twenty-four fraternities at State. All fraternity men are familiar with the organization because of their representation in its functioning. One junior member and one senior member from each fraternity are elected as representatives to serve on IFC.

Members of this group have a great many activities to keep them occupied throughout the year. The officers of each fraternity meet in different groups to discuss problems of mutual interest to their particular office. This serves as a leadership training program for the fraternities. All of the intramural athletic events between fraternities are arranged in co-operation with the intramural office.

Union Board is the student organization which plans and carries out the various student functions offered within the Union. The overall organization is divided into seven committees which work under the auspices of the Union Board of Directors, whose members consist of the committee heads and Union Board officers.

The Union Board is made up of 80 members and 13 directors who work toward creating and maintaining a smooth running Union which is responsive to the needs of both the students and the Union management.

Some of the Board's functions are week-end band and record dances, including two free dances during registration week. The themes for these dances are varied according to the season and offer an evening's entertainment for a minimum fee.

Other activities sponsored for the student body include bridge and ping-pong tournaments, music programs, Student-Faculty coffee hours in Old College Hall, bridge and dance instruction, T.G.I.F. parties on Friday afternoons, showing movies of State's football games played away from home, conducting visitors on tours through the Union and the weekly publication of Union Shorts telling what is going on in the Union.

Judiciary executive council members Sallee Fox, Dorothy Glupker, Sue Merriman, president; and Jeanne Bachelder check petitions with Miss Mabel Petersen, advisor.

ASSOCIATED WOMEN STUDENTS

Associated Women Students is the governing body which serves the needs and coordinates the activities of the women on campus. It helps to sponsor the Activities Carnival, held early each fall to acquaint the new student and others with the various activities on campus.

Every undergraduate woman automatically becomes a member of A.W.S. upon registration and has the privilege of voting in all of its elections. The business of the association is carried on by two groups, the activities board and the judiciary-legislative board. Each are composed of representatives elected from the women's living groups and other women's organizations.

ASSOCIATED WOMEN STUDENTS

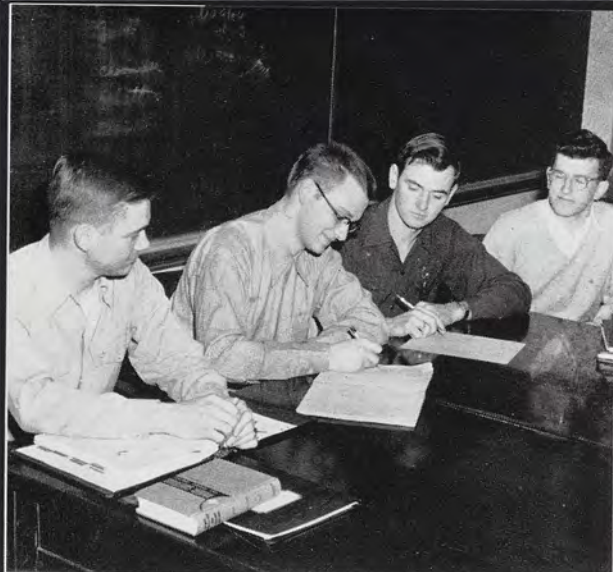

The judiciary-legislative board is the law-enforcing and policy determining agency. Its purpose is to supervise all matters pertaining to the social conduct of the women students and to interpret, initiate and enforce rules governing conduct. Among its aims are the promotion of a feeling of friendliness and the encouragement of high standards of social conduct and good scholarship among MSC coeds.

The activities board helps with college residence elections each term and is the coordinating body for women's organizations on campus. It helps to sponsor the traditional Lantern Night, a procession of senior and underclass women held during Senior Week, and the leadership training clinic during spring term. This clinic presents to all students a series of vocational lectures by some of the best personnel and vocational guidance experts in the country. It also sponsors STUN, the organization for the exchange of "Student textbooks, used and new," and aids in freshman orientation through the Big Sister program. This project aims at helping freshmen and transfer women to become acquainted with, and make adjustments to, life at Michigan State College.

Activities Board

Activities executive council members Mary Schlecht, Mrs. Isabelle Gonon, advisor; Arlene Ursin, president; and Gladys Constantine.

Chuck Gruner, John Saylor, president; Jerry Hull and Don Dunbar preside over council meetings.

The Agricultural Council, composed of one representative from each club and one from each class, co-ordinates the activities of the Ag clubs on campus.

Fall term the Council sponsored the Harvest Ball and also held a Freshman Agricultural Convocation to introduce new students to the various agricultural clubs. During winter term, heads of each group attended the President's dinner banquet. Outstanding agricultural students were honored at the Agricultural Achievement Banquet. Spring term, interest centered in an Ox Roast and field day held at the Stock Pavilion.

The Council was founded in 1930.

ENGINEERING COUNCIL

The Engineering Council, formed in 1939, is a group of men who co-ordinate the engineering clubs on State's campus. The council is composed of two representatives from each engineering club.

The main social function of the council is the Engineer's Ball, held fall term. Each May this council sponsors the Engineer's Exposition in coordination with other engineering societies. During this time the engineering buildings hold open house and display their latest equipment. Many business concerns set up exhibits displaying their modern machines. This exposition attempts to help students to find jobs after graduation.

Officers composing the executive council are Donald Davis, Vern Nelson, president; Harold Skamser and Jerome Lampe.

Journalism faculty members provide intermission entertainment at the Press Pass Ball.

J-COUNCIL

MSC's Journalism Council is composed of a member from each of the five journalism honoraries on campus and has as advisor the head of the journalism department. Its main purpose is to coordinate the functions of journalism on campus.

Project for this year was a round table discussion held at the Kellogg Continuing Education Center, in March. An all-college informal dance was also sponsored by the group.

Members, who are chosen by the honorary presidents, represent Alpha Delta Sigma, Kappa Alpha Mu, Pi Alpha Mu, Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi.

The Men's Council is composed of one representative from each of the six men's residence halls and the following men's organizations: Agriculture Council, Alpha Phi Omega, Blue Key, Co-op Council, Engineering Council, Excalibur, Green Helmet, Interfraternity Council, Jr. A.V.M.A., Men's Glee Club, Officers Club, Spartan City, Town Men, Y.M.C.A., and Kappa Alpha Mu. The purpose of the Council is "To coordinate the activities of all men and men's organizations on campus, to voice the problems concerning men to the administration and the Student Congress, and to accept such responsibility as delegated by the Student Congress." The Council is represented on the All-College Judiciary Board and the Faculty-Social Committee. At present, the members are constructing a Men's Judiciary for action on campus problems. One of the Council's projects is to buy several Wolverines and to send them to Michigan high schools which do not have students at MSC. This is done to stimulate interest and present the qualifications of Michigan State to these high school seniors.

Lyle Thornburn, Counselor for Men, is advisor for the group.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS . . .

MSC's five publications, the Spartan, State News, Wolverine, Spartan Engineer and MSC Veterinarian, are entirely edited and produced by State students. Their offices are located on the third floor in the Union, where staffs ranging from 25 to 120 work day and night to turn out the editions you read . . .

BOARD OF PUBLICATIONS

Membership on the Board of Publications, advisory group to the major publications on campus, is composed of eight men: Publications Advisor, Head of the Journalism Department, Administrative Assistant to the President, Comptroller of the College, Dean of Students, State News Manager and Spartan and Wolverine Editors.

The main purpose of the board is to appoint the major editors for MSC's Spartan, Spartan Engineer, State News and Wolverine. It also discusses any problems and conflicts which may arise concerning the publications.

Meetings of the Board are usually held once a month, and more often if necessary.

The Board is not a controlling influence over the publications, but merely an advisory group.

William F. McIlrath, Ken Duncan, Philip J. May, James H. Denison, Albert A. Applegate, Tom King, Dick Lang and Dwaine N. Polzin.

Dan McCrary, State News manager, presents his letter of application to William F. McIlrath, secretary of the Board of Publications.

The Spartan Engineer has just finished its first year on Publications Row. The office was formerly located in the Engineering Building. Published every two months during the school year, the magazine is more technical than most of the campus publications, being of special interest to engineering students. Articles are written by staff members, faculty, and men established in the field. The 40 page publication is filled with an alumni news column, activities of the various engineering societies, humor, and reports of new developments in the engineering field. Each engineering group at MSC has an elected representative on the staff.

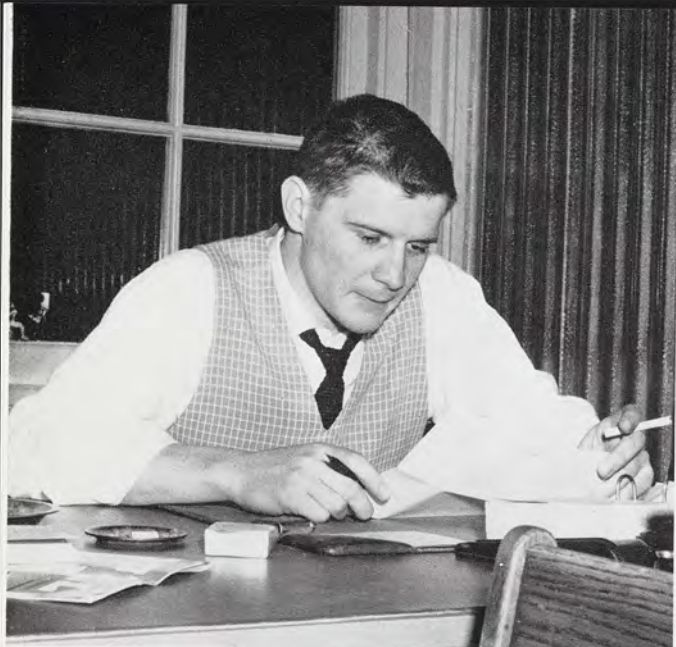

One-fourth of the 1200 circulation is mailed to accredited high schools in Michigan, to other colleges on an exchange basis, and to various industries.

The staff of approximately 25 members attends the annual Publications Banquet spring term, at which the new editors are announced.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS

The Michigan State News, a student publication, is published daily Monday through Friday during fall, winter and spring terms and weekly during summer term. At first only a campus newspaper, the State News now covers campus, State and world news giving special stress to the State Legislature. Other features are a section of classified ads, complete coverage of major and minor sports, editorials, woman's page and letters to the editor. The standard edition is four pages in length. Each spring term a fashion supplement is published with feature articles on current campus and world fashions and several pictures of State men and women modeling outfits for various occasions. A special edition is mailed to freshmen between summer and fall terms. This issue includes helpful information for incoming students and a welcome from President Hannah. The Michigan State News is a member of the Inland Daily Press and the Associated Press.

The State News is student edited and student produced. This work is made possible by the cooperation of the manager, editor, advertising director and circulation manager. Approximately 45 students compose the editorial staff and 35 Spartans are members of the advertising staff. With a present circulation of 10,500 the State News is distributed early each morning to the sororities, fraternities, dorms, co-ops, various buildings on campus and recently has extended its circulation to East Lansing homes.

WOLVERINE

In its 52 years of existence, the Wolverine has steadily progressed from a few scanty pages of senior pictures to a 556 page book complete with introduction, administration, student activities, clubs and honoraries, sports, military, seniors, living groups and advertising.

The Wolverine work begins the spring preceding its distribution. Approximately 120 staff members help organize and put out the book, along with three major editors, and 13 section editors.

Although the editors are usually journalism majors, anyone is eligible to work on the staff or apply for an editor's position, whatever his major may be.

Staff members working on the book for 75 hours are given a complimentary copy, while those working for 100 hours or more receive a copy with their name engraved on the cover.

MSC SPARTAN

Don Smith, business manager.

Ken Duncan, editor.

Advertising staff members Jim Totten, John Greenberg, Lyeld Thompson, Stan Brown and Bob Garrison.

Whether you are interested in learning how to dance, or in taking a journey to Mars, the Spartan Magazine can provide you with all the necessary information. Each month, the Spartan, collecting material not only from its own staff members, but also from all persons associated with Michigan State College, selects a theme and builds its material around this subject. A literary and humor magazine, the Spartan delves into all fields of the arts. Short stories, both serious and humorous, articles of interest to college students, plus cartoons, photographs, and even sculpturing are monthly features.

Editorial staff workers George Cracraft, Bill McGraw, Bud Dinges and V. Glen Washburn.

First Row—Frances N. Funk, John F. Hughes, Charles V. Dinges, V. Glen Washburn, Donald T. Marshall, Don L. Smith, Spencer Ketchum, John L. Greenberg, Lyeld F. Washburn. Third Row—Joe Perron, John Davies, Richard Pyle, Howard Wright, Stan Brown, Larry Nelson, Hal W. Sundstrom, Verne L. Elliott, Bill McGraw, Paul Botts, Roger J. Peters and Donald A. Blome.

Among the regular outstanding features of the Spartan is "Kleptomania", which is a series of cartoons reprinted from other college magazines all over the United States. Since the material of college magazines requires no copyright, there is a large field open for an exchange of ideas between these publications. Articles on outstanding faculty members are often published, and on the humorous side are the satires on well-known fairy tales.

The Spartan does not limit itself to only publishing a top-notch college magazine, but takes part in various college activities. It is the co-sponsor of the annual Homecoming Queen selection, and presents dramatic awards to six organizations, including the Children's, Studio and Fairchild theatres. Founded by James Hays III in 1936, the Spartan magazine, with its 70 staff membership, ranks among the first rate college magazines of the country. It is a non-profit publication, providing an outlet for literary and artistic talents on the campus, and transmitting these achievements to those seeking reading entertainment.

HUMOR MAGAZINE

David Reath, editor; Marilyn Twitchell; Charles Gull, clinical notes; and Otto Shwabe, circulation manager.

MSC VETERINARIAN

The MSC Veterinarian was organized at State in 1941. This magazine which is primarily technical in content has articles written by faculty, research workers throughout the country and students majoring in veterinary medicine. The articles consist of such material as new anaesthetics, practical aspects of diagnosis, research reports and new outbreaks of diseases. Too, clinical reports are included which deal with how a case is handled from diagnosis to possible cures. In addition, there is a section for alumnae news and a section written by and for MSC students.

