the MSU Life

Through campus living MSU students Find expression for ideas and desires.

When the census-takers came to call this year, the thousands of residents of the dormitories and the Greek houses discovered that "home" had suddenly moved to East Lansing. Though the often cramped, seldom neat, yet never dull nooks into which many Spartans found themselves tucked were a far cry from natural habitats, nevertheless they provided the comfort and refuge that to us spelled home.

Late afternoon sunlight casts shadows on this sorority house, typical of the Greek houses on campus.

Although the east campus dorms are far from the Union, their proximity to classes makes them a convenient place for girls to live.

These fraternity men gather around the piano in the evening to sing fraternity songs, building the spirit which is the highlight of fraternity living.

Shaw Hall men gather around the TV to watch the Wisconsin-Minnesota game, upon which rode the Spartan's last chance for the Rosebowl.

Off-campus students enjoy the comforts and conveniences of life at home. Bruce Parsons, opposed by Carl Hosford and Wayne Parsons, grimly surveys the prospects for making his game contract.

Comforts of off-campus living ease the rigors of college life. Whether in approved or unapproved quarters an atmosphere more like home prevails. Individuals and groups forsake the university rules to lead the life they desire. Neatness may be a virtue acclaimed by MSU, but off-campus students may leave beds unmade, clothes strewn around and only close the door to hide the mess from the outside world.

The president of any large university can easily lose contact with the student population, but President John Hannah solved this predicament with the Spartan Round table. Inviting members to dinner twice each term, President Hannah and top administrators exchange and compare ideas with student leaders ranging from dorm presidents to publication editors. Opinions are voiced at an informal forum after dinner at which questions are asked, misunderstandings corrected and complaints heard.

Outside of the married housing units, the greatest concentration of married students is in Trailer Haven, conveniently located on Grand River next to Coral Gables.

Campus leaders and administrators meet together informally to talk over campus issues at the monthly Spartan Roundtable. Members select from the buffet line at this winter term meeting held in president Hannah's home.

Sessions of the model United Nations, which took definite shape this year, were held in the Kiva of the Education Building.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

The infamous canoeing act having been thrust into the past, the ROTC crisis shook MSU's political world and became the heated subject of debates at the All-University Student Government's weekly meetings.

In the ROTC issue Congress resolved for immediate changes that summer camp be lengthened, university courses be substituted for ROTC courses and a curriculum consultation between regular and ROTC faculty. Long range changes called for the elimination of compulsory ROTC and the establishment of required courses for all students, including the weaker sex, in military political affairs. Having made its resolutions, Congress could only sit back and await the final decision of the Board of Trustees in straightening out the ROTC chaos.

Finals were scrutinized by Congress and while the student politicians were unable to alleviate the mental pain, insomnia or coffee addiction that occurs, they made spring graduation the "end" for seniors. After re-scheduling: finals first, commencement second, was the order for seniors.

AUSG places their health insurance sales at the end of the hectic registration process each term.

Student Government supplies mimeograph services for the benefit of the student organizations.

Operating on fees of 25c a student each term, AUSG demonstrated its financial wizardry by the numerous services that it performs.

Arms were bravely and cheerfully bared as AUSG again provided polio shots at a nominal cost. Clubs thanked the governing body for the free mimeographing service and student organizations directory.

Internationally, AUSG struck out into various fields. Financial support was given to the campus United Nations under the sponsorship of the Junior Council and the International Club, and an International cooperation committee was set up.

Benefits of financial planning were passed on to the students with the continuation of the student loan and insurance programs. Loans of $10, limited to two a term, could be obtained by any student. Extra money, in the form of dividends, went to those unlucky enough to be in accidents, yet lucky enough to have a student insurance policy.

Spring found the elections committee busy as the campaigns for class officers and AUSG officers got under way. The committee is responsible for handling the entire elections—petitions, ballots and tabulation—to assure a fair election.

Movie star John Gavin came to MSU to record Spartan cheers for the sound track of his new movie, "Spartacus". Campus Chest received a contribution for organizing the event.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

State News night editor Jane Wackerbarth discusses local news with a staffer, while assistant Linda Hoover and editor-in-chief Mary Huff work in the background.

Typewriters clacked, pictures snapped, shouts of despair, and occasionally of glee were uttered as Pub Row members collaborated, created and cried to meet deadlines.

Evenings are a hub of activity at Student Services when editors and staffers realize that a paper, magazines and a yearbook must be put out. The high turnover of future journalists, due to grade point averages, is evidence of this continual frenzy.

Major editors and business managers are chosen by the Board of Publications which supervises all student publications. Selection of staffs and determination of editorial and business policies are then made by the board appointees for their respective publications.

When the end of spring term finally arrived, the entire staff of the Wolverine breathed a sigh of relief as the book was unveiled. The venture, entailing 365 days, is an undertaking of monstrous proportions requiring an energetic and responsible staff.

The action began fall term when the pictures of over 216 organizations were taken, and the process of identifying over 20,000 students commenced. Writers scurried around finding information to fill the endless copy blocks.

Succumbing to the high cost of living, the 1960 Wolverine upped its price to $7. With the additional dollar the editors included more color, eliminated advertising and still remained self-supporting.

Jim Myiat and Otis Patrick, "MSU Veterinarian" business manager and associate editor, talk over finances for the term.

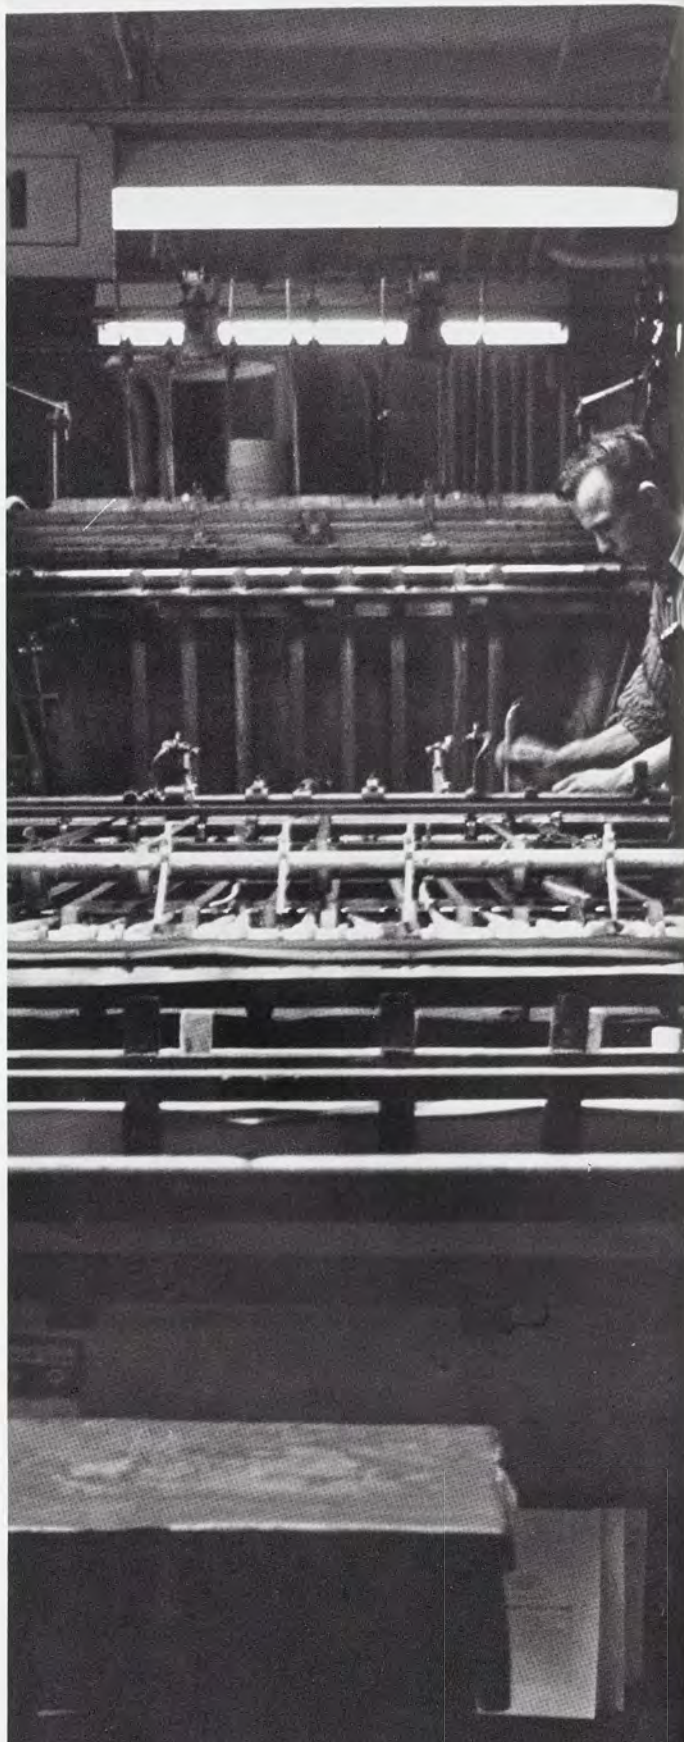

With the spring term appointments the coeds finally conquered a man's world and captured the "State News" top offices—the editor-in-chief, managing editor and city editor.

Always displaying initiative, the campus daily celebrated George Washington's birthday by running a picture of the one dollar bill. The perfections of the engraving and the clearness of the reprint caused some consternation as to whether the FBI would make a quick visit to MSU.

In the magazine field, the "Spartan" turned literary. Humor was sublimated to the exploration of the world of fine arts. Winning its first All-American rating last year, the "Spartan" maintained its high caliber and increased its circulation slightly.

The "Spartan Engineer's" face was uplifted by the incorporation of typography principles as journalism became more thoroughly integrated with engineering. Personality was injected by editorials on current engineering problems.

Co-editors for the first time assumed the responsibilities of the "Veterinarian" magazine. Serving MSU, it also has an international circulation.

A printer from Speaker-Hines & Thomas, Inc. works on the "Wolverine", one of the many MSU publications printed by the company.

Director of Student Publications William McIlrath, known to us as Mac, is a familiar figure in the offices of Pub Row.

Paul Rivas, Ron English, Susan Johnson, business manager Lorie Osiecki, and editor Tom Gatten of the Spartan discuss possible articles for the January issue.

Abandoning typewriters and beatsheets for the afternoon, Lushwell AC, the Pub Row "athletic club," cut loose at their spring term picnic.

Lushwell, maintaining the time-honored tradition of playing AUSG in football, suffered defeat in their annual game.

All Pub Row workers are members of the infamous organization, Lushwell athletic club, which is imitated widely by others.

Lushwell AC, long known as the leader in football and the champion of all collegiate sports, was upset by an obscure team named Student Government at the Shovel Bowl, due to an unforeseen circumstance—the politicians practiced.

Edged by a slight margin of 26-12, the Lushes made a valiant try to topple the stooges, but lost in the second half when Stupid Goobernut put in a string of players believed to be professionals.

Thirsting for attention, the Lushes awaited patiently the spring picnic. At a secret site, Pub Row staffers passed a serene afternoon, the only excitement being a few intramural games.

A day of rest and recognition for the journalists is the Publications Banquet where awards are presented to staffers. The coveted Hoffman oilcan trophy went to the Veterinarian magazine for the third straight year. A skit satirizing MSU earned them the "oilcan."

From counseling clinic to commencement, Study provides a constant challenge.

The counselors' table at registration is continually busy making changes of courses for students to eliminate those last minute conflicts.

To each, the necessary confusion of registration each term was found to be but the prerequisite to the purpose of Michigan State – that of a thorough and fine education. To each, academic stimulus was applied and received in a different way, to be channeled to a specific purpose. But the ultimate goal is always the same: to create an educated and cultured individual.

Accepting, rejecting or ignoring ideas, concepts, theories and facts of the past, present and future is part of a student's academic role in the search for knowledge and truth.

Incoming freshmen have a chance to become acquainted with MSU's educational diversity at summer counseling clinics. At their first introduction to college life, the future students are advised by faculty members about the wide variety of majors available. With the aid of entrance test results, advisers constructively help students.

Arriving on campus, students, new and old, meet with academic advisers for guidance in choosing courses. Spirited discussions arise as to the merits of that class or this instructor. Of course, an instructor's grading system is thoroughly talked over for the students who want a snap course.

A group of students attending one of the summer Counseling Clinics for incoming freshmen meet in the Kiva of the Education Building.

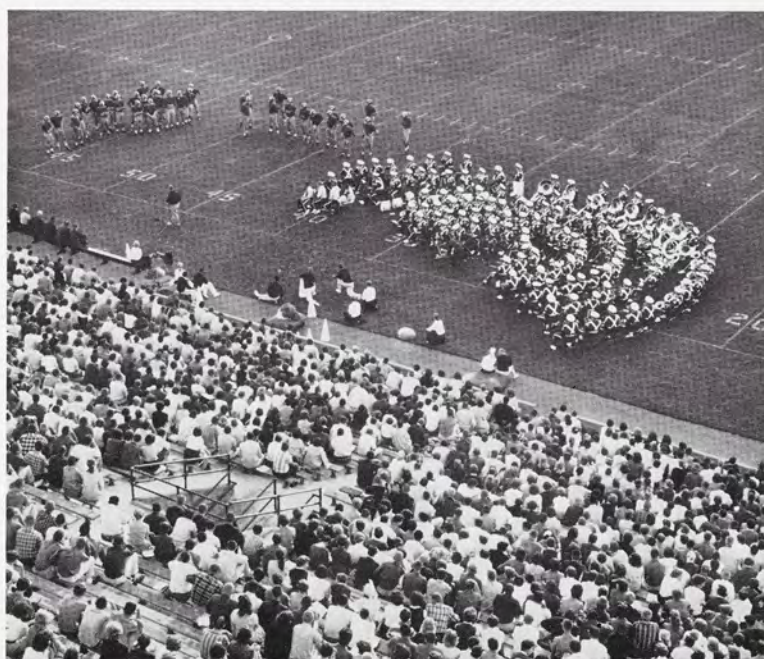

Freshman Nancy Heiss discusses her college plans with Thomas Goodrich of the Counseling Center. The services of the Center are the basis of the freshman orientation program.

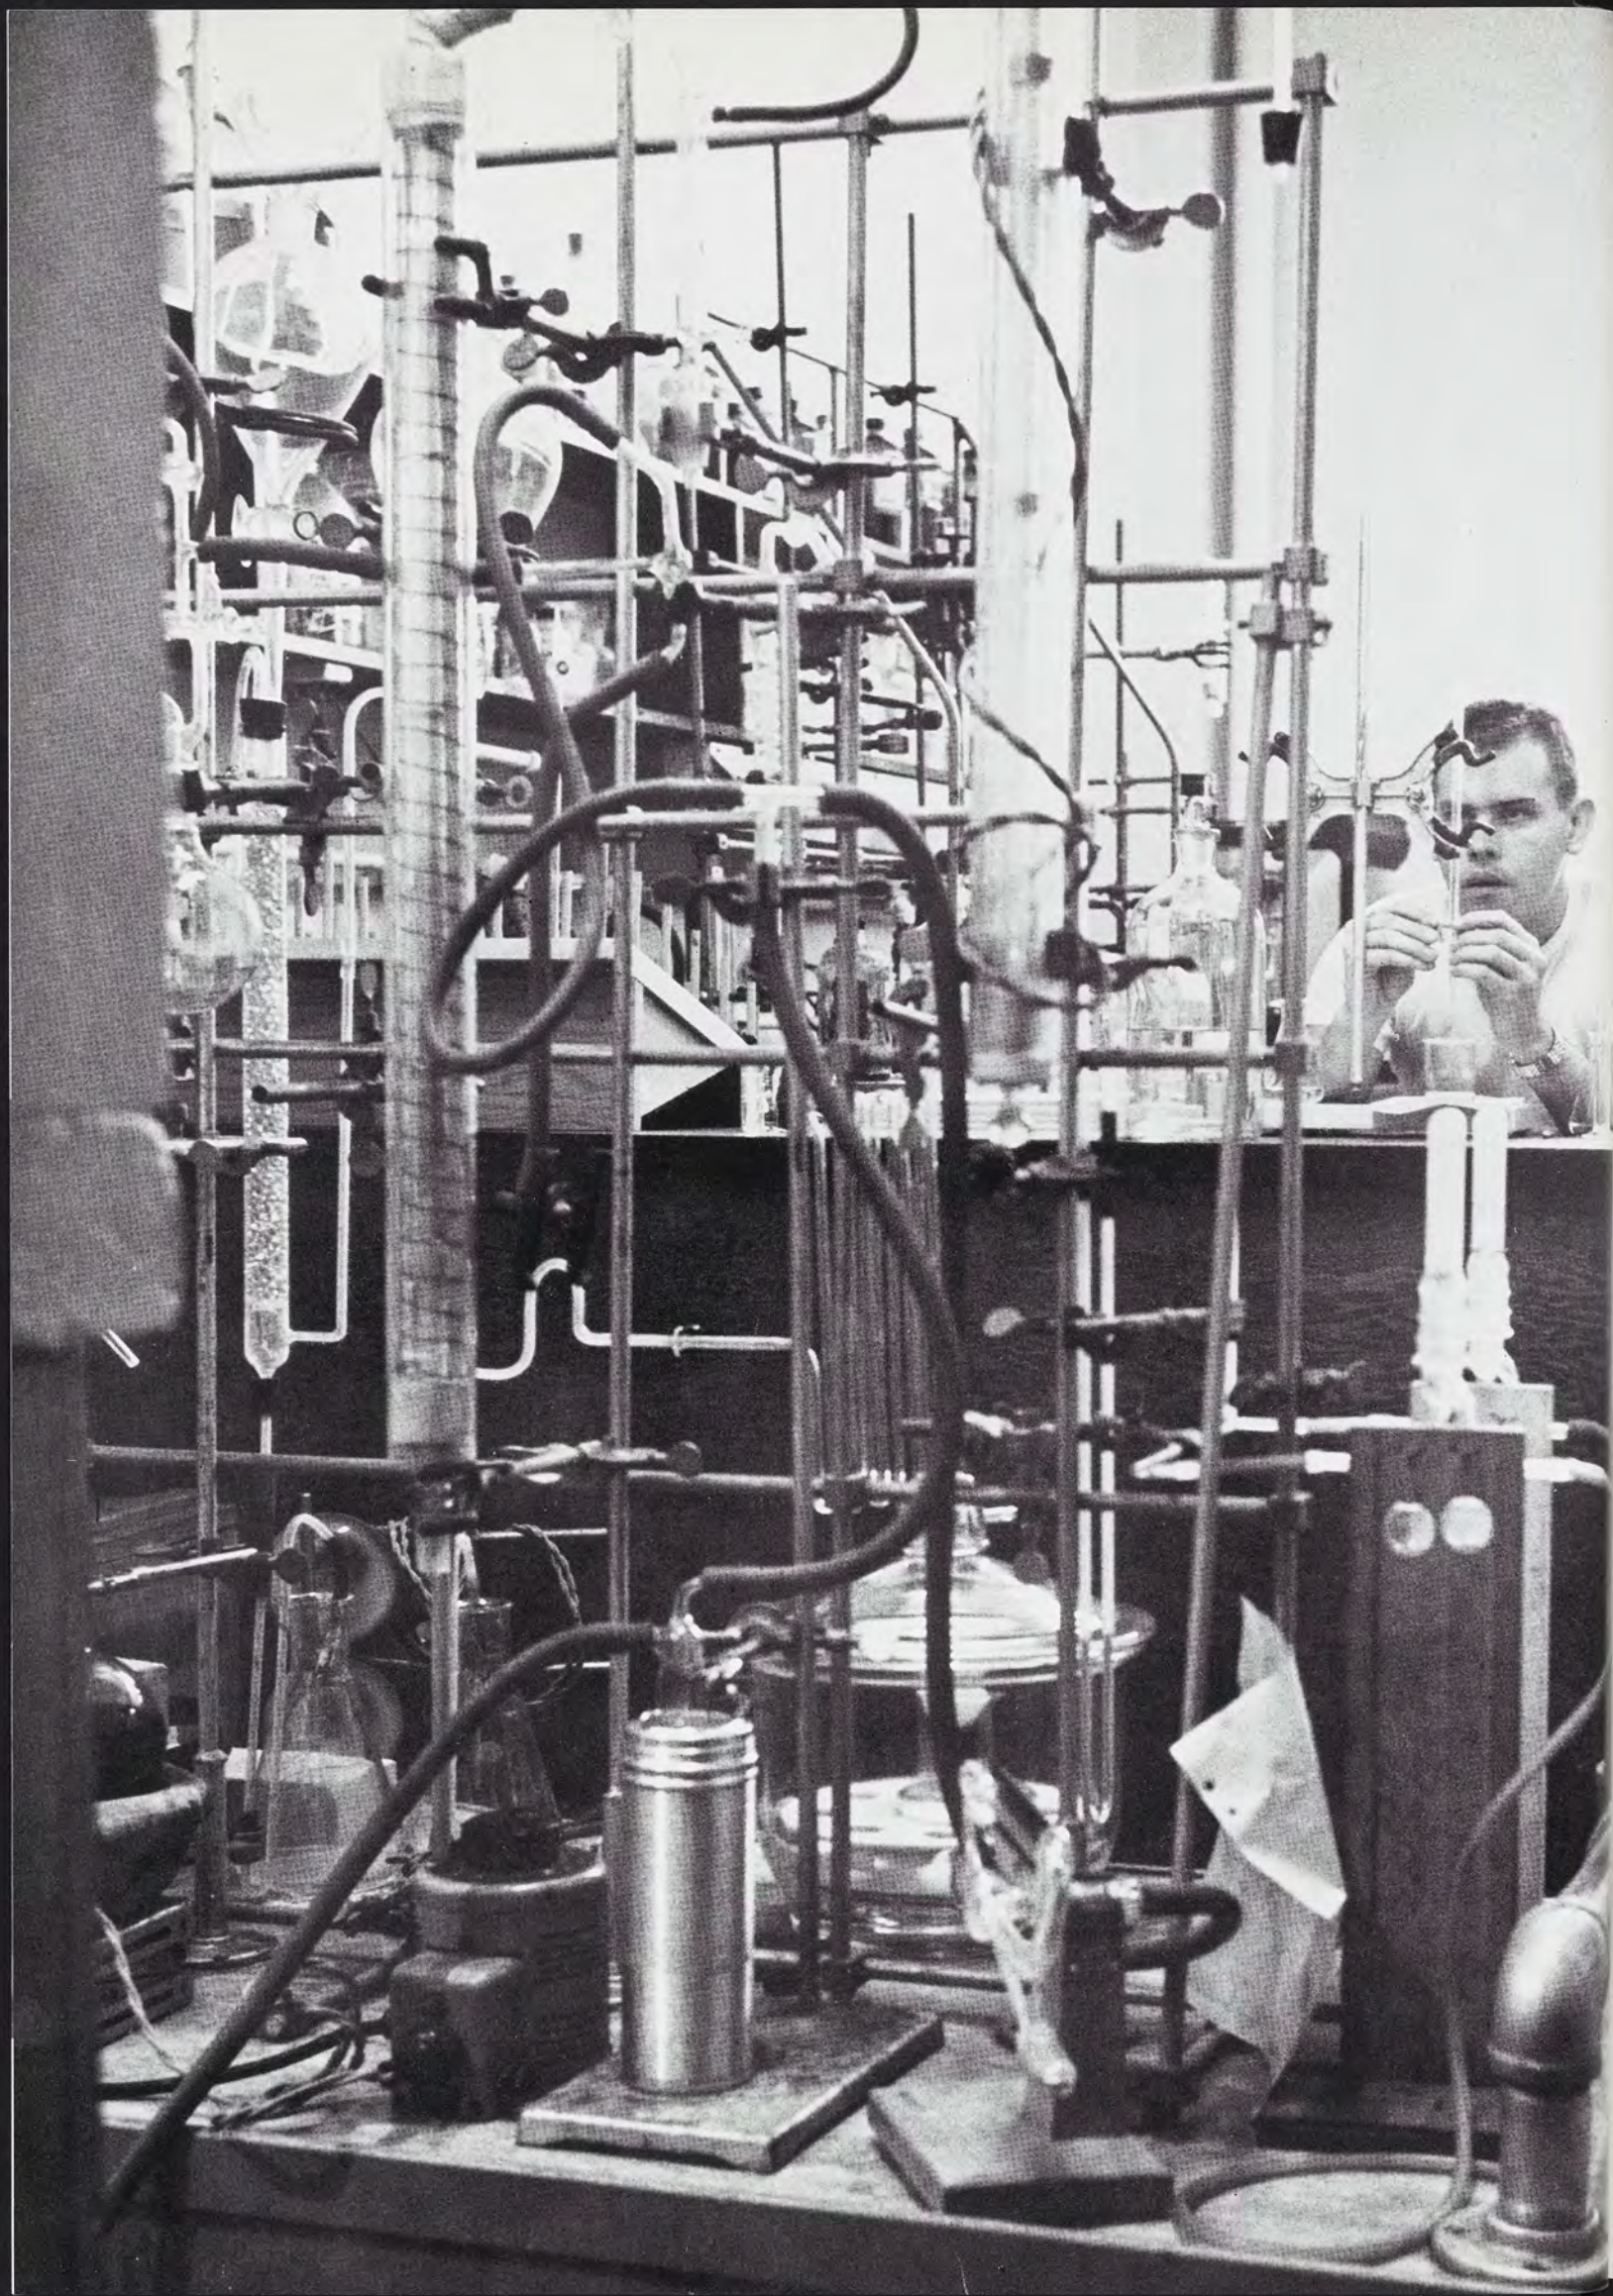

When a class section is closed, as indicated by the numbers showing, students grapple with open schedule books in an attempt to find an alternative section.

Fans turn out "en Masse" for the "Meet the Team" pep rally, held to acquaint the freshmen with the football team.

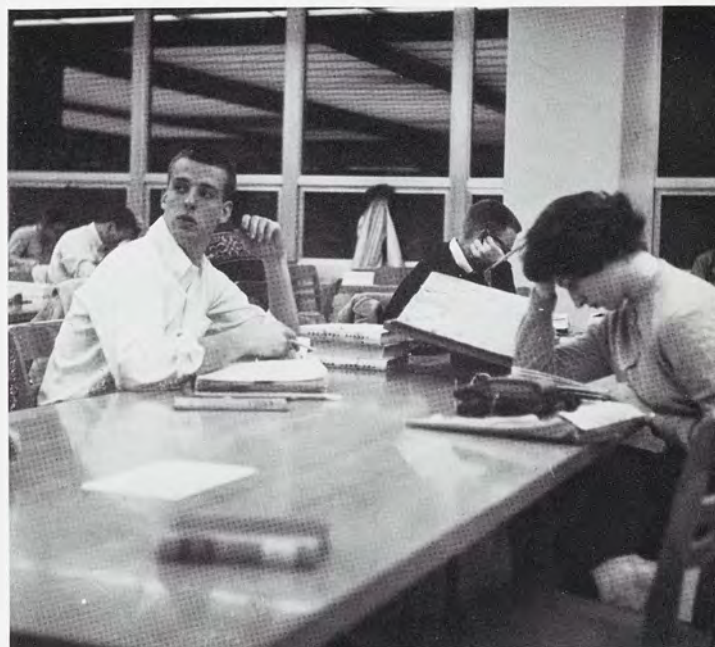

The apparent confusion of a chemistry laboratory typifies the problems of students as they strive to learn in all their courses.

From the first class of communication skills to the last course of their senior year, students are faced with a challenge which is met only by diligent study and critical thinking.

The courses were stiffer this year; the instructors, harder; the material, fascinating; and the library suffered the repercussions of this academic toughening. As the doors swung open each term, students stood waiting to enter. Seats were at a premium as well as assigned reading books. Sitting amidst carelessly thrown coats, with glasses hurriedly thrust on, students delved into the term's work.

When the week of finals arrived, sandwiches were hastily eaten in the library so as not to waste a precious moment of study time. As students left for that 3:45 final on the last day, they glanced around the emptying library and grinned at the few remaining bookworms who had a 7 to 9 exam.

When spring fever hits, students find it hard to concentrate on books, even in the library.

During fall and spring terms, classes meeting on the banks of the Red Cedar are a familiar sight.

Two students work on the preliminary layout plans for a landscape architecture project.

Hours weren't spent just in the library. Classrooms and laboratories received their share of academic endeavor. Students at all levels were occupied, from nat sci to involved experiments of analytical research.

When spring arrives, some classes move outdoors as spring fever hits everyone including instructors. Textbooks and classroom lectures are supplemented by nature's lore.

Aiming for that snap course, students often select courses which require no textbook and find themselves confronted with a subject which requires "doing." Both coeds and college joes master the techniques of drawing instruments in mechanical drawing, architecture or interior decorating classes.

A familiar sight in the Union grill is the "scholar," intently studying amid the blare of the jukebox and the incessant chatter of the "grillhounds".

Beyond the confines of outside reading assignments and no-lunch class days lies the world of relaxation. The rare free moments of leisure provide an escape from the often hum-drum life of the student. A concert, a stroll through the brilliance of autumn, an art exhibit, a few hands of bridge, or simply doing nothing at all assume tremendous importance. These are the moments to remember.

Leisure moments provide the key To understanding through recreation.

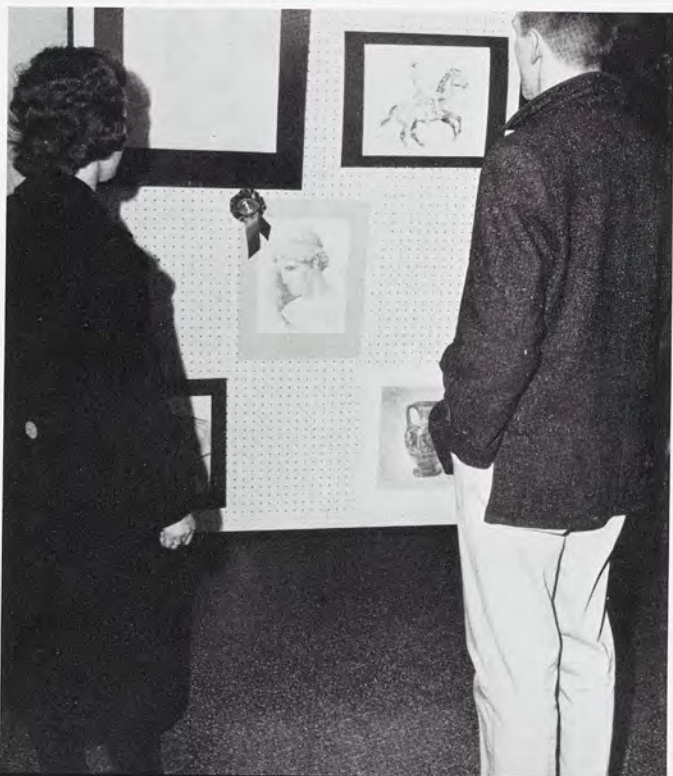

A highly-praised production of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" was staged winter term by the University Players.

John Mason and Ron English play for a jazz group which staged a show during Activities Carnival.

Aside from the regular Art Room, the Union concourse and lounge are periodically the site of exhibits. This couple admires the prize-winning display of an MSU art student.

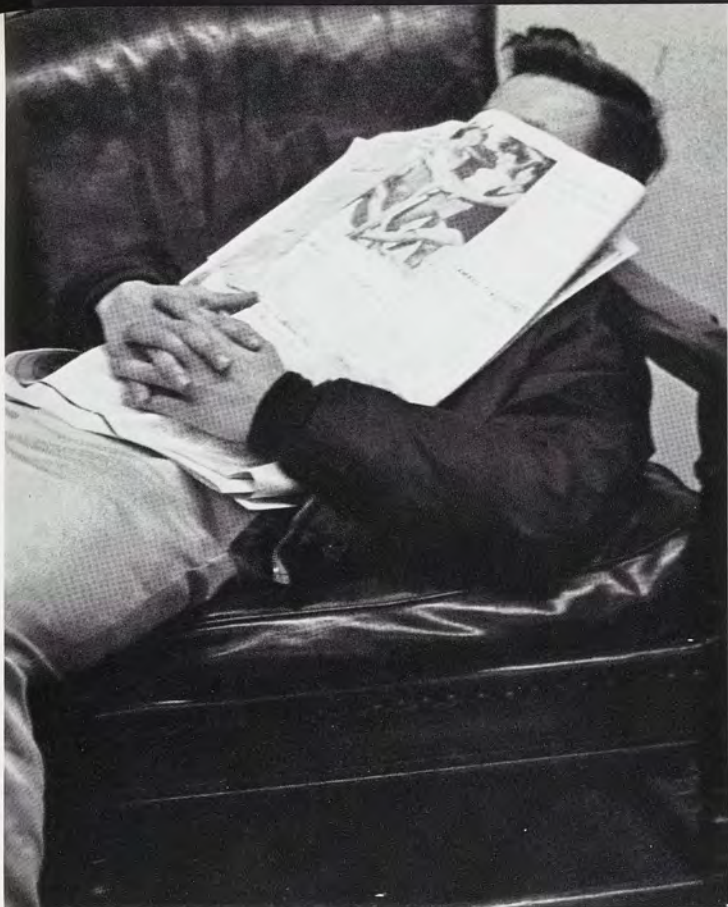

In those few spare moments of college days, in time snatched from studying, writing home, working, washing or just plain daydreaming, students relax and follow individual pursuits.

The Union, especially the grill, is constantly bustling with students. Some chat, others sit in a listless stupor over coffee cups, while a few seriously discuss Hegel's philosophy or Marx's dialectic theory.

The Red Cedar, when it isn't overflowing, has a cult of worshippers. Winter ice skaters follow its winding curves and spring canoers wend their way up the river. Its banks with secluded spots are nice for private talks.

Playing the role of spectators, students cheer the teams at various athletic events, participate in carnivals, attend lectures or carefully scrutinize exhibits.

The lounge in the basement of Student Services, with its couches and numerous concession machines, is a quiet and comfortable place to "study".

"Anyone for bridge? Under the table please — we're in the Union Grill."

Spring term turns the Red Cedar into a hub of activity. The ducks willingly share their home with the canoers who fill the river.

Each weekday morning, a stack of the State News is delivered to the main buildings on campus. These students read the paper on the steps of student services.

Students willing to brave the weather make the Red Cedar a playground in winter as well as in summer.

With eight inches of snow on the campus, daring swimmers Mel Hackel, Dan Jamieson, and Bill Jamieson, took a nice cool dip in the IM pool early in March.

Warm June sunshine, the background murmur of the river, the joy of close companionship: This is spring term at MSU.

Far from the hub-hub of the never-ending class-and-study routine Spartans found relaxation and recreation by various and sundry means.

Coffee-lovers had their day every day as grill-hounds and Kewpeeites sought refuge from foul weather and fair through the established medium of coffee, cigarettes, and conversation.

The browsing room of the Union, the varied spectrum of art exhibits at Kresge, and the many athletic facilities were but a few of the activities which claimed the leisure moments of Michigan State students.

Whether, singly, in pairs, or in groups, the Spartan spirit demanded a search for fun, no matter what the weather or hour. But no matter where or when it might be found, the consensus generally was that the Michigan State life is a good life.

Spending their spare time at leisure, a couple studies a display of the Midwest Designer Craftsmen, who exhibited their work in Kresge spring term.

Between 2 and 3 p.m., the Morrill Hall crowd floods Kewpees, and heated discussion ranges from Beowulf to E. E. Cummings.

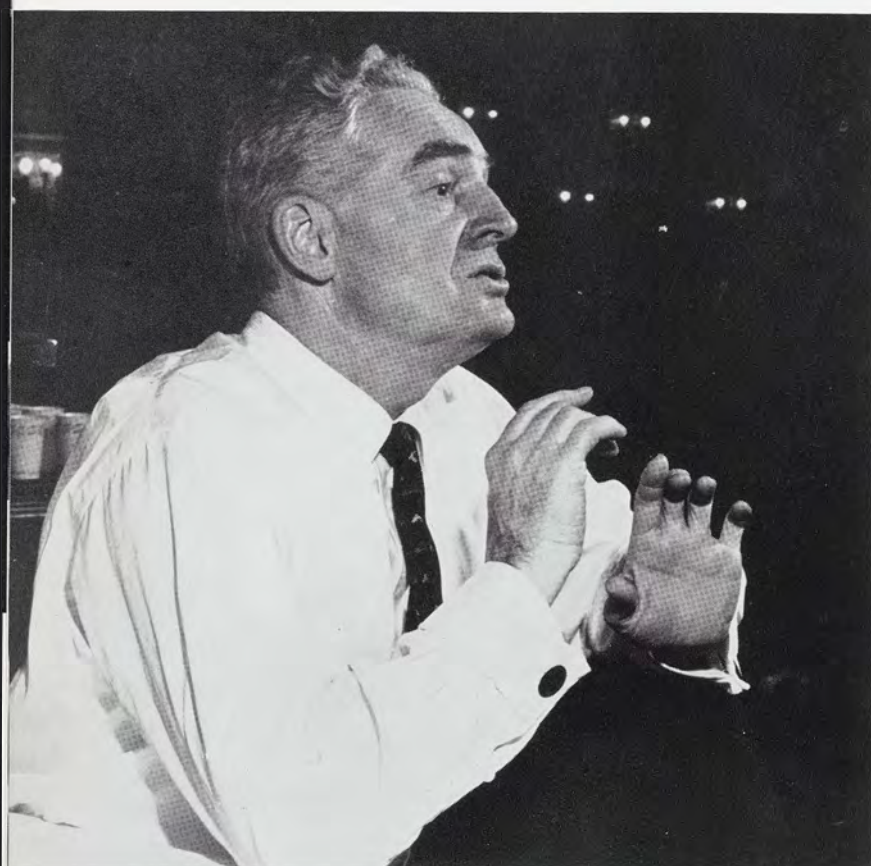

Preparing for those ski weekends "up North," a member of the MSU Ski Club practices some stunts on the small hill near the Men's IM building.

Students go to the Union Browning Room between classes or on weekends to relax with a recent magazine or a newspaper.

The New York City Opera cast portrays an incident from "Street Scene."

The stage antics of Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians sent a full house into gales of laughter. Waring was one of the favorite L-C performers of the year.

With little expense students sampled the cultures of different countries via the internationally-oriented Lecture-Concert series.

An ID would admit students to most events. An evening with Fred Waring cost undergraduates only a picture. Discount rates were available for the "specials" such as the Moscow State Symphony.

The Lecture-Concert Series is under the direction of Dr. Wilson Paul who operates on a budget of over $100,000.

An awed hush filled the auditorium as the moving voice of Carl Sandburg told his own story of "Chicago."

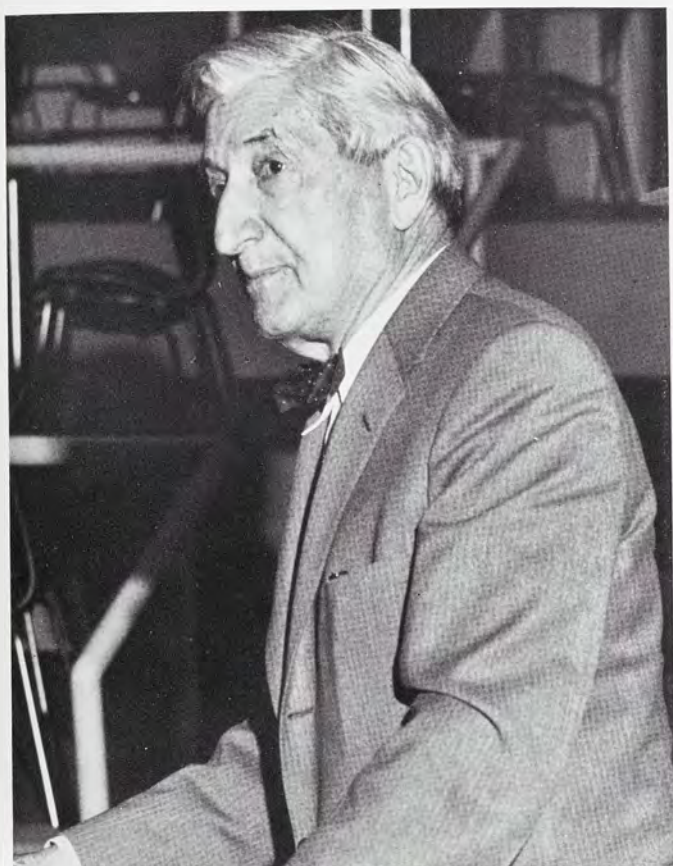

The Takarazuka Dance Theatre blended the east and west as they brought the Orient to MSU. In America, fresh from European triumphs and a widely heralded screen appearance in Cinerama's "Seven Wonders of the World," the group captivated the audience with Japanese folk dances.

Although the music maintained its Japanese flavor, it had been orchestrated into Western arrangements, utilizing a full complement of strings, horns, brass, wind and percussion instruments.

Students and paying customers were turned away as throngs of viewers packed the Auditorium to hear Carl Sandburg speak, philosophize and sing. The prize winning poet, historian and biographer presented a program of folk songs, stories and readings from his own poetry, unfolding the magic and majesty of American folklore.

Mark Twain was here! Memories of the hours spent with Huck Finn, Tom Sawyer and others came alive as Hal Holbrook brought back the humorist in "Mark Twain Tonight."

The Series, which first brought ballet to Michigan, presented the Chicago Opera Ballet this year. Dance productions included the "The Merry Widow," "Revenge," "Carmen", "Camille" and works from their standard repertoire.

Wilbur Snow, New England poet and philosopher, read his works in the Kiva as a part of the L-C series.

A ballerina from the Chicago Opera Ballet runs through her routine before the evening performance.

Dr. Wilson Paul, head of the Lecture-Concert series, greets the charming and graceful Takarazuka dancers from Japan.

Music was written to be fun, and it was with Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians in Stereo Festival.

Parodies of the classics and of show business were combined for the first time in musical and stage history in a live performance with a stereophonic sound system.

People laughed at the hilarious jokes of Waring and the pranks and animated characterizations of his accompanists.

Viewers arriving later blushed scarlet when Waring had the spotlight flashed on them.

The face of Konstantin Ivanof, conductor of the Moscow Symphony, expresses the emotional tone of the orchestra's music. The concert was one of many on the orchestra's first tour of this country.

Carl Sandburg, the inspiring old man of poetry, greets eager and admiring fans after his performance.

The top ranking orchestra of the USSR, the Moscow State Symphony, made its appearance here in January. The orchestra which has rarely played outside its home was touring North America under a cultural exchange agreement.

The Lamoureux Orchestra from Paris with Igor Markevitch, conductor, included MSU in its first American tour.

The foremost violin virtuoso, Yehundi Menuhin, was another newcomer to MSU.

Favorites, oldtimers at MSU, were the New York City Opera Company and the Canadian Players. Two American operas, "The Ballad of Baby Doe" and "Street Scene," were presented by the New York group. Anton Chekov's play, "The Cherry Orchard," was enacted by the Canadians.

Besides the regular season concert program, students may attend the foreign film series and the World Travel series.

Culture, plus entertainment, is readily available.

The University Players hold their final dress rehearsal on the winter term production, "Tiger at the Gates."

Broadway fever spread across MSU as stage-struck students practiced and prepared for the year's theatricals.

Highlighting the season were the term plays, "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "Tiger at the Gates" and "Darkness at Noon."

Gingerbread men, angels and witches roamed the campus as the rehearsals began for the musical version of "Hansel and Gretel." The operetta which ended the 1959-1960 season was co-sponsored by the departments of speech and music.

Theta Alpha Phi, the dramatics honorary, staged an original drama, "Face of A Stranger," written by an MSU graduate. "No Exit" was presented by the group as a reading.

With eyes popping, children saw an animated fantasyland at Children's Theatre productions. Children themselves performed plays under the direction of drama students at Toy Shop Theater. Pied Pipers over-ran Lansing as the budding actors rehearsed for "The Pied Piper Of Hamelin."

Members of Theta Alpha Phi dramatics honorary give a reading in Studio Theatre in the basement of the Auditorium. They use no stage costumes and a minimum of scenery.

Through the miracle of makeup, the typical Joe College can be transformed into an old man, a bearded noble, or a fierce tyrant.

Card playing became a serious business for the competitors in the bridge tournament sponsored by Union Board.

The Union bowling alley, a favorite recreation spot, is a hubbub of people and noise throughout the school year.

Getting their first taste of college life, these freshmen counseling clinic students find the Union cigarette counter to be convenient and almost necessary.

What'll you have? A Stinger? A Pink Lady? Or maybe an Old Fashioned? Perhaps you'd prefer Tequila? The members of Union Board waved these tantalizing offers in front of the students, tempting them to quench their thirst during Union Board week. In this traditional winter term event this organization served up such treats as a fashion show, a jazz concert, an art exhibit, a dance, and even a variety show, all fitting in with the theme, "What'll You Have?" Each event had as its symbol a fitting drink.

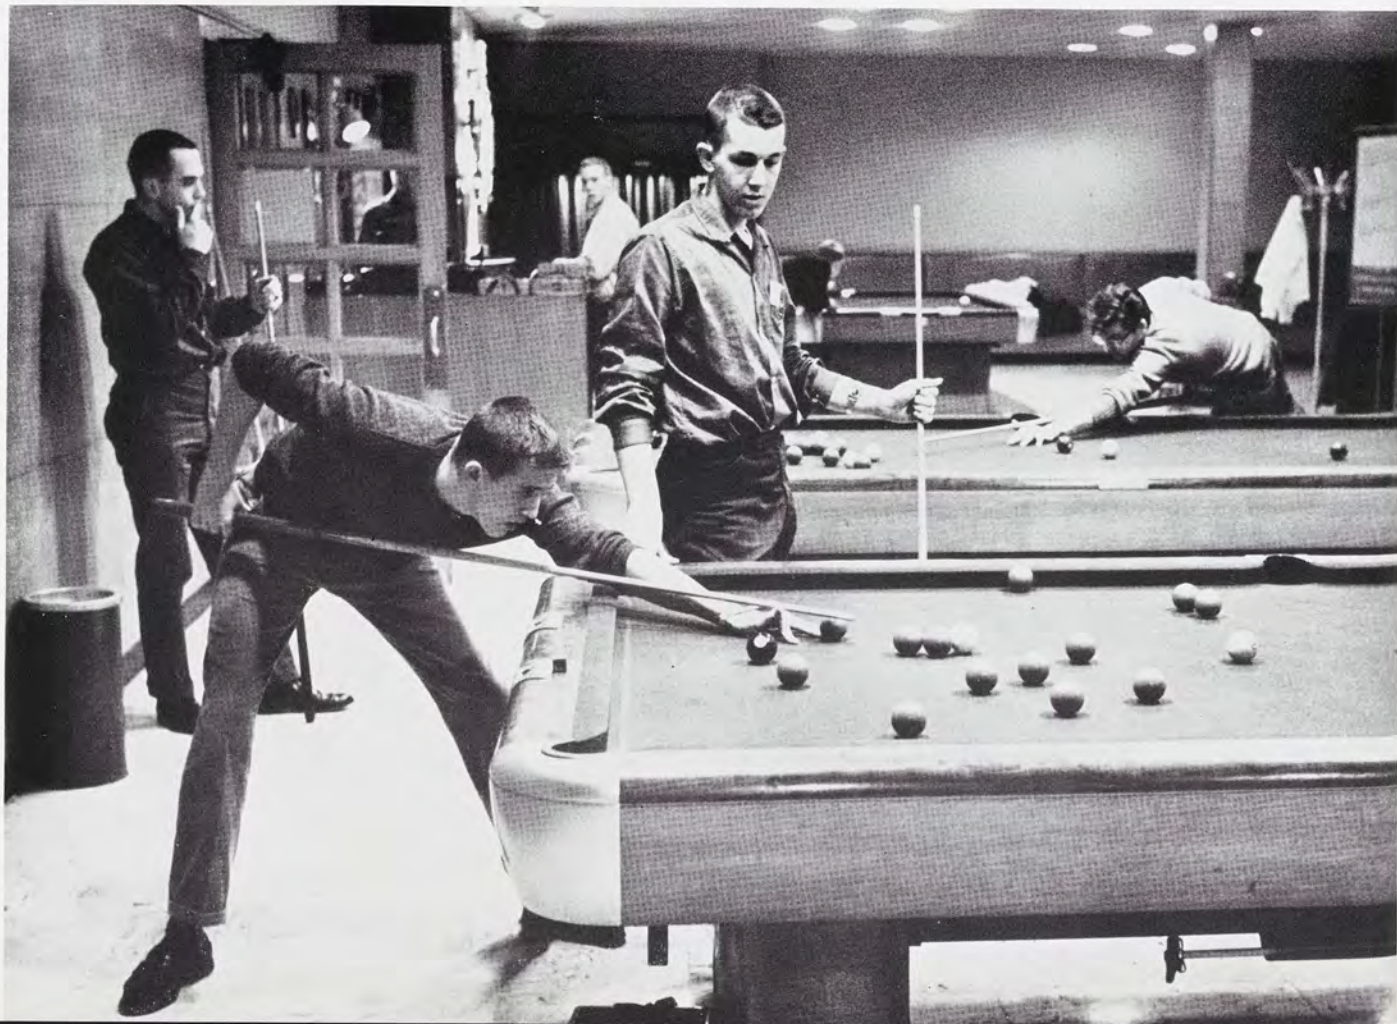

Organizing this special week of activities is only one of the jobs which Union Board undertakes as the coordinator of all cultural, recreational and social events held in the Union Building. The 125 member body also takes on such tasks as offering bridge, chess and bowling for the students.

Its ride bureau is often a welcome relief for both those students who need a ride home and those who are looking for riders. The Union Board offers typing service through its typing bureau. Their talent bureau can also come under this same heading of services.

Dancing is a year-round activity in the Union. This year, the Union Board sponsored dance instruction as well as weekly dances.

Skill, friendly competition, and sex segregation mark the Union billiard games. Coeds have not yet penetrated this recreational activity.

Throughout the year the Union Board offers a rich fine arts program including speakers, exhibits and movies. Spring term they expanded their fine arts program to even greater depth by including a forum committee operating around the theme, "The Greatest Issue of Our Time." Each term this committee will pick a vital issue and invite outstanding speakers to lecture on the topic from the viewpoint of their particular field.

The forum committee got under way spring term with the civil rights issue as the topic. This issue was discussed from the psychological, economic and political viewpoints at a series of weekly lectures.

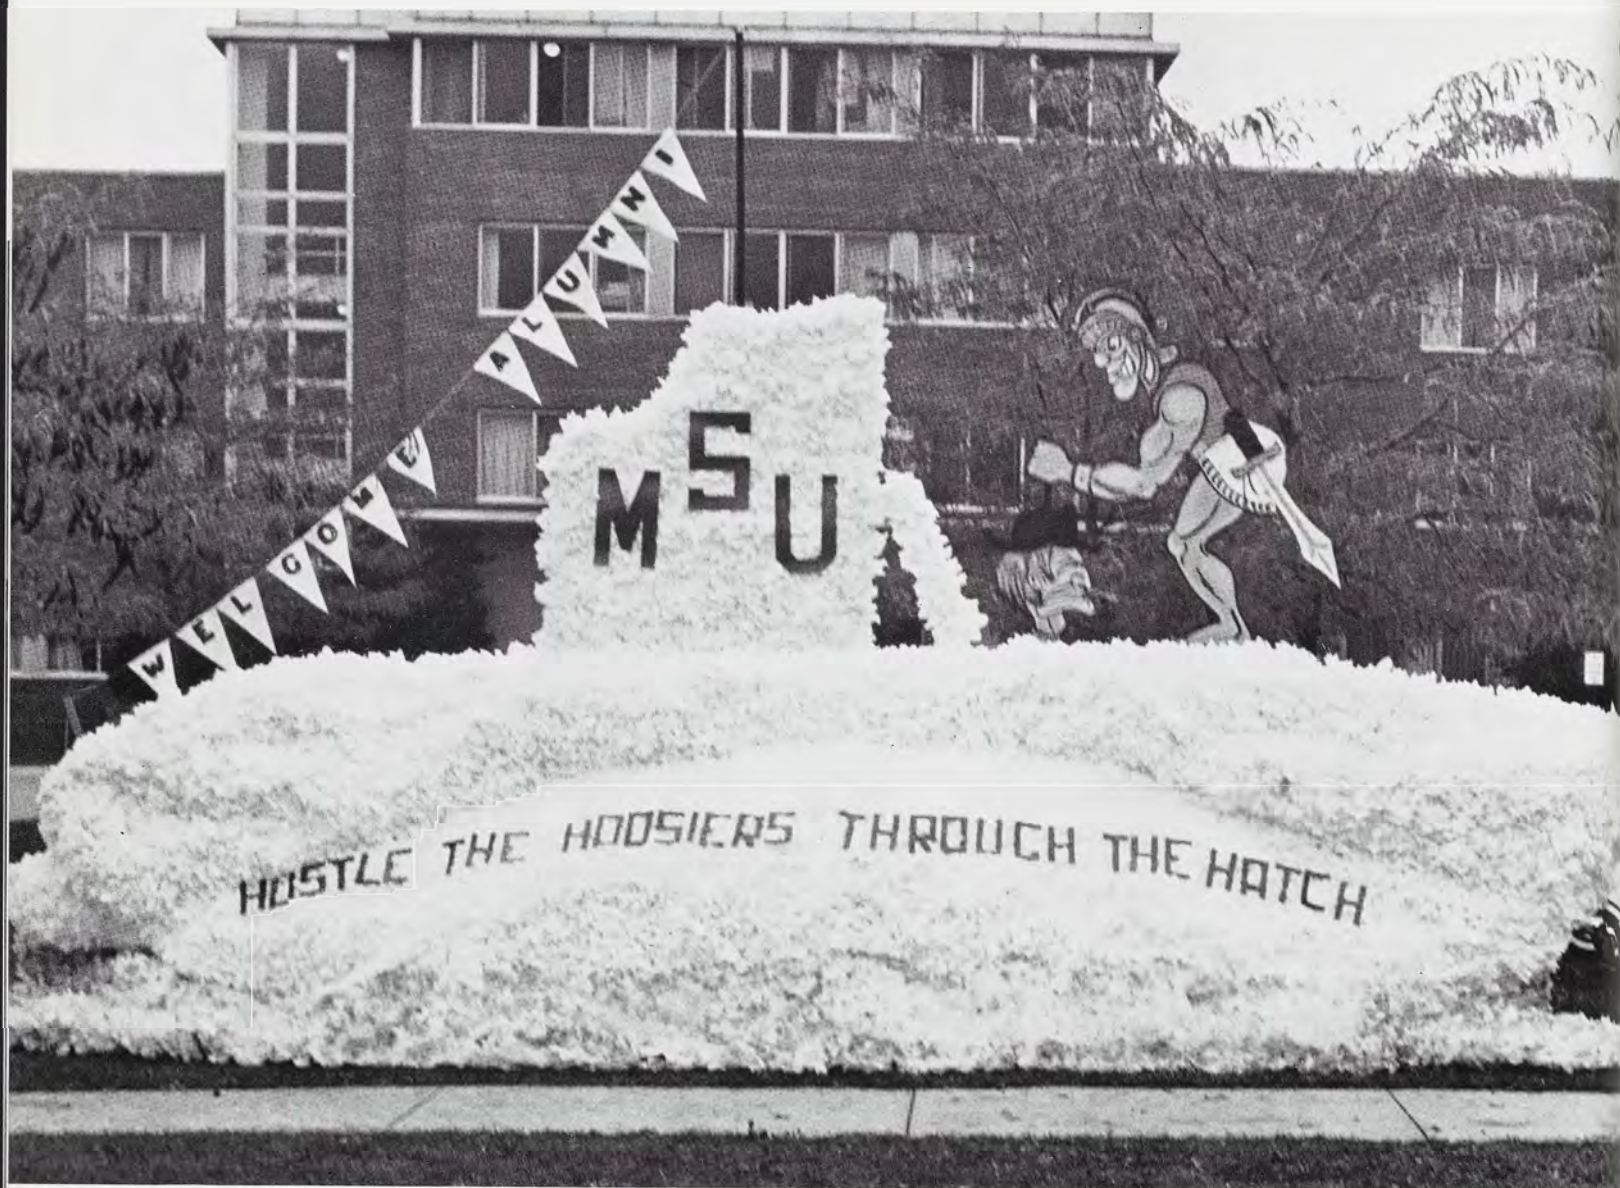

All of these Union Board activities are carried out by students who gain membership by petition and rush during winter term. The Board of Directors, the governing body, is made up of 13 members elected by the previous board. On it are eight committee heads, two members-at-large and three officers. These members of the Board conduct the activities throughout the year.

A "beat" hams it up for a Union Board special event held during Union Board week winter term.

U-Bettes, the Union Board chorus line, staged a special show during Union Board Week.

The first place Homecoming display for the men's dorms stands before victorious West Shaw Hall.

The long hours of work spent on the Gilchrist dorm display were made well worthwhile by a first place trophy.

Cloudy skies and drizzling rains failed to dim MSU's 50th Homecoming as thousands of grads wound their way back to their alma mater to cheer the Spartans on to a 14-6 victory over Indiana.

MSU won the football clash and also the mascot clash. During the football game the Indiana mascot, a fierce looking bulldog, trotted out on the field, but Sparty proved the dog's downfall as the massive head frightened the animal back to homeground.

As the alumni greeted former classmates, the classes of 1960, 61, 62, and 63 burned the electricity into the wee hours to put final touches on the Homecoming displays. Industriousness and ingenuity, seldom presented in classes, were regarded as Gilchrist, West Shaw, Zeta Tau Alpha and Delta Tau Delta captured first place in their respective divisions.

The Homecoming dance, presided over by Queen Joan Kane, climaxed the wet but victorious weekend.

Frequently men and women students team up to work on the displays, making the project as much fun as it is work, as these ZTA's and dates produce the winning sorority display.

Delta Tau Delta's display, "Victory in the Balance," tipped the judges' decision in their favor, and they were awarded a first place trophy.

To put a little fun in their lives, students went dancing, from mixers to term parties and all-university affairs. Glamour appeared on campus as fancy dresses and dark suits replaced the customary uniform of sneakers, wool sox and trench coats.

The auditorium floor received a workout fall term as the couples did the rumba, cha-cha and rock and roll at the Harvest Ball, Homecoming dance and the Coronation Ball.

Sophistication prevailed at MSU the night of "Jour de Fete," the 1960 J-Hop. Lester Lanin and his high society band headlined the only formal all-university dance of the year.

Man climbed upon the pedestal as woman stepped down during turn-about week which ended with the Spinsters' Spin, "Night of Knights," with music by Tommy Dorsey.

A guest at "Holiday In Hades," the Hotel Association's dance, receives a glass of punch straight from the devil.

Although this year's J-Hop, Jour de Fete, fell short of expectations in attendance, many autograph hounds sought out Lester Lanin to add his signature to already-filled dance programs.

High points of the "Spinster Spin," the only turn-about dance of the year, were the announcement of Chick Chickering as Mr. MSU and the awarding of prizes for the best corsages.

The MSU Vets ran a popular display at fall term's Activities Carnival held in the Spartan Stadium Concourse.

Interested students talk over career opportunities with a Navy representative at Career Carnival held fall term in the Union.

Carnivals, circuses and festivals are part of the American heritage and part of MSU's heritage. Ringling brothers may have closed down, but Spartan roustabouts still plan and stage the annual university affairs.

"Moosic mit Max" set the theme for the 12th Activities Carnival where organizations publicized their merits. Arturo Maximini, the mythical musician and mascot of the carnival, strolled from booth to booth along with crowds of students, receiving free cigarettes from the Vets Association and participating in a Young Republican primary election.

Admission was free, but the rewards were invaluable as students wandered through the Career Carnival, "Blueprint for the Future." More than 70 companies answered the queries of prospective employees. Special exhibits included IBM's mechanical "Brain" and a 23-foot missile from Bendix Aviation Company.

MSU's polyglot population took the spotlight during the International Festival. Students viewed national costumes, arts and crafts, music and dancing from different countries at the festival.

