INTRODUCTION TO LIFE

An educational institution is a traditional pattern established through the years into a way of life

This University is an impression. Whether it's the $150 million at-cost value of the land, buildings, and equipment, a single member of the 1,634 faculty members, or the carillon tower donated by John W. Beaumont ('82), a single visit here leaves an impression. A four-year focal point may well be on the 900,000 volume library, one of the 11 colleges, the largest teacher training program in the nation, the unique Honors College program, or upon one or several of the dynamic administrators headed by President John A. Hannah.

The University possesses a bewildering assortment of resources and activities, all calculated to attend a modern society. Impressions of these resources and activities lead to reflections and expectations of the University. The University is expected to be a responsible institution; responsible to the public; responsible to the student. A distinguished faculty, the library, the laboratories, the classrooms, and the research instruments, all provide an atmosphere in which learning may flourish. Learning, however, is the responsibility of the student. Whatever else the University may do, it cannot be successful without the student and his responsibility: self-responsibility.

A student should come to the University able to rise above grades for their sake alone. The University can offer a student the opportunity of exploring the puzzles of the world or of examining his own life. A student should depart from this University prepared for the discipline of hard work, the exercise of freedoms and responsibilities in his own life and in his contributions to his family, the community, the profession and the institution of his society to which he is committed. If such outcomes are missing, the student has failed himself, the University, and all those to whom he might have given his talents more fully throughout the unfolding of his adult life.

A first impression: beauty in symbolic form.

Within MSU's "Garden of knowledge," a garden of natural beauty.

November's Saturday classroom, replete with the annual smell of roses, raised and dashed hopes on alternate weekends.

In preparation for a student population of 48,000, residence halls, classrooms, and research facilities rise and the old makes way for the new.

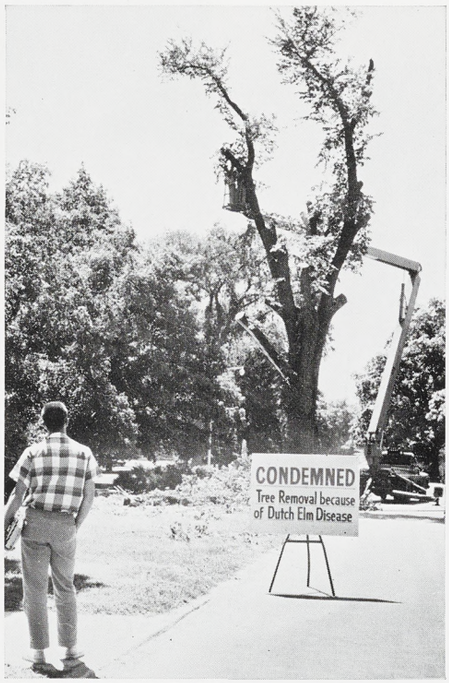

Most students begin and end their collegiate stay on the summer campus.

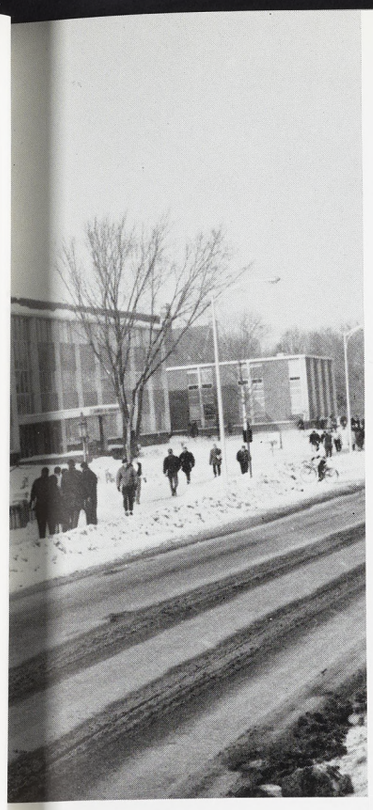

In the beginning there was confusion;
for students and for helpful parents.

Mobility on a campus of 880 acres is sometimes hampered by weather. On foot or by bus, snow can be a deterent, disliked and unwanted. In contrast, the balmy days of spring hamper mobility in a pleasant, relaxed manner.

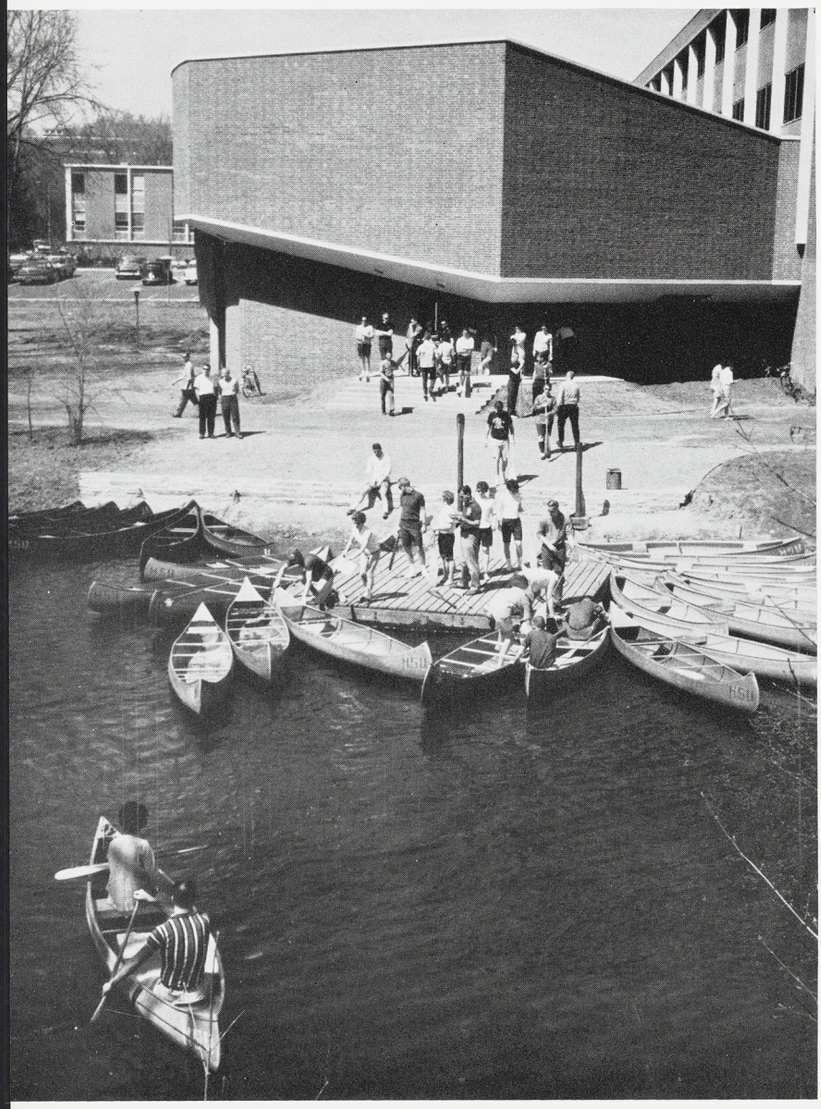

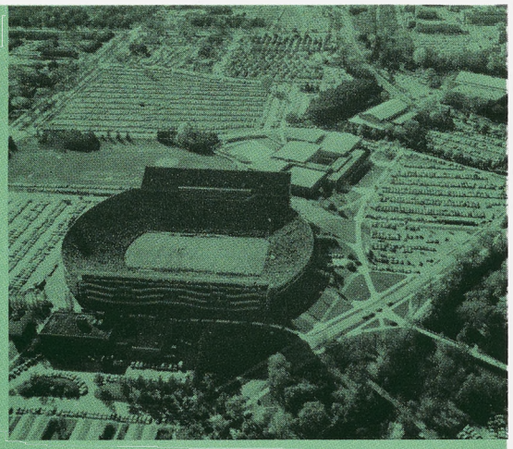

Transportation is often the keynote to punctuality, whether by foot, bus, or bicycle.

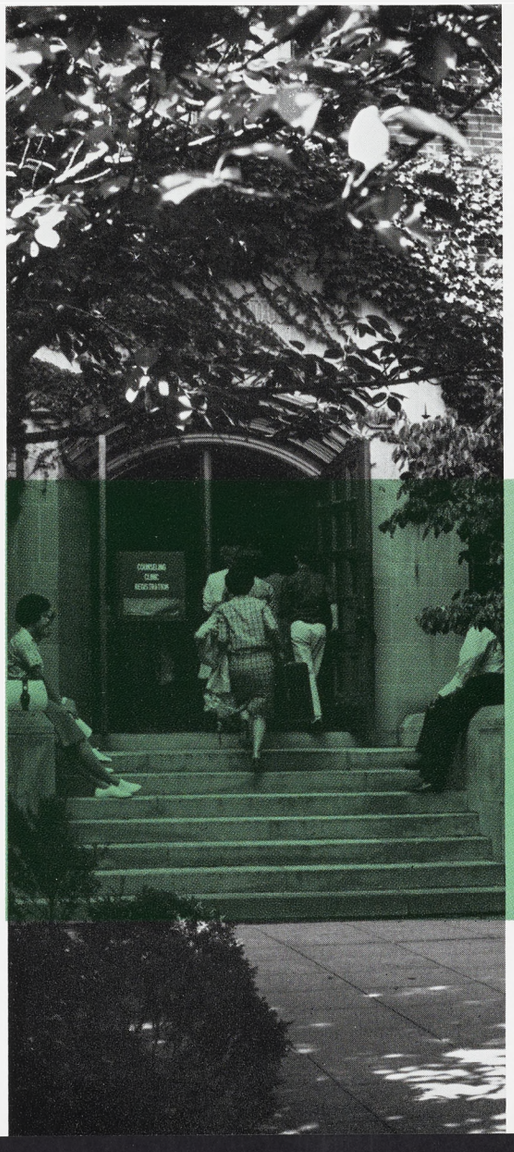

The not-so-Red Cedar promotes caution for student canoeists but many manage a dip in the tepid waters.

Spartan Stadium and 76,000 lung-busting fans.

A first introduction to collegiate atmosphere: summer counseling clinics, new faces, places, and things.

Green Helmet members aid students through that first big frustration: registration.

Both the open waters of near-by Lake Lansing and the bricked-in confines of the IM outdoor pool draw "study breakers."

Summer lingered into December without a student complaint, but when the male monopoly on the Brody group was broken, the voice of dissent was heard.

Even with an enrollment of 27,473 students, the individual is the basic element; each face in the crowd is integral to the whole.

From the crowded fun of the Luau to the relative solitude offered by a quiet hour on the steps of Berkey Hall, the student affects and is affected by others on his campus.