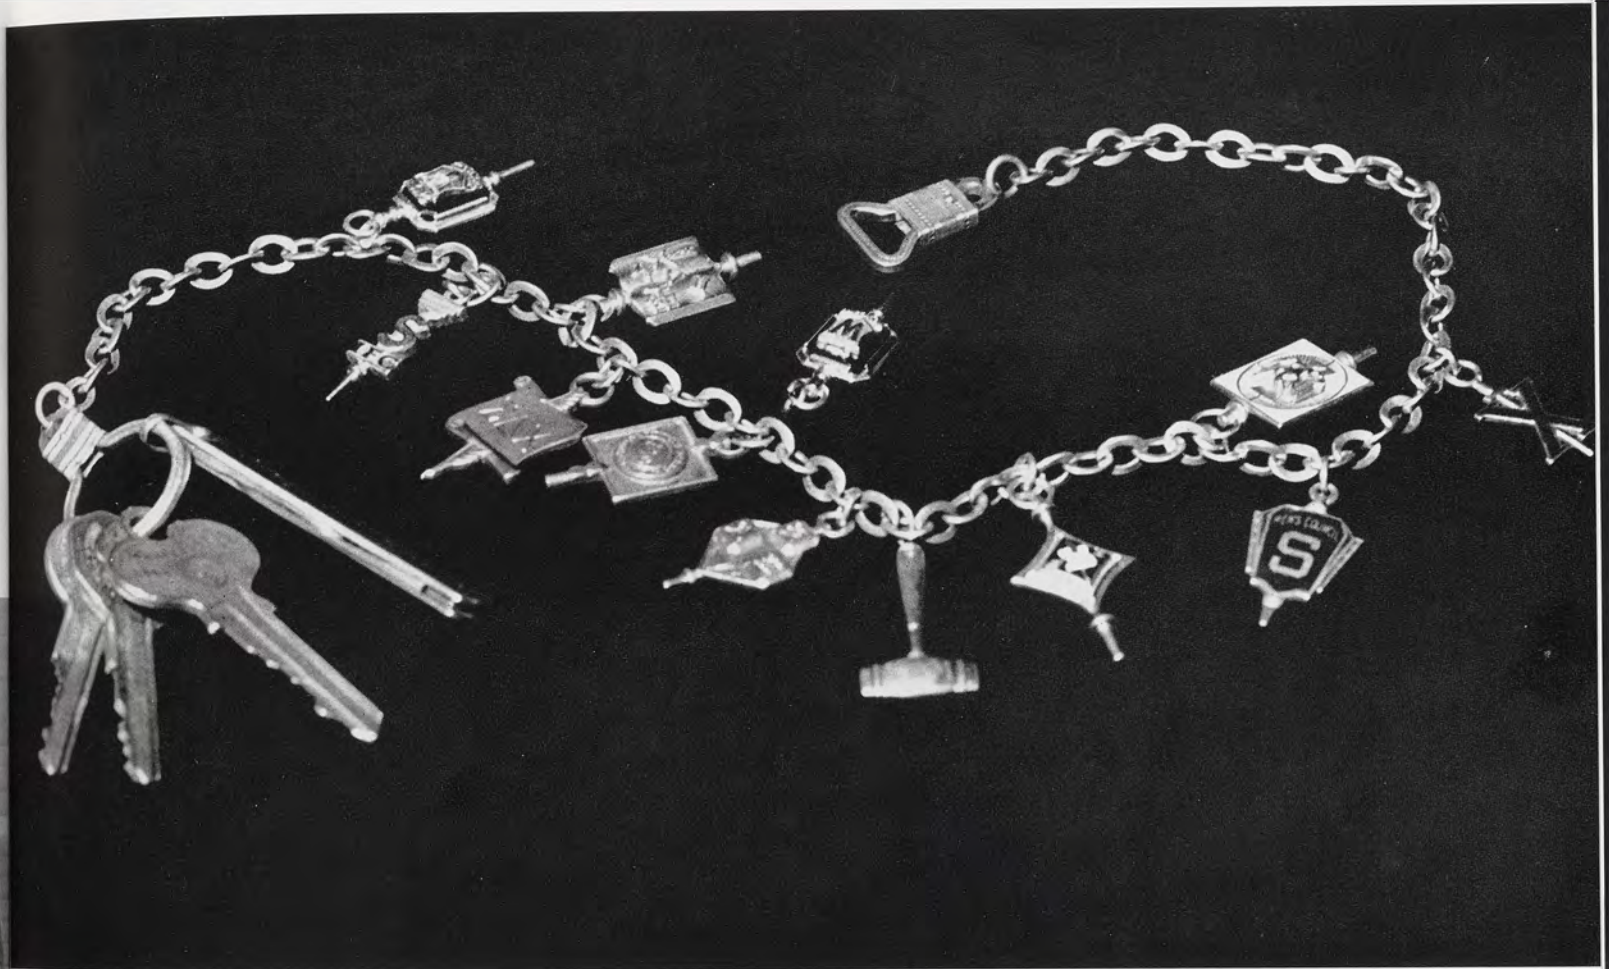

In the 11 years of its existence the MSC Veterinarian has built up a circulation which now reaches 2000 copies. The magazine is published fall, winter and spring terms. At the present time the staff of 26 students, an editor and a business manager are working on an exchange issue plan with other colleges. There are 17 colleges in the United States which offer vet med and of these, ten colleges have a publication such as State's. The staff is endeavoring to exchange magazines with vet students at these universities. Circulation also carries this publication to 25 foreign countries.

Mr. C. F. Cairy is the group's advisor.

Agricultural Economics Club

The Agricultural Economics club offers an opportunity for all students, faculty and others interested in agricultural economic problems to participate in discussions and lectures concerning these problems. This year it initiated a training program with several of the Michigan farm co-ops.

Social functions included a student-faculty baseball game at the annual spring picnic and a judging contest on Agricultural Achievement Day.

Agricultural Education Club

The Agricultural Education club, a professional society for students and faculty, was formed at MSC in 1941. The club promotes F.F.A. activities and sponsors meetings of active, associate, honorary and alumni members during the Future Farmers of America Week.

The main goal of the club is to create an interest in the teaching of vocational agriculture. Talks on this subject are presented at meetings by teachers and by members of the Future Farmers of America.

B'nai Brith Hillel Foundation

The B'nai Brith Hillel Foundation strives to teach and to further Jewish culture and tradition on the MSC campus. This is partially accomplished by evening social sessions at which Israeli dancing is presented, kosher foods from their own kitchen are served and various speakers lecture on topics of current interest. Weekly Sabbath services and lessons in the Hebrew language and history are also held.

Social activities began during orientation week last fall, when a tea for Jewish women and a smoker for the men were held. The year's activities were climaxed with the annual "Hillelzapoppin" dance and show, produced and acted by the members. It was held at the foundation house, 319 Hillcrest Ave.

American Society of Agricultural Engineers

The American Society of Agricultural Engineers, made up of under-graduates enrolled in agricultural engineering, promotes the interests of the students as related to the various fields of ag engineering. Its purpose is to create a feeling of fellowship among faculty and students, and to foster an understanding between faculty members and representatives of industrial organizations. Available opportunities are presented to students through speeches and films by the faculty and representatives of industry. Placement is given whenever possible.

The MSC chapter was organized in 1937 and in 1938 became a member of the student organization founded in St. Joseph in 1920.

First Row—Ernest S. Frens, Lloyd W. Shelder, Ashley B. Sinnett, Charles C. Sigerfoos, Wesley H. Hauschildt, Donald F. Davis and Burl Romick. Second Row—Louis E. LeBay, William E. Kamradt, Louis M. American Foundrymen's Society

The MSC American Foundrymen's society is one of the 13 student chapters affiliated with the National American Foundrymen's Society. The group works to promote interest, research, and technical developments in the foundry industry. Field trips and speakers from various factories are included in this program. The society co-sponsored the Engineers' Ball, fall term. In the spring it participated in the Engineering Exposition and held its annual student Industry banquet.

American Society for Metals

To promote the science of the treatment of metals, their manufacture and fabrication is the purpose of the American Society for Metals.

The activities of A.S.M. included participation in the International Metals Conference in Detroit, fall term and an annual picnic spring term.

The Michigan State chapter, founded in 1949, is one of 70 chapters in the United States.

Arab Club

The Arab Club was founded at MSC in the spring of 1950 by a small group of Arab students who felt that by banding together, they could become better accustomed to American ways as well as becoming better acquainted with each other. Although, membership is limited to Arab students, other students at State are welcome to join in their activities which include movies, lectures, and parties. Get-togethers are held at least once every two weeks at the International Center on campus.

Gamma Delta

All Lutheran students are invited to join Gamma Delta, the Lutheran service and social fraternity on campus. Christ Lutheran Church in Lansing is the club's headquarters. Here, members usher, teach Sunday School and hold their weekly meetings. They also teach at the Boys' Vocational School.

A recent project was raising funds to establish a chapter for students in Tokyo, Japan. Gamma Delta also contributed toward a Memorial Chapel at the University of Alabama.

The MSC chapter meets each term with other chapters in this region. During the summer, these regional meetings are held at a camp in New York State. At present members are working to obtain a house in East Lansing for their meetings and social activities.

Independent Student Association

The local Independent Student Association chapter, a member of the national organization, was established at MSC in 1938 and now has 73 members. Students not affiliated with a fraternity are invited to join.

Its aims are to carry on service and social activities and to provide the independent students with facilities comparable to those of the fraternities and sororities. Current activities include a talent show, spring term, and the Ride Bureau.

Canterbury Club

Canterbury club began its new year by moving into a new residence, 444 Abbott Road. This year, replacing the traditional Sunday evening prayer service, a new social program was initiated. On three Sundays of the month, the prayer service is followed by a social program. Two living units are invited to join the fun each week. The fourth Sunday, the service is followed by a speaker, thus integrating the religious, social and intellectual functions of this organization.

Christian Science Organization

Sponsoring two lectures on Christian Science each year is the main project of the Christian Science Organization. These lectures are given by members of the Christian Science Board of Lecture-ship, who tour the country speaking before churches and student groups. This year the speakers were Frank T. Hord, C.S., from Louisville, Kentucky, and Will B. Davis, C.S.B., from Chicago, Illinois.

To unite the Christian Science students at MSC in friendship, to give information about the faith and to study the Bible and its interpretation as given in the Christian Science textbook are the main objectives stressed in the weekly meetings.

The group is based on and operated in accordance with the Christian Science Church manual by Mary Baker Eddy.

There are 107 Christian Science organizations in the United States and seven more in foreign countries. The local group was founded in 1934.

Christian Student Foundation

"To help individuals become whole persons through knowing and following God's way of love in all their life" is the purpose of the Christian Student Foundation of Michigan State College. This interdenominational group, more than 200 strong, is sponsored and supported by the People's Church and the following denominations: Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian and Congregational.

The doors of College House, next to the People's Church, are open to any student, regardless of race or color. Outstanding religious leaders are invited to participate in Sunday vesper services and the student forums afterwards. Chapel meditation services are also held every Wednesday evening.

The group annually sponsors such social events as a Gay Nineties party, ice cream social, and all-college hoedowns. The college house provides a photographic darkroom, kitchen, chapel, and room for other specific interest groups.

The foundation is affiliated with the World Student Christian Federation through the United Student Christian Council of North America.

Dairy Club

Michigan State College's Dairy club is an organization of students and faculty members interested in dairying. The club is affiliated nationally with the American Dairy Science Association, the local group boasting 42 members.

Each fall a Homecoming breakfast is sponsored in the Union Grill by the student and faculty club members to fete returning alumni. A faculty-sponsored smoker, known as a "Bean-Feed" is also part of the fall term program.

This year a dairy products and judging team won national fourth place honors with club members Al Hosner and Bill Kruger taking individual first places in the milk and butter divisions, respectively. A club steak-fry is given spring term, along with the all-college Farmer's Frolic, which features MSC queens in the "Queen's milking contest." An inter-student competition, the "Little International Fitting and Showing" contest is sponsored for interested dairy men.

Dionysians

Membership in Dionysians is composed of MSC students who collaborate to produce an annual musical comedy. The show entirely written, produced, and directed by State students, runs for a four night stand.

During fall term one of the various original scripts submitted is chosen, making it possible to cast the play early winter term. Auditions take place in the Union building and any student interested in acting, singing or dancing may take part. Also students may sign up at this time to work on staging, lighting, painting scenery or gathering props. Next, a strenuous rehearsal schedule commences continuing until opening night early in April.

After the final curtain rings down Dionysian membership cards are distributed to several of the participants in the play. Membership is directed by the Executive Council composed of the officers plus the director and producer of the current production.

This year's Dionysian show "How Are You Gonna Keep'm?" was presented spring term. The show had two female and two male leads who were supported by a cast of 40 students. The plot formulated around two farm girls who aspired to go to the big city. They chose New York City and after farewells to their boy friends, the girls reached the glamorous lights of Broadway.

Gloria Gluski, Pat Murray and Marilyn Ringler perform original modern dance numbers in the Dionysian production.

Immediately they were completely taken in by all of the sights but soon found that there were many city happenings they did not understand. The girls fell into one troublesome situation after another but luck was with them as one of their beaux from the farm had followed them to New York. Fortunately he was on hand to rescue them from these entanglements. Eventually one of the girls became a night club singer but later concludes that the big city was not for her and both girls returned to their home on the farm.

The lively, fast moving show was presented in three acts. It featured several dance routines and original songs as "Champagne is the Aristocrate of Wine". The show was produced by a staff of five directors, two producers and a large construction crew.

Floriculture Forum

Any one interested in floriculture is eligible to join the Floriculture Forum. The club is a semi-professional organization for undergraduates.

At its meetings, leaders in the floriculture field are invited to lecture or to show movies. Activities include the sponsoring of a flower show during National Flower Week and a term party each term. It also helps sponsor a flower judging team.

Elementary Education Club

The Elementary Education club was organized two years ago for the benefit of elementary education majors. Speakers, audio-visual aids and resources are used to further the knowledge of the prospective teachers, and to help them solve problems which may arise during their professional years. This organization participated in the Educational Convocation, sponsoring the elementary school speakers, and is now planning an audio-visual fair, which will stress the importance of audio-visual aids in the elementary school.

Forestry Club

To promote a broader outlook and understanding of the forestry field is the main purpose of the MSC Forestry club. Nearly 100 members meet twice a month in the Forestry Cabin to see movies and speakers on the various aspects of conservation.

The Toumey Arboretum, a wooded section east of the campus is cared for by the members in memory of forestry students killed in World Wars I and II.

Activities of winter term started the first day of registration when foresters began growing beards for their annual Shindig. A costume contest and the choosing of the largest and fullest beard highlighted the festivities.

Early spring term the group held an annual banquet with the U. of M. Forestry club. Closing the year's events was the Forestry Field Day and picnic held at Grand Ledge.

The club was founded in 1908 by Professors Bogue and Chittenden of the forestry department.

Marketing Club

The purpose of the MSC Marketing club is to establish better relations between the marketing field and students interested in marketing activities.

In order to familiarize students with current marketing practices, the club engages men noted in the field to speak at its meetings.

Activities included sponsoring coffee hours and establishing better student-faculty relations, through the department of the organization of Student Government.

Ski Club

MSC's Ski club began recruiting members at the Activities Carnival by showing films of last year's Olympic competition at Aspen, Colo., and local races.

Trips for week-ends and vacations were planned, ski movies shown and free instructions offered at the weekly meetings, winter term.

Trophies were awarded to winners, following the end-of-the-season-races at Boyne Mountain, at a banquet held in the mountain's lodge.

Indian Student Association

Chief functions of the Indian Student Association are to promote friendship with other international groups and to orientate new Indian students. Twice a term the 29 members meet to hear speakers and see films.

The sponsoring of a tea at the International Center and participation in the International Ball were Fall term projects. In December students from Indian clubs all over the United States gathered in New York for their annual convention. To celebrate the Indian Declaration of Independence, a program was held in the Music Building January 26. Indian magic, songs, and dances highlighted the evening. Spring term the group entered an exhibit in the International Festival. Donations from the group helped support the Bandhi Memorial section for the MSC library. Closing the term was a banquet for faculty members, which featured a variety of Indian dishes.

Industrial Arts Club

Interesting children in further education through manual training is the main purpose of the Industrial Arts club. The 125 members drawn from the school of industrial arts meet twice a month to hear manufacturers explain opportunities in the industrial world. Handicraft projects and talks by high school instructors point up the educational side of industrial arts. Coffee hours and impromptu parties round out the schedule of the group.

MSC Hotel Association

Leading members of the school of hotel administration constitute the membership of the MSC Hotel Association. The group is kept busy planning meetings, conventions and exhibits.

Fall term, the annual Chairman of the Board Day convention was held at MSC; while winter term, the association sponsored the Bell-Hop and sent 55 hotel administration seniors to the mid-west hotel show at the Palmer House in Chicago.

Helping with Parent's Day was another project of the organization.

Lutheran Students Association

Organized to provide social activities and to further the religious interests of Lutheran students, the Lutheran Students Association provides entertainment and religious instruction for its members.