With the drop of the starter's checkered flag, eight chugging micro-midget race cars scooted off around the 50-lap curved course to open the ninth annual Engineering Exposition. Visitors gathered to watch engineers participate in the MSU classic sponsored by the Engineering Council.

Powered by a two-horsepower lawnmower engine, the racers reached straightaway speeds of 25-40 mph. The course which was shortened this year, had more curves, requiring more skill from the drivers and giving more thrills to spectators.

Winner of the race was Dave Nokes in the jet black American Society of Mechanical Engineers' car which had been entered in previous races.

Visitors to this year's Engineering Exposition saw a variety of new displays keyed primarily to electronics. A radar set, similar to those used by police to catch speedsters, enabled observers to clock the speed of cars going by the front of Olds Hall.

Displays of missile units and simulated testing situations as well as testing devices used by the U.S. Patent Office were set up.

The civil engineering display set up by the Highway Traffic Center won the coveted Dean's Trophy for the outstanding departmental exhibit.

Queen Judy Peters reigned over the Exposition and presented awards to the winners of the student exhibits at the May Hop.

Exhibits in the Engineering Exposition competed for cash prizes and for honor. The exhibits were judged on their originality, engineering application, and the student's presentation. Engineering corporations also set up displays for public interest.

Homemade midget cars occasionally hit the retaining bales on fast turns at spring term's Engineering Exposition.

Countless hours of planning and labor go into the production of the Engineering Exposition, which spreads over much of the campus. This Nike exhibit is always popular.

Amidst wild cheering, an Asher man pushes an Alpha Phi across the finish line for a 1st place in Lambda Chi Alpha's Junior 500.

While the cars roared around the laps at the Indianapolis 500 Memorial Day, carts rumbled around West Circle Drive at MSU's Jr. 500.

The miniature of the Indianapolis race, planned by Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, shatters the peacefulness of spring term. Day and night the humming sounds of the carts' wheels are heard as runners and drivers practice.

West Shaw claimed the winner's circle for the men's division as they finished the mile-long course in 3.06 minutes. Driven by a slim coed and pushed by the men of Asher House, Alpha Phi grabbed a share of the laurels by placing first for women.

Alpha Gamma Delta sang their way to first place with "Mick McGilligan's Ball" at Sorority Sing and opened the annual Greek Week. Titled "Fit for the Gods," the affair honored a particular Greek deity each day. The sing honored Aphrodite, goddess of love, and was dedicated to mothers in observance of Mother's Day.

At the end of Greek Week, the tired Greeks headed for the Delta Sigma Phi house, where they loaded up their plates at the Greek Feast, featuring barbecued chicken.

At the Greek Week Religious Convocation, speaker Cornelius Loew is introduced by Carol Dressel and Thomas Hood, co-chairmen of the event.

Sorority workshops and inter-fraternity leadership conferences were held, providing opportunity to discuss problems and improvements of the Greek system. Dean Eunice Roberts, director of educational programs for women at the University of Indiana, was the guest speaker.

The Greek God Apollo cast his vote for Theta Chi as they took top honors at IFC Sing with the song, "Let Thy Holy Presence."

East Lansing felt the hands of the gods when the Greeks helped publicize the TB mobile X-Ray unit for the Ingham County TB Association.

Clad in togas, bearing sorority colors, Athenas gathered for a holiday and competed in potato sack races, relays, discus throw and three-legged races. Pi Beta Phi sorority was the champion.

Greek Feast, dedicated to Zeus, featured chicken roasted in barbecue pits at the Delta Sigma Phi house. Fraternity flags flew from the house and lawn which were decorated in Grecian style.

Ending the week was a religious convocation with Dr. Cornelius Loew, head of philosophy and religion department at Western Michigan University, giving the address.

Remember the calf that stood by the Union that one spring day, happily switching his tail and munching hay? Students probably ate him as prime beef cooked western style at the Agricultural Council Ox Roast.

A softball game between a high spirited faculty team and the ag clubs' champions added excitement to the affair. The winners won a tractor while the losers were new owners of a manure spreader.

Mother and Dad may not have been proud of that 2.0, but the Vets Association helped students celebrate the good news, at least it was passing. A 2.0 all-you-can-eat spaghetti dinner was held out at Coral Gables for faculty and students, even the 4.0 ones.

The four pointers received special recognition for their excellent academic achievements at a dinner given by President John Hannah. Approximately 615 students earned this distinction of conquering MSU's educational challenge.

Thanksgiving was celebrated early by the winners of the Turkey Trot. Spectators braved the cold and wind to cheer the runners. Alpha Tau Omega and their sorority sponsor, Chi Omega, feasted on the first prize, a turkey.

Ag Council's annual Ox Roast is highlighted by an abundance of good food and good humor.

Fall term saw a record attendance at the dinner given for straight A students by President Hannah.

Three huge turkeys had the honor of being the trophies for fall term's Turkey Trot.

The Veteran's Association innovated and received tremendous response to their 2.0 dinner, held at Coral Gables. The purpose of the dinner was to get faculty members and typical college students together on an informal basis.

The Four Lads were the featured entertainers at Lansing's Community Chest Kickoff, in which MSU participated.

Miss America, Lynda Lee Meade, arrived in town to add her glamor to the Community Chest Kickoff.

People were almost swinging on the rafters as 8,000 spectators crowded Jenson to hear the Four Lads sing at the United Fund Kick-Off which started a two week charity campaign.

Climaxing the evening was the grand entrance of Miss America, Lynda Lee Mead, in a white convertible. She was escorted by Don Wright, captain of the football team, who gave her an autographed football.

The activity-filled Union Board Week, "What'll You Have?", began with the "Absinthe" art show with Sue Schiller receiving the blue ribbon.

The jazz show "Tequila," a favorite, drew an audience of more than 350 people who listened to the rhythms and drumbeats of five jazz combos.

With an "Old Fashioned, Pink Lady and Stinger" at night, pre-inflation nickel priced cokes and coffee, served by the Union Board directors, were sipped by teetotalers lounging in the grill.

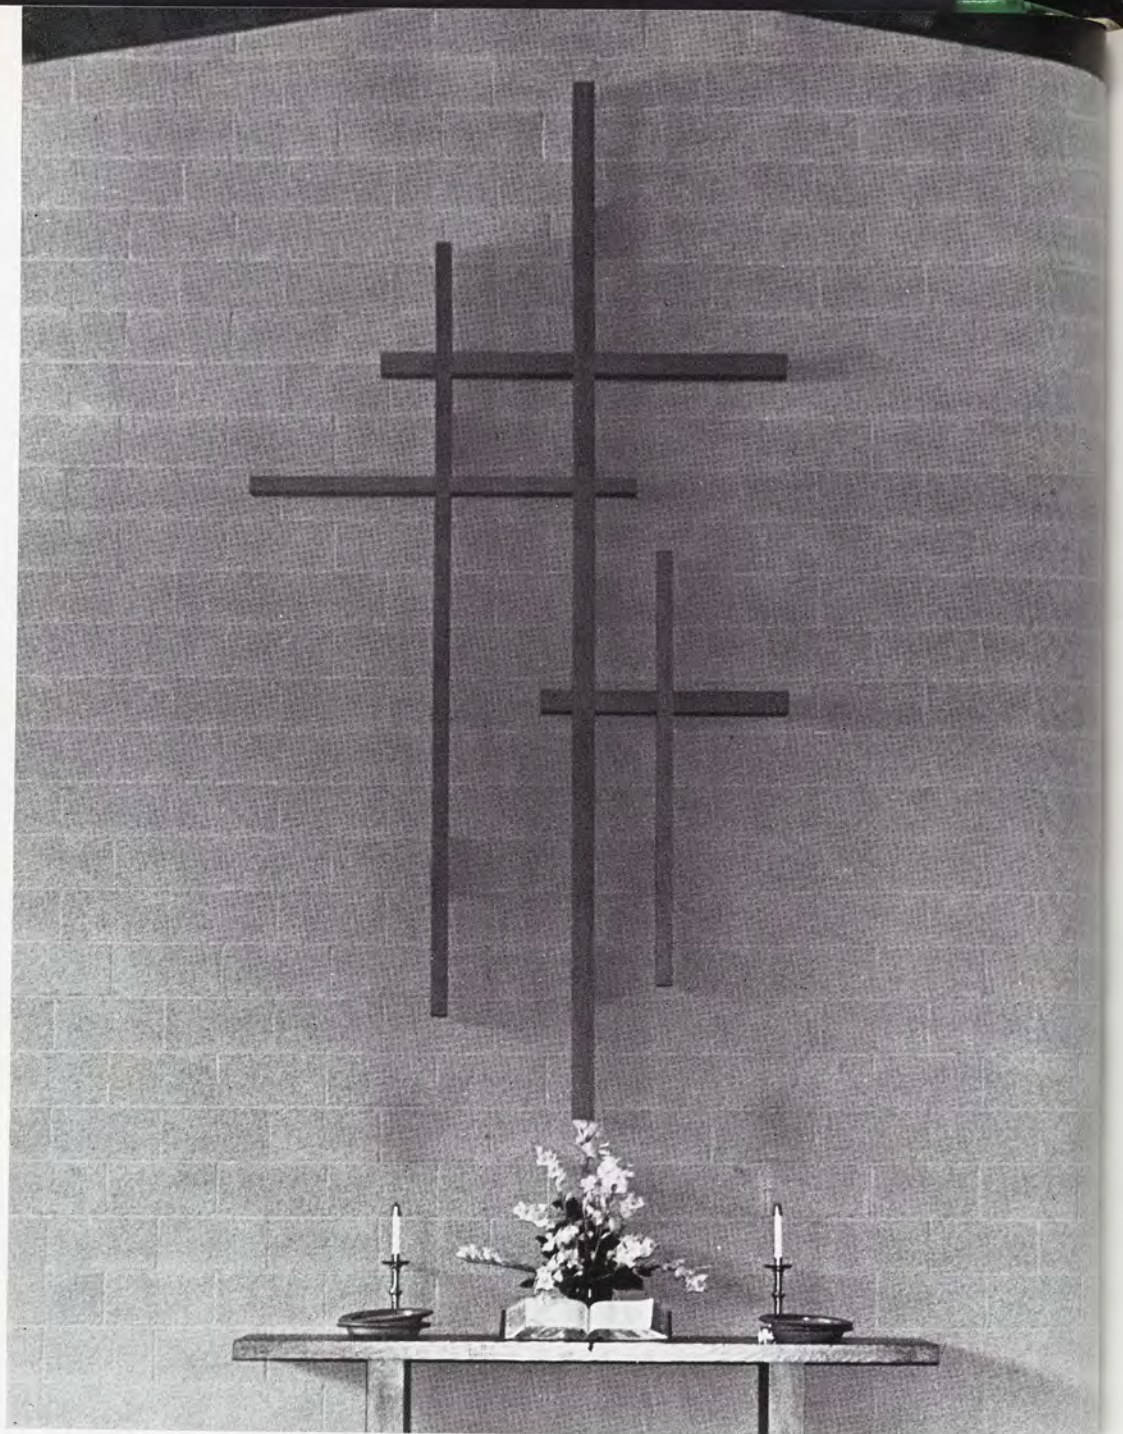

Chic coeds and suave men who modeled in the Union Board Week Fashion Show gather backstage before their elegant performance.

The Union Board Week Jazz Show, emceed by Dr. Maurice Crane, drew performers from all over the state, as well as MSU jazz men.

Fraternity housemothers donned costumes and displayed their stage talent during the Variety Show of Union Board Week.

Snow covers the University Lutheran Church on Anne Street, which also serves as home for the Lutheran Student Association.

As living units attempt to furnish MSU students with a "home away from home," the various churches and religious organizations in the area present students with the opportunity to worship, grow spiritually, find entertainment and better adapt themselves to college life in general.

Almost every major denomination is represented on campus, with several having separate houses or centers especially for college students. Catholic students have the large facilities of St. John's Student Center.

Jewish students have Hillel House and a full program of services, meetings and recreation. A few Protestant denominations have houses, such as Wesley House and College House of People's Church. This year All Saints' Episcopal Church established the first ministry to married students in the nation, with a priest's home and office centrally located on Harrison road near the married housing units.

Through the religious clubs, students may find a common bond with others as they "pray and play" together. Another offering to the students is the religious advisors' office in Student Services which opens its doors to anyone with questions or problems.

Mrs. John Hannah, first lady of MSU, serves the school in a vitally important human relations capacity.

John A. Hannah, President of Michigan State University.

An era ended for Michigan State in April when the citizens of Michigan voted to change the name of the eight-member governing body of the university to the Michigan State Board of Trustees.

The change in name from the former State Board of Agriculture was a reflection of the ever-broadening scope of education at MSU.

The Board's presiding officer, President John A. Hannah, was host to many official banquets and receptions throughout the year, at which he was assisted by the gracious Mrs. Hannah.

ADMINISTRATION

Paul A. Miller, Provost of Michigan State University.

Karl H. McDonel, Secretary of the University, retires in June after forty-four years of service with MSU.

Phillip J. May, Vice President of Business and Finance—Treasurer.

Six other men aid the president and the Board in running the vast metropolis of MSU. Karl McDonel, secretary, and Philip May, treasurer are ex-officio members of the Board. McDonel is responsible for university properties and May is in charge of finance.

Academic affairs were given greater emphasis with the creation of a new administrative position. Paul Miller became MSU's first provost.

Research development is in the hands of Vice-President Milton Meulder, who is also dean of the School of Advanced Graduate Studies.

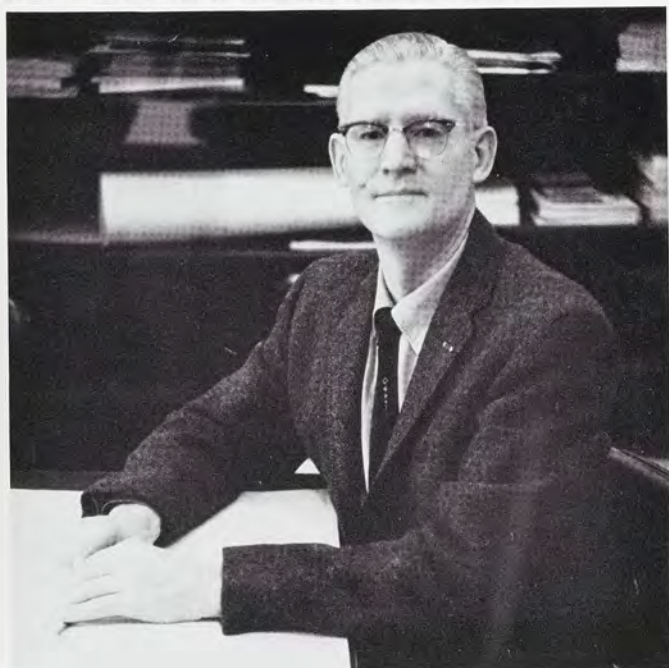

Public relations for MSU keeps James Denison, assistant to the president, busy. Looking after students' welfare is dean of students, Tom King.

The Board of Trustees which makes the final decisions on university policy and student rules and regulations, found itself again in the campus controversy on ROTC. Finals were another subject and seniors applauded when the board voted to have exams before, instead of after, spring commencement.

James H. Denison, Assistant to the President and Director of University Relations.

COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

Packaging students Richard Arnold and Theodore Krause look over plans for some newly-arrived equipment. MSU now has the only four-year packaging curriculum in the country.

The College of Agriculture may be the oldest college in the university, but there's nothing old fashioned about it.

Students are kept well-informed on the changes that have taken place in the main fields of agriculture and conservation. Scientific training is emphasized by the College which is convinced that modern agriculture and conservation have come about through the use of scientific knowledge.

Dean Thomas K. Cowden has three assistant deans under him to serve in the three functions of the College of Agriculture — teaching, research and extension.

Majors in agriculture are provided with a large lab in the form of the university farms, which has livestock and experimental and demonstrational fields. Students, besides receiving practical knowledge, receive hourly wages for their work on the farm, which provides a small percentage of the produce used for 30,000 meals prepared in university residence halls. Scientific methods are therefore available within the campus limits for viewing.

The curricula program has three goals: fundamental understanding of the basic physical, biological and social sciences which are applied to agriculture and conservation; broad educational background; and technical knowledge for specialization.

With the recently revised curricula program, ag students may study in one of three broad areas: agricultural business, agricultural science or general agriculture.

In addition to opportunities in the three basic fields, students may specialize in anything from animal production and dairy manufacturing to food technology or floriculture.

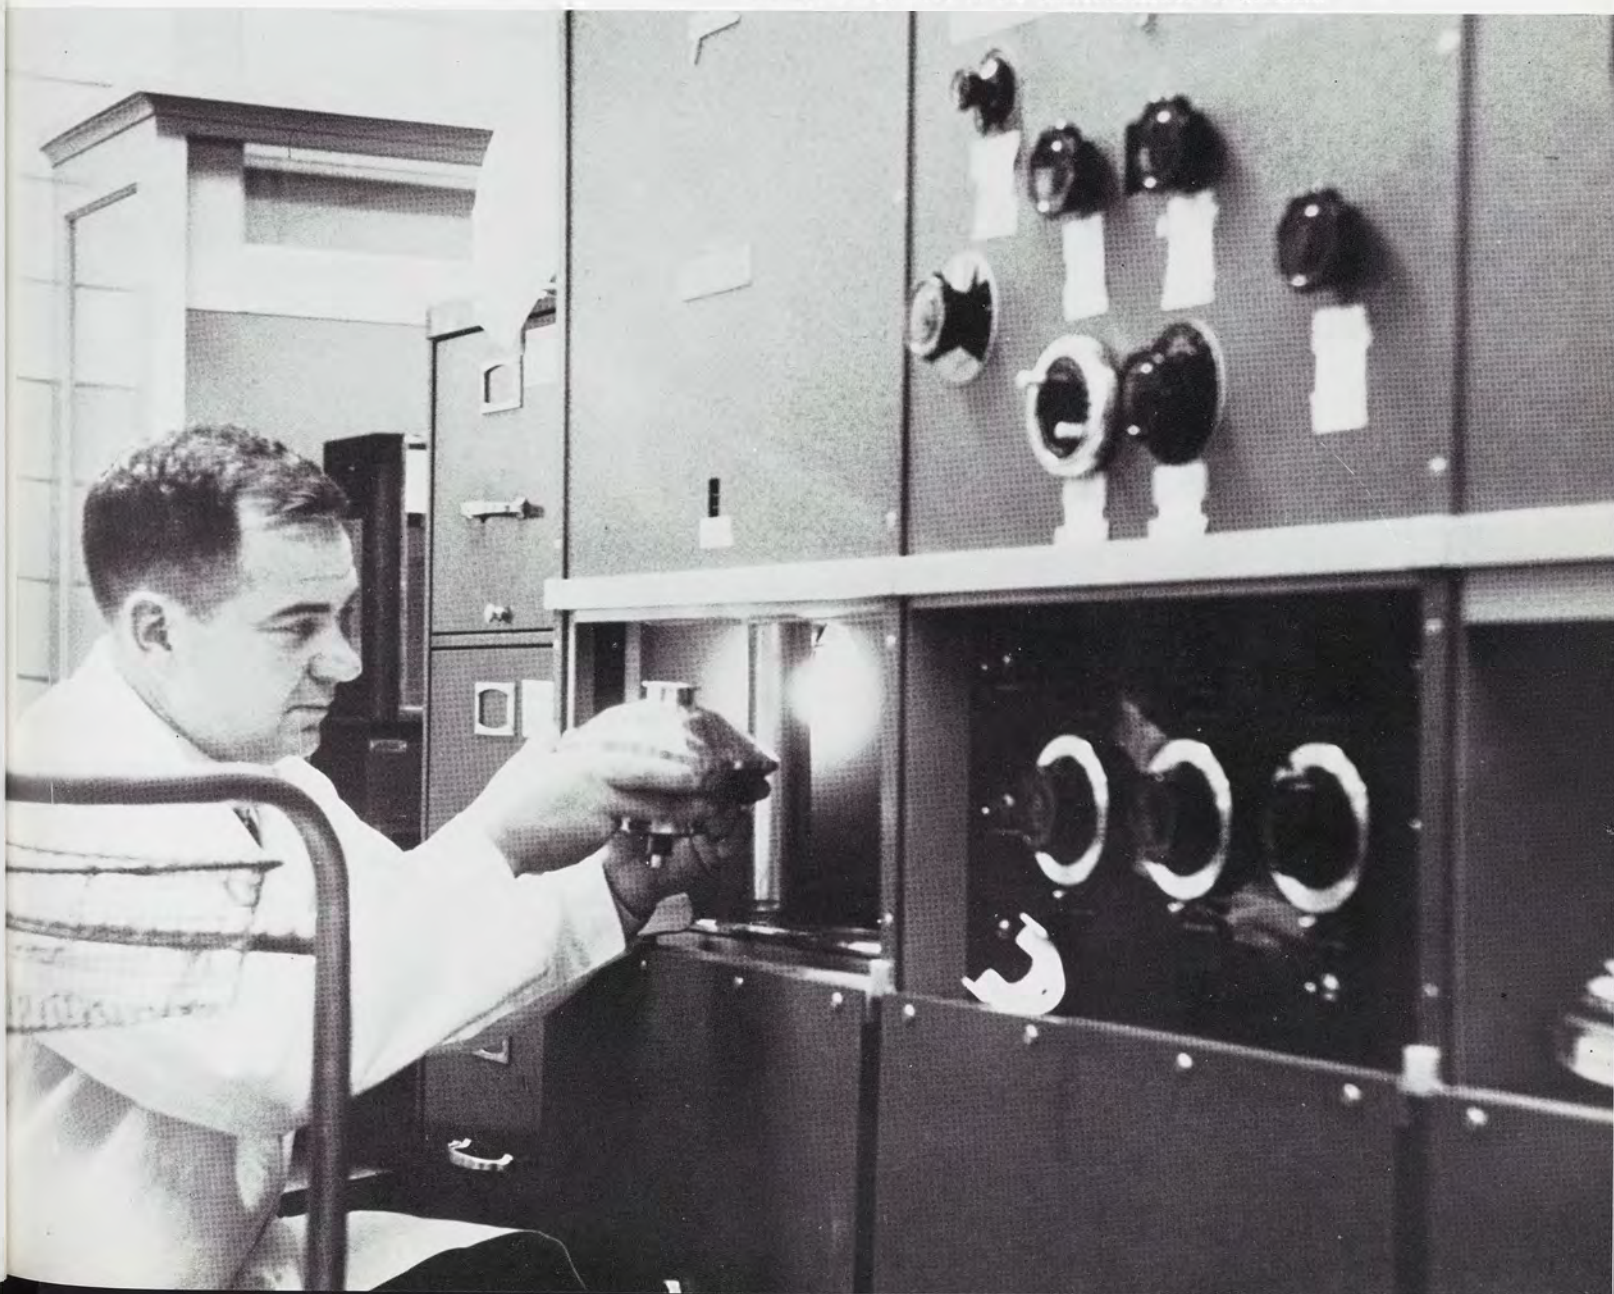

Besides the curricula leading to the bachelor of science degree, the College offers a two-year terminal course and an active short course program in agriculture, permitting a number of electives, to those students taking only two years of university work.

Agricultural chemists headed research which resulted in a test for determining hereditary carriers of galactosemia. This infant's disease, while relatively uncommon, often proves fatal if not detected early. The precision of the new test for finding potential parents of galactosemics is remarkable and has attracted national attention of others in genetics, biochemistry and hereditary disease research.

Jacob A. Hoefer, Professor in Animal Husbandry, examines several shoats at the swine barns.

Professor Jay R. Brunner of the dairy department operates an ultracentrifuge used in the characterization of proteins.

Students examine exhibits of landscape plans which constantly line the walls of the Landscape Architecture and Urban Planning building.

COLLEGE OF BUSINESS AND PUBLIC SERVICE

Alfred L. Seelye, Dean of the College of Business and Public Service.

Recent changes in the College of Business and Public Service, MSU's largest in enrollment, have seen a reorganization of divisions and the adding of new courses and four new departments under the direction of Dean Alfred Seelye.

Courses formerly under the general business and some in economics have been transferred to newly created departments of accounting and financial administration; marketing and transportation administration; personnel and production administration; and insurance law and real estate.

Students in the College enroll in the business administration or public service divisions. Including the four new departments, the business ad program allows students to major in business education and office administration, economics and hotel, restaurant and institutional management.

Students with a yen for helping their brother man have a wide selection for majors in the division of public service. They can concentrate in the areas of police administration and public safety, political science, urban planning and landscape architecture, and social work.

In each division, students may center their attention on technical programs. An entering freshman in the College is bewildered by the range of majors from marketing, purchasing and banking to control of delinquency and highway traffic administration.

Field training is important in a number of departments. Hotel majors get on-the-job practice at Kellogg Center. In-service training is also provided through work in the residence halls and the Union. Supervised field work is part of the curricula in social work and police ad.

Joseph Nicol, Associate Professor of Police Science instructs Tom McClure and Paul Matlock in comparing a suspect shoe with a plaster cast of a footprint.

Harvey Ross of the Police Administration school makes a photograph of fingerprints.

The College of Business and Public Service has two-year terminal programs in banking, general business, insurance and real estate, retailing and secretarial studies.

Publication of research on current social and political problems in Michigan is one of the chief functions of the College's Social and Political Research Bureau. A permanent staff carries on this research, aided by graduate students and faculty. The bureau also helps faculty and students from B & PS in conducting their own individual research.

This bureau, and the Bureau of Economic Research, which conducts research for various economic organizations in Michigan, are just a part of the diversity of the College of Business and Public Service.

The College has extended its services throughout the state. Recognition of the need for a monthly publication to supply statistical and economic information in Michigan resulted in the launching of a monthly publication, "The Michigan Economic Record" which now has a circulation of more than 2,300.

The impact of the College will be felt around the world with new or expanded activities in Brazil, Vietnam, Formosa and Pakistan. In the international field, B & PS works through MSU's international program.

The highly successful program in business administration in Brazil is to be extended to three federal universities in that country. Possibilities for such a program in Saigon, Veitnam, are to be explored. Assistance will be offered in the establishment of business and public administration institutes in Formosa and Pakistan.

Teaching methods at MSU received their full share of attention with several innovations made on an experimental basis. The effectiveness of large lecture classes was tested by the departments of economics and of marketing and transportation administration.

Another method of handling large numbers of students — teaching beginning accounting by closed-circuit television — was tried out by the department of accounting and financial administration. Application of business games to teaching was experimented with at both the undergraduate and graduate level.

Work with campus traffic give Police Administration majors practical experience in their fields. This student directs cars in front of the Auditorium.

"You'll meet all kinds . . . including instructors and students" . . . "No dollar is required, either printed or minted; just bring a fugitive from justice along." These are only two of the friendly calls to the weekly coffee hours sponsored by the College of Communication Arts.

And you do meet all kinds each Thursday as you sip coffee and nibble donuts, for Comm Arts, as it is more familiarly known, includes the school of journalism, department of advertising, department of television, radio and film, department of speech and general communication arts curriculum.

The College of Communication Arts, headed by Dean Gordon Sabine, is still a baby at MSU having been created in 1955. The departments of advertising and television, radio and film were organized in 1959. All departments of the College are designed to give the student a broad background in social sciences, literature, science and communication methods.

Each department also offers a graduate program. All graduate students must complete no less than 18 comm arts credits and have a minor or a cognate outside the College of 8-27 credits.

Gordon A. Sabine, Dean of the College of Communication Arts.

Bert C. Cross, assistant professor of journalism, prepares work for his copy editing class. All journalism students, regardless of their future plans, must learn the fundamental phases of journalism.

The school of journalism, second largest of the Comm Arts divisions and largest in the country, offers budding reporters every opportunity to learn about all fields of journalism.

Journalism students may be seen "shooting" the campus with cameras for press photography, interviewing for various reporting classes, studying national newspapers for editorial management and looking for new ideas for feature writing.

Ad majors receive on-the-job training through various courses in which they plan retail advertising and promotion programs. They obtain additional training in advertising agency workshop, in which students plan an advertising campaign for a particular city or town.

The curriculum of the general communications arts major offers an inter-departmental program in speech, journalism, advertising and comm arts. Many students in other colleges utilize comm arts to complete minors.

Radio-TV majors gain practice in their major on the two "live" stations on campus: WKAR radio and WMSB television. Many students are employed by the stations for work in staging, lighting and assisting in producing and telecasting shows.

The department of speech, largest division of the College, embraces several fields. These include rhetoric and public address, theatre, speech pathology and audiology and speech education.

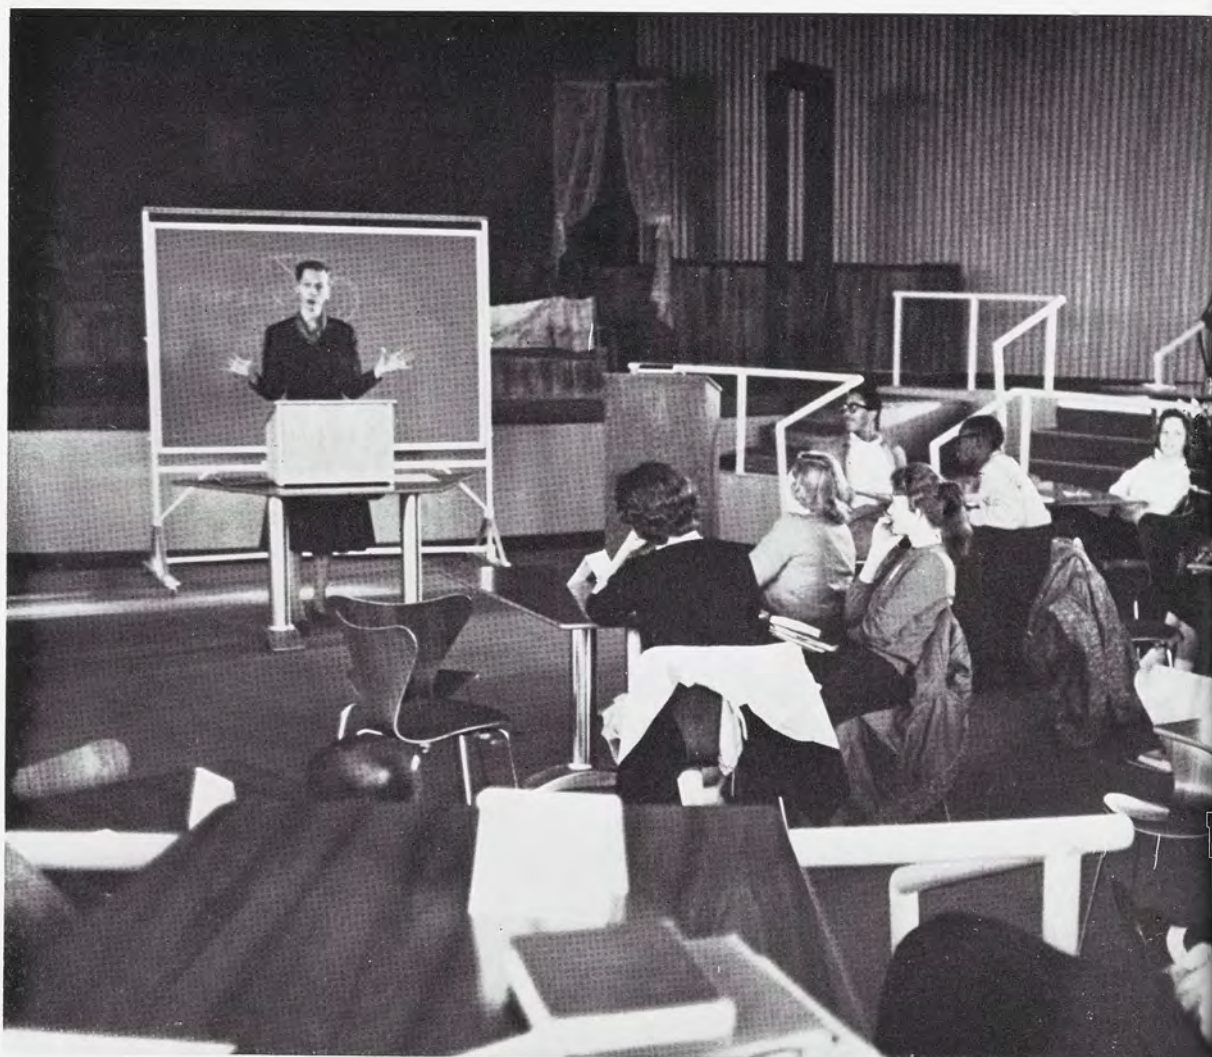

A television class, equipped with the latest cameras and lighting, runs through trial exercises.

Edward Deeb, chairman of a special project in an advertising workshop, goes over his plans with class members.

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

Sitting in a semi-circle, students in the Kiva listen to a lecture on education.

Clifford E. Erickson, Dean of the College of Education.

The College of Education trains students for the largest profession, and certainly one of the most important, in the world of work. Professional teachers educate U. S. future citizens and future workers.

Under the direction of Dean Clifford Erickson, the College provides professional education programs for elementary and secondary teachers, college instructors and adult educators. It also provides for the professional preparation of personnel who offer leadership or special services in the educational system, such as counselors, principals, superintendents, supervisors or visiting teachers.

With its six stories, stair-climbing in the education building is a challenge even to the energetic students.

The Education Building boasts a huge lobby on the main floor, equipped with modern and comfortable furniture.

Student teaching in Michigan schools gives education majors a chance to practice classroom methods under supervision of an experienced teacher. One term of student teaching is required for every education major and for all other students earning teacher's certificates.

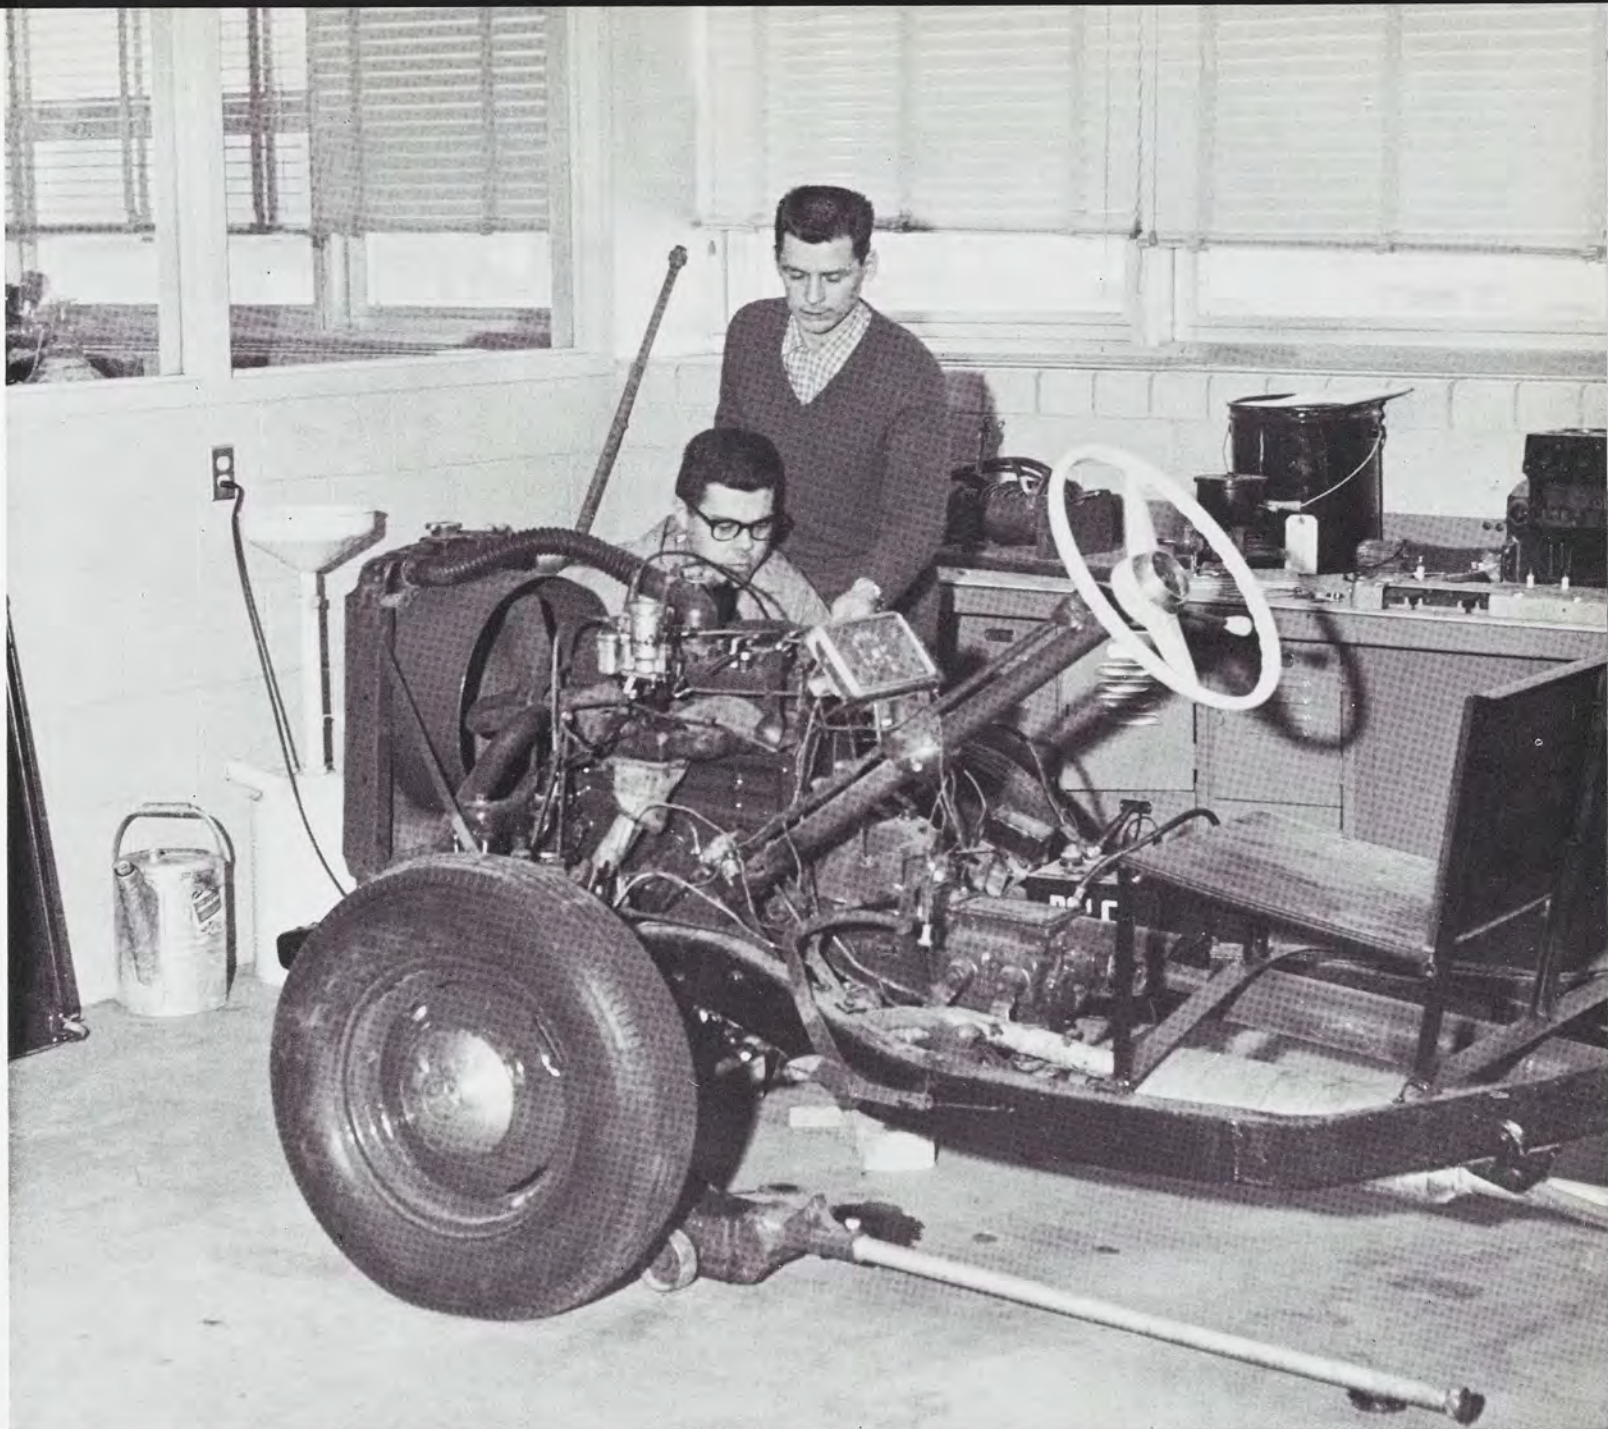

Student teachers leave campus to live in a school community and take part in neighborhood functions as well as receiving the all-important teaching experience. They find out, by living the life of a teacher, just what the job entails.

Grading of student teachers by the 4.0 system ended this spring. Starting fall term, 1960, prospective teachers will receive a mark of satisfactory or unsatisfactory.

The continued professional growth of teachers received special attention. Two programs were developed which gave specific consideration to the graduate study area. The establishment of a Center for the Study for Higher Education intensified the efforts of the College toward preparing college teachers and administrators, providing for their continued professional growth and conducting extensive research.

The Education Building, built in 1958, towers over the Red Cedar.

Students work on a special project in vocational education, taught in the Education Building.

The elementary education curriculum was revamped this year. The present required series of teacher education courses will be concentrated and integrated into one full quarter of professional education. This arrangement is an attempt to bring together, in meaningful fashion, the method and content of the elementary school curriculum.

Greater emphasis will be stressed on laboratory experiences. Required for students will be September field experience—a minimum of two weeks visit to elementary schools in their home towns. Added experience is to be gained from participating in activities for children, such as scouts, church and welfare agencies. Time will be spent in viewing classrooms via closed circuit TV.

Students preparing for secondary school teaching take programs in education in combination with a major in the various other colleges on campus. At least 30 credits in education, including student teaching, are required for certification.

The new education building, completed in spring, 1958, centralized curricula of the College of south campus. Its modern and unusual kiva, a circular lecture room with exceptionally fine acoustics, has won fame for its architectural design.

Students are given further impetus in studying and discussing the field by the education clubs and honoraries. Independent study and projects are encouraged by the College.

A new program of engineering for technical assistance, in which part of the engineer's curriculum will be devoted to study of the country and culture in which he plans to work, is evidence of the College of Engineering and Dean J. D. Ryder's up-to-date outlook.

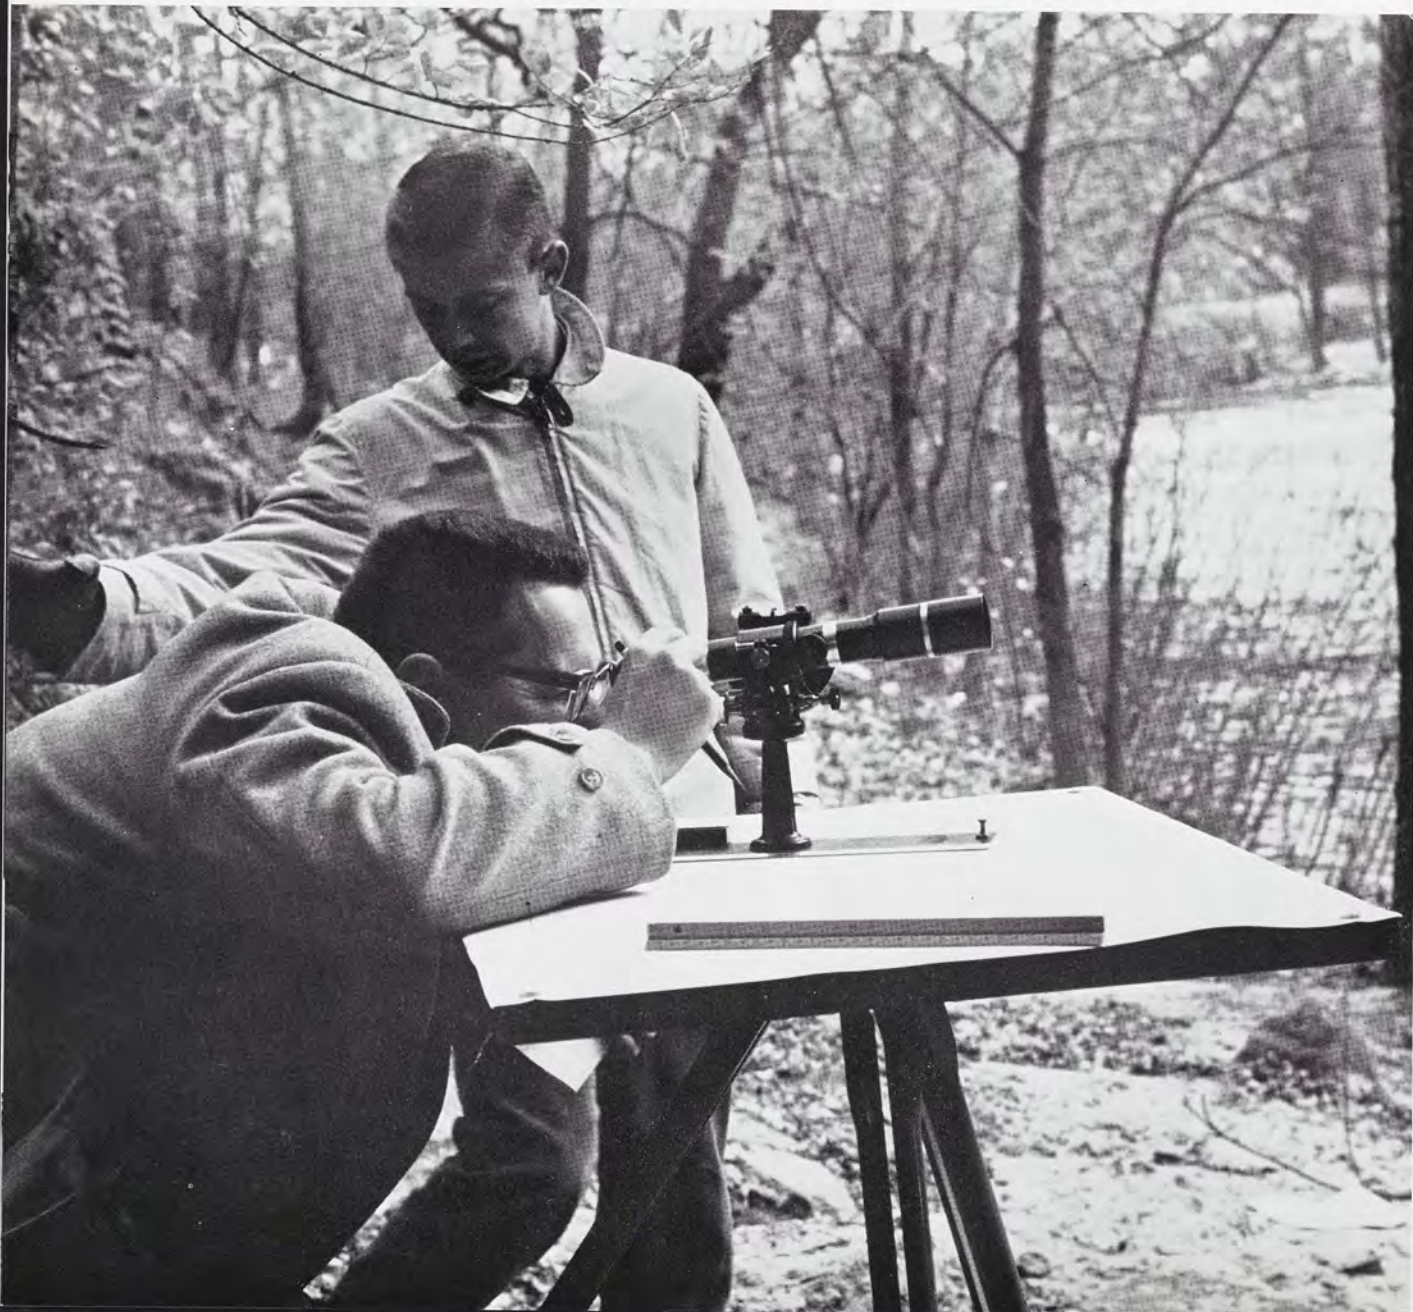

In cooperation with the College of Science and Arts, the plan is to provide, in a small way, more engineering personnel adequately trained for international service. It will seek out young men at the junior level who are interested in working in foreign countries and provide them with a two or three year program including economics, foreign languages, political science, foreign studies, history and other subjects considered appropriate.

Under this program, the student will be completing the work required for an engineering degree, but with the curriculum lengthened to permit integration of the arts and humanities material. The five-year program will lead to the receipt of two degrees, a B.S. from engineering and a B.A. from Science and Arts. While this plan was proposed to cover the needs of students oriented toward international work, similar programs can be worked out for students interested in other areas.

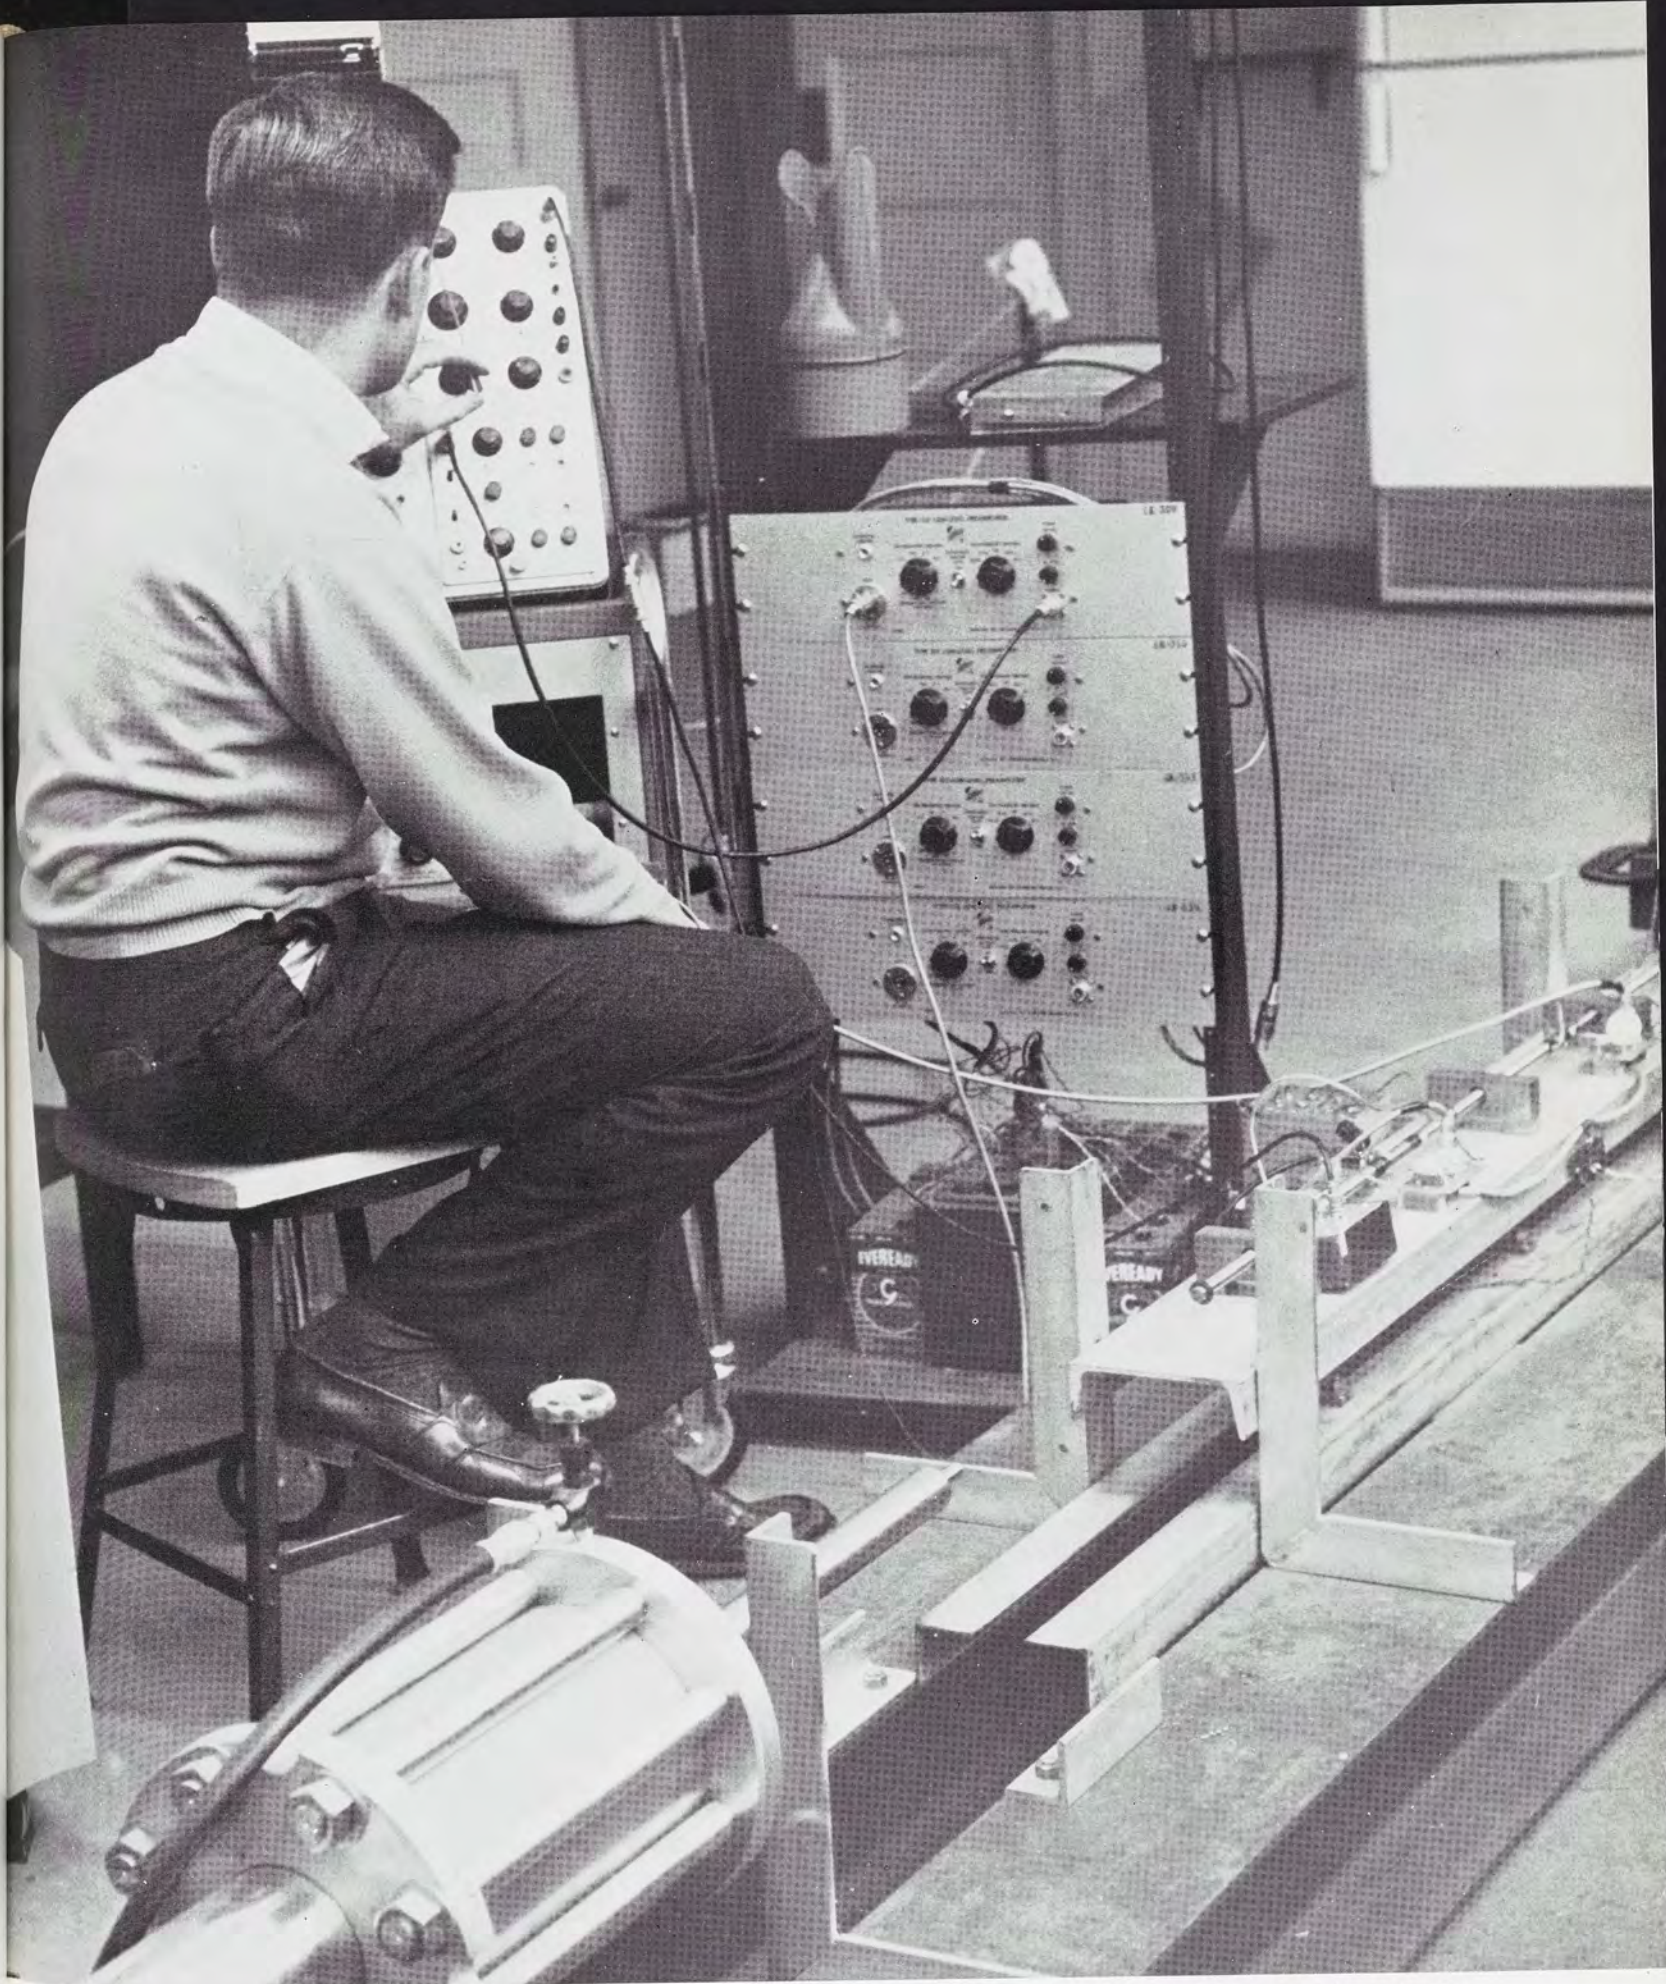

Courses in the College are offered in seven related fields: applied mechanics, chemical, civil and sanitary, electrical, mechanical, metallurgical and agricultural engineering (in cooperation with the College of Agriculture).

Agricultural Engineering students construct a wall section for a portable farm building.

Freshmen in the regular engineering course take identical programs, then branch out into their particular phase of engineering in their sophomore year. Technical and specialized courses in each department leave little or no time for electives. Basic to all curricula is a thorough understanding of the fundamental engineering science, as well as firm knowledge of their application.

The excellence of the College of Engineering can be measured by the fact that 3,700 employment interviews were held by the Placement Service for 260 seniors. Much of this increasingly favorable attitude of industry stems from the College's trend toward a heavier science and mathematics emphasis.