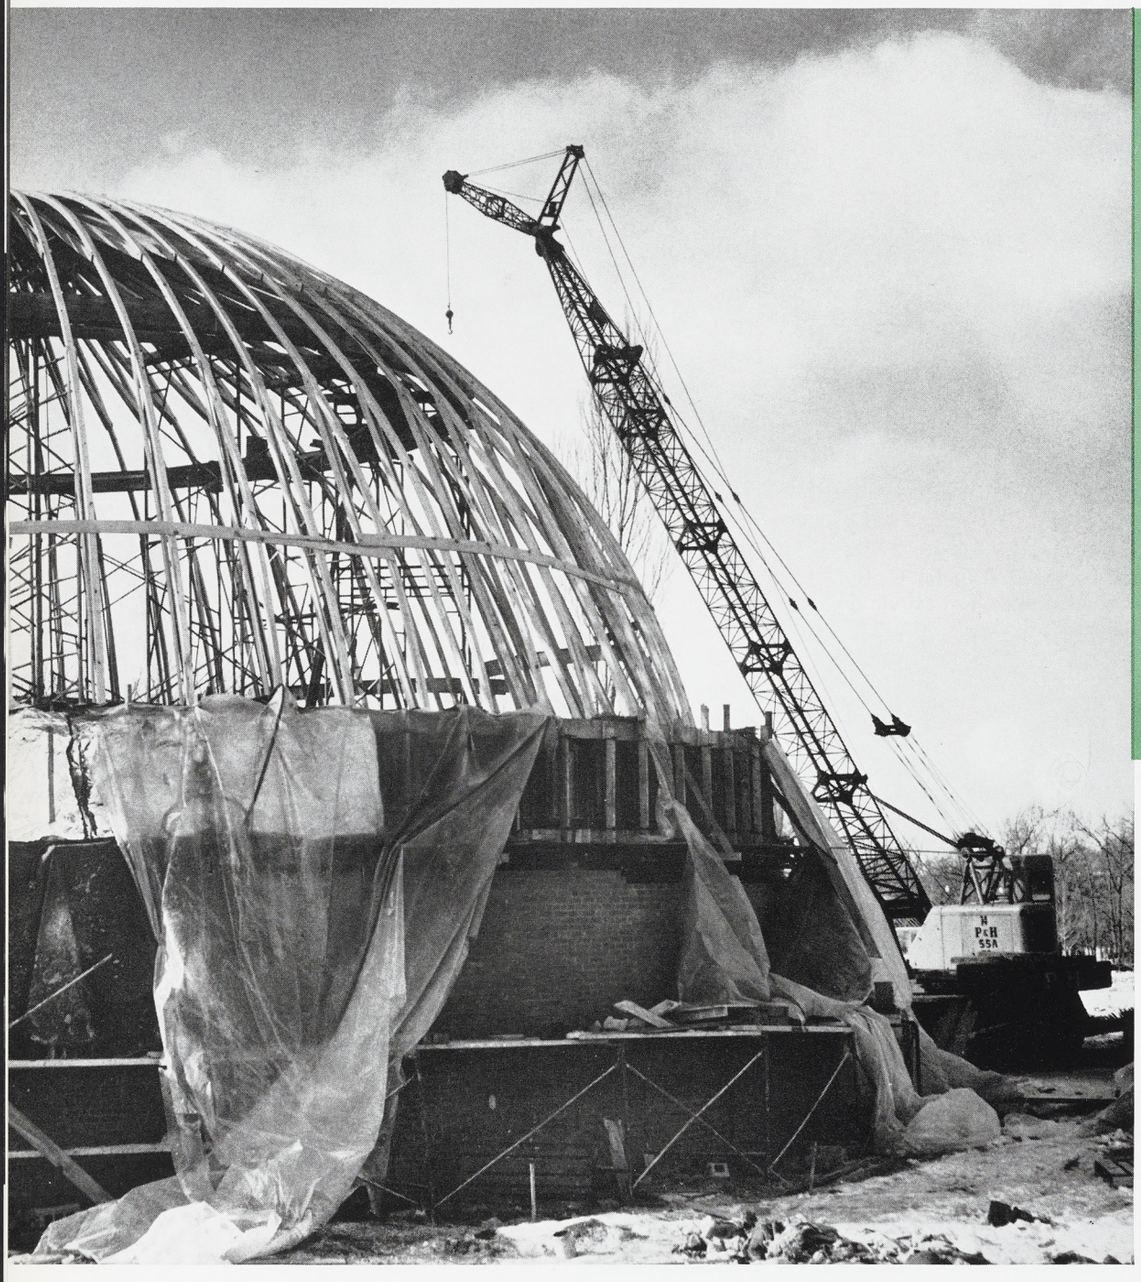

MSU offers out-of-doors activities for both the spectator and the participant, ranging from the beauty of a summer concert to the confusion of Frosh-Soph Daze.

Spring on campus invites the private challenge offered by the Red Cedar Golf Course and the cooperative effort required for a float in Water Carnival.

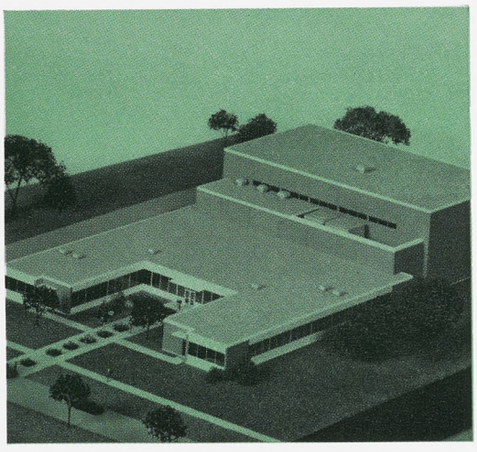

The MSU planetarium, still under construction, will be significant to the College of Natural Science and to the University as a whole.

Michigan State is still a pioneer in its continuous planning of construction for expansion and progress.

Although the seasons change, the student remains as the focal point in any campus scene—the background for his life.

The pleasure of being alone together can be found in the confinement of a car or during a walk between classes;
a quiet interval is needed by all.

CHAPTER ONE

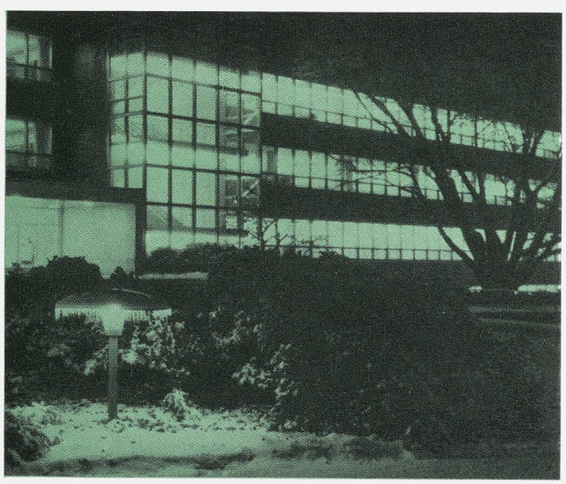

The University Community Offers the Student the Opportunity to Learn Through Experience

Cardinal Newman defined the university as ". . . the great ordinary means to a great but ordinary end; it aims at raising the intellectual tone of society, at cultivating the public mind, at purifying the national taste, at supplying true principles to popular enthusiasm and fixed aims to popular aspiration, at giving enlargement and sobriety to the ideas of the age, at facilitating the exercise of political power, and refining the intercourse of private life." In modern society where change is so evident, these functions of the university are emphasized.

In order to so serve society, Michigan State possesses a bewildering array of resources and activities. Within the University and student community, three interrelated ideas confront every individual: freedom, responsibility, and excellence. The University offers each student a new foundation of experience on which to build the principles which will mold his character and his life. The ultimate responsibility for success rests with the individual.

Education and experience come not alone from the classroom, the laboratory and the book. Living for four years in the student community with individuals having a variety of interests, backgrounds, and points of view is broadening and maturing. Such an experience develops tolerance, independence, and respect for those unlike oneself. The student is challenged to consider, determine, and evaluate his own beliefs and values.

As the student departs from Michigan State University, he leaves behind him a pattern of footsteps representing his successes, his disappointments, his pleasures, and his hardships. The pattern of each student is unique and significant and remains forever a part of the University. As those before him left part of themselves for his growth and development, so too, he leaves of himself for those to follow. Like footprints, his experiences here leave upon his memory an indelible impression which he carries with him through life.

The campus night scene includes the brightly-lit library.

Indicative of student-faculty relations, Professor Hans Wolff and a student discuss course work at Kewpie's.

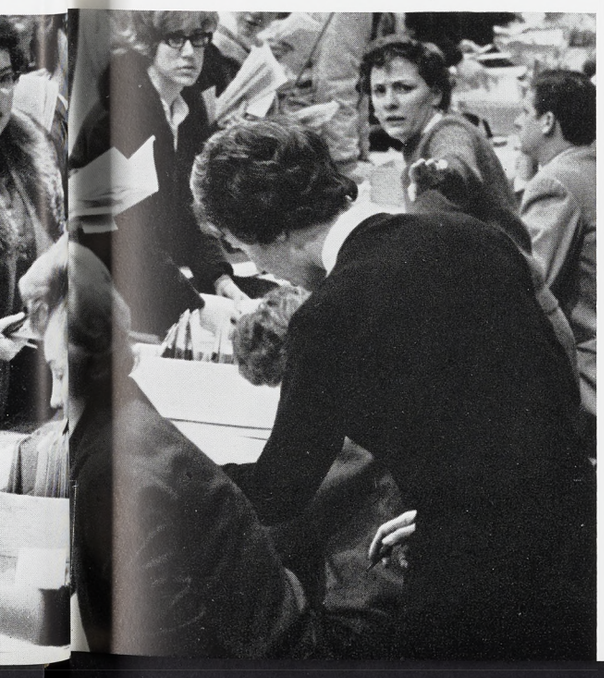

LEARNING UNDER THE GUIDANCE OF INTERESTED FACULTY

A challenging maze of checkpoints, lines, and cards, registration is unescapable.

Faculty instruction doesn't end in the classroom.

The relationship between student and instructor reaches beyond the realm of the classroom. This communication shifts from the group level of the lecture hall to the individual exchange of ideas through recitation sessions and private appointments. Through this personal contact, a common ground is created on which to air specific misunderstandings.

Writing an exam is only the beginning of Professor Kelly's work.

Student and faculty join forces in areas besides academics in creating the University community. They serve together on library and student publication regulatory committees, not to mention the controversial Speakers Committee. Fall term student-faculty talent was combined to present the Junior Council's first annual "Faculty Fling" talent show.

After-class conferences are frequently used to discuss academic or personal problems.

Berkey's summer steps provide a restful sun stop for students awaiting classes and buses.

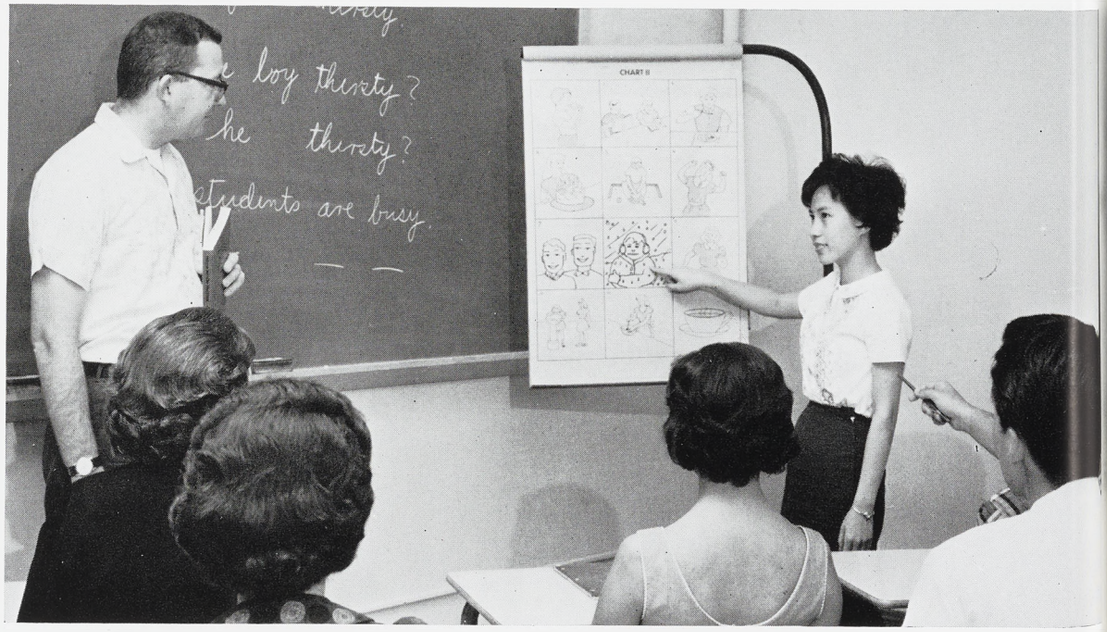

Foreign students receive counseling and guidance from advisor Donald Gemmel.

