YEAR ONE

This plaque at Beaumont Tower marks MSU as the State's number one historical site. It was presented in connection with the centennial celebration.

Michigan State College formally became a university with the signing of the name change bill on April 21, 1955. President John A. Hannah and Representative John McCune watch as Lieutenant Governor Philip A. Hart makes it official.

AND YEAR ONE HUNDRED ONE

MSU 1956

THIS is the story of a year and the reflection of a century. It is the story of today and the promise for tomorrow.

It is the proper function of a yearbook to tell the story of one year. The 1956 Wolverine tells the story of Michigan State University from spring 1955 through winter 1956.

Through the story weaves the thread of the founders' purpose and their realization: education and service, the dissemination of knowledge to all men and the preservation of the lasting values which make democracy workable. This is the background for our "today". The theme is a promise for tomorrow, as expressed in a growing campus and enrollment.

This is the year "one" in Michigan State's second century. The university demonstrated that the past one hundred years have been fruitful, and promised that the next one hundred will be as much. This is today at MSU.

A Solid Base Meant a Steady Growth

Pioneering an Important Part of MSU Philosophy

By JERRY JENNINGS

It's difficult to imagine that today's bustling East Lansing looked like this about 1923.

Classes in vegetable gardening were offered to the early coeds on the site where Olin Hospital now stands. During these early years, the women raised much of their own food.

Left—Saint's Rest was the first living unit on campus and housed the original 63 male students.

"GOOD enough for the proudest and cheap enough for the poorest," said Joseph R. Williams, first president of the Agricultural College of Michigan in 1858.

It was an accurate description of the little cow college sprouting on the swampy banks of the Red Cedar River. At that time, not even the optimistic Mr. Williams could foresee that the school he guided would one day become Michigan State University, eighth largest in the nation. A look into the past shows how such a world-renowned institution grew in 101 years from the humblest of beginnings.

The university's history began with the formation of the State Agricultural Society. Michigan was a new state, and its main industry was farming. The society was a pressure group to promote the aims of the pioneers who were carving farms out of the wilderness.

On February 12, 1855, Gov. Kingsley S. Bingham signed a bill creating the college, the first institution in the world to be devoted to the scientific teaching of agriculture.

A 577-acre tract of marshy land was bought three miles east of Lansing. Trees were soon cleared away and three buildings erected—College Hall, a boxy, three-story brick building for classes; Saint's Rest, a dormitory; and a brick horse barn.

On a warm May morning in 1856, faculty, students and distinguished visitors gathered in College Hall chapel to dedicate the college.

The ceremonies over, the six teachers and 63 students went to work. To pay his tuition, every student spent three hours a day working in the fields or clearing stumps from the primitive "campus." This was in addition to his studies in English, mathematics and chemistry.

Cap Night at Sleepy Hollow never achieved full tradition status. It was a nightshirt parade to burn freshmen beanies.

Strict Rules, Hunting

This Spartan routine started at 5:30 every morning. Strict rules and no female companionship contributed to a boring social life. For relief, students went hunting in the woods that hugged three sides of the campus.

Meanwhile, the threat of civil war turned into reality. Members of the first graduating class were excused two months early in 1861 to join the Union Army and a sharp drop in enrollment continued throughout the war.

Although this decrease brought some criticism, many people were inspired by Michigan State's agricultural education example. Sen. Justin Morrill of Vermont wrote the Morrill Act which was passed by Congress and signed by President Lincoln in 1862.

The act gave each state federal lands which could be sold to support a "land-grant" college. These colleges would specialize in branches of learning related to agricultural and the mechanical arts.

Under the leadership of President T. C. Abbot, Michigan Agricultural College recovered from the war and began to prosper.

This was a map of the campus in 1924 when all of the buildings were clustered around the Circle.

Scientific discoveries made by men such as R. C. Kedzie in soil science, and W. F. Beal in the development of hybrid corn were recognized, and the Farmers' Institutes were soon started in Michigan communities.

When Edwin Willits became president in 1885, he recalled the Morrill Act's provision for the teaching of mechanical arts. A mechanical engineering department was established.

Co-education was another pioneer development at MAC. The first ten women were admitted in 1870, but the experiment was not successful because they had to take the same curriculum as men. However, in 1896, a home economics course was set up.

A Student Army Training Corps, emphasizing mechanics, was established on campus in 1917 for the college instruction of men who would eventually be Army officers in World War I.

The campus experienced a great period of expansion during the post-war years. Above, the Natural Science Building is nearing completion.

Dr. Hannah addresses guests at the Founder's Day banquet which honored the many persons responsible for MSU's growth during the last 100 years. Six paintings by artist John Coppin, representing the stages of growth, were presented by 1955 Centennial Wolverine editor.

This was a time for expansion—new buildings sprang up everywhere, long-neglected military courses were revived, a military band formed and a student government system started. Co-education sparked the social life, and annual traditions such as the J-Hop were developing. An athletic department had been set up in 1886 and the college yell, "Uzz, Uzz, Uzz—MAC!" could be heard at all track events and football games.

By 1907, the 50th anniversary of its opening, the college was a solidly established institution with more than a thousand students.

World War I left MAC on the doorstep of a new era—a time of rapid change when the small agricultural school would develop into a great university.

President David Friday took a step in this direction by establishing a general education curriculum outside the previous limited courses in agriculture, homemaking and other vocational subjects. In 1925, Michigan Agricultural College became Michigan State College.

Led by presidents such as Kenyon Butterfield and Robert S. Shaw, the college continued to expand. The depression of the thirties didn't stop the construction of new buildings; a library, Jenison Fieldhouse, new dormitories and Beaumont Tower.

When John A. Hannah became president in 1941, the world was again at war. Special war courses were added, and women temporarily monopolized the campus. Dr. Hannah foresaw the flood of veterans to return when the war was over and the Basic College, with its general education courses, was established in preparation.

Between 1940 and 1950, the college enrollment doubled. By 1955, there were 16,000 students and 2,000 faculty members. To accommodate them, a $25,000,000 construction program was under way. A mammoth new library and many other buildings had sprung up on the sprawling campus. Michigan State had expanded its area of service to include the nation and the world.

In 1955, the college celebrated its 100th anniversary with special events and convocations. And the State Legislature finally sanctioned the name change to Michigan State University.

This university status was the culmination of 100 years of accomplishments. But the university cannot and will not stop here. President Hannah looked to past leaders to find guidance for the future when he said of Michigan State,

" . . . May we be granted the wisdom, the courage and the strength to match their deeds as we undertake the unfinished work."

Lasting Friendships from A to Z

Students Mature as They Matriculate Together at MSU

MORE than 16,000 names are found in Michigan State University's student directory. The list begins with Harry Louis Aaron and ends with Donald Henry Zysk—and countless number of "Smiths", "Whites", "Mac's" and "Joneses" are alphabetized on the pages in-between. Although some names are the same, no two students are exactly alike. It takes all kinds to make up a state university, and Michigan State is no exception. That is why Spartans do not fit into any one stereotyped college pattern.

For example, there is the naive youth of 17 who came to school just to satisfy his dad—and the 70 year-old grandmother who "just felt like coming back to school."

There is the millionaire's son with his sports car—and the GI who stuffs cardboard in his worn-out shoes and waits for his next government check. The extremely collegiate freshman with his pennant, the extremely blase senior with his Ivy League sports coat, the sorority girl, the boy who barely makes a two-point but dates every night, the intellectual who studies in the quietness of the library—all attend Michigan State. But this list doesn't begin to complete the various types—or combination of types—one can find on campus.

State students come from many directions. They stream onto the campus from 48 states, 57 foreign countries, from towns as small as Stony Creek or cities as densely populated as New York and Chicago.

These students bring with them different cultural backgrounds with roots in Okinawa or Omaha. The son of a noble from Persia, the athlete from Australia, the boy from Venezuela, all come here to get an education and to live together.

However varied the individual or his background, friendly enthusiasm is an outstanding, general characteristic of State students. It is apparent in the quick smile of students passing between classes, in the concentrated roar at football games, in the Rose Bowl train line, at a crowded J-Hop, in the Aud during registration when people stop to chat about their vacations or in Berkey Hall when it's time for a class break.

The casual atmosphere of this university is conducive to making lasting friends, and many ex-room-mates keep in touch with one another for years to come.

Freshmen bend over grueling examinations that test their educational abilities before beginning their first year.

Registration Nightmares

The whole college routine is rather overwhelming for the freshman when he finds that his individuality is reduced to a student number. The horrors of orientation tests, endless lines and registration nightmares seem quite discouraging.

No matter what major the freshman chooses, he must share four basic courses with his classmates. In the Natural Science building he calculates combinations of elusive genes, atoms and the theoretical implications of Darwinian evolution. He enters the Communication Skills series to perfect his writing, reading and speech abilities. Social Science exposes the workings of politics, economics and related fields; and Humanities offers a history of civilization, arts and philosophy.

A new coed unpacks for her first term of dormitory life and tries to find space for all of her things.

Huddled in seats or milling in front of booths, students register for another term of classes. Some students find that the floor of the Aud is the best place to sort class cards.

After a somewhat grueling exposure to this mass education, the student turns to the select, smaller classes of upper school. Individualism manages to survive as each student goes his separate way. Ag Hall looms impressively to the farm boy from Cedar Falls; at the same time the Journalism Building beckons to the future newspaperman.

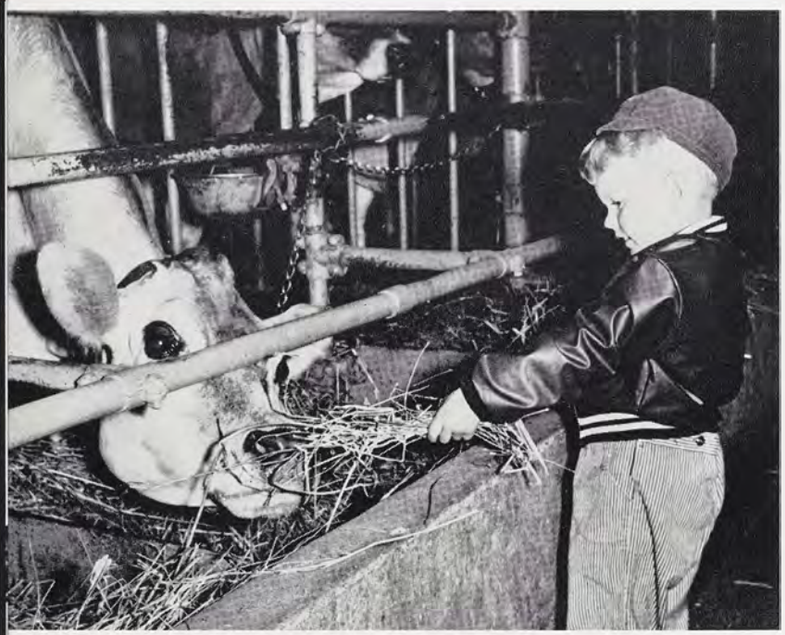
Lectures, Term Papers

Junior and senior years are a blur of required courses, electives in allied fields and possibly one or two "snap" courses. There are eight o'clock lectures, term papers, field trips and classes about careers or marriage for Spartan students.

When it's almost over, some students realize that each course has been the crossroad for a potpourri of different races, creeds and faiths gathered from dissimilar pasts. And all are bound together in their search for learning, education and a degree.

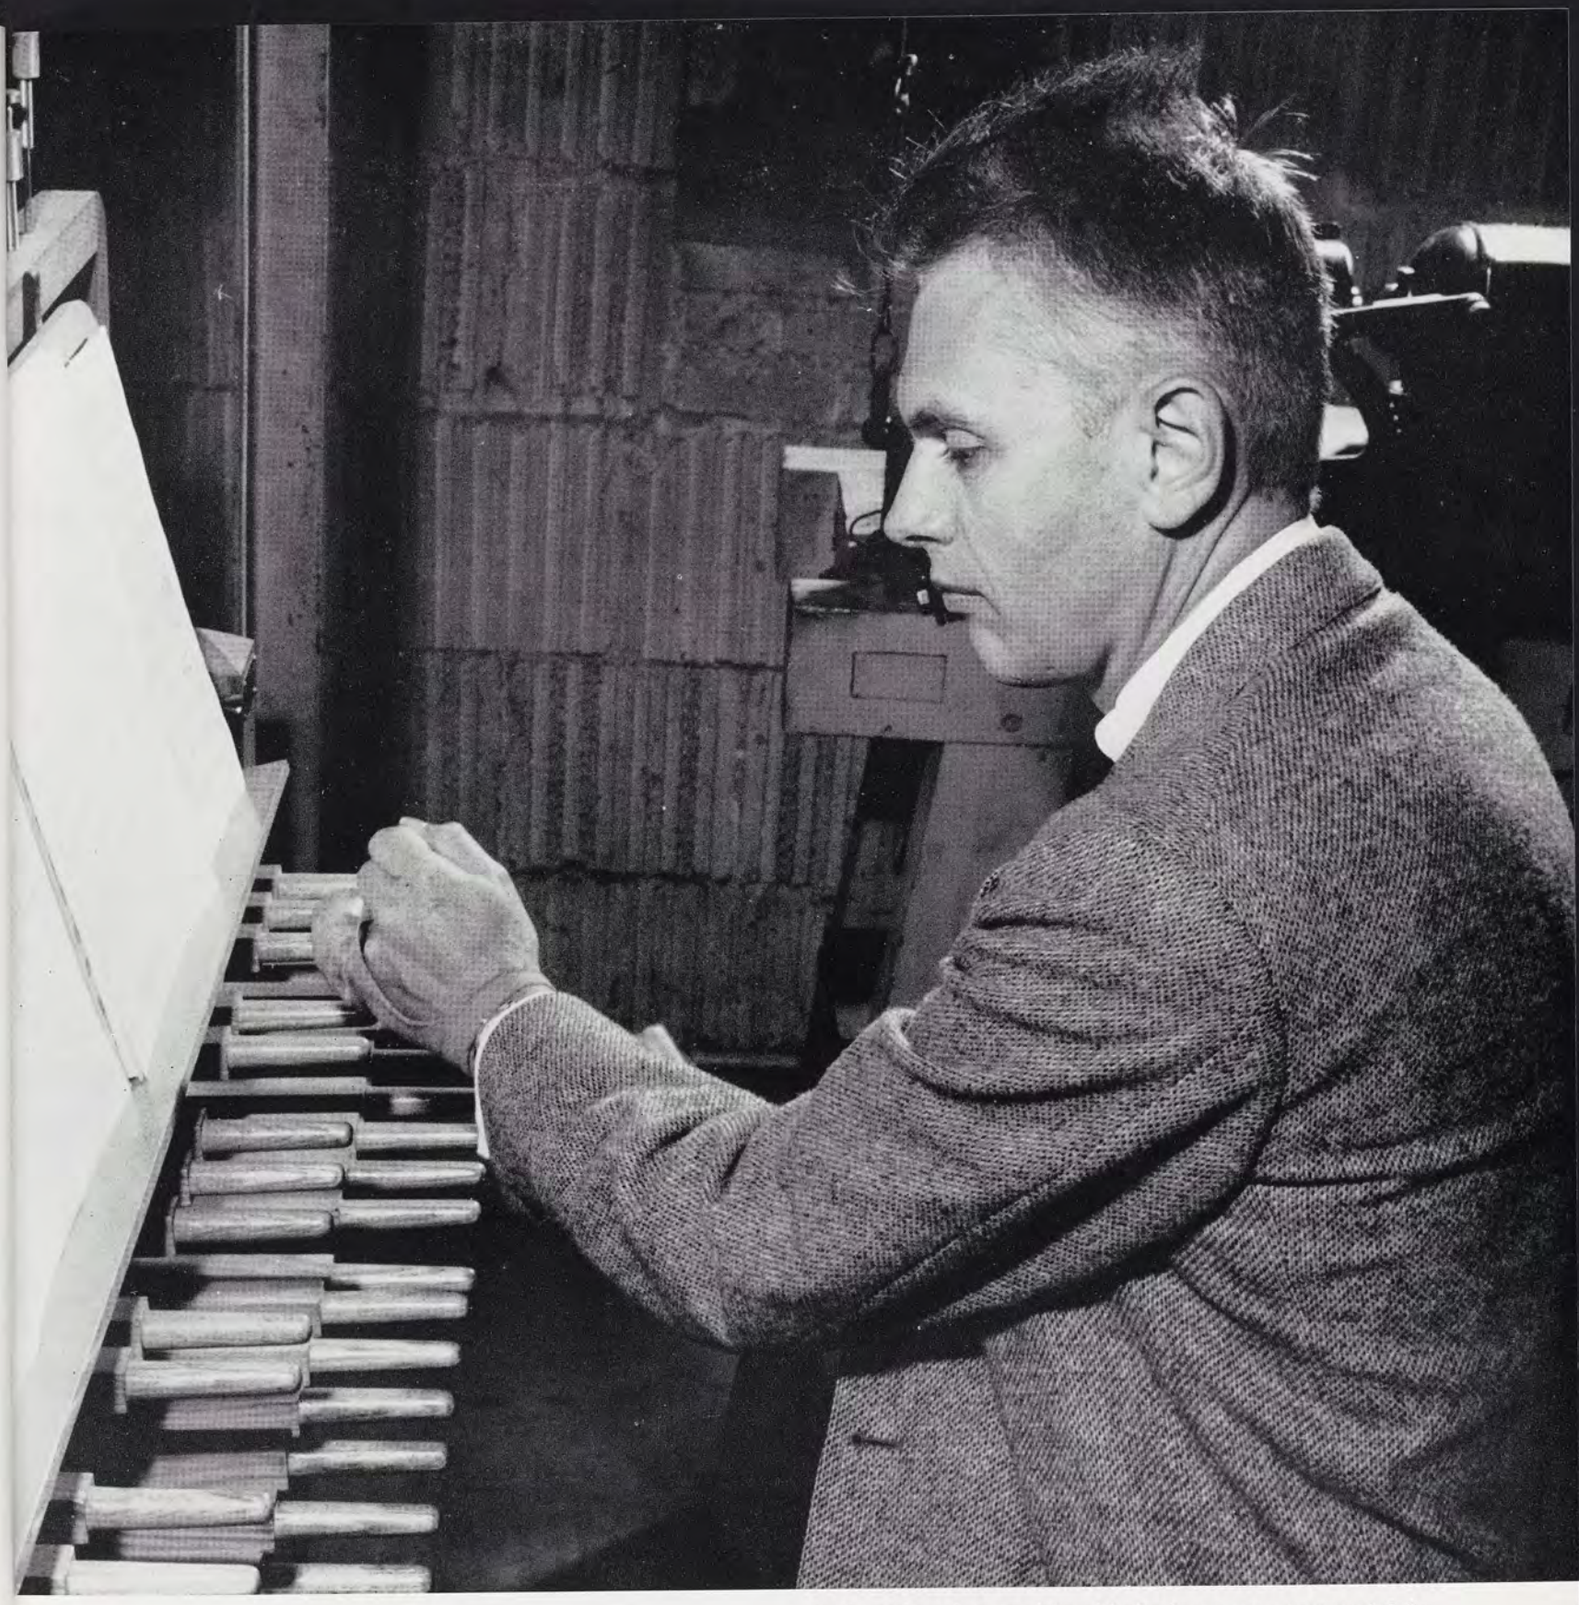
Perhaps one of the best things about college for each student is that it gives him a chance to live and mingle with a variety of people. He learns to evaluate and to modify his prejudices. He expands his social and educational experiences and by so doing, eventually achieves maturity.

When he is graduated, a Michigan State University student has not been molded into a stereotyped pattern but has learned how to develop into a free-thinking individual.



He probably won't be enrolling at MSU until about 1970, but this young fellow had a chance to see the animals during the Farm Openhouse sponsored by the College of Agriculture.

A jammed, but friendly meeting place, is the first floor of Berkey Hall where students stop to talk between classes.



Students hurrying to eight o'clock classes are accompanied by music ringing out from Beaumont Tower. Carillonneur Wendell Wescott plays the tower bells at 8 am and 5 pm.

DR. JOHN A. HANNAH

President of Michigan State University

The Operations Team

MSU Administrative Group, A Study in Dedication

By LOUIS GROPP

IN the middle of the campus is the Administration Building where MSU officials work from 8 am to 5 pm daily.

These behind-the-scenes administrators spend hours co-ordinating their tasks to enable the university to run smoothly.

Topping the list is President John A. Hannah. A few years ago Dr. Hannah made news with his treks from Washington, DC, to East Lansing and back again as he carried out dual duties as Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower and Personnel and as University President. Now back for good, Dr. Hannah's duties still limit him to a two-week vacation of fishing in Northern Canada.

Hannah was graduated from Michigan State and later returned as an instructor in poultry genetics, a field in which he is eminent.

Expansion, in preparation for the anticipated upswing in enrollment, keynoted Hannah's work following his appointment as Secretary of the Board of Agriculture. After seven years of service, he became the twelfth president of the university in 1941.

Despite a multitude of honors and high-ranking civilian and government appointments, Dr. Hannah has maintained his personal modesty. Student or staff problems are never too small for his attention.

Speaking engagements fill Hannah's calendar—most days contain at least one banquet, round table or speech. He also serves on numerous boards and committees and still holds down several military jobs.

Student leaders gather at President Hannah's home for dinner followed by an informal Spartan Round Table discussion.

Karl McDonel, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture and of the university, is custodian of the multi-million dollar physical plant of the university.

From his office, McDonel directs the huge task of planning and building university expansion.

An alumnus of Michigan State, McDonel returned as a farm management specialist and later served as Assistant to the Director of Extension Services. In 1941 he was appointed to his present position.

Supervising State's 38 million-dollar-a-year operating expenses is Phillip May, Comptroller and Treasurer. With a staff of 70 he administers all finances of the university—including the payroll of 5,400 regular and 7,000 student employees and the financial work connected with an immense building program.

DURWARD B. VARNER
Vice President of Off Campus Education

His present projects are the Library, Brody Dormitory Group, the Animal Industries Building and the Student Health Center addition. He also prepares budget requests, pays university bills and salaries and supervises the self-liquidating program of the student service buildings.

With Michigan State's growth, a public information program was needed and James H. Denison joined the staff as Administrative Assistant to the President in charge of Public Relations. He directs and coordinates

State Board of Agriculture members Connor D. Smith, William E. Baker, Clair L. Taylor, Clark L. Brody, John A. Hannah, Karl H. McDonel, Arthur K. Rouse, Frederick H. Mueller, Philip J. May.

State Board of Agriculture

Information Services, WKAR and WKAR-TV operations and university publications. Denison is also on the Board of Student Publications and does much work with educational television.

When not working with the president on speeches, holding conferences with department heads or attending committee meetings, Denison likes fishing and gardening for relaxation.

Registrar Robert S. Linton administers the admissions, evaluations, registration and scheduling, room assignments and teacher certification processes of the university. Linton and his staff operate one of the most efficient registration programs in the nation and his methods have been widely copied.

Despite his time-consuming job, Linton is never too busy to befriend a student or to help him with his problems. Linton was graduated from State in 1916. After several years as a vocational agriculture instructor, he returned to State, served in the Department of Education and later as Assistant Registrar.

A member of America's elite "Who's Who," Linton manages to find time to work on conservation projects on his 80-acre farm and to work in the field of civic youth guidance.

Tom King, Dean of Students, works closely with students and student groups to help them with their problems.

Dean King has served State in many roles. After a brilliant athletic record at the University of Notre Dame, he came to Michigan State in 1933 as end football coach. Later he headed the Department of Police Administration, served as Director of Alumni Relations and in 1950 became Dean of Students.

King, who as early as 1924 flew gliders and airplanes, has continued his interest in aviation and says his greatest thrill was recently flying a jet. He collects models of American aircraft which are displayed in his office.

Many hours of the dean's time are spent in counselling students on how to borrow money, get along with roommates or join a fraternity. Additional hours are spent with staff members and alumni. King's calendar, along with the rest of the administrative group, contains many dinner meetings and speaking engagements.

This year a new administrative position was created when William H. Combs, former Dean of the All-College Division, became Dean of University Services. This new job includes supervision over the Library, Museum, ROTC, the Audio-Visual Center and Registrar's Office.

Early last year, the first of two administrative vice-presidencies was created when Durward Varner, former head of the Extension Services, was appointed Vice-President of Off-Campus Education and Director of Continuing Education.

After being graduated from the University of Chicago, Varner continued his interest in agricultural extension work and served as chairman of agricultural committees.

Dr. Thomas H. Hamilton, former Dean of the Basic College, became Vice-President of Academic Affairs.

JAMES H. DENISON
Assistant to President in Charge of Public Relations

PHILIP J. MAY
Comptroller and Treasurer

For 16 years Vice-President Hamilton has been active in university and college work, and previously served as Professor of Political Science and Vice-President of Chatam College in Pittsburgh. He came to MSU as Assistant to the Dean of Basic College in 1953, was appointed dean in 1954 and Director of the Summer School in the fall of 1955.

Behind the administration of MSU stands the elected State Board of Agriculture, which is responsible for the operation of the university.

The board, created under the Michigan constitution, is the governing body of the university. As such, it is responsible for the appointment of the president and faculty, the receiving of grants and donations, the establishing of general policy and the spending of funds appropriated by the state legislature.

It is men like these administrators who guide State as it grows—Michigan Agricultural College, Michigan State College and now Michigan State University.

Goals: Service to the World

Produce Good Citizens, Bring National Recognition

By MARCIA ALLEN
Wolverine Associate Editor

INSTRUCTION, Public Service and Research. These are the three pillars of Michigan State University which are integrated into the workings of its nine colleges.

The effect of public service and research often goes unnoticed as students become engrossed in assignments and grades.

New Addition

In recent years there has been a gradual recognition of the importance of good communication. State has the distinction of being one of the first to put the phases of mass media under one head—The College of Communication Arts—which includes graduate and undergraduate courses in speech and journalism.

The college is founded on the principle that a person is most effective as a citizen when he can competently read, observe, listen and evaluate; and in turn transmit his thoughts and feelings to others.

The Health Center provides students with free flu shots at registration. The center is part of the All-University Division, under Dean William Combs, which also includes audio-visual aids, museum, library and military science.

A speech major gets ready to make his final presentation in his makeup class. This is one of the skills taught under the Department of Speech related to the emphasis on good communication.

The School of Journalism became one of the first to require a 2.5 in 300 and 400 major courses for graduation. Speech was also one of the first departments in the country to do this. These blue-ribbon requirements are represented by royal blue graduation tassels.

According to Dean Gordon A. Sabine, "Students in Communication Arts are in a field which has such an impact on society that high standards must be maintained."

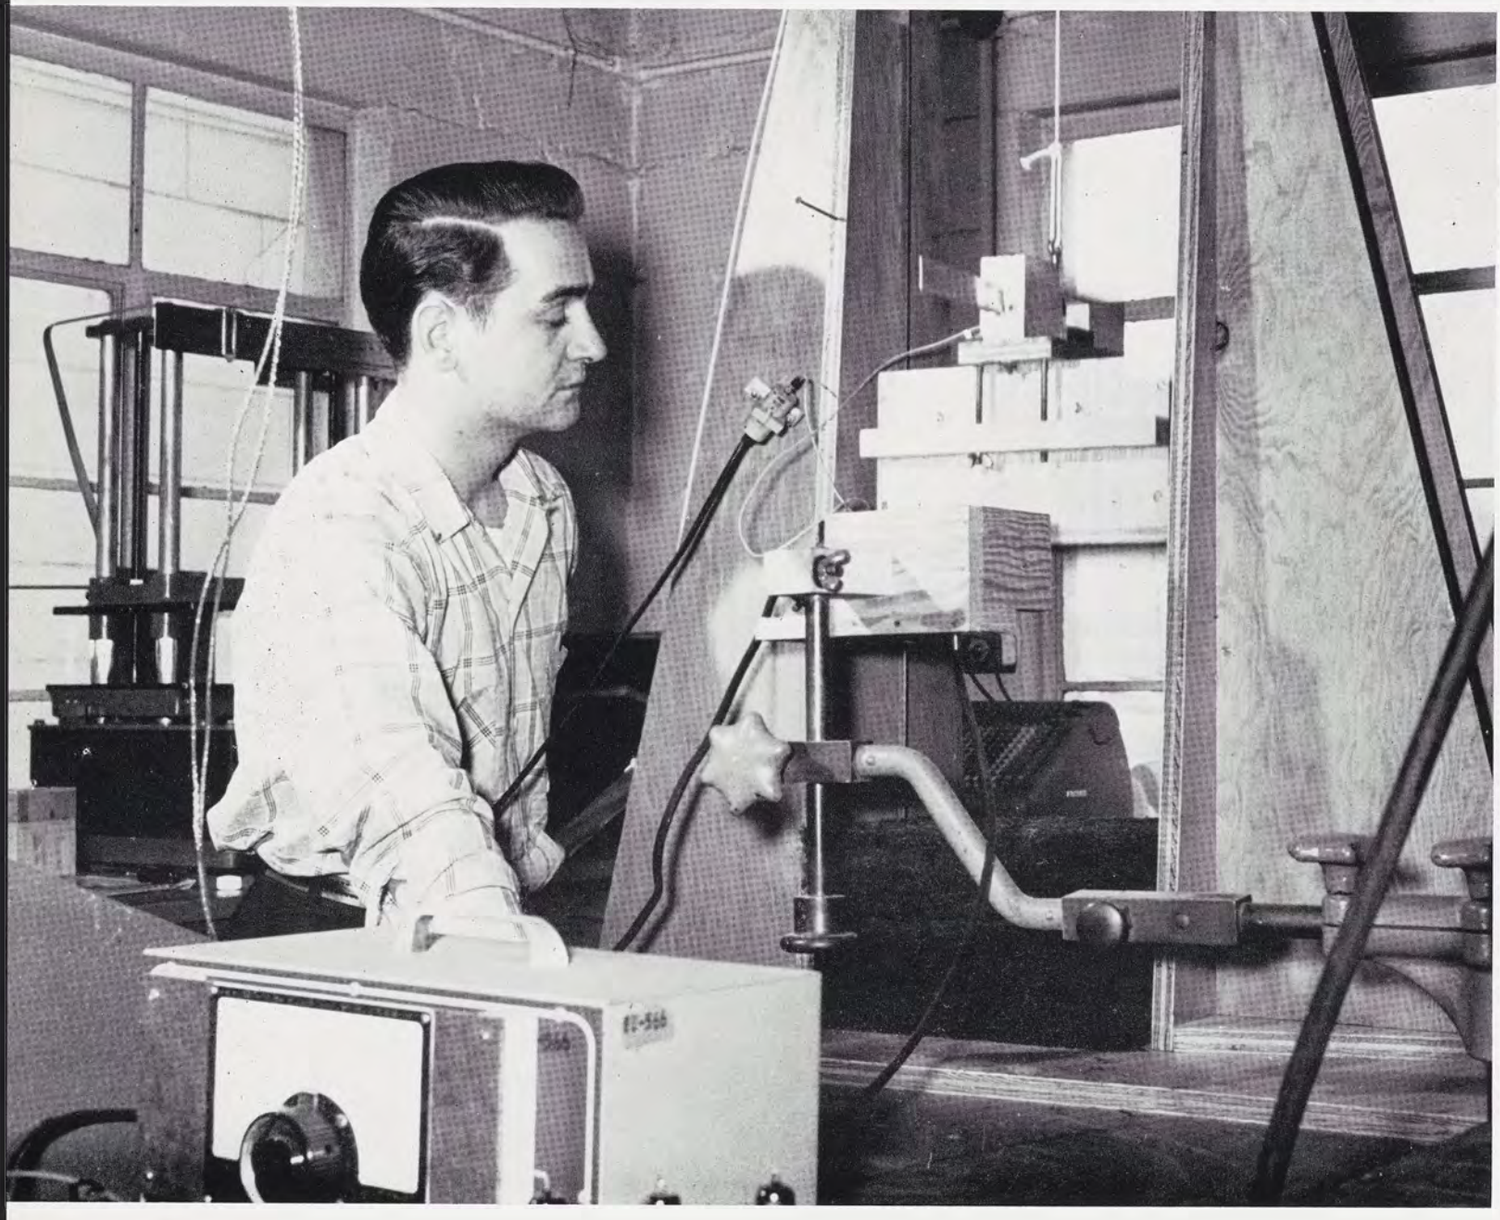
As Communication Arts becomes established, the century-old College of Agriculture is continually expanding in instruction, public service and research.

Instruction is only a part of the activity of the college. Four hundred staff members are engaged in extension work in almost every county. The 4-H program is perhaps the extension program familiar to most of us.

Research and extension work as a team. When the Research Department perfects a frost-fighting machine, for example, the extension agent demonstrates it to the farmer.

Through the Extension Service and the Agriculture Experimental Station, the Michigan farmer, homemaker and consumer learn to apply scientific skills to everyday problems.

A packaging technology student operates a machine which exerts force on a packing material to test its ability to protect goods in shipment. The curriculum is one of the first of its kind which was prompted by the rapidly expanding packaging industry.

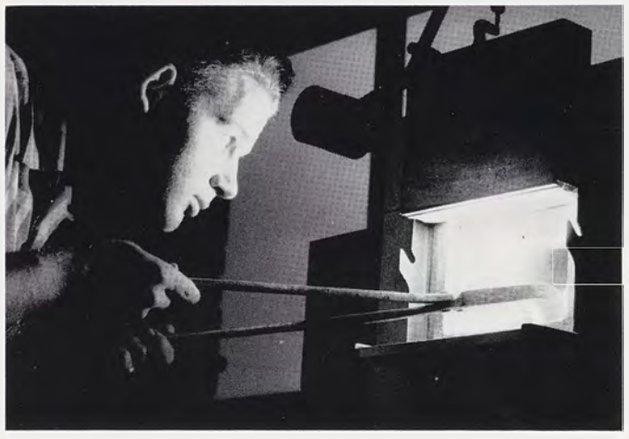


A metallurgical engineering student uses a microscope which is one of his most important tools in crystal analysis of metals.

Behind these practical applications lies years of engineering know-how. Instruction in the College of Engineering is directed toward providing young engineers with the opportunity to discover new knowledge and design machines for the future. The accent is placed upon the "why" rather than upon the "how."

The research program in engineering is being developed as an important part of the over-all educational program. The students are encouraged to develop communication skills in writing and speaking in addition to a fundamental engineering background.

An engineering student heat treats a metal specimen to improve its properties. The College of Engineering provides continuing education opportunities for engineers in the field.



A compressometer is operated by a graduate student who is measuring the resiliency of a blanket. Tests in the textile laboratory determine the best materials for home use.

This family economics class is studying budgeting techniques. The class is required of all home economics majors and, like many home ec courses, prepares students for home and career.

Serving Michigan Women

Eleven years after the first course in engineering was offered, a home economics program was established. A rapid expansion of courses followed and in 1915, the extension program was created.

The College of Home Economics now employs 60 extension agents who reach over 40,000 Michigan women a year. Ten of these are marketing specialists engaged in encouraging consumers to buy Michigan goods.

The college handles the 4-H program for women and sponsors a summer homemakers' conference. Daily radio programs and new releases in home economics are part of the service offered to the women of Michigan.

The first research project undertaken by the college was in food nutrition and that is still the field where most research is done. Projects are carried on in textiles, consumer buying and institutional management which includes a test kitchen in Yakeley Dormitory.

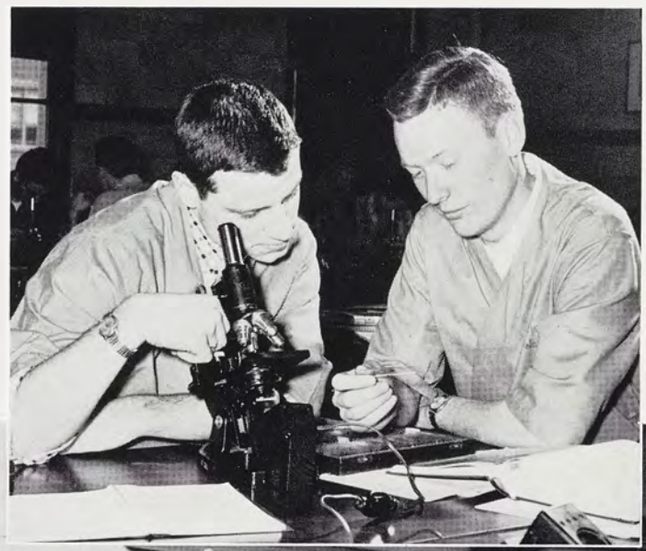
Hospital Expanded

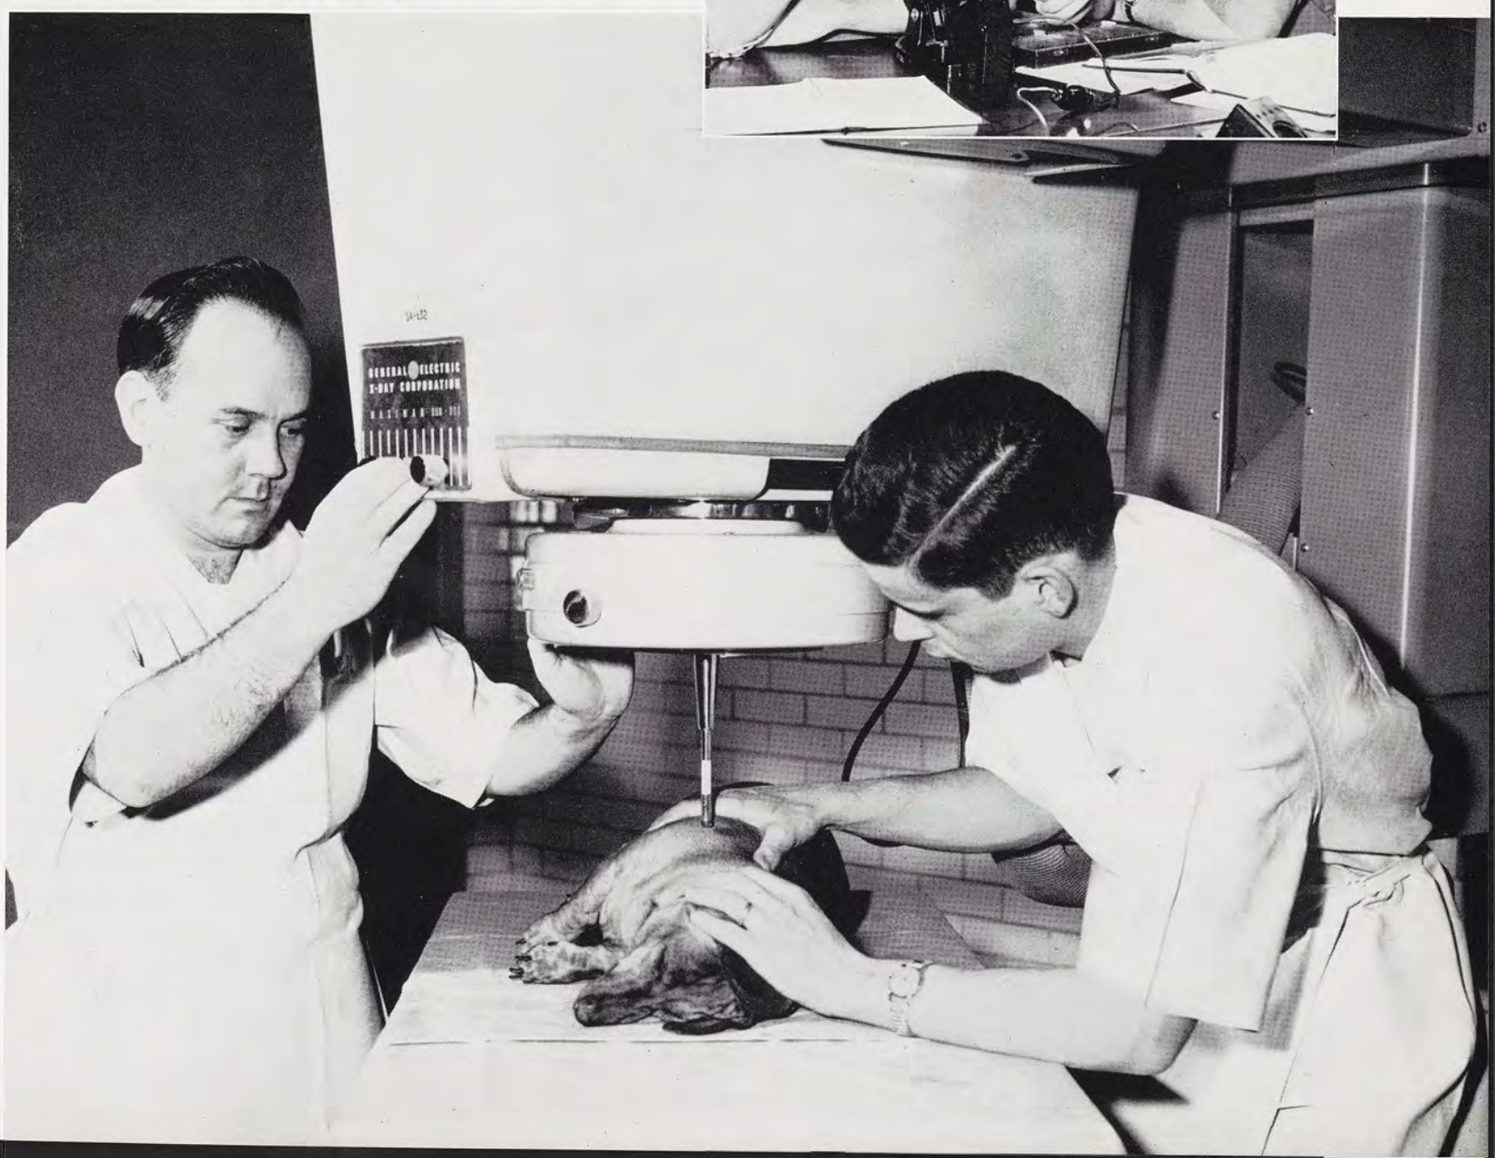
From the kitchen to the farm, State extends its research programs. The College of Veterinary Medicine maintains a farm adjoining the campus which houses animals used in research projects. Most of the actual experiments are conducted in Giltner Hall.

The college also treats animals belonging to private owners. The facilities for diagnosing diseases have recently been expanded.

The curriculum for veterinary students consists of three, two-year periods. During their advanced training, students visit Michigan farms and animal clinics.

An increasing demand for women trained in medical technology led to the establishment of this curriculum.