Social activities this year, included a Halloween party with the Canterbury Club, and numerous parties and hay rides.

Business meetings were held on Sunday evenings and Bible classes during the week. Special group discussions were also held at which current topics of interest were discussed.

Club members also teach Sunday School at the Boys' Vocational School in Lansing and read at the Vogue Nursing Home for older people.

All persons interested in the club are invited to meetings and every member of the National Lutheran Council is automatically a member of the organization.

International Club

Michigan State's International club, founded in 1944, boasts 200 members this year. The dual purposes of the organization are to promote international understanding and to develop closer relationships between students of all lands, thereby keeping in touch with other cultures.

Membership is open to all students, and headquarters for the club is the International Center. This year Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gemmel are residing at the center as directors, in place of Dr. and Mrs. Shao C. Lee.

The club takes part in many all-college events, such as intramural sports and water carnival, as well as sponsoring the traditional Cosmopolitan Ball winter term. An international festival is also presented by the club to show American students different nationality groups in programs typical of their cultures.

Entertainment and educational meetings are also held for members and guests throughout the year at the center, as well as the all-college activities.

Men's Glee Club

The Michigan State Men's Glee club sang its way through central Michigan this year, presenting its annual two and one-half hour spring program to high school students and town citizens.

This tour is only a part of the songsters' yearly program. Under the direction of Professor David Machtel, the glee club sings for conferences, conventions, and presents an annual spring concert.

An innovation this year was the 12-voice ensemble, providing primarily humorous singing for the intermissions of all-college functions such as the J-Hop and the spring concert. A director and an accompanist work with the ensemble. Solo and quartet numbers are also part of the glee club program.

The club members are selected not only from music majors, but also from any male students who audition and are interested in group singing.

The annual spring banquet was held May 14, at which new officers were announced and awards were made.

Pem Club

PEM Club was organized for MSC women majoring or minoring in physical education. The group is primarily social and plans its activities at bi-monthly meetings.

During spring term PEM club members take overnight trips and canoe trips. Spring term also brings the annual Play Day when the MSC club meets with representatives of several other mid-western colleges for a day of sports activities and entertainment.

Pomology Forum of Michigan State College

Any student interested in fruits and their production is welcome to join the Pomology Forum. The display for National Apple Week in the Horticulture Building last fall, with its bushels of free apples for students, was sponsored by the club. It also supplies President Hannah, his guests, and the press box with fruit at the football games. Field trips to outstanding Michigan orchards are sponsored every spring and fall.

NEWMAN CLUB

The Newman club is an international organization for Catholic students on secular campuses. The first Newman club to be called by that name was formed by five students at the University of Pennsylvania in 1893. Because Catholic culture was the keynote of its program and because it recognized Cardinal Newman's life as a Catholic ideal of scholarship, he was adopted as patron of the organization. The program of the club is three-fold: religious, intellectual and social, to correspond with the three basic needs of the student. An effort is made to incorporate these purposes in all of the group's activities.

Newman club sponsors annual spiritual retreats, daily rosary, an all-college May Crowning ceremony in the bandshell, sports groups, dances, swimming parties and picnics. The club's biggest social function is the annual "Candlelight Cabaret", an all college winter term formal.

The Promenaders

Founded at MSC to promote better recreation through folk and square dancing, the Promenaders put on frequent demonstrations, not only on campus, but also throughout central Michigan. It also helps to sponsor all-college hoedowns during the school year. Membership is limited to 60 and is open to those who show interest in and have a basic understanding of elementary square dancing.

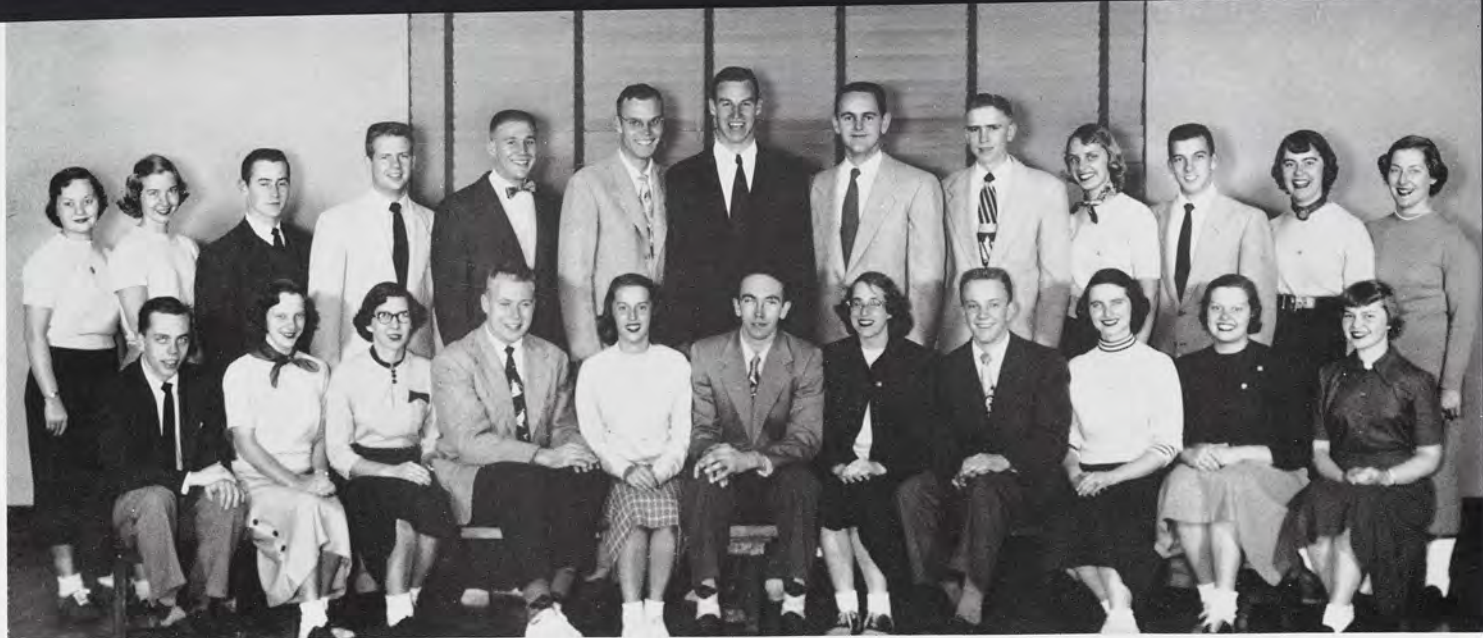

Studio Theater

The Studio Theater of Michigan State College is composed of a group of students interested in dramatics. Any student is eligible for membership, except members of Theta Alpha Phi, dramatics honorary.

Each term it presents a series of one-act plays, or scenes from famous dramatic productions, as well as one three-act play. Two of these major productions were "Miss Julia", and "Playboy of the Western World".

First Row—Lynn M. Carter, Evelyn H. Darby, Patricia A. M. Davies, Suzanne J. Sullivan and Mary A. Langius. Second Row—Dorothy J. Hlavac, Bennie R. Warden, Fred K. Hoffman, Laurence J. Morrison and Peggy H. Patterson.

Sailing Club

Participation in various regattas highlights the activities of the Michigan State Sailing club. Organized on campus in 1946 to provide off-season sailing facilities for students, the club is affiliated with the Midwest Collegiate Sailing Association.

During the fall season members attended a regatta sponsored by Wayne University, and also one at Bowling Green. It held an invitational regatta at Lake Lansing. It also traveled to Northwestern for a 12 school meet. Winter term the Sailing club played host to the Midwest Collegiate Sailing Association's annual convention, which brought members from schools throughout the district.

Seagrave, Robert A. Sack, Joan L. Mason, Robert D. Akred, Barbara J. Kinsman and Ruth A. Olson.

Society of Automotive Engineers

The society of Automotive Engineers is a nationally known group of both students and men in the automotive profession. The student group at Michigan State College draws members from the mechanical engineering department as well as business administration majors interested in the automobile business.

The club purpose is to keep abreast of new happenings in the automotive industry, including the diesel and aircraft fields. New manufacturing, research and testing developments are discussed at the club sessions.

This spring student and professional S.A.E. members of the Mid-Michigan section met at MSC for their annual conference. The MSC chapter provided a program of events for the visitors.

First Row—Beverly I. Burns, Virginia H. Rogers, Donald S. Vest, Dorothy Clark, Dorothy Zietz, Barbara A. Stacy, Pauline L. Stienmetz, Carolyn L. Loose and Ruth B. Shefrin. Second Row—Margaret A. Bennett, Vera Grunman, Shirley L. Hoffman, Mary Lou Logan, Henry C. Kursik, Robert S. MacKinnon, Jay M. Breen, Jan. C. Braden, Martha J. Atkins, Lois C. Fisher and Dorothy M. Wright.

Social Work Club

Michigan State's Social Work club is composed of a group of junior and senior social service majors. The purpose of the club is to help its members to have a better understanding of their field. Speakers from the field attend club meetings at which they lead informal discussion sessions. The club also helps with several all-college events, such as the career carnival.

Spartan Christian Fellowship

"To know Christ and to make him known" is the motto of the Spartan Christian Fellowship. S.C.F. attempts to carry out this motto with a program of fellowship in Christian living through prayer, Bible study and social activities.

The group at Michigan State is one of 560 located on college campuses throughout the country. The local student center is Bethel Manor.

First Row—Rebekah M. Smith, Nancy A. Barr, Gerry S. Klap, Paul J. DeKoning, Helen P. Schlesinger, Norman R. Piersma, Paul R. Oliver, Nyla G. Western, Earl Erickson, O. Lynda Grady and Phyllis J. Spartan Women's League

Organizing and promoting service projects for the entire campus is the purpose of Spartan Women's League which was founded at Michigan State College in 1931.

On the first day of May each year the group presents a recognition breakfast for Tower Guard members and their newly tapped initiates. Also during spring term, SWL sponsors the Spinster's Spin in conjunction with Mortar Board and Tower Guard.

During the year the group helped at registration, read to blind students, and provided the student-faculty coke hours. In addition it was in charge of the Home Economic department's lectures on such topics as choosing crystal and china patterns.

First Row—Ann Pletzer, Virginia Johnson, pres.; and Nancy Mooney. Second Row—Betty McGlone, Jan Weinheimer, Diane Bookee and Nancy Brown.

Savage, Reta G. Staebler, Betsy C. Jones and Betty A. Ex.

Women's Glee Club

The Women's Glee Club, organized each fall term by audition, consists of approximately sixty-five members. This year under the directorship of Miss Ethel Armeling, several appearances have been presented. Among these were a radio broadcast of Christmas carols over WKAR, a group of carols sung at the Union Building, a program presented at the Boy's Vocational School and a recital at a Vesper Service at the People's Church. Concluding the year's presentations was the annual formal concert held Spring term in the Music Auditorium followed by a reception and refreshments for the parents and the friends of the Glee Club members.

The Women's Glee Club offers an opportunity for any MSC woman interested in music, to increase her musical appreciation, to learn more about music and to participate in the club's public appearances. There is not only a blending of voices in this group but also a harmony of interests throughout the fine spirit of friendliness and cooperation that prevails.

Two x Fours

Since its founding at MSC in 1947, the Light Construction and Lumber Merchandising club has expanded from a handful of interested students to 40 active members. Better known as the "Two x Fours," the club meets to introduce the students to business men, refer them to available job opportunities, and to help them become better acquainted with fellow-students.

Activities consist of an annual term party such as a hayride, dance or picnic. Last year it worked on displays for the home builder's conventions in Chicago and Grand Rapids, besides participating in Ag Field Day and the Land Parade on campus.

Y. W. C. A.

The purpose of the YWCA is to develop the individual girl for more creative living. Through educational, recreational and service projects, the member has an opportunity to apply the principals of her faith in everyday living, and by this application to grow in awareness of her individual significance as a member of society.

The annual program of the YWCA consists of a highly successful freshman camp, a joint project with the YMCA, service projects in the community, work with international students, a Christmas children's party, a Mother's Day breakfast and recreational activities.

The home of the YWCA is a center of friendliness for woman students. Membership is open to any woman student. It is a non-denominational, inter-racial and inter-cultural organization.

First Row—Rowland C. Romick, John L. Buxton, Stephen W. Osborn, Johnnye W. King, Lester L. Dobyns, David B. Hosie, Richards A. Wild, Burl Romick and Culver S. Bailey. Second Row—Paul W. Y. M. C. A.

The College Christian Union was organized at MSC in 1871 and in 1881 gave way to the Young Men's Christian Association. Since that time, the organization has grown steadily in both membership and activities. It is, primarily, a fellowship of students and faculty men united for the purpose of developing Christian personality and building a Christian society.

The "Y" program is divided into four areas: Personal Life, which is concerned with problems of adjustment in personal and social life, religious interest groups, social and recreational events, and personal counseling; Campus Life which includes leadership training, freshmen orientation, and the Spartan Forum—a weekly radio program planned and conducted by students; National and World Understanding which sponsors coffee hours for American and International students, the effective citizenship committee, and intercollegiate conferences; and Community Service.

Membership is open to all men who are in sympathy with aims of the Association and does not imply the holding of any prescribed set of religious convictions.

MILITARY SCIENCE AND AIR SCIENCE ...

In this year of the Korean War and possible threat of an all out war in the daily offing, the Military department of MSC stepped up its programs in both the Army and Air Force divisions.

As the year progressed, the cadets gradually began to see the important role that they as future officers in the Army and Air Force would have to fulfill.

ROTC

With the formation of a separate Air Force ROTC detachment, the Reserve Officers Training program has taken on a new look that former military science students would not recognize today.

Although only five years old on campus, the Air Force detachment has grown continually until it numbers 1637 cadets divided into four air groups. As in past years, the Army ROTC, with a total of 2320 cadets, is divided into eight battalions. Each battalion represents a branch of the army that can be studied in the military program.

Both the Air Force groups and the Army battalions were staffed by cadet officers, and for the first time the cadets actually operated their commands in the same manner as comparable military units.

Due to the Army and Air Force becoming separate units, President Hannah appointed Colonel Dorsey R. Rodney, U. S. Army Retired, as Coordinator of Military Affairs, thus enabling matters pertaining to both ROTC programs to be more easily administered.

TRADITIONS

In the background, Air Force cadet Frank Hodges is assisted by Nancy Vogelsang in pinning on his cadet lieutenant pips. Bottom: Newly commissioned Second Lieutenant Richard Meyer completes a tradition by giving to Master Sergeant William Frost a dollar for the first salute he received.

Standing Operating Procedure

Jack DeBoer, Captain of Scabbard and Blade's Officers' Drill Team, counts the cadence as the team executes the Marching Manual. The Officers' Drill Team appeared in the Armed Forces Day parade and numerous other military functions throughout the year.

COLONEL CLARENCE C. CLENDENEN
Professor of Military Science and Tactics

Colonel Clendenen came to head the department this year with thirty-two years of active military duty behind him. He was commissioned as a Cavalry Lieutenant at West Point in 1920 and except for four years' duty with the Inspector General's Department he has always served with the Cavalry, or Armor as it is known today.

During the occupation of Toyko he directed the setting up and operation of military courts to try civilians for offenses committed against occupational law. For his efforts and success at this work the Army awarded him the Oak Leaf Cluster.

AIR SCIENCE AND TACTICS

COLONEL GRAEME S. BOND
Professor of Air Science and Tactics

Colonel Bond, former Deputy Director of Statistical Services for the USAF, is the third person to head the Air ROTC program since its formation in 1946 at MSC.

A veteran of twenty-one years, Colonel Bond has more than 3,000 flying hours with Air Force units from the Atlantic seaboard to the Japanese mainland. He received his wings at Kelly Field in 1931 after graduating from the University of Illinois.