Many students take advantage of the books kept on reserve in the library for assigned readings.

Communication barriers are often not the least of the foreign student's problems.

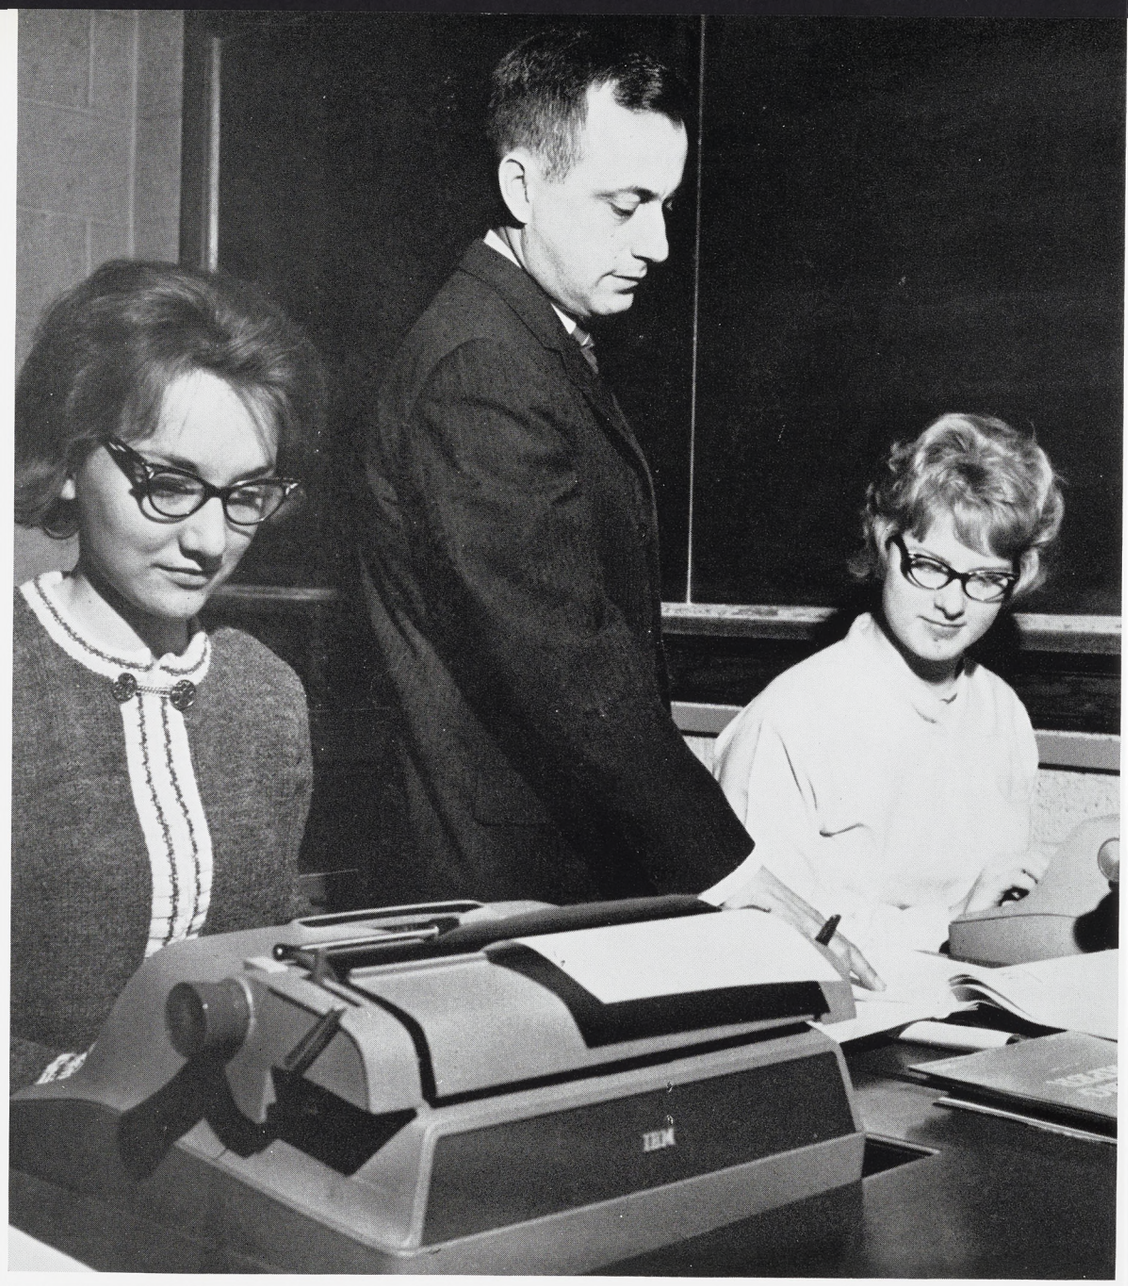

As the intellectual focal point of the University, the library serves faculty and students alike in the quest for knowledge. Its 900,000 volumes, 9,000 current periodicals, and 2,133 seat facilities remain well-used throughout each term, but become uncomfortably crowded as midterms and finals draw near.

SERVING TO FURTHER RESEARCH AND THE INTELLECTUAL PROCESS

The library provides a restful place to study and employment for many students.

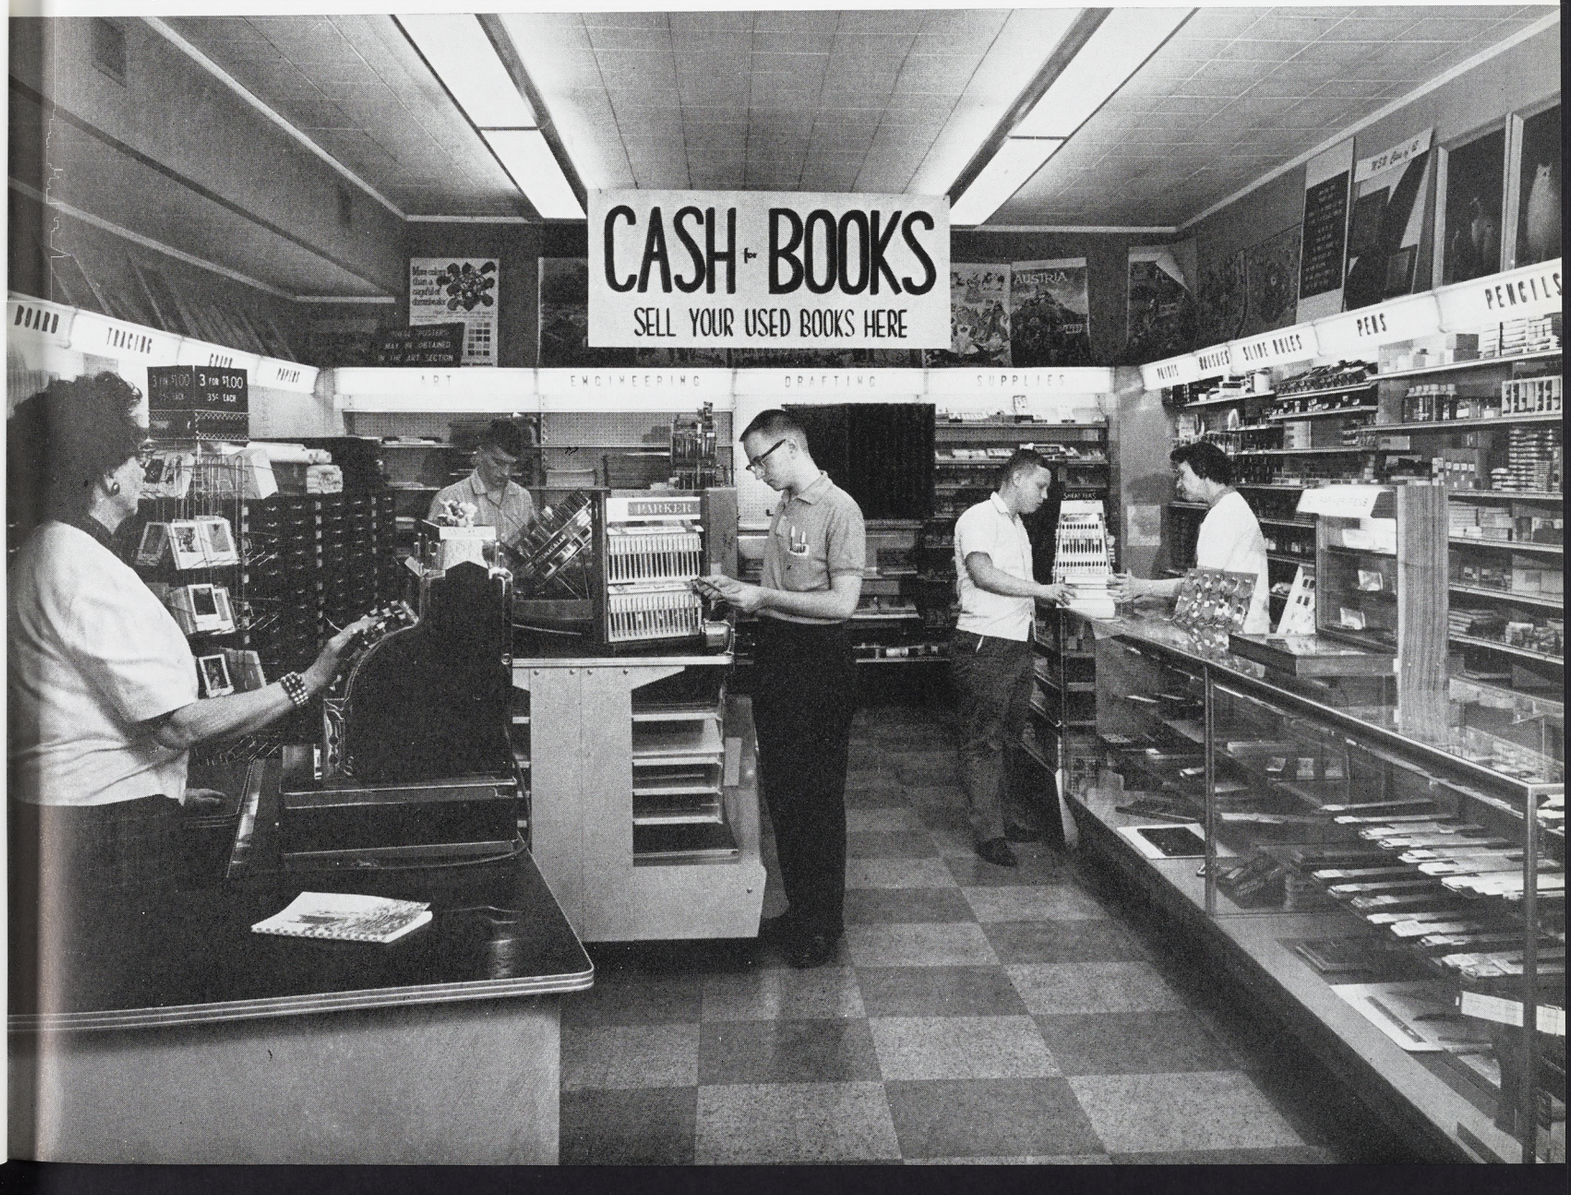

Instructor and student interest is essential for a proper learning situation to take place.