Research in the College of Engineering is conducted in six major areas: materials, electronics and systems, fluid flow, change of state and composition, heat and mass transfer and public health and safety. It is the purpose of this research to furnish challenging areas of investigation for graduate students and faculty.

Attention by this College is directed also toward stimulating more interest in engineering and the physical sciences among future students in high school. The effectiveness of the Junior Engineering Technical Society (JETS) program in encouraging young people to enter careers in engineering continues. Reports from one-third of the JETS chapters indicate that of those enrolling in college 64 percent will be engineering majors.

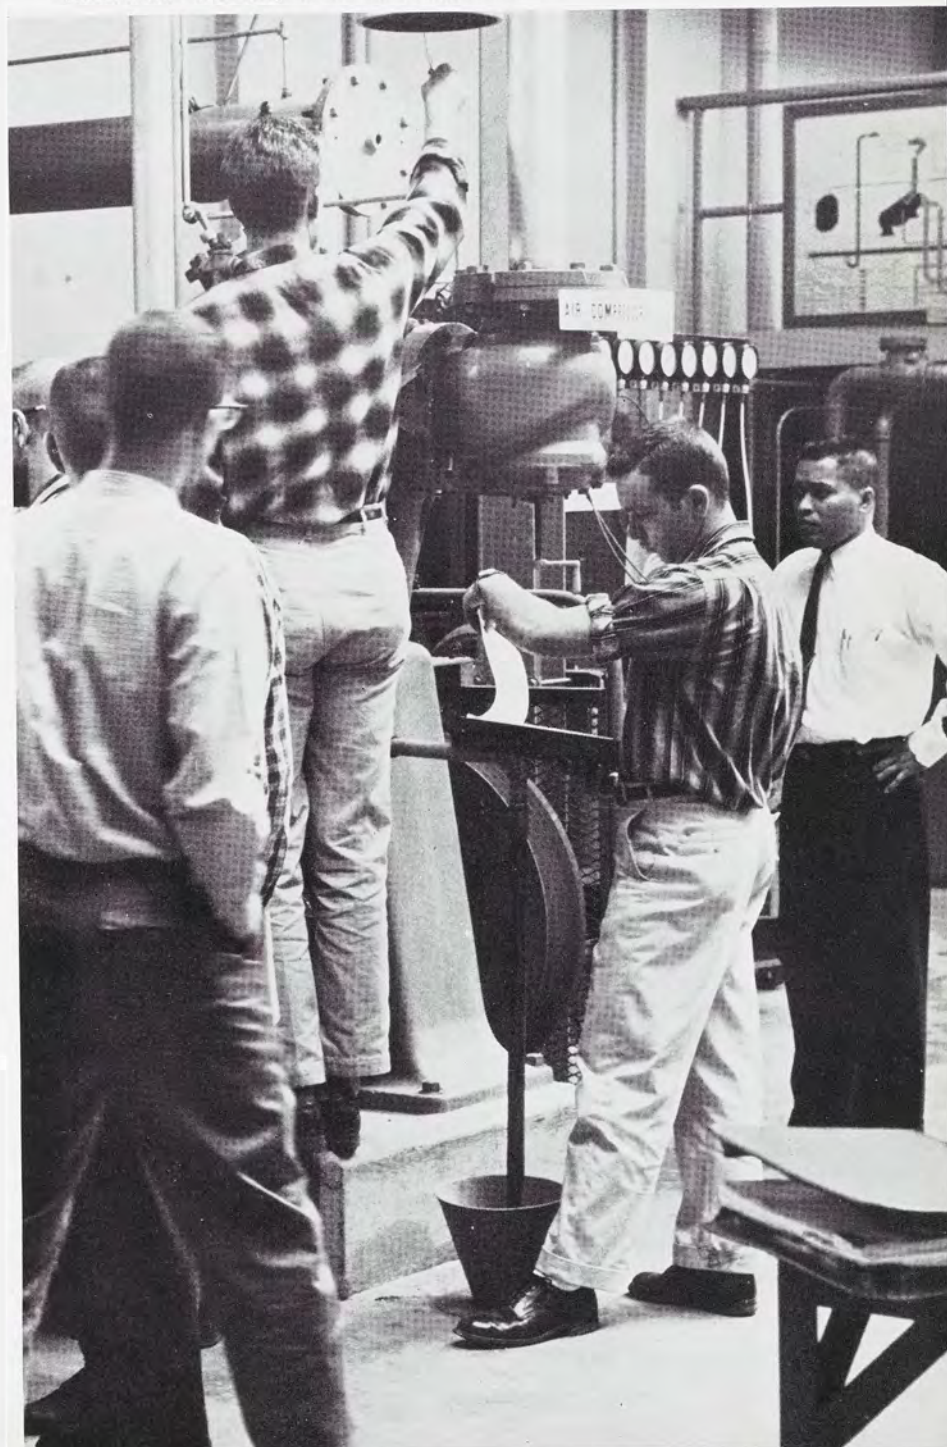

Plans for the future include a new College of Engineering plant to be developed on south campus over the next five years at the approximate cost of $13 million.

Besides emphasizing the importance of the planned program of the engineering curriculum, the College considers extra-curricula activities a portion of an engineer's education. Student branches of professional engineering societies within the departments, the Engineering Exposition and the magazine, "Spartan Engineers", are activities offered by the College of Engineering.

Two metallurgical engineering students run tests on the heat treatment of steel.

A mechanical engineering class works on an experiment to determine the efficiency of an air compressor.

John D. Ryder, Dean of the College of Engineering.

Under the leadership of Dean Thelma Porter, students in the College of Home Economics are learning that homemaking and careers in the field of home economics play an important role in the functioning of modern society.

Importance has been, and will continue to be, focused on the physical environment of the home with emphasis on synthesizing knowledge drawn from the physical, biological and social sciences and the arts. This knowledge is applied to improve living for families and individuals.

The College of Home Economics is unique in that it does not teach one specialized subject, but teaches a variety of subjects that together help shape the parts and the whole pattern of daily living. The courses offered by the College of Home Economics are planned with this in mind. A student may study family relationships, child development, nutrition, economic aspects of family living, clothing, housing, foods, household equipment and furnishings and art as an integral part of everyday life.

Each student majoring in home economics has some experience with the managerial role of the homemaker, usually during her junior year. Three weeks are spent in learning the principles of home management. These concepts may be applied either in the student's own home or in a group living situation in the home management residence.

A student from the school of child development works with two children at the Home Management House. Students in this school must take numerous courses in the growth and behavior of children.

COLLEGE OF HOME ECONOMICS

It may be exasperating at times, but kitchen utensils must be cleaned before the next class starts.

Coeds don hairnets and men don chefs' hats for class periods in institutional cooking, under the Hotel Administration curriculum.

Future housewives, as well as seamstresses and home economics teachers, benefit from a course in dress design.

As a part of their effort to synthesize various aspects of living, the College of Home Economics has entered a new field—television. In cooperation with WMBS and with a grant furnished by the National Educational Television and Radio Center, a series on basic nutrition has been placed on video tape for national distribution. Programs for WMBS include "The Family," which discusses current management procedures and family relationships.

In the field of research the College of Home Economics deals with practical and scientific problems. This year in cooperation with the dairy department they developed a frozen whipped cream that will help enlarge the market for dairy products. They have done research on the nutritive value of foods, weight gain and weight loss and the effect of irradiation on wheat.

For the past three years, the College of Home Economics has been conducting an experimental honors program. At the end of the year the program will be evaluated to determine its philosophy and educational value. The honors program offers students outside of the university-wide Honors College the opportunity to study and conduct research problems on their own.

Continuing education plays an important role in this College. At the present time, MSU offers home economics courses in five major Michigan cities. This program is designed for teachers, extension workers and others who would like to participate in college-level classes in home economics. In addition, the Cooperative Extension Service provides education in home economics for homemakers throughout the state.

Thelma Porter, Dean of the College of Home Economics.

Progressive education, combined with "tender loving care" is the key to child development training at the Home Management House.

COLLEGE OF SCIENCE AND ARTS

An art class meets in back of Kresge Art Center, where the Red Cedar offers wonderful potential for the aspiring landscape painter.

Employing the largest teaching staff of any college of this university, the College of Science and Arts provides a liberal education for all its students. Led by Dean Lloyd C. Ferguson, the College is constantly measuring and bettering the standards of its programs.

The departments of the College are organized into five divisions: Biological Science, Fine Arts, Language and Literature, Mathematical and Physical Science and Social Science. Students may obtain either a departmental or divisional major.

The completion of the Experimental Biology Building on South Campus is the newest development. In this building, research is conducted primarily in embryology, cytogenetics and cancer biology. The Hoppert-Hunt-Rosen study, relating tooth decay to hereditary factors, is being continued here. Recently installed is an electron microscope for biological research.

Several additions to the science and arts program itself have been instituted this year. A humanities major was approved by the College. Students in this major are offered a broad program in the study of art, religion and foreign languages.

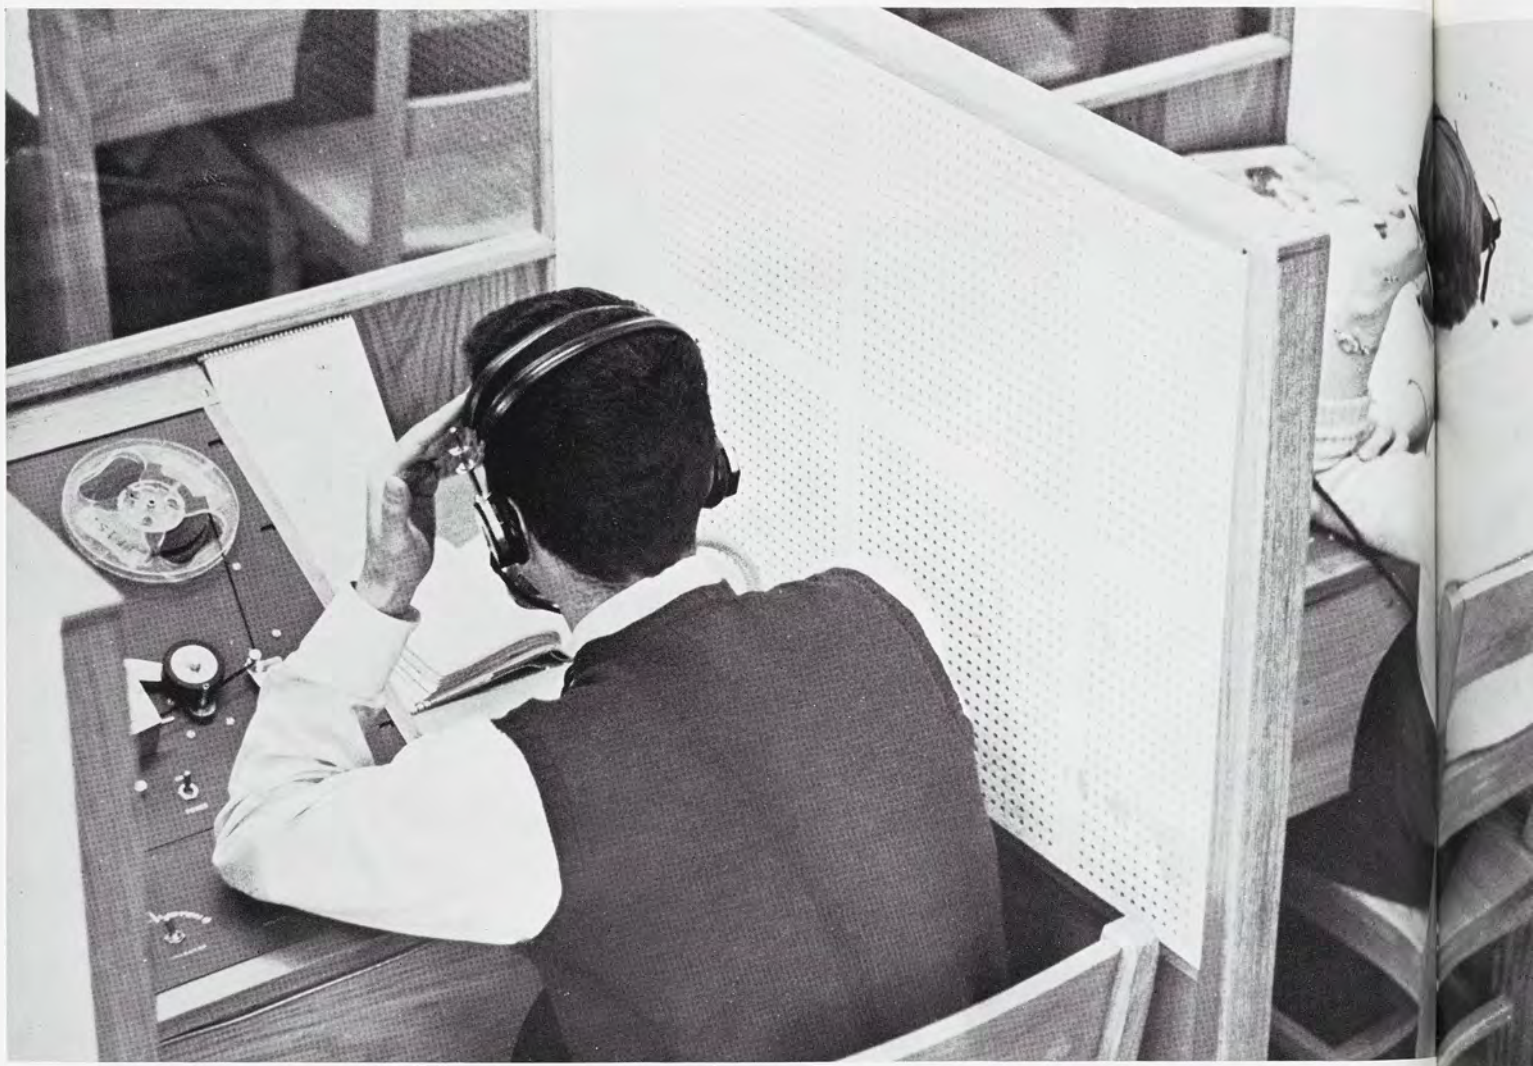

With the increased facilities of Kresge Art Center, the College now offers art students a choice between two degrees. The bachelor and masters degrees in fine arts, covering studio and art practices, were established this fall.

Students in a physics lab work on an experiment in heat transfer.

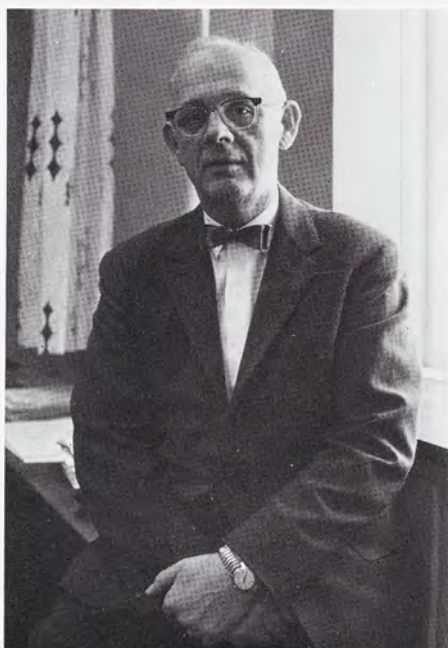

A student in the music department receives individual clarinet lessons from an instructor. A special music fee is required for music lessons, which are given twice a week.

Two students make use of the Language Laboratory in Morrill Hall, in which they may record and play back their own conversations in a foreign language.

Lloyd C. Ferguson, Dean of the College of Science and Arts.

Each year the College cuts across traditional educational lines by bringing distinguished visiting professors on campus to represent the various fields within the college curriculum. This fall Dr. Mario Castel-Nuevo Tedesco conducted operatic courses in the music department and Urban T. Holmes was welcomed to the foreign language division. Credit from these inter-disciplinary courses may be applied toward any major.

Working along with Michigan high schools, the College conducted two programs for these students. The freshmen-to-be took part in either a science or foreign language session on campus. A similar program is being planned for this summer.

An MSU coed begins work on a piece of pottery in a ceramics course.

COLLEGE OF VETERINARY MEDICINE

Willis W. Armistead, Dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine.

Excellence of student instruction remains a major concern of the College of Veterinary Medicine, long recognized as one of the leading schools of its kind in the nation. Comprehensive revisions of both the veterinary medicine and medical technology curricula were made by Dean Willis Armistead and faculty committees.

The medical technology program, four years with a year of internship, was elevated this year to the status of a college-wide, rather than a departmental, curriculum. Negotiations were undertaken for affiliation with several teaching hospitals in Michigan to insure internships of higher quality for students.

The College continues to have the largest graduate enrollment of all the veterinary medicine colleges in the United States. Forty-nine Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degrees, 20 Master of Science degrees and 10 Doctor of Philosophy degrees were awarded in June of 1959.

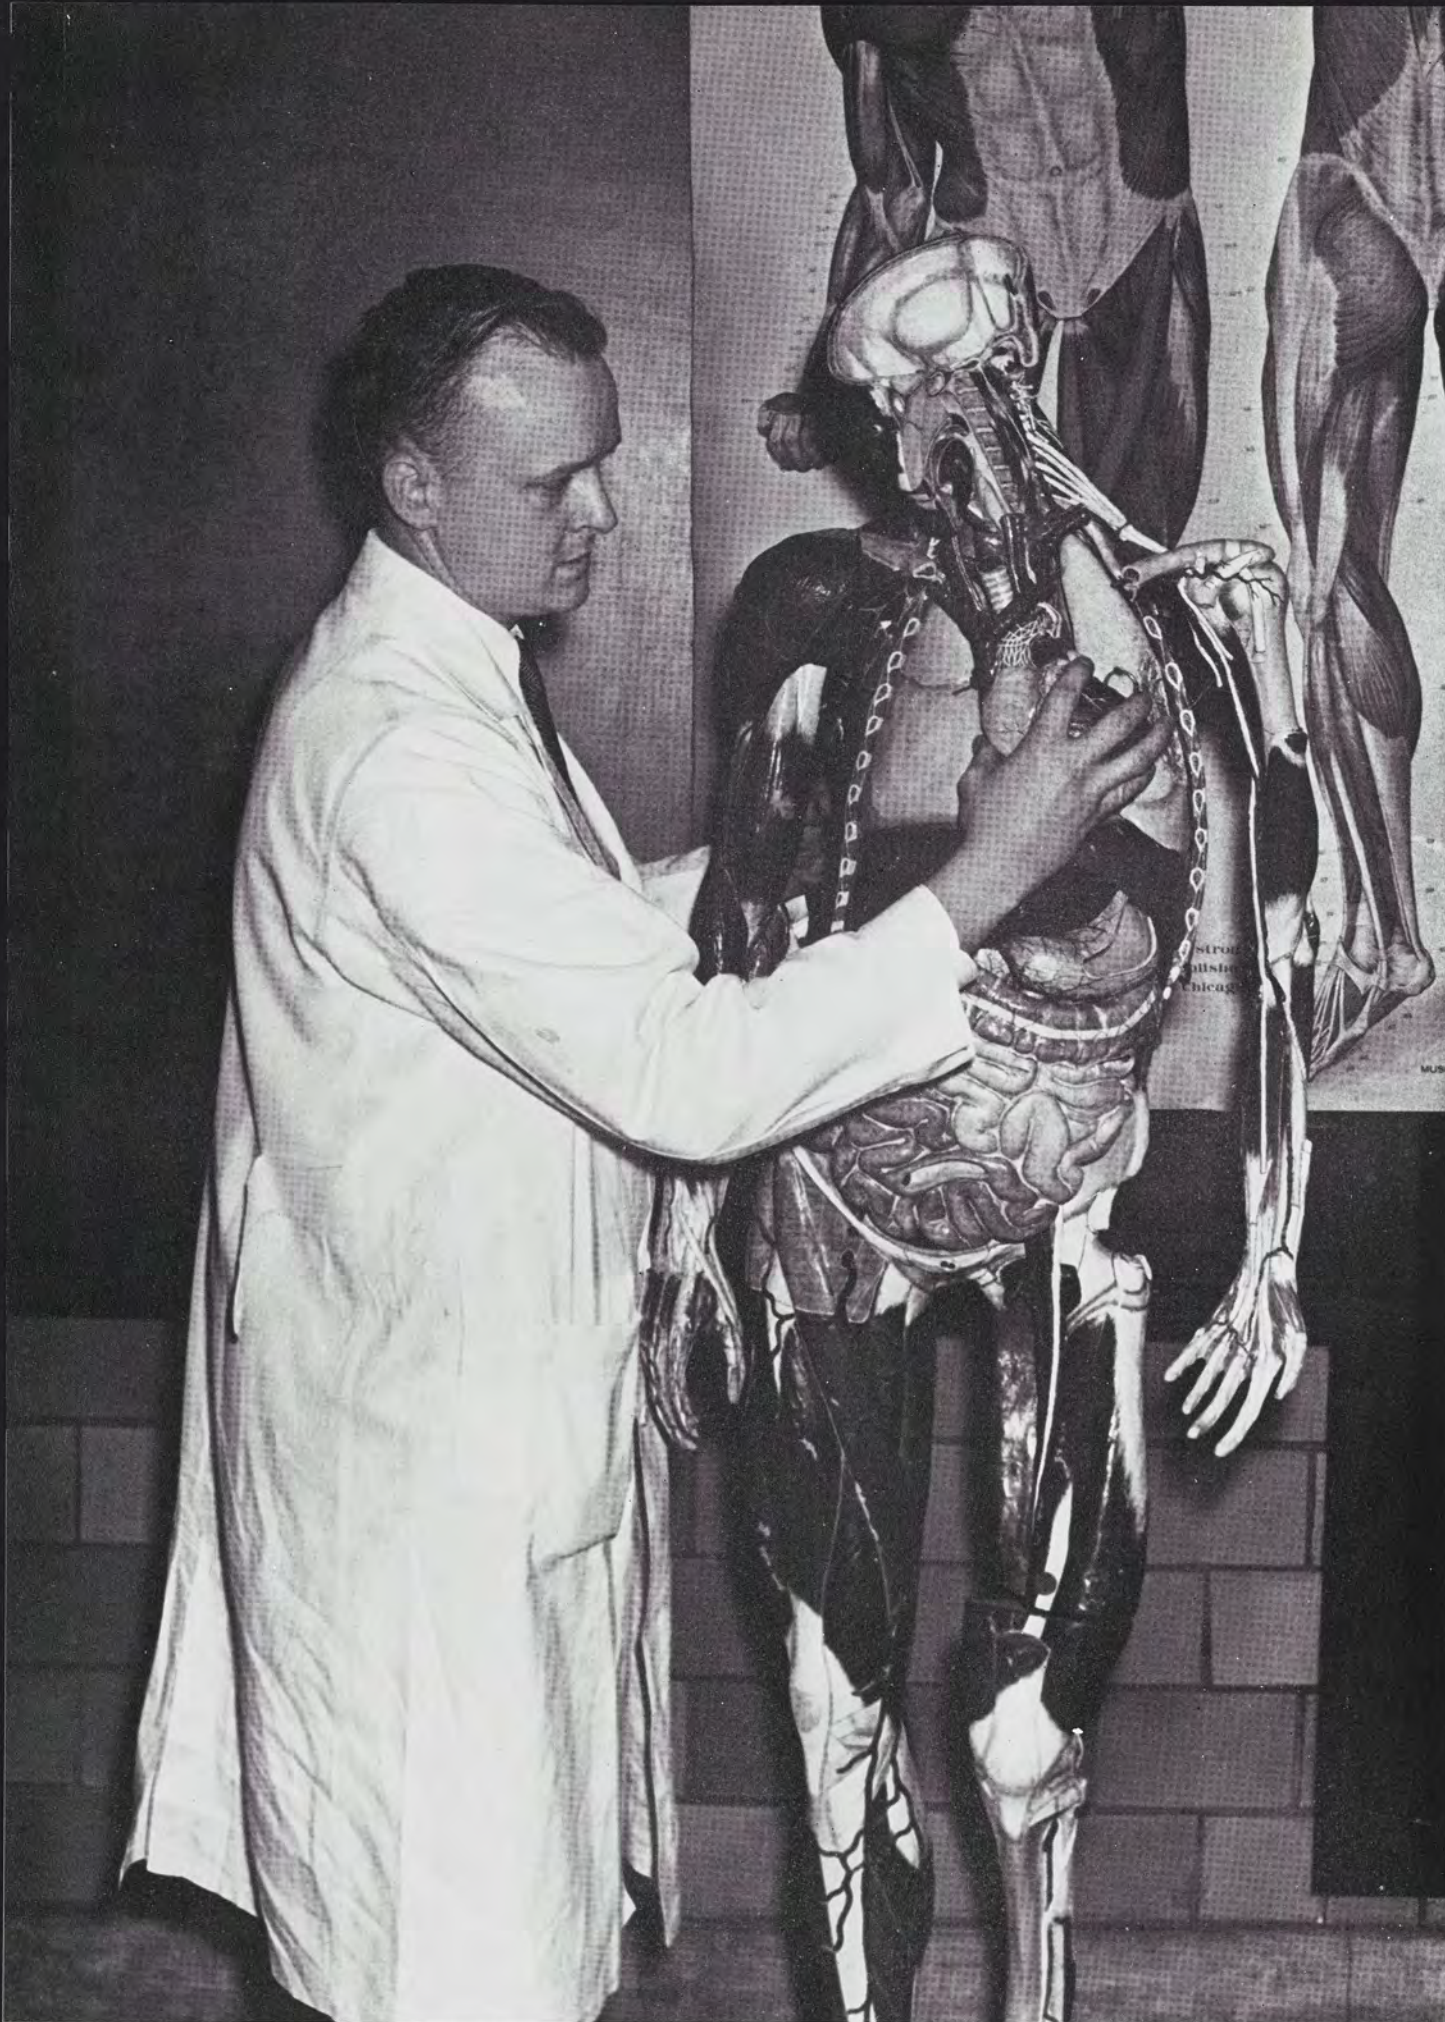

Six years of study are required for the degree of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine. The first two of these are called "pre-veterinary" study and are under the supervision of the Basic College. After these two years, the student veterinarian enters the four-year professional veterinary curriculum limited to 64 new students each year.

In addition to a basic medical education, the aspirant receives training in diagnosis, disease prevention, medical treatment and surgery. Most of the sixth year is spent as an intern in the College Veterinary Hospital which has facilities for 70 animal patients. Upon graduation, the new veterinarian is qualified to enter private practice or to accept any of a variety of positions.

During summers many students supplement their education and income by securing on-the-job training with practicing veterinarians or with commercial and government agencies employing veterinarians.

A veterinary medicine student, using the most recent medical methods, draws blood from the heart of a rabbit.

The removable parts of this anatomy model make it easier to understand the human body.

This year its 50th anniversary was observed by the College of Veterinary Medicine which in 1910 established the first four-year curriculum in any veterinary school east of the Mississippi. In honor of the anniversary, Gov. G. Mennen Williams proclaimed January 18-23 as Veterinary Medicine Week.

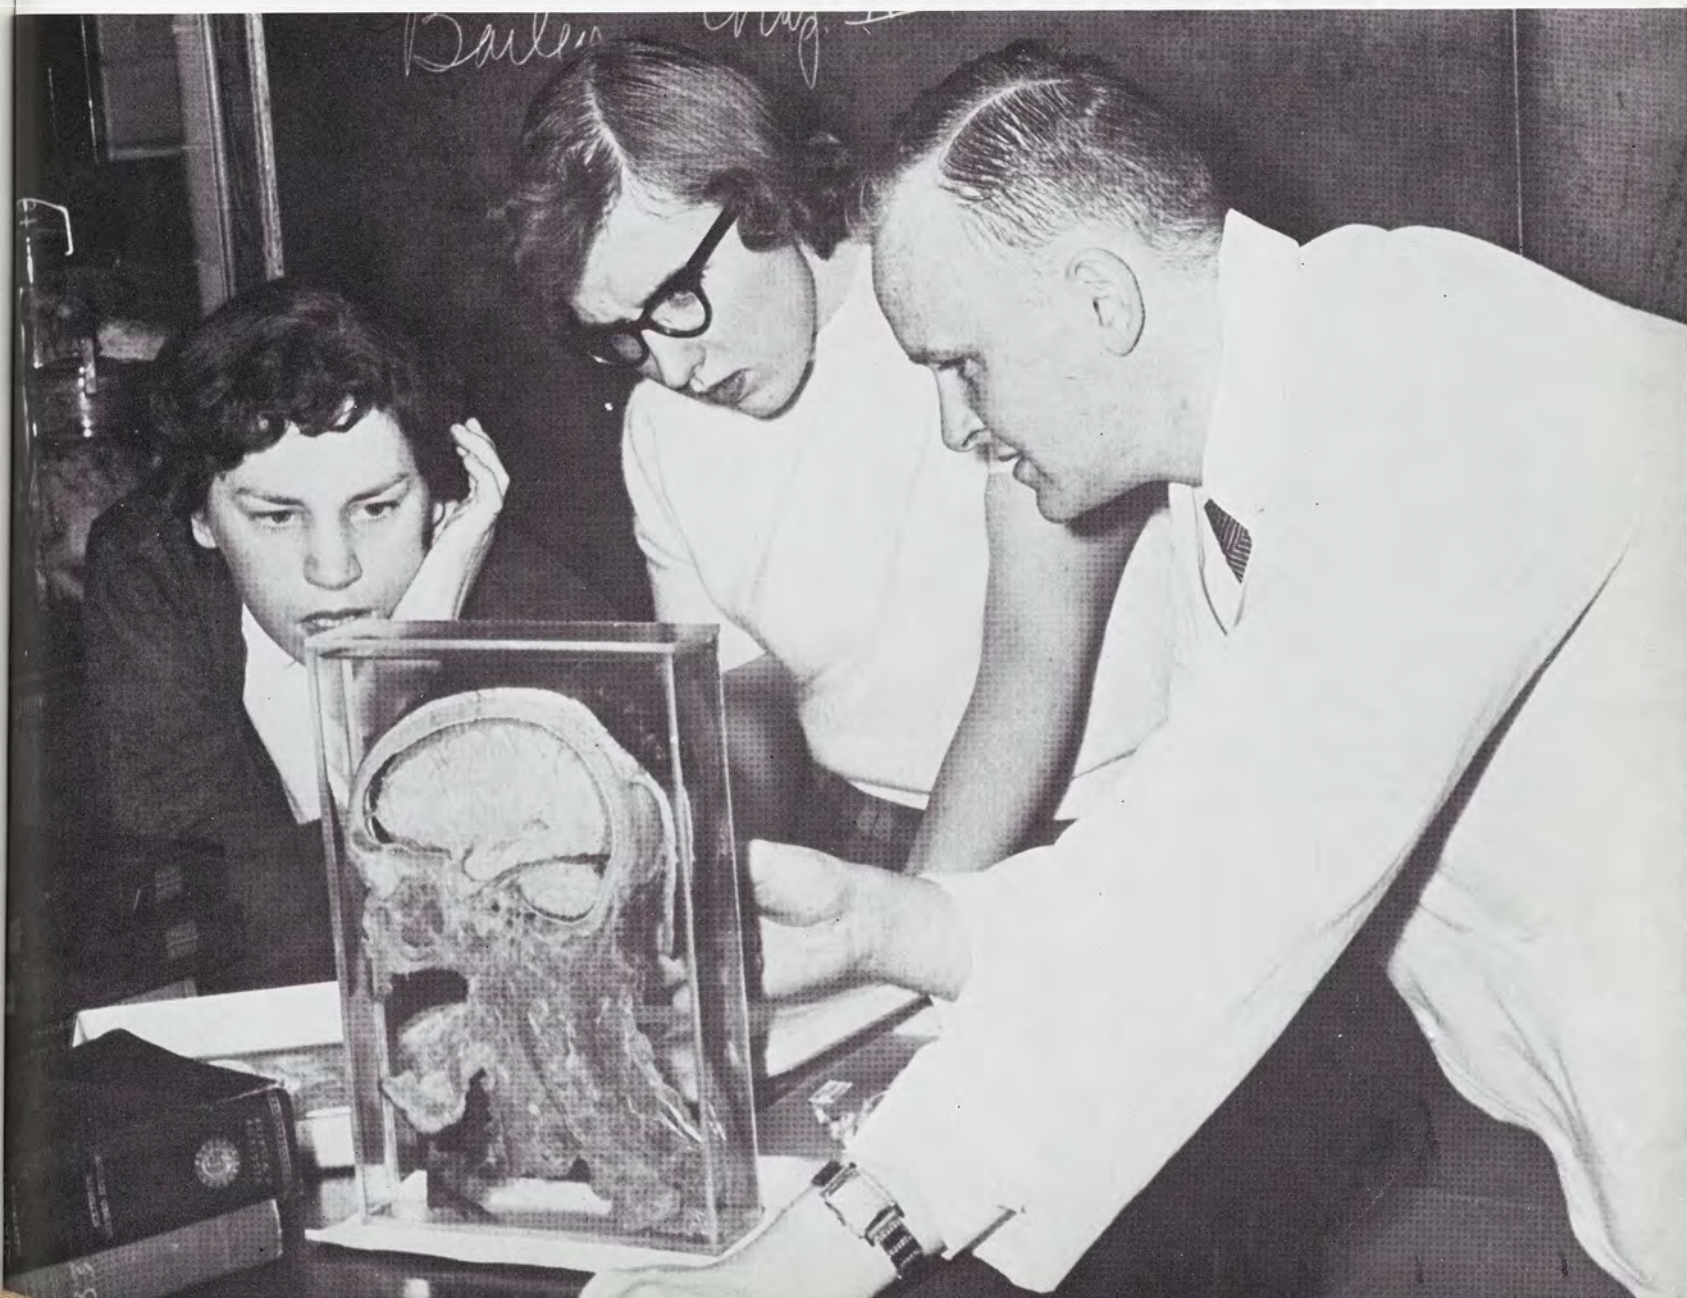

In addition to carrying its teaching load, the College provides a considerable amount of service to the public in the way of animal disease diagnostic services and treatments. Thousands of examinations of microbiologic, serologic and parasitic material were made, as well as bacteriological examinations of water and milk samples, by the Department of Microbiology and Public Health.

The student chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association is open to all vet med majors. Wives of veterinary students, not forgotten by this College, have a club, also. One of their chief projects is a series of classes by MSU professors on the fundamentals of vet med — designed to make them more intelligent and helpful as wives of veterinary doctors.

BASIC COLLEGE

Freshmen still undecided about an academic major find extra advantage in the Basic College—a chance to glimpse briefly some of the principal fields in which they may continue without being tied to a narrow curriculum.

All freshmen enter as Basic College students and are under the watchful eye of Dean Edward Carlin. They remain in this status until they have earned 92 credits and completed the four Basic courses, communication skills, natural science, social science and humanities — well remembered by all upper-classmen.

The Basic College program of general education provides its students with certain basic tenets and the background upon which to build a more comprehensive education. The departmental courses are orientated to each other to give an over-all picture of the students' place in society.

A revised communication skills program, begun on small-scale spring term, has students reading a broad sampling of documents, essays, plays, novels, and papers that illuminate the development of the United States. Required writing is approximately doubled compared with that previously demanded and is based upon the reading.

Natural science deals primarily with selected major facts and concepts of the sciences. Through laboratory work the student learns to utilize his thinking processes.

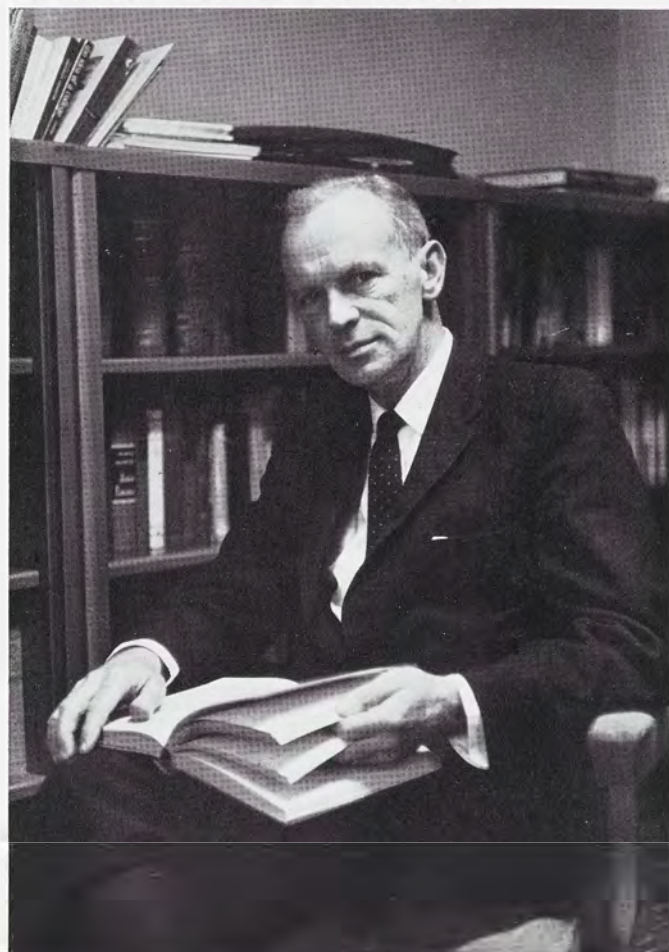

With the knowledge gained in social science, the student sees his relationship to the society in which he lives.

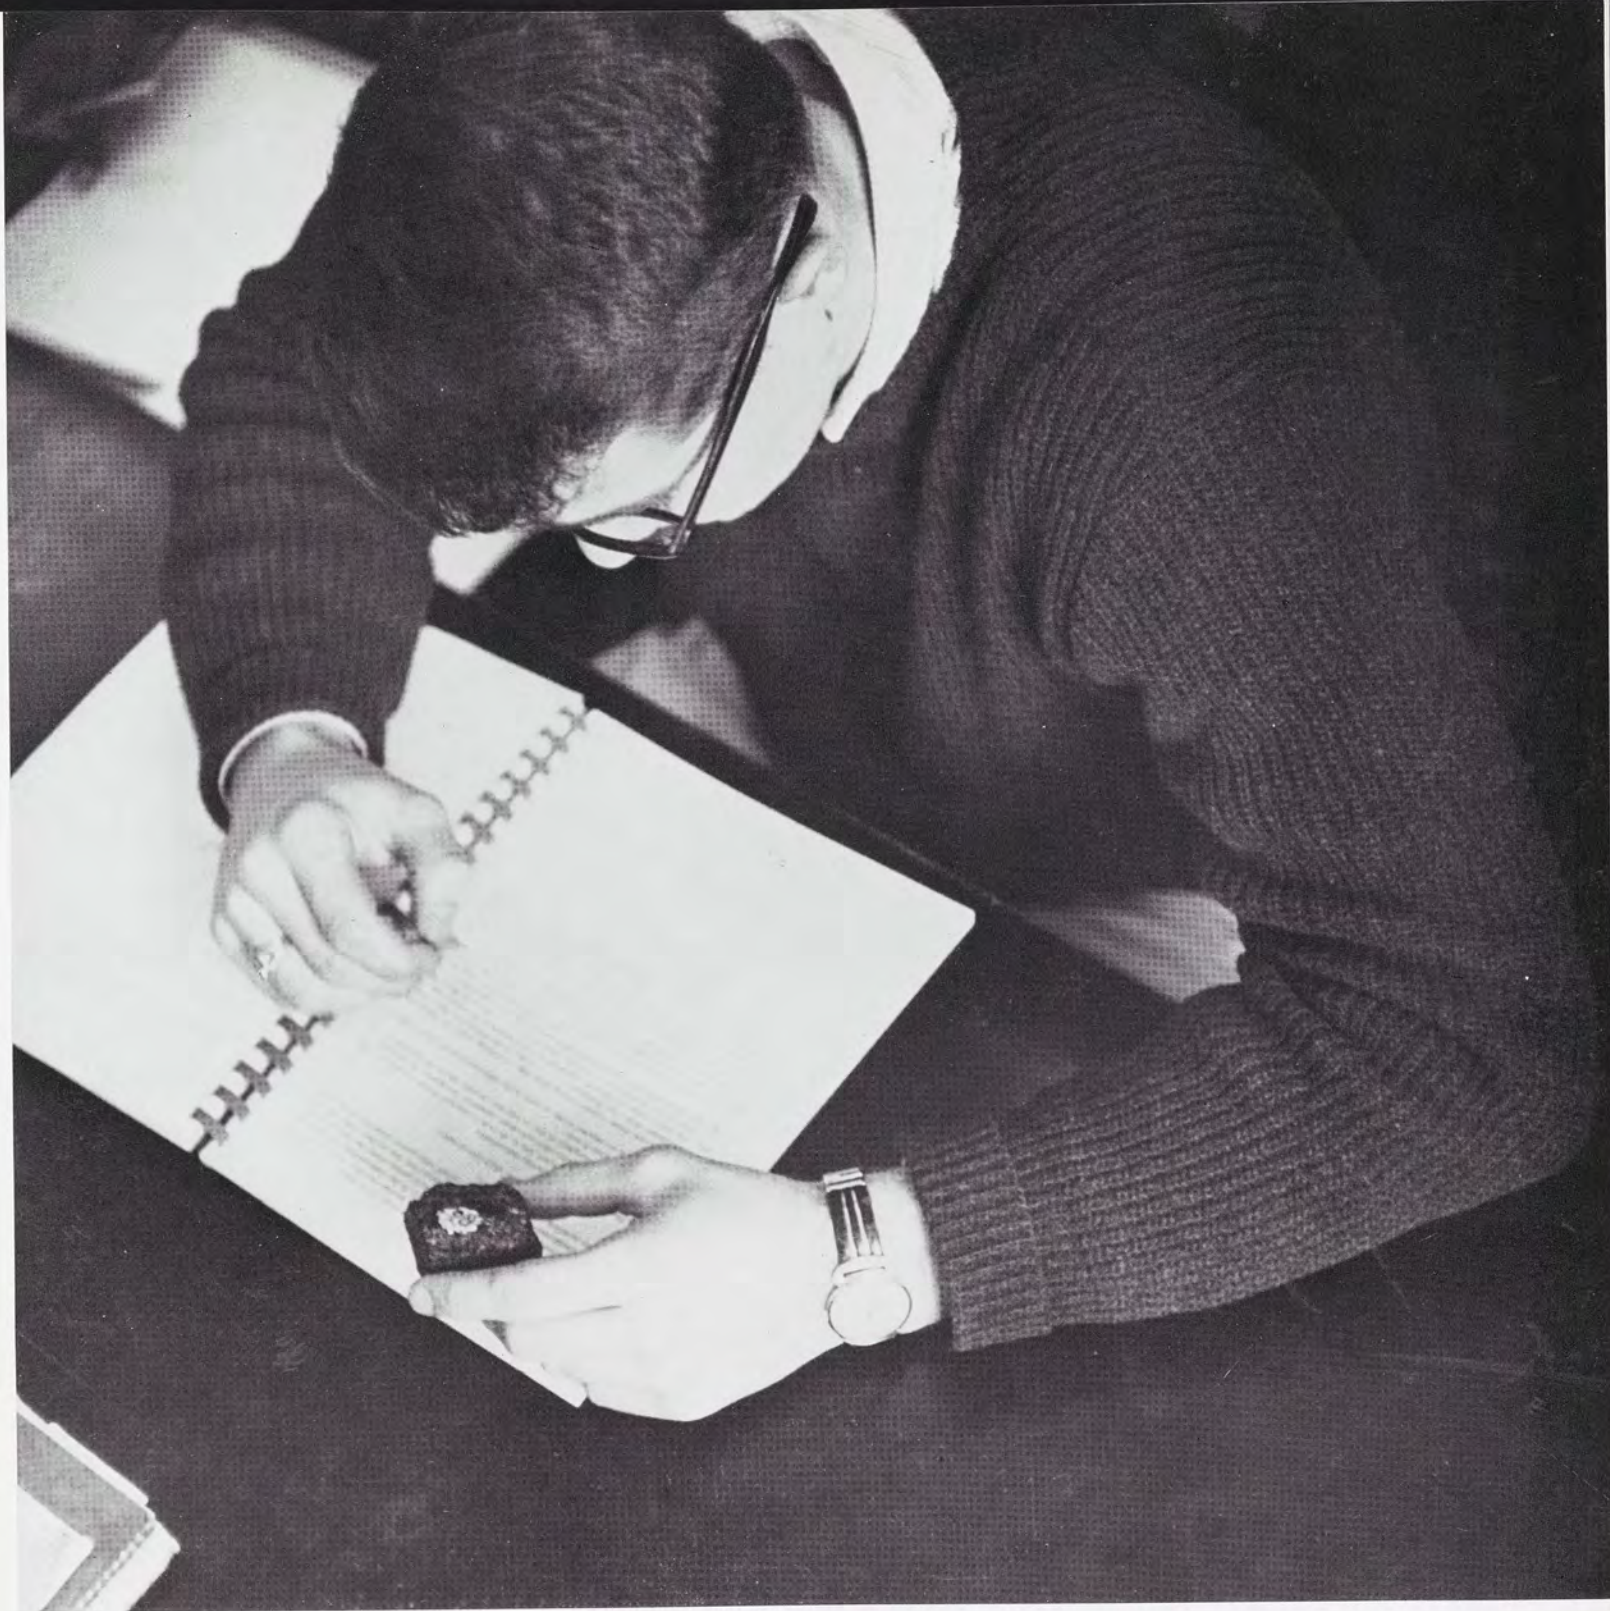

In humanities, students examine man as an unique creative being, concentrating upon the intellectual aspects of social life.

The Basic College office keeps complete files on the academic records of all students until they enter the upper division.

Two students study in the Honors College lounge, which is equipped with modern furniture, travel posters, and the latest scientific and literary journals.

Exceptionally capable students find themselves uniquely challenged by the Honors College, the first program of its kind established in U.S. higher education.

The College, created in 1957, offers the superior student opportunity to progress at his own rate, to constantly prove himself by doing the most advanced work for which he is ready.

Usual requirements for graduation are waived for Honors College members who gain admittance by achieving a 3.5 (B plus) or better by the end of their freshman or sophomore year.

Dr. Stanley J. Idzerda, director of Honors College, is the only fulltime faculty member in the nation whose offices are devoted solely to the interests and welfare of the superior undergraduate student.

Honors students receive special privileges including the chance to gain course credit by examination, to study independently under a faculty member, to take advance courses without completing prerequisites and to take graduate courses.

The members of the College are invited to faculty and graduate colloquia and seminars and participate in special Honors College seminars. They can use the library stacks, relax in a special lounge on the Library's third floor and register on the first day of registration.

The gifted students can also enhance their education by working as graduate research assistants for members of the faculty. Seventy-five students were placed and subsequently recommended by the faculty for their high quality.

Dr. Idzerda checks with his secretary on arrangements for a luncheon meeting of the Honors College Advisory Committee. The group, composed of Dr. Idzerda, his assistant Mr. Hess, and ten students, meets monthly to plan the academic program of the College.

MSU graduate students are supplied with special desks in the stacks of the library. Here they study—"far from the maddening crowds."

SCHOOL FOR ADVANCED GRADUATE STUDIES

Graduate students may consider themselves a distinguished minority at MSU since they number 3000 and are seeking advanced degrees.

Up to last year the graduate school has been the fastest growing school on campus, creating a desirable shift in the graduate-undergraduate ratio which emphasizes the increasing excellence of MSU. During summer term the grad students outnumber the undergraduates.

Because of this growth grad students lived in grad dorms, Mary Mayo and Armstrong, for the first time this year. Thus, the grad students had the advantages of better study facilities and stimulation of living with others with mutual intellectual interests.

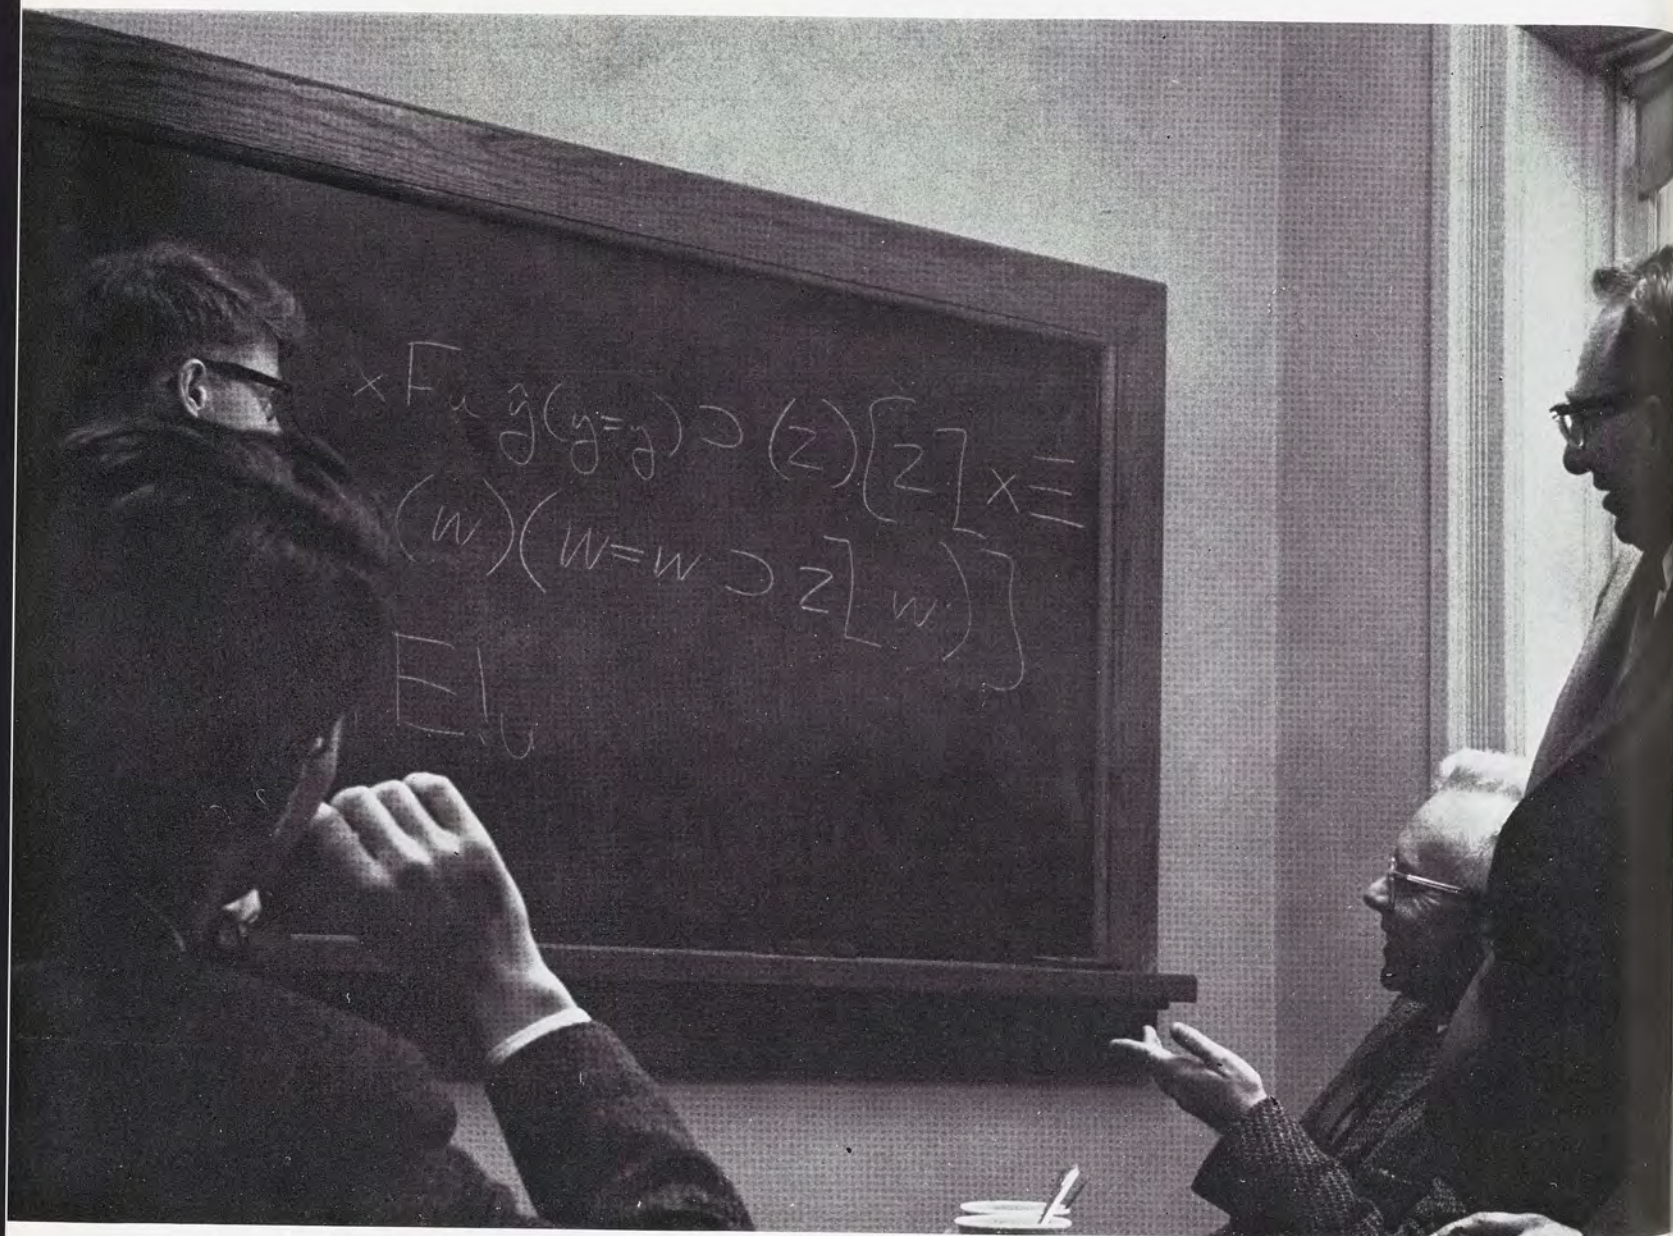

Newer and better things are planned for graduate dormitory living in September. A graduate dorm residence center is being built near Van Hoosen and should be completed during fall term.

The new grad dorm will feature a social center which will enable graduate student-faculty relationships to become more informally based through meetings and recreation.

MSU's graduate school offers the doctorate and masters degrees in 65 departments and masters degrees in an additional 10 departments. Eight colleges offer 260 areas of study. Last year 46 doctorates and 65 masters degrees were awarded. Forty-nine students received the Doctor of Veterinary medicine degree.

Construction on a new graduate dormitory, located near Van Hoosen, began this year. The dorm is expected to open next fall.

Graduate students ponder a difficult problem in a course in symbolic logic, given by the Philosophy department.

The degree is the main attraction of graduate school, although many students seek advanced degrees merely because of their need for more knowledge to sustain them in our changing society. MSU has a smorgasbord of knowledge and intellectual activities of which students can take advantage, but not even the most interested can digest all of them.

A step forward was taken this year when the responsibility for the graduate program was put under the jurisdiction of each college. By highly centralizing the requirements of graduate students in each college, a more direct relationship is established between the students, the faculty and the individual colleges in which they are enrolled. All the colleges now have a clear responsibility of administering their advanced programs within the established university requirements.

This year two new academic programs were approved — the Doctor of Business Administration degree and a Diploma for Advanced Graduate Study. The latter promises to be of exceptional interest to students who would like to take a two-year sequence of graduate studies but who do not plan necessarily to complete the Ph.D. degree.

Recognizing the importance of scholarly activity, the School of Advanced Graduate Studies has approved the establishment of the position of "University Scholar." Appointments to this position will give recognition and support to outstanding scholars.

MSU Oakland's pioneer class of 1963 began its college career in September with a total enrollment of 570 students. The students began the experience of studying under a new type of curriculum oriented toward liberal arts education from a modern viewpoint.

The curriculum for MSUO was planned from a special report made by outstanding educational leaders consisting of Oakland citizens, MSU administrators and faculty members and MSU Honors College students. The purpose of the year's study was to give the branch a "forward look." Oakland students devote 50 percent of their studies to liberal arts.

MSUO is located 90 miles from East Lansing on Meadow Brook farm, the 1,600 acre estate of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson.

Vocational and technical courses are minimized at Oakland. In liberalizing the curriculum, all students (except science and engineering majors) will be required to develop a thorough knowledge and skill in at least one foreign language. Particular emphasis is placed on the Russian language. A full-year sequence dealing with foreign studies is mandatory for the students. The number of courses offered are limited, but depth and quality are stressed.

After completing one term of the modern education program, three students had made straight "A" records. Twelve received notice of "Great Distinction" and 38 received "Distinction."

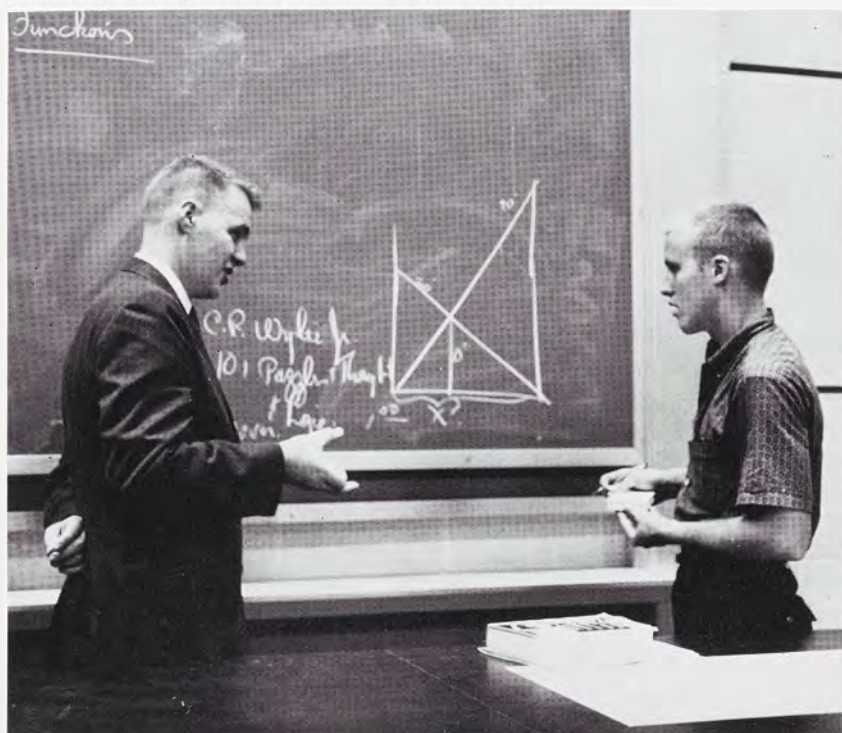

MSUO offers degrees in business administration, engineering, teacher education and liberal arts. In the future graduate degrees will be added.

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY—OAKLAND

The MSUO library, located in Foundation Hall, began last September with just magazines. It will have over 10,000 books by June, 1960.

The only alternative to a foreign language is a mathematics course beginning with calculus. Here James McKay, associate professor of math, instructs a student before a class.

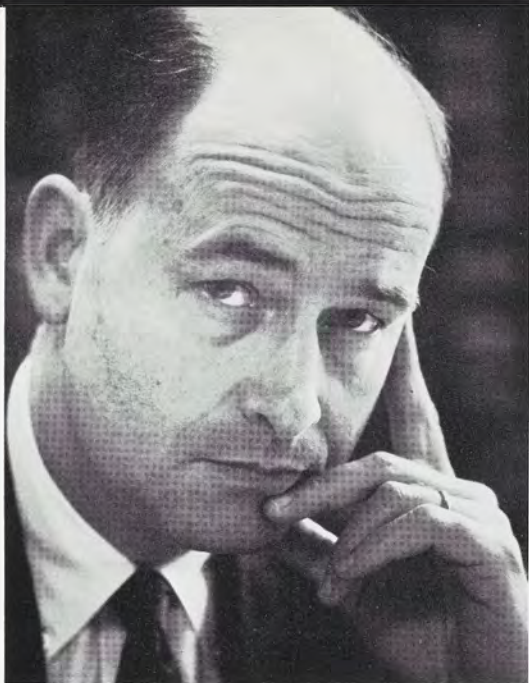

Although campus recreational facilities are still limited, MSUO students make the most of their Union and campus. Here a couple meets outside Foundation Hall between classes.