Air Force Administration and Logistics

With major technical developments sweeping the Air Force necessitating greater control of personnel and supplies, the administration and logistical officer must know the best methods that are available. Consequently administration and logistics cadets concentrate on such subjects as military administration, military law and boards, military teaching methods, Air Force management and career development.

Every cadet commissioned in the Air Force must not only know the intricate administrative structure, but he must also be able to teach enlisted men under his command how to use the multitude of forms and logistical data correctly.

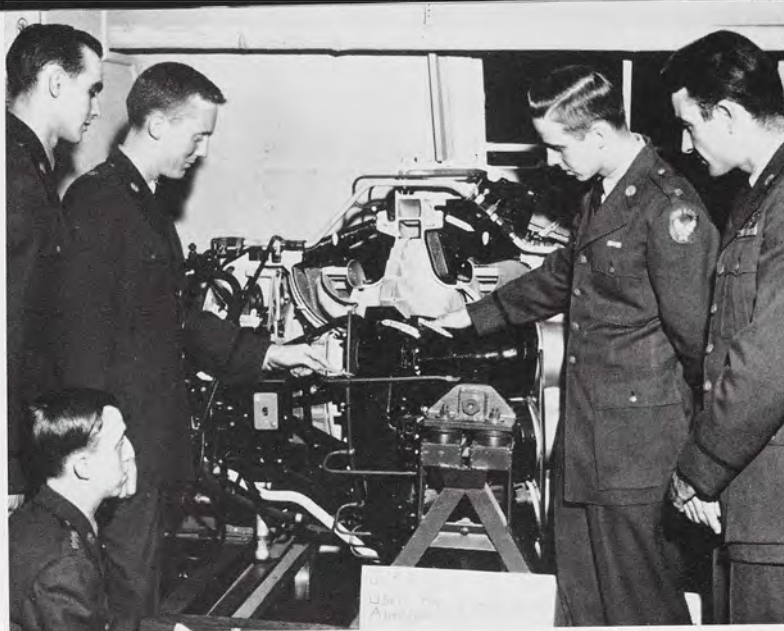

Cadets Pete Sackett, James Webb, Kenneth Griffith and Harry Griffith ponder over a logistical form on which they intend to list the equipment used by an Air Force Bomber Wing.

Air Force Maintenance and Engineering

Maintenance and Engineering cadets study the mechanical and engineering features common to all aircraft. A wide variety of knowledge must be possessed by the future maintenance officer because he will be expected to supervise the maintenance and be able to inspect military aircraft to insure the safety of planes in flight.

This Air Force option particularly appeals to engineering students because electrical, mechanical, civil and chemical engineers all have an important function with the Maintenance and Engineering sections of the USAF.

To develop a thorough knowledge of jet engines, cadets George Carr (kneeling), Will Sweeney, Dan Guy, Bob Schultz and Gene Mercer frequently refer to this cutout model of jet engine J-33.

Air Force Cadet Wing Staff

The cadets of the Air ROTC program operated a cadet wing just as it would have functioned in the USAF, and designated it the 18th Air Force ROTC Wing. Kenneth Griffith was appointed Cadet Colonel and assigned as Wing commander by Colonel Bond.

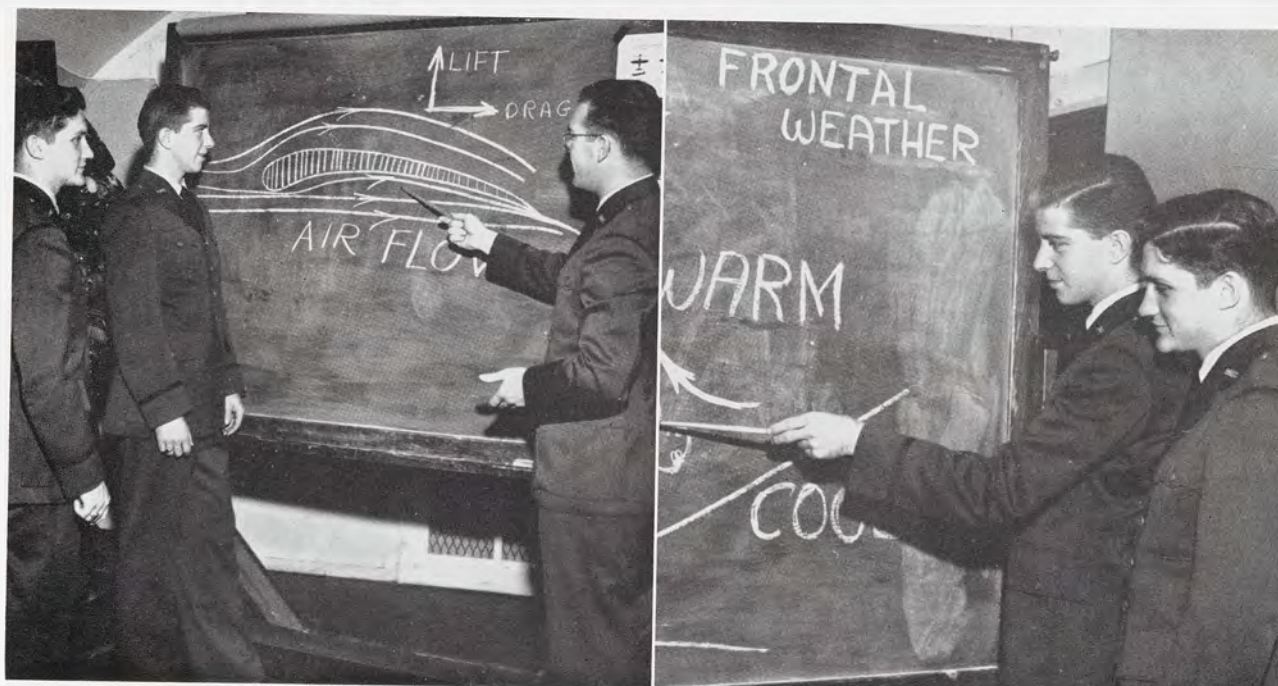

Cadet Colonel Griffith and his staff functioned with the wing divided into four groups and all affairs pertaining to Air Force cadets were handled through the Wing Headquarters. Through the operation of the Wing and the four groups, the cadet officers obtained valuable experience in actual staff functions.

Air Force General Technical and Flight Operations

The General Technical and Flight Operations options were newly introduced to Air Force cadets this year. The general technical option introduces the student to primary technical fields and related equipment used in the Air Force.

The new flight operations option is designed as a complete pre-flight program to prepare students for flying schools of the Air Force. In order to qualify for study in this option, cadets must be physically fit for flying duty and must agree to enter flight training upon graduation from college.

FIELD ARTILLERY

From the cast iron cannons by Paul Revere to the radar-controlled weapons of today, the Field Artillery has always been ready to give fire support to the doughboy. When an infantry company in combat is held up by a strong enemy position, the company commander can radio the artillery and within minutes a prearranged concentration of fire will either annihilate the enemy or cause him to disperse while our forces advance.

To be better able to give such support and to answer enemy artillery by counter-battery fire, field artillery cadets study supply, administration, communication, motors, gunnery, artillery weapons and many related fields. The instructors of these cadets believe that when a field artillery cadet receives his commission, he is able to step into any job in the field artillery battery and handle it efficiently.

Cadets Gerald McClellan, Robert Scheffler and Clarke Scholes listen and observe attentively as Captain Karnes explains the functioning of the 105mm howitzer.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT ARTILLERY

Anti-aircraft artillery cadets learn that their branch is primarily charged with destroying enemy aircraft that penetrate our air defenses and seek to bomb and strafe our installations.

Although the 90 and 40 mm guns were designed primarily for firing at aircraft, many instances have occurred in the Korean War where these weapons were used as direct fire weapons in support of ground troops. This secondary role of the anti-aircraft artillery has become increasingly important. The quad fifties, pictured below, have been particularly effective as ground weapons against the mass charges used by the Chinese Reds.

Atop the M-55, multiple 50 caliber machine gun mount, cadets Bruce Lavengood, Glen Koehn, George Holkup and Don Kerr perform a practical exercise.

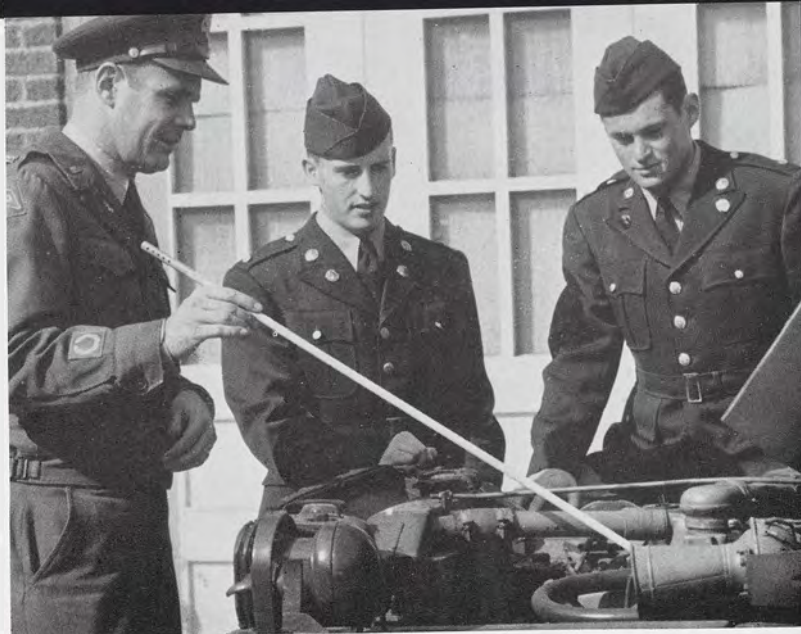

ORDNANCE

From the early flintlock, muzzle-loading muskets to new submachine guns that shoot around corners, Ordnance officers have helped develop, supply and maintain the weapons of war.

Since Ordnance officers must maintain combat equipment ranging from watches to tanks, cadet instruction is set up to acquaint the student with the design, production, and supply problems of Ordnance material. Frequent trips to the Detroit Arsenal to observe actual military production help round out the instruction received by the cadets in classrooms.

During the six week summer camp session at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland, Ordnance cadets observed new tanks, high velocity machine-guns and other important new developments being tested by the Ordnance Corps.

Captain Morton points out to Cadets John Muir and Max Josowitz the essential points to check when troubleshooting on an Army jeep.

Major George Major explains the suspension system of an M-24 light tank to a group of Armor cadets, placing particular emphasis on the damage that a land mine could do to the tracks.

ARMOR

Increased emphasis on tank training brought on by the type of fighting in Korea, which stressed the tank-infantry-artillery concept of battle, has caused armor instruction to be geared to a new high. It has not yet reached the peak of World War II, but it is making new advances in its respective field which are unsurpassed by any other branch.

To make tankers tougher and ready them for the rigors of combat, Armor cadets obtained first-hand experience in tactical problems while attending summer camp at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Highlighting the year socially was the formation of an Armored Club, developed to promote general interests existing between Armor juniors and seniors.

MILITARY POLICE

During the past year Military Police cadets were concerned with the study of military justice procedures, Articles of War, Manual for Courts-Martial, crime preventive and corrective measures.

Future law students are easily attracted to this branch of the army, because it offers excellent practical experience in both military and civil law.

Summer camp at Camp Gordon, Georgia taught the Military Police cadets use of the M-1 rifle, carbine, bazooka and submachine guns. Hot weather, early rising and a fast moving training program helped prepare the cadets for future life as Military Police officers.

Zimmerman, James H. Kent, Arthur D. Cronin, James D. Ballard, Richard A. Hempsted, Robert L. Williams, II, Thomas E. Walsh, Clifford L. Raymer and Lorne W. McDougall.

QUARTERMASTER

Although given the primary mission of supply, many a Quartermaster detachment has had to fight through an ambush or rush supplies through enemy lines to reach cut-off units. Consequently, Quartermaster cadets not only receive extensive training in property accountability and responsibility, but they also must learn infantry tactics and the use of small arm weapons.

The Quartermaster Corps employs experts in accounting, marketing, storage, procurement, distribution, food handling, textiles and many more specialized fields. A Quartermaster cadet can thus face military life with a broad outlook, realizing the wide variety of experience to be gained can someday be used in a civilian occupation.

Cadets Carl Johnson, Harley Hecksel, Lorne McDougall and Jack Brennan study a new poster put out by the Quartermaster Corps to encourage young men to see the advantages of a QM career.

SIGNAL

The Signal Corps has given modern military leaders such aids as radar, infra-red ray search and photographic equipment, long range weather forecasting instruments, and many electronic control devices used in this atomic era.

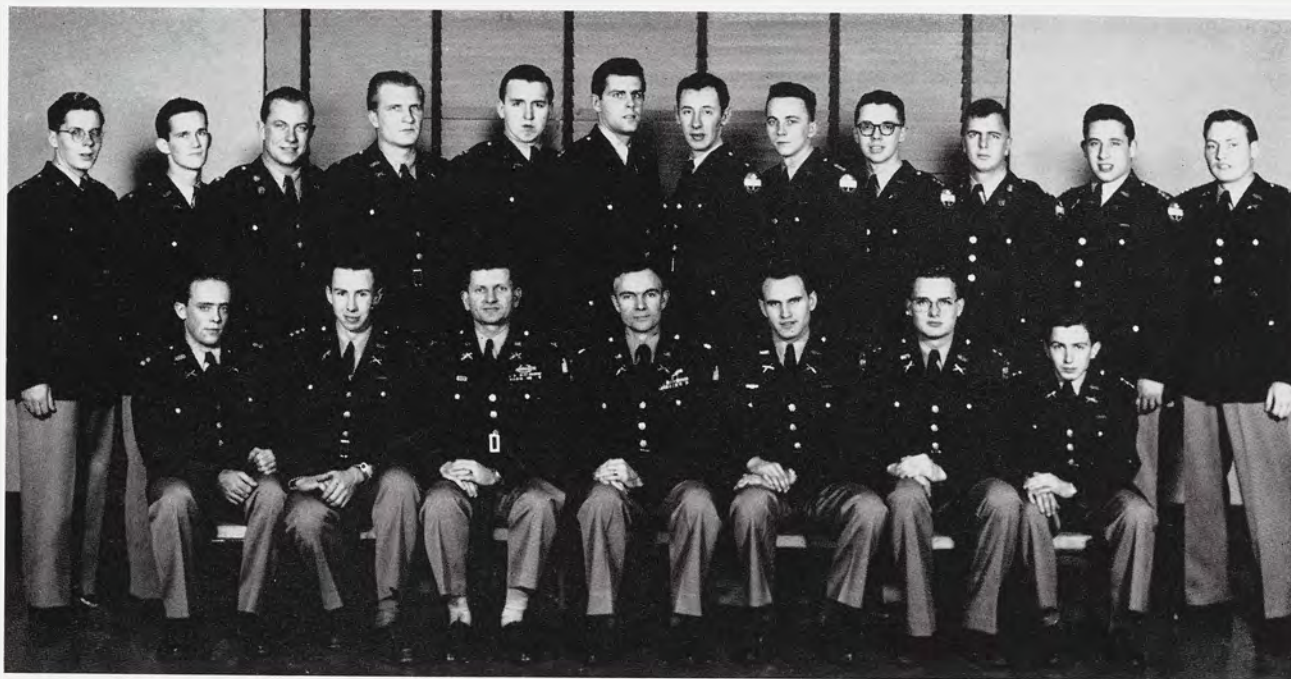

The future Signal Corps officer takes courses in radio theory and operation, signal center procedures, field wire communications fundamentals, communication security, cryptography and photography. A maximum amount of time is spent on practical work with up-to-date signal equipment available to Signal cadets in the MSC program.