Right—Vet Med students devote much time to studying animal tissue. Below—Students become familiar with an x-ray therapy unit used in treating both large and small animals.

Upper classmen in geology must be able to identify many types of rock formations in preparation for their future work. Geology is under the division of mathematical and physical sciences.

International Service

The College of Business and Public Service has the distinction of being the largest college on campus. It underwent a recent reorganization and now contains three schools; police administration, social work and hotel, restaurant and institutional management.

The College's public service program has a world-wide effect. In Sao Paulo, Brazil, it has established a program of instruction in business administration. Members of the staff are also assisting the government of Vietnam to reconstruct its governmental structure and set up an educational program.

Dr. Milton Muelder, Dean of the College of Science and Arts, visited the Vietnam project in January and was very enthusiastic about the work being done.

As part of its public service program, the College of Science and Arts provides off-campus courses and assists in many campus conferences. A great deal of the instruction on the educational television program, "University of the Air," is given by the staff.

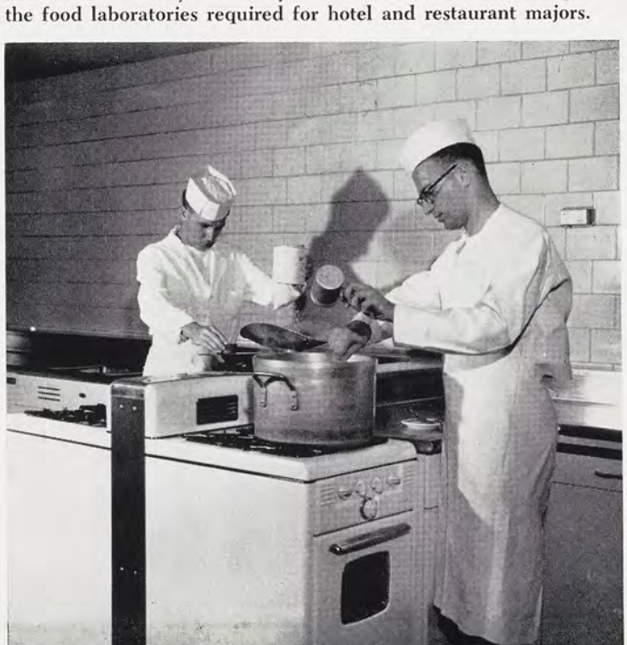
Science and Culture

When asked about the philosophy of the college, Dean Muelder said, "The emphasis of the college is primarily on learning without having a strict regard for the vocational aspects of this learning, recognizing that much of our learning has real application to professions in which students will eventually go. For that reason, we provide the fundamental courses in the sciences, both natural and physical, in humanities and the fine arts."

Men often find they are handy around the kitchen when they take the food laboratories required for hotel and restaurant majors.



Liberal Education for All

To provide a more liberal education for underclassmen is one of the aims of the Basic College. Although every student coming to State finds he must enroll in the four Basic College courses, he is seldom acquainted with other functions of the college.

As a public service, the staff works with adult education groups, including televised courses in connection with the Continuing Education Service. Consultation is frequently given to high school students interested in evaluating their classes.

Service is also provided to other institutions in a counseling capacity, usually helping them to establish a program similar to the Basic College.

For the freshman who has not decided upon his major, the college provides an opportunity to explore several fields. It also provides a counseling service and improvement courses in reading, writing and arithmetic.

Conference Coordinator

Kellogg Center houses the Continuing Education Service which reaches approximately 165,000 people a year. It enables Michigan

Dr. Thomas Greer lectures to his humanities class on the Renaissance period during a slide session. Audio-visual materials acquaint the students with famous art reproductions.

A natural science instructor points out the characteristics of a cathode-ray tube in connection with a lecture on electricity.

A picture of Dave Kaiser will soon appear atop this cake as part of the demonstrations during the Cake Bakers Convention at Kellogg Center winter term. The Continuing Education Service coordinates the activities of all of the visiting conventions.

State to serve as a mid-state meeting place for those interested in catching up on the latest developments in their work.

When a professional group decides to hold a conference at Kellogg Center it must first be co-sponsored by one of the colleges on campus. The Continuing Education Service acts as a coordinator between the organization and the particular college in the development of the educational program.

Another of the activities of the Continuing Education Service is the rapidly growing extension service. Each term there is an increasing number of courses offered by Michigan colleges. The requests for courses come to Continuing Education which investigates the possibility of offering these courses.

Dr. Edward Blackman lectures on Greek Glory, the humanities telecourse, which is part of the University of the Air series presented in cooperation with the Continuing Education Service.

Two education majors give instruction in folk dancing in conjunction with their physical education class.

A basic knowledge in the fundamentals of music is necessary for future teachers, particularly in elementary education.

Aid to Crowded Schools

"Your Growing Child" was a television program presented this year for parents by the College of Education.

The college offers a wide range of service activities. One of its staffs is aiding school officials faced with the problem of booming enrollments. Community surveys are being conducted to enable long-range building and curriculum planning.

A graduate student conducts an experiment in organic chemistry. Graduate research work frequently results in important advances which often lead to future discoveries.

This was the first year of operation under the new structure of the College of Education. All elementary education majors are enrolled in the college, and secondary majors are enrolled jointly with their major and with the College of Education.

There are now four resident student-teaching centers in Michigan. As part of the new program, student teachers will spend a full term in these communities. They teach under a resident supervisor and receive full credit for the term's work.

Unknown Frontiers

Dr. Thomas Osgood, Dean of the School for Advanced Graduate Studies, believes, "It is the work of the graduate to attack the unknown frontier just beyond men's reach.

"Graduate studies frequently aren't of a practical nature but keen minds are necessary to work with these abstract ideas. A different type of mind is needed," he says, "to take these abstract ideas and develop them into practical applications."

BRIGHT flags draped the Auditorium and the man from Indonesia was joking with the man from New Zealand. Seats were hurriedly filled as speakers prepared for talks in front of many microphones. It looked for all the world like a scene from the New York United Nations building. And although it wasn't the real thing, MSU students succeeded in staging a realistic mock UN session last spring as part of the Centennial International Program.

Ambassadors and consuls from New Zealand, Indonesia, Yugoslavia, Greece, the Netherlands and seven other countries discussed problems of current national interest with United States' representatives. Student and faculty members sat down to an informal luncheon with the foreign dignitaries who expressed interest in American university life.

One of the student-controlled functions of the centennial year, UN Day was a highly successful undertaking.

Students from 50 countries blended cultures in a display of customs, rituals and entertainment which turned Demonstration Hall into a "miniature world." Thousands of visitors from all over Michigan viewed such displays as Chinese porcelain products, sports cars and African mahogany statuettes. A diversified program offered everything from a skillful Philippine bamboo dance to the hula. Six continents were represented by the students who dressed in colorful native costumes to demonstrate their homeland skills.

The festival was designed to promote better understanding between U S students and the many different cultures represented on campus. It also gave the public an insight into student relationships.

Coeds Present 'Splashbacks'

Green Splash, women's swimming honorary, went back 100 years into history for its contribution to the centennial program. Entitled "Splash Backs," the show featured a water ballet of past eras and an act that placed second in the Big Ten Synchronized Swimming Competition at the University of Illinois.

The 12 acts, depicting areas from 1855 to 1955, were all student planned and directed. Elaborate and colorful costumes were used for the "Bloomer Girls," "Flappers," "Centennial Tribute" and other skits. Members of Porpoise, men's swimming honorary, joined the coeds in diving routines.

Porpoise fraternity, the national swimming honorary, presented its 12th annual water show, "Aqua Maniacs Go Vaudeville." Emceed by swimming coach Charles McCaffree, the show combined stunts, aerial art, clown diving, tub racing and varsity swimming. Miss Kathy Arnold was crowned Porpoise Queen.

Exhibits, Auto Race

Modern and ancient wonders of engineering were displayed during the seventh annual Engineering Exposition. An exciting micro-midget auto race on Circle Drive featured cars built by students and sponsoring companies. Exhibits ranging from a model irrigation system to a dynamometer fascinated the many spectators who were transported around campus by the tractor-drawn "Jolly Trolley." Miss Engineer, Sue Johnson, presented awards for the various events and reigned at the "May Hop," all-university semi-formal dance.

Jr. 500 Attracts 5,000

The Lambda Chi Alpha Junior 500 Push Cart Derby, one of the most popular springtime events, attracted 5,000 spectators who jammed the sidelines for a glimpse of the runners, drivers and humorous floats. Patterned after the Indianapolis Speedway Race, the Junior 500 was originated on this campus and has since spread to three other schools.

A pre-race parade, featuring living unit queens perched atop convertibles, was the slow overture to the fast-moving race. The speedway atmosphere was highlighted by checkered flags, pylons and official pace car.

Visitors to the engineering exhibits in the chemistry building received souvenir ashtrays made from a student-operated press.

Coed Drivers Added

Excitement and thrills are essential in the event, which combines brain and brawn to produce the speed that determines the trophy-winning team. Coed drivers have also been added and are not far behind the males in top speed.

Frosh-Soph day features several events which have become traditional on campus. This year, freshman rooters lined the Shaw Hall side of Red Cedar to cheer on classmates in canoe races, while sophomore spectators observed the activities from the opposite bank.

Tug-of-War, Snowball Fight

A 200-foot rope was used for the tug-of-war. The centipede race on the chilly November day was cancelled, which prompted a spontaneous snowball fight. The traditional tree-sitting contest between the two class presidents ended in a tie. Clad in hunting clothes and supplied with coffee to ward off below-freezing temperature, both presidents spent 14 consecutive hours in a large maple tree near the Union. The event has been a ritual since 1920. It began as a means to determine whether freshmen would continue to wear "Beanies." Beanies were ruled out and competition was started for ownership of the brown jug trophy.

This year's frosh-soph contest ended in a tie, and last year the sophomores won for the first time in five years.

Weekends Break Study Grind

Years Result from Coke Dates, L-C Programs and Dances

By MYRA MACPHERSON
Wolverine Copy Editor

FRIDAY, so the dictionary defines, is the sixth day of the week. Most students have a better definition—the first day of the weekend.

Weekends mean a lot to students—and from Friday afternoon TGIF-ing to Monday morning eight o'clocks, the emphasis is on social life.

Big dances, football games, ski weekends, small record dances, term parties and shows are attended with equal abandon, as books are put away for a few days.

But it doesn't take just the weekends and big functions. Few excuses are needed for an hour or two of dating or socializing. Coke dates are sandwiched in between classes, study dates in the library are arranged during the week. TV time at the house, a quiet walk on campus, even a ten-minute class break are part of these quick meetings—and some pinned and engaged couples even arrange a class or two together.

Crisp, golden fall term with its football games and post-parties whipped Spartan social life into action. There was the hectic MSU-U of M weekend at Ann Arbor and parties with our "friendly enemies" after the game. Thousands of students saw the "Spartan Review," applauding the Gaylords and a banjo player after yelling exuberantly at a successful pep rally for the Notre Dame game.

Many couples were content just to watch Ralph Marterie and his orchestra perform during the ROTC Coronation Ball winter term.

This dance program will go up on her bulletin board for the rest of the year. Ralph Marterie chatted with many of the couples.

"Fantasia" was the theme of the 1956 J-Hop. Les Elgart's Orchestra provided the music as thousands of dancers filled the Aud.

'Fantasia', 'Cinderella's Knight'

Lecture-Concert programs were big social activities fall term, as long ticket lines for top shows indicated. The ROTC formal dance, "Coronation Ball," ended campus activities for fall term.

Whether New Year's Eve was spent at home or in Los Angeles, students enjoyed a two-week Christmas break and then returned for a long, cold and snowy winter term.

Basketball games were well attended and were usually followed by bridge games, record dances, or double dates for coffee.

A term that might have been rather long and tedious was livened up with many formal functions. More than 6,000 students swayed to the music of Les Elgart's orchestra at the fabulous "Fantasia" J-Hop held February 10 and 11.

Then it was turn about time—and the coeds opened doors and treated men to cokes on Knight's Day. Huge corsages sprouted from suit lapels as coeds took their favorite dates to "Cinderella's Knight" and danced to the music of Buddy Morrow's orchestra. The annual Spinsters' Spin was doubly successful this leap year.

Bandages, casts and crutches were frequent attire on campus last winter. An exceptional snowy season kept the slopes of Cabrefae dotted with State students, some of whom ended up in Olin Memorial.

More organized events such as Forester's Shindig, term plays, fraternity and dorm term parties were also popular winter term.

Union Board Week

Union Board Week brightened up the Union Building in March. The grill was packed with students who took advantage of the reduced prices on cokes and coffee. They also kibitzed with the Union Board of Directors who were soda jerks for the event.

"Safari," the Union Board fashion show, took spectators around the world as International styles were modeled by 30 women and 20 men. A peppy variety show featuring the Charleston, tap dancing, a vocal quintet, chorus lines and even a "Boop-Boop-I-Do" girl brought back a fascinating era for students. "Azure Te," an all-college dance, climaxed the week.

The Union Building was a hub of activity and a haven for couples winter term. The bowling alley, billiards room, main lounge, third-floor music room and grill were never without occupants during the Union's open hours.

When spring vacation came, students who finished exams on the first day, registered on the last day and could beg or borrow the money were down in sunny Florida.

Warm days of spring term encouraged out-of-door activities. Informal picnics, swimming, canoeing, tennis, golf—or for the less strenuous—walks along the Red Cedar suddenly became important.

Movies were well attended — and lines wound around a city block when the "Man with the Golden Arm" came to the State Theatre. Students bought or played the theme music and "Molly-O" record for weeks afterward. Spartacade, Water Carnival and other spring functions were well attended. Seniors had several farewell get-togethers following Swingout and other class activities. Graduating senior coeds took advantage of their coveted 11 pm weekday permissions and everyone had a hard time concentrating on classes and homework.

A Wednesday afternoon coke date or a weekend dinner-dance, a movie date with a "friend of a friend" or a library date with a steady, a freshman mixer or a senior farewell party—only college offers such a variety of social activities. That is why State students consider their social life such a vital part of a well-rounded four years in college.

A Million Guests Attended MSU's Centennial Open House

A UNIVERSITY shook hands with the United States last year. . . .

MSU was the university, and it played host to an estimated one-million alumni and friends from the 48 states during its Centennial celebration. Such annual events as Homecoming Week-end, Farmers' Week and Parents' Day combined with special programs and conventions to attract these visitors.

About 26,000 alumni came home to join in Homecoming Week-end observances, highlighted by the "March of Memories" parade. Thirty-two colorful floats replaced the usual house and dorm displays. The spectacle depicting the past, present and future thrilled thousands who lined Michigan and Grand River Avenues in Lansing and East Lansing.

Included among the viewers were Grand Marshal, Philadelphia Phillies pitcher Robin Roberts, class of '45, and Honorary Grand Marshal Milton M. Marble who, at the age of 100, is the university's oldest living alumnus.

Ignoring the crisp touch of wintry weather, students rode on the floats for the more than three-mile parade route. Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Chi Omega took first prize for their float, "A Guide to Our Goals," with Beaumont

Banquets, pep rallies, trips around campus and workshop sessions were part of the week-end. Capping the celebration were the first Homecoming banquet at Shaw Hall and the annual dance in the Auditorium featuring Johnny Long's orchestra.

An attention-getter in the parade was a horse-drawn carriage.

With the parade over, the floats were left on display next to Phillips Hall for the afternoon.

Students in raccoon coats and flapper dresses revive a past era as they greet parents during Parents' Weekend festivities.

Last year's Parents' Weekend in May included the largest and most elaborate program of its history. About 3,800 parents came for the two-day affair which included the annual Green and White football game, the 10th Annual International Festival and the Sorority Sing.

Students greeted parents with tours, coffee hours and open houses at fraternities, sororities and dorms. And the "Collegiate Comeback" party-dance in the Union Ballroom was strictly for parents.

Special alum activities were held during commencement weekend in June as a record number of graduates and friends returned to the campus. Nearly 800 gathered in Shaw Hall for a reunion luncheon and the awarding of 19 Centennial and four Honorary Alumni Citations.

Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, delivered the keynote address at commencement exercises held in Macklin Field stadium before nearly 20,000 persons.

Latest Farming Techniques

As the first institution to teach agriculture as a science, MSU has always been a source for the latest in farming techniques and research. Some 40,000 attended the 41st annual Farmers' Week in January, 1956. Speakers, banquets, demonstrations, meetings and contests rounded out a full week of activities centered around the theme, "Science Serves Agriculture." Guest speakers included Earl L. Butz, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, and L. L. Rummell, Dean of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Educators, philosophers, welders, restaurant operators, scientists—100,000 men and women from all walks of life traveled to the campus during the Centennial year for major national conferences.

Land-Grant Conference

A cross-section of the nation's outstanding educators gathered in November for the 69th annual convention of the Association of Land-Grant Colleges and Universities and studied "Liberal and Practical Education for Free Men." Representing colleges and universities enrolling about 450,000 students, they formulated basic policies governing the future of the Land-Grant schools.

About 1,200 National Flying Farmers came to East Lansing in 400 planes for their annual conference in August.

Such mass visits to the campus posed major housing problems throughout the year, as Butterfield dorm residents soon found out. The university set aside 100 rooms in Butterfield during the entire year for guests because Kellogg Center could not accommodate all visitors.

In November, the entire dorm was taken over by the Land-Grant conference guests and regular residents doubled up with students in other dormitories.

MSU, a tired but successful host, said goodby to its last Centennial visitors in December, 1955. It then settled back for a more normal, but less exciting, college year.

Campus Chest Ran 'Hot and Cold' through Public Support

By BARBRA ZUEGE

IN one rocky year, from spring term 1955 to spring term 1956, Campus Chest has staged record breaking events—and has also suffered several crushing setbacks.

Changes were made in the program of Campus Chest this year and more changes are probable in the future.

Campus Chest was organized in 1949 to make things easier for the student body—to integrate into one central organization all campaigns for charity. The money made from activities sponsored by the Chest does not go to the organization itself but to eight charity groups—World University Service, Lansing Community Chest, Spartan Nursery, National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students, American Cancer Society, Ingham County Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Muscular Dystrophy Association and Olympic Fund.

Spring term 1955 got off to a good start for Campus Chest. Spartacade, the annual charity carnival and the chest's largest money-making activity, was a smashing success. Student interest made it the "biggest Spartacade ever." Three records were set at the carnival—records of which Campus Chest and all Spartans can be proud. The combined efforts of 64 living units resulted in the erection of 32 booths which circled the field house and overflowed into the center. A crowd of 7800 spectators jammed the aisles and set a financial record of $5,600.

"Slop Stop," the Dolly Trolley, pulls into view. The idea won third place for Chi Omega and Delta Tau Delta.

Spartacade Successful

After the tremendous success of Spartacade, things looked good for charities and for Campus Chest. Student Congress reorganized the chest's personnel structure for more efficiency, and members looked forward to more progress.

Later that term, the Student-Faculty Auction proved a big disappointment. This event, at which the services of student entertainers and workers and faculty members are sold, failed. Only a handful of students showed up and less than half of the auctionees reached the block before the sale, sponsored by Green Helmet, was called off. Total profit was only $65 as compared to $606.75 contributed in 1954.

"Gallon Clubbers" look at a pint of blood held by Mike Getto, co-chairman of the winter term blood drive. Both students each gave a pint of blood in the three-day all-university contest.

Fall Brings Problems

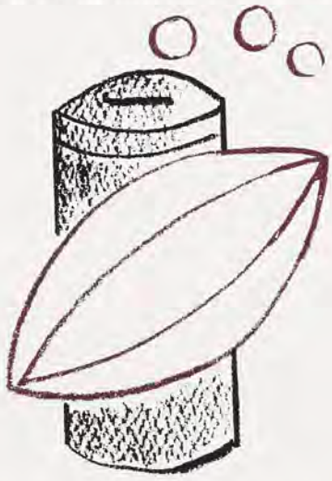
Fall term 1955 brought one successful event to Campus Chest—and also several difficult problems.

The week of November 4 was a high spot for the leaders of the organization, for the fall-term solicitation campaign set a new record. Student contributions from both the on-campus and living-unit campaigns were high. Profits from food sold on the Purdue football train and contributions from the Inter-Fraternity Council also helped raise the totals.

The final count showed Campus Chest $4851.13 richer, surpassing the 1954 fall drive by $300.

Spartacade and Campus Chest received a crushing blow last fall when the Inter-Fraternity Council withdrew from the carnival.

Other campus groups, such as Pan-Hellenic Council and the Veteran's Association, pledged their support, however, and plans for Spartacade continued on a smaller scale. The annual carnival was not dropped and Spartacade opened with 16 booths in April, 1956.



After it's all over, blood donors get doughnuts and coffee from a Red Cross worker, on the fourth floor of the Union Building.

IFC President George Snyder hands a check to Campus Chest Director Bob O'Hara. The fraternities, who did not participate in Spartacade, pledged their money to the campus charity group.

Donors in the all-university charity drive receive "I Carried the Ball for Campus Chest" tags after dropping their coins in canisters held by coeds Judy Ricketts and Marjorie Romick.

UMOC Faded

The Ugliest Man on Campus Contest, which had been a success last year, also faded fall term. The living units voted to combine the contest with Spartacade, but the UMOC contest was side-tracked completely winter term in the confusion of trying to plan a Spartacade without the full support of all living units.

In February, students donated 1,789 pints of blood to the Red Cross blood drive. Although this drive broke no records, it far exceeded the 837 pints collected fall term.

The Chest tried something new winter term by sponsoring the student musical, "Good News." The idea behind the show indicates that Campus Chest is looking for new and more diversified activities to stimulate interest.

It seemed impossible that everything could be ready in a few hours for the 1955 Water Carnival. But it was, and that June night, 32 floats glided past a record crowd without a hitch. It was the first opening of the show in two years without rain.

In addition to the floats carrying out the "Sense and Nonsense" theme, water sports such as canoe racing, log burling and variety acts comprised the show. Winding up last year's activities, the three-night carnival attracted 8,500 persons.

Alpha Omicron Pi and Delta Chi placed third in the Water Carnival contest with their serious float. A divided world carries out their theme, "Why Have Two When One Will Do?"

Although not a winner, Chi Omega's and Delta Sigma Phi's float was impressive. Second place winners were Delta Zeta and Alpha Gamma Rho with "Variety is the Spice of Life," and Phi Mu and Phi Kappa Psi won honorable mention at the senior class event.

At last fall's annual Activities Carnival, eighty organizations tried to show that there's a club for everyone at MSU. Booths and students lined Macklin Stadium Concourse as information on everything from skiing to flying an airplane was passed on to 4,000 interested Spartans.

A month later, came Career Carnival. Aimed at students looking beyond today's school activities, the two-day carnival attracted 15,000 career shoppers. Representatives of 72 companies from Washington to Maine explained job opportunities for prospective graduates.

After countless hours of bouncing on trampolines and swinging through the air, members of the Acrobatics Club brought the Spartan Circus to campus last spring. Trampoline, juggling and tumbling, aerial ballets and unicycle acts were excellently and professionally performed by the students.

'Michigan Dream' Fulfills MSU Dream

Bagpipes, Ballet, Baritones and Just a Touch of Broadway

By JACKIE OLDHAM

EVERY university dreams of putting on a supercolossal show entirely its own—from the first written musical note to the last performance and curtain call.

MSU did it in 1955. "Michigan Dream," the university's answer to Hollywood and Broadway extravaganzas, was staged in honor of MSU's 100th year.

The premier performance in May followed a year and a half of work. The more than 100 students in the cast rehearsed every week-day night for months. At the final rehearsals, little mishaps occurred. Boys bowed—and too tight pants gave way. Dancers leaped—and tops separated from bottoms. But at the tense, hectic opening it went off perfectly. The entirely MSU-written, produced and directed show was a success.

Mantovani lifted his baton and the 1955-56 Lecture-Concert Series opened on the trembling notes of the British conductor's "New Music."

Days before the orchestra leader walked on the stage, however, the students were showing symptoms of "Mantovani madness." Ticket lines stretched from the Union concourse to Circle Drive, and campus police were called to quiet the mob. Finally, Dean Stanley Crowe, director of the series, opened Fairchild Theater as well as the Aud to accommodate more students. The tickets were gone in two and one-half hours.

Tickets for the next two concerts were again sold out on the first day, but without the need for campus police.

"Give the Fiddler a Dram," a lively folk dance, had the "Michigan Dream" chorus hopping.

Above—Peter Leszczynski and Sally Graves spend a peaceful interlude practicing "Dream of a Lumberjack" on the family tote wagon at "Michigan Dream" rehearsals. Right—Joan Sundstrom is swept off her feet by Warren Emrick, who played the lead role of Peter Homan, the dreamer.

Both the Aud and Fairchild were filled when Mantovani arrived with his "trembling strings."

Ballets, New Risers

"Ballet Espagnol" filled the Aud with the staccato beat of castanets and sad, piercing Flamenco music. "Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo" left the memory of an exquisite Pas de Deux by its stars, Alicia Alonso and Igor Youskevitch. However, the main floor audience couldn't see the dancers' feet because the seats are not on ascending levels.

With the help of Dean Crowe and the prodding of the State News editorials and letters, plans were made for the main floor seats to be put on graduated risers, which would be moved in for concerts. They will be ready for use in the fall.

Former CBS news analyst Dwight Cooke visited the Aud fall term and predicted that Adlai Stevenson would be the man to watch in this year's presidential campaign.

The man in black is supposedly invisible, according to the tradition of the Japanese dance-theater. He helps make on-stage costume changes for an Azuma Kabuki dancer.

From politics, the L-C series turned to a more harmonious subject. Mimi and Rodolph sang out their tragic love affair as the New York City Opera Company produced Puccini's "La Boheme." The second night's performance of Strauss' "Die Fledermaus" showed a decrease in attendance. Many students went home that night because an extra day was added to Thanksgiving vacation as a Rose Bowl bonus.

Lecture-Concert goers were greeted by the skirl of bagpipes when the Scots Guard Band came to town. It was another popular troupe, and for the second time that term both Fairchild and the Aud were opened for the crowd.

Term play time arrived, and with it a problem in casting. Student actors were plentiful but the drama department searched high and low until they found a cat with the personality, build and poise to play Pyewacket, a starring role in "Bell, Book and Candle."

Rounding out the fall term, the Santa Cecelia Choir of Rome mixed their voices in the counterpoint of Palestrina.

Special Featured Winter Term

L-C specials were frequent winter term, beginning with the poignant "Tea and Sympathy." From the sublime they turned to Broadway comedy in "Anniversary Waltz," and then to the uproariously ridiculous with Victor Borge.

The Boston Pops Tour Orchestra opened the regular schedule. A behind-the-scenes audience on the Fairchild side had an unusual view of the active life of a percussionist—running from triangle to drum.

Actor Henry Hull gave students an "Evening with Mark Twain" and left them with the observation—"To do good is noble. But to show others how to do good is more noble—and less trouble."

Suzanne Ames, the madwoman, points at Paul Moore, who has the thankless task of defending all the evil people on the world.

Oriental Splendor

Western humor then gave way to oriental splendor as the Azuma Kabuki Dancers of Japan arrived with samisens and kotos and several tons of exotic costumes and scenery.

Two foreign news editors for Time magazine, Eldon Griffith and Sam Halper, switched the L-C focus to the Middle East. "The trouble there is the result of the countries' growing pains," they said.

Ray Middleton, baritone and an actor, wandered from Stephen Foster's south to the America of Stephen Vincent Benet. He confided that one of his favorite performances was a recitation of the Gettysburg Address at the Gettysburg Cemetery in an old suit of Lincoln's.

From months of research and recollections of a visit to Paris, a graduate student built a part of the world-famous city in Fairchild for the winter term play, "Madwoman of Chaillot." Theater-goers saw the down-at-the-heels suburb of Chaillot and watched the "madwomen" neatly and charmingly dispose of the world's evil people.

The Aud again became a concert hall for violinist Zino Francescatti's performance. He didn't play to a packed house, but when he finished, the audience gave him a standing ovation.

With finals almost upon them, students just managed to squeeze in the last of the series—the magnificent singing of Marian Anderson, the chamber music of the Virtuosi de Roma and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Toyshop Theater, a university service overseen by MSU students, produced "The Wizard of Oz" spring term.

One of the most televised groups on campus this year was the Michigan State Men's Glee Club. The club appeared before TV cameras on two national and two local shows.

The group flew to New York City during the holiday season and spent four days performing concerts. Singing of a three-minute medley of carols Christmas night on the "Toast of the Town" show highlighted their tour.

Later in the year, the Glee Club appeared on other national TV hook-ups and sang many times over local stations in Lansing and Grand Rapids.

An unusual occasion was the filming of a half-hour Christmas show by WKAR-TV which was aired by most of the Michigan stations.

The annual Spring Concert in the Auditorium, May Morning Sing and spring tours were other activities which kept club members busy.

For the third year in a row, the singers met for a week before fall registration to learn the repertoire for the coming year. Last fall, the club held its workshop at MSU's biological station at the Kellogg estate on Gull Lake.

Only a few of the Glee Club members are music majors and no class credit is given for the activity. Their cooperation exemplifies the club motto, "sing for the sheer joy of singing."

One of the annual appearances of the Men's Glee Club is at May Morning Sing. The event, which honors freshman and junior women, was originally sponsored by the music department.

The approximately 50 members of the MSU Orchestra spend many hours practicing for their concerts each term. Most of the members are music majors who enjoy the opportunity of exhibiting their musical techniques studied in class.

▲ Orchestra

Members of the Orchestra begin work on their fall concert early in the term. The musicians must audition for positions in the Orchestra each year regardless whether they participated in previous years.

The Orchestra presents many concerts throughout the year. In February it gave an honors concert followed by a social gathering. Spring term the Orchestra and the Choir combine their talents in presenting a spring concert.

Women's Glee Club ▼

The Women's Glee Club has made many public appearances during the past year. During the holidays it presented a concert at the Alumni Chapel. Winter term the club entertained the boys at the vocational school.

A performance was given for the Faculty Folk Women spring term. The singers also presented a program which was televised by the campus TV station. Approximately 75 coeds make up the ranks of the Glee Club.

Marching Band Brings Glory to MSU

Our "Musical Missionaries" Impressed Half a Continent

ROULETTE wheels and card games were forgotten for a few minutes as everyone in Las Vegas rushed into the streets to watch MSU's marching band in December.

Denver, Colorado, doesn't allow bands to parade through its streets, but officials changed a city ordinance to let the highstepping Spartans march as scheduled.

The band's trip west for the Rose Bowl was filled with such exciting parades. But hours of routine practice came before the fun.

The marching band started its year two weeks before fall term began. The unique "kick-step" and 200 marching steps per minute were drilled over and over.

Excited bandsmen inspect the engine before boarding the train to return from the University of Wisconsin game at Madison.

The marching band reviews its formations, which include 200 steps per minute, before one of the five home game shows.

The "Marching Green and White" performed on the football fields of the Universities of Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan. About 1,800 high school bandsmen and State's band paid tribute to Dr. Edwin Franko Goldman, leading band director and march composer, at the annual Band Day. This was one of five home game half-time shows last fall.

While other students were home preparing for the Rose Bowl trip, marching band members were still on campus practicing for their western tour. In Los Angeles, the band gave concerts in Pershing Square and on the Ambassador Hotel's lawn and appeared on Bob Crosby's TV show.

At Rose Bowl half-time, the band performed a unique number using toy trumpets and bells. After the game, the band was completely surrounded by fans on the field and jubilantly performed dances, playing for 45 minutes.

En route home, the Tucson "Vigilantes" met the band with gun shots, held a mock trial and "strung up" the drum major. With a change of heart, Tucson residents gave band members Mexican sombreros which they wore in the city's parade. A brief stop over in El Paso, Texas, was just long enough for bandsmen to cross the Mexican border for a look at Juarez.

Band activities didn't end with the Rose Bowl trip. The concert band performed in winter and spring concerts and made numerous out-of-town musical trips to Michigan cities.

WKAR-TV

Inmates in the Michigan Reformatory at Ionia gather around a TV set listening to classical music.

This is but one of many groups who study music, botany, physics, public speaking and other courses offered to people far removed from the classrooms of Michigan State. These people acquire university-level knowledge through the facilities of the university's educational television station, WKAR-TV.

Now in its third year of telecasting, WKAR-TV is the third oldest educational TV station in the country.

On the air week-day afternoons and evenings, WKAR-TV offers programs for the farmer, homemaker, businessman and hobbyist. Programs of music, dance, dramatics, news, sports and remote telecasts of athletic, political and special events complete the well-rounded programming schedule of the station.

Mornings, the station's facilities are used by television majors who work with some of the finest equipment in the industry. Students also work on aired shows, which furthers their television experience and helps to maintain the operation of Channel 60 in East Lansing.

Television majors spend long hours in the WKAR-TV control booth as they become familiar with the problems of production.

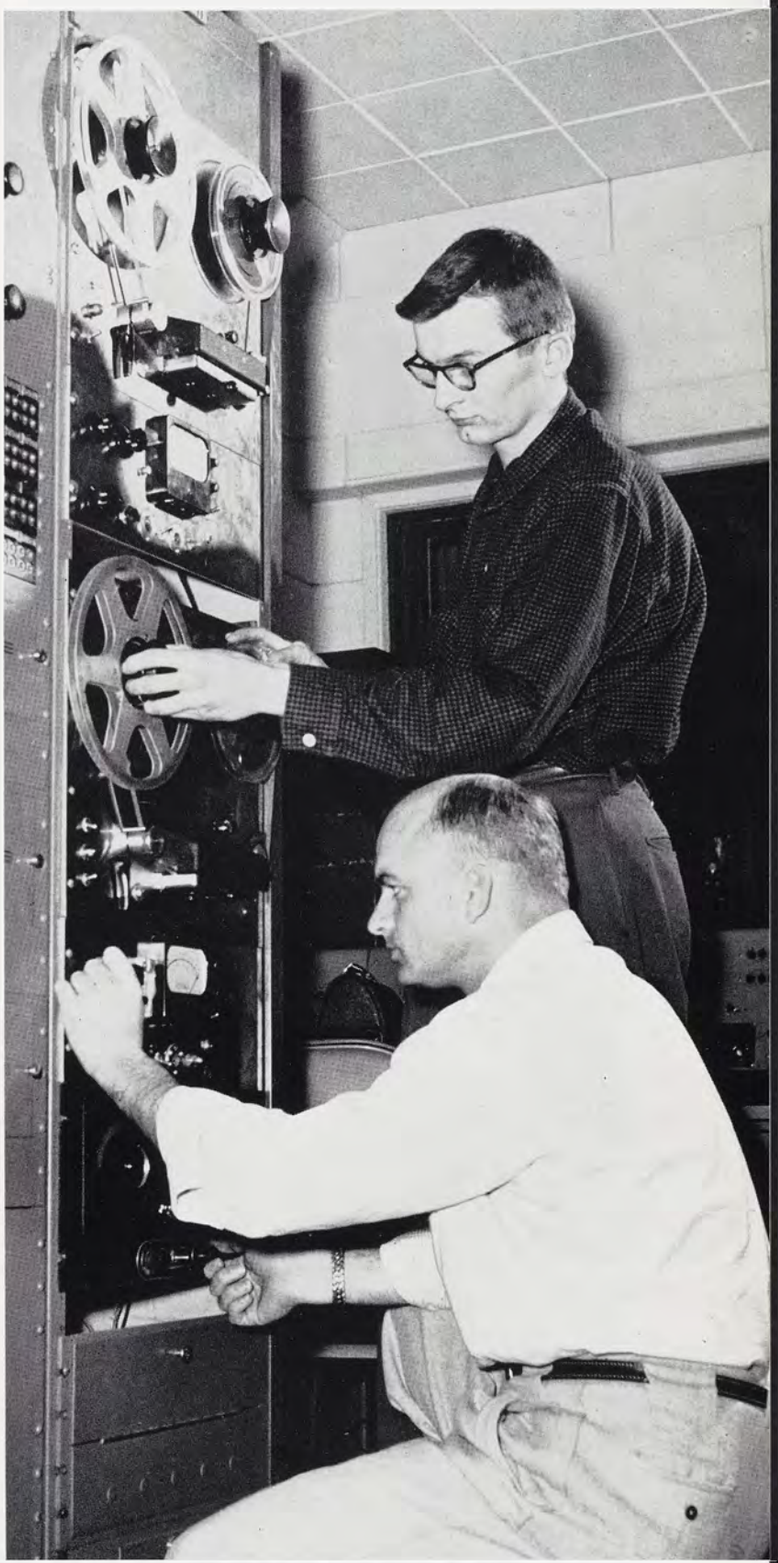
Cameras prepare to roll as WKAR-TV crewmen make last minute adjustments before shooting an afternoon television show. Two students are being featured in this program which gives television majors an opportunity to make their first appearance.

WKAR

Michigan State points with pride to its radio station, WKAR. Licensed in 1922, it is the third oldest radio station in Michigan, covering more than 78 percent of the total population of the state.

Serving the public's interest, WKAR devotes its programming to shows for children, homemakers, businessmen and farmers. News, educational and informative programs, MSU sports events and musical shows are included in the weekly program schedule. Many of these shows are taped and sent to other radio stations in Michigan.

Students play an important role at WKAR. About 20 students interested in radio careers are employed as part-time announcers, writers and production personnel. "Spartan Playhouse", a weekly half-hour dramatic show, is completely student directed and acted.



Dick Estell and Lowell Miller thread a tape of programs into a recording machine for broadcast from the WKAR studios.

Ben Au selects a series of long-play records for his evening program over WKAR which also includes news and weather.

Green Flags Have Double Meaning

Compulsory Military Training Isn't New to Spartan Men

By EDWARD PARDON
Wolverine Editor

ALTHOUGH frequent spring rains are a main source of complaint around MSU, a sudden downpour on Tuesday afternoons is welcomed by most Spartan males, for this means no ROTC parades.

One hears much grumbling about "part-time soldiering," but despite the complaints concerning Tuesday parades, 8 o'clock drills, and scorching hot summer camps, the men realize the importance of this military training.

Michigan State has been instructing its students in military procedure since pre-Civil War days—improving and expanding its department as the years progressed.

Last spring, the university graduated more than 250 cadets who were commissioned as reserve officers in the United States Army and Air Force.

Colonel Harry W. Gorman of the Army and Colonel Glendon V. Davis of the Air Force head the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. All Spartan men except veterans must complete the basic two-year ROTC course. The advanced two-year course is optional.

The Army organization offers the branch general program. Under this system each cadet receives the same basic training, but during his senior year he is assigned to the branch in which he will receive his commission.

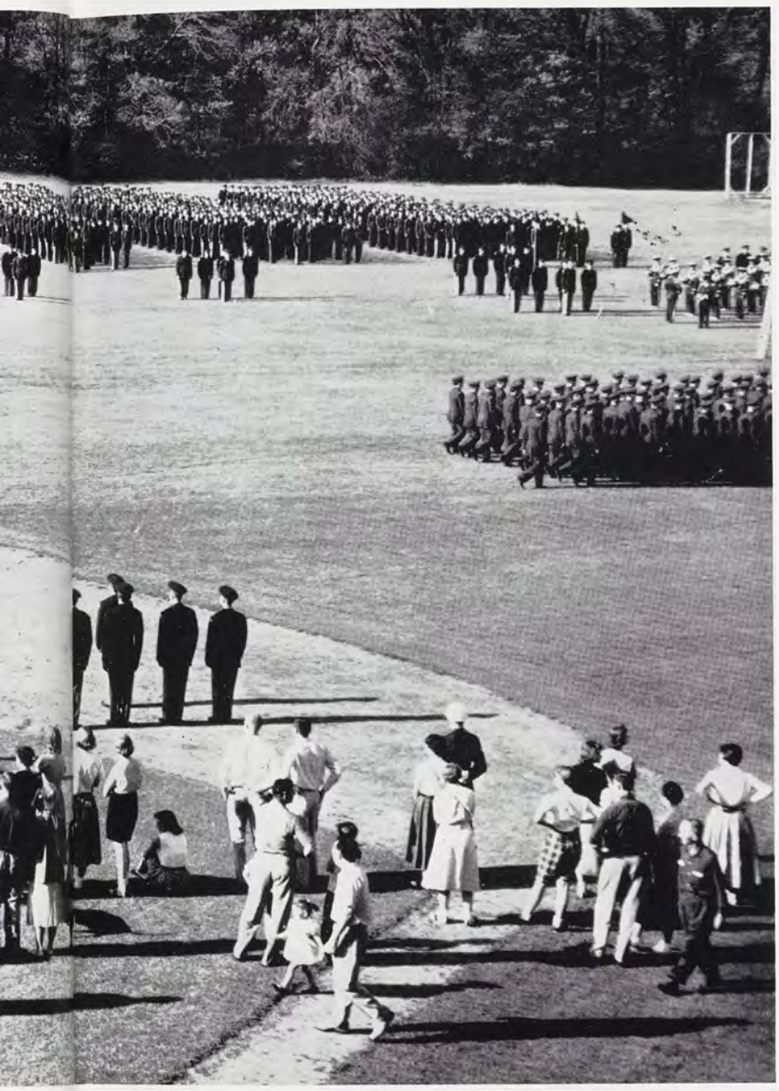
Spring term complete command of the cadet brigade is handled by cadet officers, giving them a chance to learn the responsibilities and duties of an officer.

Advanced Army cadets must attend a six-week summer camp between their junior and senior years where they receive first-hand training in leadership, tactics and weapons.

Army ROTC cadets conduct a "Moot Trial" as part of their senior class course in Military Justice.

The cadet corps on parade at MSU. Spring term Tuesday afternoons are reserved for parades.

Professor Roy Underwood, head of the Department of Music, visited Army ROTC summer camp at Fort Campbell, Kentucky, with a group of educators. MSU cadets display an automatic rifle for Underwood and Col. Gorman, PMS&T.



The Air Force program is similar except that it prepares cadets primarily as flying officers or as engineers.

Because of this, Colonel Davis has placed great emphasis on visits to Air Force Bases and weekend orientation flights. The C-45's at Capital City Airport are training aids for these flights and the instructor is an Air Force pilot from the cadre.

Advance Air Force cadets must also attend summer camp where they receive additional information and orientation for active duty.

The December Coronation Ball, an all-university dance, is co-sponsored by the Officers' Club and Arnold Air Society. Honorary Cadet Colonels were caped at intermission —Dee Owen for the Army and Jan Kwaiser for the Air Force.