Foundation Hall, the main building of MSUO, is equipped with the latest educational facilities for both students and faculty.

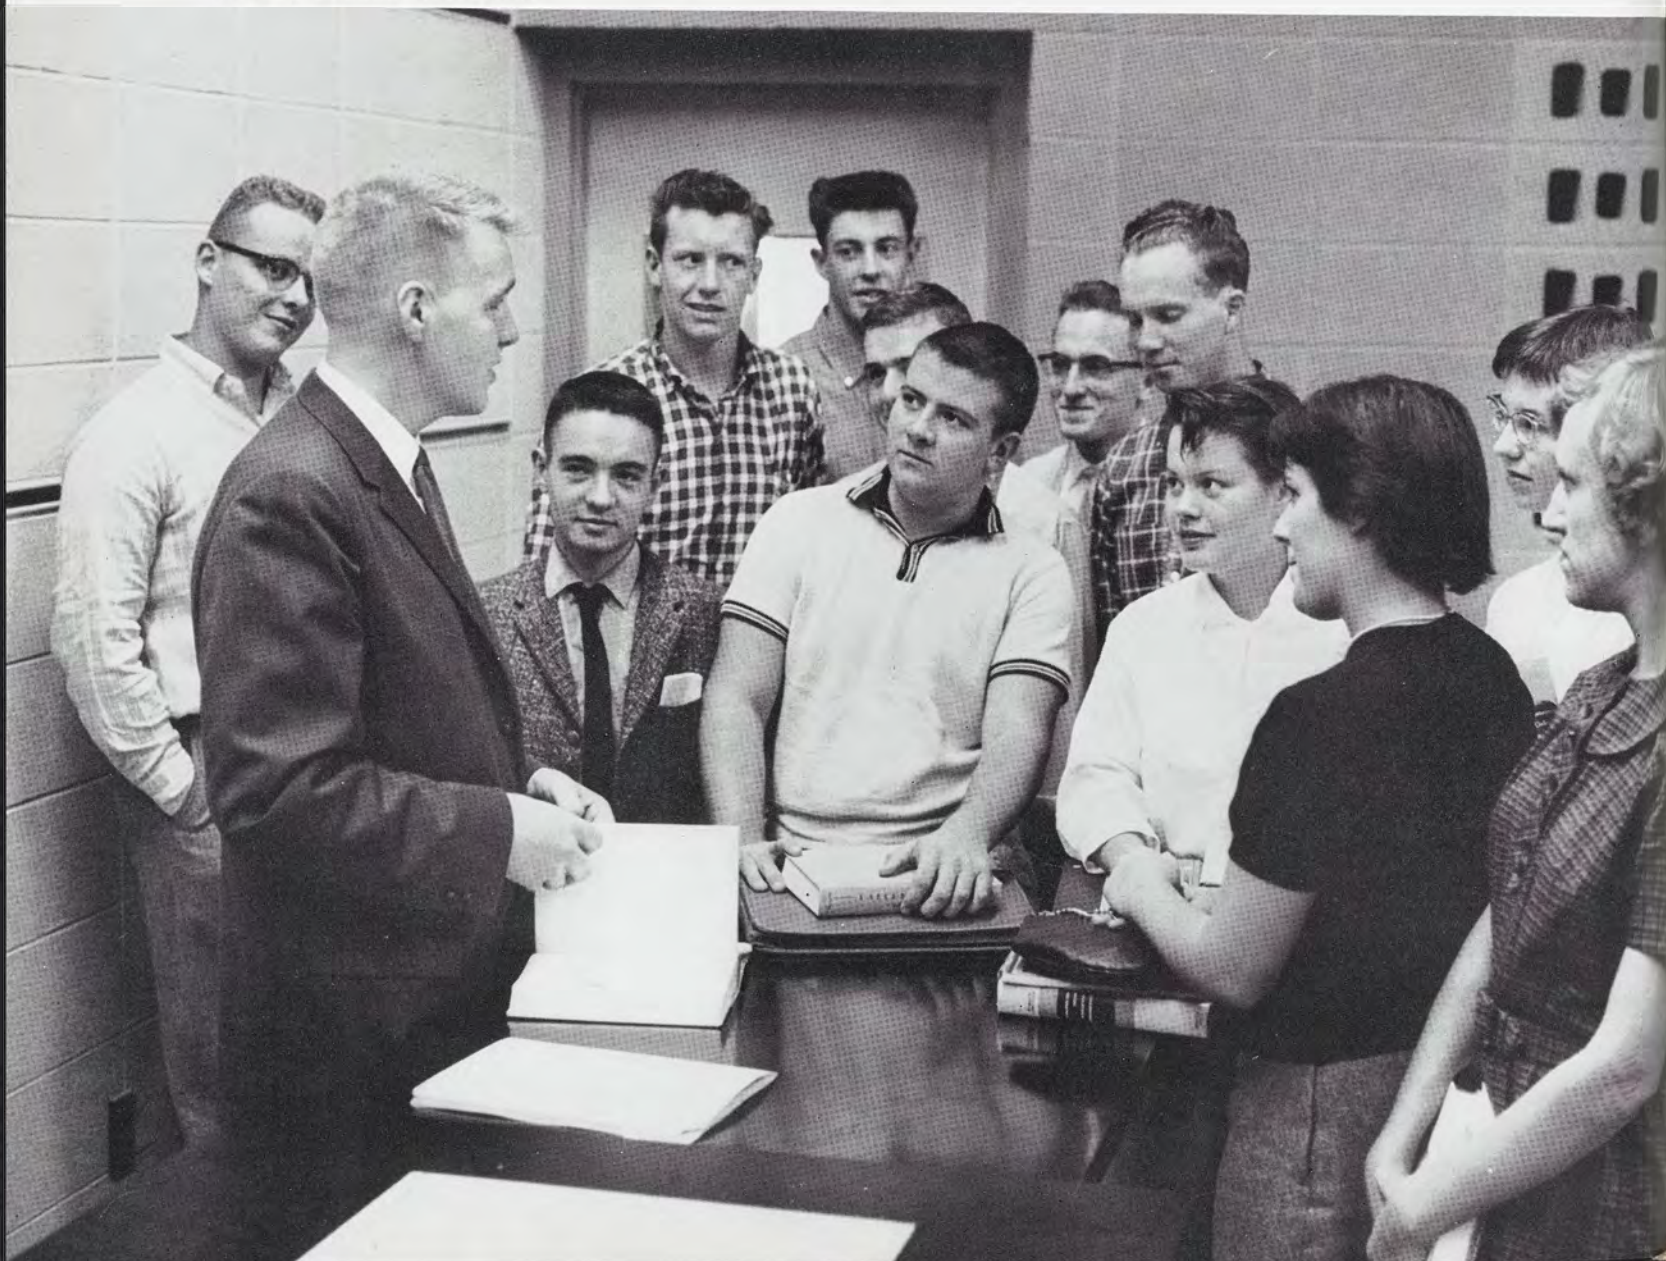

Durward B. Varner, Chancellor of Michigan State University Oakland.

MSU students who complain about ROTC and physical education have cause for jealousy because MSUO's curriculum contains neither. Intramural sports did begin winter term with sports ranging from archery, bowling and golf to skiing.

The Oakland branch began publishing a weekly newspaper at the end of fall term. The students named their paper "The Oakland Observer" and one issue took advantage of students' observations on how they liked being called a branch of MSU. Comments printed were serious and humorous, but they were all unfavorable. One student suggested that the name MSUO be changed to Meadow Brook University.

Another new tradition for MSUO is the planning of their first yearbook. The annual, "The MSUO Story," will be a documentary telling of the concepts and ideas upon which Oakland was founded.

The aspirations of the MSUO staff include a close student-faculty relationship. Here James McKay talks informally with a group of students after class.

Youth, vitality, and talent are the chief attributes of the MSUO faculty, pictured at the fall dedication ceremony.

The faculty at MSUO consists of the youngest, most promising teachers in the country. Chancellor Varner hand-picked the 25 staff members from more than 250 applications which were received.

Of the 25 instructors, 23 hold doctoral degrees. This impressive figure of 92% gives to the Oakland branch the distinction of having the highest percentage of earned doctoral degrees of any university in the United States.

The youth of the faculty (the average age is 33) makes them ever aware of the momentous task which they are undertaking. The pioneer spirit is theirs with which to work toward the ideals and goals for which MSUO is striving; a new concept of higher education. Spoon feeding is out; the emphasis is, instead, upon helping the students to learn.

An ROTC class snaps to attention as the instructor enters the room.

Long regarded as a controversy, the compulsory v. voluntary ROTC issue boiled over this year on campus.

Charges and countercharges were hurled by the supporters of either side right up until the April Board of Trustees' decision to retain the compulsory program. This ended the heated issue, at least temporarily.

Despite the raging battle that was going on about it, the ROTC program was carried on as usual during the school year. The freshman got his first taste of marching and the sophomore generally plodded through what probably was his last year in the program.

Symbolic of conservatism, a nun gazes at a space suit, a herald of an age to come.

Several MSU ROTC cadets inspect an Army helicopter during a fire power demonstration at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

For those men who went into the advanced ROTC program, there was the promise of a reserve officer's commission and a career in either the Army or Air Force waiting at the end of four years of training.

Each summer finds the advanced cadet taking time out from his vacation time job to attend a summer camp session that ranges in length from four to six weeks. It is at this session that the cadets learn the responsibilities of a military officer as well as the proper handling of weapons.

Summer camp is also where the cadet staff appointments for the coming school year are announced. In conjunction with this, the naming of the distinguished cadets also takes place at these sessions.

An ROTC instructor goes over a military attack plan with his class.

Colonel Thomas Barrett, Professor of Air Science, talks with Colonel Merton Munson, Professor of Military Science.

When the advanced cadet isn't involved with classroom training, he's probably busy flying through the "wild blue yonder" in a plane operated out of Capital City airport. And if he has any spare time left after this, he's no doubt striving to acquire membership in the Arnold Air Society, Pershing Rifles, Scabbard and Blade or the Officers' Club all of which are national military organizations.

Spring is a busy season for the Army and Air Force ROTC, especially Tuesdays when weekly parades are held on Old College Field. One Tuesday is devoted to a parade on Grand River Avenue at which time cadets have their chance to demonstrate what they've been learning throughout the year on the drill field.

The culmination of the ROTC program is the annual commissioning ceremony, held on the Saturday preceding spring term final exams. At this year's ceremonies General Lyman Lemnitzer, Chief of Staff of the U. S. Army, was the principal speaker.

Army ROTC seniors choose either two years or six months of active duty training. Air Force flying cadets serve for five years, non-flying cadets for three years and others for six months. Distinguished graduates of both branches may choose regular commissions.

ROTC at MSU looks toward the future with a new plan for transferring 30 percent of its classroom training into the hands of regular university instructors next fall.

STUDENT SERVICES

1959-60 was Gordon A. Sabine's second productive year as Director of Admissions and Scholarships.

Admissions and Finances Freshmen enrollment at MSU jumped 26 percent this fall. With 3,823 enrolled, MSU had the largest freshman class in its history. And, along with the preceding class, it is one of the smartest. Why?

MSU's admissions policy, directed by the new Office of Admissions and Scholarships with Gordon Sabine as head, is responsible in part for this high-quality enrollment. Unlike some public institutions, MSU does not have to accept every high school graduate who applies. The university picks and chooses by practicing selective admissions. Any number of freshmen will be admitted who meet a pre-determined level of ability. The level of admissions threshold stays constant, but the size of the freshman class will vary from year to year, depending upon the number of qualified students who apply. Any application where there is doubt as to the individual's ability for college is gone over personally by Sabine.

Students interested in having friends from home "go MSU" can become Spartan ambassadors and take part in the recruitment program. Faculty and students visit high schools to tell prospective students about MSU.

There were 673 awards made this year by the Office of Scholarships and of the students in this group, every one came from the top quarter of his high school class. Every one had a high school grade average of 3.00 (B) or better. Twenty-three were winners of the Westinghouse Science Talent awards.

Henry C. Dykema, Assistant Director of Men's Division of Student Affairs, talks over scholarship openings with Paul D. Bagwell, Director of Scholarships.

The Admissions office is kept busy year-round obtaining and processing information on new or prospective students.

The Counseling Center in the Student Services Building contains many small consultation rooms, in which students talk over personal and academic problems with trained personnel.

Efficient records are kept on students who request guidance or testing services, although all information is strictly private.

Counseling Center Students troubled by everything from pre-exam panic to marriage difficulties can find personal attention and guidance at MSU's Counseling Center.

The center's staff of 17 full-time clinical psychologists and several third-year graduate students working part-time met with more than 4,500 students last year, according to Dr. Donald Grummon, director of the center.

The numerous tests given by the clinic from time to time are well-known to most MSU students. There are 500 such tests on file, many of them designed to suit individual needs of students seeking guidance.

Tests are taken in testing rooms and are followed up by an interview with a counselor who helps the student discuss test results in the light of his high school records and personal background. These tests help pinpoint the reasons for the student's difficulties, and aid in finding the solutions.

Perhaps the most famous of the tests, given by the center, are the ones given to freshmen and transfers at the beginning of registration week in September. A large percentage of the freshmen can escape taking all the tests during Welcome Week, however, by attending the summer counseling clinics offered by the center under the direction of Dr. Thomas Goodrich. By these clinics freshmen become oriented to college life prior to registration.

Every summer 11 clinics of three days each are held. Last summer 2,440 freshmen, approximately 65 percent of the incoming class, participated in the program. For every 12 students there was one counselor to help them through the round of tests and activities.

No problem is too insignificant to justify coming to the center. Like anyone else, a university student is subject to the tensions and problems of daily living. Ability to cope with problems effectively is vital to personal well-being. It is in recognition that such concerns may interfere with the student's over-all success that the Counseling Center exists.

With a steady stream of students using the Center's services, the switchboard is kept busy making and breaking appointments.

The waiting room of the Counseling Center, on the second floor of the Student Services, is usually filled with students waiting to take tests or talk with counsellors.

Placement Bureau The Placement Bureau is a big friendly place where futures are started for MSU students and alumni every day. Companies from all across the country scheduled thousands of interviews each year to find just the right people for the job openings in their firms.

Located on the first floor of the Student Services building, the bureau has 21 interviewing rooms, a library of information about business and industry, offices for the staff, a machine room where credentials are compiled and duplicated, office room where the bookwork is done, a conference room and even showers for recruiters who arrive in the morning after all night trips.

The Placement Bureau attracted more employers to MSU than ever. Over 12,000 interviews were conducted through the year as compared with 7,200 the year before.

John R. Kinney, director of the bureau, is aided by assistant directors, John D. Shingleton, business and industry; Edwin B. Fitzpatrick, student employment; and George E. Peterson, education.

Graduating seniors schedule about ten interviews. If a senior does not take a job when he graduates he can request his files to be "kept active" and he will be notified from time to time about possible jobs.

Students sign up at the main desk in the bureau lobby two or three days before the interview date.

Senior men talk or glance over job openings in the Placement Bureau lobby while awaiting interviews.

Bulletin boards in the Placement Bureau list full-time and part-time jobs for both seniors and graduates. This senior looks over an interview schedule for the coming week.

Part time jobs for students is a big business. Persons from both campus and city come to the Placement Bureau with requests for students to work part time. Jobs range from baby sitting and housework to assisting in research projects.

Besides job placement the bureau sponsors Career Carnival in the fall and a summer job "kickoff" winter term.

During Career Carnival representatives from the larger industries and business come to MSU with displays, brochures and information about their particular companys.

The carnival was held this year in the Union with over 70 companies participating. RAMRAC, an electronic brain, came to the event, courtesy of IBM.

The kickoff for summer employment is co-sponsored with Spartan Women's League. Camp and resort personnel are available to answer questions about wages and types of summer jobs that can be filled by students.

The efficiency of the workers at the main desk is largely responsible for the tremendous number of job interviews that can be scheduled in a single day.

Starr Keesler, Director of Alumni Relations, jokes with Assistant Director Ward Ouradnik, Development Fund Director Robert Toll, and Assistant Director Don Mason.

Alumni Relations Contact with the university does not end with graduation. Alumni Relations, 47 year-old branch of the administration, is the liaison between the university and its alumni. With its active mailing list of 62,500 former students, the office interprets the progress and problems of MSU to alumni scattered throughout the nation. Acting in reverse, the office also brings alumni ideas and suggestions to the attention of the university.

The four-member staff works directly with over 100 alumni clubs in coordinating these organizations' various projects—ranging from scholarships and fund solicitation to promotion of MSU to prospective students. Films, speakers and special programs are arranged for the clubs by people of this office.

Homecoming activities and class reunions are under the direction of Alumni Relations, also. The alumni magazine works closely with the office in reporting university news to graduates.

The services of Olin, ranging from flu pills to surgery, are available to MSU students around the clock.

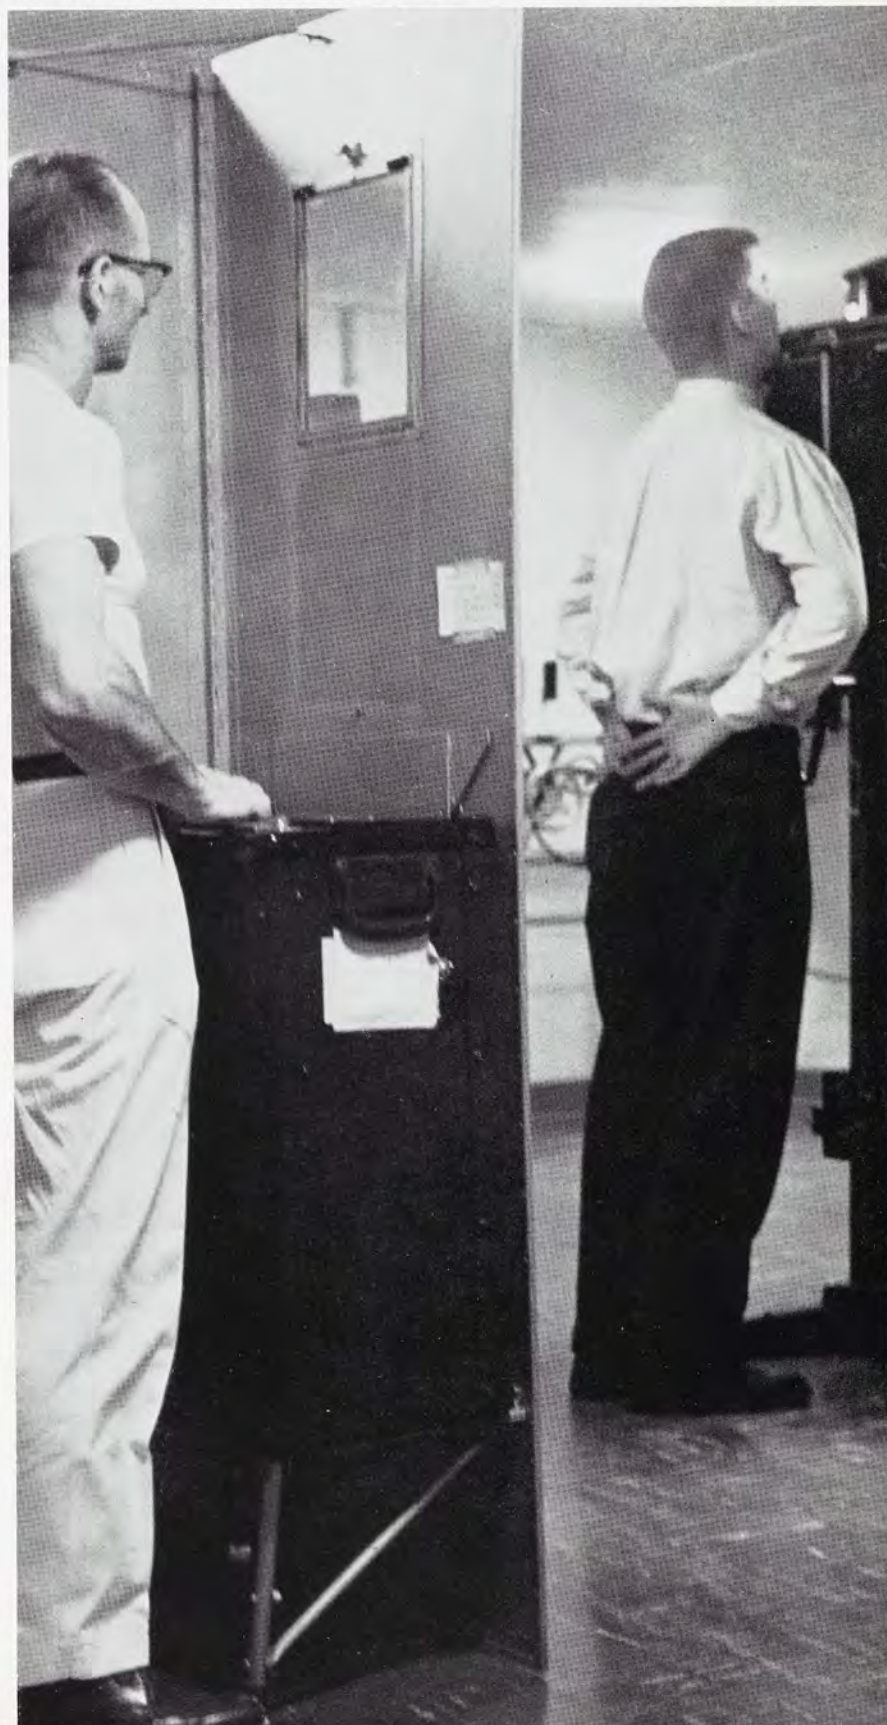

Olin Memorial Health Center The one building that almost every student enters at least once during his college career is Olin Health Center. Each year hundreds of students pass through Olin, complaining of ailments ranging all the way from the sniffles to broken bones.

The health center is equipped with physical therapy and x-ray departments and a complete pharmacy. Classified as a general acute hospital, the center works along with the department of public service in sanitation and accident cases. Olin also has a clinical lab and a mental hygiene department. Generally, there are 61 employees under the direction of Dr. James Feurig. They include seven doctors and eight in the housekeeping department.

Any one may use the health center's facilities as long as he is a student. Almost any time during the day a person passing through Olin will see 10 to 20 students seated on couches studying, talking or just listening to the piped-in-music — all waiting to see the doctor.

The most common reasons for making the trip to Olin are upper respiratory infections which include colds and ear, nose and throat infections. Some students are hospitalized for long periods of time with mononucleosis and broken bones which are frequent occurrences.

Chest X-rays are required of all entering freshmen, but are available to all members of the university. A mobile unit is available to help with the extra rush during registration week fall term.

COMMUNITY SERVICES

Continuing Education Education doesn't stop when one graduates from college. MSU offers more knowledge to avid students, old and young, through its Continuing Education program, extension classes and the Evening College.

The Continuing Education program includes more than 400 educational conferences each year, more than 500 extension courses, and the Institute for Community Development.

MSU provides extension courses off-campus, under the direction of Louis Doyle, to about 10,000 people wanting either credit for bachelor's or advanced degrees or just the intellectual experience.

Aside from accomodating guests and hosting civic, state and university functions, Kellogg Center for Continuing Education serves as a first-rate training ground for prospective hotel and restaurant managers.

Extension centers are in Benton Harbor, Grand Rapids, Traverse City, Saginaw, plus others totaling 50. These off-campus courses, given by almost all colleges of MSU, are held in high school or community college buildings in the areas.

Practically every college also offers extra courses on campus in the Evening College, directed by Clair Taylor. Credit and non-credit courses are offered to 3500-3700 students every term.

Of these 2,000 go part-time in the day, 1,200 are strictly in evening school and 3,400 are enrolled in the non-credit courses in real estate, art, foreign languages, physical fitness and other fields.

Noel P. Ralston, Assistant Dean of Agriculture and Director of the Cooperative Extension Service, is in charge of the entire extension program of MSU.

Farmers' Week is but one of the many events planned through the continuing education service. These farmers are checking some new equipment on display.

Radio and Television Students in radio and TV courses have two well-equipped "labs" at their disposal in WMSB-TV and WKAR radio, university-owned and operated stations. These stations, plus the Giltner Hall closed circuit television operation, offer opportunities for students to gain extensive experience in the broadcasting media.

WKAR radio provides positions for students as production assistants, continuity writers and announcers. Some of these jobs start on an experience only basis. Many lead to paid positions on the student staff, letting students earn while they learn.

WKAR continues to lead in educational broadcasting. The station received the National Safety Council Awards for exceptional service to farm safety and over-all safety promotion.

The control man signals Matt Surrell that "all's set," and Matt begins his broadcast over WSWM, the University radio station.

A mapmaker from the Audio-Visual center plots the main broadcasting and transmitting stations in the Michigan area for a WMSB-TV show.

Producing a television show requires near-perfection in coordination and cooperation. A student in the control room carefully times the televising of a report.

WMSB-TV is the scene of the laboratory section of the television classes. While in class, the student becomes acquainted with the equipment and becomes aware of the problems of producing a television show. After completion of the beginning TV courses, the student is qualified for a position on the students' staff at the station.

WMSB-TV, a non-commercial station, shares time on Channel 10 with WILX-TV, a commercial station which operates from Onondaga. They are the first television stations in the world to combine the features of both educational and commercial broadcasting on one channel. The university uses time when its selected audiences can be reached most effectively; the commercial station uses time when educational programs can compete least effectively with sponsored programs of high quality.

Programming at the station is primarily educational. On "Classroom 10" Spanish, science, art, music and math are taught to Lansing third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades over closed circuit. A children's hour and women's program are also regular features, and occasionally a student production is put on the air.

Through the facilities of WKAR and WMSB-TV, the TV and radio major graduates with that all important experience.

Technicians from WMSB must make sure that the station's equipment is always in excellent working condition.

Audio-Visual Center Any student who remembers the day he saw a Gothic cathedral or a volcano erupting instead of the usual lecture can thank both his instructor and the Audio-Visual Center.

From the center's library of 5,724 films, pictures of thousands of the world's curiosities and treasures are being discussed daily in MSU classrooms.

The job of the Audio-Visual Center, directed by Charles F. Schuller, is to implement instruction. Visuals of all kinds can be produced, with the aid of the staff, in a relatively short time to help professors tell the story of even the newest discoveries in the modern world.

The Department of Natural Science is the biggest user of the center's facilities. Thirty-six basic films, set up by the department, are used consistently.

The Audio-Visual Center was created by faculty request to provide vital services for their professional work. A staff of specialists help set up programs suited to specific needs. They work with faculty members in selecting films which are bought.

Students have an opportunity to use the facilities of the center by taking courses in the Department of Teacher Education. Previewing films and running audio-visual equipment are done under the supervision and with the advice of the staff.

A technician from the Audio-Visual Center designs charts which will be used in testing and correcting visual acuity.

Museum Glamour and excitement can be found in those fossils and old bones one sees in the MSU museum as some students can tell you. Biology, history and anthropology step out of textbooks and are visually perceived in the exhibits at the museum. Classroom work is supplemented by the scrutiny of the curiosities that exist, or have existed, on earth.

An exhibit of the seven major habitat groups of North America, from the Arctic to the Tropics, is being erected with student help. The future curators learn the tricks of the museum trade as they make leaves, clean bones or do research. The exhibits are as authentic as possible because staff members have gone on location to collect specimens.

Expeditions and some exhibits are financed almost completely by non-state funds. Most of the money comes from private donations and some is derived from the MSU Development Fund.

Groups or individuals visiting the museum generally begin their tours on the lower floor where they see a maze devoted largely to the evolution of life. A favorite exhibit is a Bolivian mummy. This preserved eight-year-old girl has been in the museum since 1890.

The Museum contains many displays on a variety of subjects. This coed reads the commentary accompanying a bait casting display.

Visiting school children stare in amazement at the tremendous cast of a Tyrannosaurus head, located in the basement of the Museum.

Campus Police making the rounds seldom fail to spot the yellow sticker in an "undesignated area," as the student receiving this ticket will soon discover.

Public Safety Two behind-the-scenes services are the Department of Public Safety and Buildings and Utilities.

The Department of Public Safety performs two functions—policing and safety. Twenty-four uniformed full time police officers are responsible for the protection of life and property, the enforcement of local and state laws and the rendering of service to the university.

During rush hour traffic periods and other times when the campus is the scene of public events, the officers are assisted by students.

On the safety side, the department, among other duties, checks building plans for defects, disposes hazardous waste and provides respiratory protection.

Buildings and Utilities Practically no campus event—Water Carnival, Career Carnival, International Festival, to name a few—would take place without the aid and assistance of Buildings and Utilities. Men are furnished to help with chairs, seating, stage equipment, public address system and special lighting.

The department is in charge of the maintenance of campus buildings and operation of two power plants and the utility system.

The telephone switchboards in each on-campus living unit are under the care of Buildings and Utilities, saving money for many students. Their men keep cars in tune at the garage and motor pool for anticipated field trips.

A mechanic from the repair department works on one of the many repair jobs that come to the department throughout the year.

Although road repair is a year-round job for the Maintenance Department, damage from winter ice usually doubles repair work during the early spring.

MSU's international program attracts students from around the world on exchange and scholarship programs. Marianne McKenzie here discusses foreign cultures with international students at the Christmas Adventure for World Understanding.

This auditorium is used for many of the main meetings at the university's project in Viet Nam.

International Program With the aim of adding an international dimension on campus, MSU, sponsored by the International Cooperation Administration, directs an advisory program throughout various parts of the world.

The program has 75 specialists overseas giving aid in such matters as improving public administration, business and engineering techniques, teacher training, food production and nutritional standards and establishing and increasing usefulness of higher education institutions.

Nigeria should soon be added to the list of MSU's advisory programs in South Vietnam, Okinawa, Brazil, Colombia, Costa Rica, Pakistan and along the Mexican border.

The most extensive of these overseas programs is in South Vietnam where around 50 specialists are advising in the two basic areas of public administration and police administration.

In one of its youngest projects, MSU is providing advisory assistance in setting up academics for village development in East and West Pakistan.

This international dimension is gradually reflected in courses and research on campus. The program desires to make the student realize that he lives in the world and he should understand it in order to live in it. Besides distinguished speakers and foreign students on campus, the greatest impact of the international programs is felt in the classrooms by the teaching of returning faculty members.

the Athletics

MSU Athletic Director Biggie Munn was selected to the Football Hall of Fame in tribute to his fine coaching record.

The bigness which is the Big Ten is felt everywhere in athletics at MSU. The colors, thrills, sounds, and excitement blend together to become a spirit which is matched only by the more personal satisfaction gained from the extensive intramural program.

Intramural Facilities Michigan State's new three and one-half million dollar IM structure and the addition to the women's intramural building have provided expanded athletic, physical education and intramural sports programs for MSU students. The two buildings were financed through a moderate, long range increase in student entrance fees, and are intended to serve the recreational pursuits of the student body.

The men's IM building has provided among others the following new facilities: 12 handball and paddleball, four squash, eight tennis, 26 badminton, 11 volleyball, and seven basketball courts; indoor and outdoor swimming pools; four golf driving nets; wrestling, weight-lifting, training, table tennis, and combined fencing and archery rooms; four classrooms; and 11 offices for athletic, IM, and HPR staff members.

The addition to the women's building includes a pool; large gymnasium; large, medium and small activities rooms; 5,000 new locker spaces; lounge; and 17 new staff offices.

MSU gymnastics coach George Szypula instructs a beginning tumbling class in some fundamentals.

The magnificent new Men's Intramural building has provided modern facilities for the athletically inclined MSU students and faculty.

Olympic gold medal winner Carol Heiss, also winner of four national and four world titles, has made MSU her summer training quarters.

The men's Intramural Building has provided its facilities to many outstanding public sports events in addition to intramural service. Included among these have been the Michigan high school swimming and wrestling championships, the Big Ten swimming championships and the 1959 Pan-American Games swimming and wrestling tryouts.

The Pan-Am. wrestling trials required facilities for over 100 wrestlers while the swimming and diving trials, held in the new fifty-meter, L-shaped outdoor pool, required facilities for 350 contestants, including 150 women. The United States wrestling team, including MSU's Jim Ferguson, went on to win all eight gold medals in the Pan-Am. Games while the U. S. swimming team won nineteen out of twenty gold medals.

Another outstanding sports event conducted at the university is the summer figure skating clinic which annually presents a talent laden exhibition. The session lasts eight weeks and attracts over 150 of the nation's top skaters.

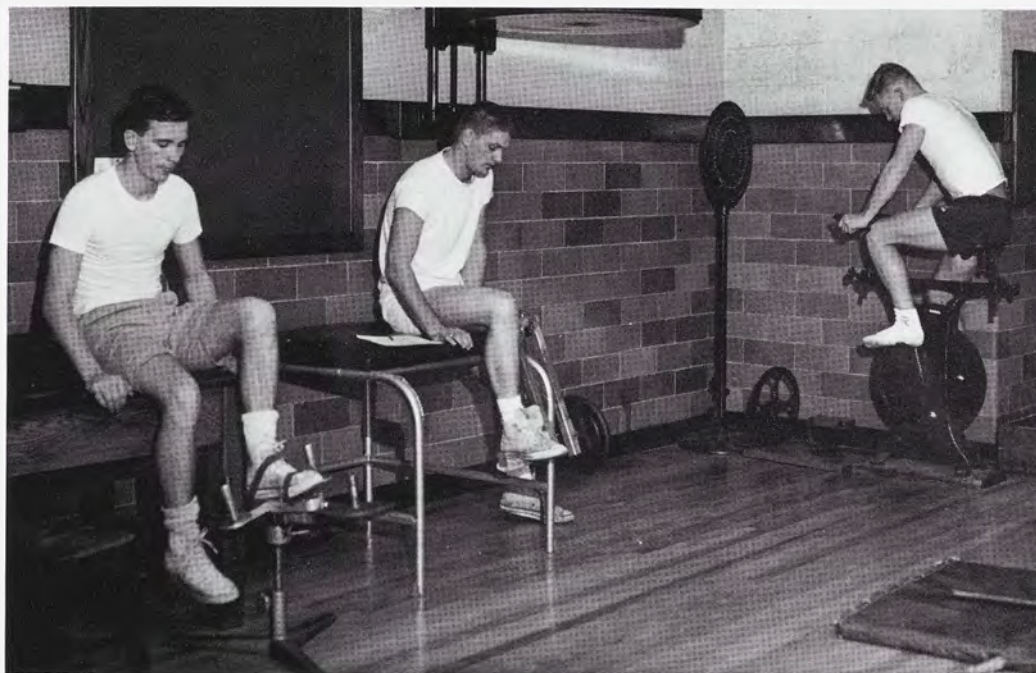

The victorious US Pan American Games swimming team was selected at the trials held in MSU's outdoor pool and was coached by Spartan swim coach Charles McCaffree, Jr.

Michigan State's Department of Physical Education provides a great variety of individual and team sports education, including this co-ed archery class.

The adapted-sports program at MSU is designed to aid students in developing proficiency in areas where they have physical weaknesses.

The men's new indoor pool, with its adjustable bulkhead and diving boards, has greatly expanded intramural and varsity swimming facilities.

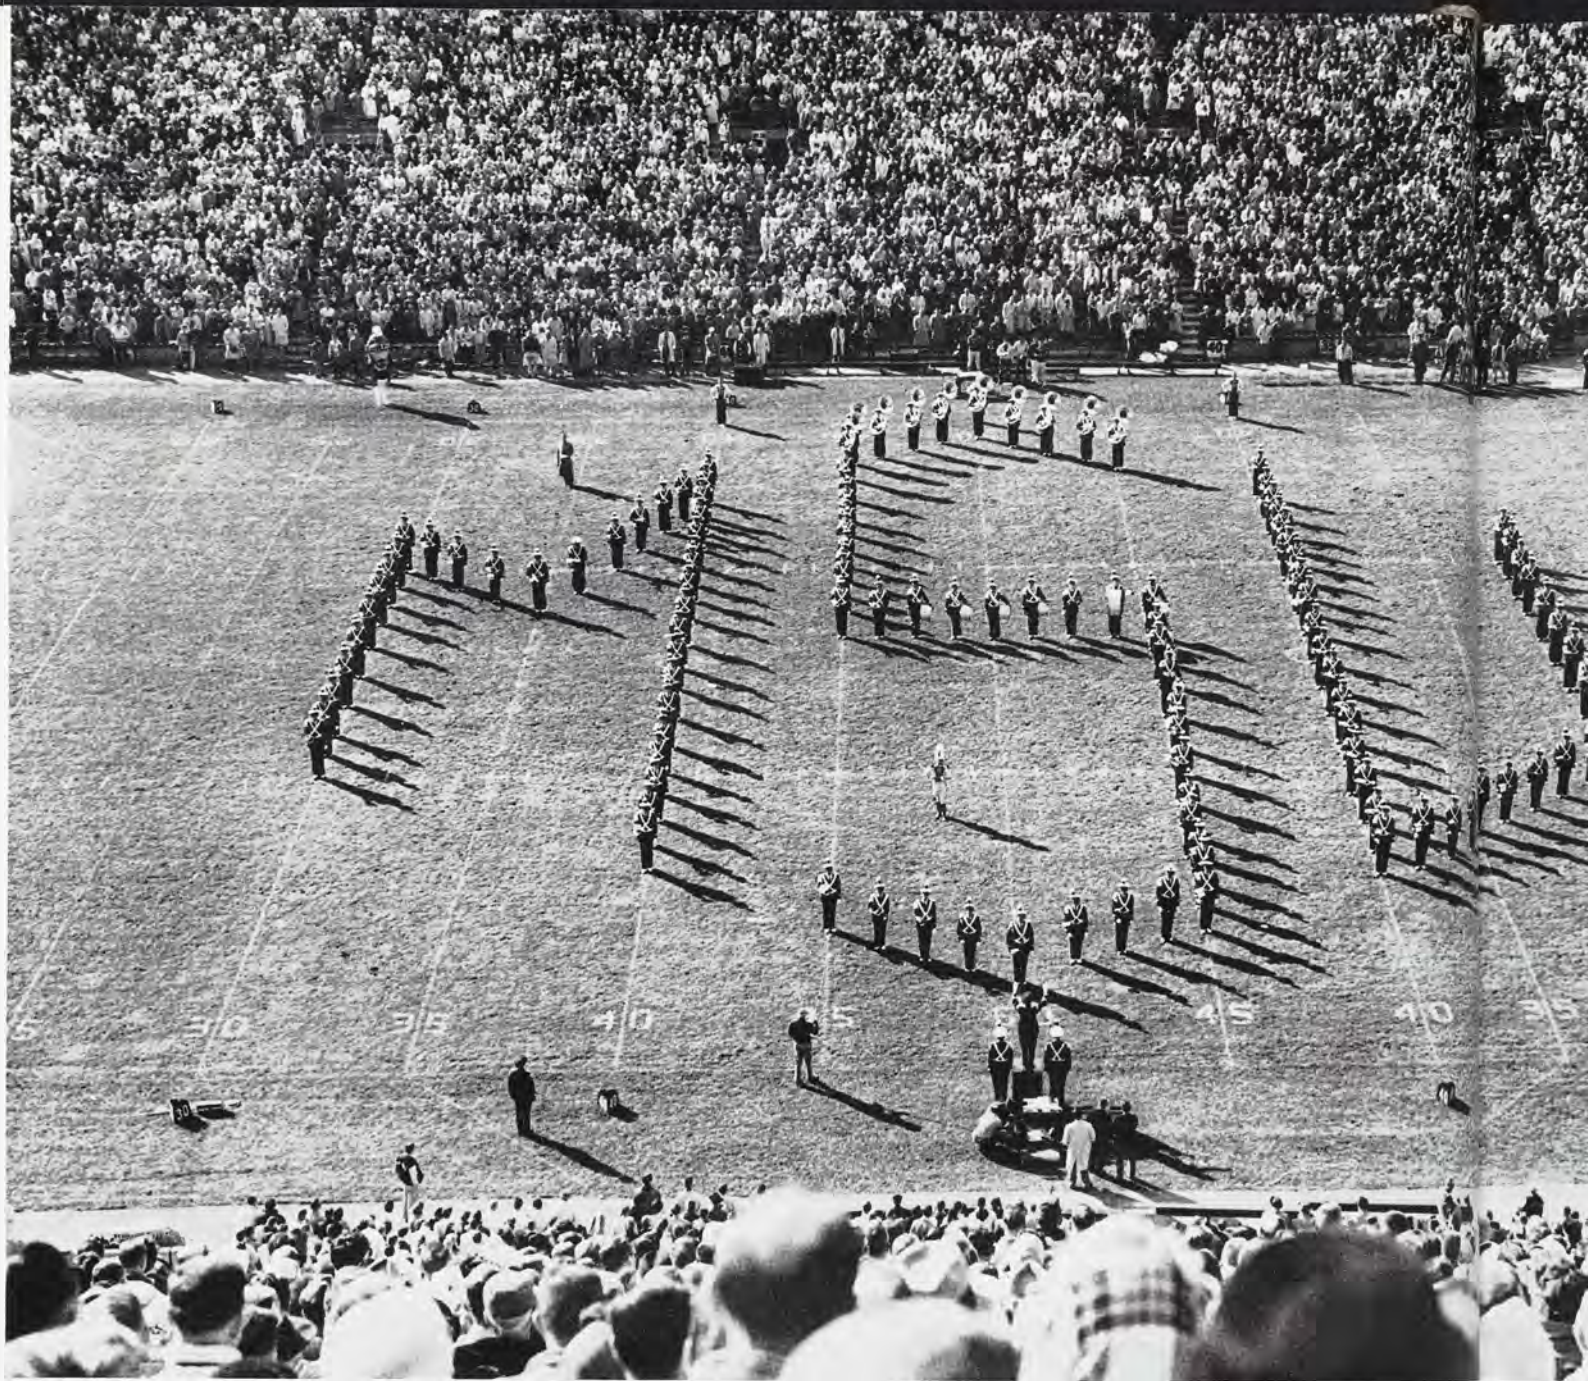

Aquatics The intramural pools have provided MSU with tremendous new competitive and recreational swimming and diving facilities. The men's indoor pool has often served the varsity and intramural teams, and the outdoor pool has provided the site for the Pan American Games tryouts.

The indoor pool is adjustable in length up to 33- $\frac{1}{2}$ meters by means of a movable bulkhead, and the diving area provides two one-meter and two adjustable three-meter diving boards and a seven-meter platform. The 50-meter, L-shaped outdoor pool provides two one-meter and two three-meter boards, and a diving tower with one-, three-, five-, seven-, and ten-meter platforms.

MSU Marching Band. The sparkling, green-suited Michigan State University Marching Band continued to treat the home football crowds in 1959 with its delightful music and clever and intricate maneuvers and formations. The 135 man band also entertained Ohio State and Michigan fans as Director Leonard Falcone's group accompanied Spartan gridders to Columbus and Ann Arbor. The Marching Band also performed at the football team orientation event and the fall ROTC convocation.

With the completion of the football season, the Marching Band disbands and members may join the Concert Band, also directed by Mr. Falcone, or the Activities Band, directed by Oscar Stover. The Concert band is primarily a serious group of musicians and performs concerts at MSU and throughout the midwest. Included among its performances last year was the entertaining of the Music Educators' National Conference in Chicago. The Activities Band shares basketball game concerts with the Concert Band and provides music for the fall pep rallies. This group consists of musicians playing for pleasure, music majors fulfilling requirements, and students working on musical improvement.

Baton twirler Alan Kramer, co-drum majors Ray Stewart and Bill Stutler, and twirler Bill Fellabaum were the highlight of many band performances.

FOOTBALL

Sellout football crowds resulted in long early morning ticket lines at the Jenison ticket office.

Head football coach Duffy Daugherty questions referee's decision and rules interpretation. Wonder who won the argument?

Michigan State's football team nearly earned a Rose Bowl trip in 1959 but had to settle for second place in the rugged Western Conference with a record of four wins and only two losses. Wisconsin edged Minnesota in a season-ending battle, enabling the Badgers to break a three-way first place deadlock with Northwestern and MSU and win the coveted post-season bowl trip.

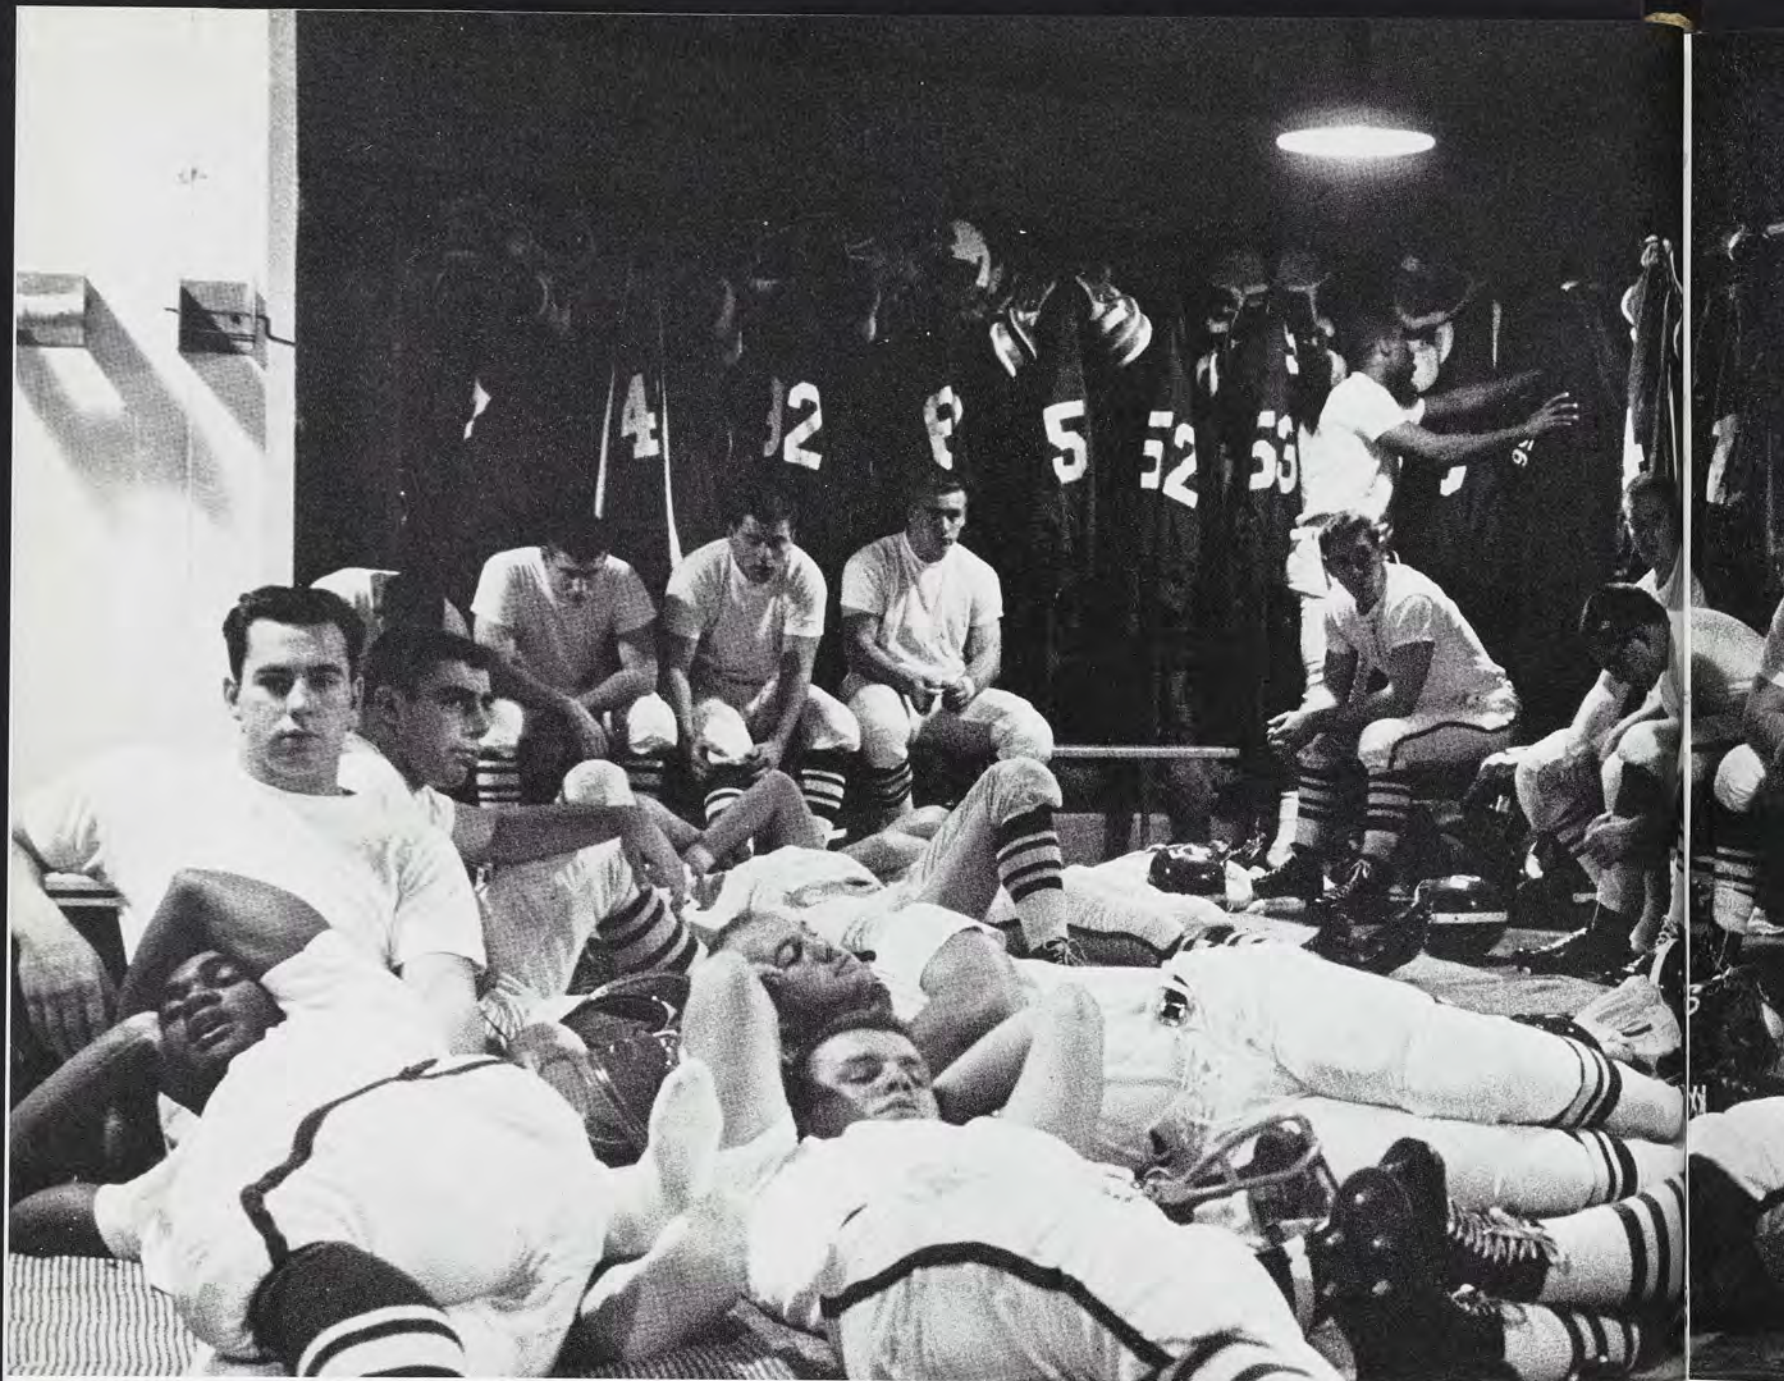

The Spartans' 4-2 conference record and second place finish was a great improvement over 1958's winless, cellar-dwelling position.

Coach Duffy Daugherty's charges claimed victories over Michigan, Notre Dame, Indiana, Purdue and Northwestern while suffering losses to conference rivals Iowa and Ohio State and intersectional foes Texas A&M and Miami.

The team's Most Valuable Player award went to senior quarterback Dean Look, who engineered the Spartans' five victories and led the team in total offense. The Ross trophy for the squad's outstanding scholar was awarded to senior fullback Blanche Martin, and the Oil Can award for the team's humorist went to Ed McLucas.

Halfback Herb Adderly (26) and end Jim Corgiat (82) team up to stop Notre Dame full-back Frank Gargiulo short of a touchdown.

Pre-game relaxation, despite promoting tension, is a must for optimum performance.

Spartan field general Dean Look, a halfback in 1958, won considerable national recognition for his outstanding play. During the season he was selected outstanding back of the week three times, and at the close of the season was named on almost every All-American selection. In addition, Look was named All-Big 10 quarterback and placed sixth in voting for the Heisman trophy which is annually awarded to the season's outstanding collegiate football player.

With a touchdown pass in each game that he started, Look led the Spartans to their excellent second place conference finish. He also broke an eighteen year-old passing record by completing all seven passes attempted against Northwestern. Look was second in conference passing with a .485 completion percentage, third in total offense with 597 yards gained, second in punting with a 38.5 average, and second in touchdown passes with seven. In total offense Look had a 5.1 yard average gain per play, second only to Iowa's Olen Treadway with a 5.2 average.

Several other Spartans received tribute for their outstanding contributions to Michigan State's 1959 gridiron success. Junior halfback Herb Adderley, State's leading ground gainer, and senior tackle Palmer Pyle, top offensive lineman, were named to the All-Conference third team and each received honorable mention in All-American selections. Sophomore center Dave Manders was a third Spartan to earn third team All-Big 10 selection. Pyle, along with Look and Blanche Martin, was also named to the East squad for the annual Shrine game at San Francisco. The East team was coached by MSU's Duffy Daugherty.

There was no rest between plays for quarterback Dean Look as he received direction from Duffy Daugherty and line coach Lou Agase.

Dean Look and Art Brandstatter surprised Indiana with a fake field goal attempt, good for six points.

Although the 1959 Spartan gridders finished ninth in conference defensive statistics, several outstanding defensive efforts were recorded, enabling the team to limit its season losses to four. Against Indiana two fourth period drives were halted only inches from the goal in preserving for State a one touchdown victory. In another contest, four consecutive Notre Dame thrusts from within the two yardline were turned back by the strong MSU defensive line. State went on to defeat the fighting Irish, 19-0. Against Northwestern defensive quarterback Bob Bercich single-handedly thwarted a fourth period sustained drive that threatened the Spartans' slim 15-10 lead. Bercich upended a Wildcat end with a bruising tackle, jarring loose the football, which was recovered by State.

Michigan State players receiving honorable mention on both All-Big Ten squads were senior guard and captain Don Wright, junior end Fred Arbanas and senior center Larry Cundiff. Junior guard Fred Boylen was also given All-America mention, and sophomore halfback Gary Ballman, All-Big Ten honorable mention.

Offensive statistical leadership went largely to Look and Adderley, but several other Spartans contributed greatly to the MSU offensive effort. Adderley led the team in rushing with 419 yards in 93 carries for a 4.5 average per carry, while Martin was second in rushing with 266 yards and Ballman third with 244 yards gained. Sophomore halfback Don Stewart carried 31 times for 138 yards and a 4.4 per try average. Martin's per carry average of 4.8 yards was high among active backs, although Bercich averaged 8.1 yards for seven ground attempts.

Look led in passing with 785 yards in 100 attempts and a .490 all-season completion percentage while Tom Wilson added 178 yards in 12 completions and a .340 percentage. Martin threw five passes and completed two for 76 yards, and Larry Bielat connected on six passes for 52 yards.

Adderley also led in pass receiving yardage with 256 yards on 13 catches, while Arbanas led in pass receiving with 15 catches good for 255 yards. Sophomore end Art Brandstatter ranked third in yardage and receiving as he gained 119 yards on seven catches. Jim Corgiat, another sophomore end, owned the best average gain mark of 27.2 yards as he caught four passes for 109 yards.

Ballman led all State scorers with five touchdowns and 30 points. Adderley was second with four touchdowns and 24 points while Brandstatter followed closely in third with 23 points, including three field goals and all of the Spartans' extra points.

The most avid fans of the heroic Spartan goal line stands this year were the never-tiring cheerleaders. Each spring over one hundred candidates compete for positions on the six man, six woman squad.

The 1959-60 squad included: seniors Maury Spencer, Dick Stafford, Tom Terry and Lynda Hopkins, and juniors Sue Beekman, Epee Bruckner, Kitty Paul, Marge Rohs, Bob Rorich, Sonny Kronenberg and Dick Beaudry, and sophomore Diane Tyczak. Miss Pauline Hess coached the group.

The squad returned from summer vacation one week early last fall to begin conditioning for football season. Many hours of diligent practice are required to perfect the cheers and pyramids seen on the field.

The close of football season marked only the midpoint of the cheerleading season as the squad turned its efforts to basketball games. In 1960 the entire squad cheered at all home games plus the Michigan game at Ann Arbor.

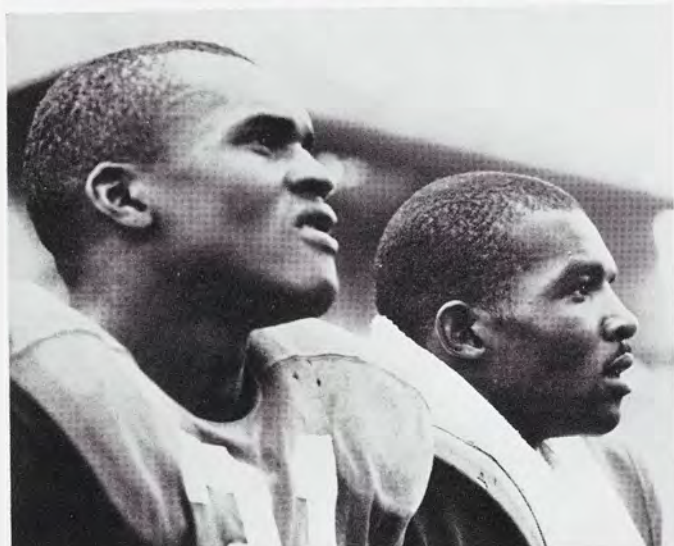

Cheerleading this past year had many bright highlights, including traveling to Ann Arbor, Columbus and Iowa City. During November the squad was featured in LIFE magazine, and they also worked with actor John Gavin, recording Spartan cheers for a motion picture sound track.

The Spartan defensive line stopped Notre Dame, including All-American George Izo, on four straight attempts from within the two yard line.

BASKETBALL

The Spartans' non-conference record, including over-time victories over Notre Dame and Nebraska and a loss to defending NCAA champion California, pushed them temporarily into twentieth place in the Big Ten dominated national rankings. The strength of Western Conference competition during the 1960 season is indicated as Ohio State, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa were also rated among the nation's top twenty teams. Big Ten champion Ohio State went on to wrest the NCAA crown from defending champion California, 75-55.

Senior Co-Captain Horace Walker, MSU scoring leader with 473 points in 21 games, led the post season honors parade as he was voted the team's most valuable player and was selected All-Big Ten forward and third team All-American.

Three other Spartan stars, Co-Captain Lance Olson, John Young and Dave Fahs, also garnered post season laurels. Olson, a senior and second leading scorer, won the Spartan Leadership award and was named to the All-Conference second team. Young, a senior and the late season sparkplug, won the Scofes Sportsmanship award; and Fahs, junior backcourt wizzard, was given All-Big Ten honorable mention.

Spartan scoring leader Horace Walker, All-Conference and All-America forward, drops in two of his 473 points.

The Spartans' opening 96-67 victory over Bowling Green was a great team effort with the forward line of Lance Olson, Art Gowans and Horace Walker leading the attack. Olson scored 33 points and grabbed 18 rebounds, Gowans added 24 points and 13 rebounds, and Walker 23 points and 18 rebounds.