INFANTRY

Infantry, the principle combat arm, can fight anywhere—seize ground and hold it—make use of the principle of fire and movement—and team up with tanks as a close-knit fighting unit.

Realizing this, Infantry cadets take a great deal of interest in the study of tactics and weapons. Their study of tactics includes squad, platoon and company level exercises. Weapons instruction includes the M-1 rifle, carbine, recoilless rifles, bazookas, mortars, automatic rifle, pistol, machine guns and the several types of grenades.

These future Infantry officers will someday lead units carrying the fight to the enemy on the ground.

Lieutenant Beeman explains the functioning of the sight of a 75mm recoilless rifle to cadets Gerald Mack, Albert Summers and Alfred Levine. M/Sgt. Joe Cestkowski assists Lt. Beeman by pointing out and manipulating the sight.

With machine gun bullets whizzing past just 30 inches from the ground, Michigan State cadets attending summer camp at Camp McCoy, Wisconsin, keep as close to the earth as possible.

SUMMER CAMP

Reveilles, mess calls, retreats, parades, inspections, drills, bivouac, hikes and lectures in the hot sun were all in the routine of Michigan State cadets attending summer camps throughout the United States.

Days spent on the ranges firing for record, hours spent attending lectures, the many field problems and the restful off-duty hours will long be remembered by the cadets of all branches.

CORPS SPONSORS

Mary Jane Allan
Honorary Colonel for the Air Force

The first Honorary Cadet Colonel Staff was picked in 1920, but it wasn't until this year that two honorary colonels and twelve corps sponsors received the review at the weekly spring parades.

Heading the Army sponsors as Honorary Colonel was Lois Fisher and elected as Honorary Colonel for the Air Force was Mary Jane Allan.

The most important function of the Corps Sponsors is to select from the reviewing stand during the spring parades the outstanding battalion. Winning battalions are awarded a ribbon which they keep until the Corps Sponsors pass judgment the following week.

Corps Sponsors received their honorary positions at the Coronation Ball and were presented with rose bouquets from their respective branches. SPARTAN GUARD

The Spartan Guard is comprised of basic ROTC cadets who have proven outstanding military scholars and who are interested in advancing their military knowledge in leadership and drill. The Guard is distinguished by the green and white fougerres on their shoulders, white spats, gloves and slings on their rifles.

During fall term the Spartan Guard was guard of honor at the Coronation Ball. Winter term the Guard practices every week for its spring activities which include being Color Guard at the spring parades, May Holland Tulip Festival parade, and Guard of Honor at graduation ceremonies.

Coached by Captain Morton, the Spartan Guard executes part of the ceremony that it performed at the Coronation Ball.

Michigan State athletic teams can well be proud of the records they wrote into the record books in the 1951-52 season. The combined spring sports of '51 and the fall and winter sports of '51 and '52 saw 150 dual meets or games played by Spartan teams. This does not include Conference playoffs or tournament competition. Of these 150 encounters, the MSC teams won 102, lost 44, and tied 4 for an outstanding .698 mark.

Football fever reached its peak on the MSC campus the week of the Notre Dame game. Shown here is the huge pep rally held the night before the big game.

Football Coach "Biggie" Munn receives the Masters Trophy from Idus Burgess representing Masonic Lodge 66. Looking on are Athletic Director Ralph Young and Chicago Tribune Sports Writer Wilfred Smith.

Spartans Make Impressive Big Ten Entry

Michigan State's first complete year in the Western Conference was a great one, and the various teams' accomplishments exceeded the Spartans' highest hopes. Two Big Ten championships were won, one by the tennis team and the other by the cross country team.

Four Spartan squads were runners-up in Conference competition. Of these four, the track, swimming, fencing and gymnastics teams, all but the swimmers were edged out by slim margins. The swimming squad was outdistanced by the great Ohio State team which was probably the finest amateur squad ever to compete for any college or university.

Next in line, in terms of Conference successes, were the wrestlers, placing third. They were followed by the basketball squad in fifth place, the golfers in sixth, and the baseball team in seventh place in the conference standings.

The football team, although ineligible to take part in Big Ten football officially until 1953, were undefeated in 1951, and chalked up victories over three Conference foes. The Michigan legislature passed a joint resolution naming the Spartans the best football team in the nation, and Head Coach "Biggie" Munn the country's outstanding coach.

There are no Conference races in hockey or boxing, although the mitt squad continued to prove themselves as one of the finest teams in the nation and the hockey team showed commendable improvement in its third year as a varsity sport.

The line formed early for tickets to the Notre Dame football game. These hardy souls spent the night on the steps of Jenison fieldhouse in hopes of getting choice seats.

Few people realize the tremendous amount of work that goes into making a successful football team. Line Coach "Duffy" Daugherty is shown here sending his linemen through blocking drills in spring practice.

MSC COACHES

Tennis and hockey had new head coaches while the football staff had another reshuffle in this year's athletic staff changes.

Coach Amo Bessone took over the hockey reins from Harold Paulson and turned in a commendable job as a first year man. Lured from turning out winning combinations at nearby Michigan Tech, the youthful mentor became an immediate hit with both fans and players alike.

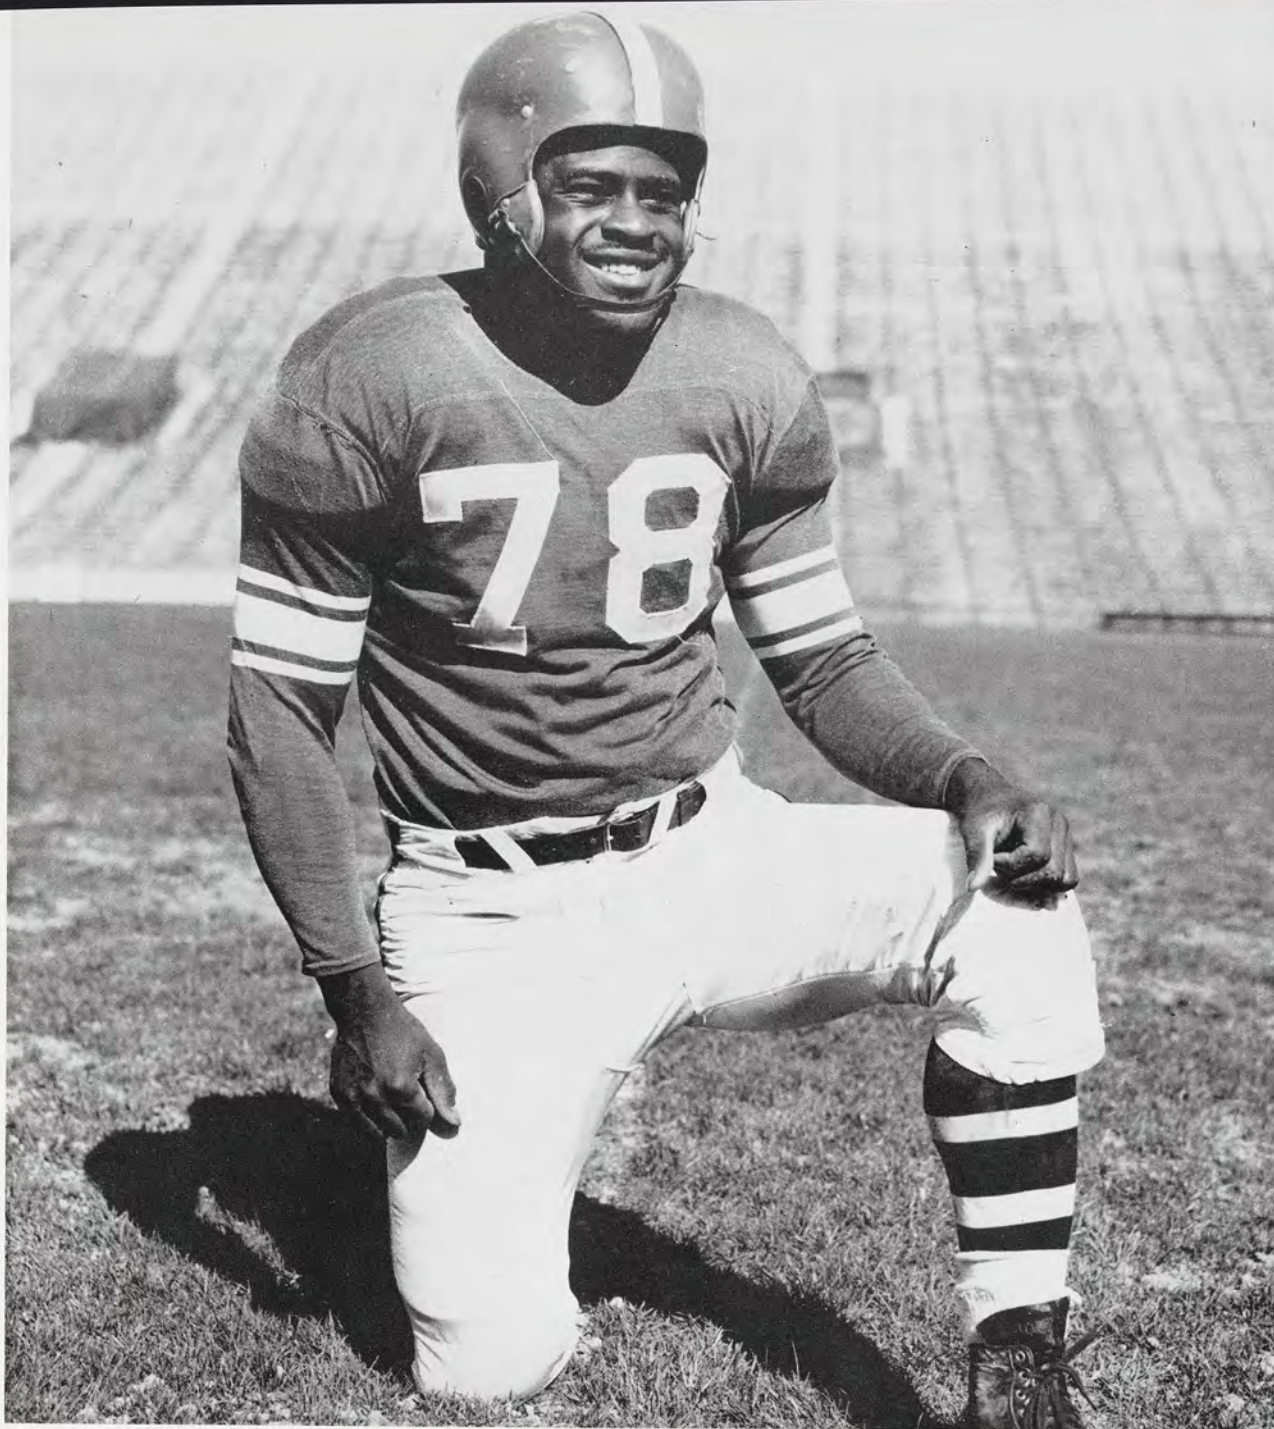

Another change saw the defending Big Ten tennis champs get a five-year member of State's physical education staff as head man in John Friedrich. Coach Frank Beeman was recalled in the army last year and turned over the title-heading squad to Tom Martin who led the netters to State's first conference crown. Friedrich will now guide the squad until Beeman can return.

On the losing side of the ledger, State's popular backfield coach, Lowell (Red) Dawson, took over as head coach at Pittsburgh. Steve Sebo moved up from freshman coach to fill the vacancy. Dan Devine, Sebo's assistant, was named head frosh coach and Don Mason, All-American guard for the Spartans in '49 was added to Devine's staff.

Dawson's 19 years of experience in both the professional and collegiate ranks was a big factor in the Spartan's undefeated season this year. However, Sebo, who was a jack-of-all-trades on Biggie Munn's staff, took over this spring and promises to be one of State's better backfield coaches in the future.

Amo Bessone, hockey coach, gives a few pointers to Weldy Olson and Hal Passerini.

Don Coleman — All-American

"The player this team could least afford to lose is Don Coleman," said an informed observer of Michigan State football before the season opened.

Coleman's amazing play throughout the season as an offensive tackle proved the speaker a prophet of distinction. The 180-pound Flint speedster was a unanimous All-American on everyone's list and starred in two post-season bowl games.

His play earned him the most valuable player award from his teammates.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams presents Don Coleman with the Governor's award, given annually to the team's most valuable player.

Football Team Best in M.S.C. History

"The best team in Michigan State history."

This is what all the experts said of the 1951 powerhouse Spartan football squad that rolled over eight of the nation's top teams to extend State's win streak to 15 straight.

Coach "Biggie" Munn and Al Dorow hold a council of strategy during the OSU-MSC game.

State started the season with an unimpressive 6-0 decision over Oregon State . . . McAuliffe made the TD and Ellis starred from the safety slot . . . "We've got a long way to go before we're a football team," stated Coach "Biggie" Munn.

Against Michigan, the Spartans displayed a smothering defense to hold the Wolverines scoreless while the offense powered to 25 points . . . It was then that the nation took note of the East Lansing gridders. Michigan was held to a minus 23 yards rushing.

The "Storybook Finish" at Ohio State saw MSC snatch a 24-20 win in what Munn termed, "One of the greatest games of all times" . . . Yewcie flipped a "trans-continental" aerial to Dorow for the touchdown that averted a near-upset . . . During the OSU game State's highly touted "pony backfield" stepped into the spotlight.

The peak of gridiron perfection was achieved as Michigan State rolled over Notre Dame, 35-0 . . . State soared into the number one grid spot in the nation . . . Munn and the team as a whole were lauded across the country for their electrifying win over the completely out-classed Irish.

An inspired Indiana eleven nearly had the upset of the year but MSC came through with a 30-26 victory over the Hoosiers.

The Spartans captured their 15th consecutive victory in trouncing Colorado, 45-7, in the season finale. It was State's first undefeated season since 1913. The win streak also tied the school's longest, set during the 1912-14 era.

The Green and White's defense held the Buffaloes to a minus 57 yards.

Capt. Bob Carey, hampered by injuries all season, topped his collegiate career by scoring two touchdowns and kicking three points-after-touchdown for a 15-point total while playing one of his best games for State.

Junior Varsity football, absent from Michigan State since 1948, was resumed in 1951, with Head Coach Dan Devine's young Spartans winning three of four games.

Assisted by Hal Vogler and Tommy Kaulukukui, Devine's squad split a pair of encounters with the Michigan JV's and registered a win over Ohio State's Junior Varsity. In the season opener, MSC romped over Selfridge Field, 40-0.

The first Wolverine contest saw State grab a 20-7 victory, while in the return battle, Michigan eked out a 7-6 verdict. A field goal in the last minute of play enabled the Spartans to down the Buckeyes, 16-14.

Scoring punch was provided by halfbacks Bert Zager, Bernie Raterink, and John Matsock along with fullback Vic Postula. Al Fracassa and Jerry Luzader shared the signal-calling, while Randy Schrecengost sparked the offensive line. Leading the defensive unit were Morley Murphy and Jack Edwards.

Bob Carey—Nine Letter Winner

A nine-letter man in the annals of modern collegiate sports is a rare bird indeed, but one who did accomplish this feat is Robert W. Carey.

Gaining All-American recognition in two sports and coming close in another, Big Bob has carved a permanent place in State's history as one of the all-around sport greats.