A special commissioning ceremony ended the ROTC program for senior cadets in the spring of 1955. Major General P. D. Ginder, commander of Camp McCoy, Wisconsin, and Major General R. A. Grussendoff, commander of headquarters 10th Air Force, Selfridge Air Force Base, handed out commissions.

Michigan State has aided in answering our country's need for trained military men —and as long as this need persists, the university will continue to prepare its young men to serve their country.

Col. Davis capes Martha Mast, one of the Air Force's Honorary Cadet Colonels during ceremonies at the Coronation Ball.

Future Plans, the Present Tense

By GENE RITZINGER

IF Berkey Hall, that prima donna of campus academic buildings, could experience human emotion, it would turn green with envy.

For in a few years, it will have a rival—one that will be bigger, better, and more beautiful than Berkey ever was.

Nobody knows the name of Berkey's rival yet. Not a spadeful of earth has been displaced for its construction. The legislature hasn't appropriated a dime for it.

But some day—say in five to ten years—Basic College students headed for south campus classes will have company—upperclassmen majoring in education, accounting, economics, business.

Their common destination will be a gigantic brick and glass, L-shaped building housing the Basic College, the College of Business and Public Service and the School of Education.

Many spacious practice rooms are now available for students in the recently finished university Music Building addition.

Berkey's rival will be impressive, but it will be only another addition to MSU's already sprawling and ever-growing campus.

Just completed is a $4,000,000 library, one of the largest and most modern in the nation.

It has shelf space for 1,000,000 volumes, provides seating space for 2,400 undergraduate students and special study provisions for 700 graduate students and faculty.

An Animal Industries Building is nearing completion on south campus. It will provide the most modern instructional and research facilities for the Departments of Dairy, Animal Husbandry and Poultry. Even a model creamery is included.

To be completed this fall is a $2,600,000 project providing 312 apartment units for married students. MSU now leads all other universities in the amount of housing for married students.

Dormitory facilities for 5,500 single men and 4,100 single women already exist, the largest number of students housed on one campus anywhere in the nation.

More dormitories are being rushed to completion. The last three living units of the Brody group will be ready for occupancy this fall.

When completed this $13,400,000 project will provide housing for 4,000 men in six living units, plus dining and recreational facilities in a large central unit.

An addition has been added to the Music Building, Olin Memorial Hospital is being expanded, a new bridge is being erected across the Red Cedar, work will start soon on a Student Activities Building, Kellogg Center has been expanded, an addition to Macklin Stadium has been authorized.

More than a million volumes and numerous study spots are found in the three-floor library.

The Animal Industries Building marks the beginning of the huge South Campus expansion program.

Why this tremendous expansion? Why this never-ending construction? The answers lie in current enrollment statistics and predicted future enrollment.

A year ago 30,000 students were predicted for 1970. But in fall term, 1955, a record 17, 176 students enrolled and forecasters realized future enrollments would rise even faster than predicted.

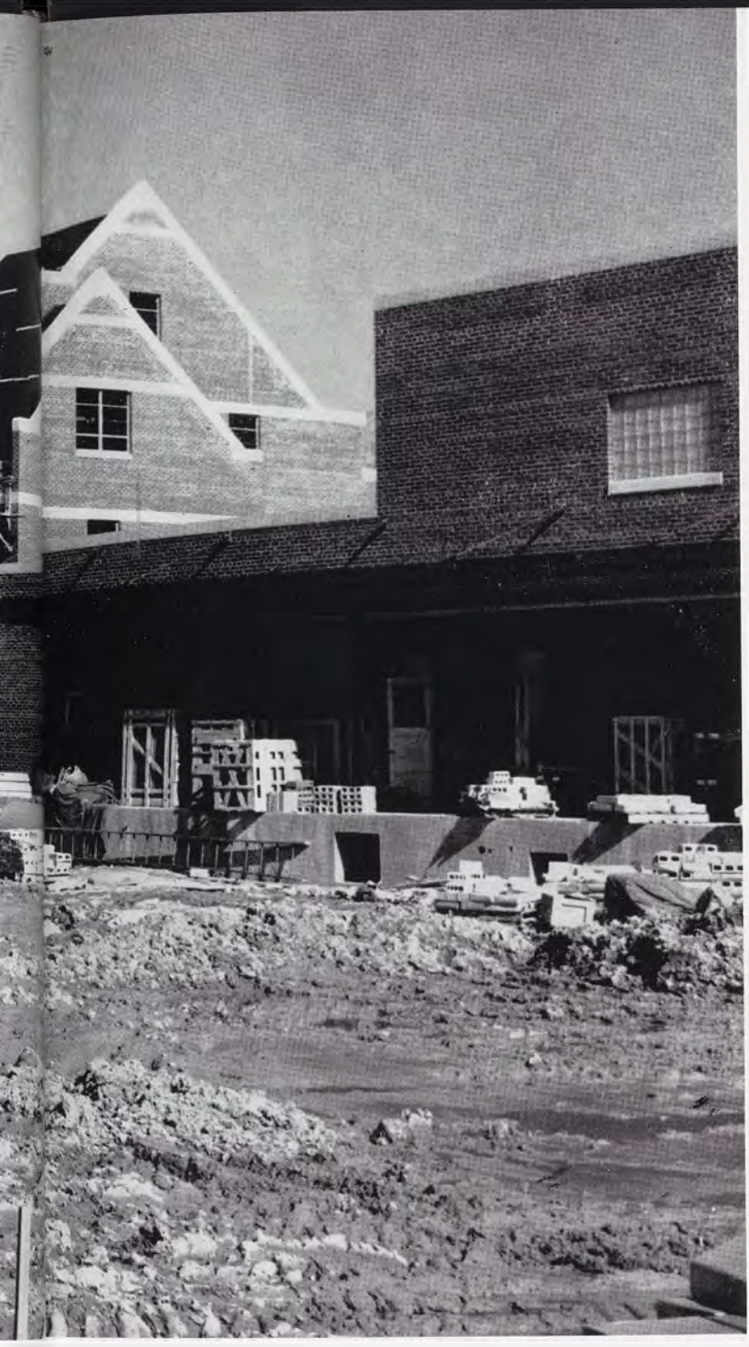
Now their guess is that 35,000 students will flood the campus in just 15 years. How all of them will be accommodated is a problem that hasn't been decided. But the problem is being tackled by long range planning.

Responsible in large measure for MSU's future physical appearance will be Harold W. Lautner, head of the Landscape Architecture Department. Lautner thinks and talks almost exclusively in the future tense.

In his office is a large and detailed map of the campus and surrounding property owned by the university. It is divided into three colored areas; blue to indicate academic and research areas, green to indicate housing and brown to show athletic areas.

Lautner talks of non-existent but planned buildings as if they already existed.

"Here," he says, pointing to a blue spot on



Brick apartments will soon replace all of the wooden barracks built during the war years. The University Village apartments were built with student needs in mind.

Workmen use an airhammer in removing the concrete wall at the end of the stadium as part of the project to enlarge the seating capacity to accommodate the increasing enrollment.

the map, "is the College of Communication Arts Building. The band shell is there now, but we're going to move that over here," and his finger moves to a spot near Shaw Hall.

"The engineering buildings are in this area," continues Lautner, indicating a large space southwest of the Animal Industries Building. "We had to put them there. There just wasn't enough room in the old location."

Looking at a group of small buildings drawn in the area east of Bogue Street, now occupied by the Pinetum picnic grounds, Lautner says, "That's where we figure we might put new married housing and dormitories."

And he continues. . ."Jenison will be expanded so that it will be one-third larger than it is now. . .the space occupied by quonsets in back of Jenison will be used for a parking lot . . .permanent married housing will be built where barrack-type apartments now exist. . . there will be an International Center near the Aud. . .the Administration Building will be expanded . . ."

The expansion goes on. It has to. "It is for us the living to be dedicated here to the unfinished work. . ."

The stress is on the unfinished.

World's Fair of Farming Marked MSU's Centennial Summer

By JACK BERRY

TWO tire-worn ruts extended into the peaceful farmland on south campus last summer, but soon the area around those lonely tracks was transformed into the agricultural show place of the nation.

MSU, normally a tranquil place during the summer months, was anything but peaceful during the hot days of 1955 and the Centennial of Farm Mechanization Symposium.

The site for the celebration was nothing but farmland at the end of Farm Lane Road, until campus workmen and giant bulldozers levelled it and laid down a two-lane asphalt road.

And then the road bore the burden of heavy trucks bringing in exhibits ranging from an 1855 horse-drawn plow to a 1955 three-ton combine. Three-hundred exhibitors erected multi-colored tents to display their wares and the press began to herald the event as the "World's Fair of Farming."

It literally was a "World's Fair," as more than 330,000 visitors from every state in the Union and 15 foreign nations came to see displays valued at more than 40 million dollars.

Concession stands increased the carousel effect of the celebration. Visitors ate cotton candy and hot dogs and drank soft drinks as they gazed at exhibits such as an 18th-century steam-driven plow, hand scythes and 1955 tractors of every size, color and make imaginable.

Not only plows, reapers, combines and tractors were shown. The festive crowds marvelled at an atomic energy exhibit in Jenison Fieldhouse and wondered how short the time until atomic-powered machines would render gasoline and diesel tractors obsolete as they had previously displaced the horse. Automobile manufacturers had their latest models and "dream cars" on view at the Macklin Field parking lot.

An arena was erected for the "Land of Plenty", a pageant staged twice daily. This depicted the life of an average farm family from 1855 to 1955, and the farm families in attendance reminisced about tales of farm life told to them by grandparents.

The women were not forgotten by the show's planners. The Auditorium was transformed into a massive kitchen with models of typical kitchens of the past 100 years. Homemakers saw the wood stoves and fireplaces of the past and then took comfort in gazing at modern, pastel-colored kitchens.

While the prosperous American farmers and their families toured the more than 100-acres of displays, 12 men in baggy, ill-fitting suits inspected the farm equipment with a professional air. They disregarded the crowd and spoke only among themselves. One took extensive notes, writing down the performances of the machines. They were the Russian farm delegation.

The American-made equipment so impressed the Russians that two members stayed at MSU two extra days to learn more about the technical aspects of the machines. Although the USSR has taken gigantic strides in industry, they have not been as successful in agriculture.

The success of the week-long Centennial of Farm Mechanization vastly exceeded the hopes of its planners. The greatest display of farm equipment since the dawn of time, the show was a tribute to America's leadership in agriculture by America's pioneer agricultural institution . . . MSU.

Acres of farm equipment are seen in this aerial shot of the impressive Centennial of Farm Mechanization Symposium that highlighted campus activities during MSU's Centennial Summer.

Coeds Also Compete in Sports

Individual Efforts Bring Women Midwest Recognition

By JUNE TURNER

MEN do not have a monopoly on inter-collegiate sports at MSU. Approximately fifty coeds matched their male contemporaries in the athletic world this year by participating in four major sports.

The coeds concentrated their efforts in swimming, field hockey, tennis and fencing.

The fencing team completed a very successful fall term of competition. The first opposition was Purdue University at Purdue where MSU won all but one bout.

Early in November the fencers traveled to Detroit's Cannon Memorial Park to compete in the Women's Prep Competition. MSU's Marge Bramwell succeeded in taking the first place gold medal. The second place bronze medal was won by Nancy Wimmer.

Later in the fall, the fencers appeared in Detroit in the AFLA Women's Individual Foil Competition. Nancy Beardsley took second place while her teammate Nancy Wimmer ended in fourth place.

The 1955 swimming season opened in mid-October against the American Turners of Detroit. In an East Lansing meet, Turners took five firsts to MSU's four for a win of 58 to 50.

In another meet State traveled to Purdue where MSU took every first place and won the meet, 48-19. Individual winners were Sally Seyfarth, Mary Appelhof, Mary Spruell and Jean King.

Back home to host Detroit City Club, the MSU coeds lost by a 57 to 39 score.

In the close and exciting meet against Western Ontario, MSU lost 51.5 to 48.5.

Two members of the field hockey team won special honors this year for MSU. Captain Charlene Eisenlohr was honored by being chosen on both the Detroit and Great Lakes first field hockey teams. Barbara Jansen was chosen to the second Detroit squad. Both girls are freshmen and newcomers to field hockey.

With the addition of freshman Joyce Pniewaki, a former member of the Hamtramck tennis team that handed State its only two defeats last year, the Spartan squad will take to the courts hoping to better last season's record. Joyce holds eight major titles and is the twelfth ranking junior champion in the United States.

Practicing before mirrors aided members of the women's fencing team. The team had a successful season, losing only one meet.

A good racing dive is important in competitive swimming. The coeds spend long hours practicing before the inter-collegiate meets.

Cold weather doesn't hamper field hockey practice. Two members of the women's team won top honors this year.

Beginning of a Basketball Era

Spartan Record Book Took on a New Look After 13-9 Season

By KEITH MILLER
Wolverine Sports Editor

FORDDY ANDERSON'S second year as head coach of the Spartans will be remembered as that winter when fan interest reached a new high as the cagers compiled a season's mark of 13 wins and nine losses with a seven-seven record good for fifth place in the conference race.

Thinking of the several instances when the home crowds soared over the ten thousand point, Anderson termed the season of 1955-56 as the beginning of an era in which more people will jam Jenison Fieldhouse to watch basketball.

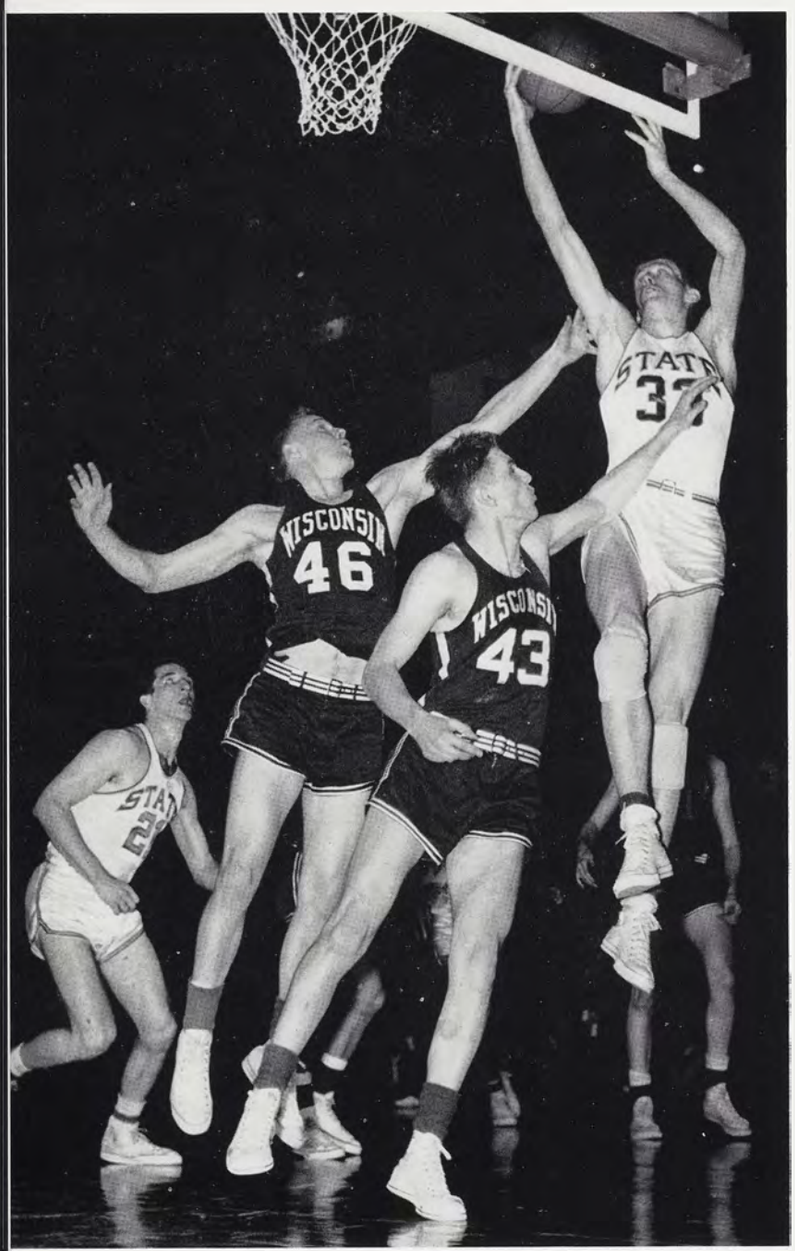
Spartan rooters won't easily forget the scoring feats of Julius McCoy, State's most productive offensive leader in the history of the cage game at MSU.

McCoy was the nation's fourth leading scorer with 600 points, which increased his collegiate total over a three year span to 1,337. His overall average in his last season was 27.2 points per game.

For his efforts, McCoy was named the Spartans' most valuable player by a vote of his teammates.

With McCoy leading the way, State won its first five games before losing to George Washington, 65-62.

Notable in the first outburst of success were the wins over Southern Illinois, 99-71, and over Notre Dame, 84-78. The 99 points scored in the season's opener marked the highest score ever compiled by a State team. The triumph over the Irish was recorded in overtime as McCoy hit the nets for 45 counters, his largest total in a MSU uniform.



Larry Hedden jumps above Badgers Bob Litzow (46) and Glenn Borland (43) for a two pointer. Spartan Jack Quiggle looks on.

George Ferguson tips the ball in scramble with Illini Hiles Stout (10) and Phil Judson (30). Larry Hedden is 33.

Julius McCoy drives through Wolverines Billy Wright (22), Pete Tillotson (26) and Tom Jorgensen (38).

State began its conference slate losing to Illinois, although leading at one time 26-8. Facing Iowa on the road, the Spartans came from 13 points behind in the last five minutes to hand the Hawkeyes, their lone Big Ten setback of the season, 65-64.

The Spartans came home for a nationally televised game and lost to Purdue in the last two minutes, 66-62. The slump continued as Indiana thumped the Green and White, 79-70.

Minnesota fell 80-69 to State, and then came the battle with Ohio State and its great Robin Freeman. The diminutive guard outscored McCoy, 46 to 40, but MSU won the game, 94-91, before the third largest crowd ever to see a college tilt in Jenison Fieldhouse.

The Spartans increased their string of victories to four, defeating state rivals Detroit, 85-78, and Michigan, 86-76. McCoy tallied 41 points against the Wolverines.

After the Michigan game, MSU went into a tailspin losing three straight to Marquette, 90-81, to Minnesota, 77-73, and to Illinois, 96-76. The latter was another nationwide TV contest in Jenison Fieldhouse.

A hapless Northwestern quintet came into town owning but one win all season long. Down 29 points at one time, NU rallied to lead momentarily 93-92, before State surged to win, 96-93. Anderson called the game a nightmare as a Jenison crowd cheered the underdog Wildcats for their unsuccessful last minute attempt.

The Spartans closed the season splitting four conference games, edging Wisconsin, 89-82, and Michigan, 76-75, while losing to Purdue for the second time, 63-56, and to Ohio State, 96-84. Freeman outscored McCoy again, this time by a much larger margin, 43 to 21.

The conquest of Michigan was State's fifth consecutive victory over its archrivals.

At a post-season banquet, guard Walt Godfrey was named honorary captain of the squad. Additional honors went to center Duane Peterson, who received the sportsmanship award, and to forward George Ferguson, who merited a trophy for his free throw excellency, by scoring almost 70 percent.

NCAA, Big Ten Championships Come Back to Spartanland

By HAL BATEMAN

PACED by the cross country team, which won both the NCAA and Big Ten titles, MSU had a fine year on the cinders. The indoor and outdoor track squads finished in fourth and fifth places in the final Big Ten standings.

Capt. Kevan Gosper paced the thinclads in the outdoor meet by winning the 440 dash title in a driving rainstorm. Joe Savoldi captured second in the 120-yard high hurdles, placed fourth in the shot put and fifth in the discus throw.

The team started the outdoor season at the Ohio Relays while Savoldi entered the decathlon at the Kansas Relays. Savoldi placed third in the ten-event program. The 880 relay team set a new varsity record at Ohio and Henry Kennedy won the mile and a half.

At the Drake Relays the sprint medley team ran one of the fastest times in the nation only to finish second. In the Big Ten Relays the 880 relay team won and the sprint medley team set a new Big Ten record while winning its event.

Gosper Sets Varsity Record

Gosper in the NCAA championships placed fourth in the 440 and tied for first in the same event in the Big Ten-Pacific Coast Conference dual meet. The lanky Australian set a new record while copping the Central Collegiate title and set a new varsity 440 record of :46.9 on his way to winning in the Los Angeles Coliseum Relays.

The cross-country team started the season by sweeping the Michigan AAU championships with Kennedy taking the individual title for the second straight year. The harriers were then downed by Notre Dame, but went on to sweep dual meets from Penn State, Wisconsin and Ohio State. In every race Kennedy won by a substantial margin with Jones the runner-up.

Joe Savoldi takes the lead over Indiana's Milt Campbell in the 120-yard high hurdles at the Indiana-MSU dual meet.

Ed Brabham wins the 100-yard dash in the Indiana dual meet with Julius McCoy second. State won the meet, 71½-60½.

Don Hillmer clears the high jump bar at 6'3" in the indoor Big Ten meet. Hillmer's effort earned him a third place tie.

1955 Cross Country Team—Kennedy, Mesler, Block, Denslow, Miller, Jones (captain), Townsend.

Harriers Win Big Ten Title

Kennedy won the IC4A individual title, but the team was edged for first place by Pitt. Four days later MSU came back to sweep both the individual and team Big Ten titles. Kennedy was again the winner in 19:06, a new course and Big Ten record.

In the last meet of the season the Spartans won the meet they hosted, the NCAA championships. Kennedy, the pre-meet favorite, lost by only two feet to Iowa sophomore Charles "Deacon" Jones.

The Spartans took three titles at the Michigan AAU Relays, in the first indoor meet. The shuttle hurdles team won an easy victory as did the distance medley quartet. Gay Denslow won the two mile run.

At the MSU Relays Savoldi was the only Spartan winner when he tied the meet record in the 75-yard high hurdles. The two mile relay team finished second.

Brown, Flynn, Best, Neely, Luce, B. Brown.

Brabham Wins Two Big Ten Titles

State again hosted the Big Ten indoor championships with the thinclads grabbing fourth place. Brabham successfully defended his 60-yard dash title and also took the 300-yard dash crown. Savoldi had to come from behind to take the 70-yard high hurdles crown. Jones took two seconds, one in the mile and the other in the two mile.

Kennedy placed third in the two mile and fifth in the mile while Denslow was fourth in the two mile and fifth in the 1,000-yard run.

Henry Kennedy takes the baton from Selwyn Jones in the final leg of the two mile relay at the MSU Relays.

Minor Titles Hard to Come by

Best Team Efforts, Wrestler's, Gymnast's Big Ten Thirds

By CHUCK MILLER

TITLES were few and far between as far as the so-called minor sports at Michigan State were concerned during the 1955-56 year.

No team championships were won, and a pair of gymnasts and wrestlers provided the only individual titles as they led their respective teams to third place finishes, the highest recorded by any team.

The 1955 spring sports, tennis and golf, provided few chances for Spartans to cheer, except for the fact that the majority of the performers were under-classmen and would be back again another year.

The Spartan net squad finished sixth in the Big Ten finals held at Northwestern after compiling a 5-5 dual meet record.

No one from State advanced beyond the quarterfinals, with Dave Brogan in No. 1 singles, Dick Menzel in No. 2 singles, Brogan and Ralph Braden in No. 2 doubles and John Brogan and Jim Beachum in No. 3 doubles all going down to defeat.

The Spartan point total was 18½—far behind champion Michigan's 62. Following the Wolverines in order were Indiana, Illinois, Northwestern and Wisconsin.

Ken Maidlow, the heavyweight National AAU Greco-Roman, 191 pound champion, wrestles his opponent to the Jenison mat.

The golfers fared no better, with coach Ben Van Alstyne's swingers placing seventh in the Big Ten meet after a 4-4 dual meet mark.

Purdue won the team title on their home course with a score of 1141, followed by Ohio State, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota and Iowa. The Michigan State team score was 1204.

The highest individual Spartan finish was Jim Sullivan's tie for 17th, with a 72-hole score of 234.

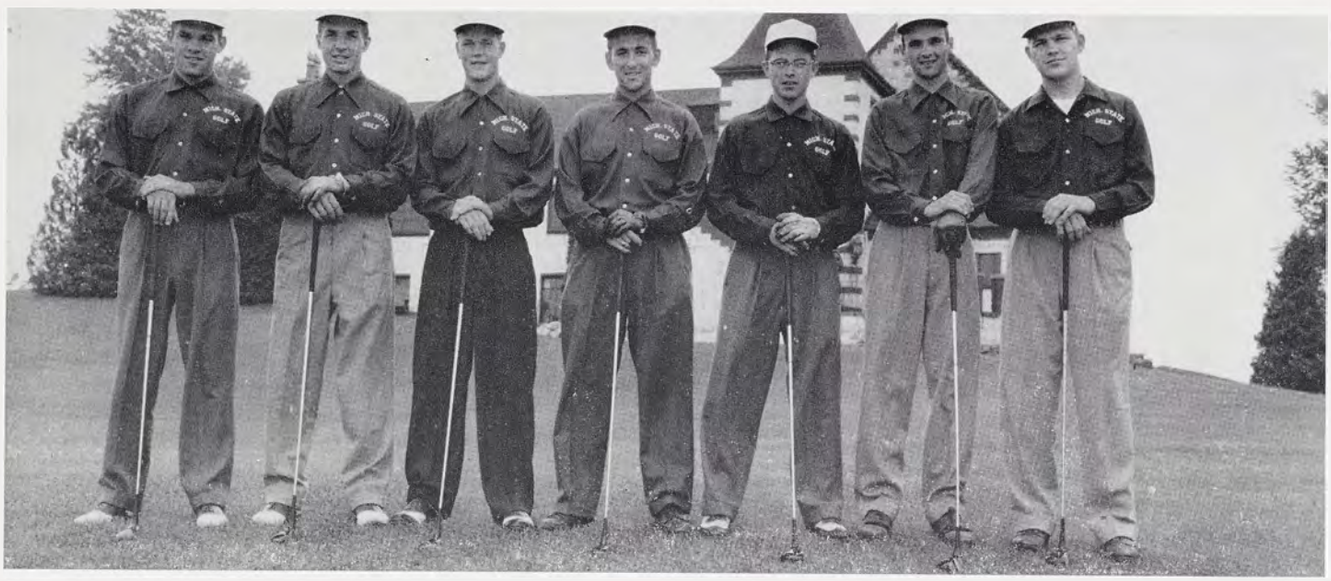
Tennis Team—Beeman (coach), Stepanovic, Beachum, Braden, Brogan, Menzel, Levine, Brogan, Dupernell.

Golf Team—Johnson, Raymond, Hurd, Steimle, Nodus, Sullivan, Prieskorn.



Boxers Defend Title

As the boxers prepared to defend their NCAA title at Madison, they had not been able to win a single dual meet, losing four, finishing second in the Inter-Mountain Tournament and tying one.

The Spartans won the 1955 title with only one individual champion, 147-pounder Herb Odom, and with two potential champions in 1956, chances for a second-straight title were good as coach John Brotzmann entered a nine-man team in the finals.

John Butler, 132-pounder from Grand Rapids, owned a 5-1 record, including two TKO's and Choken Maekawa, a senior from Hawaii, recorded six straight decisions after dropping a close match in his first bout of the season. He fought either at 125 or 119 pounds during the season.

The Spartans opened the season losing to Quantico Marines, 5-3, and Syracuse, 4½-3½ in road matches. Coming back to East Lansing, they tied the Marines, 5-5. Then they travelled to Pocatello, Id., where they finished second to Idaho State in the Inter-Mountain Tourney.

A home-and-home series with Wisconsin closed out the dual meet season. In the first meeting with the Badgers here the Spartans made their best showing of the year before losing to the powerful Wisconsin team, 4½-3½. In a return match at Madison, the Badgers won easily, 6½-1½.

Coach Charles Schmitter's fencers finished fifth in the Big Ten tournament held at Ohio State. The Spartans picked up 20 points in the competition behind Illinois, Ohio State, Wisconsin and Iowa.

Senior and team captain George Thomas finished second in sabre, losing his 1955 Big Ten crown to Ohio State's Don Little in a fence-off after the two men had tied for first at the end of the regular competition.

Top Row—Greene, Miller, James, Zimmerman, Baker, Bessone, Lassila, Balai, Grazia, Jasson, Peterson. First Row—Altobelli, Parke, Pomerleau, Dubois, Jackson, MacKenzie, Hendrickson, Schiller.

Leading the fencers as captain, George Thomas earned a seventh place in the NCAA and will compete for an Olympic berth.

Roland Brown, of the gymnastics team, won the Big 10 free exercise title and captured a second place in the NCAA finals.

The Spartans complied a 3-6 mark in dual meet competition, and finished 12th in the NCAA meet to end the season.

The gymnasts provided the best showing of any Spartan team when they finished third in the Big Ten meet held in Illinois.

Individual winners for coach George Szypula were Don Leas, who finished first on the flying rings, and Roland Brown, who was first in free exercise.

Leas also added a third on the parallel bars and fifth on the trampoline to finish fifth in the all-around competition. Brown added a fourth in tumbling and Dick O'Brien and Mike Coco finished seventh and tenth in the all-around event.

The Spartan team total was 66½, while Michigan barely edged Michigan State out of second place with 70½ points.

The Illini left little question as to who would win the team title, as they picked up 162½ points.

With only one senior on the squad, and three or four fine prospects on the freshman team, Szypula has high hopes for a successful season next year.

The Spartans finished the dual meet schedule with three wins, three losses and a tie, and climaxed a good year by finishing sixth in the NCAA championships, led by Brown's tie for second in free exercise.

After a fine dual meet season, coach Charles McCaffree's swimmers were disappointed with a sixth place finish in the Big Ten Championships.

With a predominately sophomore team, the Spartans opened the season with a first place finish in the Big Ten Invitational meet held in Jenison Pool. By beating two strong teams like Michigan and Iowa State, the Spartans were labeled a team to watch.

They beat Wisconsin, 71-22, and Michigan, 48-45, before bowing to NCAA Champions Ohio State, 51-42.

The Spartans then took Purdue, 66-27, before losing identical 47-46 meets to Indiana and Iowa. A 50-43 victory over Iowa State closed out the dual meet competition.

First Row—Thomas, Schulak, Kalasky, Odorico, Breen, Schrag.

Big Ten Meet

In the Big Ten Meet at Purdue, the Buckeyes ran away with the team title with 105 points, followed by Michigan, Iowa, Indiana and Northwestern.

Handicapped by the loss of Larry Ellis, sophomore free styler and top scorer on the team, the Spartans failed to win any events.

Ken Gest gave State the top individual performance with a second in the 50-yard free style, and John Dudeck was third in the 200-yard butterfly. With Tom Kwasny finishing fifth and Les Lobaugh sixth, it proved to be the Spartan's best event.

Other Spartan scorers were Jack Beattie, sixth in the 1,500-yard free style, capt. Frank Paganini, fifth in the 200-yard back stroke, Al Coxon, fifth in the 100-yard backstroke, Paul Reinke, fourth in the 200-yard breaststroke, Frank Parrish, fifth in the 100-yard free style and Lobaugh, fourth in the 200-yard individual medley.

Although hampered by injuries throughout the season, coach Fendley Collins' wrestlers tied the Purdue Boilermakers for third in the Big Ten meet, and produced two individual champions.

Don Stroud, 123-pounder from Lansing Sexton, and Jim Sinadinos, 137-pounder from Lansing Eastern, both won Big Ten titles, and tied for the Walter Jacob Award, presented annually to the Michigan State wrestler scoring the most points during the season. Both had 51 points to their credit.

The Spartans started the season by finishing third behind Purdue and Minnesota in a quadrangular meet, beating out only Northwestern.

Then Michigan State lost 15-11 and 16-14 decisions to Iowa Teachers and Iowa before winning three straight over Ohio State, Wisconsin and Purdue.

Michigan edged the Spartans 14-12, the Illini were tied, 17-17, Minnesota won, 24-12 and Indiana was beaten, 20-12 to finish out the dual meet schedule, with four wins, five losses and one tie.

Michigan won the Big Ten meet held at Northwestern with 63 points, followed by Iowa with 59 and Purdue and Michigan State with 40.

An eighth place finish in the NCAA meet ended the schedule for the Spartans.

The hockey team experienced one of its most disastrous seasons, winning five and losing 18. The Western Intercollegiate Hockey League record was a dismal 1-17—for a last place finish.

Sophomore center Ross Parke was the leading scorer with 36 points on 15 goals and 21 assists. Senior goalie Ed Schiller was named the most valuable player.

Baseball Belting Wasn't Enough

Three Game Sweep over Michigan Highlighted Season

By DONN SHELTON

MICHIGAN State's baseball team found, much to its sorrow, that a big bat isn't always the key to success.

Although the Spartans slugged the ball at a .308 clip, they kicked it around to the tune of a lowly .927 fielding mark.

The team failed to retain its Big Ten title, finishing in a second-place tie. It did, however, hang onto the loop batting crown with a .311 league mark. The heavy hitting was instrumental in posting a 21-11 season record and a 10-5 conference mark.

The season's high spot came when the fourth-place Spartans tangled in a three-game series with league-leading Michigan.

Walt Godfrey spun a neat 3-0 shutout in the Friday game at Ann Arbor with outfielder Bob Powell banging out a long homer.

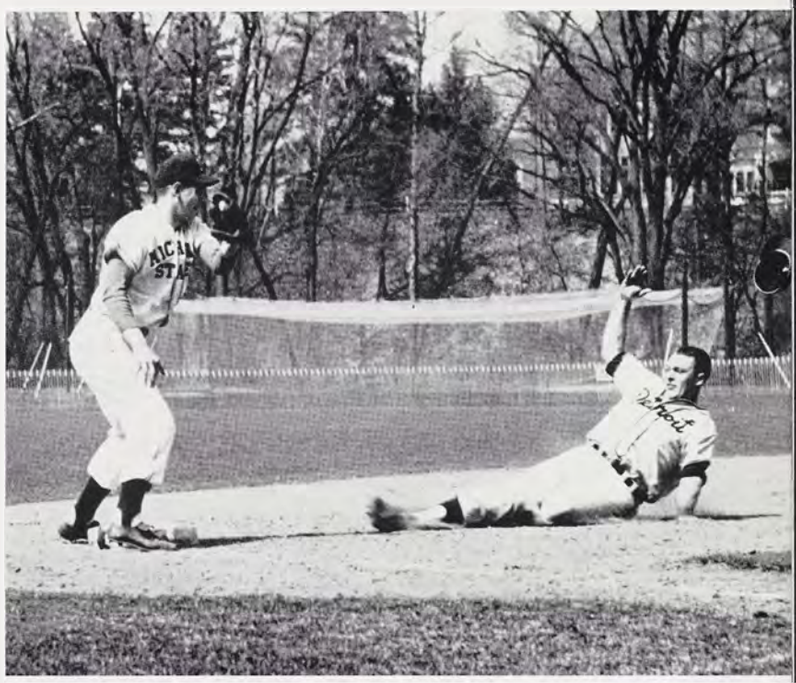
The following day the husky Powell went wild on Old College Field to lead the Spartans to 8-5 and 4-3 wins—the second three-game sweep over Michigan in 60 years and knocking the arch-rival Wolves out of the title picture.

Powell banged out a pair of home runs, a triple, two doubles and three singles in the three games, including a game-winning line single in the final tilt.

Lanky Dick Idzkowski led the mound corps with a 9-1 mark and a league-leading 4-0 conference mark.

On the opposite extreme was the haphazard defensive work that saw the squad wind up with a .927 all season fielding mark and a .926 loop mark—good for ninth place.

Third baseman Earl Morrall copped the fielding Dunce Cap with a five-error performance against Iowa that set a Big Ten record. He was also voted the team's most vigorous meal-time member, receiving the "Feed Bag."



Third baseman Earl Morrall gloves the ball and takes aim on the sliding U of D runner. Morrall won the race, tagging the man out.

Spartan second baseman George Mathews came down under Michigan's Don Eaddy's tag for a triple as State toppled the Wolves in three games in two days for the second time in 60 years.

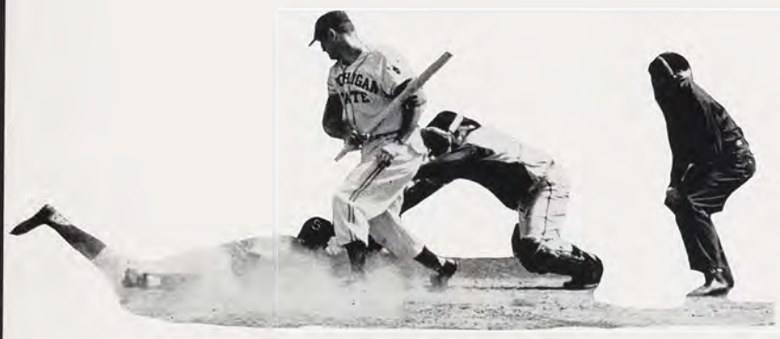
Coach John Kobs missed most of the season's action when he suffered an intestinal disorder that resulted in an operation and a long rest. His assistant, Frank Pellerin, took the reins while Kobs recuperated.

Second baseman George Smith won the Big Ten batting title with a .485 mark—second best in the loop history. He was voted a place on the conference all-star second team and the All-American third team.

Powell was voted the Most Improved Player and won places on the all-conference team and the second All-American team.

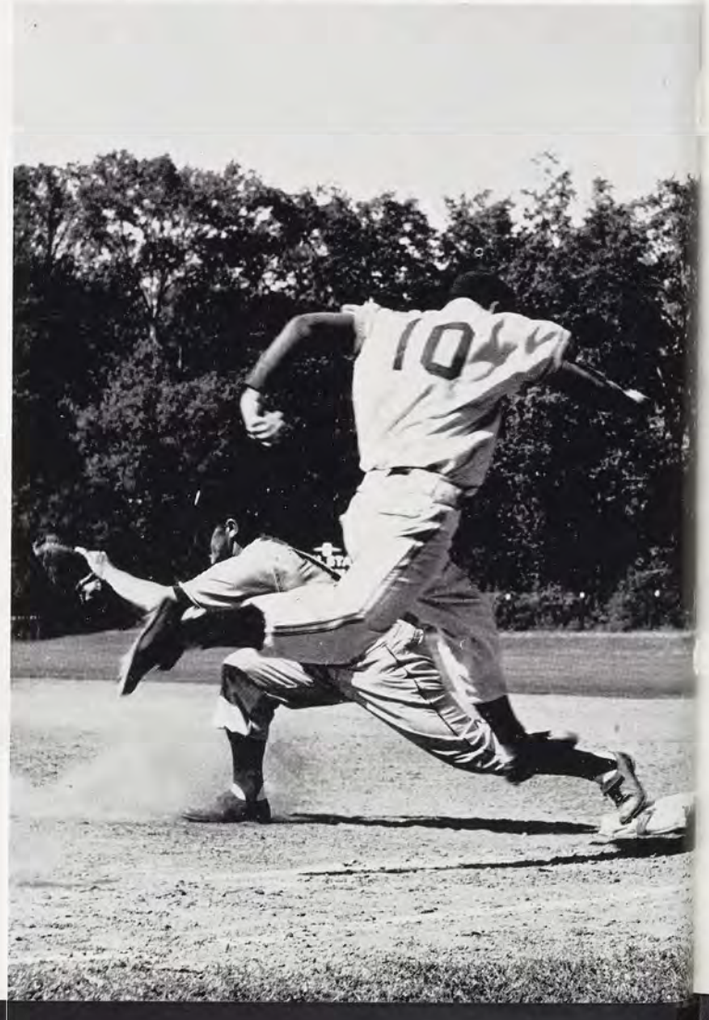
First baseman Chuck Mathews, who led the league in hits and runs scored, also made the all-Big Ten team, along with pitcher Idzkowski—top loop hurler with a 4-0 record.

Jim Sack, one of the conference's smallest players at 5 ft. 6 in., was voted the Most Valuable Player award.



That man Smith again! This time he steals home as Johnny Matsock dodges away and the catcher makes a plunge for the plate.

The last step isn't enough as Earl Morrall is thrown out at first.



Coach John Kobs (in jacket at left) makes an infrequent appearance in the dugout following an operation early in the season.

An Iowa runner took a chance and scored when the catcher couldn't return pitcher Ed Hobaugh's wild toss in time.

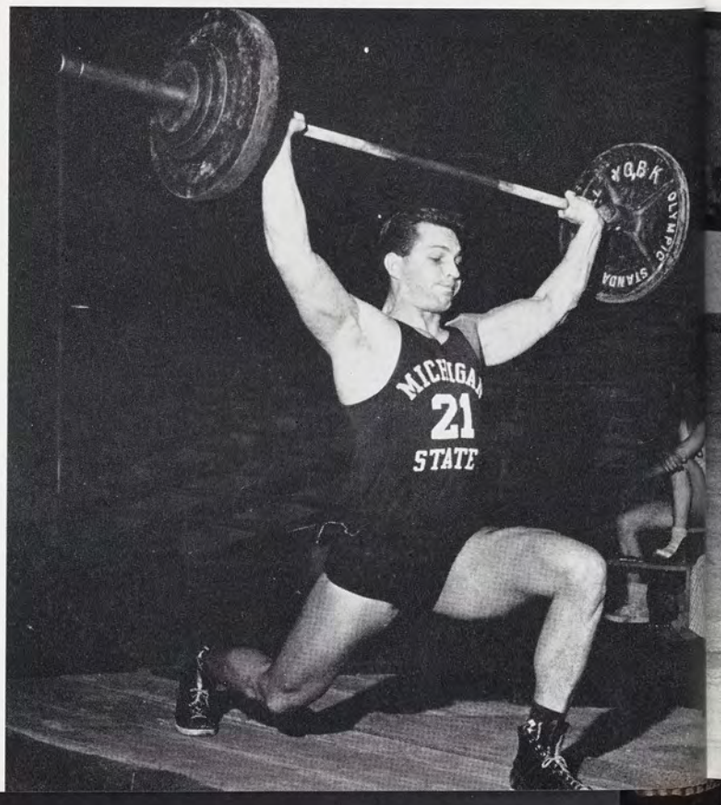
A feature of the intramural athletic program is the schedule of touch football games under the lights.

The intramural swimming program was climaxed by the block finals with West Shaw winning the first place trophy.

Weightlifter Bob Quesnol won third place in the 198 pound division in the national contest. Weightlifting is new at State.