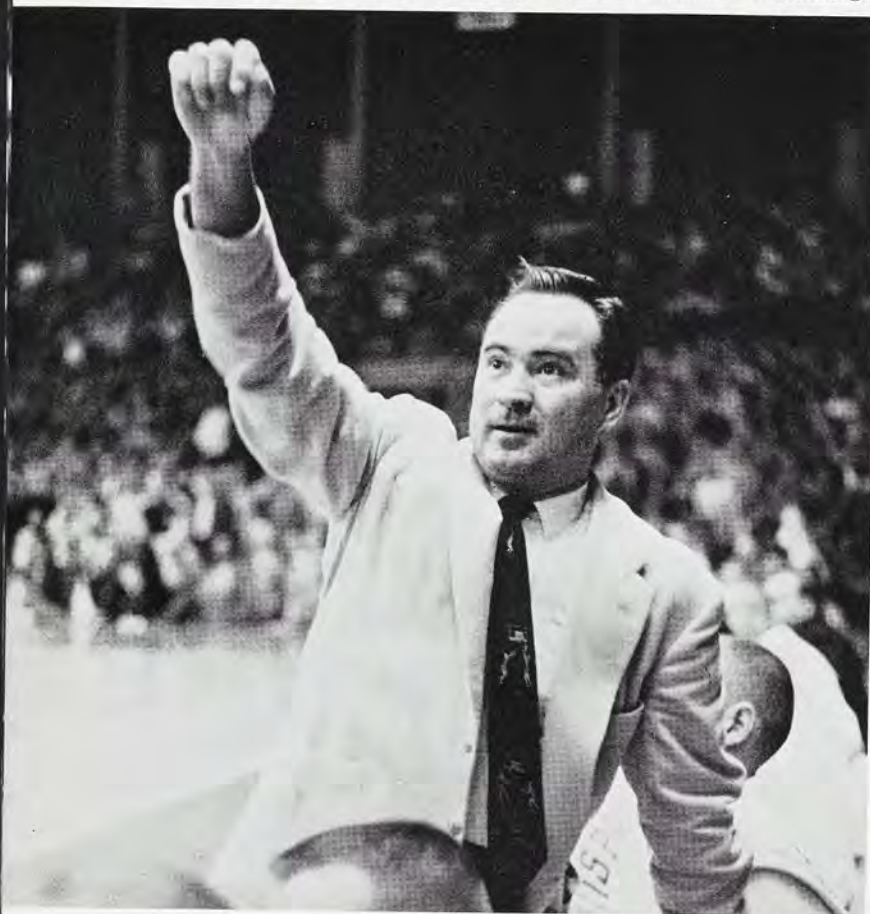

Gowans led a frantic, uphill, overtime victory against Notre Dame with 28 points including all five points scored in the extra period. Walker added 21 rebounds and Olson 13 to keep the Spartan offense alive.

The backcourt combination of Dave Fahs and Art Schwarm, coupled with a 69-37 rebounding advantage, led the 85-80 victory over Butler. Fahs had his greatest night with 23 points while Schwarm was adding 12 points.

In the Western Conference opener against Wisconsin, five Spartans scored in double figures, led by Walker with 29 points and Gowans with 18 points. The game saw Gowans' last appearance of the year as he bowed out with an 18.6 scoring average over eight games.

Walker and Olson, the most potent one-two in the Big 10, again combined sparkling efforts in handing Michigan an 89-58 defeat, extending the Spartan season record to 7-2.

Expressive Coach Forddy Anderson works harder than the players: he plays all five player roles in addition to coaching.

MSU took a midseason "breather" from rugged conference competition, but had no easy time in claiming a 75-73 victory over the Alumni. Walker led all scorers with 34 points while former Spartan stars Larry Hedden and Julius McCoy contributed 24 and 21 points, respectively.

Following a loss to Illinois the Spartans jumped back into the Big 10 title race with a 90-80 revenge victory over Iowa, knocking the Hawkeyes from second place in conference standings. The victory was led by Olson's season high 35 point total. Fahs added 19 points and Walker 28 rebounds in support of Olson.

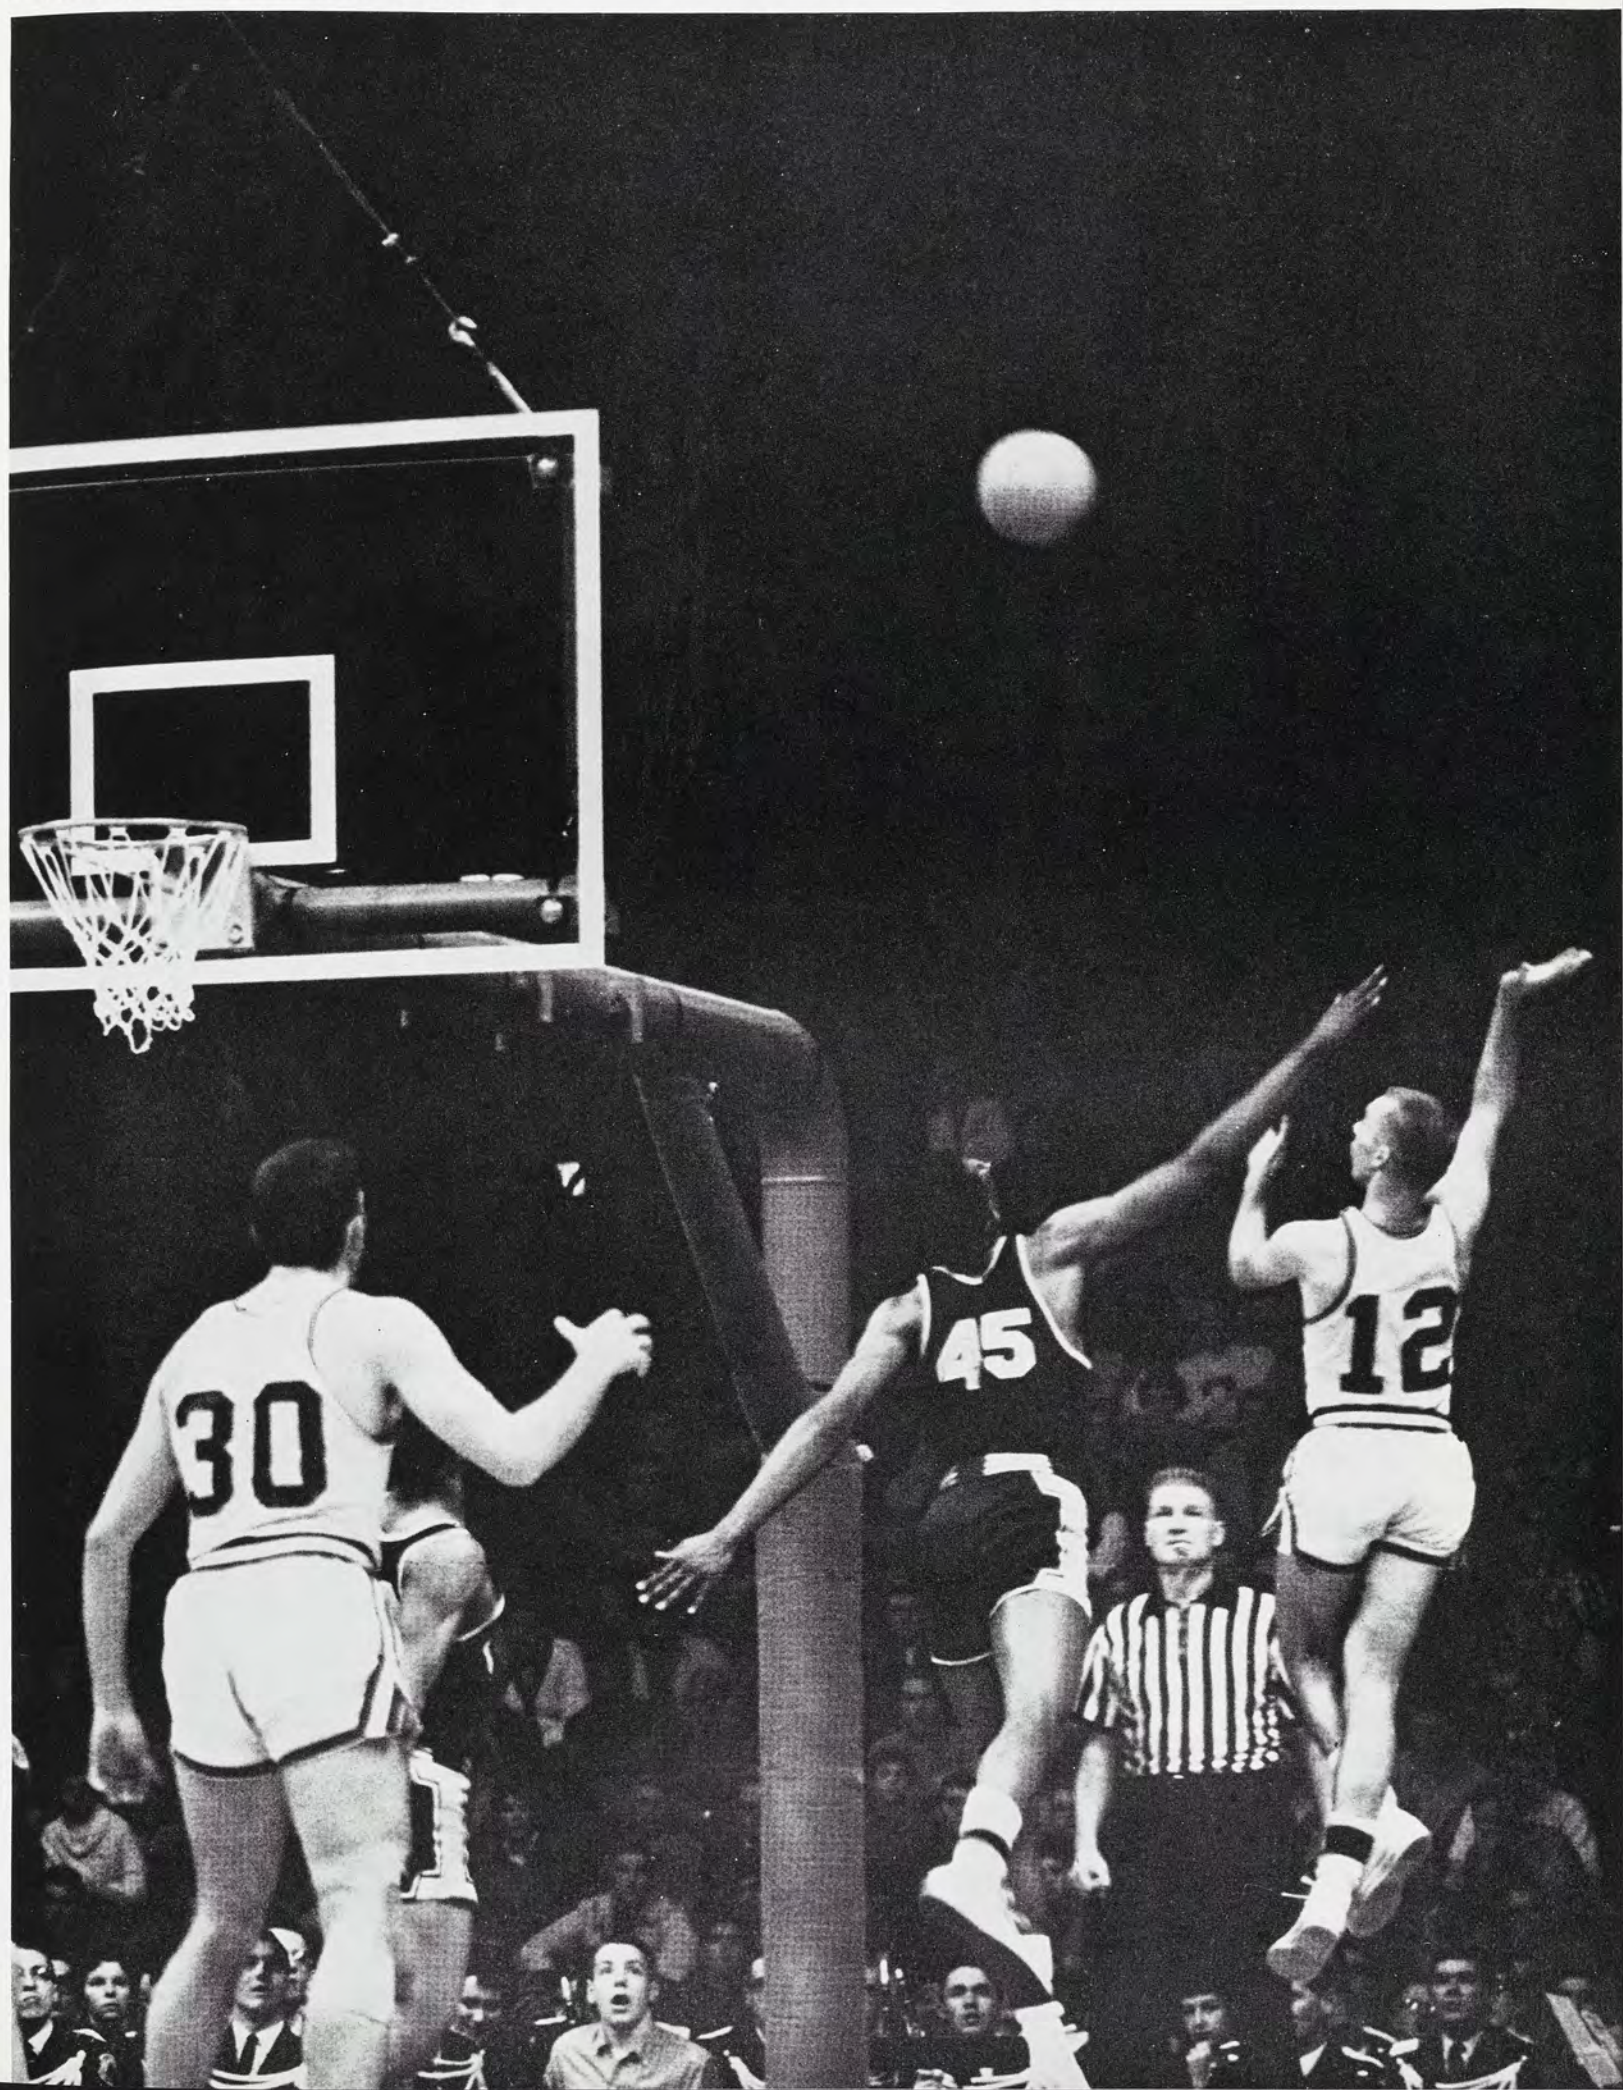

State was out-rebounded for the first time during the season in a loss to Ohio State, but the Spartans again bounced back from defeat to play the role of spoiler. This time MSU knocked Minnesota from second place, 84-63, with the Olson, Walker combination spelling victory. Olson scored 24 points on 14 consecutive free throws, and Walker added 24 points and 23 rebounds.

Purdue handed State its first home loss in 17 games, but once more the determined Spartans rebounded with a victory—a 78-77 thriller over the fighting Illini. Walker scored 29 points to lead both teams but yielded rebounding honors to Olson.

One of the Big Ten's most aggressive players, Lance Olson scores on a fast break. Olson was eighth in conference scoring with 259 points.

Guard Dave Fahs, the little man in Western Conference backcourts, proved a big man in several games with his timely jump shots.

Horace Walker, MSU's most valuable 1960 cage star, richly deserved his All-Big 10 and All-America recognition. In addition to leading the Spartans in all rebounding and scoring departments, Walker set a new Western Conference record with 256 rebounds in 14 games and placed a solid third in conference scoring with 349 points. His conference scoring average was 25 points per game, and his all-games average, 22.5 points per game.

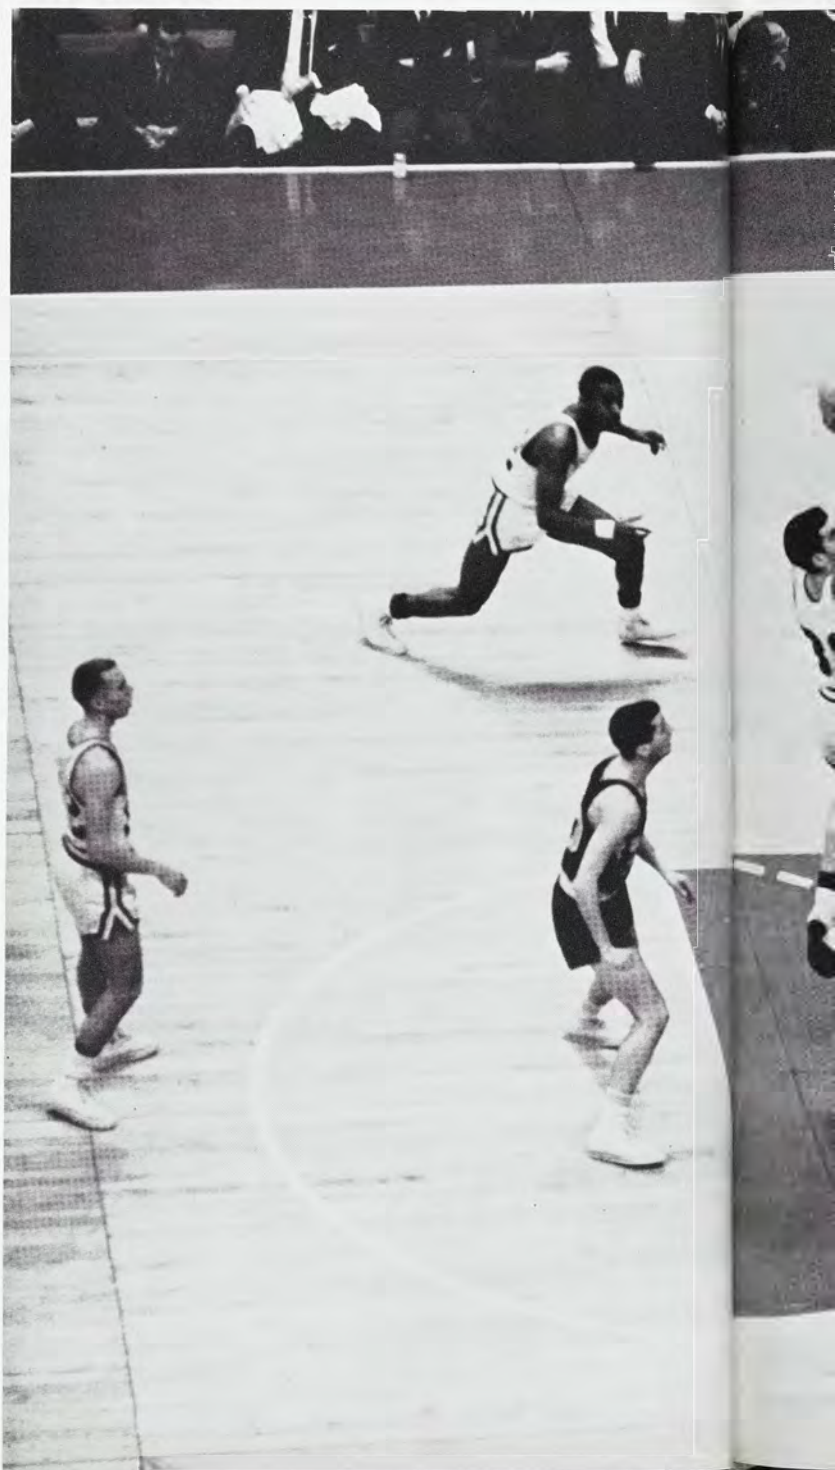

Walker out-scored and out-rebounded almost every opponent he faced during the season, including the remaining four on the All-Conference honor five. Despite being the shortest pivot man in the Big 10 at 6-3, Walker outscored Minnesota's 6-7 Ron Johnson 24-22 and out-rebounded him 23-5; he out-scored Purdue's league leading 6-6 Terry Dishinger 22-15 and out-rebounded him 15-12; he out-scored Indiana's towering Walt Bellamy 29-20 and out-rebounded him 26-13; and he out-scored and out-rebounded Ohio State's sensational 6-8 All American Jerry Lucas, 27-25 and 16-14. Only NCAA Champion California's 6-9 two-time All-American Darrell Imhoff topped Walker in both departments. Imhoff out-scored and out-rebounded Walker, 18-17 and 18-13.

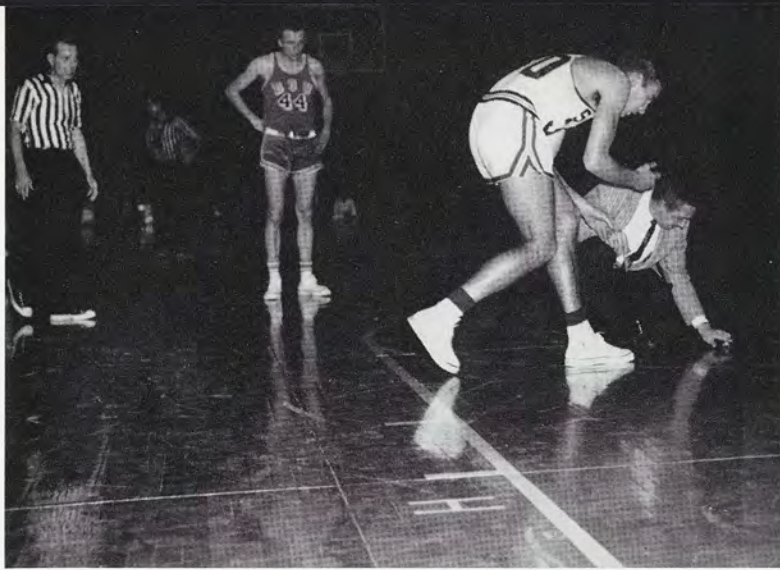

MSU's Mr. Everything, Walker led the team in rebounds with 376 for a 17.9 per game average, highest in State's history; he led in scoring with 473 points, a 22.5 per game average; and led in free throws with 119, making 80% of his attempts.

One gal enjoying the rhythm of the band at a basketball game is junior cheerleader Kitty Paul.

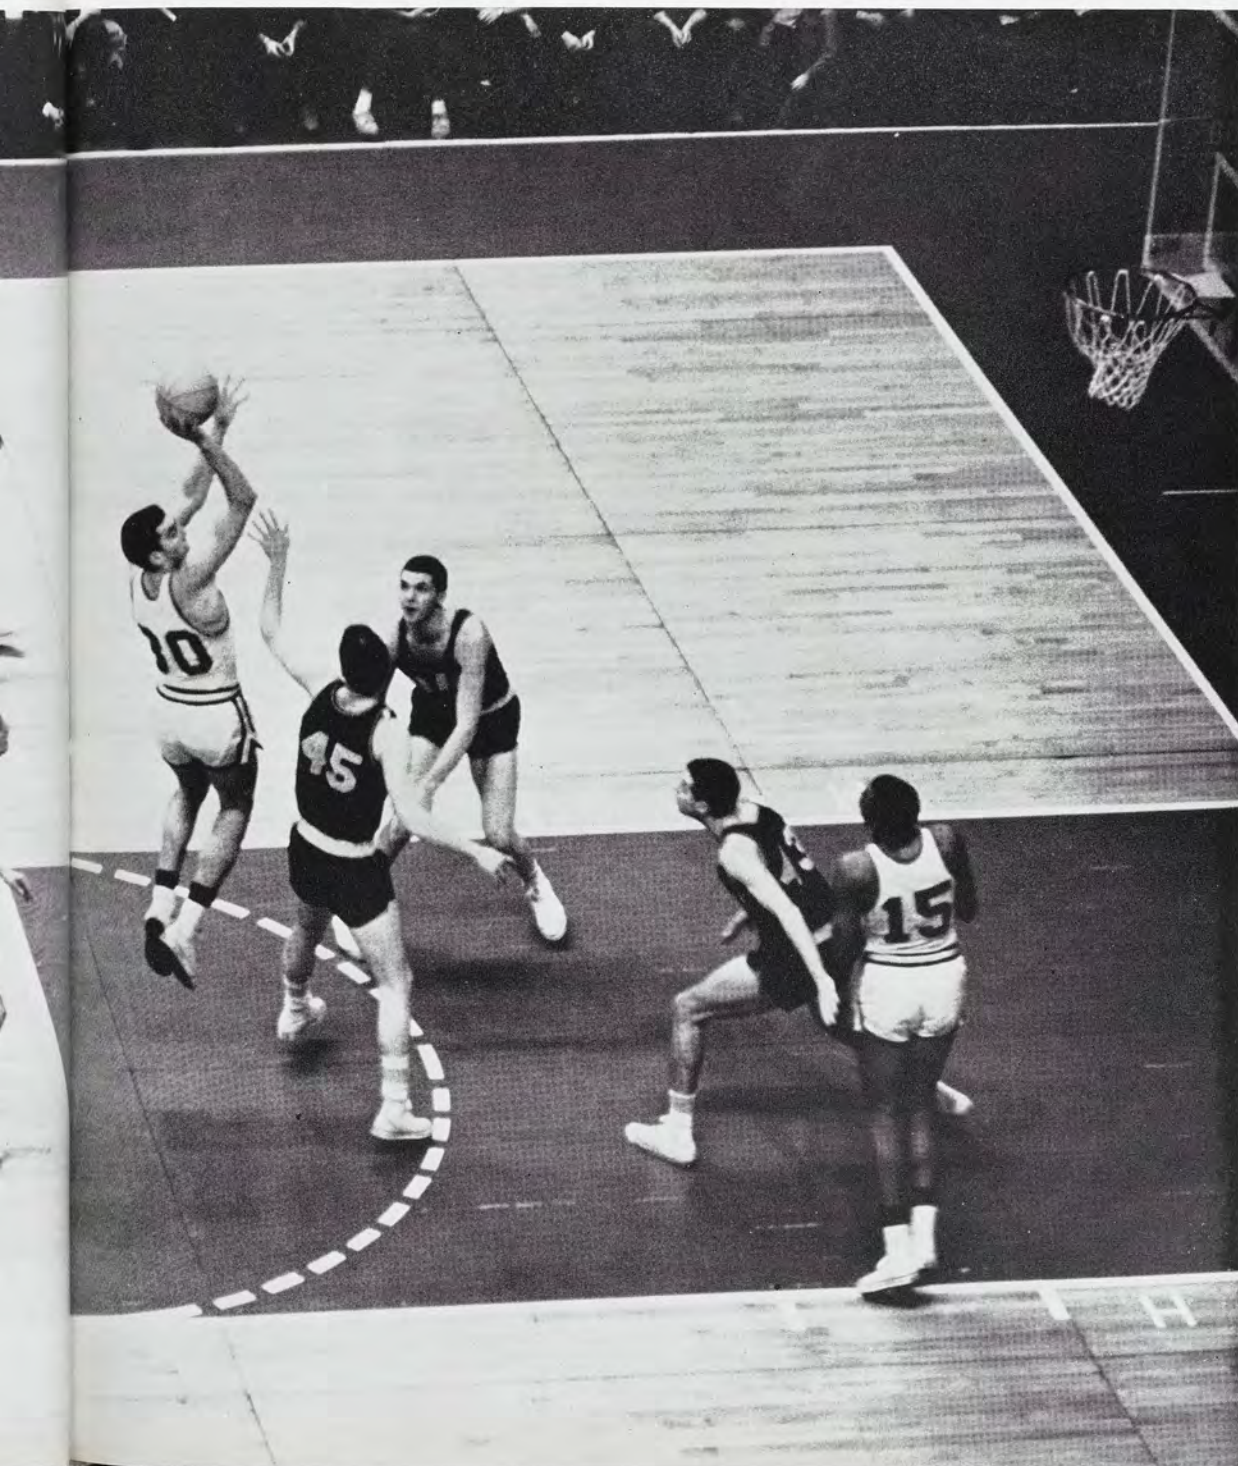

Second team All-Big 10 forward Lance Olson helped his 18.5 season scoring average considerably with a Spartan high 35 point splurge against Iowa.

Coach Forddy Anderson utilizes time outs to present new offensive and defensive tactics and late game strategy.

Several Spartans contributed greatly to the 1960 offensive effort. Senior forward Lance Olson scored 375 points for an 18.7 per game average, eighth in Big Ten all-games scoring. Olson also cleared the board 246 times for an 11.5 average, one of the top in the league. Olson's 18.5 Conference scoring average was good enough for eighth place.

Dave Fahs, junior guard, scored 252 points for an average of 12 per game, one of the top averages for guards in the Western Conference. Fahs also owned a 43.2 shooting percentage, tops among the Spartan regulars.

Art Schwarm scored 136 points, a 6.8 per game average, to round out the starting five's scoring. In reserve roles John Young scored 82 points in 14 games and Dave Scott, 77 in 11 games.

Michigan State's freshman basketball team, coached by former Spartan star Tom Rand, will add considerable height to the varsity squad next year. Of the nine top prospects, seven are as tall or taller than 6-4 Lance Olson who was the tallest man on the 1960 team.

Three first year men stand 6-7; Ed Williams from Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania; Ron Sabo, and Gene Jewett. The four remaining players standing 6-4 or taller include Lonnie Sanders, Stan Chandler, Dick Hall, and Dave Cox.

The freshman basketball team had three players standing 6-7 including Ron Sabo (24) and Ed Williams (34).

The 1959 baseball team opened the season with impressive victories over Albion and Wayne State, then moved into Western Conference competition with a double header sweep over the University of Michigan. The Spartans later moved into conference title contention with late season victories over Illinois and league-leading Minnesota. However, ninth place Iowa inflicted a season-ending double header loss on State, dropping the team into a fourth place tie in final Big 10 standings.

Coach John Kobs has several returning lettermen who will form the nucleus of the 1960 team. Included among them are established hurlers Mickey Sinks, Craig VanSciever, Don Sackett and Don Pickman, and batting stars John Fleaser and Jerry Lumain-ski.

Spartan high-jumper Mike Gerhard placed first in all the indoor dual meets and tied for second in the MSU Relays. Gerhard's best effort was 6-5 against Michigan.

TRACK

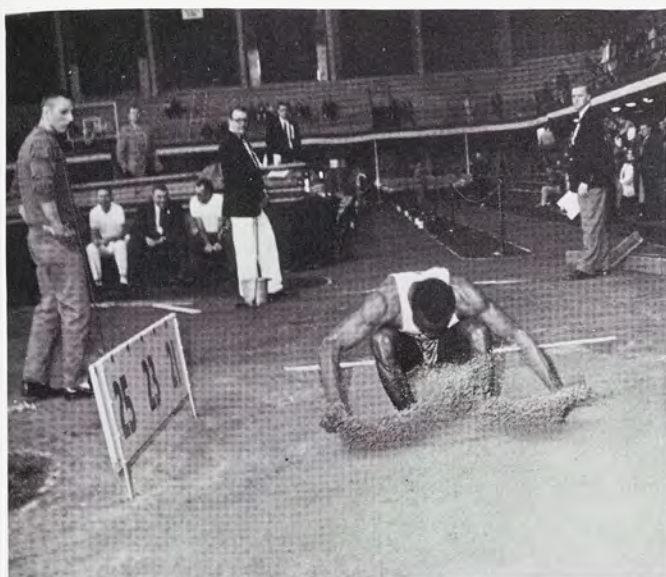

Although the Michigan State thinclads managed only an eighth place finish in the Big Ten track championships, there were several outstanding performances turned in during the 1959 outdoor campaign.

Junior miler Bob Lake won the Big Ten championship with a record time of 4:08.5, breaking an eight-year old mark of 4:09.0. Lake's time also lowered the Spartan varsity record of 4:08.8 set in 1951. A second Big Ten championship performance was turned in by Captain Forddy Kennedy, former cross country title-holder, as he copped the conference two-mile crown in 9:15.1. Another Spartan, George Ward, with a leap of 23 $\frac{1}{4}$ ", placed fifth in the broad jump.

Lake climaxed his outstanding season by placing third in the IC4A meet in New York City while Kennedy placed seventh. Lake returns for the 1960 season and with the help of other returning lettermen is expected to lead the team to a higher conference finish.

The strain of competition is captured in these hurdlers during the MSU Relays. Casey of Bowling Green, in the far lane, won the event.

Mike Kleinhans soars 14 feet ½ inch in the Relays to establish a Spartan record. Kleinhans tied for second in the meet and added victories over Northwestern and Michigan.

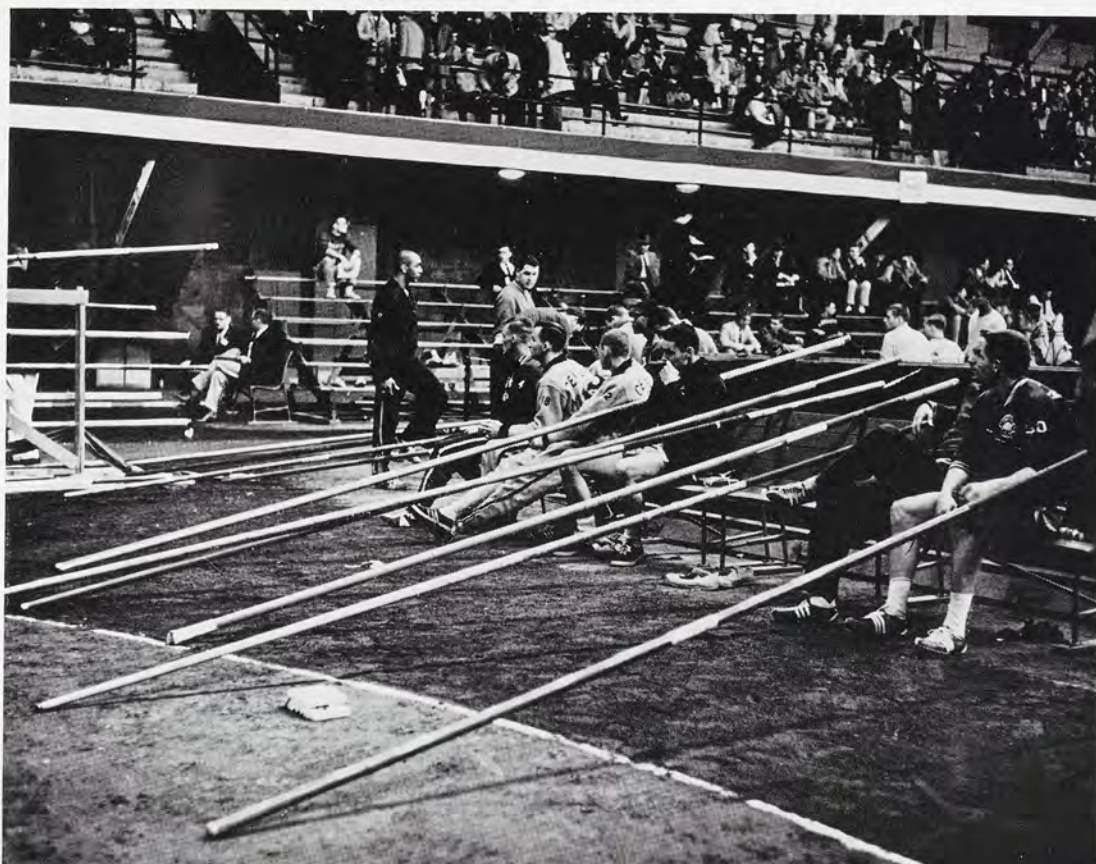

It's a long wait for the broad jumper as the officials measure his jump.

Coach Fran Dittrich's track squad gave the home fans something to cheer about by downing Wisconsin in a dual meet at Ralph Young Field. Pacemakers in the Spartan triumph were Jason Harness, winner of the 120-yard high hurdles and the high jump, and Mike Kleinhans, winner of the 220-yard low hurdles and the pole vault. Other Michigan State winners were Henry Kennedy in the two-mile run, Bob Lake in the mile run, George Ward in the broad jump, and the mile relay team of Don Marsh, Jim Carr, Bob Hughes and Brian Castle.

The Spartan trackmen were not as fortunate in their other dual meets as they were downed by Notre Dame and Penn State, the latter being 1959 NCAA and IC4A champions. Lake and Kennedy ran their best races of the season against Penn State with respective times in the mile and two-mile runs of 4:04.9 and 9:06.3. However, their efforts were only good enough for second place honors against outstanding clockings of 4:02.1 and 8:58.9.

In the Ohio Relays, MSU's distance medley relay team of Castle, Carr, Kennedy and Lake made a fine showing by losing to a champion Notre Dame team by only one-tenth of a second. One week later, with Marsh replacing Carr, the team again ran well as it finished second to a strong Stanford quartet in the Drake Relays. The team's time of 9:58.0 at Drake bettered the varsity mark by 17 seconds, but since it was not a winning performance, it could not be entered in the books.

Intent only on their event, these pole vaulters await their turn.

Spartan goalie Eldon Van Spybrook led the league in saves with 793 and several times kicked away more than 40 shots in a single game. Van Spybrook made 35 saves in this 4-3 overtime win over Michigan.

HOCKEY

Michigan State's hockey team opened the season by tying defending NCAA champions North Dakota, 2-2, but lost its next eight games in compiling a 4-18-2 Western Collegiate Hockey Association season record.

Spartan Coach Amo Bessone several times altered his front lines in search of a winning combination and found best results with a first line of Captain Jack Roberts, Andre LaCoste and Tom Mustonen and a second line of Terry Moroney and sophomores Real Turcotte and Claude Fournel.

The face-off, always a threat to defending goalies, tests cool nerves and quick reflexes.

Although MSU's 1959 scoring power was lacking, the 1960 team's greatest weakness lay in its defensive play in front of goalie Eldon Van Spybrook. The Spartan charges, who failed to claim a road victory, claimed their first win over North Dakota, 4-3, on Jack Roberts' overtime goal. State's second line produced three goals in the victory as Claude Fournel scored twice and Real Turcotte once.

Two of State's victories came over Michigan as the two teams split a four-game series. Unassisted goals by Turcotte and Andre LaCoste broke a 2-2 third period deadlock to give the icemen a 4-2 victory in one game; and in overtime, a Fournel to Turcotte goal gave the Spartans a prized 4-3 win in the other game.

In the 4-2 victory over Michigan defenseman Mel Chrisofferson slammed home a screen shot to open the scoring, and Al Checco added a later goal, knotting the score at 2-2. In the sudden-death 4-3 win, Roberts opened the State scoring in the second period and Tom Mustonen and Terry Moroney added third period goals, erasing a 3-1 deficit.

Senior Goalie Eldon Van Spybrook, outstanding in the nets all season, paced a 4-3 victory in the Spartans' last game as he made 42 saves against Big 10 champion Minnesota. Van Spybrook, who led the league in saves with 793, kicked out 31 and 35 in the Michigan victories and added 43 in each of State's two ties. Four Spartan forwards scored goals in the Minnesota victory as Frank Silka, Jim Atack, Fournel and Moroney all pierced the Minnesota defense.

In a hard checking game, defenseman Mel Christofferson pins puck and an unidentified Huskie against the boards.

Despite missing the first third of the season, sophomore Claude Fournel (making shot) tied for second in goals scored for State with seven. Action here is against Michigan Tech.

The pre-race tension disappears at the sound of the gun and with the action and excitement of competition.

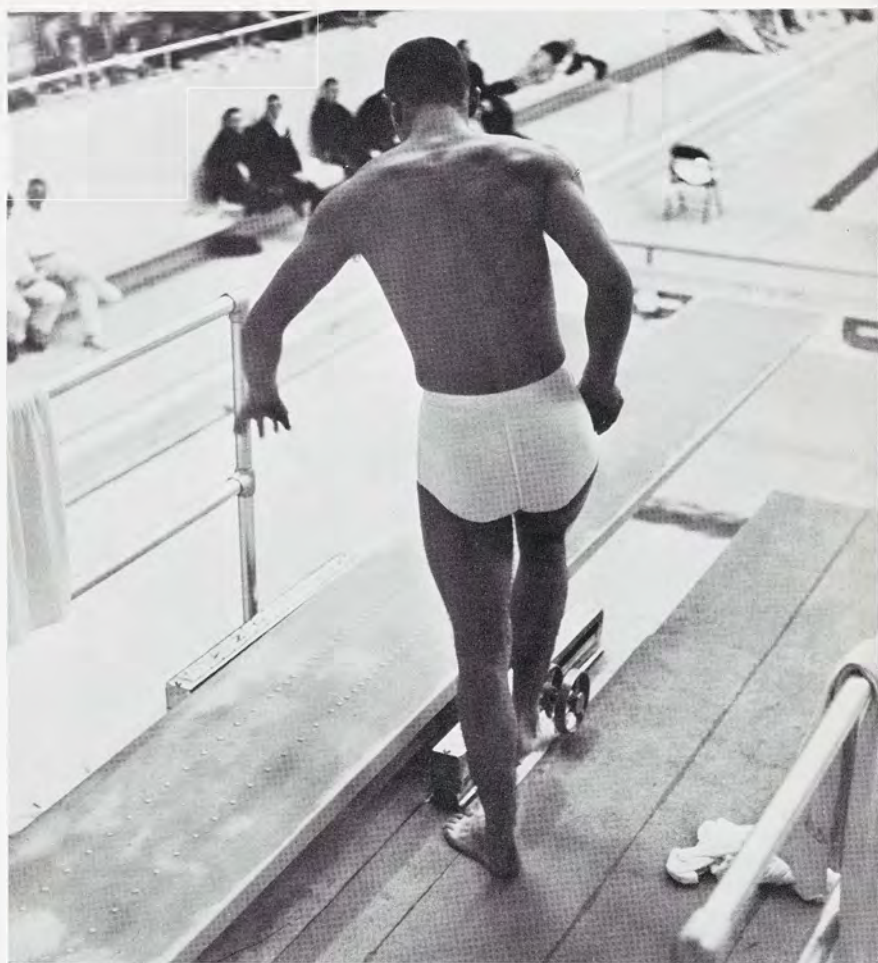

SWIMMING

The Spartan swimming team opened its season with a 77-28 victory over Iowa State, added five consecutive dual meet wins, and completed the season with a fine 7-3 dual meet record. In the league championship meet dominated by Big Ten powers Michigan and Indiana, the State swimmers attained a fourth place finish.

The season record surpassed 1959's 5-3 record despite the loss of two former national champions. The squad's strength resulted from a strong sophomore group and several returning lettermen, including one former NCAA champion, captain Frank Modine. Indicating the youth of the team is the fact that only three swimmers will be lost through June graduation—breastroker Modine, diver Jerry Chadwick and freestyler Denny Baker.

The best balanced Michigan State swim team in history faced all nine conference foes and notched victories over Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota, Purdue, Northwestern and Wisconsin. The MSU losses came against Ohio State, Indiana, and defending Big Ten and NCAA champion Michigan.

Two Spartan sophomores established new varsity records in 1960 and three other State swimmers hold previous records. Carl Shaar consistently bettered the 200 yard butterfly mark as he lowered the time to 2:05.5, and backstroke Ron Gage erased the old 200 yard time of 2:12.3 with a 2:11.4 clocking. Modine holds the varsity 200 yard breaststroke record of 2:22.4, and juniors Dave Diget and Larry Jones own shares of the 400 yard freestyle relay record of 3:23.7.

Each diver requires a different fulcrum setting, and he adjusts the board while concentrating on his dive.

The key to a winning relay lies in leaving the starting platform the instant the swimmer touches the pool end—but not sooner.

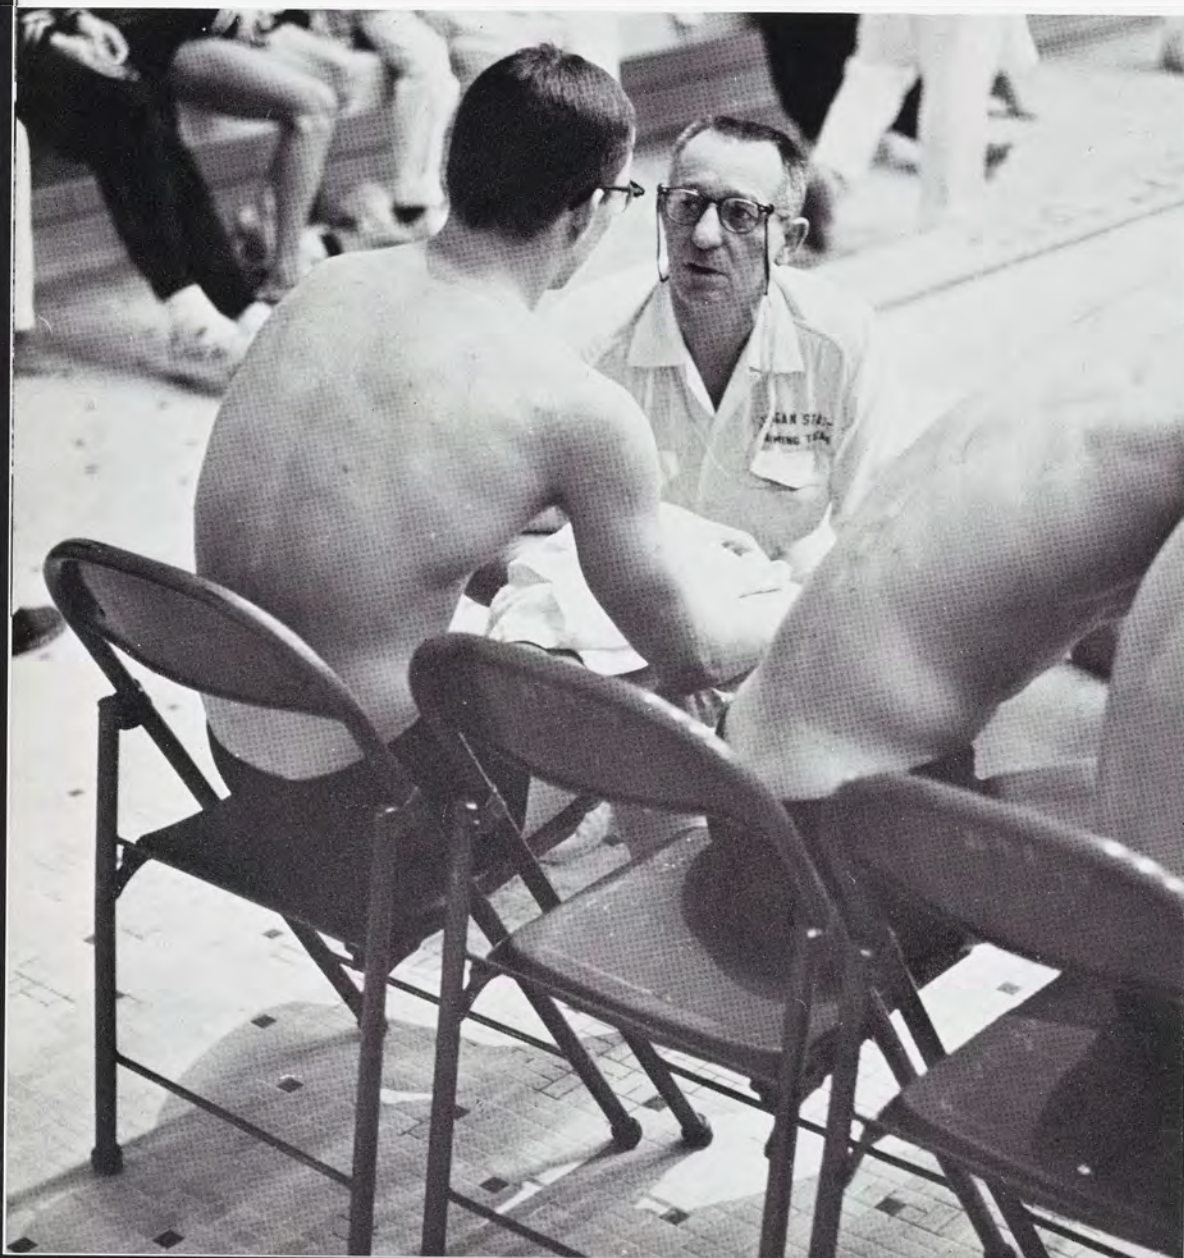

The Spartan tankers' 1960 strength was realized in their opening meet as they swamped Iowa State with ten of the eleven first places. Of the eight individual events won by State, seven were taken by sophomores, paced by Dick Brackett's 220- and 440-yard freestyle firsts, and one by junior Larry Jones in the 100-yard freestyle. Dual meet records were set in the medley relay and by Carl Shaar in the butterfly and Brackett in the 440.

The second victory came over the University of Iowa, 70-31, as the Spartans won eight events, again led by Brackett in the 220 and 440. Sophomore Denny Ruppert set a dual meet record in the breaststroke, and Shaar added another in the butterfly. Sophomore diver Ron Wellfare won his second straight first, and Dan Convis, another sophomore, turned in his best 50-yard freestyle time with 23.2 seconds.

Michigan State continued with victories over Minnesota, Wisconsin and Northwestern, winning at least eight events in each meet. Pacing the wins were several MSU tankers including senior diver Jerry Chadwick with three first places, and sophomore Dick Blazejewski and junior Dave Diget with dual meet records against Wisconsin.

The personnel required to run a championship meet is shown at the Big 10 Relays with three timers for each lane.

A 73-32 victory over hapless Purdue, the fifteenth straight under Coach Charles McCaffree, Jr., ran the 1960 Spartan tankers win streak to six, the longest in several years.

The Spartans' first loss was inflicted by a powerful Indiana squad that also upset Big Ten and NCAA champion Michigan. Only diver Jerry Chadwick could claim an MSU first place although several State tankers were within inches of victory.

Successive losses to Michigan and Ohio State and a victory over Illinois completed the MSU dual meet season. Captain Frank Modine and Dick Brackett claimed wins over Michigan, and Dan Convis and Brackett won against Ohio State. Backstroker Gage established a new varsity record to highlight the Illinois triumph.

State competed in the MSU sponsored Big Ten Relays, taking five seconds and four thirds in the nine four-team relay events. Top performances were recorded by Convis, Brackett, Dick Blazejewski and Larry Jones in the 500-yard freestyle relay, and by Gage, Modine, Shaar and Jones in the 400-yard medley relay.

The Spartan tankers placed fourth in the Big Ten Championships, led by Ruppert with a third and fourth in the 100- and 200-yard breaststroke events, and the medley relay with Gage, Ruppert, Shaar and Jones placing third.

Shaar in the 200-yard butterfly and Bill Singleton in the 100-yard breaststroke added fourth places for State in the Relays.

The Spartan swimmers started the season with six straight victories and finished with a fine 7-3 dual meet record.

GYMNASTICS

Michigan State enjoyed its greatest gymnastics team in history and its first undefeated season since 1952 as the talent-laden squad established a 9-0-1 season record, including a 65½ to 46½ victory over perennial Big Ten champion Illinois.

Coach George Szypulas's squad also added a high third place conference finish, one and one-half points behind Minnesota, a team the Spartans twice defeated in dual meets.

The Spartan gymnasts also claimed victories over Ohio State, Central Michigan, Navy Pier, Wisconsin, Southern Illinois and Indiana for their nine dual meet victories. The lone blemish on MSU's fine record was a 56-56 tie with Iowa.

Spartan gymnast Steve Johnson placed third in trampoline competition in the Big 10 championships.

Spartan captain Angie Festa, an all-around star, placed in six events in the conference championships. Execution of this Olympic Cross led the way for the Spartans.

The Spartans' third place Western Conference finish resulted from several outstanding performances, including Stan Tarshis' third consecutive Big Ten horizontal bar title.

MSU's John Daniels placed second in the free exercise, one-half point from the title, and added a third in tumbling behind Chuck Thompson and ahead of Steve Johnson, Spartan teammates.

Johnson placed third and Thompson fourth on trampoline, and sophomore Jim Durkee was third on still rings. Spartan captain Angie Festa placed in six events to lead all MSU scorers with 22½ points.

Steve Johnson, a sophomore, placed fourth in Big 10 tumbling, competing against more experienced gymnasts.

Erich Streder, center, was selected to the All-Midwest and All-American teams in 1959.

MSU's soccer team saw its great undefeated streak snapped during 1959, but completed an excellent 7-2 season for a share of the Eastern Division title of the Midwest Soccer Conference with Indiana. The 25 game unbeaten streak, extending back to 1956 and including 17 straight wins and one tie, was ended by strong, 1959 NCAA champion St. Louis University.

Several Spartans won considerable recognition for their outstanding individual season performances. All-American honors went to leading scorer Cecil Heron and 1958 scoring star Erich Streder; honorable mention to senior forward Bruce Okine; and All-Midwest honors to junior halfback Gerhard Greutz, Captain George Sepetys, Heron, Streder and Okine.

Center forward Heron, State's leading scorer with 19 goals, was voted the team's most valuable player, and fullback Horace Hamilton, the most improved player. Heron's season total erased the old varsity mark of 12 goals, set in 1956.

MSU All-Midwest forward Bruce Okine prepares to boot the ball in the Spartan's 5-1 triumph over Indiana.

Michigan State's complete domination of inter-collegiate cross-country running was proved conclusively as the Spartans scored their second straight triple sweep of national honors: the Big 10, IC4A, and NCAA crowns. In addition Coach Fran Ditrach's 1959 harriers compiled a 3-1 dual meet record and copped eight of the first ten places in the Michigan AAU championships.

MSU Captain Forddy Kennedy successfully defended his personal IC4A crown, winning in record-breaking time his third straight title, but he failed in defense of his NCAA crown. Kennedy also won his first Western Conference championship and posted a 3-1 dual meet record.

The Spartans' league championship performance established a record low-winning point total of seventeen as they captured five of the first six places.

The cross country runners are closely bunched at the start, but string out at the race's end. MSU's league championship was the fifth straight and eighth total in the university's nine years of Big 10 competition.

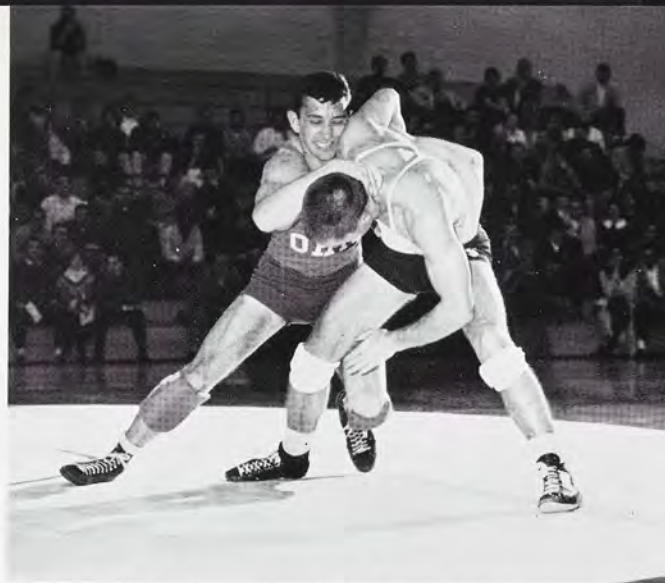

WRESTLING

Michigan State's wrestlers, unbeaten in Big Ten dual meet competition, boasted an excellent 7-1-1 season record and captured their second straight third place in the Western Conference championship meet. The Spartans' regular season wins included a 14-11 triumph over league champion Michigan and an 18-9 victory over second place Iowa.

MSU opened its season with a surprise quadrangular meet victory, dethroning defending Big 10 champion Minnesota 73-59. The Spartan grapplers were led by sophomore Bob Schluter with 12 points and by juniors Bill Gucciardo and John Baum.

The Spartans, who won their first five dual meets, were lead throughout the season by George Hobbs, Norm Young, Bob Moser and Baum. Hobbs, a sophomore wrestling at 123 pounds, was unbeaten in Big 10 action and boasted an 8-1-1 season record. Young, a junior and 1959 conference champion at 130 pounds, was 7-1-1 for the year and Moser, a senior wrestling at 157 pounds, was 7-1. Heavyweight Baum, who led the squad in falls with four, was undefeated with a 7-0-2 dual meet record.

Hobbs, Young and Baum each won third place in the Big 10 championships. Other Spartan dual meet winners included Schluter with four and Mike Senzig, Jim Conley, Dave James and Gordon Johnson with three victories each.

MSU's Gordie Johnson scored a 6-4 match victory over OSU's Mike Barnett in the 26-6 Spartan win.

TENNIS

Doug Smith returns with a forehand shot while Bill Hotchkiss watches in their two set doubles triumph.

The 1959 tennis team opened with a 5-4 victory over Ohio State and closed with a 6-3 victory over Indiana in compiling a 7-5 season won-lost record, an improvement over the 1958 season. The Spartan netters also raised their Western Conference finish from eighth to fifth place by scoring 19½ points.

The 1960 team is expected to be much stronger as MSU tennis coach Stanley Drobac has four top returning letter winners, including seniors Roger Plagenhoef, Bill Hotchkiss and Doug Smith, and junior Ron Mescall. The net squad will be rounded out by junior Ron Henry and sophomores Bryan Eisner and Mel Saperstein.

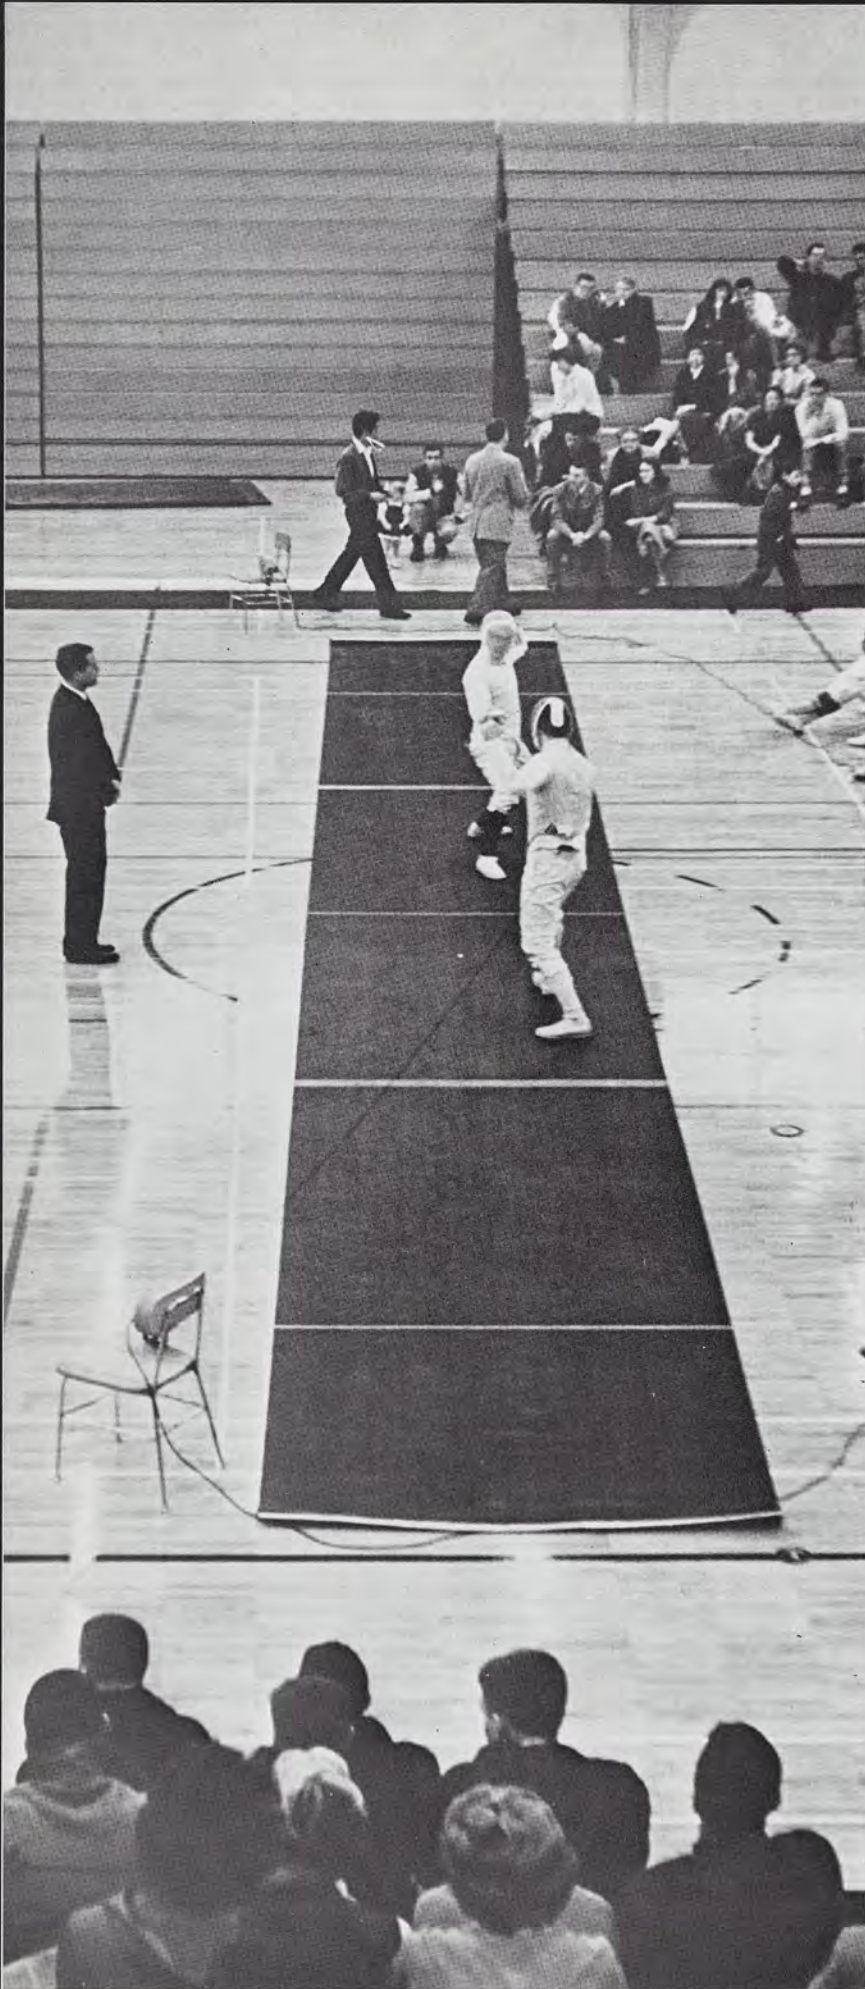

The 1959 season record also included a 9-0 shut-out of Detroit and victories over Northwestern, Purdue, Western Michigan and Wisconsin.