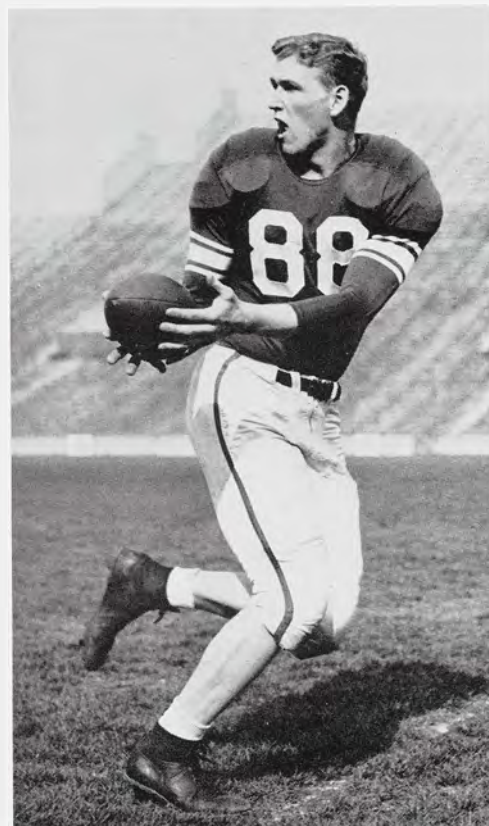

As a sophomore, Bob had the second best season ever experienced by a Mid-Western end in terms of yardage gained in pass receiving. He caught 26 passes for 523 yards and eight touchdowns.

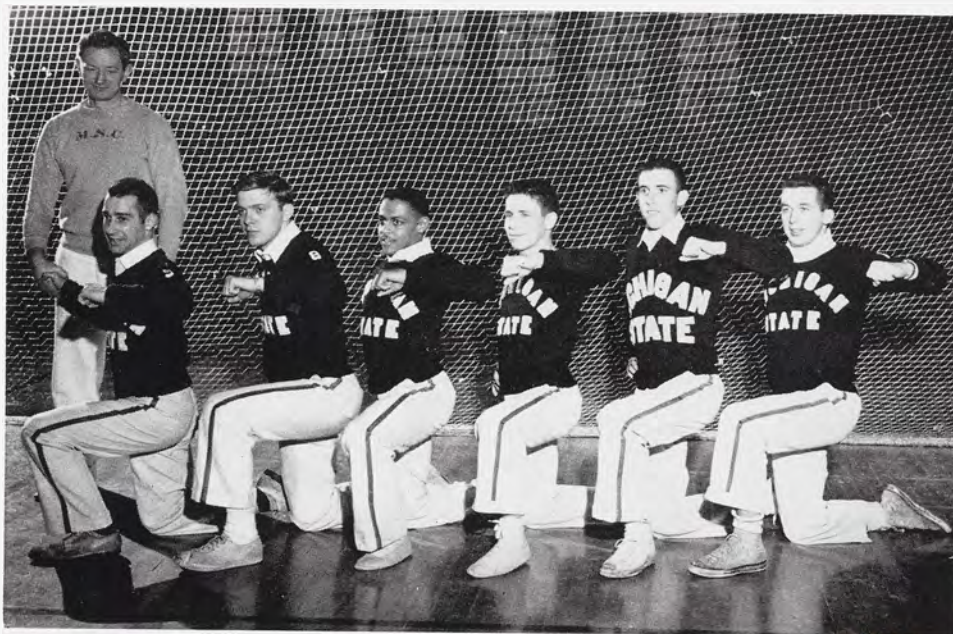

The Charlevoix flash was named to a few All-American teams in his sophomore year and made the majority of "dream teams" in his senior year when he captained the undefeated Spartan eleven.

In basketball, Bob nailed down a first string berth all three years. As a sophomore, he was third in team scoring with 175 points.

A top Olympic candidate in track, Bob is the defending Big Ten outdoor shot put champ and was rated third in the nation as a junior by virtue of his third place finish in the NCAA.

Bob's three-year stand for the Spartans has earned him the title as one of State's greatest all-around athletes.

Behind the Scenes...

Few people realize the tremendous behind the scenes work that goes on before and after every athletic contest. The stands must be painted and repaired, the grounds cleaned, the playing fields kept in tip-top condition, the basketball court must be varnished and the ice rink resurfaced.

Also, a tremendous amount of publicity must be sent to newspapers throughout the country to keep MSC fans aware of what is happening to the Spartan teams. In addition to publicity, Fred Stabley, sports publicity director for the college, must provide press box space and facilities for the host of reporters and photographers drawn to the campus to cover some of the nation's outstanding athletic events.

At the Notre Dame football game alone, nearly 500 sports writers were seated in the beautiful Macklin Field press box.

Bob Carey, towering Spartan center, goes up for a two-pointer against Notre Dame. Waiting for a rebound is MSC's Bill Ecstrom, number 12.

Best Record in Ten Years for Cagers

Capt. Sonny Means

Playing its second year under Coach Pete Newell, Michigan State's basketball quintet racked up the most successful season in ten years, compiling a winning 13-9 record. Only six other Spartan teams have won more games than the 1951-52 squad.

In a pre-season poll, the Spartan cagers were doomed to a seventh place conference finish and tagged as one of the teams least likely to win the title. However State fooled the experts and finished in the first division, tying Ohio State for fifth place with a 6-8 conference record in their second year of Big Ten competition.

Although standing only 5' 11", forward Bill Bower, the Spartan's brilliant rebounder, walked off with both "most valuable player" awards, honored by both his teammates and press and radio reporters covering the games.

The team's field general, Clarence "Sonny" Means and long-tom expert Gordie Stauffer were elected co-captains by their teammates. The scoring sensation of the year, however, turned out to be sophomore Keith Stackhouse who racked up a total of 236 points on 84 field goals and 68 free throws for one of the best first year averages compiled. His performance was the best since Bob Brannum established the varsity scoring record with 344 points in 1947-48 while competing in two more games.

Injuries hampered the squad throughout the season, especially after State hit the rough Big Ten stretch. The Spartans started out in grand style winning seven straight before bowing to Iowa by one point. Displaying plenty of fight and hustle, Newell's control type play and a pressing defense made up for the height the Spartans lacked. Center Bob Carey was a big factor in State's record with his sparkling backboard play.

Senior forward Bill Bower, voted the team's outstanding player by sports writers covering the MSC basketball team, scores a basket against Ohio State.

He replaced center DeNeal Hartman, who was lost for two months on an injury, after the football season and nailed down the starting post the rest of the way.

Also hampered by injuries were the Spartan's crowd-pleasing dribbler deluxe, Rickey Ayala, who was out the last eight games and center Hugh MacMaster.

Means, Stackhouse and guard Dick Wesling were also out for shorter periods.

Leif Carlson is all alone as he drives in to score against the University of Michigan.

Baseball Team Wins 17, Loses 9

In its twenty-sixth year under Coach John Kobs, the Michigan State baseball team posted another winning season.

The Spartans won five out of seven games on their Southern tour. They then blasted Wayne 25-1 in the regular season opener, with the highest total of runs since 1922. Notre Dame and Wayne again were beaten before Western Michigan snapped State's win streak, 12-5.

In their first Big Ten series, State won 8-5 and 12-9 over Iowa. Notre Dame fell, but Michigan won 15-1. Michigan State then knocked over Western Michigan, Michigan Normal and Indiana, but lost a second tilt with the Hoosiers.

Double losses to Minnesota and Ohio State, and a revenge last inning victory over Michigan gave State a final four won-six lost Big Ten record for seventh place.

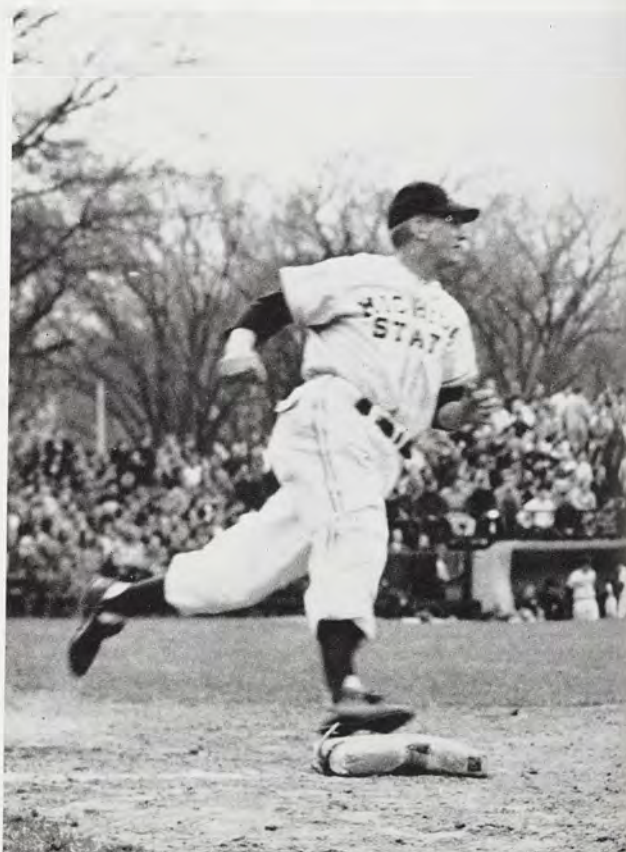

A double win over Detroit gave the Spartan's an overall 17-9 mark.

Sophomore sensation Darrell Lindley led the team with a .418 batting average, the highest average at MSC since 1933. Capt. Vince Magi also set a record by hitting safely in 21 straight games.

Harriers Win Conference Crown

Maintaining their position as a power in cross country competition, Coach Karl Schlademan's harrier squad highlighted the 1951 season by annexing the school's first Big Ten title in the sport.

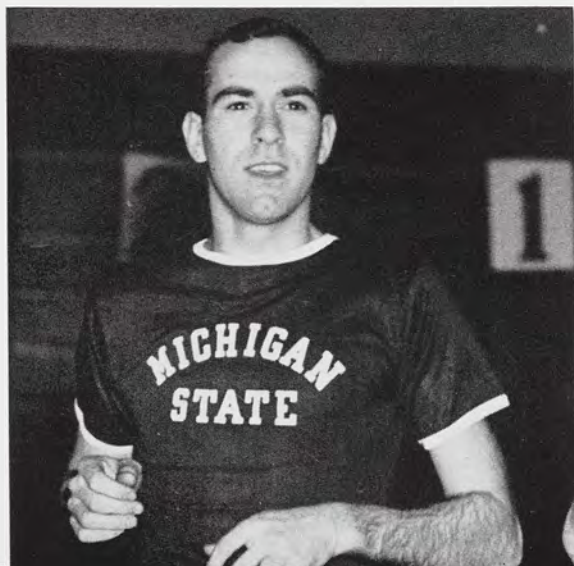

The Spartans also turned in creditable performances in two other important meets, finishing fifth in the NCAA, and taking fourth in the IC4A run.

Contributing to State's 49 point total in the Big Ten final were Capt. Jim Kepford, Ron Barr, Jim Arnold, Jerry Zerbe and Dick Jarrett.

State broke even in the dual meet schedule, winning over Notre Dame and Purdue, while losing to Wisconsin and Penn State.

Although they failed to win the first individual spot in any of their meets, the young squad showed excellent team balance.

MSC Second in Outdoor Track

Boasting only a handful of veterans, Coach Karl Schlademan's 1951 track team amazed the sports world last spring by giving heavily favored Illinois a battle all the way for the Big Ten outdoor track title.

The Spartans went into the fracas with a season's record of two losses in three dual clashes with Big Ten competition. The Illini had to come from behind in the last two events to win and give State a surprising runner-up finish.

State opened the season with a 55-77 loss to Indiana. They dropped Ohio State 74-58 as Jesse Thomas ran wild, racking up 15 points on three firsts. Carey became a double winner by taking firsts in the shot put and in the discus.

Michigan took a 84½-42½ decision and Illinois won 72¾-59¼. Thomas set modern track history by taking an unprecedented four first places as he ran to victories in both hurdles events, the broad jump and the 100-yard dash.

Boxers Second in Nation

Although failing to retain their NCAA crown, Michigan State's boxers boasted of one individual champion as they finished second to Wisconsin in the national tourney.

Team Capt. Chuck Spieser rounded out a brilliant college career by copping his second straight 178-pound title, while Dick LaForge was beaten in the 147-pound final as State scored 14 points.

The squad was without the services of Jed Black, defending NCAA titleholder at 147 pounds who was declared ineligible for tournament competition.

In dual meet action, Coach George Makris' team won seven, drew two, and lost only to Gonzaga.

Varsity performers also included Leroy Jeffery, Jim Evans, Herb Odom and Tom Hickey, all freshmen, and Norm Andrie, Leon Hamilton and Alex Tsakiris.

Wrestlers Third in Conference

New talent filled all but one of eight positions on the 1952 Michigan State wrestling squad, as Coach Fendley Collins' crew repeated a third place finish in the Big Ten championship meet.

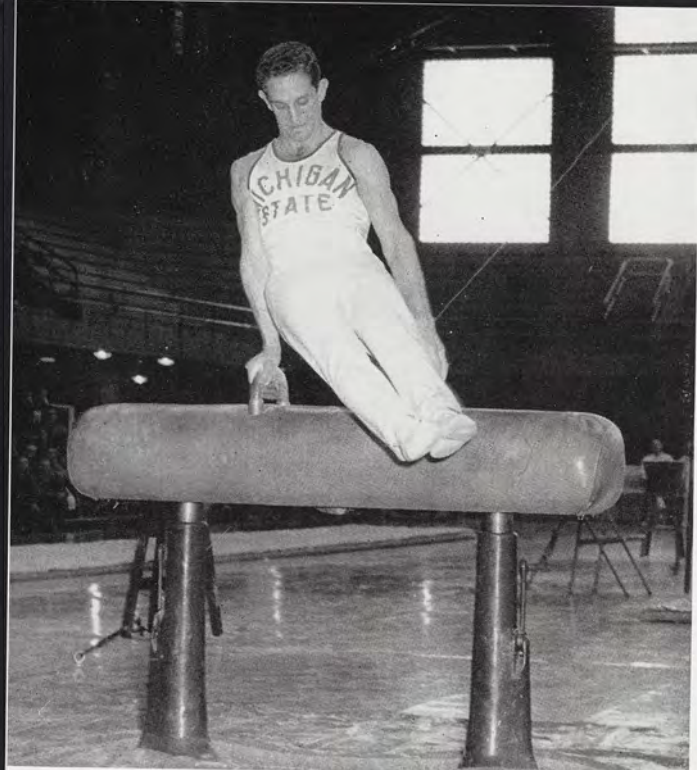

Led by lone returning letterman, Orris Bender, who copped the 167-pound title, State accumulated 19 points in the conference final. Dick Gunner and Bob Hoke were runners-up at 130 and 157 pounds.

During the regular season, the Spartans compiled a record of five wins, two draws, and two losses. The team scored dual meet wins over Pittsburgh, Wisconsin, Purdue, Ohio State, and Northwestern.

Gymnasts' Best Season

Enjoying its most successful season since the sport became a part of the winter program five years ago, Michigan State's gymnastics squad was rated one of the nation's top teams during 1952.

Coach George Szypula's athletes were edged out by Illinois for the second straight year in the Big Ten finals, but had the satisfaction of winning over the Illini in dual competition. State was undefeated in six dual meet starts.

The Spartan squad was built around Capt. Bob Feldmeier, Russ Paul and Carl Rintz. Other dependable performers were Al Hannas, Don Vest and John Walker.

Swimmers Near Top

Again fielding one of the top teams in the nation, Michigan State's swim squad was rated along with Ohio State, Yale and Michigan as tops in the swimming world. The Spartans soundly trounced Michigan in the Big Ten championship race to take runner-up honors behind unbeatable Ohio State. In the NCAA title clash, Michigan reversed the tables and bounced State into fourth place.