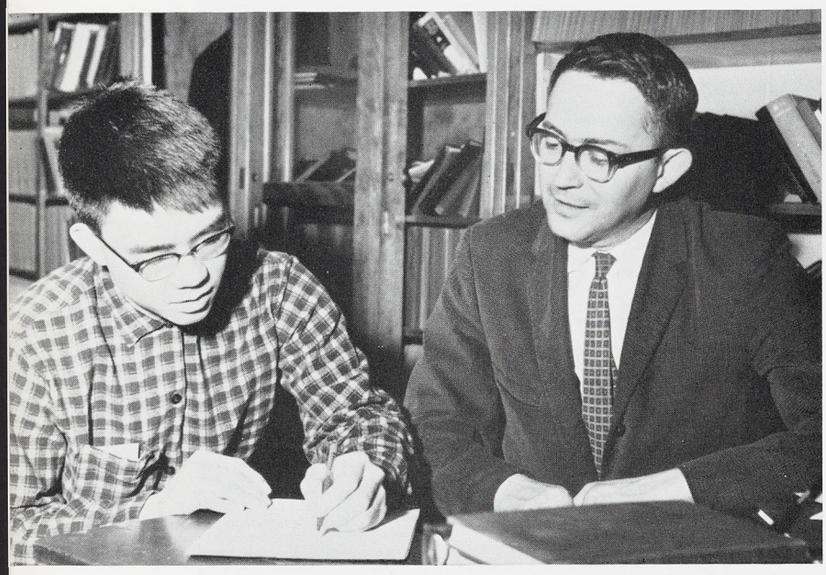

Inherent in any university is the personal role played by instructor and student, in class and out. The ratio is always 1:1 if there is an interested instructor and an interested student, a prerequisite to learning. Utilization of class time, after-class time, and between class time is an important segment of life at a university whether it is in discussion, recreation or personal enterprise.

Informality and coffee cups sometimes aid the learning process in small-group sessions.

The economy of gaining an education is often seen in the two-way transactions at the Union Book Store.

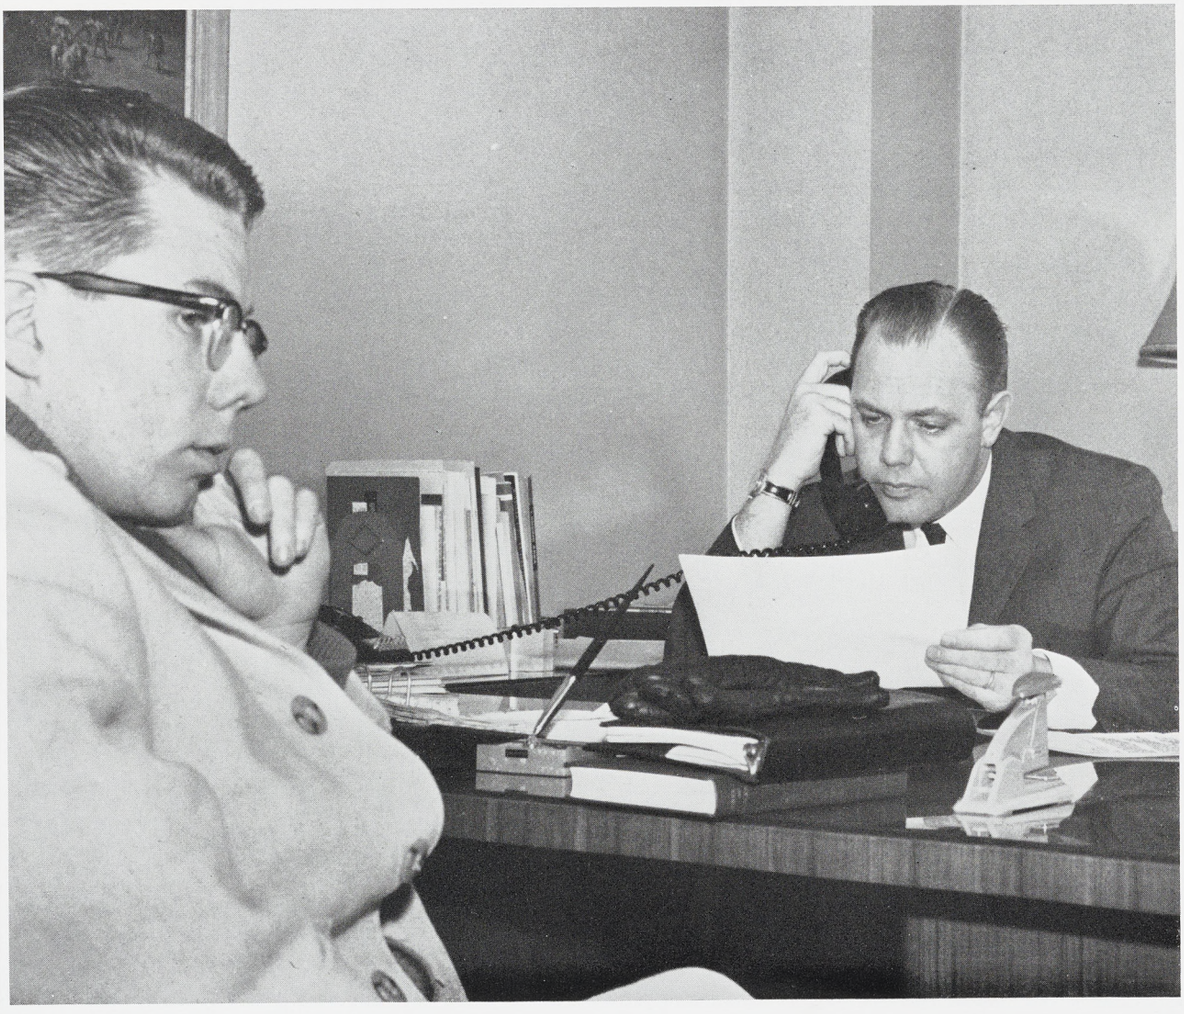

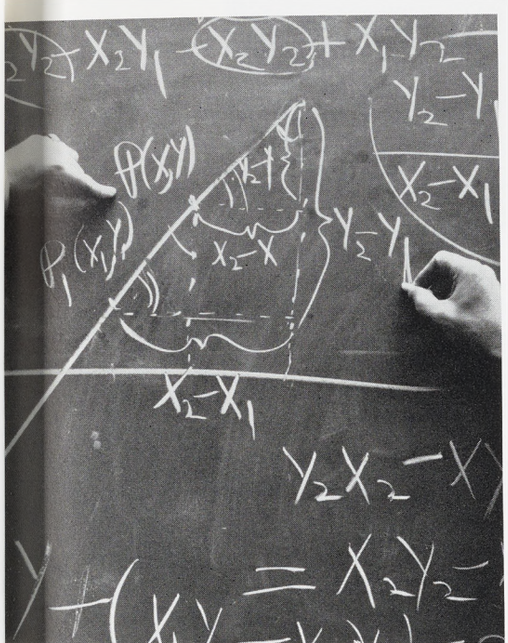

A professor's availability after class is often the opportunity to approach assignment problems or delve into advance studies.

EDUCATION IS A PERSONAL VENTURE

Though there has been a stress on independent study by the individual student, much of this independence requires the personal attention of a major professor. The personal problems of an individual, academic or otherwise, continue to find understanding through the faculty and administration personnel.

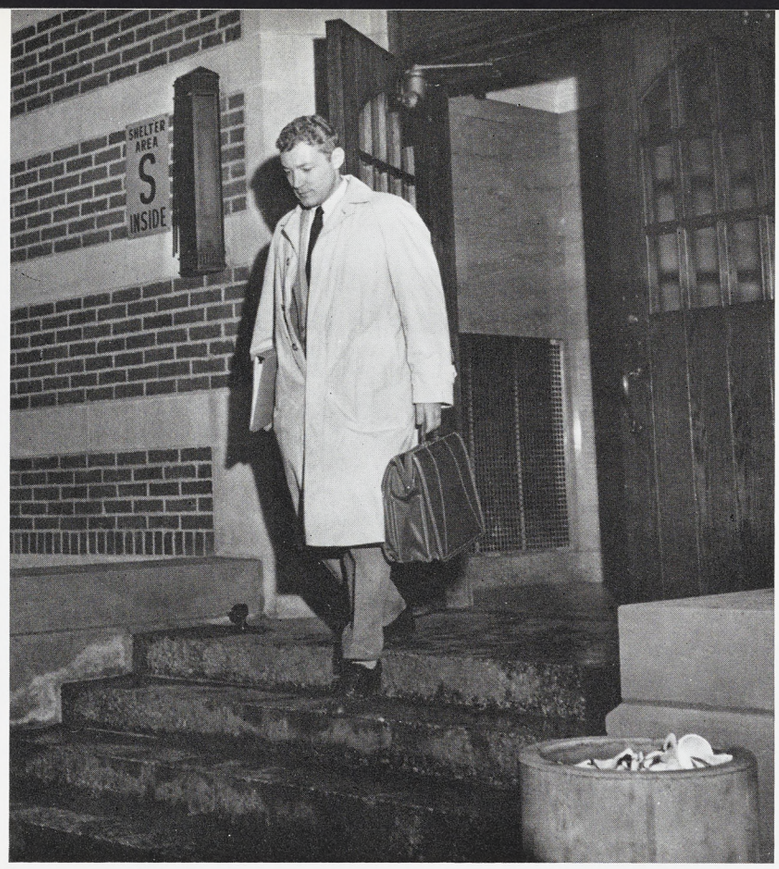

Student problems in many areas, from loans for books to low grades, are brought before Dr. Eldon Nonnamaker.

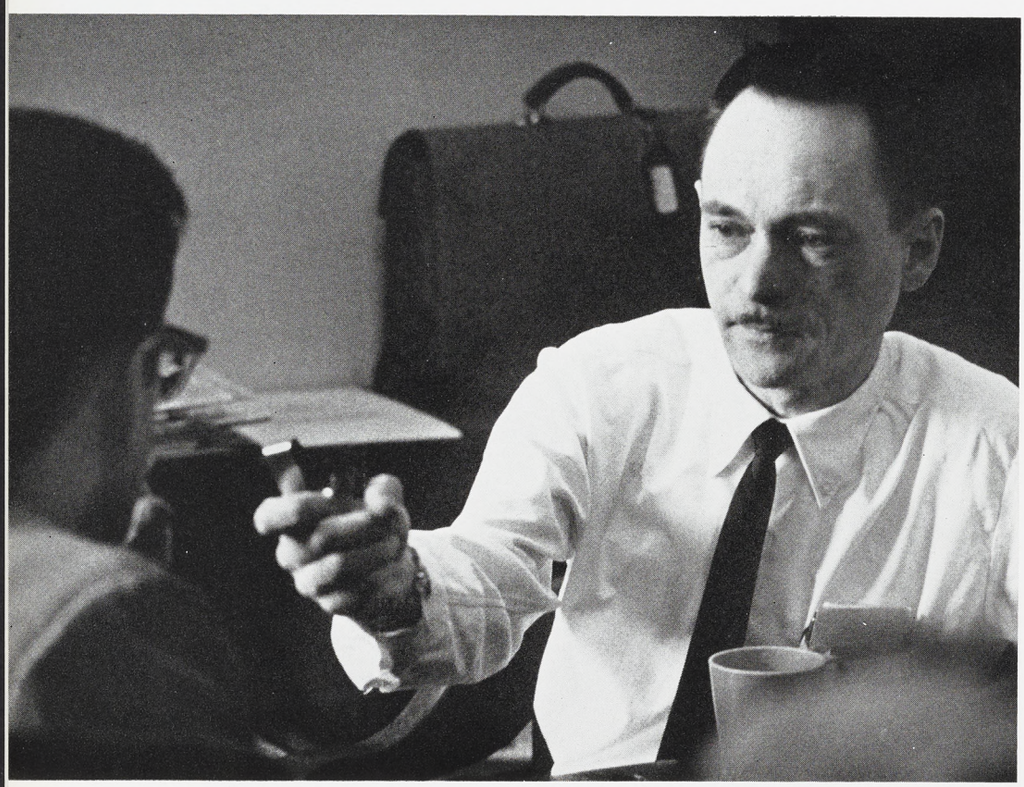

In most academic areas, the intricacies of a new language must be learned.