The 1960 singles players in order of position are Hotchkiss, Smith, Plagenhoef, Eisner, Mescall and Henry. The doubles teams in order are Smith and Eisner, Hotchkiss and Plagenhoef, and Henry and Saperstein. Smith was the top scholastic athlete in spring of 1959 with a 4.0 in engineering.

The fencing team defeated Chicago and Wisconsin and placed fourth in the Big 10.

FENCING

Michigan State's fencing team, winning only two dual meets during regular season competition, nevertheless tied for fourth place with Wisconsin in the Western Conference championships and trailed third place Ohio State by a single point.

Coach Charles Schmitter's swordsmen managed victories over the University of Chicago and Wisconsin while losing eight meets in dual meet competition.

The Spartan fencers gained their first win, 19-8 over Chicago as the epee team composed of Charles Schmitter, Jr., Art Dowd, Doug Jewell and Jim Clary won eight bouts. Dowd won all three of his bouts and Schmitter won both of his. The foil squad of Dick Lawless, Bill McNamara and John Bolt added seven points, Lawless and McNamara winning three bouts each. Art Johnson won two bouts in sabre competition and Neil Brown and Steve Arnest added one win each to complete the scoring.

MSU's other win came against Wisconsin as the State swordsmen won foil, 6-3, and epee, 5-4. Schmitter, the Spartans' season scoring leader with a 20-8 record, won all three bouts in foil to pace the victory.

In a loss to Notre Dame, the Spartan foil team defeated a previously unbeaten Irish trio as Lawless and Schmitter out touched two opponents who had each lost only one bout during the season.

In conference championship competition, MSU's Art Dowd placed third in epee and Arnest, a 1959 Big Ten medal winner, fifth in sabre.

Ty Caplin, left, was 1959 Spartan medalist with a 143 in the Iowa victory. Here he gives a few tips to another student.

Michigan State's 1959 golf squad stroked its way to the greatest season in Spartan golf history. By burying Michigan, Wisconsin and Detroit in a quadrangular meet the last weekend of the season, the linksters powered their way to an unprecedented 11-1 record.

Included in the Spartans' eleven victories were double wins over Wisconsin, Notre Dame and Detroit, and single wins over Central Michigan, Northwestern, Iowa and Michigan.

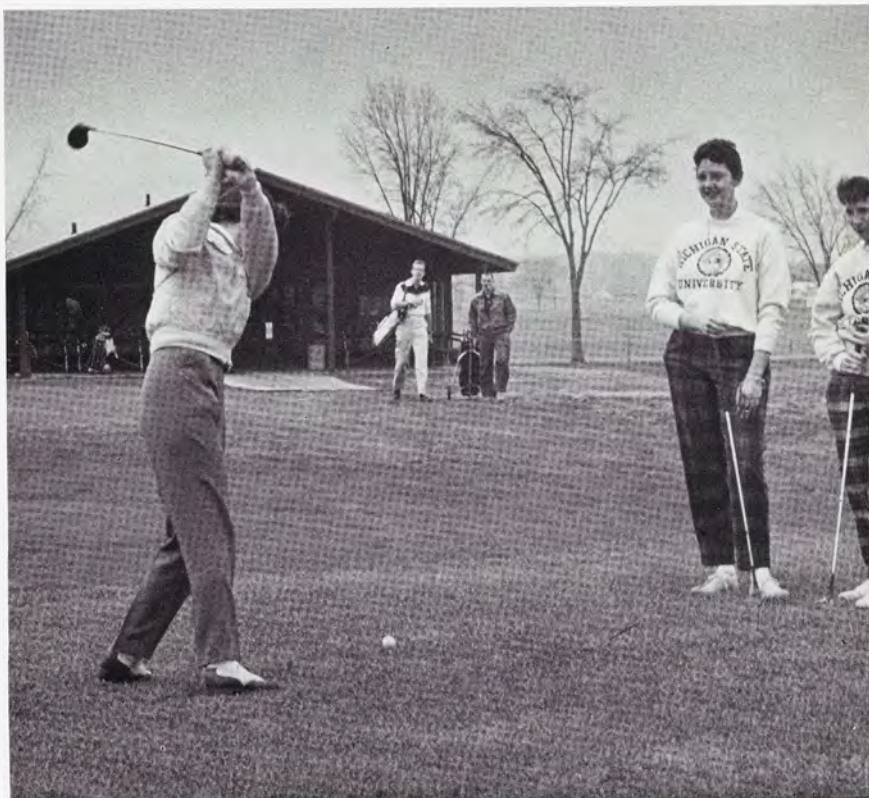

Despite its one loss to a strong Indiana team, Coach Ben Van Alstyne's squad walked off with medalist honors in all twelve meets. Steve Miller, Jack Reynolds, Ty Caplin, C. A. Smith and Tim Baldwin each won low honors, with Caplin's 143 the season's low total.

By virtue of its outstanding season performance, the 1959 linksters earned a darkhorse role in the league championship meet but failed to solve Michigan's tough, rain soaked layout and finished seventh to Purdue's repeat champions. However, the outlook for the 1960 season is very bright as the lettermen all return for another crack at the league crown.

INTRAMURALS

Sigma Alpha Epsilon, led by Bruce Netzer with one first, edged Sigma Nu, led by Ken Gest with two firsts, in the fraternity swimming championship 45-44. Wayne Parsons, with one first and two seconds, led Phi Delta Theta to third place with 34 points.

The dormitory swim championship went to Emmons as they outscored West Shaw 58-53. Bailey was third with 34 points. Jack Slaughter of Emmons and Nick Shurleff of West Shaw paced the meet with two firsts each.

Alpha Tau Omega won the all-university turkey trot with West Shaw second, and Mike Costello won the individual trot title over Don Castle and Rudy Mesner.

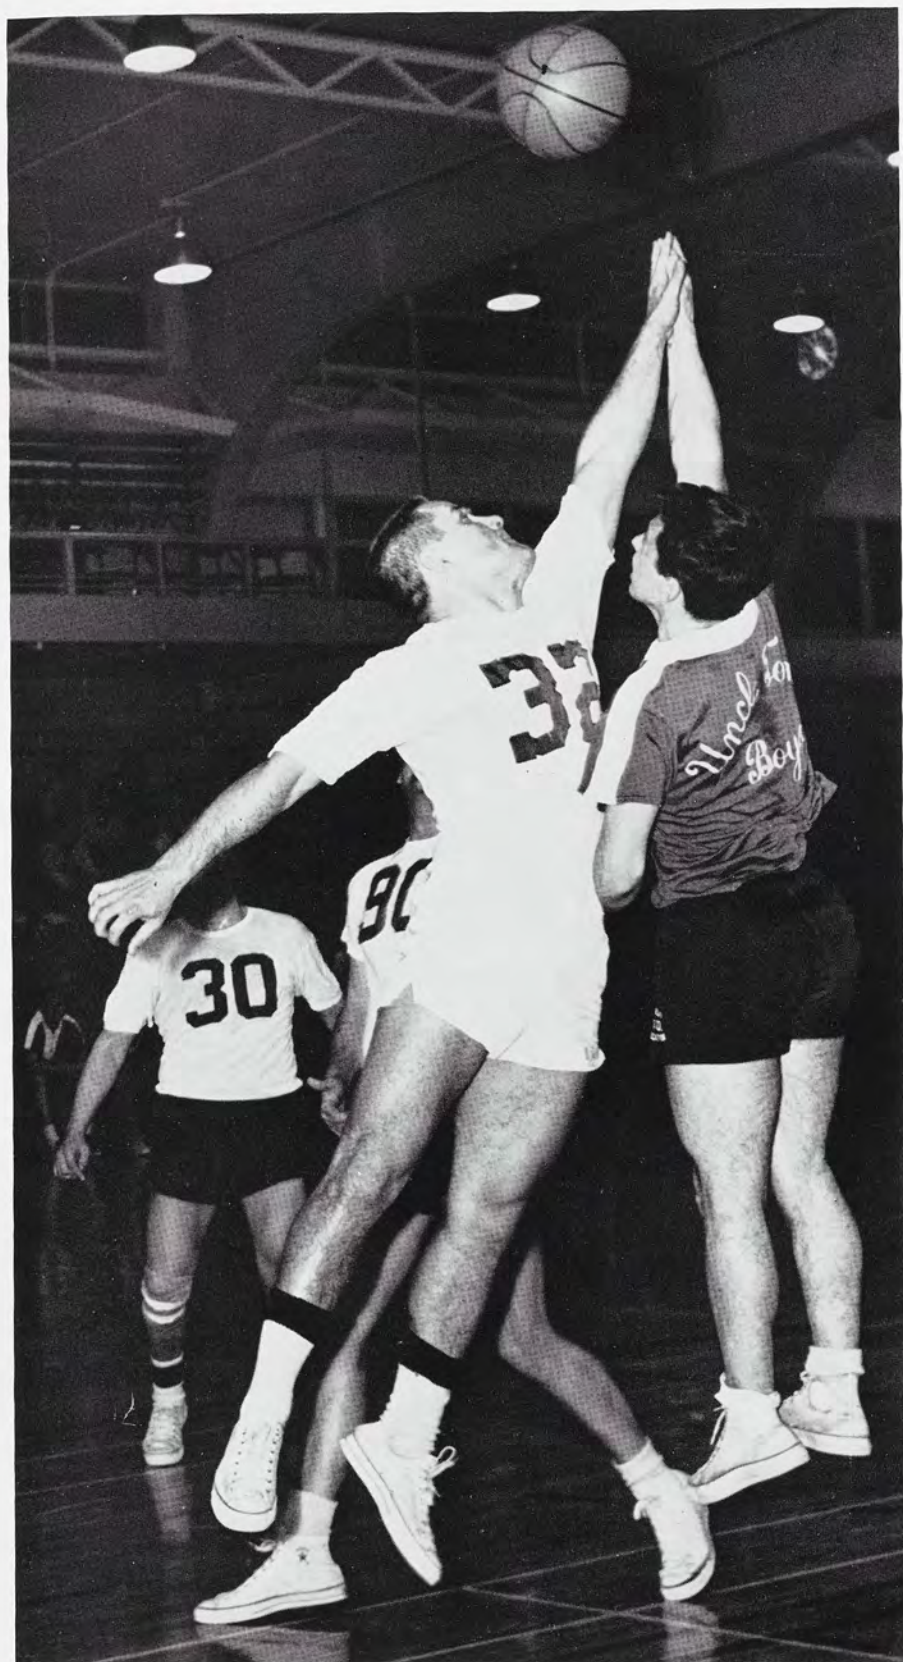

Individual IM championships were well distributed over several events. Edward Brockman won the basketball free throw, Newt Black the singles table tennis title, and Sam Calerone and Bill Little the hand ball doubles. Don Freeman won archery and Ben Burns added the fencing title.

Bailey defeated Rather for the dorm volleyball title with West Shaw taking third place.

The Coral Gables Vets won the softball title in 1959. Batting here is Harry Boesch and catching is Glen Knight of DTD.

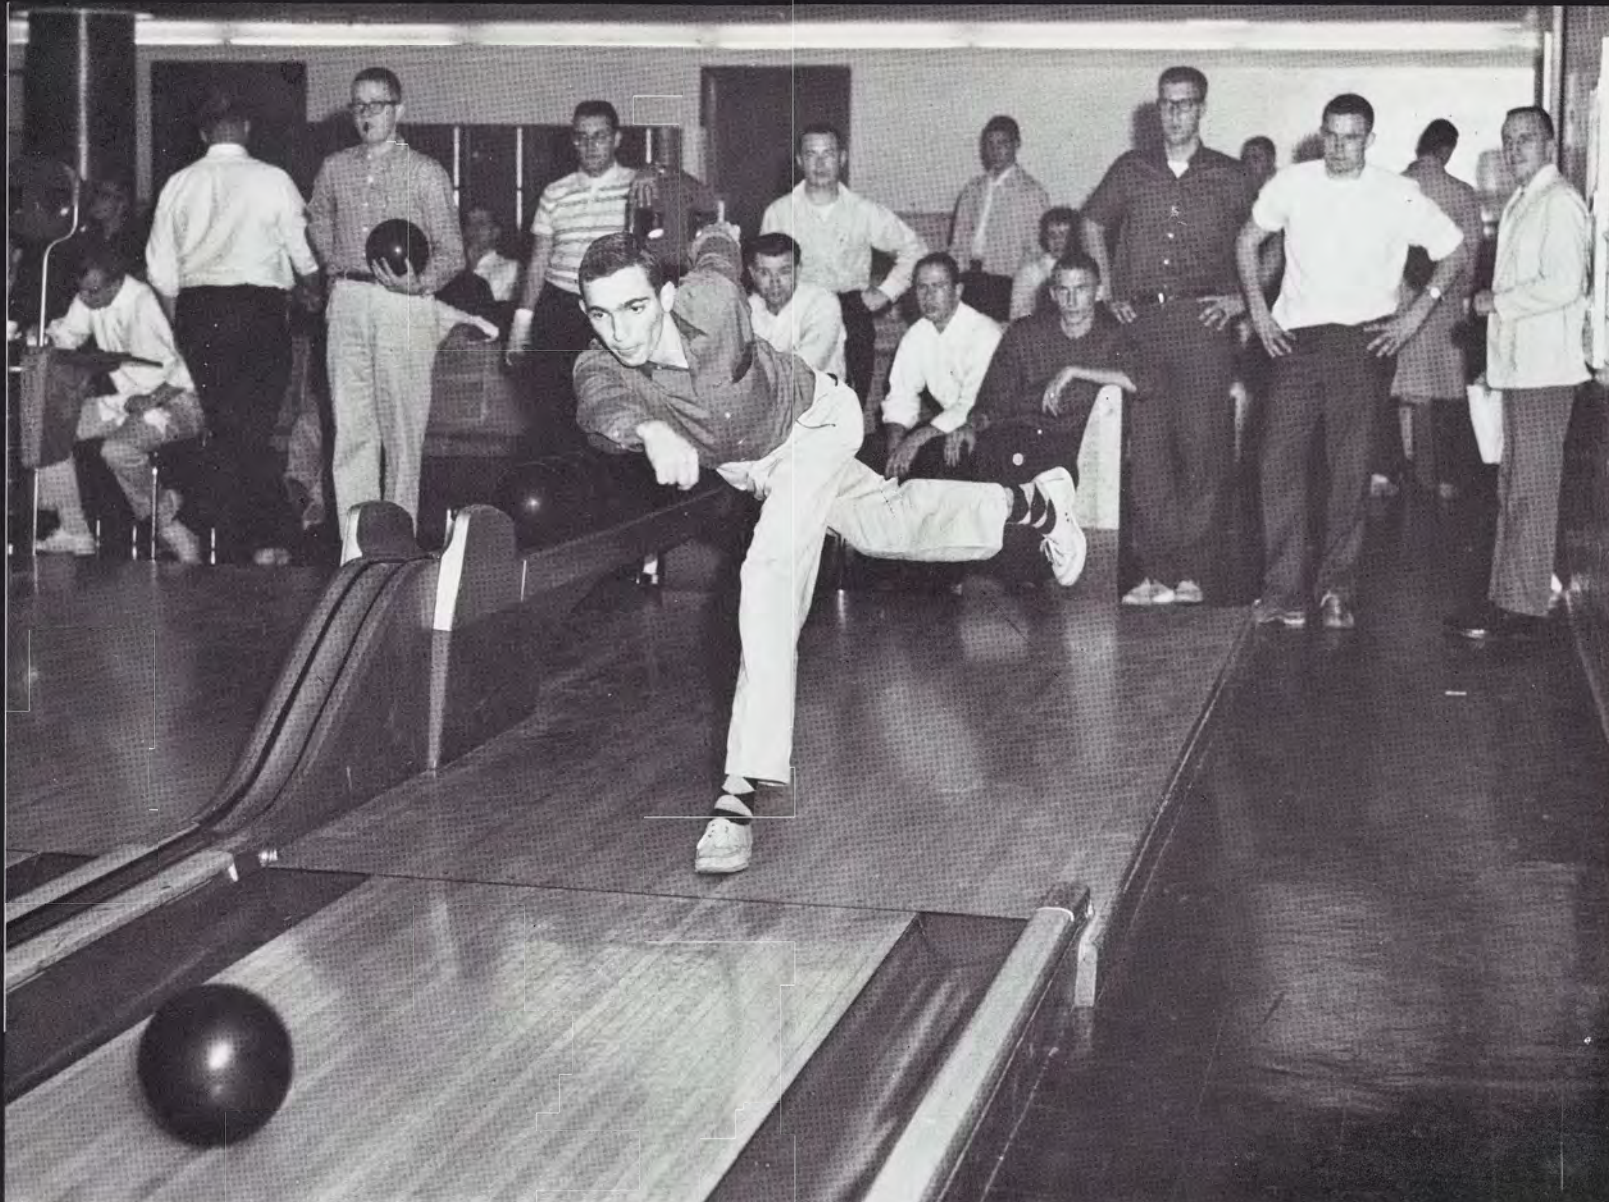

Uncle Tom's Boys won the IM basketball title over the Fabulous Five. ATO won the fraternity title with Sigma Chi second.

Delta Tau Delta won the all-university hockey championship with a victory over Evans Scholars.

Delta Tau Delta won the fraternity bowling championship over runner-up Sigma Nu.

Delta Tau Delta defeated independent champion Uncle Tom's Vets for the all-university football championship last fall in competition with a record 126 teams and 1764 participants. East Shaw became dormitory champion with a victory over Bailey. The Deltas added two more team championships as they defeated Sigma Nu in bowling and Evans Scholars in hockey.

In paddleball, Emmons and Alpha Tau Omega won dorm and fraternity titles, respectively, with wins over East Shaw and Sigma Chi. Lambda Chi Alpha and Emmons added titles in badminton, as did ATO and Bryan in table tennis.

Several men won individual IM titles, including John Welling in the football place kick as he broke a first place tie to defeat Bob Reed. Roger Tavenner won the football pass over John Overgaard and 440 other entrants, and in handball doubles, Claude Fournel and Sam Calderone reigned over 15 teams. In fall wrestling championships, Richard Reisberg, Max Hasse, and Tom Ranck won titles.

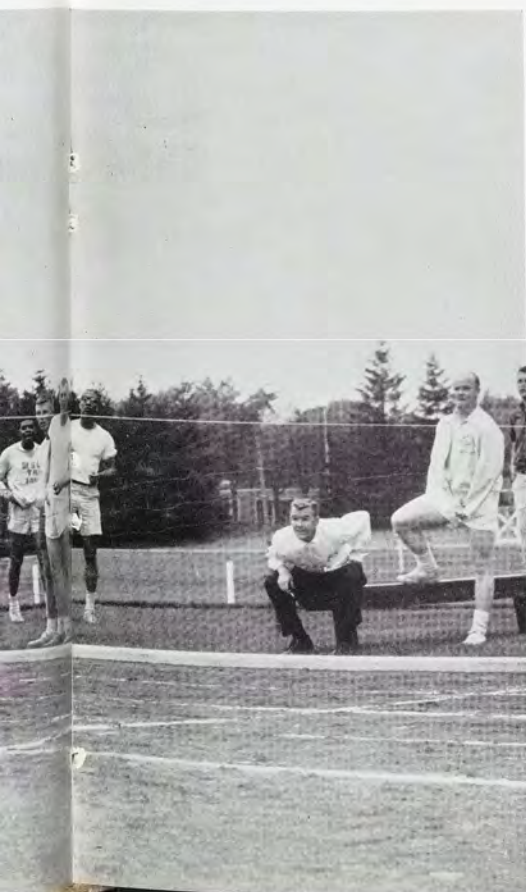

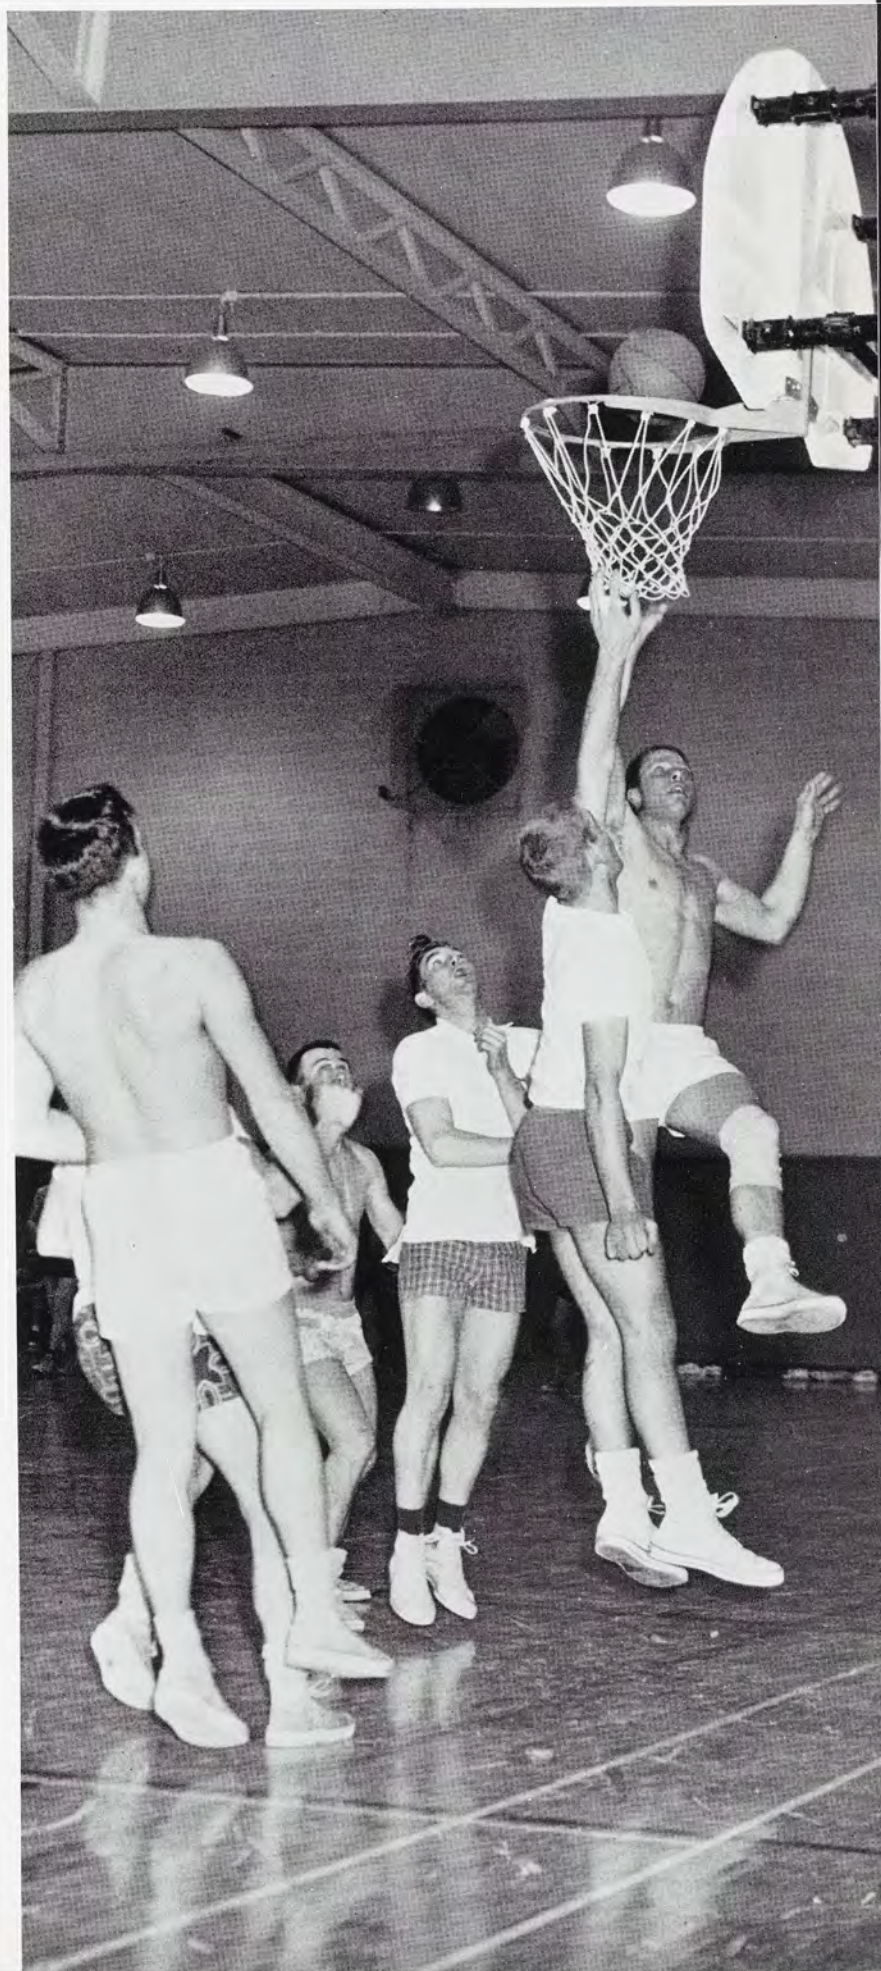

Tom Heinson of ATO edges out Herb Fisher of Kappa Alpha Psi and Frank Miller of Sigma Nu in the fraternity track finals.

Barry Reed of SAE sweeps right end in this IM football game. Delta Tau Delta won the all-university title with a win over independent champion Uncle Tom's Vets.

Basketball led the way in IM participation. Action such as this was typical as East Shaw defeated Bailey for the dormitory title.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

The MSU women's swimming team, coached by Miss Norma Stafford, completed a four meet undefeated season as they sunk Western Ontario and Ohio State once each and Bowling Green twice.

Bonnie Blackport led a 70-25 victory over Western Ontario with firsts in the 75 yard individual medley and 100 yard freestyle. The relay team composed of Miss Blackport, Nancy Miller, Sue Anderson and Pat Lucas paced a 47-40 home win over Bowling Green; and Sandy Warner, with her fourth first place in diving, and Miss Miller, with a first in the butterfly, led the 44-43 away victory. The Spartan women tankers defeated Ohio State 30-24.

The women's intramural swimming championship was won by Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority with 56 points, followed by Abbot Hall with 42½ points, Mason Hall with 30½ points, and South Campbell with 27 points.

This women's life-saving class practices the cross-chest carry. Courses such as this are typical of the wide variety of instruction offered for the physical education requirements.

One of the most popular of the women's athletic activities has been badminton.

Kappa Kappa Gamma won the intramural swimming title, followed by Abbot Hall and Mason Hall.

Snyder Hall won the intramural basketball title with a victory over runner-up East Landon.

Michigan State's field hockey team, open to all women at the university, suffered its first loss in three years, 2-1, to Bowling Green. The schedule was limited due to poor weather, but the team defeated Valparaiso University, 6-1, and added a 5-0 triumph over the MSU old timers.

The Spartan women's team, coached by Jean Horwood consisted of: Sandy Shaw, left wing; Judy Byington, left inner; Marcia Tiesinga, center forward; Gretchen Borst, right inner; Margie Gunn, right wing; Nancy Gemmow, left halfback; Colleen Madden, center halfback; Sammie Niergarth, right halfback; Captain Barbara Lundy, left fullback; Carol Thompson, right fullback and Pat Wilber, goalie.

Phillips Hall won the 20 team intramural bowling championship followed in order by Delta Zeta sorority, West Yakely and East Yakely.

East Yakely won the volleyball championship by defeating Delta Delta Delta sorority in the final play-off. West Yakely gained the finals by defeating East Landon and South Campbell while the Tri Delts were downing Sigma Kappa and Alpha Xi Delta sororities. Sigma Kappa placed third, followed in order by Alpha Xi Delta, East Landon and South Campbell.

The Swedish gymnastics team performed several exhibitions for high schools and education groups throughout Michigan.

In this rough and tumble action Gamma Phi Beta trounced Delta Gamma 12-0 in the annual Powder Puff game.

In addition to improving dancing ability, the social dance classes provide a number of social contacts.

Bowling Green's goalie stops a shot by Michigan State's Judy Byington, center, during the women's first hockey loss in three years.

The new women's pool has provided enjoyable co-educational relaxation and recreation.

Organized in 1916 as "Sphinx", Mortar Board, senior women's honorary, took its present name in 1934.

Outstanding senior women on campus are chosen on the basis of scholarship, leadership, and activities. Membership in the honorary averages around twenty.

Each Spring, May Morning Sing is co-sponsored by Mortar Board and Tower Guard, sophomore women's honorary. At this time, outstanding junior women are tapped for Mortar Board and freshman women are honored for Tower Guard. Last Spring 25 junior women were tapped for Mortar Board.

During Spring term of their senior year, outstanding senior women are honored on Lantern Night. Mortar Board co-sponsors this event with A.W.S. Members of the two organizations hang lanterns over the doors of residences for each girl who is to be honored.

Mortar Board also co-sponsors the Spinster Spin with Spartan Women's League and Tower Guard.

Other activities of Mortar Board include the Apple-Polisher's Dessert winter term, to which favorite professors are invited.

Among the services performed by members of Mortar Board is ushering at commencement.

Mortar Board meets with selected faculty members at one of their special meetings.

A special room in the basement of the Coral Gables is the informal meeting place of Excalibur. Each of the thirteen members has a key to the room.

Excalibur

Thirteen men fill the membership quota of Excalibur, senior men's honorary. Requirements for membership are character, leadership, and service to the University as displayed by participation in extra curricular activities.

Eight to ten men are tapped each spring at the Water Carnival, forming the basis of the group for the following year. The membership is brought to thirteen in the fall by the tapping of three to five men during intermission of the homecoming dance.

Members of Excalibur meet at a weekly luncheon to discuss various aspects of the University. Cooperation among the members in their specialized activities is the primary benefit of these meetings.

In the spring they present roses to new Mortar Board members at the breakfast following May Morning Sing. Annually they also honor a professor whom they regard as outstanding in his contributions to the University.

Blue Key

Blue Key, junior and senior men's service honorary, consists of men who are chosen for their leadership qualities and outstanding service to the university.

To be eligible, men must have attained a scholastic average equal to the all-men's average.

Nationally, Blue Key was organized in 1921. The MSU chapter was begun in 1927.

Among the important services performed by the men of Blue Key is the sponsoring of the Miss MSU contest each year.

One of the main purposes of Blue Key is to initiate various needed programs around the university. These programs, if effective, are then taken over by other organizations on the campus. The "Get Out the Vote" campaign, begun by Blue Key and taken over by Student Government is an example of such programs.

Problems of the university may be brought before Blue Key for discussion and recommendations.

An annually pleasant chore for Blue Key members is the interviewing of Miss MSU candidates and the selection of a winner.

Reading to blind students is a chief service of Tower Guard. Each member works at least three hours a week in the Blind Reading Room of the Library.

Tower Guard, sophomore women's honorary, consists of 35 women, outstanding in scholarship, character, leadership, and service.

Members of Tower Guard are chosen from a group of freshman women who, scholastically, constitute the top 100 in their class after two terms on campus.

Prospective members are tapped during the traditional May Morning Sing.

Each member of Tower Guard devotes four hours a week to reading to the blind in the reading room for the blind in the library.

Tower Guard assists new students during Welcome Week, and aids them in registration.

Other services of Tower Guard include a tutoring program in subjects in which the members are qualified.

Founded in 1931 by Mortar Board and Mrs. Robert Shaw, wife of the former president of the university, Tower Guard was originally known as the "Question Mark Girls." For a while, there was some doubt as to whether the university would allow the group to use Beaumont Tower as its symbol.

The pin was in the shape of a question mark until the present name came into being, and now the pin is a tiny replica of Beaumont Tower.

Outstanding men in the freshmen class are selected for membership in Green Helmet, the sophomore men's service honorary.

To be eligible men must place in the top 100 freshmen academically with at least a 3.2 all college. They must also have demonstrated superior leadership ability in the extra-curricular activities.

Green Helmet assists freshmen throughout their first year by offering programs of orientation and guidance. During each term the honorary provides a tutoring service for freshmen who need academic help. A list is published in living units telling where interested freshmen can get in touch with Green Helmet members who are proficient in certain courses. Green Helmet members also help students with their schedule problems during registration.

At the end of spring term the honorary taps between 25 and 36 freshmen who will become honorary members after an initiation period during which they must wear a green and white plaque.

Green Helmet treasurer Ken Weaver, vice-president Jim Anderson, and president John Forsyth discuss their reports before a meeting of the honorary.

Alpha Lambda Delta officers prepare decorations for their "Smarty Party", a tea for prospective members.

Alpha Lambda Delta

The purpose of Alpha Lambda Delta is to promote intelligent living and a high standard of learning, and to encourage superior scholastic attainment among freshman women.

Activities included a square dance with Phi Eta Sigma during the fall and a "Smarty Party" tea for potential members.

At the annual spring banquet the senior member with the highest grade point average was given a book award.

This year the honorary assisted the other campus honoraries in performing such services as reading for the blind and tutoring. The group also supports Honors College activities.

Requirements for admission are a 3.5 cumulative average at the end of the freshman year or after two terms.

Phi Eta Sigma

Phi Eta Sigma is a men's honorary whose purpose is to encourage and reward freshmen scholarship.

Members must have a 3.5 scholastic average for their first term as freshmen or a 3.5 for their first two terms combined.

One of the highlights of the year was a square dance with Alpha Lambda Delta, the freshman women's honorary.

Eighty-four members were initiated into the honorary at the annual winter banquet.

Phi Kappa Phi

Recognizing outstanding scholarship in all academic fields is the purpose of Phi Kappa Phi honorary.

Phi Kappa Phi is the highest honorary on MSU's campus. Its membership consists of 100 faculty members who have shown outstanding achievement in their field, the top 200 graduating seniors, a few outstanding juniors, a sophomore, and four freshmen. These scholars are honored at the annual Phi Kappa Phi spring banquet for their academic achievements.

Alpha Delta Theta

Alpha Delta Theta's membership consists of all sophomore women majoring in medical technology with a 2.0 all-college average.

The organization's purpose is to provide fellowship for those in medical technology and to sponsor activities of social and professional interest.

Service functions performed by the group include decorating the Christmas tree in Giltner hall and arranging displays in the hall's show cases.

Besides sponsoring a booth at Activities Carnival and field trips, the group presents a service award at the Veterinary Medical Association honors convocation.

Alpha Epsilon Rho

Alpha Epsilon Rho is MSU's national radio-television honorary which aims to encourage high standards of excellence in broadcasting.

Each term the honorary produces a half-hour television program over station WMSB. A fellowship and song program was presented fall term with the Men's Glee Club while winter term the honorary put on a suspense drama, "Murder Plays the Game."

Other activities this year included a radio workshop and a television clinic, meetings at which prominent broadcasters spoke, and the annual field trip to Chicago.

Alpha Phi Sigma

At the beginning of each term members of Alpha Phi Sigma, national police science honorary, operate a fingerprinting service which is available to all students. Members also work with law enforcement agencies throughout the year to keep a current file on employment opportunities in police work.

The chapter's purpose is to elevate the ethical standards of police service and to aid in the ultimate professionalization of police work.

Membership requirements are based on scholastic ability, service to the school, and an interest in increasing the stature of the law enforcement profession.

Alpha Zeta

Character, leadership, and personality with a minimum three point all college grade point are the basic requirements for Alpha Zeta agricultural honorary membership.

Service functions include a recognition program of presenting high scholarship certificates to outstanding freshmen and sophomores in the 14 departments in the agricultural college.

An Alpha Zeta scholarship award is also presented each year to the ag sophomore with the highest scholastic average.

Beta Alpha Psi

Beta Alpha Psi is an honorary open to accounting majors with a three point grade average.

The group has sponsored an annual fall term mixer for all accounting majors and an alumni banquet spring term since the honorary was organized.

At each banquet several alumni are made honorary members and an accounting student with the highest grade average is presented the Beta Alpha Psi plaque.

Throughout the year the chapter has guest speakers prominent in the accounting field speak at their meetings.

Beta Beta Beta

Beta Beta Beta, national honor society in biological science, aims to promote scholarship, interest in research, and fellowship in its field.

Membership in the honorary requires a 2.6 all college average, with junior status or twenty credits in biological science courses.

The group provides a biology advisory vocational service and assists the zoology department.

Chi Epsilon

Since its first appearance on MSU's campus in 1952, Chi Epsilon, national civil engineering honorary, has endeavored to recognize the characteristics fundamental to a successful engineer and has strived to further these characteristics in its undergraduate program.

Chi Epsilon's purpose is to honor the outstanding students in civil engineering. Eligibility for membership requires a student to be in the upper one-third in his junior or senior engineering class.

Participation in the annual Engineering Exposition and the Engineering Council were the two main activities of the honorary this year.

First Row — Parker, D.; Rossman, D.; Dombrowski, B.; Hierman, M.; Youngen, Miss. Second Row — Brede, J.; Lechmer, G.;

Delta Psi Kappa

Delta Psi Kappa, professional physical education honorary for women, promotes high educational standards in professional training.

Locally this honorary offers such services as a written handbook on physical education curriculum, tutoring to majors in physical education, and ushering for department functions.

Nationally the honorary presents a bi-annual award to women engaged in research work in health, physical education, and recreation.

Requirements for admission are a 2.3 all college for sophomores, a 2.8 for juniors, and a 2.7 for seniors with a three point in major courses.

Green Splash

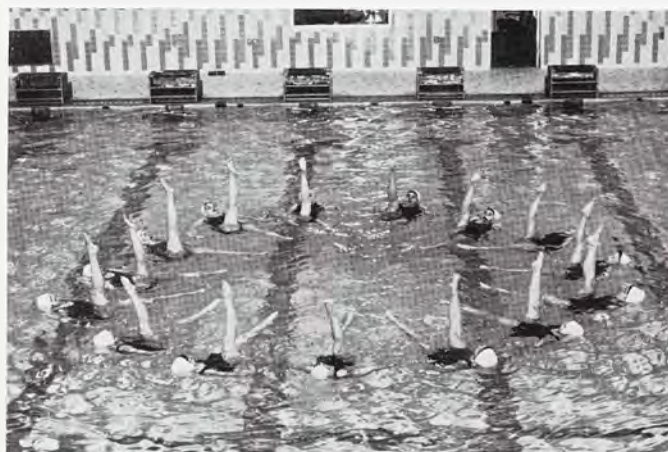

Synchronized swimming is one of the most beautiful of water activities and Green Splash is a group that makes it even more so. Green Splash is the women's swimming honorary which promotes an interest in water activities for women students at MSU under the leadership of Miss Norma Stafford.

Green Splash participates in intercollegiate synchronized swim competition both in individual and team events. The club won first place in solo and duet stunt competition and second place in team events this year.

The annual Green Splash synchronized swim show is held spring term. The theme this year was "Westward Ho, H₂O."

An all university two point, Senior Life Saving certificate, participation in swimming intramurals, plus special swimming requirements are necessary for admission into Green Splash. Each year Green Splash gives an outstanding senior award to the senior who has contributed the most to the organization.

Members of the Green Splash synchronized swimming team go through a "ballet legs" routine before their annual spring term water show.

Phi Mu Alpha

Phi Mu Alpha selects students for membership who have an active interest in music and who have maintained a 2.4 all college average.

The organization tries to promote music in America, to develop fraternal loyalty and spirit among its members, and to foster the mutual welfare and brotherhood of students in music.

Phi Mu Alpha takes active part in such events as creative arts week, home coming displays, IM bowling and basketball, and the annual jazz concert series. They also present a music concert in connection with the music department concert series.

Music is a constant part of the life of the members of Phi Mu Alpha. Here a combo practices in the living room of the house.

The executive council of Pi Sigma Epsilon meets to discuss business and plan the meetings.

Pi Sigma Epsilon, MSU's food distribution fraternity, seeks to link the work and study in the food distribution industry with its business and social aspects.

MSU's chapter of Pi Sigma Epsilon, organized on campus in 1957, was the first food distribution fraternity in the United States. Any student in food distribution is eligible for membership.

Each term the fraternity visits food manufacturers and hears well-known speakers in the industry in order to keep up with the industry's current developments.

Well-known speakers in the field include Franklin Lundy, president of the Jewel Tea company, and Joseph B. Hall, president of the Kroger company.

"Miss Kay" is crowned each spring term at an all-university dance. She serves as Pi Sigma Epsilon's official hostess during the following school year.

In addition to participating in intramural sports the fraternity presents the Lurie Brother's Award each year to the most active fraternity member.

Spartan Christian Fellowship

Spartan Christian Fellowship is a non-denominational organization open to all students who wish to participate. Its purpose is to present Christ to university students through prayer, Bible studies and discussions. It is run entirely by MSU students.

Organized at MSU in 1939, Spartan Christian Fellowship is a member of Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, an international organization founded in England in 1873.

Each summer the group sends members to summer camps for schooling in leadership training and school and Christian responsibility.

On campus, Spartan Christian Fellowship conducts Bible studies in the dormitories and prayer meetings on campus three times a week.

Social activities center around Bethel Manor where teas, banquets, and informal gatherings are held.

Wesley Foundation

Wesley Foundation is looking forward to the completion of its new Methodist Student Center on Harrison road in September.

Wesley House activities include Wesley Forum Sunday evenings, Communion breakfasts each Wednesday, Thursday noon luncheons, and weekend study and spiritual retreats.

"Skeptic's Corner," an informal gathering at Wesley House has been added this year.

Accounting and Finance Club

Getting acquainted with the faculty of the accounting department is one of the main purposes of the MSU Accounting and Finance Club.

Approximately 55 members were active during the year, under the leadership of George E. Pawlanta, president. Requirements for admission include the completion of one term's work in accounting courses.

The club facilitates the getting together of students with similar interests in accounting.

Agricultural Education Club

The Agricultural Education Club is open to students interested in or majoring in agricultural education. The purpose of the club is to prepare members for intelligent and capable service in the field and to strengthen student-faculty relationships.

Service functions provided by the group include providing judges and guides for Future Farmers of America contests, besides sending four members to Kansas city, Missouri, each year to the annual F.F.A. conference.

Members also exchange visits with students from other universities to broaden their agricultural education background.

Agronomy Club

The Agronomy Club is the student subdivision of the American Society of Agronomy. Any student enrolled in the fields of farm crops, soil science, or any related field is eligible for membership.

An award is given to the outstanding club member at the Ag Honors banquet held winter term. The club also takes several field trips, including a tour of the Kellogg Biological station at Gull Lake each spring.

The group serves to promote a better understanding of crops and soil to establish a closer relationship between faculty and students.

AFS - ASFM

The student affiliates of the American Foundrymen's Society and the American Society for Metals aim to promote interest, research, and technical development in their fields.

The American Foundrymen's Society furthers this end by awarding $1200 in scholarships to students interested in the foundry industry, a spring Student-Industry Banquet, and participation in the annual Engineering Exposition.

A featured activity this year was a talk by Doug Harvey, metallurgist from General Motors Research, on new developments in metallurgy.

AIChE

The purpose of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers organization is to acquaint members with the profession's code of ethics and to prepare campus members for membership in the parent organization upon graduation.

All students enrolled in the chemical engineering curriculum are eligible for membership.

In addition to participating in intramural sports, Engineering Exposition, both the auto race and exhibit, AIChE members also hold several technical meetings each term and make field trips to chemical industries.

AIEE-IRE

The American Institute of Electrical Engineering and Institute of Radio Engineering is comprised of all students in electrical engineering.

AIEE-IRE hears prominent speakers in the field of electrical engineering at their meetings each term. Winter term is highlighted by a field trip to various electronic companies. The group also meets once a term with Lansing's professional AIEE-IRE.

Through these various activities the organization attempts to promote interest in electrical engineering as a profession.

ASAE

Members of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers attempt to become better acquainted with the faculty and profession through this organization.

In addition to field trips both in and out of state, Activities Carnival, Engineering Exposition and Farmers' Week, ASAE members find time to hear prominent speakers in the agricultural engineering field.

By hearing the latest ideas in industrial development in agriculture and by seeing first hand, through field trips, the newest developments, members feel they are better prepared to meet their profession's requirements when graduated.

ASCE

The biggest event sponsored by the American Society of Civil Engineers is the annual Engineering Exposition which is highlighted by the midget auto race around Circle Drive spring term.

By working closely with the national professional ASCE organization, the campus group is able to co-ordinate its activities so that when a civil engineer is graduated he is prepared for his profession and for membership in the senior society of ASCE.

To be eligible for membership in the organization, a student must have completed his freshman year in civil engineering.

ASME

The fostering of high ideals among mechanical engineering students and the promotion of mechanical engineering as a profession are the main goals of the MSU chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

ASME attempts to promote the art, science, and standards of mechanical engineering through educational, professional, and social contacts. Opportunities in the field of mechanical engineering are made known to members.

ASME took first place in the midget auto race at last year's Engineering Exposition.

AVMA

Nearly 100 per cent of the students in the College of Veterinary Medicine are members of the American Veterinary Medical Association which was organized on campus in 1929.

The purpose of AVMA is to acquaint its members with the many different areas in their fields by sponsoring speakers who are authorities on federal and state veterinary projects, small and large animal medicine, and related fields.

MSU's chapter won many honors during the year: the homecoming display award, activities carnival display award, and the Publications Banquet skit award.

The group assists in publishing the "MSU Veterinarian" and "MSU Veterinary News and Views" which are publications issued to all vet medicine students on campus.

AVMA also participated in Farmer's Week activities, the Post Graduate Veterinary Conference, and intramural football, basketball, and softball.

The main function of the Army ROTC Officers Club is to present extra-curricular material to the cadet which he is unable to get in his classes.

The club also promotes better relationships between cadets and officers and a better understanding of army life. Acquainting officers and their families with army life on foreign posts through seminars which discuss the various aspects of military life is also accomplished.

Army ROTC officers sponsor one of the biggest all-university social dances of the fall term—Coronation Ball. Selecting campus coeds as the Army Corps Sponsors to be presented at the ball is one of the most pleasant activities the club does during the year.

The Commissioning Dinner-Dance is held each spring at which graduating seniors and newly commissioned officers are honored.

Any advanced Army ROTC cadet is eligible for membership in the Officers Club.

Block and Bridle

One of the surest places to find someone who's interested in livestock is in the Block and Bridle Club. Here is an organization where all livestock is prime.

Following along this line of interest, Block and Bridle sponsors several judging contests throughout the Midwest.

Their judging teams also compete at out of state livestock judging contests such as those at Fort Worth, Texas, and Chicago, Illinois.

Another club activity is the organizing and sponsoring of a horse show.

Block and Bridle also provides several scholarships for study in animal husbandry, besides assisting at all the livestock conventions held on campus.

Dairy Club

Any student with an interest in dairying can become a member of the Dairy Club whose aim is to develop and promote the general welfare of MSU dairy students.

Each year, the club sponsors a booth at the Michigan State Fair to acquaint the public with dairying. The club sponsors a dairy products judging contest and a dairy cattle judging contest on campus.

In addition to being an active element of the Ag Council, the Dairy Club is also a member of the American Dairy Science Association. Individual members of the Dairy Club are active on the dairy judging teams, placing high in inter-collegiate contests.

Delta Phi Epsilon, national professional foreign service fraternity, is open to all male college students interested in a foreign service career, including all activities related to foreign relations and commerce of the United States.

Although DPE is a relatively new organization on campus, it has taken an active part in the annual International Festival and provides an orientation service to new foreign students on campus.

On the national level, the fraternity participates in the National Foreign Trade Convention and the National World Trade Week.

Elementary Education Club

The familiar term of "el ed" is practically the password of the club, since its membership is open to elementary education majors or those securing an elementary teaching certificate.

Service projects are one of the main activities of this organization. The members serve as assistants in the Instructional Materials Center and on Saturdays they can be seen there sponsoring reading periods.

At their informal meetings, the el ed club members often have speakers discuss new trends in education.

Forensics Union

An active interest in public speaking, discussion, and debate has been one of the prime factors in putting the MSU Forensics Union among the tops in the nation.

Besides participating on campus during the Union Board Fine Arts Week, the group took part in many national and international debates, and the bi-weekly television series, "Controversy." Members also discussed campus topics on "Campus Crossroads."

Forensics Union is the doorway to Delta Sigma Rho, national forensic society honorary. Superior members are selected to join the honorary.

HPERC

One service function performed by the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Club is sponsoring a "play day" for all surrounding high school girls. Demonstrations of fencing, synchronized swimming, and interpretative dance were presented to "play day" attendants this year.

Coeds in the major fields of health, physical education and recreation are automatically members of the club.

The main event spring term is Senior Farewell, an informal get-together honoring graduating seniors, at which an award is given the outstanding senior member.

During their required stay at the Dunbar forestry and engineering summer camp, these students gain practical knowledge and experience in surveying and building timber roads.

When those fuzzy faces start appearing at the beginning of winter term it's not because of a shortage of razor blades, but it's a sure sign that the Forester's Shindig, complete with the annual beard-growing contest, isn't far off.

On the big night, the garb in the Forestry Cabin is strictly Paul Bunyon style. The Forestry Club puts on this all-university dance complete with country music.

This year the Forestry Club took part in the Mid-western Foresters' Conclave held at the University of Michigan. All of the Big Ten schools were represented.

The club, whose members are regularly enrolled in the forestry department, strives to provide an educational and social program and to promote a bond of friendship between its members and their instructors.

India Student Association

Home to these students is more than ten thousand miles away, yet through their activities in the India Student Association, they manage to keep their culture close to them.

The club celebrates the Indian Independence Day and other holidays with a dinner and dance, all presented in the traditional manner of their Eastern homeland. Throughout the year members have many get-togethers and coffee hours.

The association works hand in hand with the International Club in presenting the International Festival each spring.

International Club

"Getting to Know You" should be the theme song of the International Club. Its members, who hail from far corners of the earth, are bound by the hope of creating better understanding and lasting friendships among themselves and their nations.

The club is constantly involved in a hub-bub of projects, kicking off fall term with an international talent show. They also put on an international dinner, complete with a polyglot menu. Following right in line with the trans-world flavor, the club annually sponsors the Cosmopolitan Ball. During the spring they produce and stage the International Festival.

Les Gourmets members worked diligently on the decorations for the "Exotic Orient" atmosphere of their dinner-dance.

Les Gourmets

Cares were left on the other side of the world the night Les Gourmets imported the land of the rising sun for their annual dinner-dance at Kellogg Center. The eastern menu and atmosphere helped make "A Night in the Exotic Orient" one of the campus highlights of the year.

Although the prime purpose of Les Gourmets is to expand interests and opportunities in the restaurant industry, they have found another side interest — each fall they branch out with gusto to tackle intramural football. After football fades, they plunge into another intramural sport.

Each spring the members travel to Chicago to attend the National Restaurant Association convention. There they accomplish a dual purpose. They not only set up their own booth, but manage to pick up many pointers from the other participants.

At Christmas the club forgets the world of restaurants and sponsors a party for underprivileged children. Naturally, the refreshments are masterpieces.

The club annually gives the Fred Siminson award to the outstanding student in the restaurant and hotel management curriculum.

MSU Hotel Association

It was "Hell" on campus, complete with the Devil and all his cohorts, the night the Hotel Association put on its annual dinner-dance, "Holiday in Hades." The devil's disciples projected the sinister atmosphere throughout the music, menu and even the mood.

After things cooled off, the freshmen and sophomore members of the association got a chance to display their talent to the upperclassmen when they put on the Spring Swing dance.

But all is not socializing for the second largest organization on campus. With the biggest treasury of MSU's clubs, the group does a little traveling.

Each term the Hotel Association has several outstanding speakers from the hotel industry at their meetings. The association also arranges visits to several hotels and restaurants. Through these trips, the members get to view the inside of the hotel industry — the advantages and disadvantages of managing hotels.

MSU Men's Glee Club

Because their 80 voices blend so harmoniously the Men's Glee Club is often considered one of MSU's best public relations organizations.

Their singing this year took them throughout Canada, with their final destination of the trip being Toronto, Ontario, where they participated in programs with the glee clubs of the University of Toronto and Colgate University. During the year the Men's Glee Club also tours in this area, singing for various alumni, high schools and private organizations. Veterans' hospitals hear their musical talents, too.

They appeared on campus to help kick off the Campus Chest drive. Each year they also present a concert for the student body. Combining eating and singing, the glee club sings for its dinner at banquets.

The members, who are not regularly enrolled as music majors, but have shown an interest and desire to sing, are admitted on the basis of an audition. The Men's Glee Club is organized as a class under the direction of the music department.

MSU Women's Glee Club

Singing for pleasure and for others' enjoyment, the Women's Glee Club produces musical tones throughout the year at rehearsals and various concerts.

In the fall they participated in a combined concert with the Men's Glee Club. During the holiday season the members gathered in the Union for caroling at the request of Union Board. An annual Christmas concert was also on their fall calendar.

When everyone else was relaxing spring term, the glee club toured Michigan giving concerts. After presenting their spring concert, the Women's Glee Club sang at the Boys' Vocational School.

Even with this busy schedule the group appeared at various special concerts with MSU's symphony orchestra.

The members did a little extra-curricular singing when they displayed their talents with a repertoire of songs at the Activities Carnival.

An audition during registration week and regular attendance at rehearsals are required for membership in the Women's Glee Club. Dues of 50¢ are charged for social activities.

Regular attendance at the afternoon rehearsals is expected of members of the Women's Glee Club, directed by Ethel Armeling.

MSU Symphony Orchestra

Members of the MSU Symphony Orchestra enjoy the study and performance of the finest symphonic music. Membership is by audition.

Under the baton of Dr. Hans Lampl, this organization plays concerts each term on campus, accompanies the chorus in its large performances and aids at many other events, including special concerts and opera performances. Frequent trips to other cities to give concerts are made.

During fall term, in addition to regular appearances, the orchestra played for the special concert of works by Dr. Mario Castelnuovo Tedesco, distinguished visiting professor, and for the annual all-university Christmas program.

MSU Packaging Society

The Packaging Society promotes packaging on campus as well as in industry and supplements the students' knowledge of packaging as learned in the classroom. Any student showing an interest in packaging can become a member.

Members attend the American Management Association show in Chicago and the Packaging Machinery Manufacturers Institute show in New York City to pick up ideas from industry. On campus the society participated in the Activities Carnival.

The groups honors men in the industry by giving annually the Packaging Man of the Year award.

Among the projects undertaken by the Varsity Club is the distribution of programs at athletic events.

The group in green or white sweaters that assembles around Sparty spring term is the Varsity Club initiating its new pledges. Members must be a varsity letter winner and have good scholastic standing.

In promoting fellowship among athletes, the club went as a group to a Detroit Lions football game and to a Detroit Red Wing hockey game. They planned the Old-Timers basketball game which pits the varsity against the alumni.

When not practicing a particular sport, the members entertain. A chicken fry is given spring term to which the club invites pledges, wives, coaches and members of the athletic department. Throughout the year dances are planned.

Underprivileged children see MSU in action when the Varsity Club takes the youngsters to football and basketball games.

The club honors their outstanding members by presenting three awards. A scholarship is awarded to the most deserving junior. Two seniors are recognized annually — one for having done the most for the club and one for scholarship.

MSU Veterans' Association

"Take one, they're free!" was the cry of the infamous duck, symbol of MSU's Veterans' Association, outside the auditorium during registration week as this organization welcomed all ex-GI's back to campus with pamphlets concerning their activities.

The vets planned a big year of activities including intramural sports, a football trip to Detroit, dances, and, of course, "deals."

Recruiting members at the Activities Carnival, the club passed out gifts of cigarettes.

The Veterans' Association is a voluntary non-profit organization for the promotion of social interests and general welfare of student veterans.

The association's "Duck Block" operated again this year at football games. Cowbell ringing and enthusiastic cheering made them a conspicuous group as they urged the Spartan teams to victory. The Vets' duck symbol on a giant sign was displayed during half-times.

Pomoler Club

The Pomoler Club is responsible for the year-round operation of the apple vending machine in the Horticulture building. Not only is their treasury aided by this venture, but it also provides them with information on the buying habits of consumers.

Members saw to it this year that anyone interested was given a free ride to the Michigan Horticultural Society show.

The Pomoler Club promotes fellowship and furthers the interests of fruit and vegetable production by uniting those having a common interest in the field by the presentation of current developments in horticulture and contacts in the industry.

Pre-Medical Society

The prime purpose of the Pre-Medical Society is to help its members achieve that faraway goal of becoming doctors. It strives to make them better acquainted with the medical profession and its principles. The club is open to both pre-med and pre-dent students.

Throughout the year the club invites several physicians and surgeons from other universities and the outlying counties to speak at its meetings. Questions are always asked by this eager group.

The members of the club perform volunteer services for both the campus and the community.

Each fall term the Pre-Medical Society participates in the Activities Carnival.

Promenaders

"Do si do and swing your partner" are heard every Wednesday night as the Promenaders practice square, folk and round dancing. The club furnishes its own callers and does most of its own teaching of the latest dances.

A demonstration team of the more experienced dancers in green and white costumes gives several performances each term. The group appeared before the HPR dance classes and performed at the Flint Folk Festival.

A double square pin is awarded to all graduating members of Promenaders.

Rifle Club

Rifle shots resound at MSU when the Rifle Club does a little target shooting in Dem Hall. The club sponsors two teams, the varsity and the army ROTC. Each competes in a separate league. Trophies are awarded to the winning teams each year.

Individual excellence is an aim of the group. The National Rifle Association, to which the club is affiliated, presents awards to the woman and man who are the top shooters for the year. Civilian rifle practice is another goal of the group.

Social Work Club

Interest in unfortunate and needy people unite the members of the Social Work Club.

The club provides a channel of communication for those interested in the field of social work. Job opportunities are discussed at meetings and well-known persons, usually social workers, are guest speakers.

Dr. H. Friedlander, a visiting professor from the University of California, addressed the group this fall.