IM Program Offers 27 Sports

Room for Everyone in the Outstanding Athletic Set Up

IN ADDITION to its intercollegiate athletic program, Michigan State has one of the most superb intramural setups for sports in the country. Available to students are 27 various sports ranging from touch football to the annual Turkey Trot. Head of this IM program is Harris F. Beeman. He is assisted by Bob Gowans.

Team champions crowned during the past year were: West Shaw, dorm titleholder; Alpha Tau Omega, fraternity winner; and Ulrey House, independent IM champion.

The individual champion was Bill Streng, followed closely by Dee McDonald.

In the spring slate ATO, Rather 3 and the Wise Guys captured the softball titles in the three divisions. ATO claimed additional wins in track and in the tennis doubles. Victories in tennis doubles and golf in the dorm division were claimed by West Shaw. SAE won the fraternity golf championship while the dorm track title went to Bryan.

In the fall-winter program Rather 7 won the all-university cage crown. ATO kept its streak alive by winning the touch football championship.

The team champion in the Turkey Trot was ATO and the individual winner was Bill Streng who outran 225 starters in the run for the turkey.

In table tennis playoffs, Richard Kanham took the honors.

They may not play like the Red Wings, but intramural participants still exhibit an exciting brand of hockey.

Basketball continues to draw the largest crowd of spectators at the intramural contests in Jenison Gymnasium.

'Duffy's Toughies' Thundered fr

A SUCCESSFUL football season, which seemed far out of the realm of possibility in pre-season estimates, became a reality for the Spartans in late November. As the winter winds blew down upon East Lansing, Coach Duffy Daugherty and his talented grid athletes were being classed as one of the best teams in collegiate football.

After a none-too-successful 1954 campaign, when the Spartans won but three games in nine, few people thought the Green and White could reach the stature they enjoyed in 1953. That was the year they tied for the conference championship and beat UCLA in the Rose Bowl.

On the affirmative side of the picture were these facts: Daugherty and his staff of assistants now had a full year of experience working together, he had a talented group of sophomores, he had the whole-hearted support of the MSU fans and he had the "big three", captain Buck Nystrom, Earl Morrall and Norm Masters, ready to lead the Spartans up the Big Ten ladder.

Forecasters viewed 1955 as a rebuilding season for the Spartans. Meanwhile all the glittering publicity notices were going to the Michigan Wolverines who were nominated as Big Ten and national champions.

The Spartans began this rebuilding season at Bloomington, Indiana, against the optimistic Hoosiers.

In a clash rated as a toss-up, the Green and White dispelled these notions as they scuttled the Hoosiers, 20-13. Morrall pitched one scoring aerial to sophomore end Bob Jewett, and another soph, halfback Jim Wulff, ran 65 yards for a second six pointer to feature State's initial Big Ten conquest which placed them on top of the conference heap. The Spartans then looked forward to an afternoon in Ann Arbor.

Under the direction of Fred Stabley, and assisted by Nick Vista, State possesses a fine press box for football coverage.

Sparty accompanied the cheerleaders to all the football games.

The Spartan coaching staff included; standing—Bill Yeoman and Alex Agase; kneeling—Don Mason, Burt Smith, Duffy Daugherty, Sonny Grandelius and Bob Devaney.

'Game of Games'

The "game of games" against highly rated Michigan was played before 97,000 fans in the huge Ann Arbor bowl. That throng saw the Spartans stopped twice on the three-yard line and watched as the Wolverines capitalized on two breaks to down their visitors, 14-7. Jerry Planutis accounted for the State touchdown.

At the season's conclusion, Daugherty was asked when he first thought that State had the possibilities of such a tremendous season. The genial Daugherty commented, "Oddly enough, I think it was the game we lost to Michigan that opened our eyes. The Michigan game made our kids mad. They began to realize what they could do."

Norm Masters, MSU's All-American tackle, told his mates, "We lost that one ourselves, but we'll wind up 8-1 for the season." And what they could do was aptly demonstrated as the Spartans tore through their schedule.

Starting with Stanford, the Spartans went through their slate undefeated, beating each team decisively.

The starting backfield of Morrall, Planutis, Clarence Peaks and Walt Kowalczyk was almost unanimously selected as the best backfield quartet in collegiate football.

The first string line of John Lewis and Dave Kaiser at end, Masters and Pat Burke at tackle, Embry Robinson and Nystrom at guard and Joe Badaczewski at center was equally good and received its share of honors.

Immediately after the Michigan game, the Stanford Indians, conquerors of Ohio State, marched proudly into Macklin Stadium and left meekly, being defeated, 38-14, by the "new look" Spartans.

Then came the unbeaten Irish of Notre Dame and the nationally televised game of the week. Before the day was out, grid fans throughout the land knew that State was back in the ranks of the football powers as it bumped the Fighting Irish 21-7.

'Back of the Week'

Morrall quarterbacked a perfect game, and Planutis, for his sterling efforts, one touchdown and 91 yards gained, was named the "Back of the Week".

A warm Indian summer day, a huge throng of grads and an impressive 21-7 victory over Illinois combined to make Homecoming 1955 an auspicious occasion. Morrall, nearing All-American honors, threw two scoring passes to lead State to victory.

One by one, State eliminated title and Rose Bowl contenders, first whitewashing Wisconsin, 27-0 and then Purdue, again by the same margin. In the muck and mire at Madison, Kowalczyk slushed his way goalward for a touchdown run of 78 yards. The Badgers didn't come close to scoring after that.

At Lafayette, Morrall ran 90 yards for six points after intercepting a lateral. Center John Matsko scored the third TD when he kicked off, recovered a fumble in mid-air, and galloped into the end zone for six points.

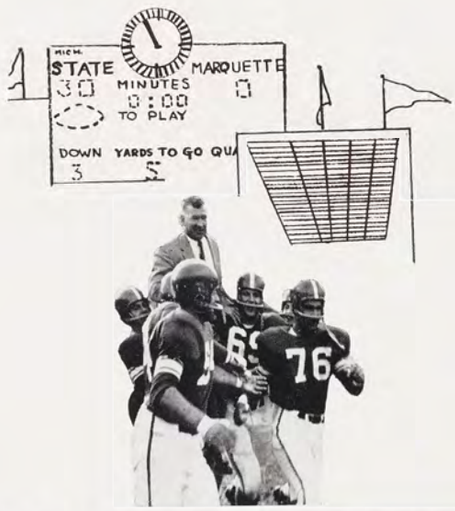
As State crushed Purdue, the fighting Illini upset Michigan, 25-6, at Champaign, and rumors of a California trip began to circulate around the campus.

A husky crew of Gophers from Minnesota visited East Lansing in mid-November and scurried home, victims of a 42-14 thumping. Daugherty emptied his entire bench of 44 players. Spartan reserves, end Jim Hinesley and halfback Dennis Mendyk, scored their first collegiate touchdowns.

Finest Team'

The Spartan performance caused Murray Warmath, the Gopher coach, to remark, "That was the finest team I've seen in my two years at Minnesota."

On the same afternoon Michigan swamped Indiana, 30-0, thus creating one of the most suspenseful weeks in the pages of MSU sports history.



Conquering Spartans carry Duffy Daugherty off the field after Marquette had been beaten, 30-0.

Spartan halfback Walt Kowalczyk is stopped by Badger Billy Lowe. Kowalczyk scored two touchdowns against Wisconsin.

Halfback Dennis Mendyk (38) picks up yardage against Illinois as quarterback Earl Morrall (21) leads the Spartan interference.

Members of the junior class turned out in full force to clean off the stadium bleachers for the Marquette game.

End Jim Hinesley hauls in a touchdown pass against Minnesota as Larson (15) and Bombardier (41) reach for it in vain.

Ohio State Fans for a Day

The situation was such that if Michigan lost to, or tied Ohio State, Michigan State could receive the Rose Bowl bid. On the other hand, if the Wolverines won, they would win the Big Ten title and probably the trip to the roses.

MSU could not do a thing one way or the other to increase its Rose Bowl chances as it closed the season against non-league Marquette. But one thing was certain, the Spartans could not win the conference title, that crown belonged to the winner of the climactic tussle at Ann Arbor between Michigan and Ohio State. All MSU fans on campus grouped as one to become Ohio State fans for a day.

End Dave Kaiser battles Marquette's Terry Ward for possession of the pigskin as Ray Zagar rushes in to aid teammate Ward.

Captain Buck Nystrom (68) and Coach Duffy Daugherty show their approval as Gary Lowe and Dave Hollern receive the Marquette ball.

Snow and the 'Impossible'

The final Saturday eventually rolled around with a surplus abundance of snow and cold, but the snow flakes had a rosey tint as the "impossible" was about to occur.

With Hopalong Cassady riding herd, the Buckeyes shattered the Wolverine myth, 17-0 before a stunned throng of 97,000 fans at Ann Arbor, which included a good many Spartan rooters.

Meanwhile at Macklin Field, Michigan State loyalists huddled around their portable radios for the latest reports from Ann Arbor. The MSU gridders' thoughts must have been in Ann Arbor, too, as they only led a lowly-ranked Marquette squad, 6-0, at half-time.

However, the story changed in the second half as the Spartans made up for lost time with two touchdowns in the first six minutes of the third period.

Two more State touchdowns were added before the game's wild finish. It was all over, State had scuttled Marquette, 33-0, and mighty Michigan had lost. Morrall had broken a State passing record with 274 yards gained.

The official Rose Bowl selection reached Athletic Director Clarence "Biggie" Munn at 3 p.m. Sunday, November 20. President John A. Hannah, Munn, Daugherty and the nation's sportswriters all had words of praise for the Spartans.

Honors to Spartans

With the close of the regular season, the honors began to hit the Spartans. As a team, State finished as the nation's second strongest team to the champion Oklahoma Sooners. Earl Morrall and Masters were named All-Americans and Nystrom, Planutis and Kowalczyk received honorable mention on several of the "dream team" units. Daugherty was named "Coach of the Year."

On the West Coast, UCLA, the champion of the Pacific Coast Conference, was named to oppose State in the Rose Bowl.

Another Trip to 'Spartan' Bowl

Disneyland, Las Vegas, Farmers Market... And a Golden Toe

By ANN MCGLOTHLIN AND NICK VISTA

WEARY Spartans huddled on the Union steps in below-freezing weather, with hot coffee and dreams of California to keep them warm. And 2,584 of them squeezed aboard six trains, in the largest non-military migration on record.

They sang, played cards and bingo, gave talent shows . . . they dashed from the coaches to outsmart the one-armed bandits at Las Vegas, to see the dancing girls at Tiajuana, to sit awed in the great Kiva at La Junta. And then the scenery began to change from flat, dry plains to the rugged rocks of Arizona and the mountains of Utah. A coed screamed as she spotted the first palm trees . . . through the orange groves . . . to L.A.

Sights, Sounds and Savors

Los Angeles, city of the angels and a thousand sights, sounds and savors. Spartans whirled from the country's oldest mission at Capistrano to the newest of fairylands, the land of Disney. They strolled into the court of Peter Pan and the Mad Teacups and back to the space ships of tomorrow. They stormed Hollywood studios and one Spartan successfully fitted his size 9's into the cement dancing prints of Donald O'Connor at Grauman's Chinese Theater.

Coeds waiting for talent scouts were snapped in sultry poses on the corner of Hollywood and Vine. There was cheese at Farmers Market, steaks at Ciro's, boysenberry punch at Knott's Berry Farm, fresh orange juice along the highway.

Then out to Griffith Observatory, Olevera St., Chinatown, Santa Anita, the Moulin Rouge and the ocean; down to Pershing Square to argue big ideas with zealous men. In no time at all it was New Year's Eve with confetti out the windows, noisemakers in the Alexandria, party hats and a midnight kiss on Figueroa Street.

Spartans struggled out Sunday to cheer for the band at the Ambassador . . . and thought ahead to 6 am, January 2.

Politics, religion and Los Angeles city government were some of the topics argued by all types of people in Pershing Square.

Coeds discover that their hands fit the prints of famous movie stars at well-known Grauman's Chinese Theater near Hollywood.

Some students hit the jackpot in souvenirs at Las Vegas. A few won stacks of silver dollars in the gambling casinos.

New Year's Eve parties were gay and loud. Confetti and noisemakers added to the Spartan fun at the Alexandria Hotel.

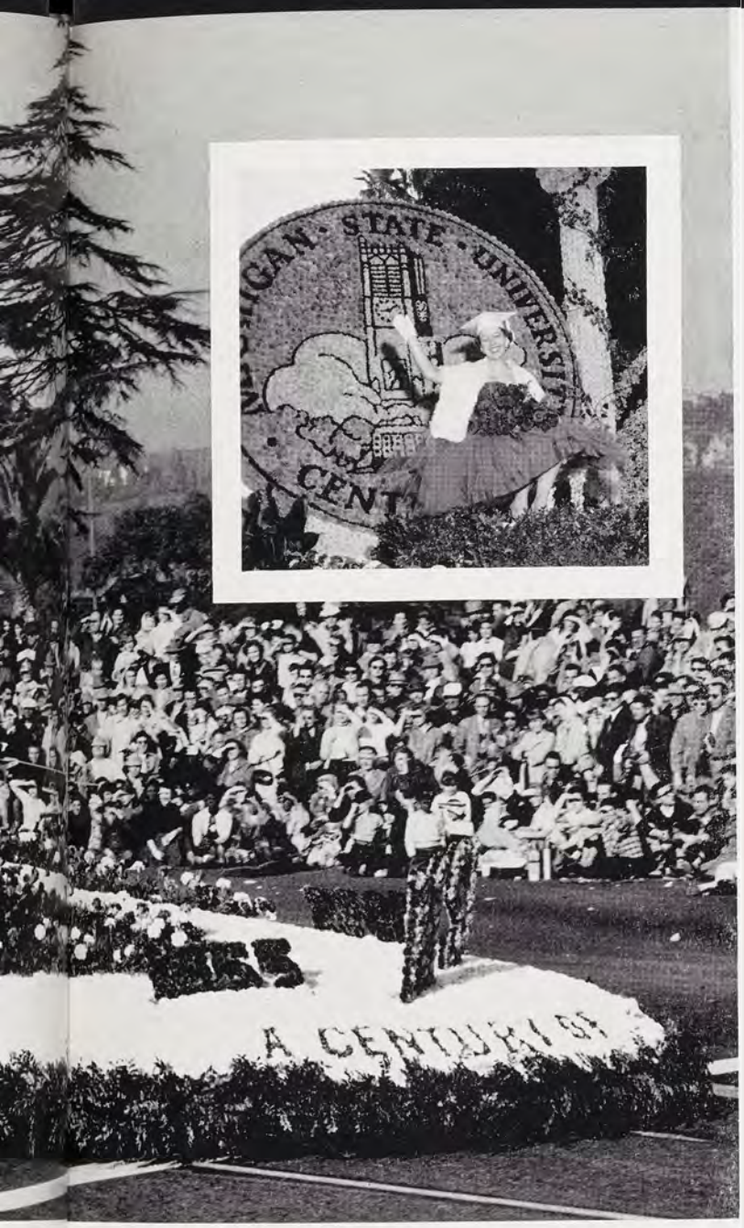
The Huntington Hotel sponsored one of the most unique floats. This year celebrated the 67th Parade of Roses.

No parade is complete without a Queen of Roses. Joan Culver and her court circled the field during pre-game ceremonies.



Pennants, Cameras, Parade

Sixty-four buses jammed with sleepy Spartans, box lunches, pennants, coats and cameras crept through the streets of Pasadena, passed by Californians hurrying on foot with chairs, camp stools and stepladders. Off the bus, Spartans edged into front-row standing room, or stretched tip-toe at the back of the crowd.

Trumpet fanfare and a brilliant red banner proclaimed the start of the 67th annual Tournament of Roses. The first of Michigan's representatives, Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, served as parade marshal, followed by the parade queen and her court. Then the ruffle of drums, the prancing cheerleaders, the proud drum major, and the Michigan State Marching Band was on its way. The university's beautiful float, decorated by Rhosan and roses, symbolized the school's achievements through 100 years.

They laughed at the kids shaking hands with favorite cowboys; thrilled to the beauty of Romeo and Juliet and Kismet; loaded cameras to snap just one more roll, and smiled at the two tired Spartans sitting on the curb, fast asleep. Back to the buses and a sandwich. . . the game was just ahead.

Beautiful women decorated the majority of floats. This was the grand prize winner which used six former Rose Bowl queens.

The city of Burbank received the sweepstakes award for the most beautiful float as it dramatized the creation of the universe.

Continued

Did the crystal ball tell rival coaches, Duffy Daugherty and Red Sanders, that the action in the Rose Bowl might be as tense as pictured here? It was taken in the fourth quarter when Bruin Jim Decker stopped John Lewis from scoring on a Clarence Peaks pass.

Kickoff to Kick

Spartan fans quickly found their seats in Pasadena stadium with kickoff time near. A full house of 100,000 arose as UCLA's Sam Brown put a foot into the pigskin and the game was on. At once State's plan went awry. The alert Bruins intercepted a pass and scored four plays later. But the big green came to life in the second period, and Earl Morrall's 13-yard pass to Clarence Peaks tied the game.

The deadlock remained throughout the third quarter. At the opening of the final stanza a sensational 67-yard aerial touchdown play from Peaks to "Thunder" Lewis broke the tie. UCLA roared back for a 14-14 tie with six minutes to go. State rolled to the Bruin 24-yard line before a field goal attempt went wide. Moments later, with time running out, MSU had possession again and the call was made for another three-point try. It was Dave Kaiser's task to boot, and with just seven seconds remaining, he swung his powerful right leg at the ball. . .

Halfback Walt Kowalczyk gains 30 yards in the second quarter. Decker (30) and Loudd (32) move in for the tackle.

Guard Dan Currie stops Sam "First Down" Brown after the Uclan picked up two yards in the third quarter.

Continued

Dave Kaiser's first collegiate field goal gave MSU the win at Pasadena. Kaiser holds lucky shoe (inset).

The impossible, the unexpected, even unhoped for, happened. The booming 41-yard kick was good, giving Michigan State three big points for a dazzling 17-14 victory. The rest is a dizzy haze in the memory of Spartans. Kaiser was mobbed by his teammates while deliriously happy State rooters made kindling wood out of UCLAN goal posts.

One of the most thrilling chapters in Rose Bowl history had been written by a young man who had never before successfully completed a field goal. Two things made the victory even more spectacular. Kaiser, who normally wears contact lenses, forgot them in the excitement of the Rose Bowl preparation. And his field goal attempt was the third of the game and the sixth of the season. All previous tries had failed.

The end of the game, one play later, was all but lost in the mad confusion that erupted when the field judge threw his hands in the air. The Spartans had come to win and win they did.

No Kaiser Here

Complete pandemonium reigned, even in the press box where the PA announcer was telling the crowd Jerry Planutis had made the boot.

After the smoke cleared away and Kaiser had been given his proper recognition an interesting fact came to light. There is no Dave Kaiser registered at MSU. There is however an Alpena sophomore named David Kajzerkowski. For Spartan fans that is good enough.

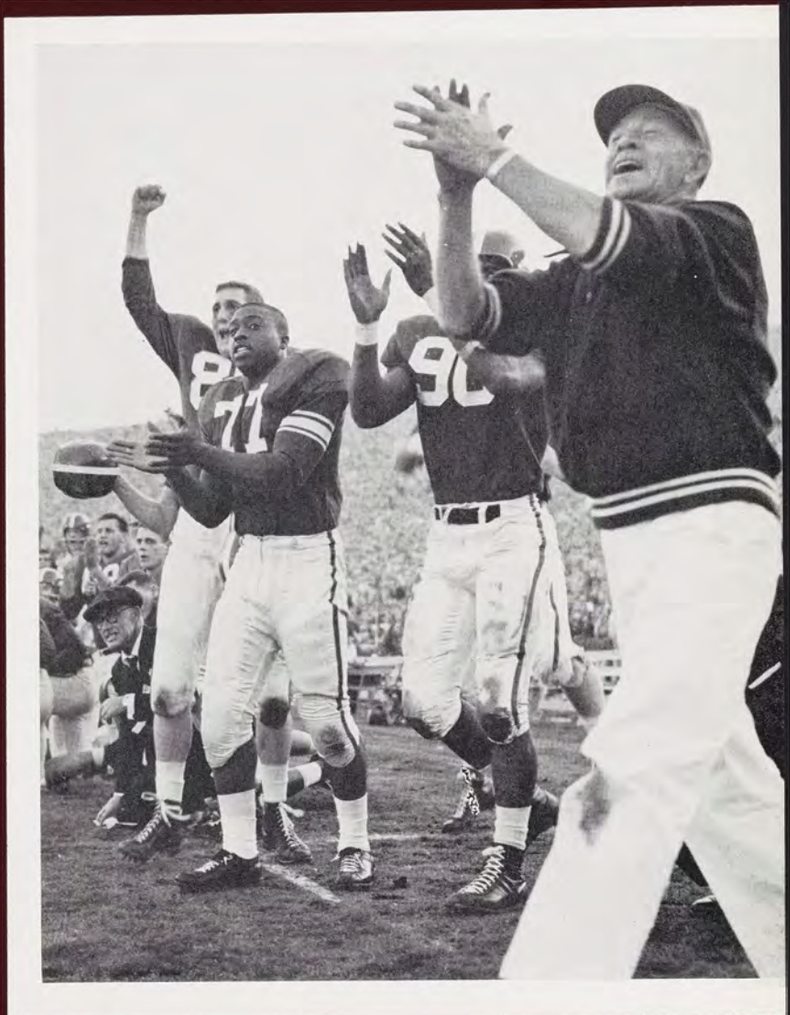
Honors to Kowalczyk

Beside the actual point scorers, State had many heroes. Right halfback Walt Kowalczyk was the game's leading ground gainer and earned the Helms Foundation award for the "most valuable player." Backfield mate Jerry Planutis was next in gaining ground yardage and also converted perfectly after both Michigan State touchdowns.

Jim Wulff, Dennis Mendyk, Gary Lowe and Don Zysk joined the starting backs in racking up yardage in State's running attack which totaled 251 net yards to UCLA's 136 yards. Final passing figures also showed State stronger with 130 yards to 61 for UCLA.

The linesmen, led by All-American Norm Masters and Captain Buck Nystrom, turned in a bang-up job. Dan Currie, Joe Badaczewski, Leo Haidys, Lewis and Kaiser were equally effective along with such prominent reserves as John Matsko, Tony Kolodziej, Pat Burke, Les Rutledge, Dale Hollern, Joel Jones, and Jim Hinesly.

As exhausted players and fans returned to Los Angeles, a quiet calm began to settle. Such a thriller was a fitting climax to a great trip. And then it was time to board the trains . . . say good-by to California . . . and hello to East Lansing.



The successful kick sent the sideline Spartan players and trainer Jack Heppinstall into a state of wild cheering and shouting. The same exuberance was displayed on the field.

State fans at home had their chance to cheer when the team members arrived at Lansing's Capitol City Airport.

Publications Grow with Campus

Students, Administrators Cooperate to Solve Problems

By ART UNDERWOOD

MICHIGAN State student publications include the State News, Wolverine, Spartan, MSU Veterinarian and Spartan Engineer.

The history of these publications goes back to 1868 when a group of students began publishing a sometime journal of campus affairs known as the Bubble.

A student-faculty weekly called the MAC Record made its appearance in 1896. The Holcad, direct ancestor of the present State News, was started in 1908. It was re-titled in 1926 and since then has become one of the top collegiate daily newspapers.

The first annual, The Harrow, was published in 1887 and sponsored by the class of '89. Titles changed a number of times but since 1900 the annual has been called the Wolverine.

The first issue of the Spartan came out in 1936. Censorship problems led to a stormy but continuous existence of this magazine.

Recent additions to the pub families are the MSU Veterinarian and the Spartan Engineer.

These publications are supervised by a student-faculty group known as the Board of Student Publications.

Permanent members of the board include the Administrative Assistant to the President James Denison, Comptroller and Treasurer Philip May, Dean of Students Tom King and Dean of the new College of Communication Arts Gordon Sabine.

Student members of the board, who serve during their editorship, are the top executives of the Spartan, Wolverine and State News. Secretary to the board and adviser to the publications is William McIlrath.

The board handles appointments of key positions on each of the publications, supervises business operations and is responsible for any student publication that uses paid advertising.

Magazine Style Featured as Wolverine 'New Look'

The 1955 Publications Banquet had hardly ended when plans began for the 1956 Wolverine. The new staff, which was announced at the banquet, decided they wanted a new format for the book.

There were long hours of hashing and rehashing of ideas with printing and engraving representatives and finally the format emerged, something new in year book circles.

The book was to be composed of a series of articles, similar to quality style magazines, each covering a phase of college activities. A liberal use of art work was to help carry out the new theme.

The sales staff went into action the first week of fall term with an intensive campaign at registration. Their efforts were rewarded with over 1,500 sales.

An orientation coffee hour the first week of classes expanded the staff to over 160. Plans for the book were explained and the staffs learned of their duties for the coming year.

All efforts were devoted to the big project of scheduling senior pictures fall term. Running true to form, most students waited until the last possible time to make their appointments. When it was all over, more than 2,300 senior pictures had been snapped.

Working closely together throughout the year, copy editor Myra MacPherson and photo editor Tom Andrews examine photographs as they prepare captions for the new feature articles.

Ann Sterling, index editor, Keith Miller, sports editor, and Nancy Pickard, engraving editor, spent many long hours preparing their copy and page proofs for the printing deadlines.

Then one day came the news that the 1955 Centennial Wolverine had been awarded All-American rating by the Associated Collegiate Press. When celebrations were over, the staff made up their minds to repeat the performance with the 1956 book.

In November, the staff attended the annual Associated Collegiate Press Conference in Detroit. Professional speakers and meetings with other yearbook staffs provided new ideas for the editorial and business staff.

Rumors were in the air that MSU might make a second trip to California and ideas began to take shape for an elaborate Rose Bowl section. When the official word came, a 12 page Rose Bowl section with a feature on student activities was organized.

Wolverine facilities expanded this year. Several organizations on third floor changed locations and the sales and promotion staffs were able to move their operations into Organization Room One.

As the final deadlines drew near winter term, the Wolverine staff spent many long evenings preparing final copy and page proofs. The work was not over even after the book had gone to press. Arrangements had to be made for distributing the Wolverine when it made its appearance the first week in June.

Office manager Gail DePodesta, advertising manager Warren Johnson and organizations editor Tom Ayers take a break to discuss progress on their individual sections of the book.

Art editor Marilyn Krueger and seniors editor Pat Moynihan compare their work. This year the Wolverine used more than the usual amount of art work to carry out its feature theme.

John Conolly, sales manager, and Roger Bennett, promotion manager, display the cover of the 1956 Wolverine which was used for promotion in the final sales drive winter term.

State News: Tops in Its Field

A Big Year Saw Reaffirmation of Policy of Service

With its thirtieth birthday coming up in September of this year the State News continues to maintain its top position in the ranks of collegiate dailies.

Consistently All-American since the end of World War II, the paper has expanded rapidly to keep pace with a growing university which it serves.

From a circulation of a few thousand in 1945 the press run has climbed to an all-time high of more than 14,500 this year.

Four page editions, an old standby, were relegated to the scrap heap this year.

New staff set-ups and personnel adjustment have kept pace with the growth of the paper. More than 100 students are directly involved in the daily production of the S'News with plenty of openings for more interested collegiate newshawks.

The traditional Frosh issue started off the year in true State News style. A more compact version of the "introductory" paper was mailed to several thousand new students.

This year's special supplement pioneered a new area for collegiate dailies with the theme "Religion on Campus." The largest supplement ever produced by the paper proved interesting as well as educational.

Editorial staff—Gropp, Hall, Hoffman, Zuege, Carr, Jennings, Rigney, Flanders, Manchester, Wood, Tudor, Trout, Tukey, deSteiger, Alley, McGlothlin (center).

Editorial assistant Louis Gropp, managing editor Donn Shelton and campus editor Jerry Jennings talk over newspaper policies.

Surrounding sports editor Hal Bateman are staff members Jerry Robbins, Mel Reiter and Pete Walters.

After an exciting fall term, which was made even more memorable for State News workers by the first "Extra" in three years when the Rose Bowl trip was announced, the editorial staff settled down to its traditional task of keeping an eye on the campus.

This resulted in a series of crusading editorials and numerous front page feature edits on student government.

An attack carried on by the paper resulted in an investigation of the executive branch of the government, a new judicial plan presented to the student body for a vote at the spring registration and a number of lesser governmental actions.

The general revitalizing of the editorial page and its policies continued with a new look for the page beginning spring term.

Along the way the S'News ran a half page ad in one of its editions to state its policy of service to the campus.

"The Michigan State News is not the official voice of the university or its student body, but, while seeking to serve the best interests of both, stands ready to battle any move which would drive a wedge between the two, whether it come from within the university or from the outside."

GUY TUNNICLIFFE
Business Manager

One of the prime selling points for recruiting staffers remained the value of experience in advertising, circulation and general reporting and editing.

But more and more emphasis was placed on non-journalism staffers in the several recruiting drives the S'News conducted during the year.

As technical writing and the editing of house organs becomes more important in the modern business world, experience in journalism becomes more important to university graduates. With this in mind the State News has opened its doors more and more to interested students in other fields.

Daily production of the State News often begins several days before the individual issue appears. Story assignments are made in advance as much as possible. Photography must all be planned at least one day early. Writing, editing and making-up the paper consume from 8-10 hours and the press run adds another 10+ hours.

All this means State News staffs work far into the night to insure production of Michigan State's morning habit.

The five night editors and their staffs are each responsible for the production of one day's paper during the week.

Advertising deadlines must also be made at least a day in advance of publication to allow for dummying and scheduling.

All in all production of the State News is a monumental task but one that "S'newsers" feel is a worthy means of service to the community.

Reading newspaper galleys before going to press are Hal Bateman, Gene Ritzinger, Marge Mizgala and Pete Walters.

State News staff members Mike Carr, Alberta Banky and Nan Rigney make up pages with Campus Press employee Don O'Neil.

Spartan

In addition to his duties as Editor-in-Chief of the Spartan, Don Hadden was a regular contributor to the humorous section.

"He who laughs at the Spartan, laughs best," is the dogma promoted by the staff of MSU's student magazine. The Spartan magazine first appeared in 1936 as a humor-feature magazine with its contents balanced between humor, feature and fiction. The magazine is managed and written by students, and aimed at student readership. Traditional features add continuity to the magazine. Each month readers view the calendar girl and Sparty Pix, with MSU coeds, and Kleptomania, featuring the cartoons "stolen" from other college magazines.

Work on the Spartan is divided into two staffs, editorial and business. The editor is directly responsible for the editorial content and production of the magazine. His staff is divided into four departments, layout, copy, photography and art.

On occasion the edit staff enjoys departing from the usual general-content type magazine and puts out a special issue, such as the travel and the science-fiction issues this year.

The business staff, under the direction of the Business Manager, consists of an office manager who keeps the books, an advertising department, a promotion department for publicizing each month's issue by the use of signs, ads and publicity "gimmicks" and a sales staff.

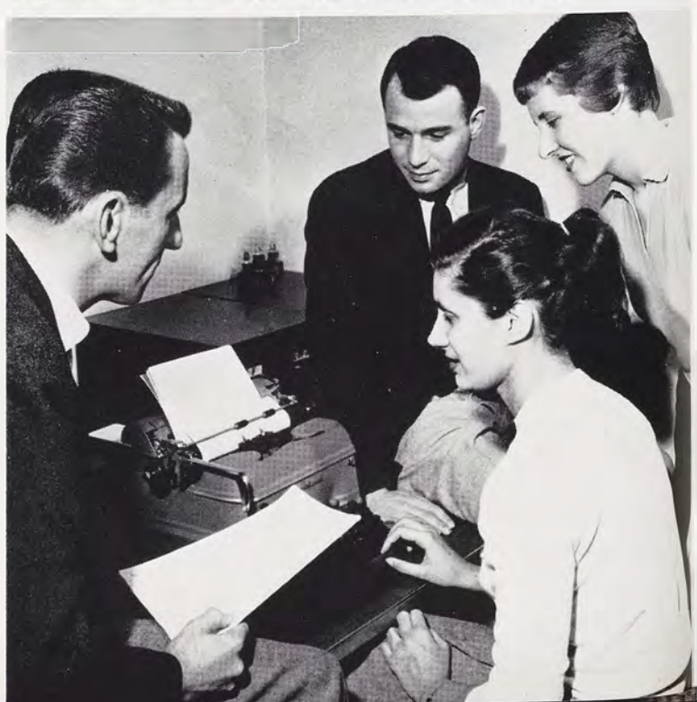
Circulation manager Bill Shearer and Jerry Walicki give new assignments to stand managers Joyce Minns and Pat Majeski.



As business manager, Gene Hill supervised the "money" operations of the Spartan—advertising, promotion and circulation.

Assistant business manager Don Toye, Tom Gaskin, advertising manager Ben Keeler and Sue Silver go over the monthly accounts.

Conjuring up new ideas for promotion gimmicks are Rick Stegmeyer, Rochelle Praeg and promotion manager Cliff McDermott.

MSU Veterinarian

Business manager Carol Beitzel discusses some of the articles to be used in the spring Veterinarian with editor Dean Ewing.

"New trends in Poultry Disease" wouldn't interest most Spartans, but it's typical of the type of articles which appear in the MSU Veterinarian.

The publication has its offices in Giltner Hall, close to the interests of its readers. The magazine, which is published three times a year, concentrates its appeal on students and faculty in the College of Veterinary Medicine and veterinarians throughout the country.

The scientific service journal is published by approximately 10 veterinary medicine students. It maintains a circulation of about 1,400 issues distributed throughout the nation.

A new feature in the Veterinarian this year is the use of two colors. Most of the manuscripts are contributed by practicing veterinarians. The material is edited by the student staff which also contributes articles.

The magazine is divided into general articles, abstracts and reviews, case reports and faculty, alumni and student news. The advertisements are of a professional nature.

The staff was pleased this year to receive a request from a small southern veterinary college for sufficient copies of the Veterinarian for its students.

Spartan Engineer

The Spartan Engineer, published for the students of the School of Engineering, features articles dealing with subjects of interest to these students. Some are technical in nature, while others are more general in their approach.

The staff is manned primarily by engineering students who encourage fellow students, faculty and university administrators to supply articles. News of the local engineering clubs, societies and new developments in the industry are also included in the four issues per year.

This year was marked by several major advances in the magazine's continuing improvement policy. Due to an exceptionally successful year, financially, the magazine became solvent. Circulation broke all previous records and the volume of content increased. This resulted in the magazine's acceptance as a member of the Engineering College Magazine Association. With this membership even further improvements can be expected. In addition, staff members are able to attend the association's national convention each fall.

Government Means Responsibility

Self Determination Is Exercised Through Governing Bodies

SELF-GOVERNMENT has been an important part of student life at Michigan State since the school was founded.

In recent years, this has been expressed through a more or less integrated system of governing bodies with the All-University Student Government at the hub.

The governing groups include such bodies as dorm councils, Associated Women Students, Inter-Fraternity Council and Union Board.

These expressions of self-determination offer a means for students to exercise responsibilities and to fulfill obligations.

Student government has had a number of forms since its inception. The present system can be traced to a Student Council organized in 1908.

Through a precedent-setting action the Student Government's responsibilities now include supervision of traditions on campus and sponsorship of a number of activities.

It has broadened in scope to include such things as Spartan Revue, an annual variety show in the fall, pep rallies, supervision of Campus Chest and the like.

Another field of governmental responsibility which has recently assumed great importance is the All-University Judiciary.

The judiciary acquired a new and broad responsibility for the discipline of most cases of student infractions. In the recent spring registration referendum it was voted to place all student judicial groups under the central AUSG Judiciary.

Such groups not only give the students the same liberty enjoyed under the federal government but allows them to function as good citizens, exercising responsibility in return for their freedom.

Sue Johnson presents Arnold Morse with the Micro-Midget racing trophy. Engineering Council sponsors the event.

Spartans vote in campus elections. Enthusiasm for the campaigns usually runs high and only an ID is required for voting.

Campaign posters line the walks as candidates vie for student attention the week before elections.

Spartans become familiar with the new system of entering and leaving Berkey which was initiated by Student Government.

Student Government Executive Personnel

President Bill Mansfield provided the leadership required to guide Student Government in its activities. He met frequently with his top advisers to discuss problems and special programs.

Members of the president's cabinet are Mercer, Voller (adviser), Mansfield, Dawson, Spink and Broersma. The group coordinates the activities of the various Student Government agencies.

Student affairs on campus are primarily under the administration and legislation of the Student Government. Carrying out the laws of the congress and coordinating the multiple activities of the government are the major responsibilities of the executive branch.

The president and his cabinet coordinate the many agencies which work as a part of Student Government to keep it running smoothly.

Some of the bureaus under their guidance are the Welcome Week program, high school cooperative guide services, elections and Olympic Day. Mimeograph and loan services are also available.

Last year a special Centennial Commission was organized to handle Centennial activities including the Homecoming Parade. Through the Spartan Spirit Commission, Student Government co-sponsored the Rose Bowl trip to California.

▲ Judiciary

The constitutionality of Student Congress enactments is decided by the Judiciary Board. This branch of the Student Government rules on the actions of the congress and the executive. It hears appeals from the men's and women's judiciaries and the election reviewing board. It also hears student disciplinary cases upon students' requests.

Three justices, two representatives of the Dean of Students and a representative from Men's Council and AWS, comprise the Judiciary.

This year the Judiciary recommended a revision in the Student Government constitution which would involve major changes in this branch. Also considered was the possibility of the Judiciary hearing traffic, dormitory and all student cases involving disciplinary action by the university.

Traffic Court ▼

The Student Traffic Appeal Court continued this year to handle cases appealed by students who received driving and parking violation tickets under the new Motor Vehicle Regulations.

Appointments to the court are made by the Dean of Students after recommendations by the president of Student Government. The seven-man tribunal meets with students who are appealing campus traffic tickets. In these private sessions the court decides if the student's appeal should be upheld. If it decides in his favor, the student is not compelled to pay the fine.

Although members of the court donate their time and effort, the Dean of Students provides the necessary secretarial help to keep the records of the court. All of the money collected in fines goes directly to the student loan fund operated by the university.

Student Congress

New representatives to the Student Congress are sworn in by the speaker at one of the Wednesday evening meetings. Each member serves on a committee besides attending congress.

The 25 cent tax that students often complain about paying at registration is put to use by the Student Government. From this money congress appropriates funds for the Spartan Spirit Program which sponsors pep rallies and reviews. One of the most remembered this year was the Gaylords who appeared before the Notre Dame game.

The Student Congress is the legislative branch of the Student Government. All living units, including fraternities, sororities, dorms, married housing and off-campus students are represented.

Each member has one vote by which he expresses the sentiments of his group. Members are elected in the spring. They are assigned to standing committees which include Organizations, Elections, Finance, Student Rights and Welfare and Congress Business and State Affairs.

The committees meet to discuss bills which fall under their jurisdiction, and report their findings when the bills come up for a final vote before congress. The Wednesday evening meetings are well-known for heated discussions over controversial campus issues.

Bills of major importance to the campus are frequently adopted by the congress. Driving regulations are always a problem and the congress works closely with the Traffic committee to create more agreeable driving conditions.

Heated issues frequently arise in connection with campaign regulations. This year an ordinance was passed to reduce the number of campaign posters a candidate may use, thus giving a campus a neater appearance during election week.

Campus Chest

"Carry the Ball for Campus Chest."

This was the slogan used for this year's campus charity drive. A kick-off banquet was held to begin the on-campus solicitations and to spark the plans for the week's drive.

Proceeds went over the top to break last year's record. A new profit-making function was the organization of a refreshment car on the special Purdue train.

Allocations from the contributions are made to the various charities according to a pre-determined percentage basis. A recent addition to organizations receiving aid was the Olympic Fund. The money is used to send athletes to the olympics.

Being in one of the major departments of the executive branch of Student Government, the director of Campus Chest is a member of the president's cabinet. The Campus Chest board includes the director and heads of personnel, solicitations, special events, public relations and Spartacade.

Campus Chest sponsors several service projects. "Good News," the student musical in March, was presented by the organization. At the International Festival during Parents' Weekend Campus Chest sponsored the College Crusade for Freedom.

Additional campus projects brought funds to the charity. Although it was a controversial issue, Spartacade brought a large donation. A special feature was the auctioning of three paintings by Francis Ying.

Campus Chest committee heads Mary Ellen Stetler, Carol Rouse and Sue Ames prepare tags and canisters for the charity drive.

AWS Activities Board

Freshmen coeds become acquainted with the Activities Board of the Associated Women Students even before coming to campus. Most of them receive letters during the summer from upper class women as part of the Big Sister Program. The program provides helpful tips on college life.

During Welcome Week the board assists in the sponsoring of the "Who's Who and What's What" program. This is intended to acquaint new coeds with the many campus organizations they may be interested in joining.

STUN, Student Text Used and New, is sponsored by the board in cooperation with Men's Union and aids students in buying less expensive books. The program is expanding and reaching more students each year.

The Activities Board acts as a co-ordinator for all women's activities in addition to sponsoring other campus events. Lantern Night, which honors outstanding senior women, is held each spring term. Before the selection, the Activities Board, Tower Guard and Mortar Board serenade the living units of the coeds being honored.

The group, in cooperation with Men's Union, sponsors the Activities Carnival to acquaint new students with campus organizations.

The MSU group will host the National Convention of AWS in 1957. Nearly 500 representatives from colleges and universities all over the country will attend.

New AWS Presidents Sue Porter and Bev Roush discuss future plans with outgoing Vice-President of the Judiciary Mary Wessling and outgoing Activities President Bev Greig.

A total of 1,780 pints of blood was donated in the blood drive co-sponsored by the Associated Women Students Judiciary Board winter term. Eight living units received 100 per cent contributions from their residents.

The Judiciary Board is composed of representatives from all of the women's living units and major women's organizations on campus. Every MSU coed is a member of AWS and is entitled to vote in the election of representatives winter term.

At its weekly meetings, the board reviews disciplinary cases involving violation of AWS rules. It also discusses problems which have occurred in the living units and handles all petitions from coeds.

Soon after the new board members take office in the spring, work is begun on revising the AWS Handbook. Revisions are made annually to meet the changing needs of the women students. Usually only a few rule changes are made each year but the effect is noticeable over a long period of time. Board members are aided in this task by housemothers and coeds who offer suggestions through their representatives.