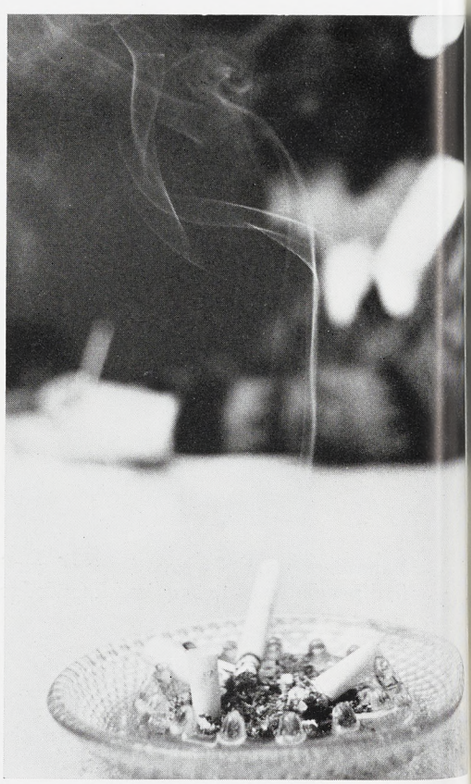

Experiments and the experience of qualified people leads to acquired knowledge.

The end of a faculty day is often long after the campus has been deserted of academic activity.

Informal faculty conferences bring together many of the divergent ends of Academia.

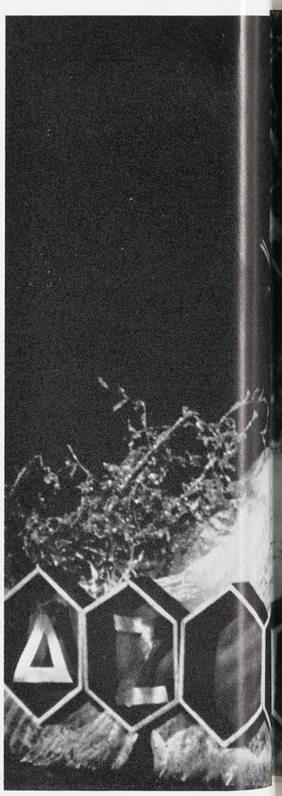

STUDENT PARTICIPATION HELPS MAKE A GREAT UNIVERSITY

All-university events ranged from the annual Homecoming and Water Carnival pageants to the once-tried-but-not-forgotten Luau. Preparation for most of the activities requires long hours of hard work, ingenuity, and a strong desire for participation on the part of the student body. The success or failure depends on strong student leadership and an interested and enthusiastic following. In most instances these have been present and have enhanced the possibility for most of the annual events to continue, prosper, and add to a student tradition.

Umbrellas at the Homecoming game have been as traditional as the roses given '62 Queen Patty Johnson.

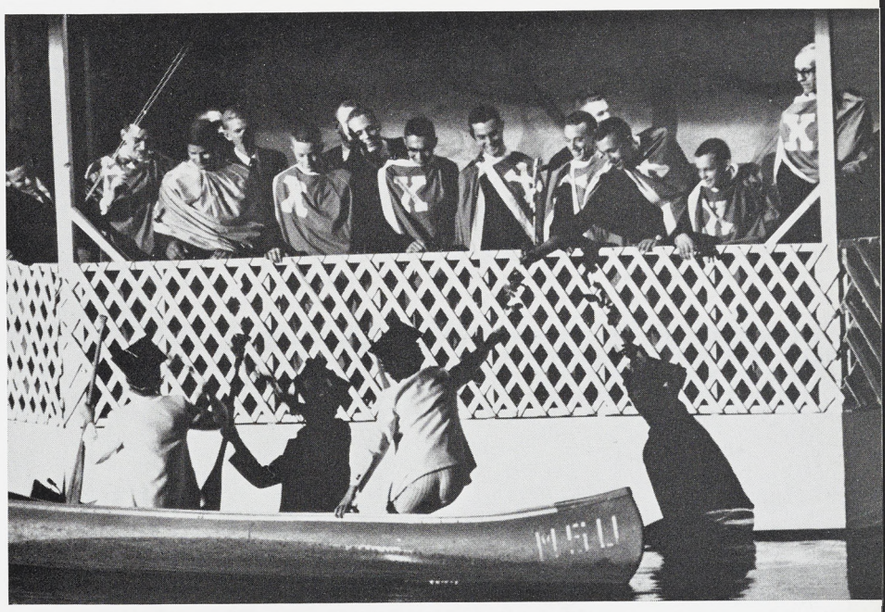

CREATIVITY, OF SORTS, IS STRESSED

A week of Luau's Muu Muus, long and short, turned campus heads and compelled 9,000 paying gourmets to attend the multi-sectioned event held in the various levels of Jenison Field House. Later in the Spring, a more sophisticated Water Carnival captured campus interests. "Pseudo", theme for the Red Cedar extravaganza, was aptly portrayed by the numerous entries competing for division gold cups, symbolic of initiative, imagination and hard work.

Part of the annual Water Carnival is the Excalibur tapping ritual, official anouncement of new members.

Typical of the "Pseudo" theme, the Delta Zeta-Delta Sigma Phi entry in the Red Cedar pageant won second place.

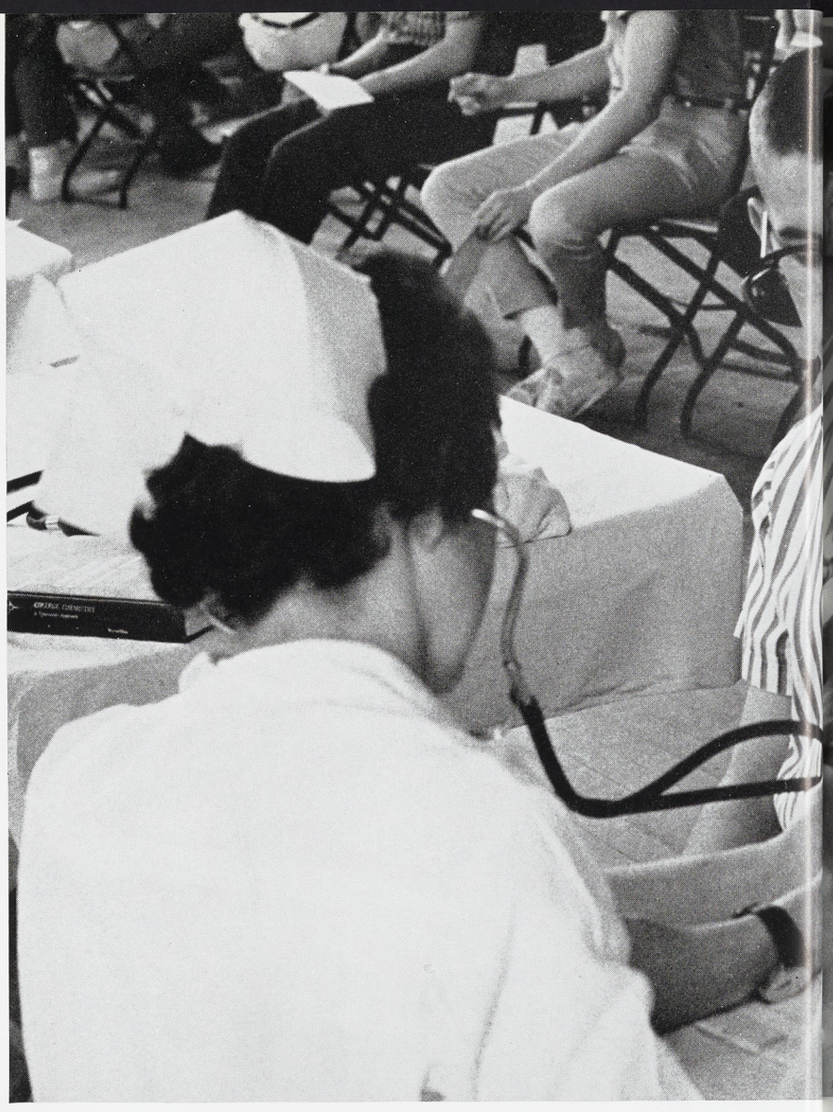

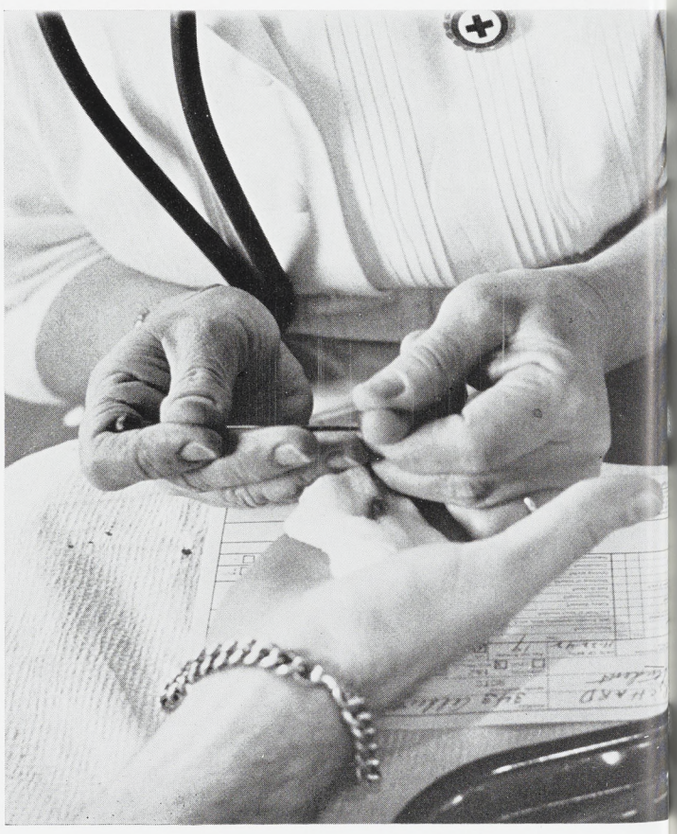

Finishing touches and weeks of labor by Water Carnival entrants.

Imported Leis, entertainment, and Brody food attracted 9,000 guests.

A test, not unlike the classroom variety in importance, leads to participation in the student blood drive, an important annual event.

As applicants await the opportunity to donate to the annual blood drive, another is prepared by the efficient hands of a Red Cross nurse checking pulse and blood pressure.

A SPIRIT OF GIVING PERVADES THE ANNUAL BLOOD DRIVE

The one annual event not connected with the frivolity and entertainment aspect of the all-University events, and probably the most important student sponsored event, is the annual Blood Drive. Students have the opportunity to participate in something worthwhile and still compete: Jackson prison, less populated than this institution, affords the annual pint-by-pint competition.