The purpose of the club is to find ways to help and care for the victims of social abuse.

Women's Athletic Association

Who says college life is "all work and no play?" Not the Women's Athletic Association! They're determined to prove this old adage isn't true by providing plenty of play. All year long the WAA conducts a full women's intramural sports program, including everything from bowling and softball to golf.

The women's living units compete among themselves for the WAA trophies awarded in each of six sports. These trophies are presented to the winners at a banquet held in the spring.

The Women's Athletic Association also sponsors group playdays during the year.

State News Advertising Staff

The advertisements in the State News and the advertising staff play a vital part in the publishing of the paper, since they bring in the money.

The staff, under the direction of the business manager, gathers ad material from local merchants and handles advertisements from national concerns. Campus classifieds, for the use of all on campus, are also handled by the staff. Staffers lay out the ad section of the pages and read proofs.

Advertising workers can advance to retail managers, classified managers or national advertising managers. All managers are salaried staffers.

State News Editorial Staff

Journalistically inclined students may get practical experience in on-the-job work at the State News.

A different night staff "puts out" the paper — lays out pages, fits in stories and pictures, writes headlines and reads galleys and page proofs — each of the five nights. Besides the State News night staffs, the editorial, sports and feature staffs contribute to the daily pages.

As well as the one-night-a-week work, staffers are kept busy collecting news and features from their beats on campus for the paper.

The editorial board, composed of all the editors, formulate the editorial policy of the State News.

Wolverine Editorial Staff

"To each his own" may well have been the theme song of the editorial staff of the 1960 Wolverine. Beginning last spring term, the eleven editors worked closely with their specialized staffs and each other to find the combination which would make the book click.

The editor and associate editor coupled general supervisory duties throughout the year with the sometimes tedious task of sorting through thousands of pictures and hundreds of thousands of words of copy to fill the 488 pages.

As deadlines approached—and sometimes passed—the editors of the different sections worked long hours with their staffs to iron out every last procedural wrinkle.

Wolverine Business Staff

A special interest in dollars and cents is the mark of the business staff of the 1960 Wolverine. As the business manager and his staff well know, financing a large and elaborate publication is almost a full-time job.

Since for the first time in many years the 1960 Wolverine is on its own, without advertising, at times the budget threatened not to stretch any further. But a raise in price of the organization pages, plus increased sales, brought in the money to cover production costs.

Working closely with the business manager were the sales, promotion and office managers, who planned and carried out effective advertising and promotion campaigns.

Spartan

Paul Rivas and Barry Clune look over art proofs for the next Spartan with three office girls.

The Spartan, MSU's inter-arts magazine, received nation-wide praise, if not campus acclaim, by earning in 1958-59 its first All-American rating from the Associated Collegiate Press. The magazine compiled 1,450 points out of a possible 1,500 to win the award.

The Spartan editorial board policy is to publish outstanding work in the fields of writing and art and to provide information on activities of an inter-arts nature.

The business staff handles advertising, promotion and publicity, while the editorial staff is responsible for the fiction, features, satires, jokes and cartoons published in the magazine. Student contributions are accepted.

In conjunction with Theta Alpha Phi, the dramatic honorary, the Spartan gives the awards to the top student actors. Unnoticed coeds are recognized campus-wide when they are selected Sparty Pixes.

The magazine was chartered in 1868 as the "Bubble" by Hezekiah Z. Solemstyle. It was published then by the Stoical Pen Yankers' Society.

Dedicated to the publication and encouragement of writing by students in engineering and science, the Spartan Engineer is the soapbox for majors in these fields.

The articles are technical, but written in such a way that even the non-engineering student can understand them. Advertisements inform the students of job opportunities in various corporations. Students and faculty members alike may enter articles.

The Spartan Engineer has been published since the fall of 1947 when it was the official publication of the College of Engineering. The present edition has branched out to cover allied fields.

Staffers are also members of Kappa Alpha Mu, photography honorary. The darkroom, fully equipped, allows the staff to develop, enlarge and print the pictures.

Drinking appeared on campus, a Ripley's believe it or not, during Union Board Week. "What'll You Have?" was the theme of the festivities which Union Board sponsors.

Names of various drinks — Pink Lady, Mint Julep, Old Fashioned — indicated the events Union Board committees had planned for the week. The jazz concert was aptly named Tequila.

With its own dance group, the U-Bettes, and a chorus of members, Union Board won first prize in the Activities Carnival booth competition. As added features of the booth, Union Board raffled off two tennis sweaters and a record donated by local stores.

If you need someone to type a term paper, a ride home or entertainment for your term party, Union Board's typing service, ride bureau and talent file are the answers to these questions.

The purpose of the board is to organize and supervise student activities in the Union. The 14-member executive is aided by committees whose members have petitioned.

Alpha Phi Omega

It's a sure bet that wherever students congregate on campus there's an Alpha Phi Omega member among them. The members publicly display their bravery by helping at registration each term. Ushering at such events as Water Carnival, Sorority Sing and all the basketball games keeps the members on their toes.

They even invade Olin Health Center and run a messenger service. The APO's are kept constantly on the go by removing all the stale posters on campus. MSU's greenery is preserved spring term by their vigorous SOG (Save Our Grass) campaign. This only national service fraternity is comprised of former Boy Scouts.

Career Carnival

When that time approaches fall term for the Union to turn into a job supermarket, it's time for the Career Carnival executive committee to swing into action. The members of the executive committee have to stock this supermarket with a complete range of jobs covering everything from astrologers to zoologists.

Working hand in hand with the Placement Bureau, the group organizes and produces the entire two-day affair, entitled this year "Blueprint for the Future." The members of the executive committee are chosen by the Placement Bureau. More than 70 different companies were represented at the annual affair.

Cheerleaders

Those darting green and white figures at football and basketball games are MSU's cheerleaders, expert promoters of Spartan spirit.

Besides instilling interest and enthusiasm within the student body to support the athletic teams, they represent the university by doing public relations work such as serving on welcoming committees.

In addition to cheering on the teams of major sports, the cheerleaders appear at pep rallies and perform at exhibitions at surrounding colleges, junior colleges and high schools.

The faculty-student bond is promoted even further each term when SWL sponsors coffee hours for instructors and students. Members of this organization donate their time to work at STUN. They also assist at the campus blood drives.

Senior Council

The Senior Council has been intent on making the last three quarters THE high spot of four years for the several thousand graduating seniors.

Things began popping way back fall term when the Senior Council staged the annual Homecoming Day. With all the returning grads here that day, the seniors got a taste of alumni life.

Council-sponsored coffee hours scattered throughout the year brought the class closer together. Suspense built up every week before the council announced the Seniors of the Week.

It was actually spring term before the council had its chance to shine. The barrage of activities started with the Senior Ball and the Senior Swingout. Water Carnival, the big event of the term, climaxed the year's work for the Senior Council.

The council is composed of the four senior class officers, elected by the class, and those class members chosen by the class officers on the basis of petitions and interviews.

Senior Council members plan the events that made their senior year a memorable one.

Junior Council

The Junior Council acts as an advisory board to the class officers and helps plan the functions and activities of the junior class.

Starting the year with a booth, "Come Fly With Me," at the Activities Carnival, the council gave students an idea of the scope of junior-planned events.

Aside from handling class business, Junior Council devotes considerable time to special projects.

A foreign influence crept into the J-Council with the establishment of a student United Nations. The group was constructed on the same lines as the UN in New York City and communicated directly with it.

United Nations committees were set up among the international and American students on campus to air world wide problems in an intellectual atmosphere. The junior UN aimed at promoting better understanding among students.

Block "S," another junior project, again performed at football games. The 850 members worked closely with the marching band's half-time shows. Actual "flash" time was increased to seven and a half minutes.

When the Block wasn't performing, it still maintained a permanent green "S" on a white background. This effect was achieved by the members who wore either green or white felt capes during the games.

Membership this year was open only to freshmen. A fee of 50 cents was instituted in hopes of increasing interest in the project.

Sophistication prevailed on campus one evening, the night of the 1960 J-Hop, the council's biggest project. The dance, traditionally a two-night affair, was changed to a one-nighter to increase the formal atmosphere. Coeds in long dress and men in tuxedos danced to the music of Lester Lanin's band at "Jour de Fete."

The 19-member council presented the Outstanding Junior awards to the members of the class who had made exceptional contributions to the university. The awards were made spring term at Sorority Sing.

Meetings of the general chairmen and committee chairmen began early in the fall to lay plans for "Jour de Fete", the '60 J-Hop.

Frosh-Soph Council

The Exec board meets to plan Frosh-Soph Council meetings, discuss reports, and vote on whether or not to order mushrooms on the pizza.

Reorganization occurred this year in the Frosh-Soph Council. Three new committees — the economic, social and cultural and service — superseded the various committees of the past councils. Members for the committees were selected by petitions and informal interviews instead of elections.

The functions of the new committees had the economic one serving as the fund-raising group, the social committee planning the university-wide social events and the cultural helping to further educational and cultural programs.

The main purpose of Frosh-Soph Council is to acquaint incoming students with the traditions and customs of life at MSU. Council members helped freshmen and transfers plan schedules during registration. Frosh-Soph Daze, planned for Welcome Week, was the opportunity for inter-class rivalry.

Relating to elections of the two classes, the council sponsored a pre-election rally to allow members a chance to meet the various candidates. Parents of all students were invited spring term by the council to visit the campus and attend the activities held by the group.

AWS Activities Board

Coordinating and planning activities for the women of MSU is the job of the AWS Activities Board. Probably representing the largest faction on campus, the board is elected by the entire coed population who are automatically members of AWS.

A sponsor of Lantern Night, the board helps to choose the 50 senior women honored at this event.

Freshmen coeds, arriving on campus, receive aid from upperclassmen, the result of the AWS's "Big Sister" program.

The board allows students to buy textbooks cheaply by managing each term STUN.

AWS Judiciary Board

Coeds, returning to MSU this fall, were confronted with a new system of signing in and signing out, instituted by the AWS Judiciary Board. Individual cards instead of sheets were used in the sign-out procedure.

The board determines and maintains standards of conduct as will reflect creditably on the university and will foster among women students friendship, happiness and a personal sense of responsibility.

The members discuss problems which arise in the living units and handle coed petitions. Representatives are elected each winter term by their living units. The sororities have proportional representation.

All-University Judiciary

The All-University Judiciary, a branch of AUSG, hears all student discipline cases, except those involving remedial or medical treatment.

Although its decisions are recommendations subject to review by the Dean of Students office, not more than two reversals of student decisions have been made in the court's history.

The Judiciary is an appeal court for lower courts, such as AWS, Panhel, IFC and residence halls. It also has power to review actions of Congress and the executive branch for constitutionality. Nine members serve on the court for a year's term of office.

AUSG Executive Branch

Providing services for students is the aim of the executive branch of the All-University Student Government. The student body is taxed only 25 cents for the multiple services the branch performs.

Polio shots, free mimeographing and sponsorship of Spartacade publicize the effectiveness and breadth of the executive branch activities.

The executive branch, administered by the elected president and his cabinet, also carry out the functions assigned to it by the AUSG congress. At the request of Student Congress, the branch re-established the High School Cooperation Bureau.

Student Congress

Most areas of student concern come to the All-University Student Government's attention through representatives elected to Student Congress.

Meeting every Wednesday night, students, representing all living units discuss problem areas and controversial issues, pass or defeat proposed resolutions or bills. Those passed are enacted into ordinances governing all students.

Congress, following student sentiment, studied this year the waiving of Basic College exams and the abolition of compulsory class attendance.

Protsman, T.; Fischer, J.; Napoli, A.; Jones, S.; Loveland, C.

Student Traffic Appeal Court

Perhaps the least known All-University Student Government branch (except by that important minority of students who come before it) is the Student Traffic Appeal Court.

Students can appeal traffic fines to this Court. It is empowered to dismiss any fines imposed by the Campus Police for parking or driving violations.

Organized in 1956 along with the All-University Judiciary, the seven-member court has had no decision reversed since its existence. Members are selected by the chief justice and the president of Student Government on the basis of petitions and interviews.

The executive council of Pan-Hel coordinates the projects of the entire council.

PanHellenic Council is the coordinating and legislating body for all sororities. With two members from each sorority, the council works with the National Panhellenic Council and MSU's Inter-Fraternity Council.

PanHel, aided by IFC, hosted last spring the Big 10 IFC-PanHellenic Conference at MSU. The councils entertained the delegates with a get-acquainted dance and progressive parties at 10 Greek living units. Conference members looked critically at the fraternity system as it exists in the Big 10 universities.

Individual sororities compete for the high scholarship and best scholarship improvement trophies, awarded every term by PanHel. The council also presents the sorority trophies for the Homecoming display contest, Sorority Sing and Athena's Holiday.

Recognizing the need for community service, sororities, participating in a PanHellenic Council project, arranged books properly on the shelves during the reorganization of the library. New housemothers are honored fall term by tea given by the council.

Acknowledgment by the National Fraternity Council highlighted the year for the Inter-Fraternity Council. The council was runner-up in progress in the classification of schools with 20 or more fraternities.

The Inter-Fraternity Council is the governing body of the fraternity system. It guides and directs the activities of all colonies and fraternities on campus. Two members from each fraternity are elected to serve on the council.

An innovation of IFC this year, Fraternus, a nebbish-looking Greek, became the symbol of fraternity life.

A Fraternity Man of the Month award, made by the executive committee, goes to the man who contributes the most to fraternity life in general.

IFC improved the fraternities' system of rushing. A shortened open rush, held in the Union, followed a comprehensive introduction to aspects of fraternity living. The colorful booths, set up by individual fraternities at the Union, allowed the rushees to get an idea of the different chapters without traveling from house to house.

Women's Inter-Residence Hall Council

The Women's Inter-residence Council provides co-operation and coordination of activities and policies among the women's residence halls. Each representative, one from each dorm, is elected by her hall residents.

The council this year established the Circle leadership honorary for residence hall service. The honorary is composed of a limited number of coeds, selected for their service in their dorms. Preliminary tapping by the University of Michigan chapter was held this fall. The main tapping took place spring term.

The Homecoming and Snow Sculpture contests are two WIC sponsored activities. The council awards trophies to the winning dorms.

One of the service organizations on hand during Welcome Week, the council coordinates the freshmen orientation program in the residence halls. It also participates in Who's Who and What's What.

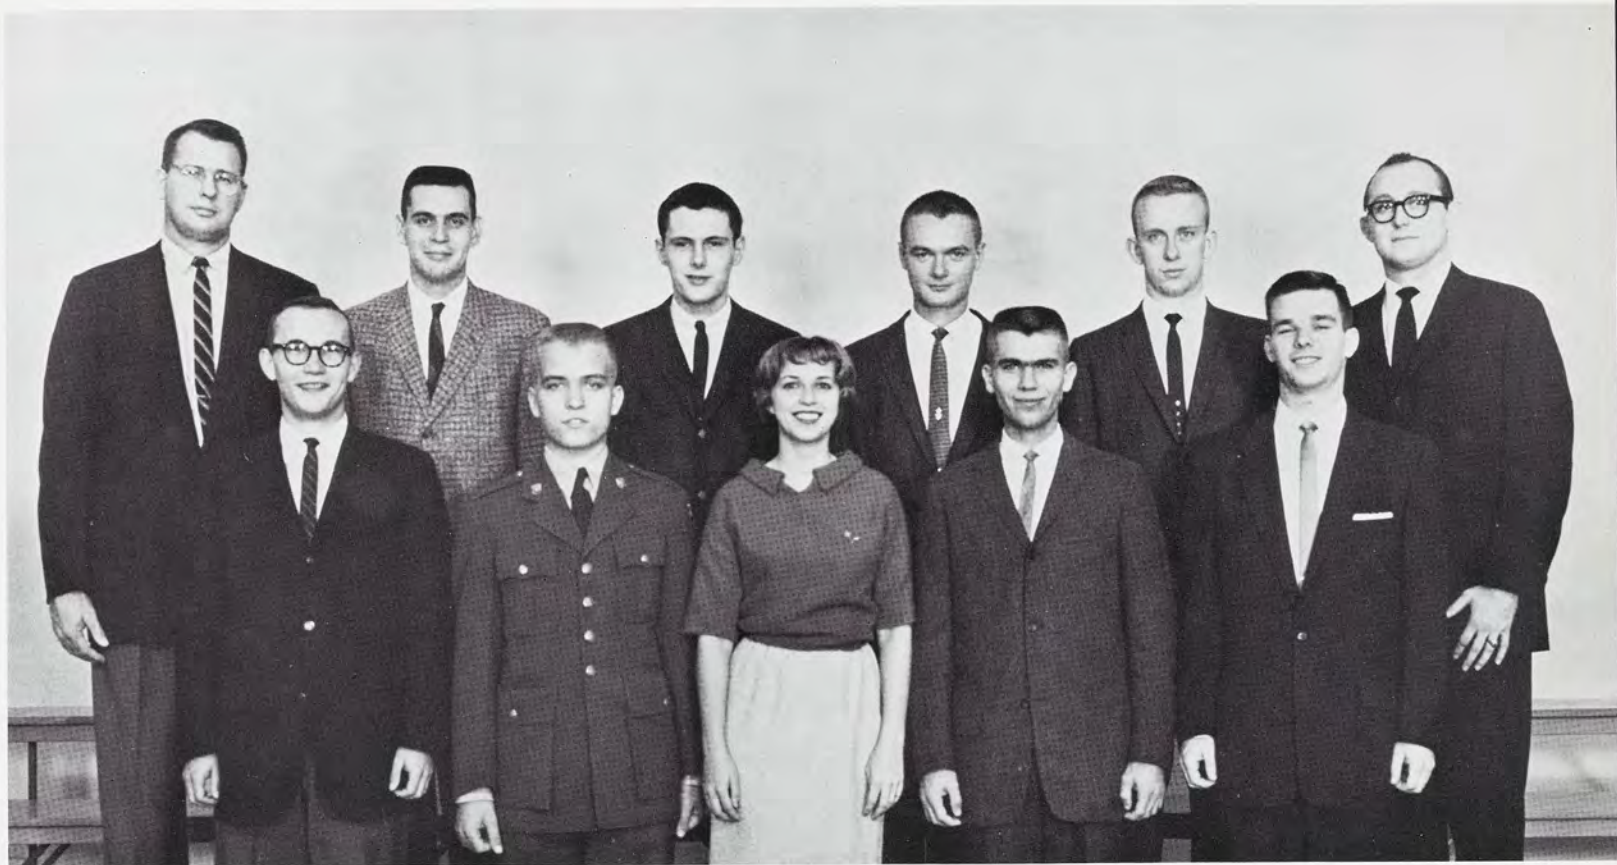

The Women's Presidents Council, comprised of the dorm presidents, cooperates with the Women's Inter-residence Council. These leaders discuss mutual problems that occur in their living units. Possible projects that the dorms can undertake are examined.

With the aid of the Men's Hall Association and the advice of the Presidents Council, WIC plans winter term the Sno-Ball, an all-university dance.

Men's Halls Association

Membership in the Men's Halls Association consists of the presidents of each of the men's residence halls. It was founded in 1949 to promote interdorm spirit and activities.

The organization's purpose is to guide and promote the activities of the men's residence halls, including interdorm social and athletic functions.

Awards presented by the group include the Homecoming trophy, the blood drive trophy, and the Spartacade trophy.

The campus organization is a member of the Big Ten Inter-Residence Hall Council whose aim is to be of service to all residents living in dormitories.

At the frequent MHA meetings, the members strive to unite the men's dorms through academic, social, and extra-curricular activities.

Engineering Council

Members of Engineering Council are representatives of each engineering organization on campus. Its purpose is to provide a nucleus and leadership for all engineering activities that concern the engineering school and its students.

Besides sponsoring the Engineering Exposition and May Hop Dance, the council helps all engineering students review for their eight hour professional engineering registration exam each spring by providing lectures by top-notch engineering instructors.

The council increased its effectiveness this year through its new constitution which has interested more students in engineering.

Home Economics Council

This was a big year for the Home Economics Council. The group's main event was the celebrating of the 50th anniversary of the American Home Economics Association. Fall term, they had the past dean of the School of Home Economics, Mary Sweeny, speak at the 50th Anniversary Dessert.

The group participated in Activities Carnival, "Who's Who and What's What," and conducted a child care center during the year.

The purpose of the Home Ec Council is to coordinate and guide all home ec professional clubs. Its membership is made up of the presidents of all the home ec clubs.

In living with others is found an education in itself.

the Residences

Through the companionship of Greek Feast and the competition of the flower show, the Greeks stand together, representing a unique way of life.

To each of those who choose to “go Greek,” the wearing of a fraternity or sorority badge has a different meaning. Yet to all it carries with it an indistinguishable combination of pride, comradeship, and enthusiasm that makes each house a home.

greeks

Sorority rush sign up, the first step in becoming a sorority member, is an event filled with confusion and anticipation.

This Greek "god" on his chariot was one of the many features of the Jr. 500 pre-race parade.

The Greek life is a busy one, often even bordering on the frantic. From the very first flush of rush to the last senior farewells, the Greek finds that his life is house-centered.

This year, as in the past, house events, all-campus events, and personal events claimed the time—and sometimes the patience—of the modern-day MSU Greek.

The chaos and confusion surrounding house participation in Homecoming, Water Carnival, and the Jr. 500 called for a unified, all-out effort on the part of actives, pledges, housemothers, and even occasionally some neighboring alumni with available tools and scrap lumber.

But beneath the glitter and glory of fancy displays and gleaming trophies lies the year-round effort for house unity and excellence. Rush meetings, song practices, study tables, and individual chapter functions lay the necessary groundwork for the strength of the fraternity and sorority life at Michigan State.

Actives take to the floor while they get acquainted with rushees during the first stages of rush.

Tom Hood of Farmhouse, escorted by Bruce Bandurski, won the annual Powder Puff Bowl Queen contest.

The song leader's endless and challenging job is to channel native enthusiasm to give chapter and popular songs alike added sparkle.

Climaxing the mad months and weary weeks of planning by the Inter-Fraternity and PanHellenic councils, the affiliated Spartans cut loose at the annual Greek Week.

Substituting trench coats for togas and sneakers for sandals, the modern Greeks devoted their week to working and playing get-togethers aimed at emphasizing the worth of the Greek system and its place at Michigan State.

Highlighting the week were Fraternity and Sorority sings, leadership conferences and officer workshops, Athena's Holiday, and the sumptuous Greek Feast. After taking a quick breather, the tired but forward-looking Greeks began planning for the next year—and two consecutive Greek Weekends to replace the old standby of Greek Week.

But for Greeks any time of the year, the weekend was the thing. Parties of all types were in vogue, as were informal and inpromptu get-togethers. And, during the warm weather months, each weekend was invariably followed by the blending of male voices serenading a newly-pinned or engaged coed.

Theta Chi director Bill Gillis happily accepts the Inter-Fraternity Sing first place trophy from President John A. Hannah.

Crowded closets and clothes-borrowing roommates often create early-morning and evening problems in Michigan State's fraternity houses.

Alpha Chi Omega

The necessary evil of song practice serves to unite the house and to give polish to vocal efforts.

Homecoming was a particularly busy weekend for the Alpha Chis who, in addition to the regular festive activities of the memorable occasion, entertained their dads in grand style and escorted them to the game.

Besides their fine showing in the main campus events, such as Spartacade, Homecoming and Water Carnival, the Alpha Chis have a national cerebral palsy project. They sponsor an annual party for cerebral palsy children in the Lansing area, for which they have ice cream, balloons and clowns—the whole works.

Midnight oil is burned at the Alpha Chi Omega house as special emphasis, a diamond, is placed on scholarship. The senior with the highest point average receives a diamond for her pin because of her high scholastic attainment.

Everyone wants to be a next door neighbor to the Alpha Delta Pis as they keep Harrison road hopping. At an inter-house football game, the coeds beat the men of Phi Kappa Sigma by two touchdowns with their big squeeze play. The foolproof strategy was a huge friendly hug. To console the losers, the A D Pi's invited the Skulls to dinner.

Plans for the future were discussed by the A D Pi's and their national vice-president. All spent a busy weekend as they selected a lot for their new house. To advertise the happy news, the coeds honored their national officer at an open house.

Combining social activities and service, the coeds gave parties for crippled children in the Lansing area.

Outstanding grades is the word at the Alpha Epsilon Phi house. These coeds consistently come up with a high point average. Still, they did manage to tear themselves away from their books long enough to celebrate their national fiftieth anniversary with an open house after the Homecoming game.

Sorority and fraternity members were also recipients of the A E Phi's hospitality winter term at an all Greek tea. Time was still found to participate in all-university activities.

Many of their activities were centered around philanthropy work, the Alpha Epsilon Phi National Foundation. Money this year was used for social science scholarships to various universities.

One cold night the beatniks invaded Maria's. This "gone group" was the Alpha Gams being feted by their pledges.

Far from being "beat," Alpha Gamma Delta has placed first in Spartacade and first in Sorority Sing two years in a row; and with the aid of the SAE's, first in Water Carnival.

Combine ukes and the songs of the Kingston Trio and one has another Alpha Gam specialty—group singing.

In October a Halloween party was held for cerebral palsy victims and in the spring the Alpha Gams sponsored a fund raising picnic for cerebral palsy, their national philanthropy. Individual members also work on various civic projects which relate to cerebral palsy.

Personal bulletin boards provide a showcase for many prized souvenirs.

It was thirty degree weather when the frosted AOPi's and the equally chilled Sig Eps waded through ankle deep puddles to shine cars. Their objective—to raise funds for their individual philanthropies.

The Beta Gamma chapter celebrated their 25th birthday last year. Its party, AOPi State Day, brought many surprises, one being the redecoration of the president's room as a gift from the Lansing area alumnae.

Red dominates the scene at this house. Their new housemother is a lovely, lively and little red-haired lady who keeps the place swinging with her version of the "flea-hop." The other flash of red is the chapter's new blazers with white AOPi monograms.

"They're coming around the bend and Alpha Phis are out in front!" So said the shouts at the annual Junior 500 race and they predicted correctly. The winner for the women's living units was the Alpha Phi sorority.

The Phis seem to have a habit of winning: they placed second in Homecoming, third in Water Carnival and won honorable mention in Sorority Sing.

Other social events included Dad's Day on the Saturday of the Purdue game, and a spring bermuda party in the sunken garden behind the chapter house. The roaring twenties were revived at a flapper costume party, complete with old time movies.

Alpha Phi

The Alpha Phi's winding staircase continues to be as much a conversation piece for the actives as it is for visitors to the House.

A "surprise" birthday party is always a favorite after-hours event. Here some Alpha Xis honor the tradition.

This year the Alpha Xis celebrated their 25th year on our campus. Originally Alpha Xi Delta was called the Ero Alphan Literary Society, until in 1934 they became a national chapter of the sorority. To mark their silver anniversary, the girls held an open house after a football game and invited students and faculty to their newly decorated house. Their province president appeared on the scene to help the coeds entertain the guests.

Besides participating in all-university events such as Water Carnival, Spartacade, Sorority Sing and Homecoming, the Alpha Xis carry on a service project involving support to organizations for the prevention of juvenile delinquency.

Turkey for dinner and it wasn't Thanksgiving. But the Chi Os and ATO's had won Turkey Trot again and were feasting on their prize.

Winning the Trot is almost tradition, but entering and copping top honors for sororities in the Flower Show wasn't. The women of Chi Omega discovered their flower arranging talent with a bang.

To stimulate interest in different schools of MSU and their professors, Chi O held desserts to which they invited a fraternity and a guest professor to lecture.

The Chi Omegas select no one national philanthropy but aid in a variety of civic projects. Each year they participate in a different community service such as the blood drive or Community Chest.

Delta Delta Delta

For the Tri Delts, home is always a welcome sight—especially after the long, wintry walk from the campus.

The Tri Delts now have a new hi-fi set added to their house, but this didn't come without some hard work on somebody's part. The scapegoats this year were the pledges who went out and shined the shoes of obliging fraternity men to raise money.

In turn, the actives worked hard to surprise the pledges. At the end of winter rush their newest members were entertained by a Pledge-Active formal. Pledges now know that hard work has its rewards.

A Mississippi Mud costume party turned the Delta Delta Delta house into a showboat. A Christmas party for underprivileged children, Dad's weekend, alumni tea and the faculty Apple Polish dinner managed to keep the Tri Delts in a social whirl.

Bruises, scratches and skinned knees aren't usually associated with the female and the powder puff, but at Delta Gamma they are with pain, for the Gamma Phis won the Powder Puff Bowl again! This classic, besides being an annual fall battle, is the main event of the DG's Dad's Day.

Although football may defeat them, the Delta Gammas star on the field on scholarship. The province and spring scholarship trophies are proof of the DG's intelligence.

This sorority may have been around at MSU for 13 years, but its housemother, Mrs. Boulton, is brand new and from all reports quite delightful.

Newness usually adds zest, but the Delta Zetas didn't need their newly redecorated lower level to spark their activities.

Besides having won third place in Spartacade and the scholarship award at DZ State Day, their enthusiasm has been channeled to service. While supporting Gaudellet College, they also "spread a little cheer" by writing to patients at Carville and visiting Bogue Nursing Home at East Lansing.

Their writing and visiting talent was outshined by their portrayal of Santa Claus last Christmas for the underprivileged children of East Lansing.

Doing a little socializing for themselves, they gave a bundle party, entitled "What's Behind the Green Door?"

Dad's Day for the Gamma Phi's was a big occasion this year. After displaying to the fathers their football prowess by winning the annual Powder Puff Bowl with the Delta Gammas, the coeds treated their guests to a delicious luncheon and escorted them to the football game in the afternoon.

Towards the end of the term as finals and Christmas vacation approached, the girls took a breather from their studying for a tree-trimming party with the Betas. Refreshments were served and everyone helped in some way to bring the Christmas spirit to the Gamma Phi Beta house.

Supporting camps for underprivileged children is the Gamma Phi's service project.

Kappa Alpha Theta

Last-minute preparations for a big occasion usually draw a sympathetic audience from among the sisters.

The Kappa Alpha Thetas can be called scholarship champions. After winning the Panhellenic first-place scholarship award four consecutive terms, the Thetas can now keep the trophy as a permanent addition to their trophy case.

Participating in Sorority Sing, Spartacade, Water Carnival and Homecoming, the Thetas came through with flying colors, placing in all four events.

The coeds are also busy with their national project, concerned with corrective speech, which involves supporting the Institute of Logopedics in Wichita, Kansas. Christmas time finds them working on a charity drive.

Football is a time for socializing at the Kappa Delta House. Their annual football open house for all Greeks, a traditional event, featured a combo and refreshments to work off the post-game chill. Friends and visitors were invited to their regular coffee hours held after every home football game.

The annual KD bridge tournament called all Greek card sharks to lend their hand in the favorite game of MSU living units.

In spite of all their entertaining the KD's did not forget their housemother. In recognition of her faithful service the coeds held a tea in her honor.

The annual football open house for all Greeks at the Kappa Delta house this year featured a jazz combo.

These coeds can be justly proud of their showing in campus beauty contests this year—almost every court has a Kappa on it. Intramural sports, especially swimming is another Kappa specialty. With members in Green Splash and on the women's MSU swim team, the Kappas are usually the winners in intramural aquatic contests. They still have time to participate in the regular campus events.

Organized on campus in 1930, their local service function consists of weekly visits to the Okemos Rehabilitation Center.

Charles Street has been "swinging" since the Phi Mu's new housemother arrived and brought with her an electric organ. Besides piano-organ duets the Phi Mus are striking up some keen competition with the Phi Mu Alpha professional music fraternity next door to them.

Bus boys became the guests of honor at the annual turn-about dinner when the coeds took over the evening duties. Laughter reigned as the actives donned white jackets and attempted to serve properly.

Welcoming the holiday season, they entertained their dates at a Christmas party with a pastel decor and a traditional pink tree. The "Phi Mu Lady," dressed in white satin, added to the gaiety.

Pi Beta Phi

Every year at the lighting of the campus Christmas tree, the Pi Phis are on hand to bring some musical holiday spirit to our community as they participate in their Christmas sing with the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Carrying on this inter-Greek spirit, they entertained with the Kappa Kappa Gammas at the yearly "Monmouth Duo," a function planned in honor of Monmouth College where both sororities were founded.

Spring term found these coeds limbering up for Athena's Holiday with the aim of winning first place again.

Their Philanthropic project is the maintenance of a settlement school in the mountains of Tennessee which provides education for the people in this area.

Pi Phis and their fathers enjoy dinner together after the football game on Dad's Day.

The social "latest" at the Sigma Kappa house have been coffee hours, bundles and parades. Neighborliness was promoted at coffee hours with two other MAC Avenue residents, Alpha Phi and Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Friday night, otherwise known as rowdy night, called for parades and entertainment via the bus boys. But the men decided that "turn about's fair play" and the cook's sanctum was suddenly invaded by 35 marching females, ready to entertain.

The sorority's philanthropy is gerontology, which they further locally by visiting nursing homes in the Lansing area.

Lively singing and musical strings make those lazy afternoons enjoyable for the Sigma Kappas.

The cook's night out means kitchen duty for the ZTA actives.

Hard work does have its reward! The Zetas proved this last fall by copping three awards. They placed first among sororities with their Homecoming display, the "Spartan Special" and the query, "Hoos'yer Engineer?" Zeta Tau Alpha also claimed a PanHellenic scholarship trophy.

Skill in flower arranging earned them a second place at the annual flower show. Their colors, gray, turquoise and white, figured predominantly in the winning display.

Questions, ideas and opinions fill the air when faculty members join these coeds for dinner. Must be their inside line to winning that shiny scholarship trophy.

Alpha Kappa Alpha

The Alpha Kappa Alphas gave old records a new turntable. Jazzy music can now be heard at the Boys' Vocational School. With a record drive fall term, the coeds salvaged used records and donated them to the school.

Upholding their purpose of community service and leadership, the actives participated in the National Housing Project and the National Health Project. The Council on Human Rights receives their support for their national service project.

Locally, the sorority gave their "Can Can Party" profits of cans of food to needy families. The party is held each year by the actives with the price of admission for each woman and her date a can of food.

Alpha Kappa Alpha has been in existence nationally since 1908. It now has 106 active chapters. Six years ago the MSU chapter was founded.

Alpha Chi Sigma

Anyone stating that the Alpha Chi Sigmas have a monopoly on the IFC scholarship cup has reason to make this claim. The fraternity has secured the cup seven terms in a row and, in addition, has copped several other scholastic honors including the award presented each term by Alpha Gamma Rho.

A well-known speaker and member of Alpha Chi Sigma is Linus Pauling, a Nobel Prize winner in biochemistry, now a professor at the University of California.

The fraternity, which requires five terms of chemistry for membership, also socializes. Their dates had a chance to ask old Santa what they wanted for Christmas at a holiday party. The Alpha Chi Sigma men enjoyed those ever-popular desserts, too.

Tape recording the musical efforts of a brother provides a laugh for both these men.

Socializing was the theme for the men of Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity. Palm trees, voodoo dolls, a smoking volcano and sand, especially imported for the event, set the scene for a Hawaiian party. Members' dates received leis and fraternity pledge paddles.

Dates exchanged bundles of clothes and came to a "Bundles Party" dressed in unusual costumes.

Pledges became waiters when the Alpha Epsilon Pi house turned into a cafe for an evening in a "Cabaret."

The Alpha Epsilon Pi pin, attached to a member, was found on the Activities Carnival co-chairman and president of B'nai B'rith.

Homecoming night found members still full of energy. Brothers and guests danced under the reflected light of a revolving mirrored ball.

While participating in all-campus activities, several brothers were busy meeting deadlines on Pub Row, cheerleading and attending Blue Key and Excalibur conclaves.

Casting aside their books before exam week, Alpha Kappa Psi planned an all-university dance, entitled "Final Fling." Studying was quickly taken up again after that one night spree in order to raise the house average.

The trophy for the most improved scholarship among fraternities was presented to this chapter fall term in recognition of their achievement the previous spring.

Each year the fraternity awards a scholarship key to the male senior earning the highest point average in the College of Business and Public Service.

The annual "Business Bowl" football game, which offers Alpha Kappa Psi a chance to compete with rival business fraternity, Delta Sigma Pi, was one of many functions in which members participated.

Alpha Sigma Phi

Tar, the Alpha Sig mascot, feels right at home in the fraternity's Rathskeller.

Organized in 1953 and chartered in 1956, Alpha Sigma Phi has, in a few short years, firmly established itself on campus.

A hidden attribute of the brothers is flower arranging. Talent in this artistic vein gave them a first in MSU's annual flower show.

Participating in intramural football, basketball and softball were some of the fraternity's campus activities. Their vocal endeavors in an IFC Sing added a trophy to their growing collection.

Party ideas resulted in an evening with "beatniks," a Halloween hayride and a Christmas ball. Homecoming weekend Alpha Sigma Phi held open houses both Saturday and Sunday for visiting alumni and parents.

They said it couldn't be done, but the men in the new Alpha Tau Omega house beg to differ. The present house was remodeled during the summer. Grecian columns and a terrace entrance were the results of the rejuvenation. The house capacity was increased from 33 to 57 men.

The members of Alpha Tau Omega are athletically inclined. With help from that speedy god, Mercury, the ATO's placed first in the Turkey Trot. They were fraternity champions in the paddleball and table tennis intramurals.

The ATO's have a very rare type mascot known as an African Rhodesian Ridgeback lionhound, Zumbo.

Proud fathers got an inside look at Beta Theta Pi this year when they were guests for the fraternity's Father's Day. A round of activities were planned for the guests, including introduction to the fraternity mascots, Herman and Ralph, two basset hounds.

Active on campus and in the community, the Betas assisted with the blood and tuberculosis X-ray drives and helped organize the East Lansing YMCA track meet.

During the winter social season, Beta Theta Pi held a "Blue Party." Party-goers, including Herman, the Beta's distinguished host, dressed in blue and danced among decorations of the same color. In keeping with the theme and the icy blue snow outdoors, the refreshments featured a blue punch.

Silver glittered from the Delta Chi house as the members celebrated their 25th year on campus. The fraternity received its charter in 1935.

Activities, centered around their silver anniversary and intramurals, kept many Delta Chis busy during the school year. House participation was also shown in many all-university activities including Water Carnival in which their float was awarded second place.

A replica of their pin done in flowers won third prize in the yearly flower show.

Losing has its reward. While not placing in the Turkey Trot, Delta Chi members were royally entertained at a dessert given by their sorority sponsor, Alpha Gamma Delta. The runners were the guests of honor.

Delta Sigma Phi

The Delt Sigs and their dog are often found engaged in a fraternity song fest.

Shouts of "get off my river" were heard by passing canoers from bellowing Delt Sigs, who feel that the Red Cedar is their own private stream.

At Christmas the men gave a party for the children of Saint Vincent's orphanage, whom they sponsor and instruct in games and sports every Saturday.

Three was their lucky number. The Delt Sig's copped third place in the Powder Puff Bowl with their "queen" candidate and in their Homecoming display, "What the Hell's a Hoosier?"

These fraternity men are proud of their Great Dane, Prince, who has the habit of chewing the tires of passing trucks and upsetting a few trespassing bicyclists.

Delta Tau Delta had the secret to winning combinations. The Delt "victory balance" placed first in the fraternity division of the Homecoming display contest. A football team of pros captured the all-university intramural football crown. A few other members had enough strength to win the fraternity bowling championship.

They also sandwiched in their annual dinner for all Homecoming Queen candidates and participated in the yearly Christmas tree lighting ceremonies in front of the Union.

Excitement at Delta Tau Delta was generated by plans for their new chapter house which will soon be under construction.

Playing host to an international convention can be quite a job, as Delta Upsilon learned this fall. The DU's had their hands full for awhile when delegates from 80 chapters met here in early September.

The sight of "Big Bill," the DU bell, sounding Spartan points at all home football games has become familiar to all fans. This year "Bill" missed only one home game—because of unfavorable weather.

Candlelight and pizza turned up at a DU rush party while a mission soup kitchen was set up for their "Bowery Brawl."

Besides attending to party-planning, Delta Upsilon is active in Junior 500, IFC Sing and Greek Week.

Midway down Bogue Street is the new ultra-modern house of the Farmhouse fraternity. Glass paneling and a contemporary fireplace make the living room a favorite spot. Farmhouse colors of white, green and gold accent the color scheme throughout the house.

Always exceptional in participating in campus blood drives, Farmhouse men again won honors by placing second this fall with an 83 per cent in the fraternity division.

The fraternity is open to men interested in agriculture, regardless of their major.

Kappa Sigma

The Kappa Sigma football team is hard at work practicing for intramural competition.

House plans spotlighted the interests of the Kappa Sigma men. Dreams were finally materializing as plans were drawn up for the construction of a new house.

Following their purpose of increasing their leadership, some of the brothers became chairmen in various campus activities.

Beauty had its importance for these men when they searched for a Kappa Sig sweetheart. In a secret conclave members stated the merits of the dream girl they had in mind.

Formerly a literary society, the Kappa Sigs still promote scholarship. An award is given each term to a member for his scholastic attainment.

For the Lambda Chis, placing third with their Homecoming display this fall meant continued success in their participation in extra-curricular activities, a hobby that ranks high with this fraternity.

Socially their biggest event centered around the annual "Crescent Ball," and the choosing of a Crescent Queen.

Having received their charter in May, 1959, Phi Gamma Delta began their first year as a full-fledged fraternity this fall.

Introduced to our campus for the first time last spring was the "Fiji Island Party." This party, given annually by all Phi Gam chapters, is their biggest social event of the year. Coeds are invited by "Fiji" warriors serenading her living unit. Decorations include a basement full of sand and a waterfall over the steps.

Some members were happy, others sad when the term scholarship dinner rolled around. All brothers who had maintained a better than all-college average the preceding term ate steak, the rest meatballs. Needless to say, the meatball diners began to hit the books.

Phi Kappa Psi

Playing with their monkey-mascot provides a pleasant diversion for the Phi Psis.

The smallest member of Phi Kappa Psi is a bright red Ukari monkey. Dudley strolls the campus in a blue blazer, crest included. She is a rare specimen, one of five in captivity. This mascot is a connoisseur of the finest monkey food and is an expert at tree climbing.

National fraternity heritage has its place at the Phi Kappa Psi house. Members commemorated Founder's Day with a semi-formal dinner-dance. Dudley was named after the national secretary of the fraternity.

Scholastically, the brothers have been pulling up their point average, aided by the national fraternity. The national officers present an endowment fund award to the member voted to have contributed most to the chapter in scholarship and house affairs.

No lack of small talk occurred at Phi Kappa Sigma parties as the brothers could always produce their conversation piece—a small alligator. This remembrance of Florida aroused inquiring questions at Olin Health Center when members had to ask for shots for alligator bites.

The Phi Kappa Sigma formal dance of the year is the spring term "Black and Gold Ball." Plans are begun fall term for this annual event.

Anyone calling this fraternity is positive he has the wrong number, when a member answers with the words, "Skull House." A skeleton's head forming part of their pin earned them this nickname. There isn't even a skeleton in the house.

Phi Kappa Sigma

Refrigerator-raiding is a favorite pastime for the men of the skull.

The Phi Taus devote hours and hours of time to rush, the continuous activity of fraternities.

Starting with a welcome tea for their new housemother and a neighborhood open house, Phi Kappa Tau continued social affairs with "beatnik," caveman and gangster parties, plus their annual Christmas pajama shindig.

Phi Taus had no spare moments what with their social life and participation in numerous campus activities. That long trip to campus from way out on Hagadorn never slowed down these brothers.

On the winning side, the fraternity received an honorable mention for their Homecoming display.

One event particularly treasured by members is the annual "Phi Tau-Delt Sig Days" with the Delta Sigma Phi men. After contests all day, this affair is always climaxed by a tug of war over the very wet Red Cedar.

The biggest event for Phi Sigma Kappa this year was receiving their charter in the fall, thus becoming the newest fraternity on campus.

Almost equally exciting was moving into their first house with a bright green roof, located on Bogue Street. Redecorating the house was a task for the members.

The Phi Sigma Kappas claim to have the youngest mascot on campus, Socrates, a baby boxer. Members must accompany Socrates on his brief jaunts into the outside world for he might get misplaced.

All Phi Sigs were minus one pint of blood fall term as they had dripped their way, 100 per cent, to a first place in the blood drive. Even with this loss of blood, members gave a party, "The House of Blue Lights."

Putting finishing touches on their new home, these two Phi Sigs find it a job mixed with pleasure and pride.

Pi Kappa Phi

Pi Kaps test their culinary skills by baking cookies in their new kitchen.

Pi Kappa Phi went on a building spree during the summer and are presently enjoying their new living quarters. The new house is a result of 30 years of planning and saving. It has a capacity for 31 men, plus ten more when an additional wing is added.

Roses being the fraternity's flower, it is only natural that the brothers hold a "Rose Ball." All the members' minds are required in thinking up variations of a rose theme.

Besides making its presence known in extra-curricular activities, Pi Kappa Phi tries to make its members worthy of scholastic notice. The fraternity presents a scholarship improvement award regularly. Pledges and actives both compete for this award.

A hat and a long thin black umbrella are the distinguishing marks of Psi Upsilon members. While not required fraternity wear, this apparel, at least to coeds, depicts a Psi U man.

In the service of humanity, the Psi U's drained enough blood from members to place third in the fall term blood drive.

The men of Psi Upsilon this year took part in all-university activities with several brothers securing student government positions.

These men are a secretive group, but private sources said the fraternity was once a literary society. In 1943 they were granted the Epsilon Nu charter of Psi Upsilon.

A colony has come of age! As of fall term MSU could count among its now 30 fraternities of national standing a new member, Mu Chi chapter of Sigma Alpha Mu. National officials of Sigma Alpha Mu presented the charter at a ceremony which included local alumni, fraternity deans and active members from the University of Michigan and Wayne State University.

The brothers rolled up their sleeves for their annual Sammy Scrub, a car wash. The profits of this endeavor go to charity.

In the humorous division of Junior 500, Sigma Alpha Mu won first place with their float, entitled "Making It Legal." Two Red Cedar ducks enlisted the aid of a local justice of the peace to be publicly married.

Sigma Chi

The Sigma Chis boast that their German shepherd, "Sabre", has been to more classes than any other dog on campus.

The big white house on Grand River was the scene of many social events fall term. Sigma Chis entertained their fathers at Dad's Day, "whooped" it up at an Indian Party and danced to "cool" music at a Beatnik Party. Fall term was topped off by a jam session following the Northwestern game.

Winter term was highlighted by the annual "Sweetheart Ball," honoring the Sweetheart of Sigma Chi.

Active in all-university functions, the fraternity took part in many events, among them Homecoming, intramural sports, the annual blood drive and Campus Chest.

The Sigma Chis enjoyed many informal exchange dinners during the year.

The Sigma Nus and the MSU football team share one thing—two mascots. Labrador retrievers, Link and Webb, were given to the house by the team. They have the distinction of 50 yard line seats at every game.

Seven out of the last 13 years the Sigmas Nus have won the inter-fraternity all-sports trophy. They have retired one three-year trophy and are working on their second one. The house was runner-up in fraternity bowling fall term.

The Sigma Nu fraternity's social life is centered around three major term parties—the Christmas party, the "Blackfoot-Whitefoot Ball" and the spring "White Rose Formal." The Homecoming bonfire is sponsored by them.

The all-sports trophy is the center of interest in the "snake house."

The well-known "Sparty" is just as much a part of the Sig Ep house as is the mascot.

Michigan State University's mascot, as seen at the football games, is the Sparty "head." This is the contribution of the men of Sigma Phi Epsilon who take turns parading the giant head around the football field at half-time.

Having gone through the process of colonizing, the Sig Eps concentrated on initiation services to be ready for the big day when their charter arrived. They still found time to participate in Homecoming, Water Carnival and Junior 500.

Members hosted visiting Sig Eps from Purdue during the football season.

Their national philanthropy is sponsoring nine boys' camps through a fund set up in 1950.

The house was a sight, the lawn was worse. Bottles, cans and junk were strewn everywhere. But there was no real cause for alarm, for it was only the annual Theta Chi "Bowery Ball." The whole house was decorated in a style found only in the Bowery. Even the walls were redone with newspapers.

Besides cleaning up after this ball, the Theta Chis present a Christmas vesper service in the Alumni Chapel, this year with the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority. They join with the coeds of Delta Zeta sorority to give a Christmas party for underprivileged children.

Informality keynotes the meals at the Theta Chi house as members dine in casual clothes. Gone are the dorm cafeteria lines!

Hoping to start a new tradition, Triangle and Sigma Phi Delta, engineers' professional club, staged an engineers' football game this fall.

Since their main interest is engineering, Triangle also took part in the Engineering Council, the Engineering Exposition and the spring micromidget car races.

A black old goblin performed witchcraft over a bubbling caldron as brothers and dates sat entranced at the Halloween party. To round out the October social calendar, members sponsored a hayride and dressed as hobos for a hobo party.

Triangle

Actives and their dates all seem engrossed in a typical stunt pulled at the Triangle Christmas party.

Berkey and Morrill, two parakeets, have moved into the Zeta Beta Tau house. Berkey, the only talker, has not had instruction in his "gift of gab." Everything he knows he picked up by himself.

The ZBT's showed some orphans the sights of Michigan State and themselves some fun as they took the youngsters to a football game. They treated the children to hot dogs and cokes during half time.

The shades were drawn and the door was locked when Al Capone was back in town for the Zeta Beta Tau "speakeasy" party. Dates, dressed as flappers, helped to entertain the important guest.

Delta Sigma Pi

The all-university hockey champions, who also happen to be members of Delta Sigma Pi, placed emphasis on scholarship as well as sports.

In addition to competing in the annual "Business Bowl," the members, most of whom are business majors, toured various business enterprises throughout the state.

A Delta Sigma Pi Scholarship key is presented to the graduating senior with top grades in the College of Business and Public Service.

In turn, the graduating Delta Sigma Pi with the highest average receives an award for his scholarship achievement.

Kappa Alpha Psi

Casting aside social activities, Kappa Alpha Psi embarked this year on a scholastic program. Scholarship was the important thing to these men. A good grade point average was insured by determined studying.

Taking time out for relaxation, the Kappa Alpha Psi's and their winged feet participated in the inter-fraternity track meet and the Junior 500 race.

These brothers have a way with women. They had the pleasure of having a formal dance fall term with the coeds of the Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority. This dance was the highlight of their social affairs.

residence halls

Dormitory life is like no other life.

Within the vast brick walls thousands of individuals share common experiences and emotions as only university students know them. Together the residents share Homecoming and Water Carnival; together they share the major and minor crises: lack of clean socks or a date; too-cold tubbings, yet too hot showers.

It is this unity that typifies the intangible known as "dorm spirit."

For the coed who wants to "wash that man right out of her hair," the dorm provides excellent facilities.

Life in a university dormitory is not always easy. Even the most good-natured and easy-going can be riled by a buzzer that never rings or a washing machine which refuses to function. Personalities sometimes clash, as do the offerings of many hi-fis which always seem to be strategically placed near the favorite study spots.

But beneath the sometimes frustrating atmosphere of dormitory life lies a strong undercurrent of comradeship. There is always a friend to lend you a sweater or an I.D. And one to wake you in the morning and to fix you up at night.

Perhaps the most remembered hours in any dormitory are the ones that demand nothing but fun. These are the moments for the shaving-cream fights, the zany records, the peeking at a roommate coming in from a late per, or the unexpected dips in the dorm-front pool.

The university dormitory offers a place for almost anything, from Freud to frisbie. It offers a life like no other in the world. Sometimes studious, sometimes chaotic, and most often carefree. But still home.

A student's residence is more than a place to eat and sleep; it is his home away from home. He comes to feel himself truly a part of the dorm, its people, and its activities.

Small cars are the rage these days, except when it comes to fitting all the Christmas luggage into them.

Annual Christmas celebrations promote a sense of dorm spirit, both in the planning and in the partying.

Dormitories

Gilchrist

A majestic green and white ship of Sparta carried the women of Gilchrist to a first place Homecoming trophy in the women's residence division for the second consecutive year. The elation of the coeds when the winners were announced at half-time was matched only by their elation over the final score of State's game.

Rome had its influence at the Gilchrist term party as toga-clad hostesses greeted their guests by stately columns. The drink of the evening was unfermented grape juice.

Henry, J. Top Row — Johnston, P.; Ross, E.; Gowdy, M.; Johnson, J.; McCleary, B.; Brink, M.; Dorr, M.; Blackport, B.; Lindsey, M.

The biggest television attractions of the year in the women's dorms were State's away games and the Academy Awards presentation.

Studying for exams was relegated to second place at Abbot Hall as the holiday season arrived. Adopting a needy family, the residents gathered food, clothing and toys to insure their new relations a happy Christmas.

Snow was constantly wished for by the coeds so they could have a trial rehearsal for the Snow Sculpture contest. Cold feet and hands and pink noses were endured in hopes of a trophy.

For freshmen, the place to live is Abbot. With many upperclassmen to guide them, the newest residents busy themselves to win the outstanding freshman award. House council members lurk in the halls to find an industrious "frosh."

In their spare moments, the coeds practiced singing, anticipating that extra-polish necessary for a first place win at the Inter-residence Sing.

North Campbell

The aim of North Campbell is to have every coed reap personal benefits from participation in dorm life. They plan all their activities so that the individual can play a contributing part.

At the annual Christmas tree-trimming party, each coed brings an ornament and places it on the dorm tree. The feeling of participation is also fostered in the numerous informal parties held throughout the year. A different group of coeds is asked to provide the entertainment for the others at each party.

First Row — Stout, A.; Shuck, B.; Simmons, J.; Fellhauer, M.; Nelson, M.; Dworzycki, P.; Williams, C.; Frey, R.; Johnson, C. Second Row — Beyer, S.; Rebeschini, M.; Chappell, M.; Martell, M.; Milford, A.; Courser, L.; Burgess, L.; Nash, N.; Birchard, G.; Stealy, S. Third Row — Cassidy, C.; Gallagher, J.; Opas, M.;

Just 200 steps will take a South Campbell coed out of her front door and through the doors of the Union grill. While the coeds feel that it would be a dreadful waste not to take advantage of their location, their participation in campus activities is proof that they don't spend all their spare time grilling.

They annually place high in inter-dorm athletic events. This year they showed their sports ability in volleyball and swimming. Displays were entered in Homecoming, Snow Sculpture and Water Carnival.

East Landon

Perhaps East Landon started a new tradition this year when they joined their costumed bus boys in "pumpkin caroling." Led by the "Great Pumpkin," they toured Circle Drive and ended their serenade in the Union, where they entertained the grillers with "We Three Ghosts of MSU Are."

Homecoming saw a victory for State, but a crushing defeat for the coeds in a morning football match with the bus boys. The score? 44-0.

This year a Christmas dinner took the place of the traditional Christmas tea.

First Row — Cobo, R.; Boardman, J.; Jeffrey, N.; Welkoske, E.; Kennedy, J.; Beebe, C.; Eiker, S.; Bishop, N.; Perry, J.; Carah, J. Second Row — Nelson, J.; Samberg, S.; Losey, P.; Morris, J.; Sweet, B.; Manchur, N.; Pulick, C.; Mogg, M.; Millette, L.; Osner, S. Third Row — Drewek, P.; White, M.; Calley, M.; Embury, M.; Ford, L.; McBurney, A.; Splan, L.; Schowalter, S.; Loveland, J.; Williams, J. Fourth Row — Blair, C.; Stevenson, G.;

"Work hard and play hard" is the motto of the coeds of West Landon, and results show that they follow this rule. For the past six terms, they have placed either first or second in scholarship among the girls' dorms.

They are active in most campus functions and have taken first place in the Inter-residence Sing two years in a row.

Aside from their traditional tree-trimming party and Christmas tea, each floor supplied a needy Lansing family with a food basket.

First Row — Slavo, C.; Sapp, M.; Welch, K.; Davison, D.; Aylesworth, P.; Carson, P.; Geddes, S.; King, S. Second Row — Wietzke, M.; Pekny, A.; Price, N.; McCarthy, M.; Webster, B.; Tucker, E.; Watkins, B.; Harris, B. Third Row — Rinn, J.; Converse, L.; Larmon, L.; Rowe, J.; Engle, S.; Bern, J.; Chamber-

Mason

Somewhere in Mason Hall there must be hidden a secret beauty potion, judging by its representation on various queen courts. The Harvest Ball queen is a resident of this hall. Two of its coeds are ROTC corps sponsors and Homecoming didn't slip by without a Masonite on the court.

A second place in the Homecoming display contest garnered another cup for the Mason trophy case. Coeds pushed aside a first place Sparatcade award, a Snow Sculpture trophy and an Inter-residence Sing cup to make room for the new one. It was the second consecutive year for Mason to bring home that Homecoming cup for the runner-up position.

Records were hurriedly collected from rooms as the residents planned a record dance for relaxation. The social chairman was kept busy arranging exchange dinners, open houses and dorm parties.

Mason girls brought Christmas to an underprivileged family by providing food and gifts.

First Row — Stevens, D.; Taylor, A.; Sullivan, D.; Robbins, K.; Becks, S.; Levin, J.; Hardt, M.; Gibbs, N. Second Row — Osinski, P.; Petersen, M.; Stewman, V.; Lamminen, D.; Tietze, G.; Kaekel, J.; Alderink, G. Third Row — Stenger, D.; Kmiecik, L.; Koropp, G.; Miller, H.; Diamond, D.; Pomerantz, A.; Scheid, B.;

Allen, G. Fourth Row — Irwin, J.; Spector, N.; Capel, S.; McIntyre, S.; Shatzer, I.; Thomas, J.; Black, K. Top Row — Partlo, N.; Pniewski, Y.; Kincaid, M.; Rogers, M.; Herald, L.; Anderson, M.; Cowper, B.; Lubin, A.

After working out in their feminine pool hall, alias rec room, these Masonites are ready to take on their dates in this "man's game."

Mason girls find their grill especially handy during exams for an informal study break.

Phillips

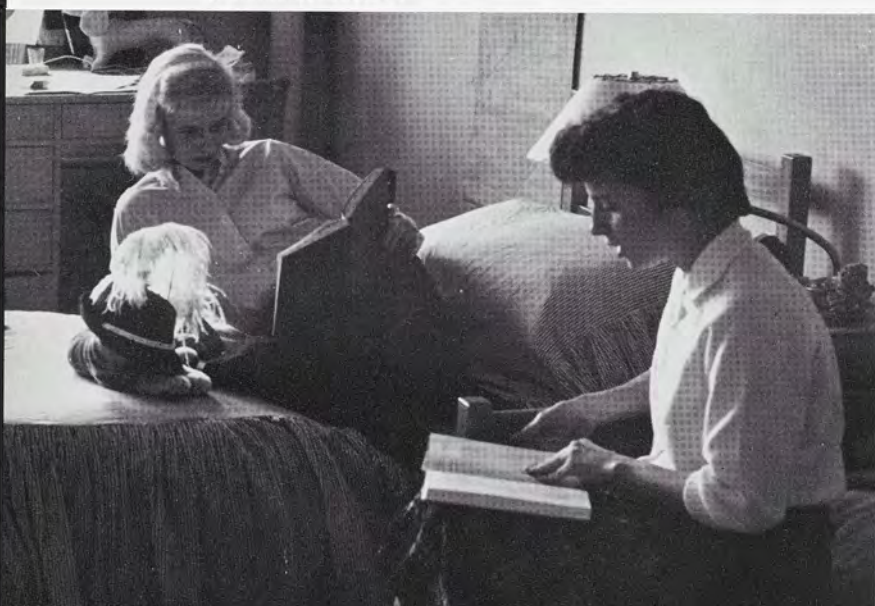

An ardent fan club back home eagerly awaits the coed's latest word on her campus activities: "More money, Daddy?"

First Row — Frederick, S.; Krestic, K.; Amoe, C.; Neeriemer, J.; Bloomquist, A.; McDonald, M.; Layton, S.; Cray, M.; Yoshida, M.;
Second Row — Jenema, K.; Clarke, L.; Diamond, P.; Roskiewicz,

M.; Schubel, J.; Bigler, M.; Emens, J.; Hutchins, C. Top Row — Goodrich, G.; Duma, D.; Celli, D.; Aley, S.; Cattley, J.; Collier, D.; Ries, S.; Bonomo, A.; Holcomb, J.