In establishing many of its regulations, the board contacts other schools throughout the country in an attempt to obtain new ideas.

Pat Roberts, the AWS Judiciary President, was recently elected national president of the Intercollegiate Associated Women Students. Her duties will take her to conventions all over the United States.

Judiciary President Pat Roberts works with board members Mary Wessling, Jean Sanders and Liz Schneider in revising the AWS Handbook which contains all official coed rulings.

Union Board

When the official word arrived that State was going to the Rose Bowl, Union Board had already begun plans to co-sponsor the student trip to California.

The Special Events Committee is in charge of all the trips sponsored by Union Board. Spring term it is especially busy planning transportation for the Tulip Festival. The committee also handles a ride bureau which is helpful to many students.

Union Board is a service organization which correlates student activities in the Union. Fourteen members comprise the Board of Directors which is the governing body.

These members are appointed by the previous board and hold office for one year. Three board members are officers and each of the remaining 11 head one of the standing committees. The board is comprised of 80 members who serve on these committees.

The Union Board calendar of campus activities which students receive at registration is one of the projects of the Publications Committee. This year the group revised the Union Board handbook which provides information on the facilities and equipment in the Union.

As president of Union Board, Bob Gronewold provided the leadership for the officers and 11 committee heads who are responsible for all student activities in the Union Building.

The most important event undertaken by Union Board is its Union Board Week. The purpose is to create interest in the Union and to publicize the board as an organization. Featured during the week are a jazz concert, style show, variety show, art exhibit and a band dance.

Cultural programs and exhibits are sponsored by the Fine Arts Committee in conjunction with the Lecture-Concert series. It organizes the annual Christmas program in the Union lounge which climaxes winter term activities. The committee also sets up classes in bridge and dance instructions.

The weekly Union Board record dances are part of the work of the Social Committee which also handles special social events.

The Union Board Personnel Committee were busy winter term silk screening posters to publicize rush smokers for new members. Prospective members are interviewed by all of the Board.

Plans for Union Board events must be organized weeks in advance. Here Bill Waites, vice-president, checks arrangements on one of the Union Board Dances with Marilyn Todd, secretary.

Frosh-Soph Council

Frosh-Soph Day started its activities with the presidents of the freshman and sophomore classes engaging in a tree sitting contest. Sponsored by the Frosh-Soph Council, the day's activities included various events. Highlights of the day included the tug of war between the two classes across the Red Cedar and canoe races.

An important phase of the competition was the cheering contest held at the Marquette football game. The freshmen collected the most points this year to win back the coveted Little Brown Jug awarded to the day's winner.

The council is composed of the officers of the two classes and freshmen and sophomore representatives from each living unit. The council members strive to achieve co-operation between the two student bodies.

Coffee hours in Old College Hall were popular activities sponsored by the council. They provided the members with an opportunity to explain the year's program to their fellow classmates and gave the students an opportunity to meet one another.

One week prior to Easter a Vesper Service was held in the University Chapel. Members of the council planned the service and took part in its presentation. A guest speaker was invited to give the special Lenten message.

It was a long, cold night as freshman class president Bruce Kyburz and sophomore class president Roger Forbush held their tree sitting contest to open Frosh-Soph Day activities.

Throughout the year the executive board of the Frosh-Soph Council has been working on the difficult task of writing a new constitution. The members felt a need for more equal representation between the freshman and sophomore classes on this council.

The council also planned and organized two class meetings for all freshmen and sophomores during the year. One was held prior to primary elections for class offices in the fall and one prior to the spring primaries. These meetings are aimed at giving the students a better opportunity to not only meet the candidates, but also to spark the students' interest to vote and cooperate in carrying out the activities of the Frosh-Soph Council.

The executive board is the steering committee for the Frosh-Soph Council and all class functions. The president of the sophomore class serves as chairman and the other class officers and chairmen of standing committees make up the board. With the adoption of the new constitution the board had freshmen serve as co-chairmen with sophomores, so as to give them a greater share of responsibility and experience.

A parliamentarian was chosen from the board to preside at all Frosh-Soph Council meetings.

Recognizing the need for service to the university, the executive board and the Frosh-Soph Council work closely with Tower Guard and Green Helmet at registration.

Freshmen manage to smile despite the snow and cold during the tug of war contest, part of Frosh-Soph Day activities.

Junior Council

Junior class officers Barry Grant, Pat Tavenner, Jean Elliott and Bill Streng discuss the newsletter which provides a contact with class members and their leaders.

It was a cold, snowy morning. The telephone rang, "Yes, this is the Junior . . . now? But it's only, okay, we'll be there."

This was the conversation the morning of the Marquette football game when the Junior Council was given the task of spurring students from their beds to shovel the drifts of snow in Macklin Stadium. The result was good publicity for MSU, as pictures of the undertaking appeared in many of the Detroit newspapers.

"Everybody up, everybody down." This familiar cry heard at home football games is that of the Block "S" chairman who is a member of the Junior Council which sponsors the block activities. Next fall the council hopes to provide the block with white capes for uniformity. The dream of the council is to one day have the entire block go to the Rose Bowl.

The Junior Council is anxious to perform services for all students. Among the other new projects the council has undertaken is the establishing of a public relations committee composed of representatives from each living unit. These students are to supply the council with a list of juniors who are interested in working on class activities. This is one of the methods by which the council hopes to give all juniors a chance to participate in junior projects.

The 18-member Junior Council includes the four class officers and juniors who were chosen on the basis of petitions and personal interviews.

Coffee hours for the junior class was one of the regular projects of the council. These social hours gave the council an opportunity to describe their projects and obtain new ideas from their classmen.

A newsletter was planned to provide further contact with junior class members. Work is still being done on a proposed Junior Day which would provide an entire day's activities for all of the junior class.

Last, but not least, was the biggest project undertaken by the junior class—J-Hop. Most students take this annual two-night event for granted, not realizing the long hours of work and worry involved.

Two members were selected from the council to assume the co-chairmanship of the dance. With the aid of the remainder of the council and hundreds of junior class members, the auditorium was transformed into a modernistic "Fantasia," the theme of the 1956 J-Hop. Les Elgart provided the music for the big event. Featured was the coronation of Miss MSU.

Horace d'Angelo, Mary Towle and Barry Grant post J-Hop advertising in Berkey several weeks before the dance.

Men's Union

A new branch of the Men's Union was created this year to relieve the union of many of its previous duties. This activity board will co-sponsor the Activities Carnival, STUN, the Helot and the blood drive with AWS.

The board will operate independently of the Men's Union but it will make periodical reports on its activities. The union feels that this smaller group can handle many of the activities more efficiently.

The Men's Union is made up of three branches. The executive branch is headed by the president and is concerned with social activities. All current problems and reports to the activity board are made by the Legislative. The judicial branch works with campus elections.

The union is the official governing body of MSU men. The group is made up of men from campus honoraries, men's dormitories, fraternities and organizations that petition for a seat on the council.

In addition to handling the problems of men students, the union undertakes several service projects. Winter term the group, in cooperation with the athletic department, takes a group of blind children to a basketball game.

Challenges and awards by Men's Union prompted many living units to participate 100 percent in the winter blood drive.

Agriculture Council

John Hostetler, president of the Agriculture Council, presents the queen's loving cup to Barbara Patnoude, the Harvest Ball Queen, during the Agriculture Honors Banquet.

The Harvest Ball, a semi-formal dance, is the Agriculture Council's major activity fall term. Over 450 couples attended the dance at Kellogg Center. Highlight of the evening was the announcement of the queen and her court who reigned over the Ball and other agricultural activities.

The council is comprised of a representative from each of the 23 agriculture clubs and a president elected by the council.

The Agriculture Honors Banquet in February was an important day for the council. Seventy agriculture students were honored with awards for achievement and service. The outstanding senior was among those honored and the Harvest Ball Queen was presented with her trophy.

The all-university ox-roast sponsored by the council spring term is becoming a unique tradition. The council organizes the roast and divides the work among the 23 agriculture clubs. Each group is given a responsibility such as watching the all-night fires, setting the tables or serving. The ox is roasted over open pits and the barbeque is an all-day event.

An enthusiastic team of agriculture students challenges the faculty to a baseball game each spring at the picnic sponsored by the council. Although the faculty has been victorious in the past few years, the students refuse to let their spirits be dampened and insist that next year "there will be some changes made!"

Spartan Women's League

An orientation program for transfer women during Welcome Week was one of the newest projects of the Spartan Women's League this year. The group is primarily a service organization whose membership has increased to 110 coeds.

Spartans looking for summer employment got a helping hand from SWL which worked in cooperation with the Placement Bureau on a summer job program.

For the social benefit of its members, the group sponsors speakers and movies at frequent dinner meetings throughout the year. Faculty coffee hours are scheduled to acquaint the coeds with their instructors. The group assists at local orphanages and hospitals.

▲ AOCS

Helping new students become acquainted with the campus is one of the largest projects of the Association of Off-Campus Students. Members established booths in air, bus and railway terminals to greet new students and offer transportation.

The association attempts to bring together students living off campus and provide them with the needed representation in campus activities. This year it sponsored a pre-J-Hop party at an automobile showroom in Lansing.

Engineering Council ▼

The "May-Hop", an all-university semi-formal dance, climaxed the three-day Engineering Exposition sponsored by the Engineering Council. The exposition spring term is designed to display students' achievements in engineering. It features exhibits, an auto show and a midget auto race.

The council consists of a vice-president of each of the engineering societies and honoraries. It provides direction and leadership for many of the activities in the College of Engineering.

Campus Leaders Are Recognized

Blue Blazers and White Jackets Are Symbols of Honor

Campus leaders and exceptional students in every division of study at MSU find additional opportunity to serve the university and surrounding communities through the many honoraries.

Topping the list are the five all-university honoraries, Mortar Board and Tower Guard for women and Excalibur, Blue Key and Green Helmet for men.

Continually increasing in size to keep up with the growing population at State, Mortar Board, a national honorary for senior women, taps its members at May Morning Sing. The members are selected on the basis of leadership, scholarship and service to the university.

Tower Guard, sophomore women's honorary, was founded locally in 1936. It is the only group allowed to use Beaumont Tower as a meeting place. Some of the functions of Tower Guard include reading to the blind and helping at registration.

Excalibur is formed of thirteen outstanding senior men, part of whom are tapped at Water Carnival in the spring, the rest in the fall of their senior year. Formed locally in 1921, it is a mark of recognition for outstanding service to the university.

Outstanding junior and senior men are honored by selection to Blue Key, a national honorary recognizing scholarship, service and character.

As one of the few sophomore honoraries on any campus, Green Helmet was established here in 1938. Qualifications are leadership, scholarship and service.

Among the many other honoraries on campus are such diversified groups as Tau Beta Pi, national engineering group founded at MSU in 1892, and Omicron Nu, home ec honorary founded on campus in 1912 which now has chapters on several other campuses throughout the nation.

Some groups are restricted to those with outstanding talents, such as Green Splash and Porpoise for swimmers and Orchesis for dancers.

Requirements and aims of the many groups vary. Some are co-educational, others restrict membership to men or women.

Some meet regularly, others infrequently, but all have one thing in common: they seek to give recognition to the outstanding students at Michigan State.

Several new members of Blue Key, junior and senior men's honorary, are tapped at ceremonies during the Coronation Ball.

An interested observer stops to view the Kappa Alpha Mu Activities Carnival booth which featured photographic work.

Excalibur

Founded in 1921 to give recognition to those senior men who have brought credit to the school through their service, leadership and character, Excalibur now ranks as the top men's honorary at Michigan State.

Membership is limited to thirteen, part of whom are tapped at Water Carnival in June and part are recognized at one of the All-University dances in the fall.

Frequently these luncheon meetings are combined with Mortar Board, senior women's honorary.

As a group, Excalibur avoids active participation in campus affairs preferring to work through its individual members for betterment of all.

Recently, however, Christmas caroling and other group activities have become part of Excalibur's service to the campus and surrounding communities.

Excalibur members represent nearly all of the many types of activity at Michigan State.

Excalibur members, in pledging support of Michigan State, are constantly aware of their responsibilities and are always willing to serve in any manner requested.

Excalibur members gather at a popular restaurant for their weekly Thursday luncheons. Conversation turns to campus activities and campus problems, as members seek ways to serve Michigan State.

Mortar Board

The girls crowded in front of the windows as the members of Mortar Board gathered for their candlelight serenade. This meant that someone in the house was going to be tapped by the senior women's honorary at the May Morning Sing. It is then that new initiates, whose names have been kept a secret, are tapped by the outgoing members.

At their first meeting, the new members became acquainted with Mortar Board activities and learned of the tradition and high ideals of the honorary. Scholarship, service and leadership, the qualities for which each new member was tapped, are the guide for Mortar Board projects.

The new members were quickly initiated into Mortar Board activities as they began practicing for ushering at the spring graduation. Another service project provided by the honorary is the posting of the Dean's list in the union.

Because it was the Centennial year, Mortar Board invited all of its past members to a luncheon spring term. It gave the new members an opportunity to hear about the projects undertaken by Mortar Board alumnae in past years.

Late in September Mortar Board held a weekend retreat which provided an opportunity to become better acquainted and establish their goals for the coming year. Plans were begun for the Spinster Spin, marriage lectures and Lantern Night. As fall term came to an end, Mortar Board joined talents with Excalibur and went Christmas-caroling at Sparrow Hospital and to homes of East Lansing shut-ins.

Each spring at May Morning Sing several girls whose names have been kept secret are pleasantly surprised by being tapped for Mortar Board. Parents of the girls who have been invited secretly to attend add to the pleasure of the occasion.

Blue Key

Choosing Miss MSU is one of the most pleasant projects undertaken by Blue Key. Members entertain the campus queens at a tea the Sunday before the J-Hop and the choice is kept a secret until that Saturday night.

Each year 22 seniors are tapped for Blue Key, national men's honorary, at the Coronation Ball. During intermission at the J-Hop eight junior men are selected to complete the year's membership. Four of them become officers for the following year, thus carrying over leadership.

The candidates are selected particularly for their participation in campus activities and their service to the university. They must have a scholastic standing equal to the all-university men's average.

The projects undertaken by Blue Key are based on interest in serving the university. At their regular meetings, the members discuss current campus problems. Since they are all active student leaders they represent most of the campus organizations.

If any group is facing a serious problem, Blue Key invites them to send a representative to discuss it with the honorary's members and a satisfactory solution is usually worked out.

Blue Key offered their services in trying to settle the controversial problem of Spartacade. They sent a member to the committee which was established to decide the future of this event. The members spent much time discussing the problem at their bi-weekly meetings in Old College Hall.

Another project undertaken by Blue Key was a campaign to create friendlier cooperation between students and the merchants in East Lansing so both groups might benefit.

Brauner, Mottinger, Kaestner, Pybski, Carlson, Katafiaz, Fear.

Tower Guard

Students confused by the maze of registration can always get a helping hand from Tower Guard members who are wizards at solving schedule conflicts. This year Tower Guard co-sponsored an information tent near the Administration Building as an additional help to new students during registration week.

New Tower Guard members are tapped at the annual May Morning Sing. Their selection, which is kept a secret until then, is based on character, scholarship, leadership and service to the University.

The sophomore women's honorary is primarily a service organization. The new members soon discover that one of their most rewarding projects is reading to blind students each week and recently, making recordings as a further aid.

The members are always on call to provide tutoring services for students having scholastic difficulties. It's too bad that most students wait until just before finals to call on the Tower Guard members.

Early fall term the girls begin working with Mortar Board and Spartan Women's League in preparation for Spinster's Spin. They also co-sponsor Lantern Night and May Morning Sing.

Tower Guard members still manage to find time for social activities. They stage a party with Green Helmet in addition to a party for Tower Guard alumnae. The coeds are also hostesses at Mrs. Hannah's scholarship tea.

Weeks of tense waiting and selection takes place before members of Tower Guard are chosen. Keeping the secret is difficult, but May Morning Sing's happy and surprised faces erase this.

Green Helmet

Thirty-five outstanding freshman men were chosen as the new members of Green Helmet, sophomore men's honorary, during ceremonies at Fraternity Sing.

Members must have at least a 3.2 average and are selected because of their service to the university and their leadership ability. The new pledges could be easily noticed the week following their tapping by their Green Helmet plaques.

This year for the first time, Green Helmet co-sponsored a booth at Spartacade. The group also sponsored a booth at the Activities Carnival to acquaint new students with the organization and to meet prospective members.

Service projects are a Green Helmet specialty. Members are on hand at registration to help with schedule problems and this year they co-sponsored an information booth on campus during Welcome Week. Ushering at Sorority Sing and graduation is another of the group's projects. Members still find time to have parties with Tower Guard.

Green Helmet's special service is in the scholastic field. The members are always on call as tutors for Basic College subjects. Their names can be found on the familiar green sheets posted in the living units. The group has been so successful in their coaching that they are recommended by the Counseling Center.

Tutoring a Columbian student, Al Sarria, Dan Webber and Everett Lefler carry on one of Green Helmet's special service projects.

▲ Kappa Delta Pi

This year for the first time, Kappa Delta Pi staged a joint meeting with its other chapters in Michigan to discuss educational values and the important role of the members as future teachers.

The national honorary for education majors welcomes its new members at a banquet each term. Kappa Delta Pi regularly sponsors professional speakers and panel discussions to further their study in education.

The two-fold aim of the Society is to recognize outstanding students in education and to encourage high intellectual and professional standards.

Pi Alpha Mu ▼

Many of the advertisements for campus events are done under the direction of Pi Alpha Mu, the professional publishing, advertising and management honorary.

The group is composed of students with interests in publication management and advertising. The members become acquainted with their fields through contacts with speakers and with professional groups in advertising.

▲ Pi Mu Epsilon

Members of Pi Mu Epsilon, national mathematics honorary, have an opportunity to hear topics seldom discussed in the classroom from speakers at the bi-weekly meetings. They also obtain future job contacts.

At a winter term banquet, the group honors outstanding students in mathematics. At this time, new members are also initiated. They are selected according to their proficiency and interest in mathematics.

Alpha Zeta ▼

Agriculture students are always very interested in the annual instructor evaluation conducted by Alpha Zeta in the College of Agriculture. From the results of this poll, ten outstanding faculty members are recognized by special awards.

Members of Alpha Zeta are also eligible for membership in the national agriculture honorary. They are selected from the upper portion of the junior and senior agriculture classes.

▲ Theta Sigma Phi

Campus organizations and living units learned how to increase the effectiveness of their publicity from the Publicity Clinic sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi fall term.

The 90 groups represented at the clinic received a booklet containing information on where and how to submit their publicity and also the publicity facilities available on campus. The idea for the clinic originated when the president attended the national convention.

Theta Sigma Phi is a national professional fraternity for women in journalism. The group sponsors six professional speakers a year.

Tau Sigma ▼

Two outstanding freshmen are honored each year by Tau Sigma, Science and Arts and Business and Public Service honorary. They are selected for their scholastic achievements in the two schools represented by the honorary.

Dr. Madison Kuhn of the History Department spoke on the MSU student through 100 years at the Tau Sigma initiation banquet winter term. This is the most outstanding event sponsored by the honorary.

Tau Sigma recognizes high scholarship in Science and Arts and Business and Public Service. Members must have a 3.4 average.

▲ Green Splash

"Splash Backs" was the title of the Centennial Green Splash performance which was the seventeenth synchronized swimming and diving show presented by the honorary.

Members must pass certain swimming requirements, hold a Red Cross Life Saving certificate and participate in the water show.

Xi Sigma Pi ▼

Members of Xi Sigma Pi seek to maintain high scholastic standards in forestry education and promote good relations between the students and the forestry industry.

Initiation into the honorary is held fall and spring terms and new members are honored at a banquet. The initiates must be in the upper 25 per cent of their class and have an interest in forestry. Faculty members, graduate students and alumni are often guest speakers at the meetings.

"Smile please . . . that's all."

This was the phrase used by KAM members hundreds of times during J-Hop weekend as they shot couples' pictures at the dance. Early the next morning, the weary members were busy in the darkroom developing and printing.

Kappa Alpha Mu, the photo-journalism honorary, co-sponsors the Homecoming display and queen contests. This year, in addition to the usual activities, members were busy constructing a float for the queen and her court. When the busy weekend was over, the KAMers still had the task of making sure the float was dismantled.

Photography is the main topic at the group's monthly meetings. New ideas are exchanged and occasionally models are invited to pose for the camera enthusiasts. Speakers frequently address the group and describe photography in their particular field.

Fall term the members attended a lecture by Walter Benser covering his many European travels. It provided the group with many new ideas in color photography.

No organization's program is complete without social activities. Spring term the members held a picnic at Camp Dearborn. Colored slides of the outing were shown at the final meeting and provided much amusement for the members.

Several members represented the chapter at the national KAM convention in Oklahoma spring term.

Who could help but smile after such a pleasing appeal from Kay Klotzburger. Chuck Pittsley checks the lighting as John Wade and other members of KAM shoot the dance pictures at the J-Hop.

▲ Beta Beta Beta

Members of Tri Beta, national biological honorary, are encouraged by the organization to submit original research articles to Bios, the national fraternity publication. The members are students majoring in one of the biological sciences who have a 2.5 average.

The honorary frequently invites speakers to its meetings. Winter term Mr. Robert Burns illustrated his talk on desert rodents with movies which he took while traveling in California.

Tau Beta Pi ▼

Each Year Tau Beta Pi, national engineering honorary, presents a slide rule to the freshman engineering student selected as outstanding in his class.

The members act as guides at the annual Engineering Expositions. Another project is the publication of information on scholarships and fellowships offered by major engineering schools. Members must be in the upper percentile of their engineering class.

▲ Phi Epsilon Kappa

Speakers on health, recreation and physical education usually highlight the meetings of Phi Epsilon Kappa. The men's physical education honorary has 50 active chapters and 25 alumni chapters in colleges throughout the country.

Many of the speakers at the meetings have been from the campus physical education department. Dr. Dzenwagis spoke on health education in the public schools. At another meeting, adapted sports for the handicapped was explained by Dr. Van Huss. In March the organization was represented by its president at the national convention.

Delta Omicron ▼

The members of Delta Omicron, professional music fraternity, knew they couldn't all attend their national convention in Colorado, so they sent master recordings of many of their selections.

Fall term the women's honorary celebrated their founders' day with a breakfast. The group entertained with a medley of Christmas carols to conclude the Union Board holiday program.

Delta Omicron members are music majors with high grades in their music work and a desire to promote American music. Spring term the pledges presented a musical on their initiation night.

Alpha Epsilon Rho

"Cat on a Hot Tin Roof", "Pajama Game" and "Damn Yankee" were some of the performances attended by members of Alpha Epsilon Rho during their trip to New York City. After each show they met the performers and producers and discussed technical aspects of the productions.

The 60 members of the national radio and television fraternity flew to New York by chartered plane and were guests of several national networks. They had dinner with Ed Sullivan and attended a dress rehearsal of his television program. Seminars with advertising agency officials concluded the tour.

The New York trip serves to illustrate that, as the fourth oldest chapter of the national organization, the group has grown into one of the largest and most active.

To give its members experience in radio and television, Alpha Epsilon Rho presents "Spartan Playhouse" each week on WKAR. The production is entirely staged by the members.

As a service project, the honorary produced a series of radio shows for the Michigan Epileptic Society. It also produced a television kinescope on problems in television production.

A tiny gold microphone flanked by rows of pearls is the official badge of the honorary, which attempts to encourage and recognize outstanding radio and television students.

Boarding their plane for New York 60 members of Alpha Epsilon Rho eagerly anticipate the performance of many Broadway and television shows which will be seen on their arrival.

▲ Omicron Nu

The first chapter of Omicron Nu was founded on this campus by the dean of the college of home economics. As a further distinction, the president of the national home economics honorary is a member of the MSU faculty.

The group recently played host to the national Omicron Nu convention. Each year the honorary sponsors Home Economics Night in recognition of outstanding work in home ec by undergraduates.

Eta Kappa Nu ▼

The main objective of Eta Kappa Nu, national electrical engineering honorary, is to become acquainted with and be of service to fellow electrical engineers.

At the annual Engineering Exposition, Eta Kappa Nu sponsors a display relating to the advancements made in electrical engineering. The group presented an annual dinner-dance for its members and faculty spring term.

Delta Phi Delta helped this year to organize a Creative Arts Club which is open to all students interested in the arts. The group sponsored an annual dance fall term and at Parents Day they presented students' work at a sidewalk Art Show.

The art honorary promotes art interest among all students and stimulates higher scholarship particularly among art majors. The group brings recognition to potential artists whenever possible by sponsoring contests among promising students. The members also attempt to stimulate art interest in the community.

Pi Kappa Delta ▼

Students in campus living units had an opportunity to see Pi Kappa Delta members in action fall term as they gave speeches in the dorms to promote Campus Chest contributions.

Pi Kappa Delta, largest forensics honorary in the country, stimulates intercollegiate speech activities and communication. Members visit other colleges, even as far as California, to participate in debates and frequently return with high honors for their performances.

The honorary sponsors the Bull Throwing Contest open to all students with a knack for storytelling. Membership in the group is open to anyone actively interested in speech.

▲ AIChE

New members of AIChE had an opportunity to become well acquainted with the group and its sponsors at a party at the beginning of each term. They began to see the real benefits of the chemical engineering honorary as later meetings presented movies and speakers in their field.

The members attended a banquet with the other Michigan chapters in Detroit fall term. Plant inspection trips by the group provide a valuable learning source.

AIEE-IRE ▼

The American Institute of Electrical Engineers-Institute of Radio Engineers requires an electrical engineering major for membership in the student branch.

Meetings, which include speakers, movies, and tours, provide the link between classroom and industry. Since meetings are also attended by graduate engineers, members have an opportunity to learn the latest developments in their field from men who have observed them first hand.

Alpha Delta Sigma

Alpha Delta Sigma is a professional advertising honorary whose main object is to improve the quality and quantity of advertising, especially on campus. The officers are elected on the basis of what their future plans are in the advertising world. Alpha Delta Sigma alumni provide many job contacts for members.

The members attend a luncheon every other Wednesday with Lansing advertising men which features speakers on the latest trends in advertising.

Sigma Delta Chi ▼

When students receive their term grades, they can always count on finding a copy of "Campus Capsules", the miniature newspaper which reviews the term's campus activities. The publication is prepared by Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity.

This year the group sent five delegates to the national convention in Chicago. The fraternity attends joint meetings with the professional central Michigan group with which it is connected.

Alpha Phi Omega

"Books for Asia" was the campaign sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega this year to help spread democracy throughout the world.

APO is a national service honorary with membership open to all men on campus who have previously belonged to any scouting organization and wish to continue their services. The group has a three-fold purpose of fellowship, service and leadership.

APO sends a representative to the Freshman Orientation Committee and aids in the annual welcome program for new students. This year they co-sponsored a transfer student mixer. A coffee hour was also sponsored and campus leaders were presented to the new students. Welcome Week was climaxed by a party for all freshmen. During registration, APO provides roving aides to help students with schedule problems.

Throughout the year, members visit students in the Health Center and deliver messages and perform errands for the patients. The group also ushers at Water Carnival and many other campus activities. Its services are always offered for counting ballots at campus elections.

"Save Our Grass" is the slogan used by APO in their campaign to improve campus grounds. Signs are painted winter term and distributed about campus come spring. APO also sponsors a blood drive and assists in the Campus Chest drive.

Alpha Phi Omega offers its service in many campus activities. Here members Leonard Hockley, Larry Treudrrow, James Balfour and Claude Watson plan the annual blood drive.

Alpha Kappa Psi

Alpha Kappa Psi members Lee Lathrop, Henry Schankula and Steve Kovacs look over the program of activities from the Education Conference co-sponsored by the business honorary.

Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity, co-sponsored the Alpha Kappa Psi Education Conference at Kellogg Center fall term. The conference was attended by many students from Wayne, Detroit, and U. of M. in addition to schools from Indiana and Ohio.

Discussion panels were held which were beneficial to all the chapters. There was a guided tour of the Lansing Oldsmobile plant which acquainted members with the methods and techniques of large scale production. The two-day conference ended on a light note with a banquet and dance at Kellogg Center.

Field trips have been a major part of the Alpha Kappa Psi program. During the past year the group visited the Upjohn Company in Kalamazoo and the Ford Rouge Plant.

The Gamma Mu chapter acted as host for the East Central District Conference with approximately 15 chapters attending. New ideas in the business world were exchanged.

Alpha Kappa Psi held an open house during Homecoming weekend which was attended by many of the returning alumni. The group is one of the few honorary fraternities with its own permanent residence.

Sigma Lambda Chi

Sigma Lambda Chi had the distinction of having the president of the National Association of Home Builders, Mr. Earl Smith, as the speaker at their sixth annual banquet spring term. The chief topic was the production of low-cost houses by the assembly line principle. Scholarships and awards were presented to the outstanding members.

The honorary for lumber merchandising and residential building majors sponsors a sizeable loan fund for students in these two majors, which is made available through contributions by lumber industries.

Sigma Pi Eta

Members of Sigma Pi Eta, professional hotel honorary, have an opportunity to become acquainted with many phases of hotel management through field trips, speakers and group discussions. The honorary was organized to further interest in hotel management at MSU.

Sigma Pi Eta aids its members in securing jobs after graduation by preparing and sending brochures to prominent hotelmen listing the qualifications of the seniors.

The group's most important activities is participation in the Midwest International Hotel Show in Chicago spring term.

▲ Phi Mu Alpha

One of the most satisfying musical programs presented by Phi Mu Alpha was a concert for patients at the Ingham County Tuberculosis Hospital. The group scheduled several programs throughout the year including a spring concert of contemporary American music.

A sincere interest in music is one of the requirements for membership in the national professional music fraternity for men. Members must be of sophomore standing and have a 2.5 average.

Phi Gamma Nu ▼

Phi Gamma Nu sponsored speakers at its meetings who are usually connected with the field of business. This year one of the most interesting was a lecture by a beautician emphasizing the importance of good personal appearance in the business world.

The businesswomen's honorary sponsored a tea this year for the wives of the business faculty and co-sponsored several social activities with Alpha Kappa Psi, men's business honorary.

"Aqua Maniacs Go Vaudeville" was the theme for this year's popular Porpoise Show. The national swimming honorary held its annual fall term water show in the Jenison pool. Highlights of the show were the underwater swimming demonstrations and the Queens' Relays. Five relay teams swam to capture the loving cup for the porpoise queen and her court.

Spring term the Porpoise party, an all-day social affair, is the honorary's most important event. In the afternoon competitive swimming is held and awards are given to the outstanding freshman swimmer, the senior with the highest four year scholastic record, and the outstanding varsity swimmer at the awards banquet. A special guest is honored by being named King for the Day, and the banquet also gives the honorary an opportunity to interview outstanding high-school swimming prospects and their coaches.

The Porpoise members are selected on outstanding swimming abilities and practice once a week for their show.

Alpha Delta Theta

Alpha Delta Theta members, Pat Hunt, Karen Daenzer and Marlene Gietzel, use a microtome to section paraffin-embedded tissues which will be stained and examined for cell structure.

Alpha Delta Theta sponsors an orientation program for freshmen majoring in medical technology to acquaint the students with others in the field and also with their instructors.

Meetings of the medical technology honorary are highlighted by guest speakers. Dr. Stafseth, head of the Biological Science Division, was one of the outstanding lecturers. Movies and group discussions are also featured at the meetings.

The MSU chapter was represented at the national convention at Bolder, Colorado, fall term. From the convention, the group learned of many recent developments in medical technology.

The honorary held a Founders' Day Banquet in February with alumni, members and pledges of Alpha Delta Theta attending. The banquet celebrated the twelfth birthday of the honorary on campus.

The members, who are all med. tech. majors, must have a 2.0 average and must be sophomores. Following their pledging, the new members entertain the actives with a party.

Throughout the year, Alpha Delta Theta plans displays for the showcases in Giltner Hall. Teas and special parties are held to develop the social cooperation and fellowship emphasized by the organization.

▲ Orchesis

Those who attended the centennial musical production, "Michigan Dream" saw several numbers performed by a group of talented dancers who are members of Orchesis, the modern dance honorary.

At its meetings the members learn new skills and routines as they work on a program for their modern dance exhibition spring term. The show displays their talent and promotes an interest in the art of modern dance. Prerequisites for membership are previous dance experience and high scholarship.

Delta Psi Kappa ▼

Delta Psi Kappa, physical education honorary, has been stressing activities for high school students. As part of their program this year, the honorary sponsored phys ed demonstrations at the Lansing high schools.

Anyone who has noticed the "Meet the Majors" bulletin board in the women's gym can credit its construction to Delta Psi Kappa members. The honorary also sponsored several lectures on health and physical education.

▲ Pi Tau Sigma

The members of Pi Tau Sigma, Mechanical Engineering Honorary, were all in attendance the evening Mr. Jack Breslin of the Placement Bureau spoke. Mr. Breslin was accompanied by two company representatives who were interviewing engineers and answered many questions concerning future employment and procedures in job application.

The engineering honorary recognizes outstanding students in mechanical engineering. Members must rank in the upper fourth of the junior class or the upper third of the senior class. Members are honored at an initiation banquet fall and spring terms.

Sigma Gamma Epsilon ▼

A trip to the National American Association of Petroleum Geologists convention in New York highlighted the program of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, honorary geology fraternity. The group also attended the regional convention in Chicago to become familiar with the latest developments in geology.

At its weekly meetings, members received information on the many phases of mining through slides, movies and speakers from the geology field. A banquet for outstanding members and a picnic spring term were included in the group's social calendar.

Phi Eta Sigma

Mark De Bona, Wilfred Berman, Tony Brouillet and Braney Burke, members of the Phi Eta Sigma executive council, plan the "big brother" program sponsored by the honorary for new students.

Phi Eta Sigma, men's scholastic honorary, has widened its scope of activities by increasing the period of active membership from one year to the full four years of college life. The club felt that its purposes of fellowship and service to the university on the scholastic level could be better accomplished by longer active participation.

Members of the honorary are selected from the freshman class on the basis of outstanding scholarship and leadership ability. The faculty of the Basic College has been instrumental in fostering this national honorary on the MSU campus.

Freshman orientation is a very important part of the group's service projects. Members, in conjunction with other campus groups, sponsor the "big brother" program to help new students become acquainted with the school.

At their monthly meetings the members invited speakers to discuss current topics of campus interest. Lectures were also heard from people outside the college circle. Informal coffee hours provided a social aspect for the members of the honorary.

Top Row—Neal, Camburn, Pod, Rose, Auxter, Loomis, Oberle, Birtwell. First Row—Namey, Goetz, Sherwood, Covell, Gainer, Weber, Harrington.

▲ Theta Alpha Phi

"Bell, Book and Candle" and "Mad Woman of Chaillot" were two of the term plays co-sponsored by Theta Alpha Phi, dramatics honorary. A play is presented each term with the members assisting with acting, publicity and scenery.

Spring term special emphasis is placed on the group's own show with the members assuming all phases of the production, including directing, acting, producing, scenery and publicity.

Members in Theta Alpha Phi must have earned at least 12 points by working on various plays and must be third term sophomores. This year the group co-sponsored a Masquerade Ball with prizes for the most unusual costumes.

Phi Lambda Tau ▼

This year for the first time Phi Lambda Tau held a open rush smoker for students who felt they qualified for membership. The engineering honorary is open to any junior or senior engineer with a 2.6 or above. At the smoker, the group's faculty advisers gave the rushees a history of the honorary. The honorary includes students from all phases of engineering.

Phi Lambda Tau honors engineering students for outstanding initiative, fellowship and scholarship. A banquet is given each term as a climax to pledging. At the fall banquet Professor Carl Hall spoke on electrosonics.

▲ Chi Epsilon

Purdue University was the site for the 1956 national convention of Chi Epsilon, civil engineering honor fraternity. The MSU chapter worked on problems in alumni chapters and alumni-student relations as its project for the convention.

The Engineering Exposition is a major club project with the members building displays to illustrate the latest developments in civil engineering. The group also guided tours at the exposition.

Two spring banquets climaxed the honorary's initiations. Prominent industrialists and engineers were invited as speakers to provide members with a closer look at their field. Also on the spring calendar was a picnic for all the members.

Beta Alpha Psi ▼

One of the newest honoraries on campus is Beta Alpha Psi, which was organized in 1954 to honor students who excel in accounting.

The honorary sponsors discussions and speakers to further its members' study in accounting. One of the outstanding appearances was that of William La Bau and Arthur Anderson who showed and explained the film "Electronic Computers" which dealt with the recent trend toward mechanization of business processes.

The requirements for membership in the new honorary are a 3.0 in accounting work and credit in at least two upper-school accounting courses.

Clubs Add Balance to College Lives

From Jazz to Religion They Stimulate Student Interests

EVERY campus bulletin board is filled daily with information about Michigan State University clubs, organizations and honoraries. There are more than 185 of these for extra-curricular minded students, and the variety is nearly as vast as the number.

Music lovers have a wide choice, from the Jazz Society of West Circle Drive to the University Symphony group. For the athletically minded, there are the Weight-Lifting, Ski, Cricket, Fencing or Cycling Clubs.

A Myriad of Choices

To link the world in ties of friendships, the International Club shares in the customs, foods, talents and dress of foreign countries. Service clubs lend a helping hand, such as reading to the blind. To add depth and meaning to life, there is a religious group for every faith. Many clubs coincide with fields of study, whether it be history or agriculture.

Skilled authority or novice, students find acceptance as freshmen, sophomores, juniors, or seniors in these clubs and organizations. Memberships run from a handful to hundreds, and meetings vary from weekly to once or twice a term.

Some clubs congregate in a small room of the Union; others at Old College field or Lake Lansing. Some clubs have been around since the turn of the century and new ones are formed yearly.

No matter how varied, each club has one thing in common—the purpose of adding balance to college careers and helping to make students full and creative persons. Clubs invite one to explore new areas of interest, to develop potential, to form new friends and to add a new dimension to campus experiences.

Winter term ski enthusiasts find time for christies, parallels, snowplows and spills on club week-ends in Northern Michigan.

Enjoyment of jazz through records and jam sessions helps students develop an appreciation and interest of this type of music.

Equipped with their own planes, Winged Spartans have an opportunity to learn flying at a low cost.

Two lovely "Southern Belles" of Les Gourmets distribute Confederate bills in a stunt to publicize their buffet dinner dance.

Music lovers find that the Spartan Bell-Ringers provide a melodic and unusual type of entertainment at various occasions.

▲ Social Work Club

The orientation of freshmen and sophomores to social service was the main project of the Social Work Club this year. Membership has previously been limited to upperclassmen but the group felt that all interested students should have an opportunity to participate in the activities. Coffee hours gave them an opportunity to become acquainted with their instructors.

During the holiday season, the club combined social activities with community work. At their songfest the members contributed baskets of food which were donated to the Salvation Army and distributed to needy families.

Business Education ▼

The Business Education Club is concentrating most of its efforts this year in organizing a chapter of Pi Omega Pi, a national business education honorary. Another major project being undertaken by the club is organizing Future Business Leaders of America Clubs in Michigan high schools.

The club recognizes the needs of its members by offering them the opportunity to meet instructors in business and education, supervising teachers and school principals. It also prepares them for student teaching and assists in providing future job contacts.

Varsity Club

"Bought your 'Beat Michigan Button'? Only fifty cents. Come on, support the team."

This was the persuasive line used by Varsity Club members selling buttons the week before the U. of M. game. Their sales talk was successful as evidenced by the many Spartans sporting the buttons in Ann Arbor.

One of the biggest projects this money is used for is to sponsor the Varsity Ball in Kellogg Center during football season. Highlight of the dance is the crowning of the Varsity Queen whose identity is kept a secret until the dance.

At six o'clock one morning fall term, the pledges serenaded the women's dorms. The club is particularly interested in increasing its membership so as to enlarge its scope of activities. The group hopes that in the future, with the help of more members, they can initiate the tradition of forming a tunnel for the football team as it enters the field.

It's pledging time for the Varsity Club. The pledges are required to carry their paddles in addition to wooden "S" plaques. The final day was climaxed with short pants and lipstick.

Ski Club

Three beginners' weekends were a big attraction of the winter activities of the Ski Club. Experienced members helped the novices tackle the slopes and learn the fundamentals during trips to Boyne City and Au Sable.

This year the club entered two men's teams in the College Central U. S. Ski Meet at Boyne City instead of the customary one. As a result of concentrated practice sessions and unusual skill, the teams made an outstanding showing at the meet.

Inter-club racing for members of all classes was a featured event on the weekend trips. Climaxing the season was an awards banquet at which trophies were presented to the winning racers. Instructional films, lectures and discussions on the proper use and care of equipment highlighted the weekly meetings.

▲ SAM

"Management in Advertising" was the topic used by Gerald Sklar, vice president of the Advertising Distributors of America. He was one of the lecturers invited to speak before the Society for the Advancement of Management.

The group strives to advance its members in the field of management particularly through movies, speakers and field trips. It was previously known as the Management Club.

SAE ▼

The Society of Automotive Engineers has one of the largest memberships of any of the eight student engineering societies. The group works very closely with the auto industry and professional auto groups.

The society's biggest interest is the foreign car industry and especially in foreign car racing. The meetings feature movies of races and lectures from experts in the industry.

Closer cooperation between the faculty and students in hotel administration is one of the goals of the Hotel Association. Membership is open to all hotel ad students who hope that as a group they can better support the expansion and improvement of the hotel ad courses on campus.

Members have an opportunity to get acquainted at the group's many informal parties which include square dances, hayrides, barbecues and movies of special interest to the members.

▲ ASM

Field trips through industrial plants, such as Dow Chemical in Bay City, compromised some of the activities of the American Society for Metals. While at the Dow Company the students visited the foundry and saw the latest industrial methods used in the production of metals.

At the Engineering Exposition the club entered metallurgical displays. The organization often has movies of the industry at its chapter meetings and invites prominent speakers from industry to its monthly meeting in Grand Rapids.

ASAE ▼

As a part of the Engineering Exposition spring term, the American Society of Agricultural Engineers sponsors the Micro Midget auto race. The winning car is often entered by the members, all of whom are agricultural engineering or agricultural mechanics majors.

During Farmers' Week, the ASAE members serve food in the Agricultural Engineering Building and also conduct the visitors on tours of the campus. A student-faculty mixer and dinner is the highlight of fall term.