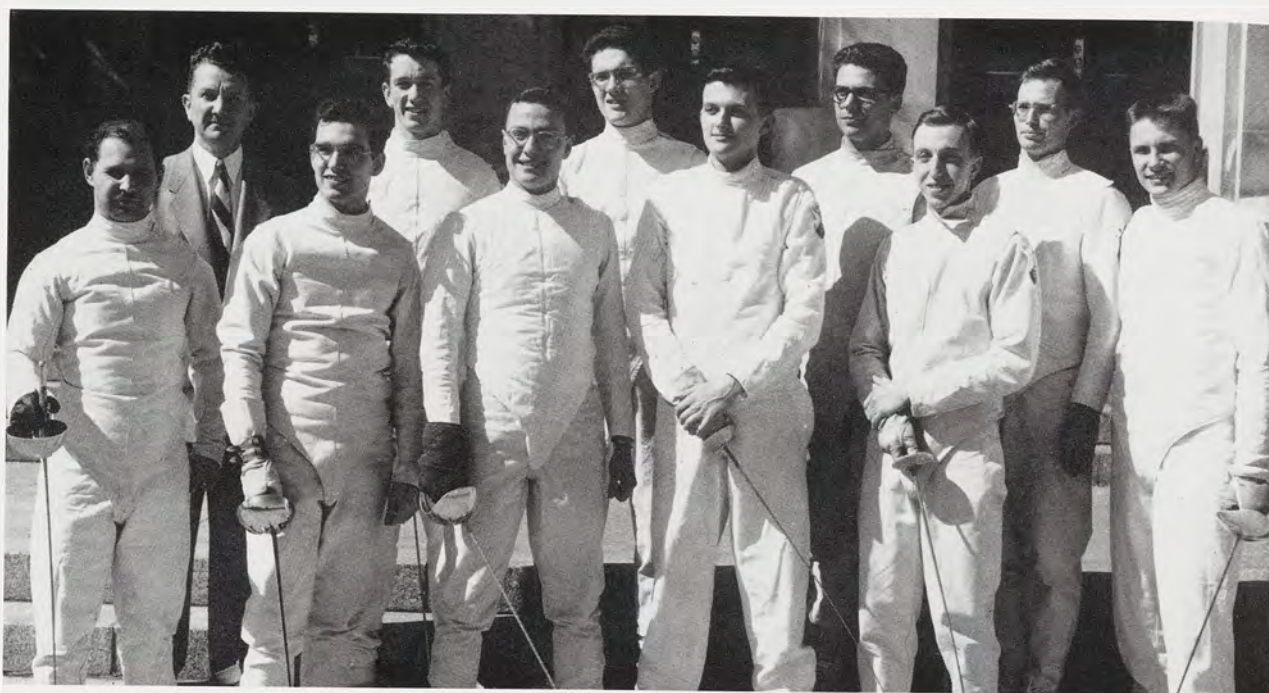

The conference race was held on the Spartan campus, the first time Michigan State played host to the championship since being admitted into the Western Conference.

Top Olympic candidate Clarke Scholes firmly entrenched himself as the nation's sprint king by besting previously unbeaten Dick Cleveland of Ohio State in the conference final. Scholes again edged the Buckeye star in the NCAA 100-yard free style. Cleveland, however, beat Scholes in the shorter 50-yard race.

Another veteran, Bert McLachlan, also proved to be a consistent pointgetter stroking in the 1,500 meter race. He finished second in the Big Ten. Ace breast stroker Bruce Aldrich also took a runner-up spot in the conference race.

They're off to a flying start in the Big Ten back stroke race.

Fencers Boast 8-1 Record

After eight straight victories, the Spartan fencers bowed to a powerful Illinois squad to finish the season with a 8-1 record.

Dick Berry led the State squad in the Big Ten and NCAA tournaments as he took first place in the conference épée event and tied for second in the nationals. In addition, he was named the nation's outstanding college fencer for his technical skill and sportsmanship in the NCAA championships.

Michigan State placed second in the Big Ten meet as both Berry and Fred Freiheit took individual titles. During the regular season Freiheit won 21 sabre bouts while losing only two to become the Spartan's most consistent point-getter.

Leading the State foilists were Ray Totte and Ralph Kalmar. Totte placed eleventh in the NCAA tourney and Kalmar finished fifth in the Big Ten.

Hockey Squad Improves

A young and inexperienced Michigan State ice hockey squad under a new coach showed great potentialities in its first season as members of the Midwest Intercollegiate Hockey League.

Performing under Amo Bessone, the Spartan sextet finished sixth in the new circuit, and compiled an overall season record of seven wins in 19 starts.

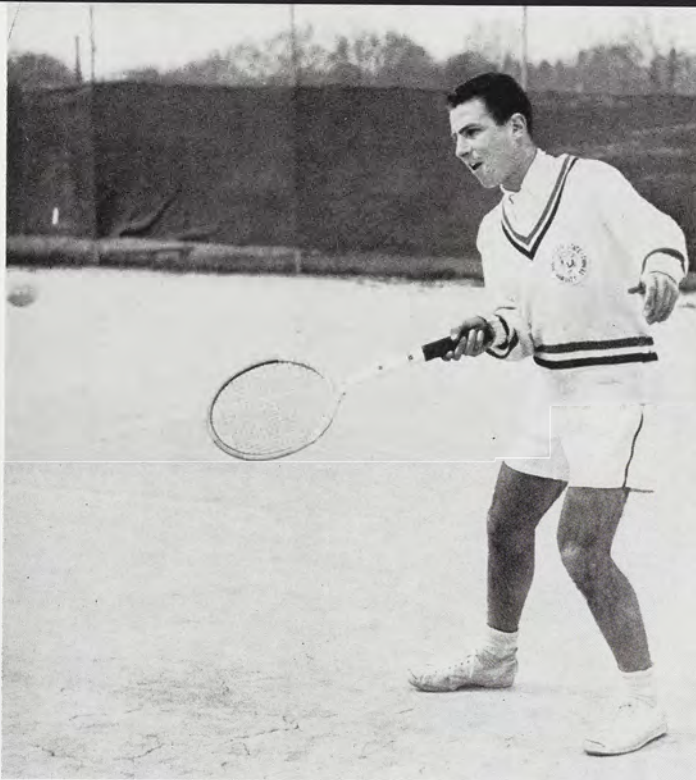

Center John Mayes was the team's top scorer with 29 points followed by Weldon Olson and Bill McCormick. The State defense was led by Dick Lord, John Thomas, Bob Barry and Derio Nicoli.

Del Reid and Gerald Bergin shared the goal-tending duties.

MSC team captain, Len Brose, was a stand-out all year for the Spartans. Besides winning all his singles matches in the number one slot, he also won a Big Ten championship.

Netmen Win Big Ten Title

Wally Kau, Len Brose, Dave Mills, Dick Rieger, Keith Kimble, John Sahratian and Ken Kimble.

A Big Ten championship in their first year of conference competition was the success story of the 1951 Michigan State tennis squad.

Capt. Len Brose took Big Ten singles honors and teamed with John Sahratian to take the doubles title. Brose also reached the semi-finals in NCAA championship play.

Under Coaches Harris F. Beeman and Tom Martin, the netters swept through a nine match regular season schedule without a loss. Included in the string were six shutout wins.

Other team members included Wally Kau, Dave Mills, Keith and Ken Kimble, Dick Rieger and Doug Curley.

Coach Van Alstyne, Bob Tansey, Reggie Myles, Jack Zinn, Don Perne, Dick Bishop and Biff Hills.

Golfers Win Nine, Lose Three

The 1951 edition of Michigan State's golf team turned in the most impressive season the sport has recorded in recent years. Again under the direction of Ben Van Alstyne, the Spartan linksmen hung up a record of nine wins and three losses.

In their first Big Ten championship meet, State finished sixth with an aggregate total of 1567 strokes. During the regular season, MSC lost to Michigan and Ohio State, dropping two decisions to the Wolverines. They counted wins over conference foes Illinois, Wisconsin, Northwestern and Minnesota.

Besides team Capt. Don Perne, personnel included Jack Zinn, Reggie Myles, Biff Hills, Dick Bishop and Carl Mosack.

THE SENIOR CLASS OF 1952 . . .

Four years ago college activities, term parties, lecture-concert series, J-Hop dances and commencement were eagerly anticipated for the first time by the members of the senior class. Now their officers, Senior Council members, a summary of their activities, and their graduation pictures appear on the following pages . . .

Seniors make contacts for jobs at the annual Career Carnival in concourse of the second floor of the Union.

SENIOR CLASS

Late in the spring of their junior year, class members elected the officers to lead them through the big events of their last year in college. Committee heads were then chosen to organize the special functions which were for seniors only. The senior coffee hours in old college hall were arranged and a table was set aside especially for seniors. By commencement time this table was heavily marked with the laboriously carved names of hundreds of '52 graduates.

Petitions for membership on the Senior Council were handed in fall term and sorted. Outstanding seniors were listed for recognition as the "Senior of the Week". Their pictures were taken and placed, along with a write up of their past college activities, in the Union Building showcase. Too, fall term the class project got underway.

Winter term brought still more activities. Highlighting this was the Career Carnival which was packed with hundreds of students but seniors in particular were interested in the availability of jobs. Many of the contacts at Career Carnival led to excellent job interviews.

Graduation pictures were taken winter term and dressed in their "best bib and tucker" the men and women posed for the final portrait of their college days. Along with the ordering of commencement announcements winter term, the women petitioned AWS for the long awaited eleven o'clock permission granted senior coeds during spring term.

With the arrival of spring term, still more activities were in view. Taking a great deal of time, thought and organization was the annual Water Carnival sponsored by the class. This year's theme of a take off on movie titles created a series of beautiful and unique floats as they journeyed down the Red Cedar. Traditionally one float carried the senior class president and secretary.

Winter term graduation is held in Fairchild theatre for about 400 students.

There were several senior record dances in the Union Ballroom and, as with each graduating class, a Senior Ball was given. Toward the end of spring term senior women participated in the traditional lantern night. Wearing their caps and gowns they handed their responsibilities to the junior class women in a solemn ceremony. Following Senior Swing-Out, another traditional activity, the tired seniors dispersed from campus to relax before returning to MSC for the big day of commencement.

Seniors attend their last undergraduate formal dance—the Senior Ball.

Gene McDermott, president.

Every Thursday afternoon a free senior coffee hour is held in Old College Hall.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

Working along with the Senior Council are the senior class officers: Bill Cass, vice president; Carl Eicher, treasurer; Ann Foster, secretary; and Gene McDermott, president. These officers were elected spring term of their junior year.

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS

Gene Hickson, treasurer; Don Hosie, president; Jim Osborn, vice president; and Olga Torsky, secretary. This year the class project is to entertain the veterans at Percy Jones Hospital.

Sally Collins, secretary; Phil Thorton, president; Lou Varga, vice president; and Dick Doss, treasurer. These officers work as an executive body on the Frosh-Soph Council.

FRESHMAN CLASS OFFICERS

Freshman officers elected from members on Frosh-Soph Council are Ken Stout, president; Barb Ryan, treasurer; Betty Lou Owens, secretary; and Dan Webster, vice president. These officers led the freshmen students through their first year of college and also co-sponsored Frosh-Soph Day.

Some MSC students may ponder over "Whatsoever a man soweth," the inscription on Beaumont Tower.

THE LIVING UNITS . . .

Excellent housing facilities, social opportunities, counseling, development of leadership abilities and adventures in cooperative group living are offered by the 40 sororities and fraternities, 18 dormitories and 14 co-ops at MSC. While a few students live in off campus housing, the majority spend their years in these college living units . . .

Delta Sigma Phi formal term party.

THE GREEKS

Michigan State's 16 sororities and 24 fraternities enter into the lives of many MSC students. Each year the number of rushees increases and the Inter-Fraternity and Panhellenic Councils work constantly to govern the rushing procedures as fairly and as wisely as possible. While fraternities begin rushing smokers early fall term and continue informal rushing throughout the year, sororities hold rushing parties late fall and early winter terms including a series of four stages.

Winter term brings numerous term parties among the sororities and fraternities. There is usually a formal dinner dance with flowers and gifts for the honored guests. Several other parties follow during the year and ranking high above the others is the ever popular Apache party. The girls are gaily attired in tight black skirts, berets, peasant or jersey blouses and all the available bangle bracelets and a beauty mark accent their costumes. However, the fellows look equally attractive wearing bright turtle-neck t-shirts, sashes, derby hats and levis with multi-colored suspenders. Other popular functions are cowboy, kiddie and pajama parties.

During spring term thoughts turn to the annual fraternity and sorority sings. After selecting a song which is sure to be a winner, the groups practice diligently to perfect their piece. The song fests are presented in the bandshell before thousands of listeners.

Somehow spring term also seems to bring numerous pinnings. Soon afterwards, the happy coed receives flowers from the fraternity which is notice that this is the night she will be serenaded. After closing hours, the coed sits by an open window holding a lighted candle as the fraternity brothers begin their serenade. When the last strains of the fraternity's final song die away, the sorority sisters return with a serenade for the fellows. Much laughter and commotion follow in the sorority house as the coed is drenched in the traditional tubbing.

Delta Upsilon's informal "yard-and-one-half" party.

The annual Junior 500 push cart race is another important event. All of the fraternities participate in the event by constructing their own carts and selecting their best runners to take part in the relay. The race starts and finishes in front of the women's gym and four men are spaced at intervals around circle drive. The race is divided into two categories, humor and speed.

DORMS AND CO-OPS . . .

Here is a picture-story of how and where a large percentage of MSC students live. The dorms and co-ops enter into the life of nearly every student at one time or another. On the following pages you will find a summary of their traditions, their government, their activities and their social affairs . . .

Jo Baldwin is dummy in bridge with Sue Eller, Connie Smith and Marg Lohmann.

DORMS AND CO-OPS

Six thousand students at MSC call the college residence halls "home" from September to June of each year. About half of this number spend their entire four years of undergraduate study living in one or another of the 14 co-ops and 18 dormitories.

Most of these residences are organized as clubs and membership is comprised of all those residing in the living unit. Legislative power is invested in the house council, made up of elected officers and representatives. It decides social and judicial matters as pertaining to the residence itself.

Coordinating the house councils is the Interdormitory or Co-op Council which decides major issues involving those residences as a group and represents them in meetings with the Administration.

The co-ops are unique in that the students themselves plan the menus, prepare the food and do all the work associated with the upkeep of the house. This provides excellent opportunity for training in leadership, home management, and social etiquette as well as lowering the costs of education.

The term party is the social highlight of the term. It is planned and attended by the residents and may range from the most informal skirt and sweater hop to a formal terrace dance. Interspersed through the term are faculty dinners, exchange dinners with other dorms or co-ops, and record dances in the rec rooms or lounges.

Many of the houses publish weekly newspapers containing news of current interest regarding college and dorm activities, athletic results, humor, and announcements of things to come.

An athletic program is carried on in conjunction with the college intramurals and trophies are awarded the living unit sponsoring the winning team in the different sports as well as an All Sports Trophy.

Mrs. Robinson, housemother, sits in on a N. Williams house-meeting, conducted by Jo Streadwick.

Study time is all important and scholarship is stressed. Penalties for low grades and awards for high grades are given accordingly. The women's residences observe specified quiet hours. Exam time finds typewriters clicking with term papers due and students hastily reading over notes for a last minute cram. Every now and then card shuffling is heard as time is taken for a quick hand of bridge or poker for relaxation before "hitting the books" or retiring.

These are but a few of the things which help to create an atmosphere of healthful group living in which there is never a dull moment.