A pint at a time, donators work toward membership in the gallon club, symbolic of sacrifice for the sake of others.

The officials' table is a beehive of activity as late entries, driver and pusher changes, and preliminary times are requested.

Carts endeavor to gain an early lead to jockey for the best course position in an effort to reach the relay point first.

Annually a big event, the Greek Feast, held in the Sigma Nu yard, provided excellent food and entertainment.

EVENTS FORM AN INTEGRAL PART OF THE UNIVERSITY ATMOSPHERE

Many annual events are group-oriented, such as the Greek Feast and the SOC term party, but most are inter-university in scope and participation drawing from the manpower resources of the Greeks, residence halls, and GDIs. Even the organization-sponsored activities draw enthusiastic participation from other areas. The Junior 500, Greek in origin and sponsorship (Lambda Chi Alpha), is perhaps the greatest example of this: Sororities vie for the fastest non-Greek runners to propel their entries. It has become the annual highlight of Greek week.

The Campus United Nations provides a sounding board and learning experience for an important area, foreign affairs.

ACTIVITIES AND EVENTS PROSPER OR FAIL THROUGH THE PARTICIPATION OF STUDENTS

Many campus organizations annually face the problem of student participation and enthusiasm. Some, such as the Campus UN, do not offer an immediate entertainment reward and, with much of their activity of a research and educational nature, do not draw the attention they perhaps deserve.

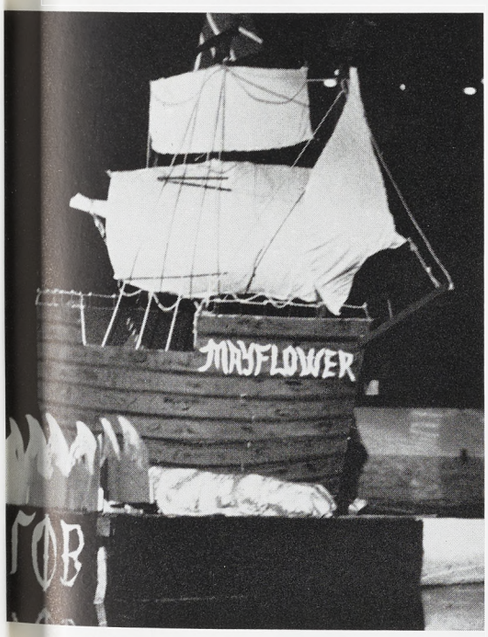

Crowded out by an overflow attendance, innovating youngsters found a better view of the Jr. 500.

The Activities Carnival, annual show place for campus organizations, drew a chilled crowd to Spartan Stadium.

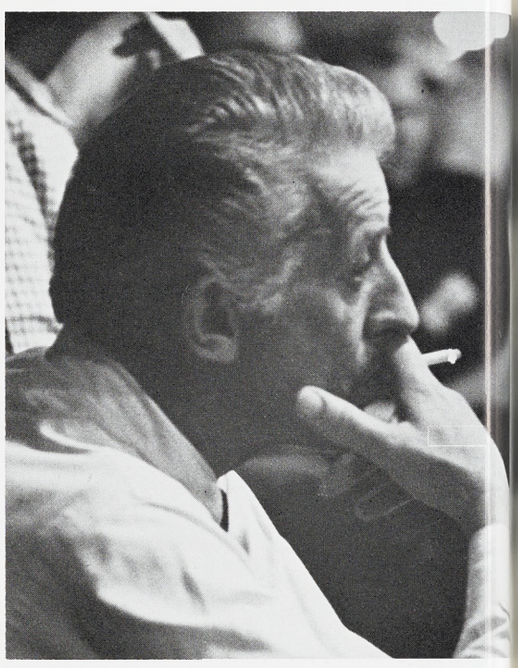

Sail afurl, this entry was at home in the 1962 Water Carnival spectacular, "Pseudo."

Kenton's percussion section, vivid with sounds and action, is a big crowd pleaser.

The Maestro relaxes. Stan Kenton.

A strong brass section of one Clinic group prepares to sound off for Kenton and the crowd.

An increasingly popular summer event, the Stan Kenton Jazz Clinic, draws numerous student musicians and spectators alike. Founded as an academic relationship to the music school, the event now draws people from the far corners of southern Michigan for pure listening pleasure.

A UNIVERSITY ANNUALLY GREETS NEW FACES, THINGS, AND PLACES

Entering freshmen are greeted with miles of spacious campus, a confusing array of buildings—and tests.

Counselors work closely with new students, preparing graphic course and study outlines.

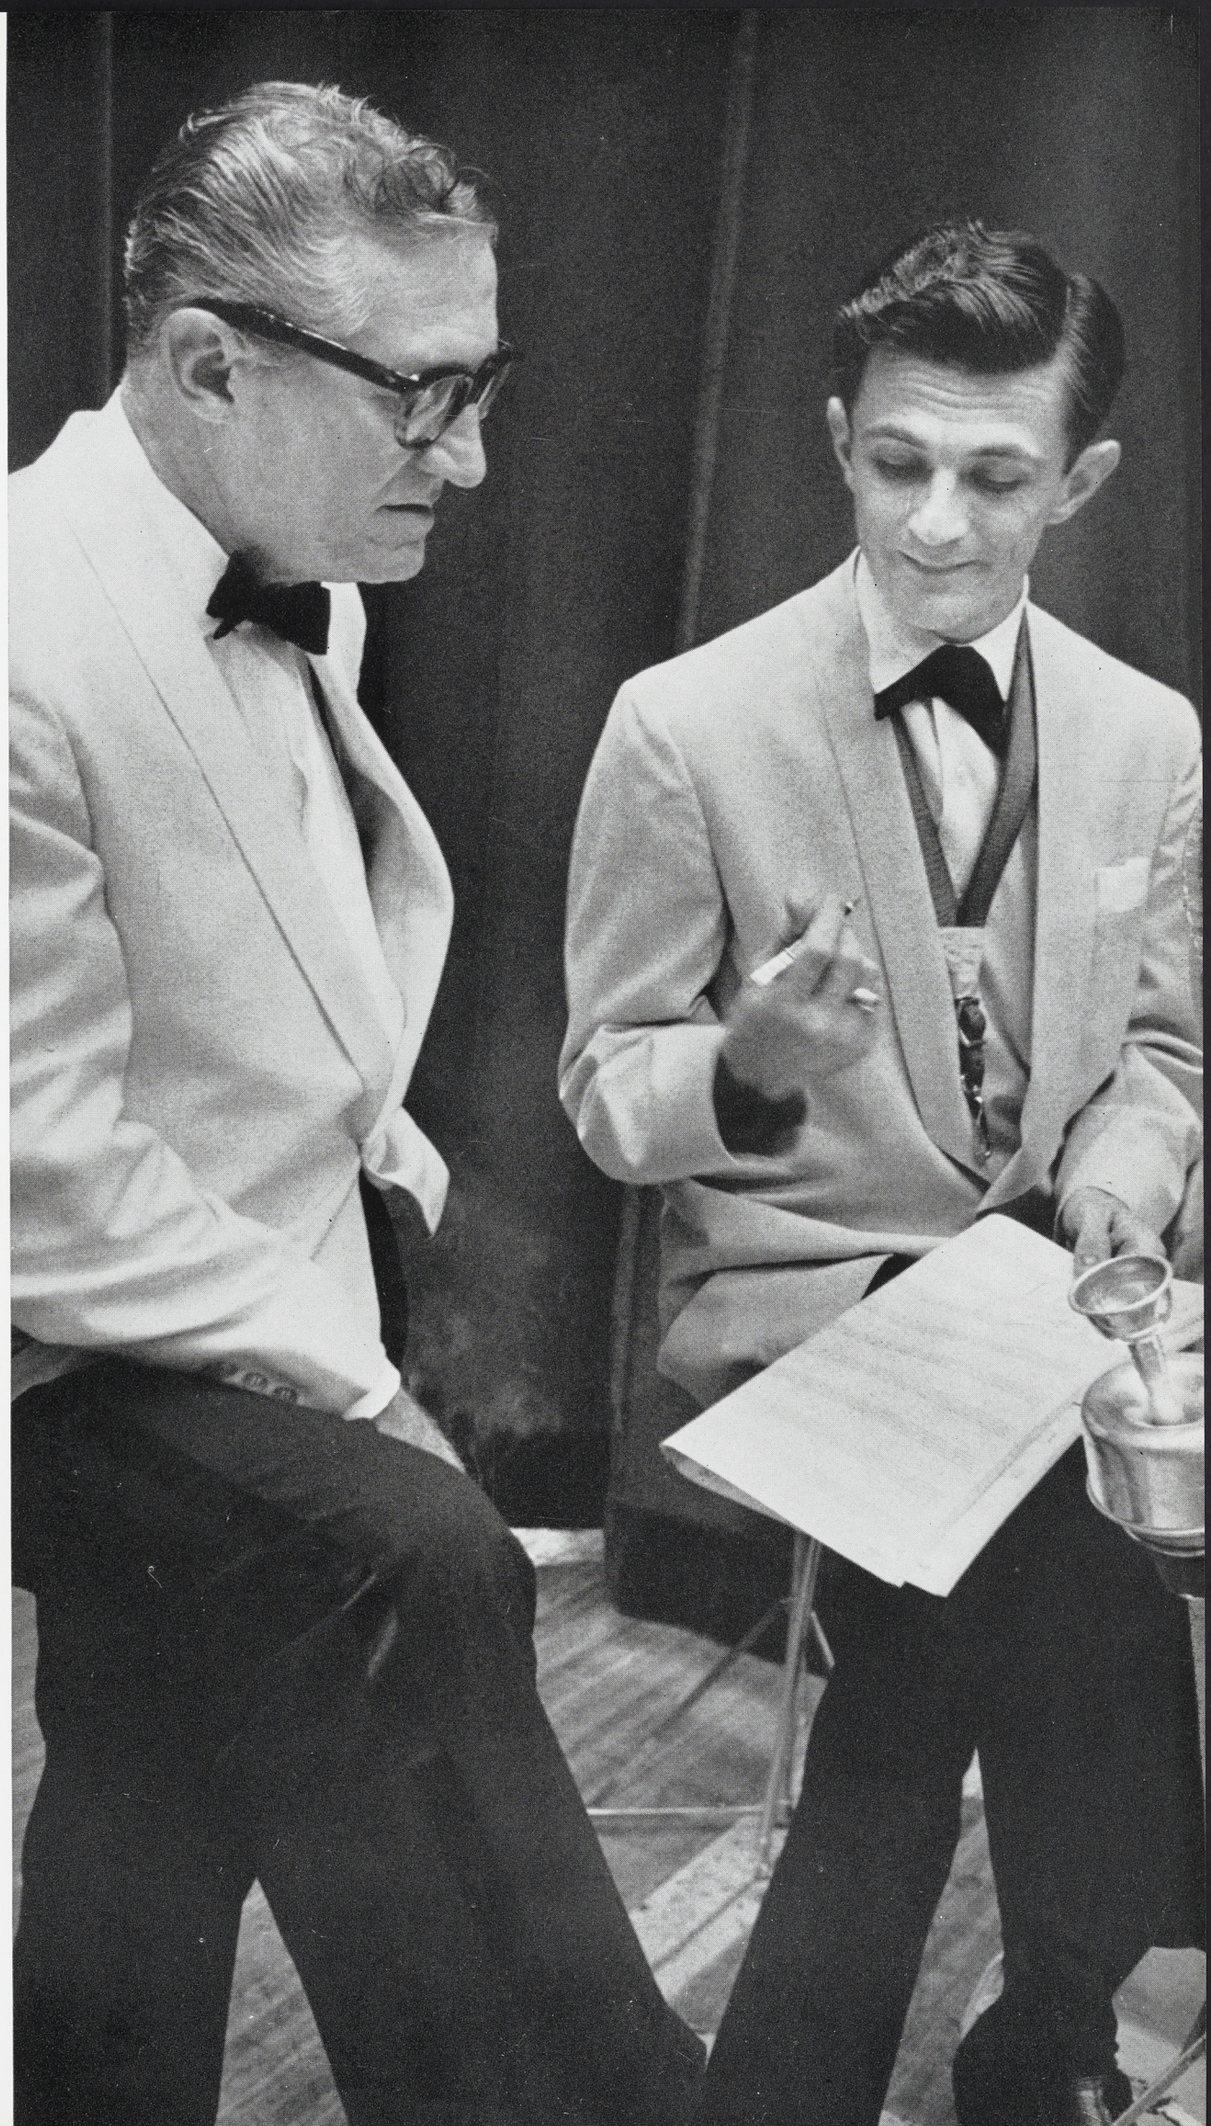

The Kabuki play provided entertainment in an oriental vein.