▲ Officers Club

To acquaint cadets and their families with army life on foreign posts, ROTC officers and their wives conduct a seminar each year and answer the many questions on foreign duty.

The Officers Club promotes a better understanding of army life and cordial relations between officers and cadets. This is done through bi-weekly meetings with talks by officers and guest speakers from various army agencies. The club is composed of advanced army ROTC juniors and seniors.

Sailing Club ▼

Almost any sunny afternoon spring term, members of the Sailing Club can be seen in their boats at Lake Lansing practicing for one of the intercollegiate races or giving instructions to eager novices.

The club is affiliated with the Midwest Collegiate Sailing Association and is an active participant in the Fall Regatta. New members needn't be experienced sailors; land classes winter term provide necessary instruction.

▲ Ag Econ Club

A trip to the race horse farms in Kentucky spring term highlighted the activities of the Ag. Econ. Club. The members had an opportunity to see many of the well-known racers and how they are cared for.

A Homecoming breakfast was sponsored by the club for all returning alumni of the Agricultural Economics Department. Speakers are featured at the club's meetings. This year they heard about agriculture in foreign countries from several exchange students.

Dairy Club ▼

Farmers Week found the members of the Dairy Club busy making arrangements for the fitting and showing contest which they sponsor. The students draw for animals and receive points for the showing technique and the appearance of the cow which has been under their care.

The club visited the American Dairy Association in Detroit winter term. Speakers are invited to the meetings and one of the most interesting was a student who had just returned from Germany as part of the farm youth exchange program.

▲ Snow-Caps

Always willing to give a helping hand, the Sno-Caps displayed their interest in nursing by assisting in the campus blood drives. Christmas found the nursing majors sponsoring a holiday party for Lansing convalescents.

By featuring professional speakers and sponsoring coffee hours, the club helped orientate new members to the nursing field. A picnic with the Pre-Med Club highlighted the social calendar.

Promenaders ▼

Chicago was the site of the National Dance Festival attended by the Promenaders last fall. The group represented Michigan as delegations from across the country participated. The Promenaders also attended a state festival at Flint.

Spring term the Cap and Gown Series sponsored the dancers in a tour of Michigan in which they presented daily demonstrations. The group also co-sponsored several all-campus square dances.

Spartan Guard

The snappy young man garbed in white spats, helmet and gloves with green lapel pins is a member of the Spartan Guard. The group is an outgrowth of the pre-war Pershing Rifles and is now attempting to gain a national affiliation with this organization. This plan is expected to reach completion by the spring of 1956 and would add great prestige to the group.

The guard appears throughout the year at many campus activities. Last fall thousands viewed the group as it marched and drilled in the Homecoming Parade. The men made another appearance during the intermission of the Coronation Ball and also officially recognized the corps sponsors by forming a saber arch for the coeds before caping. As an added attraction, guard members escorted the cadets' dates from their cars to the Auditorium.

Winter term is spent in constant drill practice to ready the unit for its numerous spring term activities. This spring it competed with other college drill teams at Wayne University, marched in the Armed Forces Day Parade and acted as an honor company at all spring parades and at graduation ceremonies. The men have also provided color guards for other campus activities including the Green and White game and varsity baseball games.

Through continued effort and hard work, the corp is constantly improving its routines and now has a series of drills. The guard hopes to develop into a superior working unit to represent the University and the armed forces. There is a possibility that this goal will be rewarded with new uniforms and special rifles for the members.

As an additional courtesy, members of the Spartan Guard were on hand to escort the cadets' dates from their cars to the Auditorium the evening of the Coronation Ball.

▲ LA and UP Club

A chance to view some of the latest in architectural design was afforded the members of the Landscape Architecture and Urban Planning Club when they visited the Detroit Civic Center. On their tour of the Center, the Detroit Planning Commission explained present construction methods and future expansion.

The intricate metropolitan expressway system was also viewed on the Detroit trip. The trips supplement classroom work and provide the members with new ideas in designing.

Spring term is always a busy one for the group as it sponsors a term party, a picnic and a banquet to honor outstanding seniors.

Hawaiian Club ▼

The Hawaiian Club was established on campus in 1947 to provide a closer association among students from Hawaii and others interested in the culture and affairs of the territory.

The club participated in the International Festival at which the members constructed a booth to display Hawaiian dress, music and handiwork.

At its meetings, the club features informative talks on Hawaii by students and visiting guests. The proposed Hawaiian statehood issue is of particular interest to the group. Colored slides on the points of interest of the island and the Hawaiian culture aid the members in understanding this U. S. territory.

▲ PEM Club

Beginning with an open house in the fall for all new majors and faculty, the Physical Education Majors Club scheduled dinners and speakers to promote a professional attitude among its members. The PEM Club is open to all women with a physical education major or minor and also recreation or dance majors.

Conforming to campus fashion this year, PEM members are now wearing Bermuda instead of bloomer shorts. Spring term the members were busy sponsoring play-days and intramurals for local high school girls. The PEM Club puts a great deal of emphasis on promoting athletics among young women.

AFS ▼

Members of the American Foundrymen's Society had an opportunity to get a preview of the 1956 Cadillac during their tour of the Cadillac Motor Company fall term. The society sponsored the trip for all engineering students, enabling them to witness a modern production plant in operation.

The organization works very closely with the foundry industry, especially with the Professional Foundrymen's Association and frequently attends their meetings in Battle Creek. The society alternates with the U. of M. chapter each year in sponsoring the Michigan Foundrymen's Convention. The society establishes contacts for its members with the industry, often finding them summer work.

MSU Chapter AMVA

Dr. Wayne Riser was one of the year's outstanding speakers before the student chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association. Dr. Riser, who lectures at Northwestern, discussed recent types of treatment for small animals.

The group was particularly interested in a talk by Dr. Furgeson of Ohio State who is the originator of blood classifications in cattle.

The organization attempts to bring the veterinary students into contact with areas in their field by sponsoring speakers on small and large animal medicine, federal and state veterinary projects and allied fields.

At Michigan State, ninety-eight per cent of the students in the College of Veterinary Medicine are members of the student A.V.M.A. chapter, which includes a few coeds. Every veterinary medicine school in the United States has an A.V.M.A. chapter.

The MSU chapter sends a representative to the national A.V.M.A. convention which was held this year in Minneapolis. The representative brought back views on the much-discussed issue of the possibility of having a national board examination rather than the state exams which most states now administer.

The group assists in the publication of the MSU Veterinarian which is issued to all vet students on campus.

Student members of the A.V.M.A. examine a dog in the small animal clinic of Giltner Hall. Domesticated animals brought to the clinic are treated with the finest veterinary facilities available.

Davis.

The A.V.M.A. recently attempted to form an honor code which they feel would better prepare students for their professional responsibilities after graduation.

The group strives to encourage study in veterinary medicine. This is particularly accomplished through group discussions on current topics in the veterinary field. At one of these meetings, Dr. Howard Kerncamp of the University of Minnesota led a discussion panel following his lecture on diseases encountered in baby pigs.

Poultry Science Club

The Poultry Science Club embarks on a busy schedule fall term with a turkey dressing project. The members clean and dress over 100 turkeys which are sold to students and faculty. The proceeds are used to send the poultry judging team to Chicago to compete in judging contests.

Winter term activities are highlighted by the chicken and egg show during Farmers Week. Michigan hatcheries send hundreds of chicks and eggs which are judged and later auctioned. The money received is used for the spring chicken barbecue.

Young Republicans

Preparations for the 1956 election is one of the main projects of the Young Republicans Club. The members worked on the Young Republican Convention held in Lansing spring term.

At its meetings, the club sponsors speakers and movies to help its members understand the purposes of the Republican party. It publishes a bi-monthly newsletter which is distributed throughout the mid-west. This year the group has tried to promote interest among Lansing high school students in becoming Young Republicans.

Floriculture Forum

The lucky gals who received a "mum" during football season can thank the members of the Floriculture Forum. In addition to selling flowers at the games, the group sponsors the annual flower show which encourages students to experiment with ornamental arrangements.

Outstanding speakers from production and merchandising are invited to the bi-weekly meetings to acquaint the members with current trends in floriculture. The group frequently visits local flower exhibitions.

Pre-Med Club

The Pre-Medical Club is busy during the year with movies, speakers and tours. The group frequently travels to hospitals to observe operations. Featured speakers at the meetings are deans of medical schools who discuss the future studies of the students entering med school.

Spring term a board of students from the University of Michigan Medical School were guests at one of the club's meetings. They conducted a discussion on the structure of the medical school and new developments in medicine.

Spartan Bellringers

One of the newest and most unique groups on campus is the Spartan Bellringers. Organized last year, the organization has fast become known as one of the leading bellringing groups in the nation.

The musicians are under the direction of Mr. Wendell Wescott who is well-known to Spartans for his performances on the carillion in Beaumont Tower. Mr. Wescott is studying in Belgium this summer and the group will be discontinued until he returns.

The Bellringers were honored by an invitation to play in Washington, D. C. at the tree-lighting ceremony in the President's Park. The ceremony was nationally televised and also carried by the Voice of America around the world. The group also made an appearance at the Pentagon Building.

As the result of these performances, the group was asked to make a spring tour of Army camps in the Southwest. The Bellringers, accompanied by a dance team, entertained in camps from Florida to Arizona.

The musical repertoire of the Bellringers includes a wide variety of numbers, both classical and popular, which accounts for its popularity.

A Christmas program in the Union provided many Spartans with their first opportunity to see the Bellringers which was organized last year under the direction of Mr. Wendell Wescott.

The Bellringers use a total of 48 brass bells. The instruments are very delicate and despite the fact that they are made of metal, will shatter if they are dropped.

The group highlighted a special Christmas program in the Union. The Bellringers presented a varied program of Christmas music, both light and serious. The program provided an opportunity for the musicians to present several of the selections which they used on their television appearances during the holidays.

▲ Arab Club

The Arab Club was organized on campus in 1948 to make students from the Arab countries feel more at home at MSU. The group provides them with an opportunity to meet other students from their country and make new acquaintances while in America.

The club holds bi-weekly meetings which feature speakers who are well-versed on the Middle East or who have done extensive travel in that area. The members display many of their native goods at the International Festival.

Delta Phi Epsilon ▼

Students in political science, economics and general business who plan to go into international relations after graduation can benefit from membership in Delta Phi Epsilon. The group, which affiliated with the national organization last fall, familiarizes its members with foreign countries.

Delta Phi Epsilon assisted in making the arrangements for the appearance of the ambassador from Vietnam who spoke to a large audience on the conditions of that country. This was one of many service projects undertaken by the group.

▲ Skating Club

The Skating Club, which previously held its weekly meetings on the indoor rink, decided this winter to try outdoor skating. The group took trips to Northern Michigan and Lansing area rinks.

The members are amateurs who skate for pure enjoyment and also those who are working on tests for figure skating competition. The more advanced students help the beginners learn the fundamentals and teach dance routines.

Spring term a hayride took the place of skating as one of the club's social events.

Home Ec Exec Council ▼

Supervising and coordinating the activities of the many home economics clubs is the main function of the Home Economics Executive Council. The individual groups sponsor activities related to their specific fields and the council coordinates many of the projects.

They assisted as hostesses for the Michigan Home Economics Association Convention. The Council is composed of members from most of the campus home economics groups who wish to send representatives.

▲ La Tertulia

La Tertulia, which in Spanish means club, probably isn't an organization familiar to most students. It was founded in 1950 to promote an interest in the people and customs of Latin America and the Iberian Peninsula.

To stimulate an interest among its members, the club sponsors lectures, films and language drills. Membership is open to anyone with an active interest in the language, peoples, and cultures of the Latin American countries.

Young Democrats ▼

To acquaint its members with the legislative processes of government, the Young Democrats attended several political conventions this year. Of particular interest was the convention of the Young Democrats of Michigan and the Democratic nominating convention.

The responsibilities of many political offices were explained to the group by congressmen, the secretary of state and congressional aides.

▲Veterinary Council

Winter term found members of the College Veterinary Medicine dining and dancing at the new Lansing Civic Center. This event, popularly known as the Medicine Ball, is sponsored by the Veterinary Council.

Other activities sponsored by the council include a square dance in the fall and a picnic spring term. The council plans social activities for the benefit of all veterinary medicine students. It is composed of two members from each class.

WAA ▼

The women's intramural program, stimulating athletic competition between living units, is under the direction of the Women's Athletic Association. Scheduling games and providing referees fills a large part of the club's program.

To further encourage women's athletics, the group sponsors contests with other schools. Climaxing their activities, the club stages an award dessert spring term to recognize outstanding players in the intramural program.

Two delegates from the MSU chapter attended the national convention in Denver, Colorado. The summer conclave was attended by chapters from the United States, Alaska and Hawaii. Improved group programs, as well as national constitutional revisions, were the major topics of discussion and investigation.

First hand experience is afforded the cadets through talks by Air Force personnel. As part of this program, the group was addressed by a young woman from East Germany who spoke on military control under the Russians.

West Palm Beach, Florida, was the destination of the Arnold Air Society one weekend in May. The men flew down and completely toured the Air Force Base. The trip gave the cadets an opportunity to become acquainted with their future duties as regular members of the Air Force.

Co-sponsoring the Coronation Ball kept the members of the national Air Force honorary busy fall term. Under the direction of the society, the AFROTC selected a queen and eight coeds to serve as corps sponsors. The girls received their official tribute during the intermission caping ceremony at which the queen was named Honorary Colonel and the court members became Lieutenant Colonels.

Winter term the corps sponsors accompanied the Arnold Air Society to Selfridge Field where they viewed the Air Force in action. An official "scramble" was demonstrated to the group. Within three minutes jets were in the air ready to ward off a possible enemy attack.

A potluck supper for the cadets and their dates highlighted the social calendar for winter term. In the spring all newly commissioned officers were recognized at the honor society's annual dinner-dance for the entire cadre.

American Society of Civil Engineers

A banquet hosted by the campus student group was held fall term for all senior members of the American Society of Civil Engineers. Contact with professional engineers and industry is also given the members through speakers and movies at bi-monthly meetings.

The group participated in the Engineering Exposition by constructing displays and serving as guides for the civil engineering exhibitions.

The MSU group attended the North Central Convention of ASCE held at Ann Arbor. Fourteen college chapters participated as speakers and panel discussions acquainted the students with many new phases of civil engineering. The club rounded out its activities with two picnics for its members.

▲ 2x4 Club

The 2 x 4 Club, composed of residential building and lumber merchandising majors, schedules speakers and field trips to home developments to give its members a closer look at their future profession.

Throughout the year, builders and lumbermen's associations invite the club to participate in state and national conventions. At a Chicago convention, the club sponsored a booth illustrating the latest theoretical construction problems studied in class.

Winged Spartans ▼

Students who have always had a hidden desire to fly can now realize their ambition by joining the Winged Spartans. The organization is recognized as a corporation and owns a pair of two-passenger planes which experienced members are allowed to rent.

Weekly group-school instruction and lessons in safety measures are held for new members who may eventually qualify for a private license.

The group is making plans for an annual air show with stunt flying and plane exhibits.

MSU Veterans' Association

The Veterans' Association meeting is in full swing under the direction of president Bruce Ferris. The group's meetings fall term usually included a showing of current football movies.

Following the regular business meeting the veterans relax over doughnuts and coffee. The association's only female member is Mary McRobbie, a veteran, who serves as secretary for the group.

The transition from military life to college life is often difficult. The Veterans' Association tries to make this change easier and for this reason, is devoted to the interest and welfare of every veteran on campus.

The organization affords an opportunity for vets to become acquainted by working and socializing in the club's many projects. All veterans who have received an honorable discharge and are full-time students are eligible for membership.

The membership in the Veterans' Association is one of the largest of any organization on campus. The group participates in many activities and is probably best known for its aid in blood drives. In addition to sponsoring its own drive, the vets are on hand at every drive to reassure frightened donors and reward them with coffee and doughnuts.

The group was one of the first organizations to pledge its support to Spartacade. Members divided into groups to work with the women's living units in an attempt to continue the annual event. This was the first project of this type undertaken by the vets and as usual they exhibited outstanding enthusiasm and cooperation.

With the needs and interests of the veteran always in mind, the association submitted a letter to the state legislature supporting a bill which would increase government benefits to veterans. The group is always willing to help vets who are having difficulty securing their government aid.

Spartacade, blood drives, social programs, and veterans' aid letters are a few of the many topics hashed over coffee by Bob Christensen, Bob Grady, Bob Hess, and Bill Griffith.

This year for the first time the Veterans' Association will have its own pin which was especially designed for the members.

The pin was designed by one of the members and outlines a globe, an open book and a sword. These symbolize a world unified organization, education and willingness to fight for ideals.

▲ Spartan Pistol Club

The Spartan Pistol Club has proved to be one of the fastest growing groups on campus. Since it was organized in 1954, its membership has jumped from 10 to 113. Surprisingly enough, many of these new members are coeds eager to learn to handle firearms.

The experienced members have formed a pistol team which has entered national meets. During its first season of competition with universities and military schools, the team compiled an imposing record of 21 wins and only five losses. The Spartan team is also proud of two members who made the first and second All-American Rifle Association teams.

Speech Majors ▼

Students spending much time in the Auditorium should be aware of the opportunity for a coffee break provided by the Speech Majors Club. The club sponsors a coffeemaker located in the make-up room of the Aud.

Officers of the club compose the Speech Council which is the coordinating body between the speech department and the speech students. The club attempts to further speech service and promote social programs for its members.

This year the club sponsored the Apple Blossom Festival, an annual national oral interpretation festival for readers from colleges throughout the country.

Scabbard and Blade

Preparing its members for military life is one of the most important functions of Scabbard and Blade. Training films illustrating coordinated army ground and air force teams in action benefit the members, especially those planning future careers in the service.

Scabbard and Blade is an honorary military organization which has been active on campus since 1914. All junior and senior cadets enrolled in the army or air force are eligible for membership.

A strong interest in military life and activities and outstanding academic achievement are important prerequisites for membership. It is hoped that the information the members receive will be passed on to other cadets.

Lectures are planned for the members and other interested military personnel on such topics as political science, parts of the military teams and other subjects that might affect national and military policy. It is emphasized that all members will be officers and should have background beyond that ordinarily acquired in the classroom.

Scabbard and Blade pledges serenade women's dorms at dawn. Each spring the members hold a one-half day demonstration of military tactics for cadets who will be attending summer camp.

Scabbard and Blade members take time out from their military education for social activities. Record dances, picnics and hay rides are frequently planned. Fall term a banquet is given for the members and their guests. The group is well-known on campus for its early-morning serenades to the girls' dorms.

Promoting better understanding between military personnel and civilians is a large part of the group's program. They seek to serve the cadets and the military departments whenever possible.

Food Distribution

The Food Distribution Club was organized on the campus of Michigan State University in 1950. The Club is open to all students enrolled in MSU's unique food distribution curriculum.

Through its meetings and various extra-curricular activities the club aims at linking the students' academic work and study in the field. This is accomplished in such a manner as to acquaint the students with the practical side of the food industry.

Although the Food Distribution Club has no national affiliation at the present time, it takes an active part in providing many activities for its members on the campus.

Each term the club sponsors two field trips to large retail grocery stores where they see food distribution in operation. Large national supermarket chain stores are of particular interest because of the diversified range of organization and execution. These trips are planned to give the club members an insight in the field as it exists in today's business world and are both entertaining and educational.

Members of the Food Distribution Club arrange some of the display units which the group uses to display many of its projects.

Also of importance on the club's calendar are the three dinner meetings held each term. A prominent guest speaker is featured at these occasions to give the members additional information and encouragement.

The club uses many resources in an attempt to make future job contacts for its members. This is not a particularly difficult task since the demand for such majors is extremely great.

▲ History Club

The History Club was originally formed as a History-Political Science Club and in 1948 assumed its present title. The club is open to all students with an interest in history being the only requirement for membership. The group promotes social and intellectual contacts between its members and instructors in the department.

An important event in the club's program was the sponsoring of a guest speaker to commemorate the 200th anniversary of John Marshall's achievements in the Supreme Court. Fall term a picnic featuring a student-faculty ball game was held.

Bar Bell Club ▼

Many students have probably never heard of one of the newest groups on campus—the Spartan Bar Bell Club. This men's organization has two main features; self-improvement of its members and the development of a weight lifting team for inter-collegiate competition.

The members contribute to a fund which is used to purchase weight lifting equipment. New members who wish to improve their physique can learn body building techniques. They may then begin practicing weight lifting for the team. The club also sponsors intramural weight lifting.

▲ Campus 4-H

Head, heart, hands and health are the four symbols of the national 4-H organization. Students interested in continuing this work organized a Campus 4-H Club in 1937 which does not require membership in the national organization.

The members do not work on individual projects but work as a group on community and service activities. Fall term the group sponsored a 4-H Service Club Day and invited members of other Michigan clubs. The group also assisted with the Harvest Ball and the Rural Youth Conference.

International Club ▼

A smörgasbord dinner of food from many countries highlighted the International Club program winter term. The club members cooked and served their native dishes themselves. Entertainment following the dinner consisted of acts typifying many foreign countries, and customs.

The club strives to promote better understanding between American and foreign students. The members are on hand at registration to help new foreign students with schedule problems. The group sponsors a foreign talent show fall term.

Forestry Club

The Foresters' Shindig, Big Ten Foresters' Conclave, Activities Carnival, field trips and the Foresters' Banquet were all part of the busy program of the Forestry Club.

Fall term the Forestry Clubs at MSU and the University of Michigan sponsored their annual banquet. The two schools alternate as hosts and this year the event was held on campus with Mr. Joseph LaPalombara of the Political Science Department as guest speaker.

The club sponsored a booth at the Activities Carnival to acquaint new students with the organization. The members also took a field trip to the Kellogg Experimental Forest in Battle Creek.

February found the club busy with its annual Foresters' Shindig in the Women's Gym. Square dancing highlighted the casual dance and other entertainment included a piano player who rendered selections in the "bar room."

Decorations at the Shindig included a twelve-foot statue of Paul Bunyan with a background of a pine forest using genuine red pine trees. Many of the fellows grew beards for the occasion and couples were costumed as true foresters. The week of the dance men weren't allowed in the Forestry Building wearing neckties.

Spring term several club members attended the Big Ten Foresters' Conclave which was held this year at the University of Iowa. The delegates returned with ideas for many new projects this year.

Prizes were given to the foresters with the best and worst beards at the Shindig. The beards were judged by length, thickness, originality and neatness of trim. "Kickapoo Joy Juice" was served in an "old time bar room" adjoining the dance floor.

Les Gourmets

"Future Restauranteurs in Action" was the theme of the buffet dinner-dance sponsored by Les Gourmets to demonstrate the ability of its members to the faculty and the restaurant industry. The members are all restaurant majors.

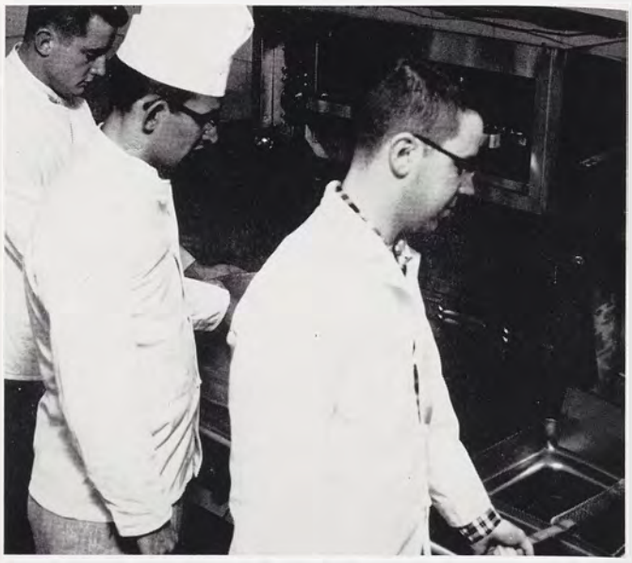
Spring term the members constructed a booth at the National Restaurant Association Convention in Chicago. This is the largest convention of its kind for the industry anywhere in the country. It provides the students with an opportunity to make future job contacts and is also good publicity for MSU.

The group invites well-known restauranteurs to its monthly meetings. Phillip Johnson, member relations director of the National Restaurant Association, described future opportunities for the students after graduation. Demonstrations of new equipment are also featured at the meetings.

Les Gourmets plan a variety of social activities for its members which includes picnics and cook-outs. This spring they sponsored an all-university chicken barbeque at which the members demonstrated their skill in cookery.

Colored slides from the National Restaurant Association were shown at one of the meetings to further acquaint the students with their major. The group is affiliated with the National Restaurant Association which is the largest trade association in the industry.

The MSU group pioneered the idea for a national student restaurant association composed of representatives from the nine leading schools that offer restaurant courses. The first group met in May to establish such an organization. It is hoped that the chapters will benefit from the exchange of ideas and the contacts established.



Les Gourmets members John Amacker, John Mossman and John Helper make preparations for the buffet dinner dance, "Future Restauranteurs in Action" sponsored by the group winter term.

▲ Jazz Society

The Jazz Society of West Circle Drive, which began with a few interested members, has developed into a membership of over 200 students. The society received letters from other colleges asking how to establish such an organization on their campus.

The society presented weekly television shows to educate the public on jazz. Discussions and jazz sessions were sponsored for the members.

ASME ▼

The biggest event on the agenda for the American Society of Mechanical Engineers was the speech contest sponsored on campus by the national ASME. Student engineers from 15 colleges competed for awards given for the outstanding engineering papers. The contest was judged by prominent industrialists and climaxed by an awards banquet.

At its meetings, the ASME meets the needs of the seniors by inviting guest speakers from engineering to give tips on job interviews and placement.

▲ Packaging Club

The only packaging curriculum in the country is offered at MSU. The Packaging Club keeps in close contact with the industry by writing articles for trade journals on its unique project.

By attending the national packaging convention in Chicago last fall and the American Management Association Convention in Atlantic City, the students gathered new ideas in packaging and introduced themselves in the industry. The Activities Carnival provided an opportunity for the club to apply its promotion methods.

Indian Students ▼

Indian students who are new on campus can always expect an especially friendly welcome from the Indian Students Association which contacts them as soon as they arrive. All Indian students are automatically members and others may become honorary members.

The group celebrates "Deepavali" the national Indian festival in November and the Republic Day of India in January. The members devote much time preparing their booth at the International Festival to display Indian arts and crafts.

Two $100 scholarships are presented by Block and Bridle Club each year; one to the outstanding junior in animal husbandry, and the other to one of the top five judges in 4-H competition.

Many of the funds for this benevolent project are raised at the club's annual horse show spring term. The group sponsors tryouts for students interested in riding in the show. English and Western riding contests, comedians and drill teams always draw a full house at the Livestock Pavilion.

The Block and Bridle Club is an honorary for students in animal husbandry and others interested in horses and their care. It is a member of the National Block and Bridle Club.

Fall term the club sponsors a student-faculty night at which students and faculty members compete in games and contests. Winter term it holds the Little International Fitting and Showing Contest to provide students with experience in judging.

The club holds its annual banquet spring term and honors the winner of the senior judging contest. Also honored, is the person in Michigan who has been outstanding in a phase of animal husbandry. This is usually a breeder of pure bred stock.

Each year Block and Bridle members visit pure bred livestock farms in Michigan. The organization also sponsors the junior livestock judging team which travels to Fort Worth, Texas.

Many of the club members went to Chicago fall term and met with 28 other chapters to exchange ideas and compete for awards. This year the club placed third in the activities division and received honorable mention in the merit trophy award.

Block and Bridle Club members groom one of the steers entered in the group's annual spring horse show. Entrants receive points for their manner of displaying the animals.

El. Ed. Club

"Spring Round-Up" has a western ring but it was used by the Elementary Education Club as the title of an informal get-together for El. Ed. majors and their instructors. The club sponsors these meetings to give its members an opportunity to become acquainted with the faculty.

Speakers are scheduled at many of the club's meetings. Representatives from the Placement Bureau and the Counseling Center are of particular interest. Personnel from local schools are frequently invited to familiarize the El. Ed. majors with student teaching.

Members are often acquainted with current educational problems through films and panel discussions. Former members sometimes attend and describe experiences in their own classrooms.

As a service project, the El Ed Club sponsored a Christmas party for 46 students from nearby elementary schools.

▲ Inter-Religious Council

Two representatives from each chartered religious group on campus meet bi-weekly to make up the Student Inter-Religious Council. The members exchange ideas from the various organizations represented on the council and attempt to spread them to all students.

This is the first year that the council has really been active. It discusses religious activities planned by the individual groups and encourages all students to attend. The 20 members frequently invite an outstanding speaker to address all the groups represented on the council.

Big Ten Association ▼

A clearing-house for all problems and information concerning the schools within the Big Ten is the function of the Big Ten Association. The association is concerned with mutual problems such as parking, elections, and all-campus affairs. Questionnaires are sent to the school governments and the results compiled and distributed.

This organization also prepares data and research for the presidents' meeting every term. Fall term the meeting was held at MSU so the association was busy publishing a history of the Big Ten and the Big Ten Reporter magazine.

Religion, a Force on Campus

Common Goals and Problems Bring Respect Among Groups

RELIGION on the campus is found in many places and in many forms.

It is apparent in the religious organizations—in the warm atmosphere of the religious living unit or foundation house, or among a group of students gathered to talk things over with a priest, rabbi or minister.

It finds expression in the daily prayer meeting, in the Sunday evening song service, in the yearly May Crowning. Students worship in spiritual retreats, during summer camps sponsored by their churches, at quiet vespers in the Alumni Memorial Chapel.

Discussion groups, lectures by famous churchmen, denominational conferences all help students to understand their own and other religions.

Some groups make scholarships available to their members and others contribute to national funds of their churches. Through student donations a missionary receives support, a Polish boy is helped, an altar rail is purchased for a new church.

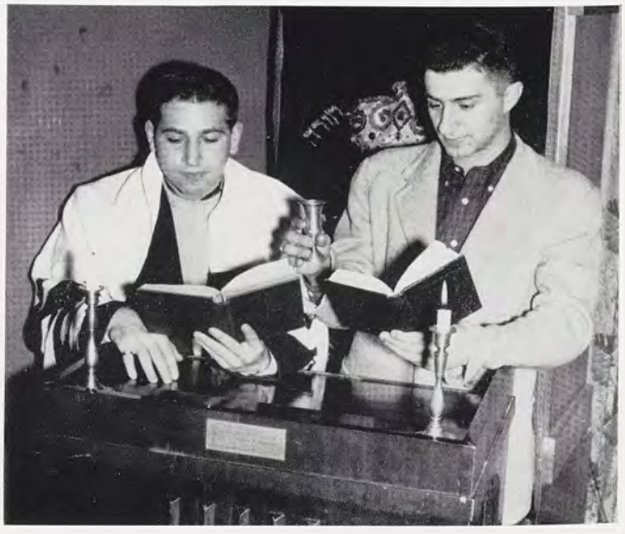
Faith is found in the "Work a Day for Christ" project, in the remodeling job done for a student center, in the deputation teams which visit Michigan churches.

It is the undercurrent of a gay square dance, of a kosher kitchen, of an ice skating party.

Respect and cooperation, an important part of religion, are apparent when Lutheran and Episcopalian students leave on a joint weekend retreat and when Inter-Religious Council representatives meet to work out common problems.

The Newman Club sponsors the annual May Crowning ceremony which begins the month of dedication to the Virgin Mary.

Jewish students make the traditional prayer over wine at a Friday night service of the B'nai Brith Hillel Foundation.



The Alumni Chapel is open to all persons regardless of race or religion. Sunday afternoon vesper services in the chapel are sponsored by many campus groups.

Strengthen Beliefs, Fulfill Needs

All groups seek to better understand their own faith. Some do so by searching the traditions of their own denomination; others, like the newly formed Fellowship of Religious Liberals, by studying all faiths.

No matter what the denomination, students find that their campus organization is the place to help strengthen their beliefs and to fulfill their religious needs.

Many students attend interdenominational services at Peoples Church. The church also sponsors student religious activities.

Asher Student Foundation

The large white colonial house at 215 Evergreen is the home for many Christian Science students at MSU. The Asher Student Foundation strives to raise the moral standards of its members and bring higher ideals into their living.

Asher House is the only university living unit for Christian Science men existing in the country. The house provides a good atmosphere for religious and educational study and serves as a social gathering place for all Christian Science students on campus.

The members combine social, religious and educational activities. A picnic is sponsored in the fall and spring for all Christian Science students to become acquainted. Costume parties are held each term for the members and informal parties and television get-togethers are given at the house following many of the basketball games.

Spring term a dinner dance is held to honor all the graduating seniors in the house. Awards for outstanding scholarships and activities are presented to the deserving seniors. The members invite their dates to a dinner before the J-Hop.

Asher alumni are entertained at a homecoming dinner following the big football game.

Members of Asher House get together to plan the entertainment to be used at one of their costume parties. Informal gatherings are held at the house after the home basketball games.

Community projects are always a part of the Asher program. This year the pledges set up a Christmas tree lot with all the proceeds going to the "Y." Last spring a group gave the East Lansing City Hall a house-cleaning.

Speakers are frequently invited to the meetings to help the members with after-graduation plans. A representative from the Jam Handy Film Company in Detroit lectured on the college student going into industry.

Asher men are well-known for their athletic feats. They were block champions in both football and baseball this year.

Christian Science Organization

Orientation Week provided the Christian Science Organization with an opportunity to acquaint new students with its purposes and activities. An open house provided social contact for the freshmen and club members.

More students became acquainted with the organization at the Activities Carnival at which it sponsored a display of The Christian Science Monitor, the Christian Science newspaper.

At weekly meetings at the Peoples Church The Bible and The Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Keys to the Scripture, are read. Each term the members elect a reader for the entire term.

One of the main purposes of the group is to bring Christian Science students on campus closer together. It also endeavors to give others a better understanding of the Christian Science religion. The members hope that all who come into contact with the religion may benefit by it.

The group sponsored two lectures fall and spring terms. The speakers were members of the Board of Lectureship of the First Church of Christ, Scientist in Boston, Mass. The lectures were held at the Alumni Memorial Chapel and the entire student body and faculty were invited.

A representative body of the group attended the International Conference of Christian Science Organizations in Boston last summer. They returned with suggestions for improving the structure and function of the organization.

Don Hixson, Fred Haines and Sandra Storm outline the term's activities with William Haak, president. The Christian Science Organization holds its weekly meetings in the Peoples Church.

▲ Canterbury Club

One of the highlights of the year's activities planned by the Canterbury Club was a series of marriage lectures entitled "The Bible Looks at Marriage." Well-known speakers addressed the group on this topic winter term.

Canterbury Club and Gamma Delta met together one Sunday evening to hear Dr. Itty from India who spoke on "Encounter with Revolution." The students, who are members of the Episcopal Church, frequently invite speakers to their weekly meetings which vary between group discussions and lectures. Of particular interest was Robert Scott from the Department of Corrections.

Lutheran Students Association ▼

Members of the Lutheran Students Association entertained their parents at a coffee hour spring term following the regular Sunday morning church services. The weatherman cooperated and the day's activities were climaxed by a fry.

The group sponsors weekly discussions to fulfill the spiritual and social needs of the Lutheran students. These discussions are supplemented by speakers on topics of particular interest to the group. One of the most impressive was given by Rabbi Frankel who spoke on "Judaism and Christianity." Membership in LSA is open to all confirmed Lutheran students.

Spartan Christian Fellowship

"To know Christ and to make Him Known" is the aim of the Spartan Christian Fellowship. Weekly meetings and Bible studies at Bethel Manor help the members accomplish this and are part of the directed study program.

Daily prayer meetings and conventions in the spring and fall also strengthen personal religious feelings. Movies, speakers and discussion groups are also a part of SCF activities. An interdenominational group, SCF is the local chapter of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship established at Cambridge University in 1877.

YWCA

Anyone entering the "Y" House on a Saturday morning is likely to see a house full of girls breakfasting, singing, worshipping and learning together. This is the general membership meeting when the gals get together for friendship, fellowship and fun.

This is only a small part of the activities of the Y.W.C.A. During the week the coeds meet in small groups revolving around their particular interests. Some groups make jewelry, others read to children at the School for the Blind and some members plan faculty firesides.

Several new interest groups have been established which include music appreciation, religious discussion and dance classes. The projects are chosen by the coeds in an attempt to develop leadership and creative thinking.

Helping the members become informed on world affairs is the function of the political awareness group which tries to keep abreast of the current political scene, both state and national. They frequently visit the state legislature.

Meeting with the foreign students on campus is part of the world relations group activity which enlightens members on world events.

Service is an important part of the "Y" program. One of the biggest projects is the freshman orientation camp held the weekend before school opens in the fall. New freshmen become acquainted with campus leaders and members of the faculty. They participate in a mock registration session and become more familiar with college life.

The United Nation seminar co-sponsored by the "Y" is a big event during spring vacation. Boarding special trains for New York, the group has an opportunity to visit the U.N. headquarters and tour New York City.

YMCA

A 1948 Oldsmobile was presented to a YMCA member from Panama as first prize in a membership drive sponsored by the "Y." The Activities Carnival, which opened the campaign, secured 125 new members.

The YMCA began their year's activities with the largest Freshman Orientation Camp ever sponsored by the group. A new program of orientation for foreign students was also initiated.

"Witch's Wing Ding" was the theme of the Halloween party sponsored jointly with the YWCA. This was one of many mixers enjoyed by both old and new members.

The "Y" sponsored an "end of the term" drive to send used magazines abroad, especially to foreign universities and libraries. It is hoped that this project will be effective in spreading the truth about America.

Highlight of the year for many YMCA members was the Student Christian Conference on "Revolution and Reconciliation" held at Athens, Ohio. This meeting of students from 80 nations gave "Y" members a new insight into world affairs.

Members enjoyed sponsoring the weekly Spartan "Y" Radio Forum over WKAR which presented issues they felt were meaningful to the public. Many social activities such as square dances, intramural sports and informal parties rounded out the YMCA program.

Members of the YMCA and YWCA used vaudeville acts during the Activities Carnival to attract prospective members. Their antics were successful as the group secured 125 new members.

Trinity Collegiate Fellowship

One of the newest religious organizations on campus is Trinity Collegiate Fellowship which was established in April, 1955. The local group emphasizes personal evangelism through Bible study, prayer and church attendance.

To welcome new students into the group, the fellowship holds a reception each term. Informal parties are held after many of the football games.

A Christmas party highlighted fall term activities. After singing carols, several of the faculty sponsors spoke on "What Christmas Means to Me." Those who feel a need for Christian fellowship and stronger spiritual faith are welcomed by Trinity Christian Fellowship.

Members of the fellowship frequently present radio skits at their weekly meetings. "A Christian Student Answers a Skeptic" was a skit presented winter term.

The group holds its meetings each Sunday evening in the East Lansing Trinity Church. The program is opened with the singing of hymns or occasionally a special musical performance.

Guest speakers are frequently invited to address the group on topics of particular religious interest to the members. Occasionally other religious groups are invited to attend the lectures. The group works towards their aim "That in all things He might have Pre-eminence."

Lee True, Ann Wilhelm, Judy Smith, Leroy Worden, Bob Hesselink and Adviser Harold Henery conduct a Bible study group which is one of the activities of Trinity Collegiate Fellowship.

Members of the Christian Student Foundation meet each Sunday evening for student-led worship vesper services.

Christian Student Foundation

"Work-A-Day for Christ" was the title of the week-long program sponsored by the Christian Student Foundation spring term. Students participating in the event worked at odd jobs in the community and the proceeds were contributed to the CSF benevolent fund.

CSF played host to approximately 150 students attending a Michigan Methodist Student Movement Conference at People's Church. Dr. Paul Deats of the Boston University spoke on "The Task of the Christian Student on the Campus."

Camp Tyrone near Flint was the location for the annual CSF retreat spring term. Members enjoyed a series of speeches on "Life in Commitment."

The Christian Student Foundation is the official inter-denominational organization for students of the Methodist, Presbyterian, Congregational, Baptist, Evangelical and Reformed churches and People's Church. Its program and activities are open to all students.

Worship is a vital part of the CSF program. A student-led worship service is a part of campus vespers each Sunday evening. A worship workshop is held during the week for those interested in studying aids for meaningful worship.

▲ B'nai Brith Hillel

B'nai Brith Hillel Foundation is part of a national organization devoted to cultural, religious and counseling services among Jewish students throughout the country.

Hillel is structured similar to the student government in conducting its affairs. The student council, under the guidance of the director, administers the program. The group is interested in sound inter-group relations through broad social and cultural programs.

Bethel Manor ▼

Bethel Manor is a men's Christian Association which serves as a meeting place for the Spartan Christian Fellowship. This group is the local chapter of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship.

The manor is a men's co-operative whose chief objective is to establish Christian leadership among the men students. Social activities include an annual term party and athletic participation in addition to religious devotion.

Gamma Delta

Lutheran students affiliated with churches of the Missouri Synod find that Gamma Delta provides a way to promote Christian fellowship and service while they are in college.

Students who are not Lutheran, but who are interested in the organization, may become associate members and join in their activities at the Martin Luther Chapel.

Religious discussions and films are featured at the meetings and occasionally a speaker is invited to address the members.

The group frequently sponsors fellowship suppers. Occasionally other student religious groups are invited to attend the Sunday evening meetings to discuss topics of current interest. Spring term Gamma Delta sponsored a question box which provided many topics for discussion.

As a synodical Conference of Lutheran Students, Gamma Delta aims at a positive knowledge of Christian fellowship. Many discussions are programmed in Martin Luther Chapel.

Newman Club

The Newman Club is the only organization on campus that provides a religious, social and educational program for Catholic students. The group is affiliated with the state, regional and national organizations of the Newman Club.

A regular weekly program is scheduled in addition to special events sponsored each term. Communion breakfasts are held each Sunday morning following the regular services. These are frequently attended by Catholic students from other campuses.

In February, the club held its annual Cardinal Newman Day Breakfast in Newman Hall. The event was in honor of John Cardinal Newman, the patron of the clubs. Guests at the breakfast were Duffy Daugherty and Buck Nystrom.

Friday evenings are usually open house at Newman Hall which serves as a place for the group's social activities. It was built almost entirely by the members. Dancing, cards, ping-pong and refreshments are featured at this weekly event. It provides an opportunity for members to meet new Catholic students.

Each Sunday evening the group sponsors a philosophy hour at which religious problems are discussed. Annual retreats and missions are held throughout the year.