Long study hours are frequently shared with dormmates in companionable silence.

Being in a rut may not be so bad for Phillips Hall, if it means placing third in the Homecoming contest two years in a row. "Crawl All over Them," a huge green-and-white striped caterpillar, earned the honors this year for these coeds.

Besides taking part in all intramural sports, the coeds keep in condition scholastically, too. Studying is encouraged in part by the traveling scholarship trophy which is awarded each term to the precinct with the highest point average.

Holidays receive special attention at Phillips. Ghosts, witches and goblins, in the form of coeds, vied for the title of "Miss Pumpkinhead" at the Halloween party.

Thanksgiving vacation was greeted by a song fest with the men of Butterfield. Carols, filling the halls, lightened the exam fatigue as Christmas approached.

The sound of a new record is always a signal for a group discussion on the relative merits of The Kingston Trio and Rachmaninov.

Snyder

First Row — Schubring, N.; Wedemeyer, G.; Knight, S.; Sanguist, E.; Kennedy, N.; Bele, L.; Hagenjos, B.; Averbach, V. Second Row — Hendrickson, B.; Bailey, W.; Conant, E.; Warbis, J.; Cort, N.; Resseguie, M.; Blakeney, S.; Forker, L. Third Row — Atesian, J.; Wilke, S.; Voorheis, B.; Pratt, A.; Schultz, J.; Leone,

Highlighting the winter season for Snyder Hall was their December term party. Decorations carried out the theme, "Winter Wonderland," starting the holiday mood early for the party-goers.

Tennis courts were filled by Snyder residents as they prepared to defend their title. Winners of the women's residence division last year, the coeds aimed to repeat the performance.

After inviting the men of Bailey for an evening of dancing, Snyder showed its social side. Exchange dinners became the rage. The coeds "wined and dined" in various men's dorms as they enlarged their social contacts.

When not social butterflies, Snyder women kept occupied year-round working on displays to enter into all the campus-wide activities.

A coed's room is her castle, as long as her activities don't bring shouts of "Quiet hours!"

An irresistible temptation of dorm life is the call, "Anyone for cards?" In no time three or four coeds will be intently absorbed in a game.

North Williams

First Row — Boyne, P.; Yund, J.; Mendler, N.; Livingstone, J.; Spaulding, J.; Paris, F.; Boyne, D. Second Row — Rapp, J.; Ferguson, D.; Arthur, J.; Herman, M.; Burbaum, K.; Wells, M.; Springer, A.; Harmon, V. Third Row — Zahnnow, K.; Zern, N.;

Parrett, D.; Melinn, D.; Adams, J.; Sisko, P.; Hanna, K. Top Row — Hora, J.; Bolger, M.; Cowan, M.; Campbell, J.; Shurtum, P.; Sanford, N.; Sved, G.

North Williams, the oldest residence hall on campus, is surrounded by walls of stone that have given it the traditional name of "The Queen's Castle." But more modern freshmen, after trekking all the way across campus to the Natural Science building, have dubbed it "Williams in the Woods."

The coeds of North Williams are not old-fashioned in any way, as they have proved by their participation in competitive campus functions.

For the fourth consecutive year, they have won the all-sports trophy for women's residence halls. Perhaps the trek across campus helps put them in shape.

No queens live in this "castle" as plans are always brewing for a dorm function. Homecoming guests saw their display as well as the inside of the dorm at their open house. Parties were held Halloween and Christmas.

The "bongo craze" has taken the campus by storm. During the break in quiet hours, the beat of drums echoes up and down dormitory halls.

South Williams

Whenever coeds gather, the sound of music soon results, cementing companionship and dormitory spirit.

Nachtman, J.; Schan, L.; Lyons, S.; Bowers, J.; Sawyer, S.; Brundage, N.; Cowell, S.; Gauger, C. Fifth Row — Kemp, M.; Kolody, S.; Sink, S.; Brownell, C.; Fracchia, E.; Barker, A.; Mertens, B.; Kneale, J.; Baird, L.; Scharf, S. Top Row — Janner, J.; Laramie, S.; Fielstra, B.; Skiles, S.; Whiting, G.; Poirier, P.; Thomas, C.; Kittel, J.; Parks, M.; Green, M.; Kraft, E.

Any occasion can serve as an excuse for a gab fest. Throughout the week, coeds gather to discuss the past weekend or to plan the coming one.

Besides participating in Campus Chest and donating fifty dollars to a special Christmas project, the civic-minded coeds of South Williams coagulated their way to a second place in the fall term blood drive.

They didn't show the same charitable attitude to Indiana, however, judging by their Homecoming display. The theme, "Give 'em the Ax," portrayed a Hoosier toppling under the ax of a chopping Spartan.

These coeds are noted for their exceptional musical ability, especially at 11:30 p.m. Tradition demands that, during fire drills, they serenade their neighbors with such lullabies as "Good Morning to You."

South Williams participated in all-campus activities. Swimming is their sport and they annually have a big turnout for the intramural team.

East Yakeley

Are these coeds catching up on the world situation, or could it be Ann Lander's advice to the lovelorn?

First Row — Rockafellar, J.; Kaasik, K.; Aardema, M.; Clark, L.; Cumpson, C.; Rozelle, J.; Erskine, L.; Baker, M.; Light, S. Second Row — Pirochta, A.; LaLiberte, M.; Keppel, M.; Doran, F.; Wells, A.; Tubbs, J.; Salmer, B.; Porter, J.; O'Bryan, P.; Bragg, P. Third Row — Arnold, J.; Snider, C.; White, K.; Hughes, A.; Brannas, A.; Chrouch, S.; Jenkins, K.; Ulmer, D.; Burch, C. Fourth Row — Anderson, K.; Corsini, D.; Anderson, B.; Andros, R.; Keppel, N.; Frinkle, S.; Shultz, J.; Boughner, A.; Gillett, J.; Hughes, B. Fifth Row — Bowlus, M.; Schuhardt, B.; Arney, N.; Frost, J.; Brown, G.; Cairns, G.; Frincke, P.; Easternman, J.; Kistler, S.; Dekker, D. Top Row — Bristol, S.; Greenig, N.; Perdew, C.; Golding, G.; Mohan, S.; Altmansberger, K.; Unger, M.; Niederneier, N.; Kaymen, G.; Davis, J.

In Yakeley, as everywhere else, the eternal battle of the conscience versus the waistline goes on.

Coeds and their dates danced amidst lanterns and cherry boughs at East Yakeley's term party, "Parasol Whirl." The setting for the affair, which is held annually with West Yakeley, was a Japanese flower garden.

"Enthusiasm unlimited" was the key phrase to describe these coeds as they plunged into dorm activities. They have been intramural volleyball champs for two years, and they placed third in intramural bowling.

Their burst of ardent fervor was applied to campus activities. Their Homecoming display, picturing a frying Hoosier, won an honorable mention.

The coeds exhibit the same energy in their attack on books. East Yakeley placed third scholastically among the women's dorms.

Coeds turn to their roommates for ideas and advice, not to mention finding an occasional blind date.

West Yakeley

Doxtator, C. Fourth Row — Bush, L.; Muir, B.; Hultman, J.; Hagen, M.; Heyer, J.; Hendricks, J.; McLintock, M.; Palk, C.; Ray, C.; Balfour, C.; Wiesen, S. Fifth Row — Gibbons, D.; Beuche, A.; Clawson, B.; Poster, E.; Webster, L.; House, D.; Doyle, S.; Warren, E.; Abel, K.; Schmidt, J.; Manos, L. Top Row — Wilson, B.; Wagner, R.; Furry, S.; Paradise, J.; Hunt, J.; Perkett, S.; Johnson, M.; Minns, M.; Schneider, S.; Marston, M.

An unprecedented event occurred at West Yakeley at its Christmas dinner. Residents gasped when they saw a roaring fire in the lounge fireplace, a pleasant surprise. Coeds and guests mingled before the glow and warmth of this "first."

Quiet hours were gleefully broken one night when a victorious volleyball team shouted the news. West Yakeley had shown its superiority by downing all contenders for the volleyball championship.

Fathers, along with mothers, sisters and brothers, got a chance to see where their college coed lived at the open house during Parents' Weekend. The coeds scurried around as they picked up their rooms to make them presentable for their families.

A full mailbox or a package waiting for her makes a coed's morning brighter.

Bailey

The big decision: Which is better? My roommate's striped tie or his charcoal tie?

The precinct comedian's room is usually a congregating place for his laugh-hungry dormmates.

Bailey Hall has its own Pub Row. It is the only dorm on campus which publishes not only a newspaper, known as the Bailey Echo, but also a yearbook. Their yearbook includes social and scholastic information about the various precincts.

Residents work extra-hard for Bailey Hall in hopes of winning the "Man of the Year" award. Given annually by the executive committee, the award, a plaque, goes to the man who has made an outstanding contribution to the dorm.

Bailey's energy and spirit was shown by placing third in both the Homecoming contest and the Turkey Trot race. On the intramural fields Bailey ended up dorm volleyball champs and were runners-up in football.

Bryan

The IM football champs from Bryan review their offense with their coach.

chard, R.; Fischer, J.; Cobb, B. Fourth Row — Blakeslee, D.; White, R.; Kearney, D.; Brumm, K.; Gogley, H.; Kordisch, J.; Shank, T.; Clairmont, J. Top Row — Klein, G.; Newman, R.; Donovan, J.; Lane, J.; Kleinknecht, G.; Lahr, R.; Gordon, M.; McCulloch, D.

The enthusiastic spirit of the Bryan cheering section set an example for the rest of the crowd.

"Block B," consisting of 400 Bryan men, made its initial appearance at the Purdue football game. Filling an end-zone section, the men conspicuously identified themselves by their gold cellophane hats and spirited cheering for themselves and the Spartans on the field. Large signs, floating balloons, a small band and eight cheerleaders — six recruited from Phillips and Abbot Halls — helped to make the block stand out.

Following the game, the residents held a social hour for the coeds from Phillips. A mixer with a rock-and-roll band for the two dorms that evening climaxed the events of the weekend.

Butterfield

Chow time at Butterfield is accompanied by laughter, complaints, and just friendly conversation.

First Row — Flemming, J.; Kopstein, M.; Bryar, R.; Litwinski, C.; Kimball, D.; Austin, D.; Perry, J.; Lee, B. Second Row — Penrod, J.; Marshall, G.; Gray, B.; Heltsley, D.; Schramm, A.; Kitchen, D.; Allis, E. Third Row — Ruszkowski, A.; Jenkins, R.; Jones, R.; Stephenson, A.; Kaufman, B.; Roulo, J.; Johnson, P.; Feters, W.

Sure it's hard to take, but doing your own laundry is part of being a man of the world.

Always a popular subject with Butterfield men are sports. The hall always has a turnout from everything from ping-pong to football. They even engaged in a pigskin game with the coeds of West Yakeley.

The men also met coeds on a social basis. With a harvest moon made-to-order they took their dates on a hayride.

Butterfield Hall is a strong contender in all-campus activities. Muscle and mind combined for participation in Homecoming, Junior 500 and Water Carnival.

The dorm is uniquely distinguished as being the only men's residence that awards its hall crest, in the form of a lapel pin, to its outstanding men.

East Shaw

Budding politicians of East Shaw held mock conventions before electing their officers.

B.; Aichele, F.; Stygles, T.; McCoy, J.; Forsyth, M.; Wood, R.; Howell, R.; Witt, A. Fifth Row — Reenders, D.; Bone, D.; Collette, D.; Ruffin, R.; Brooks, H.; Ohara, J.; Talsma, J.; Reitter, E. Top Row — Wilkinson, W.; Krause, W.; Huntley, J.; Herron, O.; Crow, W.; Timm, J.; Berndt, L.

Blood ran freely from East Shaw men when they took first place for men's dormitories in the fall term blood drive. The hall retired the trophy by winning for the third time in a row.

Homecoming saw these men win another trophy with a second place award for their display.

East Shaw houses the dorm intramural football champions. Extra practice was gained when the residents tussled with Van Hoosen in their annual Turkey Bowl. At the blow of the final whistle the score was a tie. Skill at paddlewheel earned the runner-up position for them in dorm intramurals.

The election of officers in East Shaw follows the procedure of a national nominating convention. In the last election over 300 men actively participated.

East Shaw men and their dates donned ragged clothes for a hobo party held in a boxcar.

Abbott, M.; Fisher, T.; McDonald, C.; Sherwin, D.; North, D.; Norwood, A. Fifth Row — Thomas, T.; VanDeWeghe, R.; Thompson, F.; Cole, J.; Petrillo, J.; Newton, J. Top Row — Tamblin, H.; Berg, J.; Johnson, G.; Downing, J.; Herbranson, K.; Haefner, W.

Emmons

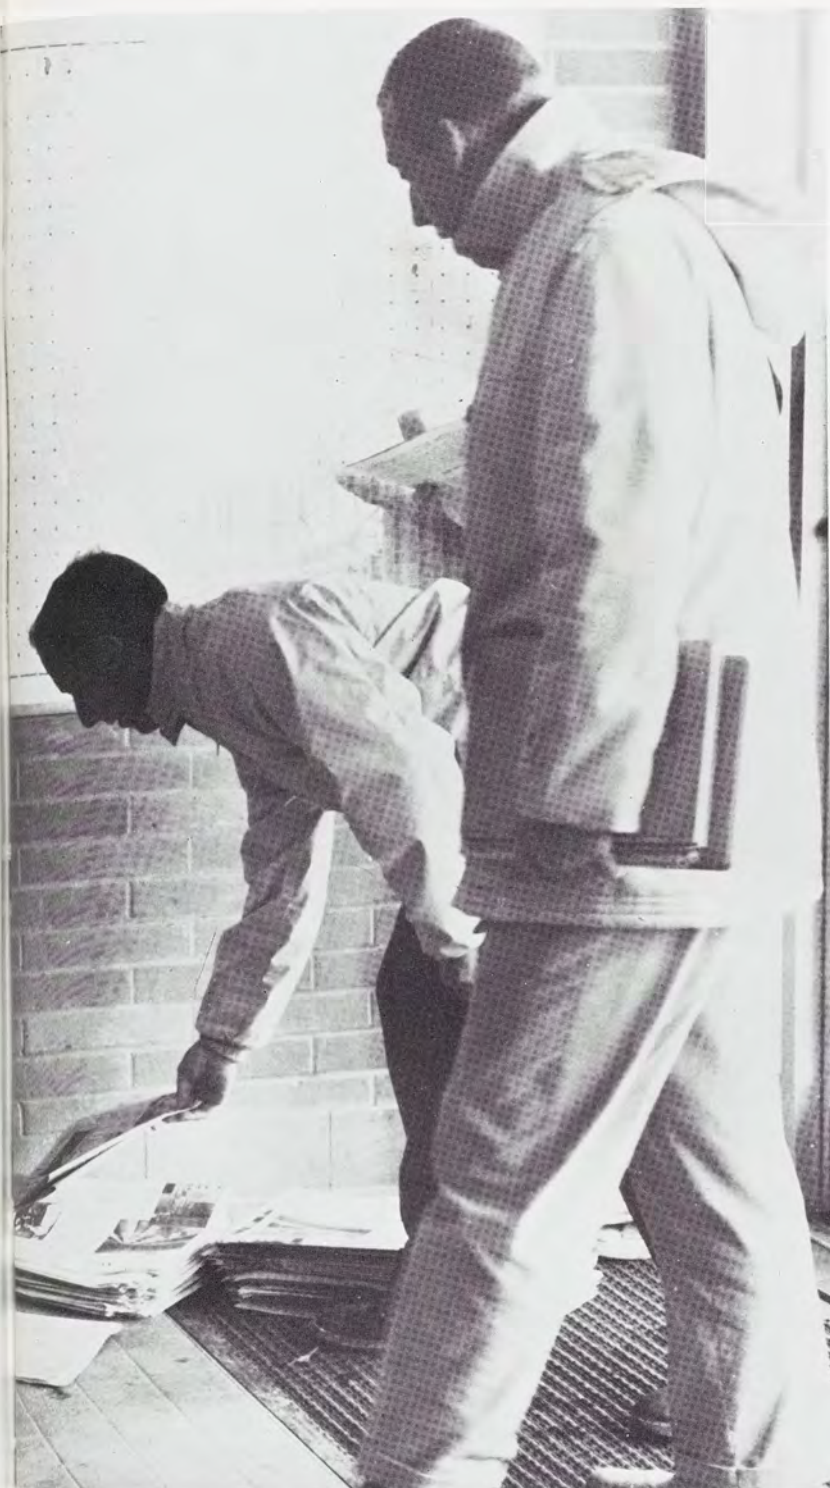

A heaping reward for sports-enthusiasts of Emmons Hall was the presentation of two first place dormitory sports trophies to their residence. Emmons was the winner in badminton and paddleball intramurals.

Promoting intramural participation, the hall presents athletic trophies to winning precincts. The men, when not studying, spend their time in secret practice to cop these coveted awards.

For football practice, Emmons battled North Campbell coeds. Offers from female opponents are always accepted with pleasure.

The lights of Emmons at night are an indication of the long hours of study required for high grades.

Dorm residents eagerly take a State News each morning to read the latest word on campus, state, and world issues.

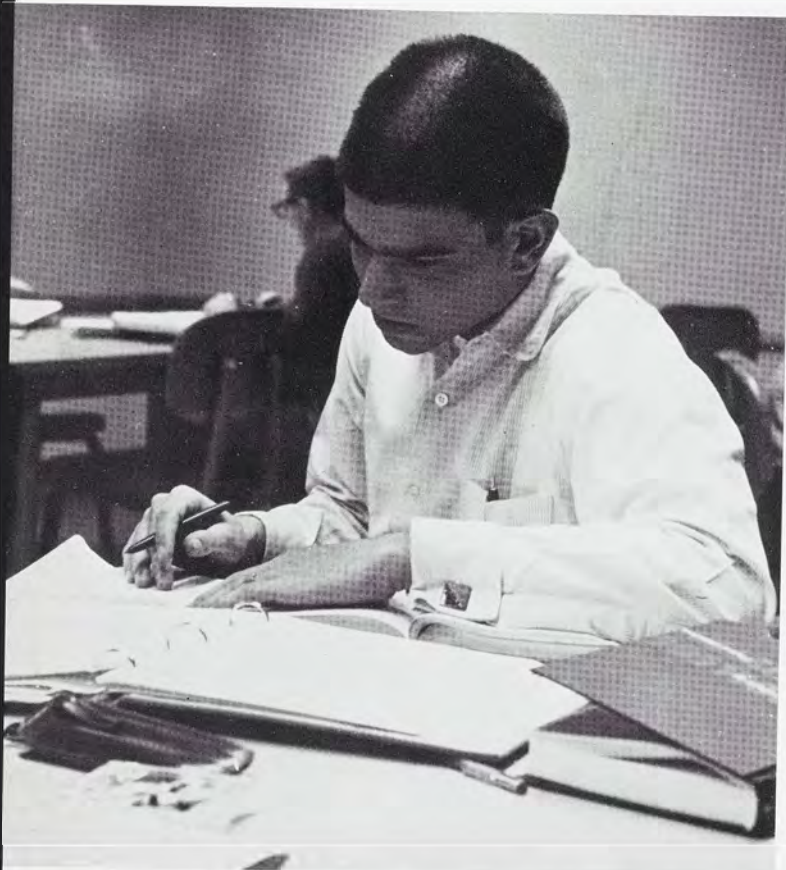

Whether the Brody men are practicing for intramurals or just having a friendly game, the daylight hours of fall term find them on the football field.

Emmons and its sister dormitory, West Yakeley, sponsored a Christmas party for underprivileged children. Santa Claus, presents and refreshments delighted the youngsters. The party, held at West Yakeley, was enjoyed as much by the hosts and hostesses as by the guests.

Hayride fever hit this dorm fall term as various precincts planned those leasurely country drives. Exchange dinners were also in fashion.

Individual precinct projects and parties are possible in Emmons, as each precinct is allocated a sum from the dorm treasury.

Rather

Final exam week, about 1:30 a.m., finds this scene typical of the men's dorms.

The Rather lounge, with its comfortable furniture, is a good place to relax with a magazine.

Rather Hall is not only a men's dormitory, but it is also a club. Living in the residence hall entitles one to membership in the club. The purpose of this organization is to guide the affairs of the hall for the general welfare of the residents therein, and to promote and foster a consciousness of unity and responsibility among its members.

Important to any dorm is its participation in campus activities; and last year the men of Rather Hall certainly had a busy social schedule. They participated in all of the traditional athletic events, held their annual Turkey Bowl, and even found time to take their dates on hayrides.

Rather Hall's participation in extra curricular activities proved very successful for them. Among the trophies that adorn their showcase are those for intramural sports, Homecoming, Water Carnival and Junior 500.

By participating in such events as the annual blood drive and Campus Chest, the men of Rather showed their true community spirit.

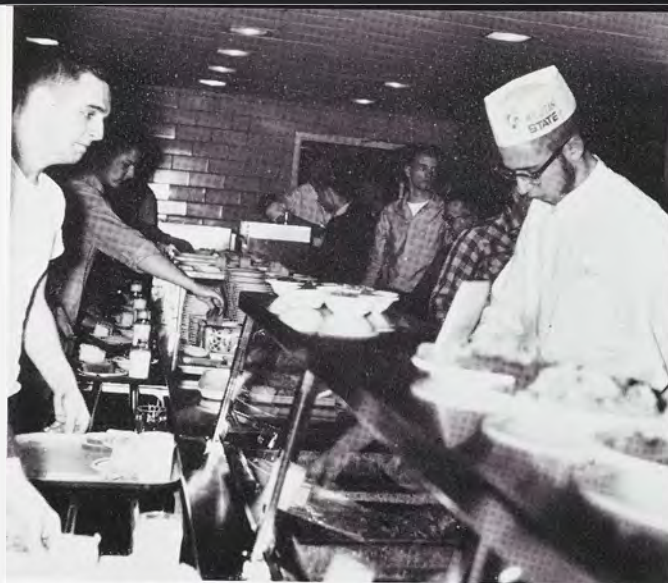

First Row — Brodie, R.; Russell, M.; Adams, Mrs. D.; Adams, D.; Johnson, C.; Sanborn, C. Second Row — Makowski, G.; Quakenbush, G.; Grech, J.; Kissiah, H.; Garrett, A.; Smith, K.; Mc-

Garr, P. Top Row — Hirsch, R.; Olsen, H.; Hartmann, K.; Engle, J.; Snyder, R.; Cappelen, T.; Dissmeyer, G.

Needless to say, the switchboard operator in a men's dorm is kept busier making outgoing calls than taking incoming ones.

West Shaw

Saturday night means informal dress in the men's cafeterias.

First Row — Austin, N.; Gilhool, M.; Gustavson, B.; MacLean, L.; Soutter, R.; Hansmeier, T.; Eric; Kutchey, J.; English, J. Second Row — Chyung, K.; Skeen, D.; Tillotson, B.; Higgins, R.; Cudnohufsky, W.; Soekanto, S.; Hammond, H. Third Row —

Reister, R.; Beckmeyer, J.; Nunn, K.; Diehl, A.; Pinchinat, A.; Heleski, J.; Adams, C.; Keller, R. Top Row — Johnson, H.; Miller, G.; Matheison, W.; Horning, E.; Terry, G.; Nutter, J.; Morrison, J.; Hunt, D.; Wood, M.

Among Shaw Hall's much-used recreational facilities include two billiard tables, five ping-pong tables, and a TV set.

The men of West Shaw proved second to no one in the Homecoming contest and the Junior 500 race, copping first place in both events. An "MSU Submarine" gave the residents the win for Homecoming.

Being community conscious, West Shaw, in connection with AUSG, sponsored a pep rally the night before the Northwestern game. An all-University dance in the lounge of Shaw Hall followed the rally.

Socially, the residents of West and East Shaw plan together. The fall term party, "Autumnal," found men from each side decorating the lounge around the theme of the four autumn months.

Many exchange dinners, hayrides and picnics were enjoyed by West Shaw men and dates.

To promote West Shaw spirit, the hall awards athletic and scholastic trophies to the precincts.

Cooperatives

Van Hoosen residents work out a rotating schedule by which each roommate assumes a certain chore for a week.

Pajamas are fashionable wear at Van Hoosen two Sundays a term. Clad in colorful robes, the residents gather in their recreation room for a community breakfast.

Entertaining is the craze at this residence. Alumnae were honored at an open house after the homecoming game. They extended their friendship to housemothers of all living units by inviting them to a tea. A dinner-dance, held spring term, climaxed their social calendar.

Proving that housekeeping and entertaining doesn't take all their time and energy, Van Hoosen coeds won the permanent blood drive trophy fall term.

The girls have access to the courtyard around which the wings are built, a welcome retreat some spring nights. Apartment living and private phones are other attractions.

Van Hoosen

First Row — Casey, J.; Esch, N.; Carpenter, G.; Lloyd, J.; Ludlow, L.; Junk, B.; Graham, M.; Eber, M. Second Row — Kuechenberg, N.; Harr, M.; Herflicker, M.; Kolufsky, B.; Blackburn, P.;

First Row — Siraty, M.; Cooper, G.; Green, D.; Clark, W.; Burgess, W.; Efting, R. Second Row — Schluter, R.; Blazejewski, R.; Moslemi, A.; Obourn, S.; Griffen, L.; Gilmore, J. Top Row —

Stone, C.; Brackett, R.; Olekszyk, P.; Krogulecki, J.; Cameron, G.; Boehm, J.

Bower

Since Bower House doesn't have an extensive membership program — there are 21 members — three of their members are also affiliated with social and academic fraternities.

Their requirements for membership are a 2.2 all-university grade point and a majority of the members' votes.

One of their current problems is the two "mascots" that constantly hang out at their house all day. These "mascots" are children from next door.

Besides playing in inter-cooperative and intramural sports, the house is represented in varsity sports.

Elsworth

Elsworth House men cooperate both in living and in sports. Besides participating in intramural football, basketball, softball, volleyball and bowling, they won the spring softball championship sponsored by the Inter-Cooperative Council.

It takes brains to manage a house and Elsworth men have proven they have what it takes by winning the ICC scholarship trophy since the spring of 1956.

Elsworth House has a social side, too. The men sponsor a term party in the fall and a picnic in the spring.

Menzies, R. Fourth Row — Campbell, R.; Jandzinski, C.; Otterbacher, T.; Pawlanta, G.; Velders, R.; Seitz, D.; Schneider, J.; Vitka, D. Top Row — Burns, B.; McCallum, W.; Eickwort, G.; Phillips, R.; Strong, R.; Pabst, G.; Cubitt, D.; Burns, J.

First Row — Hamilton, G.; Anderson, R.; Wood, J.; Tarshis, S.; Reed, R.; Schluckebier, A.; Coultres, J.; Bandemehr, E. Second Row — Sedore, R.; Eaton, G.; Nugent, G.; Loson, A.; Brama, B.;

Oberg, M.; Nelson, B.; Thomas, K.; Scott, J. Top Row — Craig, J.; Miller, H.; Kubilins, K.; Zaiss, D.; Ham, R.; Slovinski, F.; Hay, D.; Moon, R.; Toth, A.; Wyse, D.

Hedrick House

Cook of the week and cook of the year awards are given to those who satisfy the most members' stomachs in Hedrick Cooperative where 31 men have fun working together.

Besides copping intramural football and basketball championships, Hedrick men won the fall blood drive trophy among cooperatives. A dollar a member was also pledged to the Campus Chest drive.

Parties are a "must" at this house. Dances, pizza parties, picnics and a gambling night at Las Vegas, MSU, were a few of the highlights of this year's social calendar.

First Row — Madren, B.; Chang, M.; Beale, D.; Thorlund, E.; Black, C.; Bacon, T.; Schilling, G.; Stancel, P.; Kim, K. Second Row — Watkins, D.; Kroed, K.; Forster, R.; Aho, R.; Brogowski,

Howland House

Members of Howland Cooperative have big plans for 1960: they hope to move into their new house before the year is over.

This cooperative's purpose is to provide an economical living unit for students who want to become self-sufficient in home management and government.

Howland men sported winning seasons in Inter-Cooperative Council football and baseball, besides winning the bowling championship.

Social activities also pay a part in their cooperative living. The men have numerous parties, exchange dinners and desserts with women's living units.

Z.; Steffes, P.; Phelps, J.; Buchan, R.; Thornton, J. Top Row — Wilson, T.; Stafford, J.; Heslip, P.; Mummert, A.; Manwell, A.; Muir, T.; Kinra, K.; Carroll, A.; Kirkby, D.

First Row — Olsson, D.; Kohlschmidt, J.; Dawson, L.; Singh, H.; Gilbert, R.; Linch, M.; Dais, J. Second Row — Pinkos, P.; Wolownik, S.; Miller, J.; Jha, S.; Medley, F.; Avers, K.; Toth, G.

Motts House

Sandwiches are a speciality of the Motts Cooperative spring term when the members hold their annual picnic for dates and friends. Their culinary skill is also displayed Homecoming weekend at a buffet luncheon they prepare for alumni and parents.

Motts' 22 members are active in intramural football, basketball, baseball and bowling.

The men of Motts award a "Man of the Year" trophy to the most outstanding member in the house. This award is based on the amount of work he has done for the house and the offices he has held.

In spite of doing the cooking and cleaning, the members have time to take part in all-university events.

First Row — Russell, J.; Valerio, D.; Estola, J.; Shankland, R.; Bonner, R. Top Row — Guenther, F.; Kangas, A.; Kaczanowski,

Ulrey House

The members of Ulrey House definitely like to hit the books, for they compiled a 2.7 all-college average for their house last year.

The men's only outside activity is intramural sports. Bowling is a favorite and they won three trophies in this sport. Ulrey men are also the permanent owners of an intramural all-sports trophy.

The purpose of Ulrey Cooperative is to help male students obtain an education who cannot afford it by providing a cheaper means of living.

With 19 members each contributing four hours a week of work, their house is well-managed and, surprisingly enough, spic and span.

J.; Spetz, W.; Hieftje, G.; Anderson, D.

First Row — Hobbs, J.; Shomo, G.; Bochniak, F.; Hollister, J.; Dugdale, W.; Dugdale, C.; Ritchie, R.; Fikejs, J.; Van Eynde, D.; Van Pelt, G. Second Row — Schwab, F.; Reynolds, J.; Speck, H.; Pucher, M.; Polzin, L.; Paperd, R.; Sabourin, G.; Bostrom, D.; Miller, S. Third Row — Hargrove, P.; Barrett, G.; Eichinger, M.; Paluck, T.; Spencer, T.; Shuster, D.; Voitik, D.; Clancy, J.; Roy, L.; Pilon, T. Fourth Row — Sisco, B.; Dixon, D.; Bree, R.; Covitz,

A.; Biasella, J.; Darin, J.; Moreno, D.; Huter, T.; Welsh, W.; Linden, K. Fifth Row — Adlam, D.; Gilbert, R.; Topolsky, R.; Julien, G.; Papenfus, C.; Bankeroff, G.; Martens, R.; Solowin, D.; Wess, R.; McIntyre, K. Top Row — Early, T.; Stefft, R.; English, J.; Anderson, R.; Domolewicz, T.; Pyle, J.; Smith, C.; Pasbjerg, C.; Ferguson, W.; Johnson, R.

Evans Scholars

Evans Scholars are a select group of men. Requirements for admission into their active group are two years of caddying at a Western Golf Association club and being graduated in the top fourth of their high school class.

Evans members took first place in the independent Homecoming displays and were runners-up in the intramural hockey championship. In addition, they were recipients, a first for them, of the Western Golf's Association's Theodore C. Butz trophy at the annual Inter-Chapter Golf Championship outing.

These golf enthusiasts keep in practice even when the MSU course is covered with a foot of snow.

To the married student, college life entails a great degree of maturity, sincerity, and responsibility.

The challenge lies not only in acquiring an education to insure a secure future, but also in providing for the present.

married housing

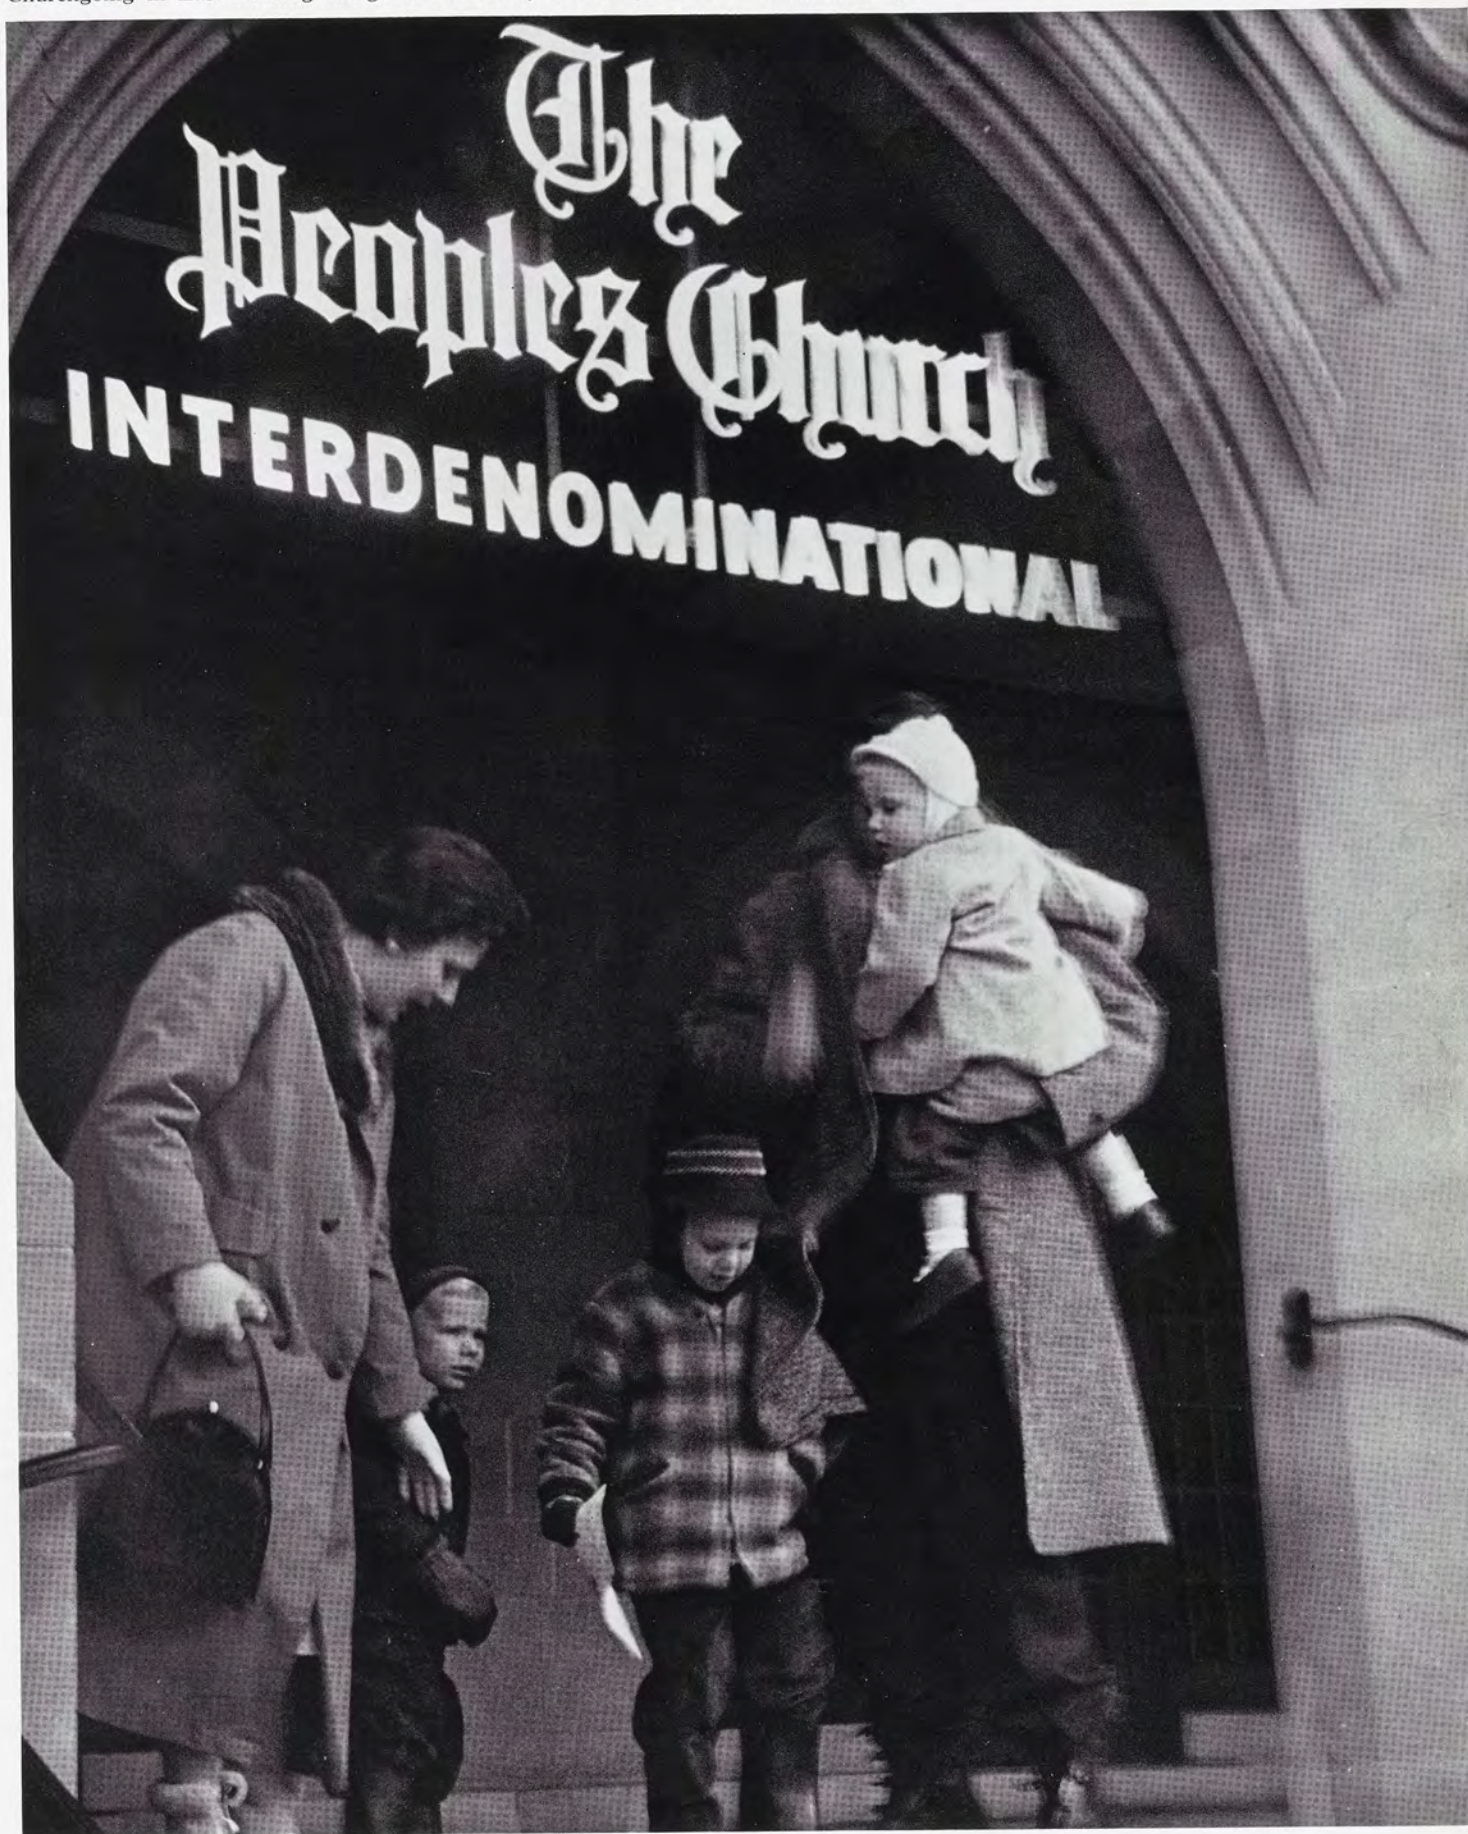

Everyone can help in the big job of moving into the new apartment.

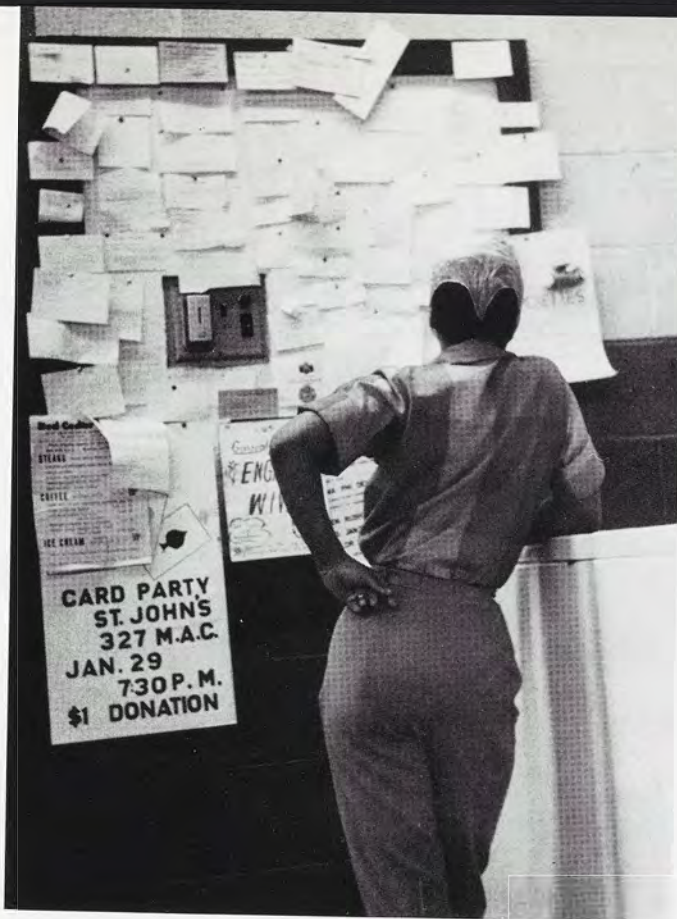

The 8:00 a.m. "Exodus" from Spartan Village to classes and work.

When the somewhat hectic married life is combined with the seemingly always harried student life, the resulting confusion may be found in Michigan State University's married housing. Although the housing conditions vary from the three university-operated apartment villages to off-campus dwellings and trailer homes, family life is much the same. Working wives help student husbands with homework; student wives trade off baby-sitting chores and scurry to class. The life is one of new depth and responsibility.

Churchgoing in East Lansing brings to the family a feeling of warm companionship.

The bulletin board in the laundry room contains information on everything from baby sitters to cars for sale.

To a special group of students on campus, the initials "MSU" mean more than attending classes in Berkey Hall, studying in the library and going to school dances.

For more than 2,200 married students and their families, MSU also stands for "Married Student's Units"—popularly known as married housing.

Life differs greatly from that experienced by his unmarried counterparts for students living in University and Spartan Villages and Cherry Lane apartment.

On weekdays, activity begins at 7:30 a.m. when Mr. M. Housing warms up his auto for the morning race to a south campus parking lot.

In many cases, Mrs. M. Housing accompanies hubby to the campus because of her job with the university.

At this time of day almost 350 children are preparing for the 8 a.m. trek to Red Cedar grade school.

All activity is reversed at noon-time when the family members rush home for lunch. Forty-five minutes later the morning rush is relived.

Spring comes to married housing, filling the air with the smell of charcoal and the sound of neighborly laughter. The terraces of the "bricks" are popular for spring and summer cookouts.

Fresh cigar smoke lingers in the apartments of proud parents and friends as married students use this unique method to announce a birth.

The recreation of the married students usually calls for players in multiples of two: badminton, bridge, tennis.

The laundry rooms in married housing are the scene of much community activity, both for husbands and wives.

For this couple, planning the weekly menu is a two-way job.

The day's activities are climaxed at 5 p.m. when Shaw lane and Harrison road bulge with homeward traffic.

After dinner dishes are finished and the favorite newspaper is read, it's off to the library or into the bedroom for an evening of study or Mr. M. Housing.

Five hectic days pass in much the same manner. But there's always the weekend to look forward to.

If the weather is favorable, the family will indulge in a cook-out after which a "championship" game of badminton with the neighbors is in store.

Father and daughter watch with exuberance as the conversion kick soars over the goalposts.

When it comes to spectator sports, Spartan football games bring married families to the stadium in droves. During winter term basketball reigns supreme as the top sport.

The large picture window in every apartment plays a significant role in the life of many married housing students, for it is a means of conveying special news.

On one window might be written, "It's a Boy." On others are displayed Halloween and Christmas scenes to remind the children of the season. Of course, Mr. M. Housing gets to clean the windows.

There's happiness in married housing when term grades or the G.I. check arrives—time for celebrations.

There's sadness when Mr. M. Housing and family prepare to leave their home of four years and all the wonderful experiences, the tears and the laughter, that go along with it.

There will always be tender feelings when the married alumnus hears or sees the letters, MSU. He will never forget his alma mater, or life in married housing.

Winter's snowfall sees the slopes near Spartan Village swarming with parents, children, and sleds.

the Graduates

Karl McDonel, secretary of the university, and Mrs. Hannah, welcome a foreign student at a reception for graduating seniors. In the background are president Hannah and 1959 Sr. Class president Dave Ball.

To many who may feel that graduation is the end for which they have been striving, the commencement exercises may serve as a reminder that it is, after all, a beginning. Beyond the sea of black-robed graduates lies what can only indescribably be known as the future. One door closes, another opens.

senior week

George Steinman, Kay Porter and Clare Jacobs receive the winners' trophies for SAE and AGD from general chairman Don Langeloh.

Water Carnival Warm spring evenings, brightly colored lights, music floating across the water and crowds of happy spectators lining the banks of the Red Cedar combine to create a gala atmosphere for the biggest spectacular of the year, Water Carnival.

More than a year of hard work, from poster to program production to announcing and lighting, is spent to create this final carnival, sponsored by the senior class.

The 1959 Water Carnival, "U.S. Route 76," under the chairmanship of Don Langeloh, presented 36 floats depicting a slice of life from American history.

The last few weeks before the event are spent in band rehearsals, coordinating of continuity and announcing and other such details. Living units mold chicken wire, paper mache and "secret ingredients" into elaborate, colorful floats to drift down the river and vie for the judges' approval.

Finally the time is at hand and for three nights thousands of alumni, students and parents fill the bleachers and overflow onto the riverbanks to watch the waterborne parade.

Men's and women's living units pool their efforts to produce a float, with the men finishing up on the midnight shift.

Floats were built around themes ranging from the stock market crash of 1929 to a protest against R.O.T.C. Top honors went to a float titled "The High Cost of Living." It was sponsored by Alpha Gamma Delta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and recreated the scene of the heroic flag raising at Iwo Jima during World War II.

During the intermission, water sports contestants entertained the spectators with the customary aquatic antics. Married housing walked off with the majority of prizes for water sports, taking trophies for the tug of war, jousting, apache race and the in-and-out.

On the final night of the carnival water sports were replaced by the tapping ceremony for the new members of Excalibur. After the select men were introduced and given capes, the members of Mortar Board approached the bandstand in canoes to present the newly tapped knights with the traditional flowers.

At the end of the third evening, the winning floats were announced and the crowd drifted away, many with the thought that one first prize was simply not enough to do justice to so many excellent floats.

The last echoes of the loudspeakers spread downstream, and the river slept peacefully once more to be awakened only by the sound of hammers and eager voices heralding the beginning of next year's carnival.

Like we were just saying, Fellas, it takes real effort to produce a winning Water Carnival float.

This peaceful stretch of the Red Cedar suddenly becomes a tension-laden center of activity for the annual Water Carnival.

The women participating in spring term's Lantern Night complete their procession by Beaumont Tower.

President Hannah speaks at the senior week Honors College breakfast.

Senior Week Certainly the emotions rising in the hearts of all seniors during the week are felt even more strongly by the select few who are honored at the annual Honors College breakfast.

To these few among many, who have completed their undergraduate years with outstanding scholastic records, it is only fitting to pay special tribute.

A long standing tradition held each year on the Sunday preceding commencement is Lantern Night which honors outstanding senior women. Coed living units, festooned with lanterns indicating the special women, are serenaded during the colorful program. Coeds from each class form a procession, each carrying a Japanese lantern. The lanterns are passed from seniors to underclassmen, symbolizing the passing of responsibilities from class to class.

R.O.T.C. commissioning on the day before commencement climaxes the work of advanced Air Force and Army R.O.T.C. cadets. The commissioning parade is an impressive ceremony, and with Water Carnival and commencement completes the "Big Three" of the final weekend.

General Briggs salutes the passing troops after president Hannah's speech at commissioning exercises.

Ivan Cottrell receives his commission to second lieutenant from General John Briggs, superintendent of the Air Force Academy.

Commencement Finally, there is the day. On commencement day, all else fades away. Four years of work and play, study and activities are summed up in this one shining moment under the bright June sun.

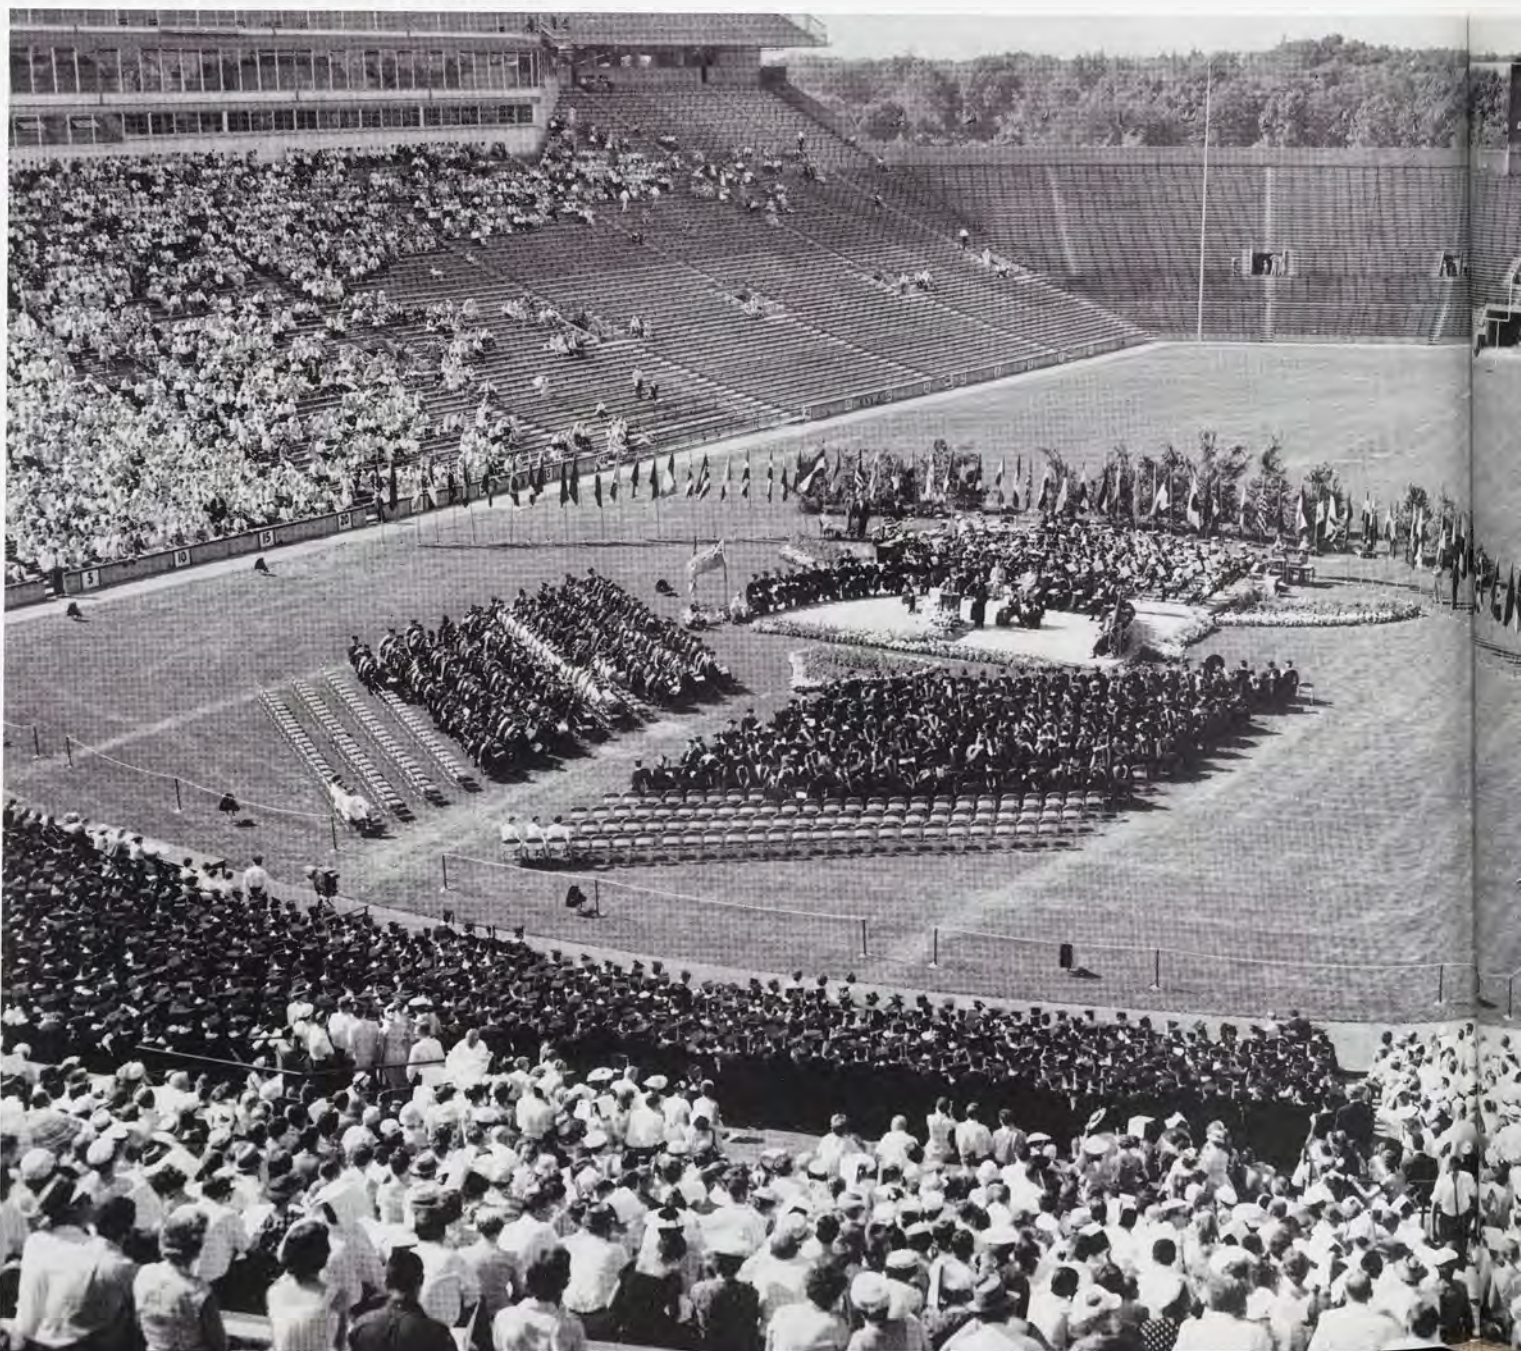

Somehow commencements are always the same. Things change and will continue to change in the university, but the fundamentals remain. Commencement forms a link with all the traditions of MSU that are strongly felt by the mass of black-gowned seniors in Spartan Stadium.

In 1959, 2,200 seniors marched into the stadium for commencement, then marched home to prepare to take final examinations for the first time. This was a change, but only in details. Perhaps the graduates were less carefree, but their happiness and sense of achievement were not lessened by any such trivia.

Nearly 20,000 persons braved the 90-degree sun at commencement and heard Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker address the class of 1959.

Although the graduates were prim and proper in their black gowns and multicolored tassels, bermuda shorts were much in evidence beneath the flowing robes. During the program there was a migration to the west into the lengthening shadow of the press box and relief from the broiling sun. Thus, the class of 1959 was ushered out into the world.

Commencement transforms the football field into a huge stage, upon which every graduating senior is a performer.

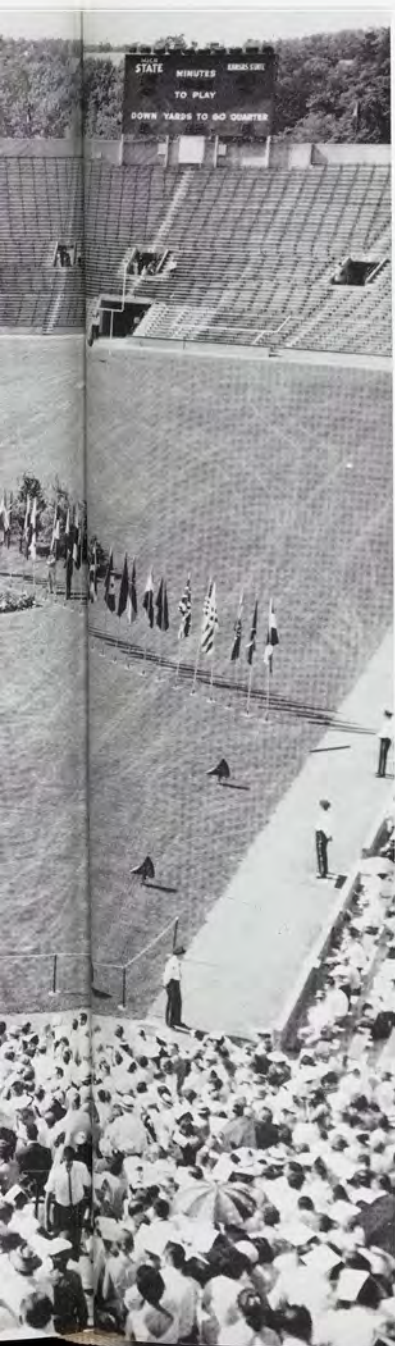

President Hannah escorts Prime Minister Diefenbaker to the speaker's platform.

Acknowledgments

Our sincere thanks go to the staff members who have been responsible for producing the 1960 Wolverine. The editorial content has resulted from the efforts of Sally Purcell, Bonnie Schuhardt, Molly Eustis, Wayne Parsons, Mary Leeman, Bruno Moser, Jody Howard, and Sara Furr. Having put four years of reliable work and loyalty into the yearbook, Sara Furr deserves a special appreciation for helping make the Wolverine the book it is. Without the help of Larry Lindsley, Bob DeBruyn, Kathy Barden, and Ginger Johnson the business staff would not have succeeded as it has.

The photographers whose claim is the pictorial content are Eric Lundberg, Bill Callahan, Norm Hines, Tom Armstrong, Ron James, Al Royce, Malcolm Tanagawa, Keith Johnson, Don Miller, Bob Gurnham, Bill Kielman, Jerry Holmes, Mike Denny, Dale Hansen, Bob Bates, Fred Lindberg and Bob Maronpot. Bill Hersey, the Lansing State Journal, Delma Studios, and Information Services of MSU were also vital to our photography.

Certainly this book could not have appeared without the help of John Vitovsky of Speaker-Hines and Thomas, Inc., the printer. We extend our grateful appreciation to him for his patience, understanding and assistance in attaining our goal.

To Bill McIlrath, our adviser, an unspoken gratitude is expressed. He knows the part he has played in the 1960 Wolverine.

To all these people and their assistants . . . thank you.