STRONGLY APPLAUDED: MSU'S LECTURE CONCERT SERIES

Each year the Lecture-Concert Series presents more than 50 programs including art and foreign films, travel films, and some of the world's foremost organizations and figures of the concert hall, stage, and lecture platform. Under the direction of Dr. Wilson B. Paul, the wide variety of cultural programs are provided at a modest cost. Turn-away crowds are not unusual and pre-season sell-outs are commonplace. The Series has taken the lights and life of Broadway and the Met to the stage of the University Auditorium in a presentation of diversified, entertaining, and educational programs for the University community. Audiences for the 1962-63 series were privileged with such presentations as Sound of Music, violinist David Oistrakh, Foo Hsing Theater, the New York City Opera Company, Chicago Symphony Orchestra, soprano Lentyne Price, and the Iglesias Spanish Ballet.

Roberta Peters, exciting star of the Metropolitan Opera Company, appeared in the spring L-C Series.

Ray McKinley aids an assistant in arranging a program score.

Violist Oistrakh obligingly signed autographs after his performance.

From the passionate presentation of "Rigoletto" to the stimulating informal session with Ralph Bunche, the emphasis on the programs was quality.

"Marriage of Figaro" was a New York City Opera presentation.

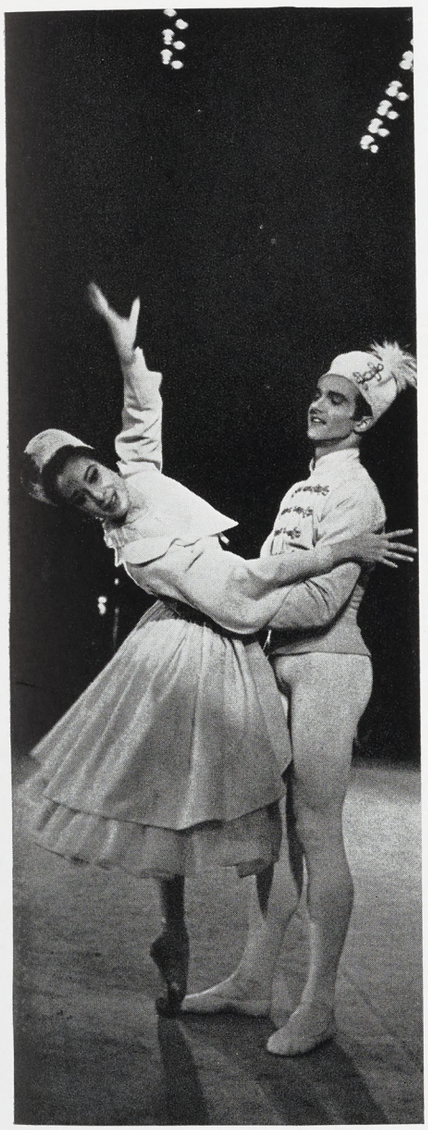

The Sunday performance of the Leningrad Philharmonic Orchestra was "sold out".

After the formal travelogue presentation, guest speakers such as Curtis Nagle often provided interested members of the audience with an informal discussion.

An American ballet presentation featured Ruth St. Denis and Melissa Hayden.

Jeannine Carson and John Van Dreelen starred in the "Sound of Music" presentation.

Seniors take the Career Carnival opportunity to investigate the opportunities in their fields.

The Pistol Club is one of many campus organizations which furnish information through an annual display at the Activities Carnival under Spartan Stadium.

THE CARNIVALS: CAREERS AND ACTIVITIES DISPLAYED

The two fall term activities of importance to all students are the Career and Activities Carnivals. The Career Carnival, of primary interest to seniors, brings major corporations and leading employers from all over the nation to the campus. Booth displays feature working scale models and representatives are on hand to inform students of job opportunities in the fields represented.

In December, Spartan Stadium becomes the showplace for more than 70 campus organizations who participate in the annual Activities Carnival. The organization representatives locate booths along the "midway" under the stadium bleachers for display and advertisement. Upperclassmen are available to acquaint freshmen with the wide variety of activities open to them.

Representatives from major corporations all over the country provide answers to employment questions.

Working scale models are an interesting and important part of the annual Career Carnival.

Chicken wire and tissue paper are transformed into colorful displays during Homecoming Week.

Typical of the elaborate displays is the Alpha Omicron Pi Spartan-Gopher exhibit.

HOMECOMING: AN EXCITING WEEK HONORING ALUMNI

A hectic week of preparation leads up to the Saturday of Homecoming honoring returning alumni. Living units on and off campus prepare elaborate displays in competition with each other. Paper flowers and paper maché caricatures, wilted by the annual homecoming drizzle, greet the grads and poke fun at the visiting football team. The displays are judged and the winners are announced at the football game. The Homecoming Queen is crowned during the half-time and is presented her bouquet of roses. She is officially crowned at the all-University dance which concludes the festivities. The stadium turf is turned over to the alumni after the game for renewing old acquaintances. Groups of alums gather around signs posting graduation classes for over half a century.

The beautiful, though rain-soaked, Homecoming Queen, Patty Johnson, enjoyed escort Ken Beachler's hotdog, if not the football game.

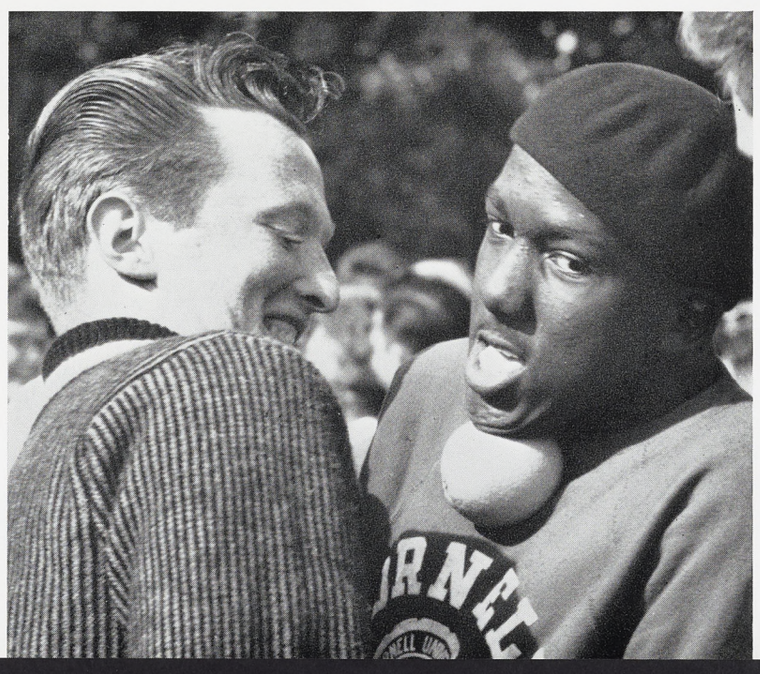

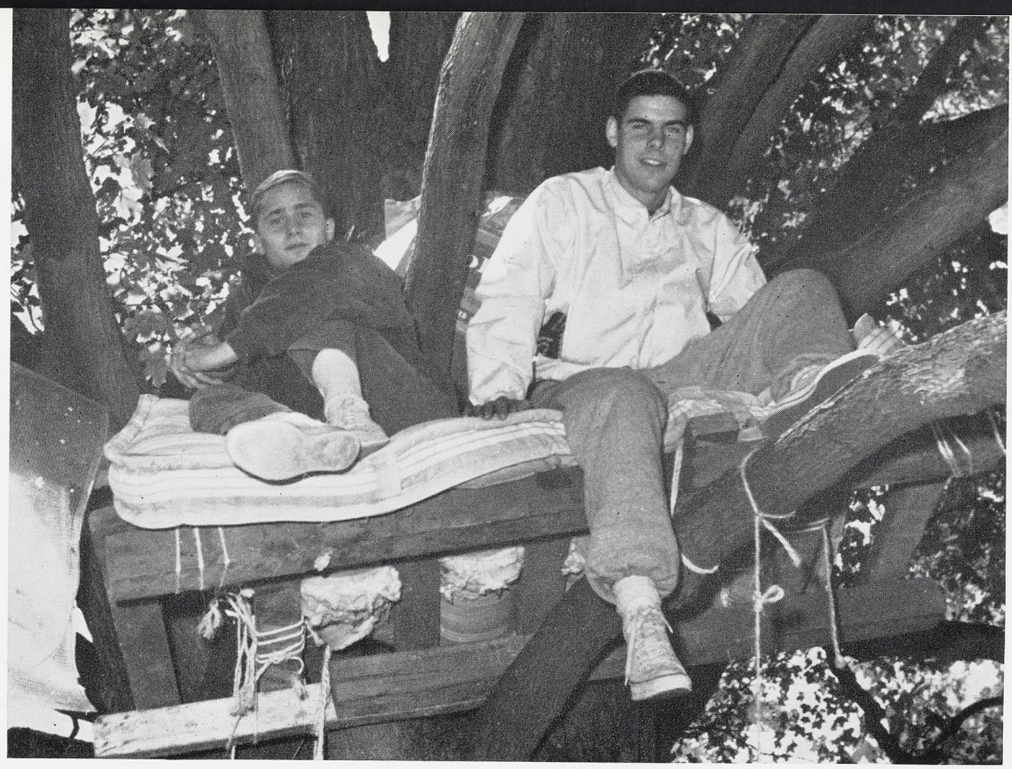

Homecoming was slightly soiled by the rain and a Minnesota victory.

Spartan cheerleaders find it opportune to teach Frosh-Soph Daze crowd the cheers for a new football season.

There is some difficulty involved in passing an orange if it's done from chin to chin.

Frosh-Soph class presidents annually try to out-sit each other in a make-shift tree boudoir.

FROSH-SOPH DAZE: INTER-CLASS COMPETITION

From the tug-of-war and president's tree-sitting to the frantic search for a garter in a haystack, Frosh-Soph Daze is filled with frivolity and fun. The annual competition is always close and, in the case of the tree-sitting, the two class leaders sometimes descend together after a long and sometimes cold and uncomfortable night in their nest. Other festivities include an egg-throwing contest (with unboiled eggs), a sack race, and unorganized hilarity for competitors and by-standers. The events are the final activity of the Frosh-Soph Council and are staged to integrate the new students into campus life and activities.

The boys really get enthusiastic over the lost garter in the haystack.