Almost any night of the week students may attend a variety of lectures at Newman Hall. The Rev. Fr. Kavanaugh finds students interested in the regular Sunday evening Philosophy Hour.

Winter term the Newman Club held a dance in honor of the international students. The Sunday morning following the dance, the international students were invited to a breakfast at the Newman Hall.

Social activities are an important part of the broad program of events sponsored by the club. A Hard Times Party was given winter term for the members and their guests.

The club sponsored a Cana Conference for married students spring term. A series of three talks were presented on the various aspects of married life.

Newman Club also sent five representatives to the meeting of the Ohio Valley Federation of Newman Clubs. The delegates had an opportunity to become acquainted with the programs of other groups in the Mid-West.

Following their meetings Newman Club members relax at Newman Hall and informally discuss topics ranging from religion to social events. Regular programs are scheduled by the students including Cana Conferences and hard times parties.

Greek Living Means Working Together

Scholarship, Sports, and Social Life Blend in 'The House'

By Tom O'Donnell

"GOING back to The House now?" This question is often shouted across crowded Berkey Hall or along Grand River by the 2,000 Greeks living in 46 fraternity and sorority houses.

Nothing quite typifies sorority or fraternity living as do these houses that freckle the face of East Lansing. They are the centers for meetings, dinners, studying, parties, bull sessions — homes away from home where one lives with 30 or 40 of his closest friends. . . .

Physical descriptions of The House vary with each sorority or fraternity residence. It may be a $150,000 modern structure or a modest, remodeled private home. It may include tiled bathrooms or a series of jacks supporting the first floor. The architecture runs from English Half-Timber to Turn of the Century Clapboard. The lawn may be anything from a quarter acre of crab grass to two and a half acres of landscaped lawn on the Red Cedar. Room size varies from spacious to "inhale please so I can open the door."

The living room mantel and TV sets are loaded with trophies, crests and beer mugs. A piano — either gleaming new or well-worn and scratched — fits nicely into some corner of every house.

Most of the sorority and fraternity houses use the dormer system for sleeping. The dormer consists of 15 or 20 double-deck unmade "sacks." The showers are full from 7 to 8 a.m. and the phone booths from 6:30 a.m. to 1:30 the next morning.

A Horn of Plenty

Socially, the house is a Horn of Plenty. From it flow football game open-houses, exchange desserts and weekend parties. Weekend functions include formal term parties, record dances, costume parties, work parties before big activities, band dances or just a good game of bridge. The house serves as a date bureau where a discreet phone call results in being "fixed up."

Many fraternity and sorority members find this community living a scholastic as well as a social asset. Pressure is exerted to "get our grades up" by inter-house competition with trophies for the best and most improved marks.

A number of groups add a further incentive — the term steak-bean dinner, where good grades result in a steak and poor grades in beans. The house contains a host of tutors in nearly all subjects. However, contrary to popular belief, the house does not contain a secret file in which are kept tests, term papers or the key to the Board of Examiners' office.

All But Polo, Cricket

Members get large doses of athletic events through the house. Fraternities vie with each other in all sports except polo, cricket and ping pong. Sororities limit themselves to swimming, volley-ball, bowling, basketball, tennis and an occasional football game.

The houses are administratively independent. Each has its own officers, finances and rules. The elected officers are expected to enforce all the rules of the chapter and the university. In this atmosphere of self-government, the individual soon learns that today's filet mignon is tomorrow's special food assessment.

Talented artists, leaders and workers come to the fore when it's activity time around the house. A fraternity man will swim the Red Cedar to revolve a water carnival float — all for the honor of the house and to add one more trophy to an over-stocked collection. And a sorority girl will mix paste and water endlessly for the tons of papier-mache needed for a Homecoming display.

The house also competes in the Fraternity or Sorority Sing, blood drives and Campus Chest donations. It encourages members to participate in extra-curricular activities.

There is still much more to fraternity or sorority living — serenades on soft spring nights, Friday "Rowdy Night" dinners, water fights, pledge tricks, the hectic hours of rush sessions. But most important is the opportunity provided within the house for individuals to live and work together. This learning to give and take is a valuable asset to fortify each one for years to come.

President Hannah presents the first place trophy to Theta Chi song leader Tom Aquino at the Fraternity Sing, spring term.

Alpha Gamma Delta members rejoice around their Sorority Sing chairman, who holds the first place trophy they won.

▲ Pan-Hellenic

Directing and coordinating the rush activities of MSU's 20 sororities is one of the major projects of Pan-Hellenic Council. Through rush convocations and individual counseling, a prospective rushee is accurately informed and advised about the campus sorority program.

In conjunction with IFC, Pan-Hellenic sponsored Greek Week which featured Sorority Sing, officers workshops and Greek Feast. Service project include a hospital visitation program and the sponsoring of a foreign student.

Junior Pan-Hellenic ▼

In 1955 Pan-Hellenic Council decided that there was a need for a coordinating body for sorority pledge classes. Junior Pan-Hellenic Council was formed to direct and sponsor activities of sorority pledges.

Highlighting the group's activities were the planning of parties to get the pledges acquainted and also the co-sponsoring of a pledge dance with the Junior IFC. The council recognized high scholarship by honoring coeds with a 3.5 average or above during their pledgedom.

Inter-Fraternity Council

The Inter-Fraternity Council has been busily engaged in working on a project to establish a central purchasing agency available to all fraternities. This agency, by purchasing for all of the groups, would enable the fraternities to cut many of their expenses.

This year, for the first time, a coordinated Greek Week was held spring term. Co-sponsored with Pan-Hel, the week was filled with all of the Greek activities including Jr. 500, Greek Feast, sings, workshops and exchange desserts.

"We hope to raise the scholarship of our members by decreasing their participation in all-campus events."

This was the reply made by the Inter-Fraternity Council when invited to participate in the annual Spartacade. The fraternity governing body was loyal to their decision and did not enter the spring term event.

The council sent several delegates to the national IFC convention in St. Louis, Missouri, fall term.

We're so glad you turned the page to read about Alpha Chi Omega. There's so much all of us would like to tell. You probably heard about us winning a trophy for having the highest point average on campus for fall term. We also won fourth place in the Centennial Parade with the help of the Beta's.

Say, how did you know that we have a new sunporch on our house? It's really great; windows on all sides, porch furniture, bridge tables, television and, of course, a trophy shelf. We're also proud of the new green carpet and pictures. They certainly add to the appearance of the house.

And we might add, there was "a heap of living" in the house too. This year there was a Yacht Club party (complete with pizza for a snack) and a Combo party, a take off on night club life. Both were great fun.

On Hera Day, our founder's day, we wore our traditional red and green sorority ribbons. Each of us participated in the celebration by making toys for the Cerebral Palsy children of the area.

Alpha Delta Pi claims the distinction of being the oldest women's secret society and the first step toward the sorority system; but our chapter is the newest on the MSU campus.

It all started some time ago. With the help of members who transferred to State, the U of M chapter and national officers, our group was colonized.

Several juniors and seniors started the ball rolling when they pledged fall term. Winter term rush started the chapter into the full swing of the Pan-Hel rush activities.

We're all quite proud of our national chapter whose total membership places ADPi among the top five in National Pan-Hellenic Council with regard to size.

National Alpha Delta Pi has two philanthropies. One consists of a fund which provides one graduate scholarship a year to an outstanding foreign woman. The gift allows study at any school, but the recipient is to return to her own country to apply her knowledge. Twelve smaller grants are given to foreign women already in the US who wish graduate training.

Alpha Delta Pi members Molly Robyn, Margaret Blair and Sally Cramer discuss plans for the sorority's proposed new house.

Alpha Epsilon Phi

Members of Alpha Epsilon Phi spent one Saturday morning washing cars to raise funds for their new home. The group will move in next fall term following redecorating.

You caught us right in the middle of things. Ever since our chapter first got its start on campus three years ago, we've been busy organizing our program. Now we're proud to announce that our house will be ready for us next fall.

It's the old Phi Kappa Tau house, but it's new to us and it'll have an even newer look come fall when it's completely redecorated, in addition to new carpets, draperies and furniture.

"Hillel's-a-Poppin" was the theme of a skit night we entered in Lansing fall term with the Hillel Foundation. We received the trophy which was not only for first place that night, but will be the first trophy on the shelf in our new home. The skit, based on Greek life, was written by one of our members.

We devoted a great deal of time working on projects for the Spartan Nursery this year. The pledges made dolls and games for the children.

We've made plans for several informal parties once we've moved into our new home. "Pink Champagne" was the theme for this year's term party.

"Memories are made of this" is not only a way to describe this past year at the house, but we also used it as the title of our formal party winter term.

We sponsored our annual picnic in the spring and a hayride fall term. As is the custom, the admission charge for the two events was contributed to our national project which is providing aid for crippled children. At Christmas time, we gave a party for a group of Lansing cerebral palsy children.

Mother and dad took part in the social events, too. In October our fathers came up to cheer the Spartan gridders. They were guests at a special dinner at the house following the game. At Christmas time each daughter played Santa Claus to her mother at a holiday tea.

Our annual May morning breakfast gave us an opportunity to get together with the alumnae and talk over projects for the coming year.

If the Alpha Gam house could talk it might have something to say about the new furnishings and color schemes . . . we must admit, we certainly like them.

This Centennial year was one we'll never forget. Our experience with our homecoming float taught us a lesson. We had given our co-sponsors, the Alpha Phi Alpha's, the responsibility of getting the float downtown. Leave it to the men! They forgot the little necessity of obtaining a hitch for the car. Anyhow, one of the fellows must have had a brainstorm 'cause they tied the float to the car with a towel. It worked,—for two blocks. We tied it again; it broke again, and the gas-line on the car burst.

Just as we were about to give up, the Lambda Chi's came to our rescue. Our float, which represented home economics in 1896, ended up in the parade somewhere in the 1900's. Better late than never! The moral of the story is "get hitched."

. . . . . and then there was the night before sorority sing when over half the members of our group lost their voices. We couldn't participate in the sing, but we made up for that by taking second place in Athena's Holiday.

Our pledges pulled a fast one. They were to write a letter to our '55 alums. That's just what they did, wrote "a" letter—their last initial on a piece of paper.

During this past year our chapter was runner-up for the national Alpha Omicron Pi achievement cup and winner in our district. The award is based on chapter activities.

One of the highlights of the year was our "House of Pi" party. The tradition dates back to the time a former State coach, thinking that the "Pi House" was a bakery, sent one of his men over to get a job. You can take it from there. Ever since then we celebrate the event by entertaining the faculty with an open house, cup of coffee and, of course, a piece of pie.

We all know that the world spins on an axis, but we even had one that opened and closed. Our world on our water carnival float earned us the third place trophy.

We're not usually pessimistic, but we let things get the better of us one night. The AOPi's and dates came to the "Drudgery" party dressed as something they least desired.

Of course, we do have a serious side, too. One of our most important functions is donating to the Frontier Nursing project in Kentucky.

Our house is known as the house with the winding stairs. We're all a little proud of this distinction from the other sorority houses. Some of our members have used the winding staircase as part of the setting of their wedding or reception in the house.

We have loads of thanks to give to the alums this year. They had the Feronian room carpeted and provided paint for our shutters. The TG study room was also redecorated.

Another new look around 616 MAC is among the trophies. We had won third place in Homecoming last year, but this year we managed to move up a notch to second. Our chapter also managed a first place in the blood drive.

Our winter term formal party took its annual spotlight in the highlights of the Phi social calendar. Santa drops down to our section of MAC at the end of each fall term to help us exchange Christmas gifts with the Kappa's, who live across the street. Another much looked forward to event is our annual party for the blind children co-sponsored with the SAE's.

Some people think it's best to act your age and particularly to dress your age. If you agree, we'd like to take you back through the magic looking glass to our "Alice in Wonderland" party fall term. We all donned colorful storybook costumes for the event. Maybe we looked like kids but kids never had such a good time.

The storybook theme didn't carry over to our informal television and card party, however. We just came as ourselves and enjoyed a relaxing evening.

We borrowed the theme from the Greeks to sponsor the annual Athena's Holiday. Together with our co-workers, the DG's, we provided the sororities with an opportunity to exhibit their Olympic skill.

The Alpha Xi house is a little different from most sorority houses. We have six three-room apartments, each containing a bedroom, kitchenette and combination study-living room for six coeds.

Last, but not least, we'd like to mention that we received the scholarship improvement trophy fall term.

We certainly worked and worried enough about our homecoming float. We (the Chi O's) and they (the S.A.E.'s) exchanged ideas three times, and the last time happened to be one small week before the deadline. The judges must have given us "A" for effort. We came out with the first place trophy, a wonderful compensation for the gray hairs and greasy elbows.

The laugh was on us directly afterwards when we were phoned and asked to have our pictures taken for a pictorial magazine. The weary workers trooped to the meeting place only to find that our "photographer" was a pledge.

We had a great time with our pledges though and especially enjoyed the pledge-active slumber party, for which the pledges volunteered their talents for entertainment.

We held our annual Christmas party for our grand job of portraying a busboy, but in the back while we did the work. One of our seniors did a grand job of portraying a busboy, but in the back of our minds we were foreseeing spring when the busboys throw the seniors into the river.

There are situated on the corner of M.A.C. and Burcham, three empty lots on which we are bound and determined to place one new Tri Delt house by next rush season. We've saved "miles" of nickels by passing Casius, our piggy bank with the lean and hungry look, around on Dad's Day and Open Houses. To make him look healthier we even tried car washing. Our back yard literally turned into a swamp. It took the entire chapter and five muscular males to get one of the cars out of a mud hole.

Study table seemed to be the predominate "thought for the day" during the year, but we did manage to sneak a hayride or a spaghetti dinner in here and there.

Winter term there was our semi-formal pledge dance, "Stairway to the Stars", and the annual formal dinner-dance in the spring.

The Dad's Day treat in November, in addition to Casius's shenanigans, included the varsity football game, a luncheon, and open house.

Once a year the busboys get a holiday and we serve the dinner and clean up.

If all the world's a stage then the DG play this year was "new faces".

For one thing, we had quite a bit of landscaping done in the back yard. Other "new faces" also included a new recreation room and our most unusual appeared the night we thought we had a prowler. One courageous, fearless, lone Delta Gamma, masquerading as a man, saved the house from untold possible dangers.

Speaking of faces, you should have seen each of ours the night we ate chop suey without the assistance of utensils. We didn't exactly try to master the art on our own; one of the pledges stole the silverware and forced us into the situation.

No one will forget the day we took a group of blind children on a hayride. The kids couldn't have had a better time; they entertained themselves by throwing kernels of corn at Delta Gamma targets. We came home a little worse for wear but much happier. Our treks to campus helped us keep in condition for the big annual Powder Bowl football game with the Gamma Phi's.

"Variety is the spice of life" has always been the theme in our house. We decided to apply the title to our Water Carnival float and received second place for the idea.

Always on the look-out for unique ideas, we combined talents with the Delta Sigma Phi's and featured dart throwing at our Spartacade booth. Our efforts were rewarded with a first place trophy in audience participation.

We took advantage of leap year privileges and invited the DU's over for an exchange dessert winter term. This included picking them up, and, taking advantage of the situation, they made us wait.

We provided our busboys with a holiday at Christmas time. While they sat back and relaxed, we served the dinner. To make the event more colorful, we imitated each fellow's style of serving. After we struggled with the mountain of dishes, we all gathered around the piano and sang carols.

"Get acquainted with your neighbors," the Greeks on Abbott road decided. So we sponsored the Abbott Road Triad with the Theta Chi's and the Phi Kappa Psi's.

Beta Delta Chapter

We had a busy year, but it has sure been a great one.

The fall found us in the midst of homecoming, mid-terms, and varsity football games. We had our own football game too, the annual "Powder Bowl" contest with the Delta Gamma's. The Beta's helped us a lot by teaching us how to block, kick, yell signals and pass. The big game was complete with half-time entertainment, spectators, and of course, the lucky men who were chosen to be on the "Powder Bowl" queen's court.

As the months went on, we turned to more serious projects. These included parties for mentally deficient children, a tea for our new housemother and an all-campus Sunday afternoon vesper service at the Alumni chapel. With Christmas came exams and the annual party we give with the Beta's for underprivileged children.

January brought a new pledge class, ski weekends and just plain cold feet from the long trudge to campus.

Our formal term party, afternoons in the sun, and practices for sorority sing in the spring, completed the busy, but wonderful, year.

"Bam-Bam"—a take-off on Cole Porter's "Can Can"—won the third place trophy for our chapter in Spartacade. To celebrate our winning, our cosponsors, the ATO's held a picnic for us the following day.

Each fall we have a lawn party with the men of the "house on the hill." On alternate years we take turns writing notes to our "dates" to arrange for meeting places. It's not every day that a coed is called for at the Smoke Shop or on the fifth floor of the EE building.

We're proud of our scholastic standing for the past year. Spring term we were third among the campus sororities and fall and winter terms the "cup" adorned our mantel as a token of first place. Keeping it company was the scholarship trophy for our district.

Gold and white mums on black velvet in a replica of our pin all added up to our winning first place for the sixth consecutive year in the Horticulture Department's Flower Show.

The burning of the mortgage on our house was a happy occasion last fall. Our Grand National President and many alums attended the ceremony and the dessert which followed.

When smoke gets in our eyes it takes just about the entire chapter to remove the basement storm windows. It just happens that the KD house has a peculiar damper connected with the basement fireplace. Before not just one, but two parties could get underway this year, we almost smoked our dates out. No more worry now, however, for we are all on to the tricky damper.

By the way, when anyone says parties, ol' memories of Sadie Hawkin's Day, Artist and Models Ball and the spring "White Rose" dinner-dance come back.

One cold Saturday morning 25 of us trudged over to campus to cheer our busboys on in their annual football clash with the busboys from our next-door neighbors, the Sigma Kappa's. Not to be outdone by the men, we women met the Theta Chi's in another annual football contest.

We tried something new this year in sponsoring a Lenten program for all campus sororities. The program included a series of three fireside chats with clergy from the student religious organizations.

An additional feature was added to our house. Our piano wasn't scared into turning white; we planned it that way—and might add—we like it too.

We "ladies of 605" had quite a decision to make spring term. To wear shoes or not to wear shoes, that was the question . . . . and, at least in our opinion, we arrived at the right decision. Our bare feet, plus our rendition of "Little Brown Jug" rewarded us with a tie for first place in sorority sing.

This has been a big year. Our chapter celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary at MSU with a special alumnae dinner for all previous members of our chapter.

But history makes itself weekly in the Kappa house. Each Monday night after chapter meeting the house diary is read. There's plenty of news too. Different room-mates are assigned to write up the humorous happenings of the week.

We have our more serious traditions too. Each year during fall rush teas we have a red rose sealed in a huge piece of ice floating inside a punch bowl.

The Monmouth Duo dance is one of the big events on the annual social calendar. The dance is held with the members of Pi Beta Phi to celebrate the founding of both chapters at Monmouth.

"Oh gosh, my hair's full of paint, and I've got a class in ten minutes!" . . . . "Hey Kay, you got the yellow on the woodwork!" . . . . "What? Where's the turpentine? In the basement, I guess." . . . .

This year, from the corner of Ann and Charles streets came the aroma of fresh paint, the ring of hammers, words of confusion, bringing a new look for the Phi Mu house. Dressed in blue jeans, old shirts, showercaps, we were armed for the redecorating battle with paint, brush and a lot of ambition. The price was paid in a good many hours of work, but after all, we've looked forward to that house for a long time. We might add that our alums were in on the whole thing too.

Please don't think for one minute that decorating was our only activity. We relaxed long enough to enjoy our formal party and parents' week-end. The scholarship emphasis was always present, and the pledges received honors for their high grades. A Water Carnival trophy already sits on the shelf where we hope to add many more.

We really had some embarrassing moments last February shortly after we moved into our new home.

Our inter-communication system intrigued the fellows so much that after the gals said good night the men kept listening. You know, the halls aren't the quietest places, but no longer will there be curious ears a listenin'. We solved the problem by simply saying "bye" and then shutting the upstairs speaker off.

It was a little discouraging when the pledges challenged the actives in a race of grades and won; but we're not complaining. As a result the Pi Phi house exhibited the Pan-hel scholarship improvement trophy spring term.

We Pi Phi's look forward to Christmas lights and music each year. The Delts and our chapter sponsor the Yule-time tree lighting and sing in front of the Union.

Dads became a specific item of interest the weekend of our Dads' Day luncheon and basketball game. We were glad to be able to give them a treat for once, and we also got a chance to show off our new house.

"Operation Michigan" was the familiar cry at our Work Day this year. If you saw the line of cars in front of the house to be washed, then you witnessed part of the project. Members also did housework and babysitting. The proceeds of the project went to our newly established Sigma Kappa chapter at U. of M.

The pledges gave our chapter room a "new look" last spring. They untiringly painted the walls and woodwork and put tile on the floor. This just goes to show that pledges aren't always up to devilish pranks.

A snow-white rabbit was left on our doorstep along with an introductory note by her poverty-stricken parents. We gladly took her in, only to find that the home economics majors in the house began to discuss a delicious recipe for "Rabbit a la King."

The Quadrillion, a formal term dance co-sponsored with Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Delta Tau Delta, and Pi Beta Phi, is one of the highlights of our social year. This year's theme was "Yumeno Yume No Komi," signifying a dreamland—but in French?—No, Japanese.

Wonder what the ancient Greek athletes would have thought about our "Greek" chapter here at MSU. Our proficiency and skill in running the 100 yard dash and throwing the discus not only earned us first place in those contests, but helped us win the annual Athena's Holiday celebration. (P.S. All the time we were wearing togas of our sorority colors and carrying flags with the sorority letters.)

Our social year is highlighted each spring when we hold our annual formal dinner-dance, the "Stardust Ball". Another spring term event is our senior banquet. Chapter awards are given to the coeds. These awards include scholarship, activities, and the award for the most outstanding member.

We figured our scholarship program and our chapter house projects step hand in hand. To have good scholarship it is essential to have quiet rooms to study in. As a result, sound proofing was added to the second floor ceiling and new chairs were added to each of the rooms. Now each of us can study (relax, too) in what we call "quiet comfort."

There's a member of a queen's court in our house. It's a switch, but it just goes to show that women's living units have nothing on us. One of our members was elected an attendant to the queen of the Gamma Phi Beta and Pi Beta Phi Powder Bowl football game. This brother was honored at a dinner, and what could be more appropriate for a boy in girl's clothing than the gold cardboard powder puff trophy?

Speaking of clothing, our "Come As You Please" party allows dates to come dressed alike in any character they choose.

New furniture, drapes and lamps were a part of our house redecoration program last year; however extra temporary decorations switch the scene for informal parties including Christmas and Valentine's Day.

The pledges found a new use for one of the posts in our parking lot. Whoever thought it would be such a convenient place to "park" all the bolts from our car wheels? We had to look elsewhere for our tires.

Each year the fraternity works for the winner's trophy in the sports contests with our U. of M. chapter.

Talk about pledge pranks, you should see what our pledges pulled one morning fall term. The temperature was about 35 in the house because the front door was gone. The situation was greeted with a hearty laugh until we noticed all our furniture and books were upturned and our trophies were missing. Undaunted, the men got the morning chores underway, only to find all the fuses had been removed by our pledges . . . a swell bunch of guys.

We won the trophy in a blood drive, but all the "bleeding" didn't produce any weakness, at least on the scholastic side. Our standing was seventh in the fraternity listing last year, and the pledges ranked number one.

A buffet dinner and evening party brought a piece of the homecoming spirit to the house. In addition to our "Dreaming of Roses" party, our social calendar included a number of record dances and a tea for the coeds on campus. One evening we had a jazz party complete with a five-piece combo from the jazz club.

Our chapter met the ZBT's and the Theta Xi's in our annual football contests. We lost both times, had a lot of fun, and are out to get them next year.

Tradition? We've got more than our share. As the mule is to Army, as the goat is to Navy, so is "Freeman, the Hippo," to Alpha Gamma Rho. But before you jump to any conclusions, let us explain a little of Freeman's history.

Freeman is a sixty pound plaster-mounted Hippopotamus head, and he's far from a permanent fixture around the AGR house. Freeman travels from chapter to chapter around the country. Each chapter is notified as to his whereabouts.

We retrieved Freeman from the chapter at the University of New Hampshire, and Freeman remained with us the majority of winter term. We sent him on to the University of Kentucky. A challenge has been issued to V. C. Freeman, national president of Alpha Gamma Rho, to travel as far and visit as many chapters as "Freeman, the Hippo," has. A log of the travels of Freeman, the Hippo, is kept by the chapter who originated the tradition.

Other AGR traditions include our founders' day dinner and formal term party. We also have an annual children's Christmas party and a sports contest with Farmhouse.

We were a proud bunch of fellows when we won the outstanding chapter award from our national fraternity this year. The award is based on achievements which the individual chapter makes on its campus.

We're the only Alpha Phi Alpha chapter that has a house. This is only the second year we've occupied it and already we've redecorated the interior from top to bottom including paneling the walls.

The house was a six-year-old dream and we're certainly putting it to good use. The house has been the scene of many informal dances and parties.

At one such event, athletic decorations set the theme in honor of one of our athletically inclined brothers. We also held a banquet honoring the Wayne chapter and somehow we managed to use the Rose Bowl theme.

The chapter held an alumni banquet to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the fraternity, which was founded at Cornell in 1906. A formal term party was also held in the Union in connection with Founders' Day.

This is a year we can't forget—the year our colony became a chapter. National officers and other chapters attended our installation and banquet and helped us get off to a good start.

As a means of establishing a chapter of active members we took ten of our spring term pledges down to our U of M chapter to be initiated.

We've been busy redecorating the house the fraternity purchased this year. The main bulk of the work done includes converting the basement into a kitchen, dining room and lower lounge, and fixing up a dormer on the top floor. The house now holds 30 men.

Each year we've had a softball game and picnic with our chapter at Wayne. We challenged four other Alpha Sigma Phi chapters to softball games and won three of the goatskin awards.

"Story Book" was the theme of our costume party at the Masonic temple. The brothers and their dates came dressed as story book characters. Our group also held several dances, a hayride, and informal get-togethers with other Big 10 chapters after the football games.

If you've ever worried about what to wear to a campus affair your problem would have been solved at our "Bundle Party." The brothers make up a bundle of clothes for the girl to wear and vice-versa.

Highlights of our social year included the annual Blackfoot-Whitefoot dance with our Blackfoot friends, the Sigma Nus. Our house took on a casino look for the "French Gambling" party. The two formal events for the year included the spring term party and the pledge formal.

To the house on the hill came a list of honors this year. Spartacade came and left us with the third place trophy, and two of the brothers are class presidents.

We were more than pleased to get the All-Sports intramural trophy last year. Our championships in football, swimming and bowling are putting us high up in the competition this year. We also won the annual campus Turkey Trot.

In turn for the fraternity awards our chapter rewarded the member who helped us the most in gaining the championships. He wasn't exactly the "athletic" type, but he showed good "spirit."

Well, didn't it rain, children? Sure did, and the Delta Street Shuffle almost went overboard with a "big splash". The rain, however, did not last long, and our annual street dance, co-sponsored with our neighbors, the Phi Tau's, was a big success and a great start to fall term.

Speaking of the Phi Kappa Tau's, we pulled some of them into the Red Cedar in our annual tug of war contest in the spring. They got the edge on us afterwards by winning the soft ball game at the picnic that followed.

Spartacade was a happy occasion for us. Our combined efforts with the KD's earned the second place trophy. The Homecoming parade resulted in another addition to our trophy shelf . . . . fourth place this time.

For the past three years we've been coaching the Gamma Phi Beta football team. Yes, that's right, Gamma Phi is a sorority. We don't claim to be expert coaches, but we do enjoy helping the Gamma Phi's by giving them a few hints. Our entire house cheers the team on, hoping they'll beat the DG's in the annual "Powder Bowl" contest.

Delta Chi

If you've seen any men walking around campus wearing charcoal gray derbys and carrying black umbrellas, that's us. No, not the pledges. This year the Delta Chi seniors have donned the garb.

If you have seen a girl in a soaking red dress lately, pat her on the back. She didn't have to jump in the Red Cedar to rescue one of our water carnival float props, namely a dove. The dove idea, however, must have paid off because we took third place.

Speaking of doves and water, we tied for first place in the intermural swimming championship.

Then there was our third grade party. Members and their dates dressed like little "tykes" and played kiddies' games. Bubble gum and rock candy were rewarded for efficiency.

A little more on the adult side are our informal record dances at the house. We went "gung-ho" for one of them and posted record albums all over the wall. There is always our annual formal dinner-dance and costume parties at which the pledges entertain.

We started the school year with the annual "Sailors' Ball" costume party. In addition to entertainment and refreshments, prizes were awarded for the three best costumes. Costumes were judged on the basis of appearance and originality. All Delt Sig chapters celebrate the "Sailors' Ball."

After the Homecoming parade and game, we held a buffet luncheon on the back lawn for 300 alumni and parents. At a meeting held at the dinner the alumni agreed to pine panel the chapter house dining room. In subsequent dinners the brothers were minus napkins. Over 30,000 napkins were stuffed in the eagle on the parade float.

Ten girls from the Water Follies were our dinner guests winter term. After dinner, several of the boys went down to the Lansing Civic Center to see the show as guests of the girls.

This Christmas season we adhered to our annual custom of dividing the house into two rival classes, the "Bah-Humbugs" and the "I like Santa Clauses." A snowball fight on the front lawn decided which of the two groups would run the house.

You might say we "get the business," but after all, that's right up our alley. As a business fraternity we have speakers from both labor and management participate in house discussions on current topics and on effective plans in education for the career each member chooses. Tours through business establishments and companies are also a part of our professional business education program each term.

Pleasure mixes well with business in our group. Each year a Rose Queen and members of her court are chosen from the nominations of the women's living units. Her picture is sent to the national headquarters to compete in the national contest. The girls are crowned at the annual "Rose" dance, and the queen reigns at all events held in the chapter house.

We men of Delt Sig Pi also hold a "South American" party, our theme being carried out in food, entertainment and costume, and a formal dinner-dance.

Paint and furnishings plus enthusiastic workers blended together for more pleasant living at the house on Hillcrest.

It took a conglomeration of flour, water and coloring thrown all over the place, but we did win the third place Spartacade trophy. Actually, the conglomeration was originally intended to land on the Chi O's as a can was tipped above their heads when hit by a tennis ball. The soaked tennis balls were liable to hit anyone standing within a fifty foot radius of the targets. We really stuck to our division, audience participation.

The cans at Spartacade may have been emptied umpteen times, but our social calendar was packed full in the traditional Delt style. Again this year, the chapter co-sponsored the Christmas tree lighting and sing with the Pi Beta Phi's and entertained the candidates in the homecoming queen contest.

We have a little of the unusual too. Before each game or social event, signs and banners mysteriously appear throughout the house. Mirrors are painted, napkins written upon and all sorts of stunts are pulled. When it comes to the sports events themselves, the Delt sky-high spirit is there to cheer the team on.

Delta Upsilon

"The Duchess of Delta Upsilon" is not a product of another beauty contest but rather the name chosen for our new mascot, a beautiful German shepherd.

Some people might hear bells that aren't there, but we have no such trouble. When the big white bell (with the DU on it) rings, the whole university shouts along with it. The bell, which was donated to the school by our chapter, is used to ring out the total score after each touchdown in the football games.

We established a new custom between our chapter and the DU chapter at the U of M. After the MSU — U of M varsity football game, a traveling skin is sent to the chapter of the winning university. So when Paul Bunyan comes back to State in the fall so will the DU skin. (This trip is being hoped for on the fall agenda.)

Tip the scales at 200, and you're in—in the "200 Club" that is. Any man at the house reaching that weight or better is automatically a member. The club meetings consist of eating, of course. We might add that no one misses the formal dinner-dance or "Senior Send Off" either.

"Swing your partner" shouts rang from behind our house spring term when we turned our parking lot into a square dance floor. The outdoor evening was complete with floodlights, refreshments, and record music. Our three square dance callers really came in handy that night.

The rest of our social calendar was filled with record dances, the pledge-active party and a Halloween celebration. Santa dropped over at Christmas time for our party for underprivileged children. Although the party's really for the kids, we get a kick out of it too. And, of course, there is always the "Crescent Ball' our annual fall term party.

Each year when the baseball season rolls around we're out to get the "thundermug." The "thundermug" is the trophy awarded to the winner of the annual AGR-Farmhouse softball contest. Following the game, we hold an informal dance at which the trophy is presented.

Something we are really proud of is our long record of being top scholastically among the campus fraternities.

Two new trophies were added to our case this year; one for water carnival, and one for the humorous entry in the Junior 500.

Just two more years and we'll be in our new home on Abbott road. Our nationally recognized architect, Paul Rudolph, is a Kappa Sig and knows just what our fraternity needs.

Speaking of brothers, our chapter, Delta Psi, has a unique situation. Five of the Hoke brothers from Oklahoma have been active in our chapter. The Hokes have three more brothers who plan to enter State. If so, this may complete the Hoke family of Kappa Sigmas.

Although our new house is being planned, some remodeling was done this year. A change from coal to gas heat made it possible to create a rec room. The brothers' rooms took on a new look with everything from new lighting to new desks.

We finally found our brand new chapter flag which the graduating seniors gave the chapter. The Olds Hotel solved the mystery. They told the chapter that the flag had been left there after the banquet last spring.

We are proud of our musically inclined fraternity. The chapter has three combos at its disposal for entertainment and variety. One of them specializes in rhythms from South America.

We're known as the "group with the dough." Well, at least one night of winter term when we hold our annual mock gambling party money is no object when it is purchased in the dime store.

We are also patrons of Coral Gables—every homecoming, that is. We welcome our alums with our annual dinner in the ballroom the night of the homecoming game.

Who done it? Last spring when we sponsored the annual "Junior 500" race, the pylons at the finish line were mysteriously missing. We hunted for them and finally, after several days, a buddy tipped us off that they were topping the Sigma Nu house.

Our pledges pulled a "left footed" trick. Remember the day we limped along campus wearing only the shoes of our right feet?

Our house won the national Lambda Chi Alpha scholarship improvement trophy last year. We also won the intramural bowling award.

Each year we look forward to one whirl of a week-end—our annual formal dinner-dance in the spring.

I guess you could call us the house with the "leastest" blood, especially around winter term when we sponsor "Bleed the Greeks", the annual fraternity blood drive. We offer a trophy to the fraternity with the highest percentage of participation, but our group has held the trophy for the past three years.

Although we were drained of more blood than the others, our group still proved its strength last year by winning the basketball, bowling, tennis and baseball fraternity championships.

Win, place or show, our annual spring term party, the Upson Downs (take off on Churchill Downs) was really great. Rabbits, named after the fellows, served as horses. "Mr. Stork" placed the left over rabbits on sorority house steps.

Last spring the police came over one morning at 6 a.m. to inform us that we had a fire in the front foyer. The pledge pranksters had removed the front doors, piled the active's shoes and surrounded them with smudge pots.

Winter term was remodeling time. Our house got a new look in furniture, drapes, and cedar paneling, thanks to our alumni and our mothers.

Everywhere we go, it seems as if this twentieth century is advocating a new atomic something or other. We adopted the theme for our Water Carnival float and used the title "Where Angels Fear to Tread." Our home-made atomic plant enabled us and our co-workers, the Phi Mu's, to take fourth place in the water parade.

Perhaps we should be in the movies. Maybe not in the atomic newsreels, but remember, our rendition of "Rare Window" captured first place in Spartacade.

Imagination and elbow grease transformed our house on Abbott Road into a Dog Patch setting for one of our fall parties. Costumes, decorations and 'Lil Abner figures on the front lawn, created the appropriate atmosphere.

We joined our neighbors, the Theta Chi's and Delta Zeta's, in sponsoring an Abbott Road Triad Dance at the Theta Chi house. We also held several informal dances at our house after basketball games.

Our house received a new look this fall. The downstairs and the housemother's apartment were completely refurnished and redecorated.

Did you ever catch a mermaid? Well, if she was on a wheel, you were probably trying your luck at our Spartacade booth. You may have had a catch for the moment, but we were the lucky ones who came out on top. With our mermaids, the Alpha Xi Delta's, we "caught" the second place audience participation trophy.

The "skulls in skull house" refer to those on our fraternity pin, not to any old one that might be lying around. Actually, skull house has a rather refreshing appearance. We painted the outside trim of the house and sanded the knotty pine and revarnished and painted the inside.

Speaking of the house, it's been the scene of many informal Friday night parties from a taffy-pull to a come as you are (anything you could think of) party. Costumes and combos usually complete the setting, but one night we made a complete reversal to make the house look like a straw hut and beach. This theme? Hawaiian, of course.

All is not so peaceful when the U of M boys are around. Both chapters' pledges carry on an age-old house raiding feud.

Everything we've done this year has been overshadowed by plans for our new house. It took a lot of hard work and worry but we finally broke ground in March and things are well on their way so we can move in next fall.

We decided to go modern in interior decoration. Our Mothers' Club pitched in and helped us with finances through rummage sales.

We'll be carrying many well-established traditions over to the new house. Our seal will be imbedded in the sidewalk in front of the house, as it is now. According to tradition, none of the brothers tread on it when coming or going.

"Gambling-Gangster" was the theme of one of our most colorful costume parties fall term. The house was transformed into a gambling hall with card tables, roulette wheels and dice tables beckoning to all. It gave us some good practice for Las Vegas enroute to Pasadena.

For the first time in three years we have the traveling trophy back from our fraternity brothers at Purdue. The chapter from the school whose football team is victorious takes possession of the trophy for the following year.

Probably the one thing that distinguishes us from the rest of the fraternities is our unusual piano. We're pretty fond of the old white upright which is decorated with cartoons and the Greek letters of the social fraternities and sororities. Red barber poles and cigarette burns also gleam from its scarred surface.

The highlights of our athletic year are the annual football, baseball and basketball games with the Theta Chis. The winner of two out of three games gets to keep the traveling trophy, a five gallon jug, until the next tilt. The games are fun, and the affair always calls for a windup party.

You might say we like parties. We had a hayride fall term, a dance winter term and a formal spring dinner dance. Of course, there's always our tree trimming get-together at Christmas. After the tree is decorated Santa visits our chapter house for the annual Christmas party with underprivileged children.

Besides several informal mixers and social affairs the chapter celebrated founders' day with a banquet at the Union. In spite of our social life, we were second scholastically among fraternities last year.

"Rose Bowlitis" really plagued the campus, and we'll never forget the extra heavy dose that struck the Psi Upsilon house. The night the official announcement of the western journey was made, visitors stormed our dormers to share in the joyful glee. Being three o'clock in the morning had nothing to do with the fact that we did not have open arms to welcome them. The whole affair ended up with a snowball fight (in the dormer).

Our point average is on the way up despite the minor disturbances from our much loved and constantly playing Hi-Fi set. To motivate higher scholarship, those who raise their grades .05 are treated to a steak dinner.

When the "Dads' Day" theme swept the campus, our chapter grabbed a little of it and had our dads up for the Marquette game. Following other games we had our dates over for buffet dinners.

The best new addition to the house that the year had to offer was the return of our housemother who was in "absentia" for a year because of illness. Now that she's back, we couldn't be happier.

There is nothing "stuffy" about the animals our chapter members give their dates before the annual South Sea Island party. They crawl, breath, and even turn out to be a scare more than a "favor" now and then. If you haven't guessed it by now, just wait; a chameleon may hit your dorm next year.

This year Sigma Alpha Epsilon celebrated its 100th birthday. Our chapter took part in the celebration by attending a banquet in Detroit.

An open book and Beaumont Tower in the theme, "A Guide to Our Goals," led us right down Grand River Ave. to first place in the homecoming parade.

What Roman life actually was a few centuries ago we'll never be able to experience, but we had a lot of fun pretending at our Roman Toga party. From wreath to sandal each SAE and date put on the Latin charm. Roast pig highlighted the menu.

From the exchange desserts to the Quadrillion Ball, our social calendar was filled with all sorts of things.

It was 3:00 a.m. and I had just finished studying. Putting aside my books, I gazed around the Sigma Chi living room and began thinking of the memories attached to so many of the things.

My eye was caught by the Centennial plaque, a reminder of our 100th birthday and the celebration at the Grand Chapter Centennial Convention last spring.

The Sweetheart trophy stood next to the plaque. We'll never forget that Sweetheart Ball . . . Eddie Fisher dedicated his entire show that night to MSU and to our chapter.

My thoughts were interrupted by the stir of the dog. It was Lance Jr. who is replacing his infamous predecessor.

A rope of pearls was still in the bookcase, a memento of the "Roaring 20's" party fall term. I'm still puzzled about where the gals got all their flapper costumes.

It was time to call it a day. I gave forth with a big yawn which ended in a bigger sneeze. The feathers from those chickens let loose in the dormer were still floating around. Just a reminder of the fall term pledge class.

If there is a sorority gal who isn't worried about her figure she can thank us for originating the sorority-fraternity exchange desserts. Along with the dessert comes another first—we're the one fraternity that offers a complete tour of the house.

Patios aren't built of paper, but paper helped us build the one in back of our house. Last fall in the well-noted bi-annual paper drive we collected $250 to help pay for this project.

We paraded back from Homecoming this year with the second place trophy. Although part of our Spartacade display collapsed last year, it held up long enough for our chapter to take fourth spot in the contest.

The ATO's are blackfeet to us, and our annual get-together with them is the "Blackfoot-Whitefoot" dance winter term. Alpha Tau Omega and Sigma Nu were originally one fraternity. Each spring we also have the White Rose formal, a dinner dance.

Contrary to popular opinion, the Snake house does not have a small creek in the basement. There is no three foot crack in the floor, and we're still above water.

Overheard, two senior Theta Chi's:

"Boy, this sure has been a year to remember." "I never thought things would turn out as well as they did last fall when 45 of us turned into landscape architects to work on the lawn. You could tell this wasn't our field when we chopped down a tree and broke a gas pipe, which meant no cooking for two days."

"We made a much better showing with our musical talent which we proved by taking first place in fraternity sing."

"Of course, we celebrated later by throwing the director in the Red Cedar and conducting a car carnival throughout East Lansing. This resulted in the police switchboard being showered with complaints."

"Whenever anyone mentions Spartacade, I immediately recall how sore my arm was from switching the lights on and off at our display. I never could figure out why that thing wouldn't work automatically."

"The pledges weren't much help. They stole everything from silverware to actives. But I guess memories are made of this."