Lower lounges in the dormitories are used mainly for recreational purposes. Here Marie Nelson, Sue Lange, Dorothy Tarpinian, Jerry Sessions and Jean Thiryung listen to some records.

NORTH CAMPBELL HALL

Judy Carpenter, Jackie Cronin and Georgia Roehm try to listen in on Jessie Fiesselman's phone call just before switch board closes at 10:30.

Ellin Lukach utilizes a drying rack, one of the many conveniences in women's dorms, as Wilma Gage and Ethel Brehmer set their hair before retiring.

SOUTH CAMPBELL HALL

In the basement of each women's dorm is a laundry room with laundry facilities and hair driers, which S. Campbellites Betty Grieve, Jan Moore, Nona Maten and Flo Studeman are making use of.

Lower Left—Lesley Yeager leads a discussion before a final in one of the dorm floor study rooms. Listening are Marie Riley, Donna Wiley, June Cooper, Lyn Payne and Joan Gilling.

Lower right—Cindy Lau, Jeanne Tremblay and Lee Eldridge pop corn in their room before a party.

Lee Price, center, dorm president, holds a house council meeting. Members are Joyce Davidson, Helen Roberts, Maureen Smyth, Marilyn Gmelich, Barb Fayette, Miss Price, Marlene Michell, Rose Kreglow and Carolyn Switzer.

Joyce Davis entertains Karlyn Raftshol, Judy Ching, Eleanor Peterson and Jill Collins with an amusing letter.

EAST MAYO HALL

Noreen Fulgenzi, Anne Knauf and Barbara Yeaky make use of the dorm library, in the housemother's office.

After hour snacks are always fun according to Lois Weingarden, Zoe Putnam, Sandy Blotner, Debbie Mersky and Kay Blank.

W. Mayo coeds entertain a men's dorm at an informal Saturday afternoon open house.

WEST MAYO HALL

Kay Cole and Ann Crossley take a break from their studies to read a letter and knit.

Jan Gray, Lee Brown, Sue McCaffery, Alice East, Barbara Kinde and Pauline Bagshaw plan intermission entertainment for the fall term party.

Sue Harten, Nancy O'Rourke and Patricia Henry take time to use the kitchenette, a feature of each floor in women's dormitories.

NORTH WILLIAMS HALL

Betty Murphy, Barbara Fugit, Louise Des Jardins and Diane Hammond pass through the patio behind the dorm on their return from classes.

SOUTH WILLIAMS HALL

Top—Over 400 girls eat lunch and dinner each day in the dining hall between North and South Williams.

Lower Left—Sue Giles checks her late permission record with Housemother Mrs. Gilhooley, as Anna May Williams, Nan Towsley and Mary North wait their turn.

Lower Right—Making use of their newly redecorated recreation room are Barbara Browne, Doris Branson, Doris Werner, Pat Foy and Nan Hannah.

EAST LANDON HALL

Barbara Osterman, Roberta Conner, Pandora Donahue, Marna Lloyd and Betty Werner utilize the piano in the dorm lounge for a song fest.

Sally Sumrill, Doris Armitage, Mary Rogers, Joan Patenge and Patsy Palen gather in Mary's room to listen to some music and knit.

Jean Palazzola and Helen Amorgan sign out for the weekend with Housemother Mrs. Meyer.

Andrea French, Judy Streng, Mary Ruh and Betty Strobel team up for a game of doubles ping pong. Refereeing are Diana Karoll, Jane Child, Mary Vick and Elaine Standel, seated; and Greta Johnson, Marcia Clark, Mike Wyzlubeek and Elizabeth Palmer, standing.

Wearing hose and heels for Sunday dinner is one of the dorm traditions. Waiting in line are Kaye McCarthy, Margaret Savage, Irma Jellonnek, Lois Ayres, Lois Sandberg and Dee Connelly.

Dot Elzinga, Lois Sandberg, Pat Shea, Ruth Derington, Lee Cumiskey and Sydell Nosanchuk pause for refreshment during a game of ping pong.

Each dorm has its amateur barbers as illustrated by Joan Baldwin and Jean Rich, cutting Sue Eller and Pat Shea's hair, as Marilyn Waldron and Jane Preston attempt to study.

EAST YAKELEY HALL

Marilyn Morris, Barbara Schensul, Mary Sloan and Elaine Standel check with the switch board operator to see if they received any packages.

Reminiscing over the dorm scrapbook are Gala Maier, Agnes Turner, Portia Chamberlin, Joan Ford and Marilyn Waldron.

Dot Ripper, Ann Fletcher, Donna Daniels, JoAnn Swanson, Gloria Wasmuth, Lory Peterson, Dorie Peterson and Phyllis

Secondtime practice for their final in square dancing class. Accompanying them at the piano is Dorothy Dyer.

Jane Marz, Lois McMahon, Joan Massey and Helen Quick listen to Lorraine Riemersma as she strums a tune on her uke.

Ann Martineau and Helen Schiff help home economics major Lillian McVannell put the finishing touches on one of her term projects.

Dorm officers Anne LeMense, Lillian McVannell, Myra Gilbert, Margaret Myers, Lynn Barrett, Jean Schulze and Lynn O'Shaughnessy look over dorm elections petitions for the following term.

WEST YAKELEY HALL

Twenty-five cents and a half an hour in the automatic washer take care of a week's laundry for Helen Quick, Marlene Herpolsheimer and Bettye Martin.

Row Three—Joanne Russell, Liz Borland, Gertrude Frantz, Nancy Kinney, Pat Wallace, Virginia Scanlan, Barbara Stearns, Ginny Llewellyn, Nancy Graham, Joyce Dunnett, Marilyn Crane, Donna Wallace, Mary Wirick and Mary Plumb.

Betty Petch, Marilyn Lester and Dora Ghazal pause in the Gilchrist lobby after lunch.

Some lucky boys are going to get argyles from Betty Petch, Connie Graves and Sue Hartwick.

GILCHRIST HALL

Most of the dorms now have television sets in their rec rooms. Here Rita Stabler, Barbara Sutton, Irene Mooney and Mildred Dickens watch one of their favorite programs.

The dorm lounge provides a quiet place to study for Nancy Meecham, Susanne Collins, Barbara Kinsman, Sally Jennings, Janice Bosserman and Joan Quandt.

A group of students from the Hawaiian club provide Sunday dinner music for Wells Hall coeds.

WELLS HALL

Claire Sansone, Irene Samu, Mary Wetherby and Lois Hahn form a quartet with their ukes.

Camilla Holden looks through her albums, as Mary Wetherby changes the records.

SNYDER

Phones are at a premium in men's dorms during after dinner rush hours. Bill Albright struggles against Jack Donahue, Joe DeMarco, Bill Johnson and Joe Klein, to keep his phone.

Don Yoder directs the Snyder Hall choir in a practice session.

"We need a fourth for cards—" a favorite pass time for Tom Rose, Paul Dekker, Bob Pressley and Ralph Anderson.

Good lighting and ample desk room provide an excellent place to study for Art Howson, Paul Ettinger and Richard Lott.

Pete Wilkinson, Alden Olson, David Klinke, Alden Bodary, Jack Lynch and John Bachelder utilize the snack bar, a feature of all men's dorms.

John Christensen, Fritz Eichhorn, Irv Burness, Harry Theuerkauf, Bill Rice and Dr. and Mrs. John Kidd, resident advisors, look at the Abbot Hall layout in their copy of the 1951 Wolverine.

ABBOT HALL

Herman Bertuleit, Harlan Wilson, Bob Sell and Bob Smith relax to a tune of the uke before some recreation at ping pong and gin rummy.

The men's dorms too have their convenient laundry rooms in the dorm basements. Here Dave Jessup, Junius Bowman, Bud Lee, Jim Michael and Jim Meachum make use of one.

MASON HALL

Emerson Greenman and Loren Christensen get ready for their eight o'clock classes.

All men's dorms have at least one main lounge where students can enjoy magazines, music and singing.

Chet Wisniewski, Jim Sweeney, John Hammell and Pete Lisoskie use toothpicks as chips in their card game.

PHILLIPS HALL

The 505 men who lived in Phillips Hall took an active part in its many activities and social affairs. The dorm is divided into precincts, each with a resident advisor. Men's Council is the governing body for the dorm, along with General Council, which is composed of officers, and precinct and house advisors.

Some of the social events of the year included informal record dances, radio parties, and a semi-formal term party. Phillips helped sponsor the Inter-Dorm formal during winter term, and also gave a Christmas party for orphaned children.

Participation in intramural sports is another activity of the dorm. The teams are taken from individual precincts, rather than from the dorm as a whole. Last year, the dormitory tennis championship went to Phillips.

It also participates in such all-college events as the "Junior 500," Spartacade and Water Carnival. A second place trophy went to Phillips at last year's Spartacade.

The dorm also has its own glee club, which participated in the inter-dorm sing, an innovation of last spring.

A Phillips resident illustrates the way to relax and study college chemistry at the same time.

Fred Ackerman, Al Simard and Cal Davenport shoot a game of pool in the rec room of the dorm.

Modern furniture and interior decorating provide for pleasant dining in the newest and biggest of men's living units, Shaw Hall.

EAST SHAW HALL

Dick Richter, Dave Sutton, Bob Becker, Sandy Wagner and Doug VanZandt do a bit of cleaning in the tiled bathroom of E. Shaw Hall.

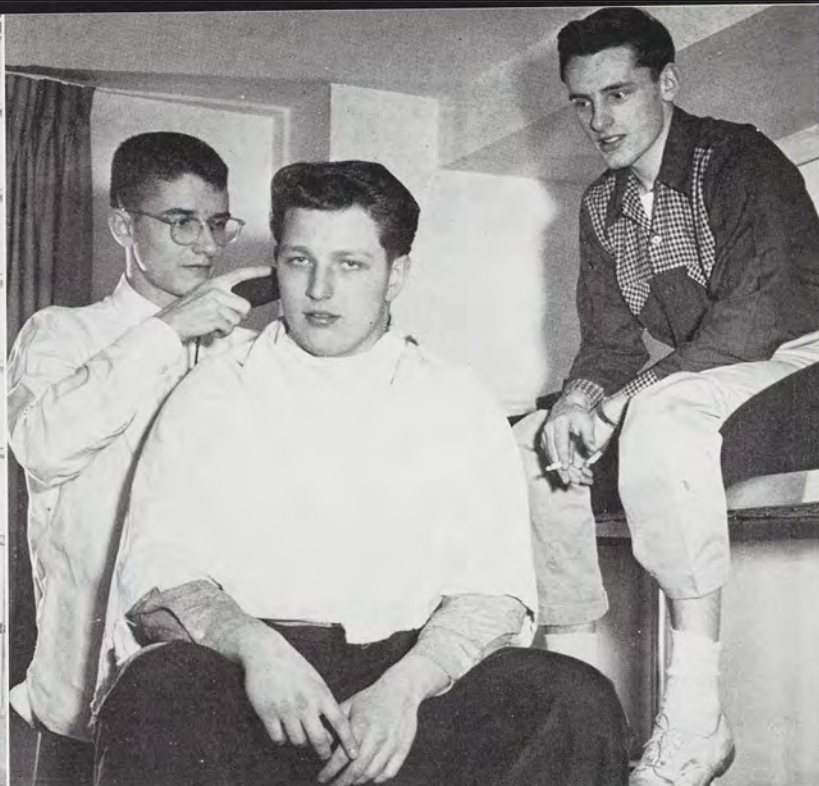

Sandy Wagner, Bill Zick and Bob Gillette relax in their room, which shows signs of their own interior decorating.

To provide room, board and social-cultural activities for the promotion of greater fellowship and the principle of Christian living among its members is the purpose of Beal Co-op. This year Beal House won many honors competing with the seven co-ops at State. Among these honors were first place in golf, second place in basketball, tied for second place in football and third place in ping pong. Beal house also stresses extra curricular activities and has representatives on the student council, senior council, men's council and engineering council. Also the president of ICC and the YMCA are members of Beal House. Included on this year's list of social activities were a picnic with the women's co-ops, several exchange dinners and the annual Co-Hop dance. Founded on campus in April, 1949, Beal House now has 27 members. Membership is open to people of all races, creeds and persons of all national and political affiliations. The group's national project is to promote greater co-operation among all co-ops both local and national. It is a member of the NASCL.

ELSWORTH HOUSE

Elsworth Co-op has as its group project the completion of its new modern house situated at 711 West Grand River Avenue. The co-op was founded at State in the fall of 1940. Among its many social activities are a senior dinner spring term, term and annual achievement awards, exchange dinners, three term parties and an entry in the Junior 500 pushcart derby. Elsworth House holds not only the softball championship of the co-op league but also won second place in the league's football and basketball competition. The purpose of Elsworth House is to provide through mutual efforts, a suitable residence for students of MSC and to promote through this cooperative fraternal enterprise the development and maturation of individual capacities and abilities.

Hedrick House, the first men's co-op in the nation to be owned and operated primarily by students, was established at State in 1939. House membership is open to all campus men and this year there were 25 resident members. The purpose of Hedrick Co-op is to create a greater fellowship by providing room, board and social-cultural activities for students enrolled in MSC. Fall term a corporation meeting is held with Hedrick House alumni at which they plan improvements and events for the coming year. Hedrick House has won the Inter Co-op Council's scholastic trophy for three successive terms. Sports activities are also participated in by the members and last year Hedrick House had a .500 average for all sports.

MOTTS HOUSE

Led by the officers of house president, secretary-treasurer, purchasing agent and steward, the members of Motts Student Cooperative, Inc., earnestly endeavor to fulfill their group purpose. This purpose is to promote a democratic, economical means of living; to experience the successful operation of a business and home; to provide mutual help and learning essential for harmonious living; and to offer opportunities for participation in sports and social activities. Founded at State in 1947, Motts House offers an opportunity for cooperative living to 22 Michigan State men. Throughout the year the group strives to gain recognition in scholarship and sports activities within the inter co-op league. Among the organization's social functions are exchange dinners and term parties.

THE ADVERTISERS . . .

The students look down Grand River and Michigan Avenues to the merchants for their market. This is the line that joins our merchants and our students.

Every year, the cooperation between these two elements is increased through the intention of institutional advertising. We hope the good will brings happiness to everyone involved . . .

Invitation...

DRIVE THIS MODERN CLASSIC

*Hydra-Matic Super Drive, GM Hydraulic Steering optional at extra cost. Equipment, accessories and trim subject to change without notice.

Above, Oldsmobile Ninety-Eight 4-Door Sedan. A General Motors Product.

Your Oldsmobile dealer is truly proud to invite you to his showroom. For this year he has a car to present that far surpasses any Oldsmobile ever built . . . in beauty, in luxury, in all-over elegance. It's a new Ninety-Eight. A "Rocket" Ninety-Eight. A Classic Ninety-Eight. Outside and in, it's the absolute last word in smartness and good taste. From the long sweep of its extended rear deck to the new glamor of its customized interiors . . . it's new, it's exciting, it's Classic. But wait until you drive it—that's the top thrill! New 160 horsepower "Rocket" Engine! New Hydra-Matic Super Drive*! New GM Hydraulic Steering*! Truly, it's Oldsmobile's car of cars—the car for you to own!

We are happy to have had the privilege of printing the 1952 Wolverine.

It was a genuine pleasure working with the staff and student body in the production of what we believe to be one of the most outstanding college year books in this country.

Aerial view of the Michigan State College campus in 1952. The image shows a large, multi-story building complex, likely the main academic or administrative building, surrounded by extensive parking lots filled with cars. The campus is situated in a rural area with fields and trees visible in the background. A decorative frame with a scalloped border encloses the title and year.