We went all out this year to revamp our house, starting right from the bottom and going up. The basement received the new panelled look and a room on the first floor found itself with knotty pine walls and a new ceiling which deadened the acoustics. Tile now covers the game and TV room floor.

Light brown carpeting throughout the first floor plus comtemporary blonde furniture added that little touch which makes a house look so much like home. We received help from the pledges who gave the chapter a modern oil painting depicting the ideals of Theta Xi.

Maybe you could say we are "gung-ho" for the new look. If so, you probably heard of the bermuda tuxedos sported by several of our members at our formal dance spring term.

One of our most eagerly anticipated events is the roaring 20's party winter term. Here each boy and his date take a few steps back in time and come out all outfitted for life thirty years ago. A combo completes the musical atmosphere.

The "Bug", our speed car entry in the Micro-Midget Race of Circle Drive, wasn't exactly the terror of highway 101, but she did manage to get the third place showing in the contest. We had our doubts. Just before the race we took the "Bug" out for a test drive, minus some incidentals and plus improper brake adjustment. We emerged minus another small incidental—a driver.

Champ, our "well-trained" boxer mascot, joined us this year. Everyone agrees he must have been well trained in devouring pies, but what are his chances for improvement?

Our fall term graduate didn't receive the traditional immersion in the Red Cedar, because of his size and the ice on the river. Fate stepped in. During a pre-Christmas football scrimmage in our back yard, the football just happened to land in the river. Our hero decided that he was more than capable of rescuing the football. With a 15 foot tree limb and a slide rule, said hero proceeded, until the ice broke and our courageous graduate ended up in the Red Cedar very red and slightly uncomfortable.

Sometimes it pays to be the "biggest clown" . . . when? . . . at our Circus Party, for instance. Entertainment, songs, skits and decorations all "performed" their part in producing the "big top."

A switch in choice of songs, skits, and decorations helped us set the scene for the Pajama Party. This party proved at least to be the most comfortable . . . costume wise.

No social calendar would be complete without mentioning our spring formal dinner-dance and our homecoming party. We also had a hayride spring term, an exchange dinner with the AEPhi's after homecoming, and a picnic with the KD's after water carnival.

This past year we won second place in the humorous entry contest of the Junior 500 parade, and honorable mention in the homecoming parade. Our chapter also received a trophy in the blood drive. Annually we play the U of M chapter in football the day our schools play the varsity game. U of M won this year, but we'll be out to beat them next fall.

Each week our fraternity has a faculty member for dinner. The evening is spent having informal discussions in the living room.

Precinct Living Gives a New View

Impromptu Showers and IM Battles Are Part of Dorm Life

EVEN though a dormitory room may look as cluttered and "lived in" as the one back home, any student will agree that dorm living is definitely something new.

Mother's cooking fades from thought as a student stands in meal lines for his share of the 21,000 meals served a day and the 323 tons of meat consumed a year. The dining room is a public meeting place and a stage where the most ingenious dinner wear is modeled—skirts thrown hastily over bermudas. Community eating also teaches the student the simple economics of food barter—"I'll swap my salad for your meat."

The 3,736 men find time for various precinct functions. Intramural sports competition produces dorm and inter-dorm champions. Precinct and dorm officers govern most activities and the Inter-Dorm Council legislates general rules. But activities of the water fight variety are planned more spontaneously.

The women's dormitories are organized on precinct lines with channels leading to AWS. The 3,300 coeds have planned functions, but also go in for spur-of-the-moment activity, such as tossing a newly pinned roommate into the shower. And no girl escapes dorm life without facing a packed lobby and a Saturday night blind date.

After hours parties in the women's dorms are always popular. Christmas calls for humorous gifts and homemade costumes.

The middle of the week finds the telephone booth a scene of much activity as students make plans for a busy weekend.

Women's Inter-Dorm Council

This year for the first time, the Women's Inter-Dorm Council invited the similar women's group from the University of Michigan to a banquet. The two groups exchanged ideas on projects to create better dorm relations.

Pre-parties before the Spinsters' Spin was a project initiated by the council. The group also sponsored its annual snow sculpture contest. Combining forces with the Men's Inter-Dorm Council, the group sponsored a semi-formal dance spring term for all dormitory residents. Another important event was the women's inter-dorm sing spring term.

The council is made up of one representative from each woman's dorm. The council further benefits the dorms by providing these representatives with leadership experience through workshops at which dorm officers meet to discuss current problems.

Presidents of the women's dorms are: Top Row—Walsh, Gilchrist; Boughner, South Campbell; Rooks, South Williams; Brown, North Williams; Pfluecke, North Campbell; Wuerfel, Abbot; Dennis, West Landon. First Row—Craddock, Snyder; Palenske, East Yakeley; DeLisle (adviser), O'Dell, Mason.

Spartans will sit in a special block at next season's game with the University of Michigan. The idea originated with a student committee set up by the Men's Inter-Residence Hall Council which presented the plan to Biggie Munn.

The council was formed eight years ago to promote residence hall spirit and to coordinate men's inter-dorm social and athletic functions. The group sponsors the intramural sports program, which is climaxed by the All-Award Dinner that honors winning dorm athletic teams.

In previous years, the council has co-sponsored the Sno-Ball, a semi-formal dance. This winter they decided to hold an exchange dinner among all of the men's and women's dorms. The all-dormitory dance was given spring term.

The council works closely with the Women's Inter-Residence Hall Council. Most of the business is conducted at monthly dinner meetings. Much of the work of the men's group is done in committees which report at the bi-monthly meetings.

The group sent representatives to a meeting of the Big Ten Inter-Residence Hall Council. They discussed problems of common interest and adopted a program to bring the Big Ten councils closer together.

Members of the Men's Inter-Residence Hall Council complete plans for the All-Award Dinner which climaxes the intramural sports program sponsored by the council.

North Campbell

A dorm variety show was a new activity in North Campbell fall term. A great deal of hidden talent was uncovered as the girls presented humorous skits and musical variety acts. The dorm chorus also entertained by presenting their program for the spring inter-dorm sing.

There is often little competition for dormitory offices. Realizing this, the North Campbell house council held a rush smoker winter term to promote interest in the elections.

As a result, the campaigning was very enthusiastic and publicity was particularly clever. The new officers were honored at a party following installation ceremonies.

The year's activities were climaxed by a term party spring term which also honored graduating seniors.

South Campbell

The residents of South Campbell were rewarded for their long hours of studying fall term by receiving the scholarship award.

The coeds were also successful in capturing first place in the intramural swimming program for the second consecutive year.

A Christmas party climaxed fall term activities in South Campbell. Graduating seniors were honored at the party with impressive crowns made from tin cans being presented to the outstanding seniors.

A dinner was held winter term honoring the new dorm officers. The girls' parents were invited to the installation ceremonies. They also had an opportunity to view the dorm's snow sculpture entry, "Comedy and Tragedy".

East Landon

A group of Lansing orphan children were guests of East Landon coeds at a Christmas party. The children were entertained by the dorm chorus and given gifts and refreshments.

Clothes left in the laundry room and discarded items donated by the coeds were auctioned off one evening in East Landon. It proved both entertaining and profitable as many of the girls benefited by the bargain prices.

One Sunday afternoon each term an open house is held at East Landon and parents and friends have an opportunity to visit the girls' rooms.

For four consecutive years East Landon has taken home the trophy for first place in the Interdorm sing.

West Landon

"Moments to Remember" was the title of West Landon's fall term party. Programs were replicas of phonograph records with the dining room decorated in a romantic atmosphere motif. The coeds were hostesses again winter term at a party preceding the Spinsters' Spin.

This was the year for trophies for the West Landon coeds. They captured first place in the intramural basketball tournament. Fall term they joined forces with Butterfield and won third place in the Centennial Homecoming Parade.

Five little Indians bowing to Sparty was the snow scene constructed by East Landon the weekend of the Illinois basketball game. Their efforts enabled the coeds to win third place in the snow sculpture contest.

East Mayo

Freshmen moving into East Mayo are soon informed about initiation night. The new residents must display their talent in entertaining the upperclassmen. The program usually consists of humorous skits and provides an opportunity for the new coeds to become better acquainted.

East Mayo, being the oldest women's dorm on campus, held a centennial tea in celebration of the university's 100th birthday. Special guests were alumni who were past residents of the dormitory.

Guest of honor was Miss Grace Richards who was East Mayo's first housemother. Of particular interest at the tea was the dorm's gavel made of wood from the first building on campus.

West Mayo

The girls of West Mayo received a great deal of satisfaction from their Christmas project. Through contributions collected in the dorm an orthopedic operation was able to be performed on a two-month-old orphan girl. The child would have remained crippled had this operation been delayed.

Most coeds dread the Monday evening housemeeting so this year the girls of West Mayo decided to add a little entertainment to the event.

Through the use of humorous skits, the girls were encouraged to participate in exchange dinners, contribute books to the dorm library and attend a dorm party. An added attraction was the hula performed by an Hawaiian girl.

A new television set was enjoyed by the coeds even though it was delivered a week before winter term finals.

Gilchrist

"Spinsters' Spin" was the theme of the Gilchrist snow sculpture which captured first place in the annual dorm sculpturing contest. Another addition to Gilchrist's trophies was the third place scholarship cup.

Winter term the Gilchrist coeds cheered their busboy's basketball team to an undefeated record. The girls participated in all of the women's intramural athletics and honored their athletes with a party at the end of the year.

Christmas is a busy season for the residents of Gilchrist Hall. The girls have an opportunity to meet members of the administration at an annual buffet supper. A pajama party is held in the lounge just before the term ends at which each floor presents an original skit followed by refreshments and caroling.

The coeds added a new feature to their Christmas list. They donated money for the purchase of a wheelchair to be used by crippled children in the visiting nurses' homes.

The dormitory recently purchased a 24-inch television set which is a big attraction for the coeds and their dates on week-end evenings. Exchange dinners are also regular social activities.

Gilchrist coeds hurry to meet the deadline as they prepare their exhibit for the Snow Sculpture Contest sponsored by the Women's Inter-Dorm Council. They were successful, as their theme, "Spinsters' Spin," captured first place.

Snyder

There's plenty of activity in the laundry room as coeds prepare for their weekly chore. Saturday mornings find them often waiting in line for the washing machines.

What could be more peaceful than viewing a TV program? Snyder's lounge is often occupied by coeds and their dates enjoying a few relaxed moments together.

Snyder's coeds will agree that auctions aren't what they used to be. At the Campus Chest Student-Faculty Auction the dormitory purchased President and Mrs. Hannah.

The "purchases" were guests at a dinner given by the girls to honor housemothers, graduating seniors and the dorm officers. An informal coffee hour was held in the lounge following the dinner.

No doubt several East Lansing firemen remember the afternoon spring term when they were called to extinguish a load of burning laundry in Snyder Hall. No one could decide who was more embarrassed, the owner of the laundry or the firemen.

The girls in each precinct of Snyder usually gather once a term for a party. They often don an "original" costume for the occasion. Pizza is the popular refreshment at these parties.

High scholarship always receives its proper recognition. Each term a dinner is given to honor the outstanding coeds. A red rose is given to those having over a 3.0 and a white rose to the girls achieving a 3.5 or higher.

This year for the first time the Snyder girls held a Christmas buffet dinner. The coeds and their guests gathered around the piano for caroling following the dinner.

East Yakeley

Memories of the California trip were recalled by East Yakeley coeds and their dates at a "Rose-bowl slide" party winter term. Each photographer showed his own slides and provided a colorful narration for the audience.

Refreshments were served following the slide session and each person related his most unusual experience during the trip. All agreed they would like to make the trip again soon.

"Oops" was the title of the snow scene constructed by the East Yakeley coeds which received second prize in the snow sculpture contest. It depicted the familiar sight of a coed slipping on an icy sidewalk.

The girls played hostesses to their dates at a party preceding the Spinsters' Spin. It gave the "Knights" an opportunity to display their hand-made corsages.

"Fourth for bridge" is a familiar cry among the residents of East Yakeley, especially after dinner, as the coeds relax before they begin studying. Television in the recreation room is always popular with the non-bridge players.

West Yakeley

For their Christmas project this year, the girls of West Yakeley solicited funds to purchase a ceramic kiln and a phonograph for the children at the Orthopedic School in Lansing. The record player is used by the orthopedic department to help teach children who are hard of hearing.

The presentation of the gifts was made to the superintendent of the Lansing schools by the presidents of East and West Yakeley.

Halloween provided a good theme for the Yakeley term party even to the apple cider and doughnuts served for refreshments. The programs were fashioned after masks which carried out the party's theme.

A tree trimming party ushered in the Christmas holidays. Highlights of the evening were a series of skits and a program presented by the dorm chorus. West Yakeley participated in a Christmas party in the Union given for a group of orphan children. The chorus joined East Shaw in singing carols.

Group singing is a favorite pastime in West Yakeley. The coeds who are talented in strumming the ukulele receive many requests as girls gather around for songfests.

After dinner chats give students a chance for a few minutes of relaxation. Marilyn Jago, Teddie Wicktor, Susan Sponable and Dick Graves find the winter term party a lively topic.

Surprised to see newly furnished lounges, Judy Dietrich, Janet Pickard and Judy O'Dell proudly water their new planter, only one of the many new features in the lounge.

Mason

Mason Hall boasts a two-year winning streak in the Woman's Division of the Junior 500 Pushcart Derby. Intramural sports wins have also added to the trophy collection. One of the biggest social events of the year was the winter term party co-sponsored with Phillips Dormitory.

The cry of "fire" caused plenty of excitement in Mason Hall one Saturday morning in March. Firemen soon arrived on the scene and blamed the blaze, which destroyed the contents of one of the rooms, on a faulty light cord. The coeds were relieved that the fire didn't spread to the lounge which was recently refurnished.

New freshmen were surprised to see the old furniture being removed when they first arrived. Soon however, the bright new pieces arrived, making the room cheerful and modern.

Lower lounges in the dormitories are used mainly for recreational purposes. Television sets in the recreation rooms consume many coeds' leisure hours.

Abbot

In previous years Abbot Hall has often been referred to as the girls' dorm on the far end of campus with the masculine look.

But this description no longer fits. This fall the lounges and all of the rooms were redecorated with the coeds in mind.

Abbot Hall can well be proud of its record of having more of its residents as finalists in campus queen contests than any other dorm. The dorm was represented in the Homecoming queen, Porpoise queen and ROTC Corps sponsor finals.

An all-campus open house was one of the biggest events sponsored by the coeds fall term. Parents, students and faculty were entertained by the girls and had an opportunity to see the newly decorated dormitory.

Almost every night of the week girls and their dates find the lounge a quiet place to cram for that next test, or just sit and talk about the day's activities.

Whether it's 9:59 or 12:59 the scene on the dorm steps is always the same. Couples are still saying good-night in the same fashion as those who first lived in the dorms.

North Williams

The lounge and patio of North Williams Hall was transformed into a Japanese garden, complete with lanterns and oriental decorations, for the annual spring term party. In keeping with the theme, special pastries were part of the refreshments.

As a tribute to the graduating seniors, the North Williams juniors donned uniforms and served the seniors their meals for one day. Girls getting pinned, in addition to the traditional serenade, can look forward to a "tubbing" with all the trimmings.

High scholarship is always an aim of North Williams' coeds. Their efforts were rewarded fall term when they received the first place scholarship trophy. The girls provide tutoring for others who are having difficulty with their classes.

The coeds decorate their doors during the Christmas holidays as part of the decorating contest sponsored by the house council. During the tree trimming party in the lounge, each girl donates an ornament for the tree which is added to the dorm's decoration collection.

North Williams is known for its outstanding participation in intramural sports. The coeds received many honors at the women's athetic banquet spring term.

South Williams

Supporting charitable organizations kept South Williams' coeds busy this year. As part of their Christmas activities, the girls donated money to the Muscular Dystrophy Fund and to Campus Chest. Additional funds for Campus Chest were provided by raffling off pictures of male campus leaders and crowning a "Campus King."

Birthdays aren't forgotten at South Williams. Each month a party, featuring dorm talent, is held to celebrate the birthdays during that month.

Fall term the residents of South Williams decided to sponsor a contest to brighten rooms and halls. The result was an assortment of colorful mobiles, original paintings featuring realistic and modern art.

A Christmas Tea highlights the dorm's social calendar. Members of the administration are invited to the Sunday afternoon tea which is followed by entertainment by the girls.

Before the coeds leave for the holidays, they also have a Christmas pajama party, trim the tree and exchange gifts.

A term party is always a big event in the spring. This year the coeds also presented a special program for the guests on Parents' Day.

Dorm men don shirts, coats and ties for evening meals. The cafeteria dining room allows a selection of many varieties of food from the hot steam table.

Favorable approval shines upon each boy's face when coeds are allowed in the dorms. These "too seldom" occasions usually mean campaigning for elections or selling of year-books.

Butterfield

Tempers flared fall term when the men of Butterfield were informed they had to temporarily vacate their rooms for the delegates to the State Centennial Conference. After President Hannah cleared up the misunderstanding, the men made the adjustment and moved into Rather and Bryan Hall for the week.

The Butterfield scholars were rewarded fall term with a steak dinner. The men received a certificate of merit for scholarly achievement which went to all those with a 3.0 or higher.

"The First Mechanical Engineering Course" was the theme of the Homecoming float which captured third place in the Centennial Parade for Butterfield and its co-workers. The scene portrayed the opening of the College of Engineering.

The Butterfield lounge was the scene of lively activity one Sunday afternoon at the close of fall term. The men entertained a group of orphans and the party was complete with a Christmas tree and Santa Claus.

Bryan

A shiny new wheelchair was presented to the Mary Freebed Children's Hospital in Grand Rapids, through the contributions of the men of Bryan Hall.

At Christmas time, the Bryan residents contributed to a party for orphan boys. When the party was over, the Bryanites discovered they had surplus funds and decided to present the money to the Freebed Hospital for Crippled Children.

A replica of early life at Michigan State was portrayed on the Bryan Homecoming float. To make the picture complete, the men constructed a figure of Lincoln signing the Morrill Act.

Bryan was active in sports this year. Winning teams in football, basketball and hockey enabled the dormitory to place second in the dorm intramural sports tournament.

Bryan Hall contains eight precincts which frequently schedule individual social functions. Hayrides, dances and picnics were among the activities planned by the various precincts.

Even fellows realize that wastebaskets only hold so much and then it's necessary to make a trip down to the incinerator.

No matter how blue a fellow may feel, mail from home can cheer up the whole day, especially when it contains a check.

Rather

A Christmas party for 32 needy children from five to eight years old was given by the men of Rather and Butterfield. The children, all of whom needed dental and optometry work, were examined by a physician after the party.

The bill for glasses and dental work was paid through contributions from the dormitory residents. This project for underprivileged children has been established as an annual Christmas event.

Basketball played an important part in Rather Hall's intramural program. Precinct seven was the victor in the intramural basketball finals winter term.

Rather Hall was the first to sponsor a Turkey Bowl fall term. The contest was a football battle for the championship between the A and B wing. A queen of the event was chosen from the coed fans. The contest has been established as an annual affair.

The residents of Rather co-sponsored the Friday evening record dances which were held at Brody this year.

There are no poker chips in view so this is probably a game of gin rummy as Rather residents relax in the comfortable lounge.

There's never a dull moment when working at the lobby desk. Issuing irons and magazines is a frequent task for the deskman.

The men in the precinct receiving the highest grades were honored at a party by the other Phillips men fall term.

Phillips men sponsored a Christmas party for a group of underprivileged Lansing children featuring Santa Claus and gifts.

Phillips

The top scholarship award went to Phillips Hall this year. The dormitory received the trophy for achieving the highest grade average among the men's living units.

High scholarship is encouraged among the men by honoring the precinct having the highest point average with a special dinner each term.

Many hours of practice paid off for the men of Phillips who won first place in the pingpong tournament.

The men are leaving Phillips Hall. Fall term all of the dorm's residents will move into Bailey Dormitory which is part of the Harrison Road living units. Phillips will then be occupied by freshman women.

Phillips is the only men's living unit joined with a women's dorm. The two groups work together on many campus projects in addition to a weekly exchange dinner.

The men sponsored a Christmas party for a group of under-privileged Lansing children. The occasion was complete with Santa Claus distributing gifts. The group also held a party for the women who work in the dormitory cafeteria.

Gerritsen, M. Gerritsen, Blount, Stepanovic, Phelps, Allen.

West Shaw

The West Shaw General Council is the governing body for the large dormitory. Each precinct is represented on the council which handles dorm problems and plans the schedule of activities.

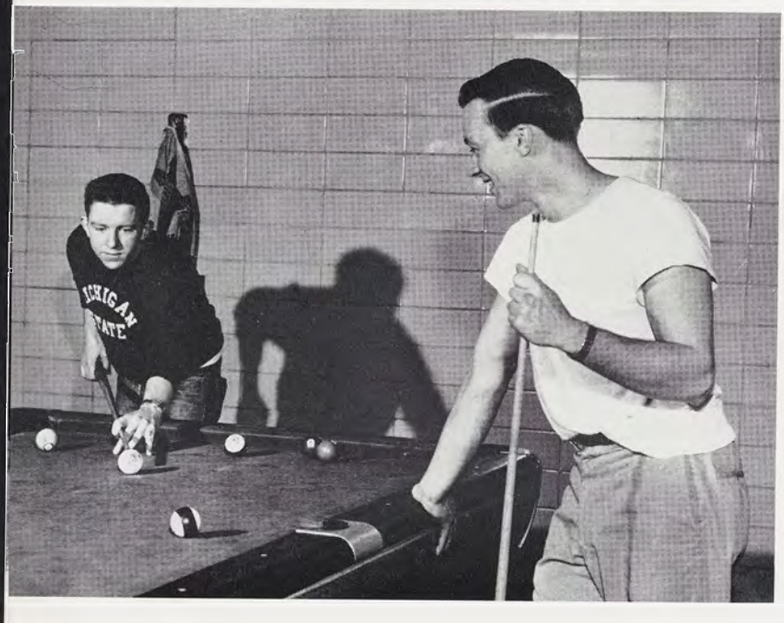
Exchange dinners, weekly record dances and parties are arranged by the council. Social activities spring term were climaxed by a dinner dance, "Moonlight and Roses," which was held on the dorm terrace.

The men of West Shaw made many additions to their trophy collection this year, especially in the field of sports. Outstanding participation in golf, tennis and softball all brought first place trophies.

West Shaw gained permanent possession of the intramural football trophy by winning it for the third consecutive year. This outstanding record enabled the dorm to receive the intramural all-sports award.

First place in the Men's Inter-Dorm Sing was awarded to West Shaw spring term. The dormitory was also honored for its high scholarship fall term.

Bill Chaffee and Glenn Lewis take advantage of the full-equipped recreation room for an after-dinner game of pool.



Deep concentration is evidenced here as two West Shaw residents take a study break to play a game of chess.

East Shaw men agree a good way to relax after dinner is to gather around the piano and sing some of the old favorites.

Shaving for eight o'clock classes can be dangerous sometimes when a fellow is still half asleep, or wishing he were.

East Shaw

"An adventure in living and learning" was the theme of the first program in a series of weekly discussions sponsored by East Shaw winter term.

The first speaker, Dr. Stuart Gallacher, lectured on Mormonism which was followed by a question and answer period. Other topics in the series were "College Marriage" and "You and Tomorrow's History." The programs provided students with an opportunity to discuss current problems with informed speakers.

A "little" Lecture Concert Series was another "first" sponsored by the residents of East Shaw. Each Thursday evening the men and their guests met in the lounge for the program which featured movies or slides, accompanied by lectures.

Several additions were made to the East Shaw trophy collection this year. The men placed in the Turkey Trot and captured the second place trophy in the Junior 500. Winter term they took a second place in the intramural swimming program.

The Shaw lounge is just the place for record dances which the dorm holds on Friday evening. The spring term party was held on the adjoining terrace.

Just like home. That's what co-op residents like about their living units. What better atmosphere could one want for studying.

Co-op Living Teaches Responsibility

Work Is Always Important But There Is Time For Fun

THE most unique thing about the MSU cooperative housing system is that it works. Believing that anyone can do what he has to, students do all their own cooking, cleaning and supervising in the co-op houses.

People with little or no experience become chef or janitor for groups of 16 to 40 people. While there may be minor mishaps at first, things are usually running smoothly by mid-term.

In most houses an elected officer assigns various duties to fit into the occupants' class schedules. As the name implies, cooperation is the key to success in these houses. Everyone must learn to live with one another—there is no room for free-loading.

However, co-ops offer more than work. Social life for the 65 women in four houses and 200 men in eight houses includes term parties, exchange dinners, desserts and the jointly sponsored "Co-Hop."

Cooperative living teaches not only the basic skills necessary to run a house, but also the importance of cooperation and responsibility. It necessitates very close personal relationships and encourages high scholarship as shown by the co-op students' consistent leadership in grade averages.

Preparing dinner doesn't seem like work when coeds work together to organize a smoothly running household.

Women's Cooperative League

A Kick-Off party fall term started activities rolling for the Women's Cooperative League. The annual event was held at one of the men's co-ops and is one of the many social functions scheduled for the women's and men's co-ops.

The Women's Cooperative League is composed of two representatives from each of the women's co-ops. The president of each house is one of the representatives so the individual house activities and those of the league may be coordinated.

The president and vice president of the council are elected from the previous year's group to provide experienced leadership for the league. At its bi-monthly meetings the group works to coordinate the activities of the six houses.

The league serves as a governing body for all of the women's co-ops. It sends a delegate to the AWS Activities and Judiciary Boards and to Student Government.

Through the efforts of WCL, the women's co-ops are able to participate in many campus activities such as Water Carnival, Spartacade and Activities Carnival.

The league sponsors several activities with the Men's Inter Cooperative Council including exchange dinner and parties. The groups climax their activities with a semi-formal dance, the Co-Hop.

Spring term all of the houses were invited to a picnic. The women's cooperatives held a tea at Peoples Church for their housemothers winter term.

Women's Cooperative League officers Dorothy Campbell, Sharon Cubitt, Dawn Koehler and Nancy Borgquist look over plans for a tea sponsored by the cooperatives to honor housemothers.

Men's Inter Cooperative Council

The Men's Inter Cooperative Council operates primarily for the purpose of furthering and promoting cooperation among the seven men's co-op houses.

The council is composed of delegates, one representative for every 10 men in each living unit. Organized in 1945, the group undertakes numerous projects related to men's co-op living.

Owing to the fact that there is so much diversification among the houses in size and organization, ICC is not a legislative body. The houses are run on an individual basis and are owned and governed by the members.

The council sponsors membership drives and schedules meetings between house officers to encourage cooperation between the co-ops. Whenever necessary, the group meets with members of the administration to discuss policies concerning the cooperatives.

Intramural sports for the men's co-ops is under the direction of the council which maintains the records and presents awards to the winners in the inter co-op sports league.

Jim Kell, Robert Christensen, Bill Patterson, and Gaylord Denslow discuss the intramural sports schedule for winter term with Inter Cooperative Council president Jim Voorheis.

ICC and WCL, the Women's Cooperative League, sponsored the annual picnic for all co-op members spring term. Baseball and swimming led the list of activities.

The biggest event on the council's social calendar was the inter co-op dance, the Co-Hop, co-sponsored with WCL in April.

▲ Sanford

At the beginning of each term Sanford House coeds each chose a "secret pal" who is often subjected to pranks such as finding her bed short-sheeted.

The coeds discover the identity of their secret pal at the end of the term when a party is given and gifts are exchanged.

Concord ▼

Concord House celebrated its twentieth anniversary this spring as one of the oldest women's cooperatives on campus.

Fall term the coeds held an open house for parents and friends. Concord also honored all of the cooperative housemothers at a tea at Peoples Church fall term.

▲ Robinson

Robinson coeds entertained their dates at a Pizza Party winter term. An Italian atmosphere was created by small tables covered by red and white checked tablecloths and candles in wax coated bottles.

Dancing sharpened appetites and the group welcomed the pizza prepared by the hostesses.

Rochdale ▼

Rochdale House was named for one of the leaders of a movement to establish women's co-operatives on college campuses.

The coeds find time for parties, exchange dinners and sports besides spending about six hours a week planning meals, cooking and cleaning, not to mention studying.

▲ Beal

Work in the house keeps members of Beal House busy during the week with each fellow being assigned approximately five hours of cleaning, planning, or cooking.

Beal House is the youngest of the men's co-operatives. It was established in 1949 by a group of 21 veterans.

Bower ▼

Remodeling their house kept Bower House men busy this year with special concentration on the kitchen and living room.

The fellows were successful in reaching the semi-finals in softball spring term. They were also runners-up in basketball and football in the co-op league intramurals.

▲ Elsworth

A call for "Joe" was the password to the informal party at the Elsworth House winter term. The theme was the roaring twenties complete with flapper costumes and the Charleston. This was one of the costume parties which the men hold each term.

Elsworth House, the second oldest cooperative, is the only men's co-op to have its own semi-formal term party. Spring term a picnic in Okemos climaxed a year of social events including exchange dinners, desserts and parties.

Evans ▼

The Evans Scholars is a unique organization unknown to most students. It was established on campus by the Western Golf Association in 1955. The members are golf enthusiasts who have caddied at a recognized course for two years and have been approved by the Western Golf Association.

"Buddie Day" is the group's outstanding activity. Fall term members invite their dads and friends to a football game followed by a dinner at their house on MAC

▲ Hedrick

The days of the Wild West were revived at the Hedrick Frontier Days Party winter term. Couples appeared in costumes depicting the days of Buffalo Bill.

Members of the men's cooperative are already making plans to move into their new house on Haslett Street next fall.

The men scheduled a ping pong tournament with the winner receiving a gold trophy. The co-op holds several exchange dinners each term.

Howland ▼

Howland is the largest men's cooperative, housing 46 members. Plans are underway for a new house which should be ready for occupancy next fall.

The long hours of studying were rewarded when Howland House won the co-op scholastic award, winner for the second consecutive term.

"Howland Holler" is the annual news bulletin which the men send to their alumni informing them about recent activities at the co-op.

▲ Motts

Intramural sports top the list of activities at the Motts Cooperative House. A first place trophy in basketball rewarded their athletic efforts winter term.

The members always hold a breakfast get-together after the J-Hop. Spring term finds them busy constructing a car for entrance in the Junior 500. This is the second year that the group has been in their new residence on Hillcrest.

Ulrey ▼

The men of Ulrey House were successful in winning the cooperative and independent intramural football tournaments fall term. They were also runners-up for the all-university sports trophy.

The sports enthusiasts won first place in the independent free throw contest. The men also placed in the Turkey Trot. Ulrey House was founded in 1946 by Dr. Orion Ulrey who was one of the initiators of the cooperative movement.

A typical after-dinner scene in one of the University Village apartments which feature modern interior design.

A married student stops for groceries on his way home from class. About 24 percent of the students are married.

"In the good old summertime . . ." Children of married students create their own recreation near the barrack apartments.

Married Students Lead Dual Lives

Baby Sitting and 8 O'clock Classes Present Extremes

AT 6:30 a.m. he feeds the baby. At 7:30 he gulps a cup of coffee and kisses his wife good-bye. This scene is not unlike many enacted each morning by young married men starting for work, but this time, the young man is hurrying to an eight o'clock. And as he heads for class he leaves his family and home in married housing, the area on the northwest end of campus.

Married housing settlements present two extremes in living — the bricks and barracks. Eleven hundred married men, their wives and an ever-expanding number of children, cats and dogs live in the barracks. These rather permanent "temporary buildings" are unfurnished but do contain a stove and an ice box. West of the barracks is the partially completed University Village where 456 lucky families live in ultra-modern comfort. About 175 more brick apartments will be ready by fall. The university hopes to have the barracks torn down and all married students housed in the bricks within the next five to ten years.

Students applying for housing must be veterans or juniors having earned 92 credits. If unmarried, students may apply three months prior to their wedding date and should plan on a six-month to a year wait.

Having exchanged his bachelor quarters, the married student soon finds himself the family man. When his classes are over, he doesn't go to the grill or out with the boys. He shops for supper, works or baby-sits. Recreation consists more of card games than beer busts. Married life seems to be more conducive to studying also, as surveys show that married men earn higher grades than the gay young bachelor.

The married student's wife also has a busy day. She may work, be a student herself, or a housewife who stays home and cares for her children.

As a married student, the individual receives a dual education; one in his class room major and one in responsibility as he learns to maintain his own home.

Lights compose a uniform pattern in University Village. The ultra-modern living units house 456 families.

Mixed Emotions Sum Up Four Years

We Glance Briefly At the Past As We Face the Future

By MYRA MACPHERSON
Wolverine Copy Editor

WHAT'S four years? An eternity if you're in the army—a few fleeting seconds if you're considering the history of civilization.

Your four college years combine the fleeting moments and the never-ending hours. Remember the days that dragged to a 4 a.m. close with stacks of exam notes and cups of coffee? Or the weekend that disappeared so quickly with only a dance program or a ripped hem of a formal for a memory?

One-thousand-four-hundred and sixty days of the little things; classes in Berkey, crossword puzzles at eight o'clock, tramps through the snow to South Campus, blind dates. Some of those days were pretty momentous, too; the day you decided that graduate school was for you, or got your job for after graduation, or the day you fell in love.

It won't be long, seniors, before it's behind you and you will begin the age-old game of "remember when" . . .

Meeting friends, a cup of coffee, studying or just relaxing. . . the grill in the student Union provides a refreshing atmosphere.

Freshman Memories

You were one of 3,788 freshmen in the fall of 1952. You men got a chance to wear Air Force blue instead of the accustomed khaki for those ROTC drills. Brody and the other dorms facing Kellogg were merely blueprints.

The whole campus held its breath on Saturdays as the football team continued to win all our games—and the national title. We were writing the men in Korea—or perhaps you were one of the boys over there. Stan Kenton blasted to an auditorium of jazz lovers in the "Greatest Show of 1952."

Three thousand students said good-by to Uncle John at his surprise party in February. He was on his way to Washington, D.C., and his job as assistant secretary of defense for manpower and personnel. Ike had just become president.

Some freshman rode a bike on the frozen Red Cedar. An 80-yard, student-signed scroll was sent to Chuck Davey for his bout with "The Kid." We were put on probation by the Big 10, Biggie got the "Coach of the Year" award and the NCAA said good-by to the two-platoon system.

The Four Freshmen's "The Day Isn't Long Enough" and "Doggie in the Window" blared from the grill juke box spring term. Little black books were revised as the now familiar "Edgewood" exchange was added. Spring was in full bloom and no incantations could bring rain to stave off ROTC parades. The Korean war was over . . . and it was summer. The lakes and golf courses called to all.

Registration was old hat as you started your sophomore year. Sarah Vaughn, King Cole and Sadler's Wells were on the list for Lecture-Concert shows.

Football game number 29 with Purdue broke our winning streak and 6500 students welcomed a dejected team back to school. More jubilant was the four-hour pep rally when we won the Rose Bowl bid. Everyone planned to sell pencils on the street corners to get there, and in the end, 816 students sang "California Here We Come," and "Heart of My Heart" on the trains.

In January, 1954, the school television broadcasts began and we had the third educational TV station in the nation. Duffy and Biggie got new jobs, and we all wanted a new name. We broke ground that month for our four-million-dollar library. For the second straight year we had a Miss Big 10 Queen. Murals were added to the walls of the Union Grill. Everyone talked of Marlon Brando in "The Wild One."

Ivy League came west in the form of Bermudas, knee socks, and coed hair styles as short as crew cuts. The Psi U's sang their way to the sixth straight fraternity sing title . . . and once again it was difficult to resist Lake Lansing when finals came.

The new coed cheerleaders added to the games your junior year. We had a special train to take us to South Bend for the Notre Dame game when the rains came and all was mud, mud, mud. The Four Lads came for our homecoming pep rally review, and Sparty got a blue "M" from University of Michigan rooters.

Sunday night flicks were popular as we saw "Sabrina" and "Rear Window", to say nothing of the cinemascope extravaganzas. Parking meters were installed on the campus.

The Swedish Gymnasts came in January and Ralph Flanagan in February for the J-Hop. All the Big 10 Queens were there, too, as we hosted the contest and gave Miss Minnesota the title at intermission.

February opened the Centennial Year celebrations with countless number of symposia. Winter term also began a safari to Mexico City and the sun. We struggled over MSU again. The new name became a reality in April following a 23-2 vote in senate, and all the book stores were selling MSC items for a song.

Spring term—ice cream cones from the dairy building, couples holding hands under trees, Earl Bostic records, sun-decks, I-M baseball games, the hot sun scorching blue books in stuffy class rooms . . .

Brick Ryder and Jack Huffman chat with Homecoming queen candidates before the coeds are interviewed by the judges. The annual fall contest is co-sponsored by the senior class.

It was only fitting that an MSU coed should grace Michigan's float in the 1954 Tournament of Roses. Dee Means, although a graduate, had reigned as "Miss Big 10" during the previous year.

President Hannah introduced the speaker at the June commencement exercises. Admiral Arthur W. Radford urged the graduating seniors to "Be ready to defend the American way of life."

The ninety degree June sun beat down on the seniors, graduates and spectators at the 1955 commencement exercises in Macklin Field.

Senior coffee hours provided a good opportunity to carve your name in the senior table in Old College Hall. Several of the athletic teams were introduced at the informal meetings.

In 1952 Excalibur members "kidnapped" President and Mrs. Hannah and took them to the auditorium where 3,000 Spartans were waiting to bid him good-by before he left for Washington.

Two seniors pass their lanterns to underclassmen, symbolizing the passing on of responsibility. The event is Lantern Night which honors 50 outstanding senior women.

The band leads the procession at Senior Swingout which ends at the Aud and climaxes senior activities before graduation.

Senior Year... Parade... Rose Bowl

It was here. That final year—your senior year.

There was an extra special Centennial Homecoming Parade and you were up all night working on a float. Our Block S was the best in its three-year history. The Notre Dame game was televised in color—and even the Turkey Trot was televised.

We had an enlarged student directory and the UMOC contest died. Everyone wore crew neck sweaters and trench coats.

Our fabulous football comeback was climaxed by the Rose Bowl game, and you had a chance to go west for the second time in your college career. This time, Spartans made history with their mass migration of 4,500 to the coast.

Fall term we all went "Mantavoni mad" and the tickets for the concert went in a flash. You went shopping for career ideas at the Career Carnival, and later you began to fill the Placement Bureau for job interviews.

Ike had a heart attack and everyone was talking about international love affairs. Meg remained a princess when she said good-by to Captain Peter Townsend, and Grace Kelly became one when she met her Prince.

Winter term, books were moved from the old library to the new, and you spent more time trying to figure where a book might be than you did reading it.

You went to the J-Hop—the last of your college career—and danced to Les Elgart's music. You waded through drifts of snow in February—and went tobogganing at Echo Valley and skiing at Caberfae.

There were senior coffee hours and you carved your name in the class table top. And soon it was your final spring term. Perhaps you carried only 12 credits, you'd earned an academic rest. There were weekend parties, Swing Out, Lantern Night, Water Carnival, Commencement, a last walk through Berkey Hall, a parting hand-shake and four years of your life fades nostalgically into the past. . . .

Senior Council

Senior year activities, soon to become memories, were scheduled and planned by the four class officers and 14 council members. The officers are elected by the class and they in turn appoint the council members.

This year, the council replaced the usual spring term Senior Reception with five smaller get togethers. These "Hannah Teas" were held winter and spring term and were far more successful than the one traditional reception. President and Mrs. Hannah, administrators and deans of the various colleges were met by the students.

Another new project was the Great Issues Course. Class and faculty members studied the possibilities of this course as outlined by Senior Council members. Patterned after the highly successful Dartmouth course, it is designed to bring seniors together in a common course to study current issues. It is tentatively scheduled for next year.

Other class activities include coffee hours and Senior Swingout at which time seniors don caps and gowns to participate in a program where the outstanding senior man and woman are announced. The council chooses the 1956 Alumni Club members and "Seniors of the Week", picked for outstanding campus work. Lantern Night and Water Carnival are also organized by Senior Council members.

Michigan State News

The Michigan State News, published by students without direct supervision, is not the official voice of the university nor the student body, but, while seeking to serve the best interests of both, stands ready to battle any move which would drive a wedge between the two, whether it comes from within the university or from the outside.

WOLVERINE...

THIS magnificient yearbook for 1956 is a worthy exemplification of the high standards achieved by the student body and the faculty of Michigan State University in all its endeavors.

IN addition to carrying on their daily scholastic duties, time has been found to create this outstanding visual record of the year's work in a manner that equals the professional best.

WE are proud to have been selected to portray in picture and type this very excellent editorial content. It is an honor to serve so great an Institution. It is a rare privilege to serve so fine an Editorial Staff.

Revolutionary Duo-Trim Power Mower

"VACUUM CLEANS" YOUR LAWN

Chops up grass clippings fine!

No unsightly cut-grass stripes when you cut with Duo-Trim. Duo-Trim's "Wind-Tunnel Action" stands grass on end to be cut, chops it fine, sprays it wider, into the lawn for a velvety "Vacuum-Cleaned" look. No raking needed. Cuts your lawn smoother, faster!

No leaf raking in the fall!

Leaves are shredded to fine pieces, and distributed evenly into the lawn And it's done without extra cost, time-wasting attachments. The finely chopped leaves act as a mulch to make your lawn healthier, greener, more beautiful next spring.

- Automatic rewind starter
- Reversible handle
- Lightweight chassis
- Famous Clinton Engine
- Full 18" and 21" Blade
- Safety Ignition Switch

SEE IT TODAY AT YOUR DUO-THERM DEALER!

It pays to be particular . . .

Yes, this fact applies to yearbook covers. This is why we never overlook the smallest detail of color or finish, which adds to the beauty of your yearbook cover.

Acknowledgments to

John Vitovsky, who enabled us to complete the book, especially as the deadlines passed,

Fred Noer, for helping in the original planning and guidance in completion of the book,

Frank Persell, layout artist, for assisting in the original layouts and plans,

Ed Kase, for aiding in the selection of an appropriate cover,

Dr. Madison Kuhn, Michigan State historian, for the use of the historical photographs,

Alton Taube and Whitfield Deleplane, for special photographic assistance,

Wilbur Nelson, for special consideration in obtaining photographs,

Art Underwood, for creating the feature headlines and other help and guidance,

Bill McIlrath, our adviser, who encouraged and guided us when problems beset us, and also inspired us in the creation of a new format, and the many others who contributed their time and efforts to the 1956 Wolverine.