A cost-plus crowd dances to Munro music at the "Land of Oz" J-Hop.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES INCLUDE J-HOP AND "WHIRL"

Much of the student social activity centers around two major dances, the J-Hop and the Veteran's Club Winterland Whirl. Both semi-formal, they drew large crowds with the name bands of Dave Brubeck at the J-Hop and Duke Ellington at the Whirl. The J-Hop split the evening with two bands, Hal Munro played for the dancing and Brubeck entertained at a 50-minute intermission. Highlight of the Vet's dance was the queen selection. Each couple was greeted upon entry with an array of pictures of the candidates for the title and allowed to vote. The winner was announced at intermission. Other dances of social significance during the school year were the Harvest Ball and the Spinsters' Spin, a semi-formal affair when the coeds do the inviting, foot the bill, and make their date's corsage.

Dave Brubeck entertains a shoulder-to-shoulder crowd at the intermission of the 1962-63 J-Hop.

A center of interest and crowd participation at the Vet's Winterland Whirl is the selection and crowning of the Queen.

Winterland Whirl features big-name bands and a nightclub atmosphere for the members of the Vets' Club and their dates.

A dramatic portrayal by the University Theater, "American Dream" was one of many successes.

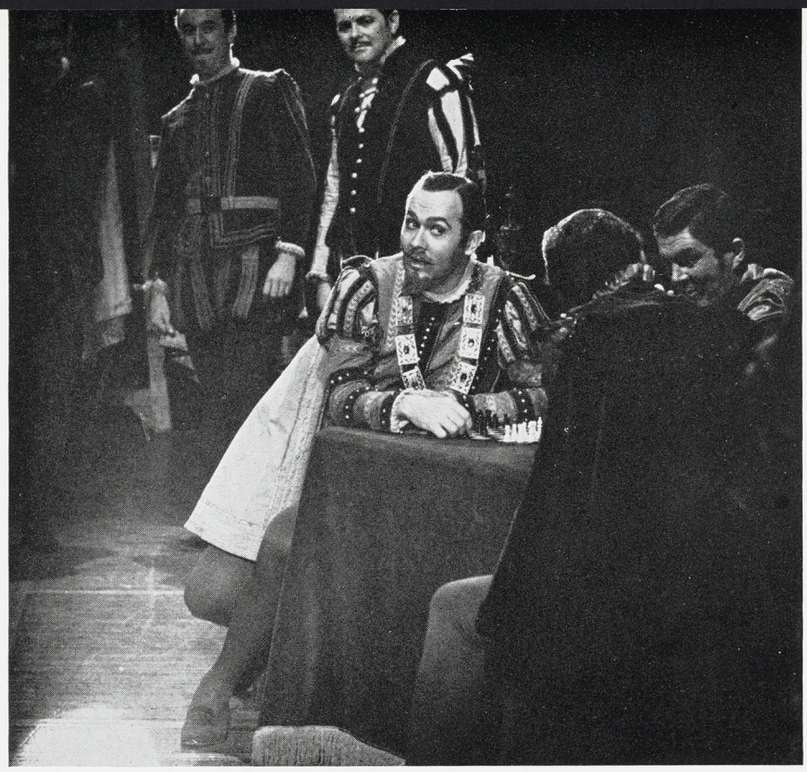

Individual effort and hard work combine for success for Summer Circle theater.

Through the University Theater the campus community is offered important, but not well-known enough, plays to be commercially profitable. Experimental or unusual plays like "American Dream" are also in the UT realm. The year's unique feature was "Kanjincho," a Kabuki play translated and produced by James Brandon, associate professor of speech. Brandon studied with the Japanese theater and produced the play as authentically as possible outside Japan.

"Queen and Rebels", "Brigadoon" rated high.

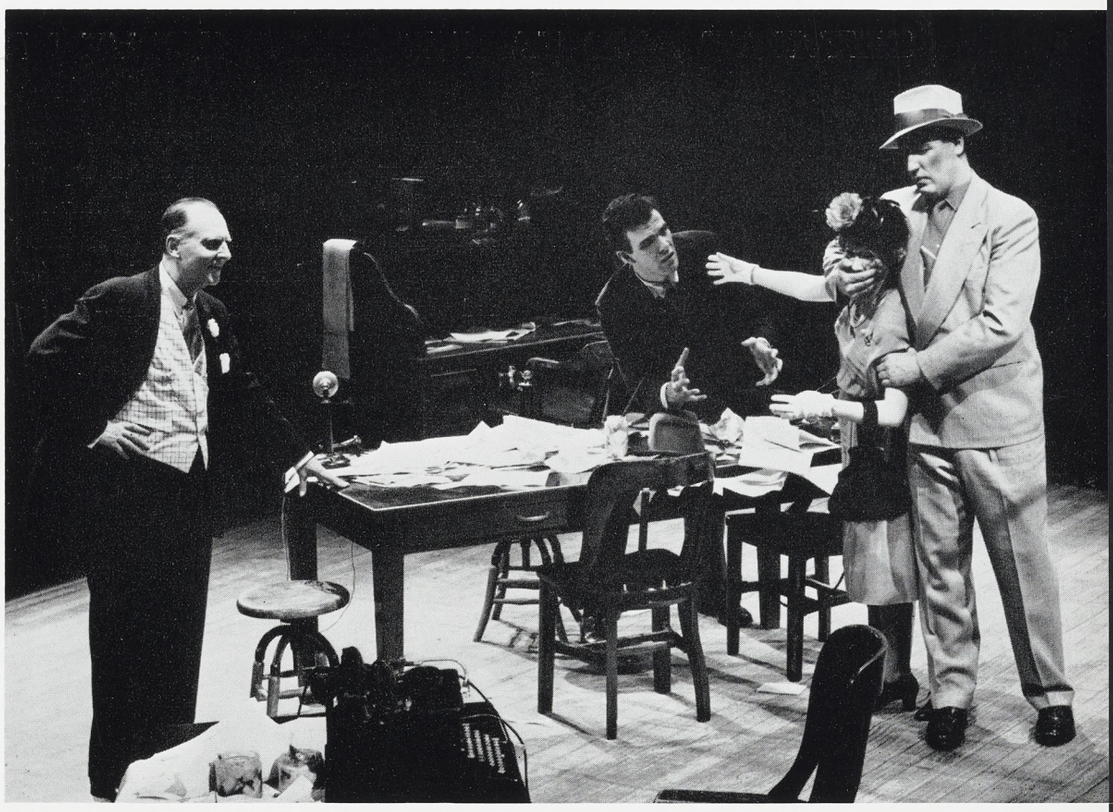

The revenge of the court jester, Rigoleto, for the carryings on of the Duke of Mantua was the theme of the New York City Opera production.

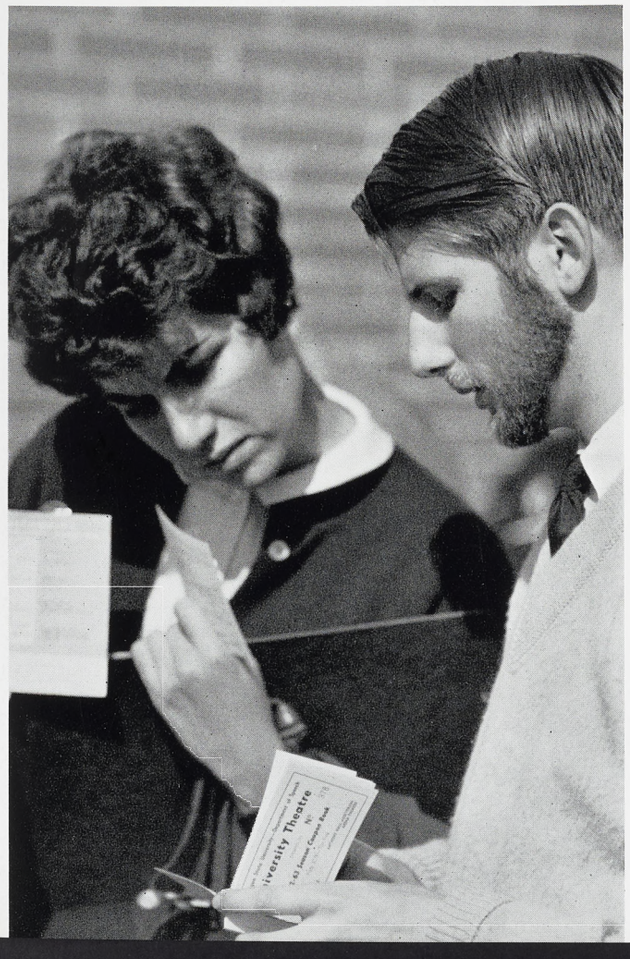

For her role as Meg Brockie, Earlene Bates won the best supporting actress award at the Theta Alpha Phi banquet.

A farce comedy on the newspaper world, "American Dream," opened the Summer Circle season.

Striped umbrellas marked UT booths about campus at which coupon booklets were sold for all productions.

Sell-out crowds at University Theater productions and the improved stage facilities around campus have prompted an extension of UT work. Beginning in the fall UT plays will tour the coed complexes to allow a greater number of students to see the productions.

An increase in Arena productions from three to nine per year will enlarge the opportunity for acting and direction.

Another first is the formation of the Performing Arts Company which will tour various colleges and universities with the French play, Rhinoceros, and Medea, Euripides' classic tragedy.

ENTERTAINING THE ENTIRE CAMPUS AND COMMUNITY

SERVICES AND FACILITIES TO SOLVE PROBLEMS

Michigan State University provides extensive personnel services to assist students in making their educational experience more profitable and satisfying. While the principal function of the University is to provide a suitable intellectual environment for students through classrooms, laboratories, and stimulating teachers, it is recognized that the total development of the individual – personal, social, and physical as well as intellectual – is of equal importance.

The Student Services Building is an all-purpose structure for University student services and organizations.

William Finni, director of Admissions and Scholarships, is responsible for the admissions policy and scholarship presentations.

The information required by an application form involves long hours for prospective students and staff members.

Starr Keesler, past director of Alumni Relations, administered all work with the 80,000 alumni of Michigan State.

SERVICES FOR MSU STUDENTS, PAST AND PRESENT

The Alumni Relations office serves as the liaison agency between the University and its alumni. Its purpose is to foster a feeling of loyalty and interest, to stimulate, organize and direct alumni activities, and to unite them with their University.

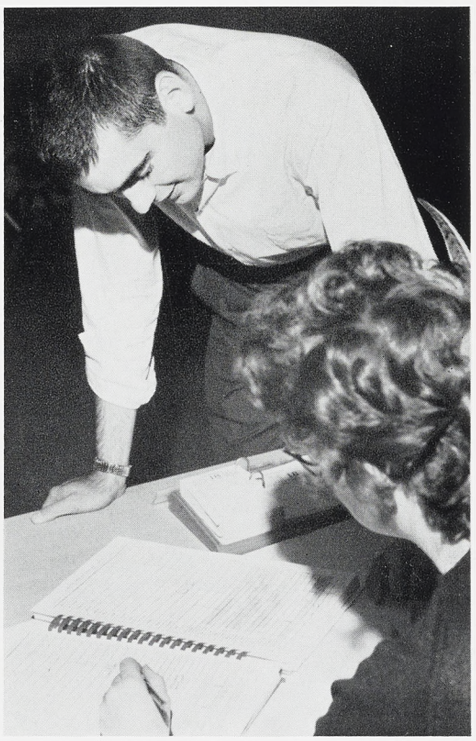

The Counseling Center aids students in making the best possible adjustment to the University. It provides a complete testing service, maintains a file of occupational information and offers educational, vocational and personal counseling to Michigan State and prospective students.

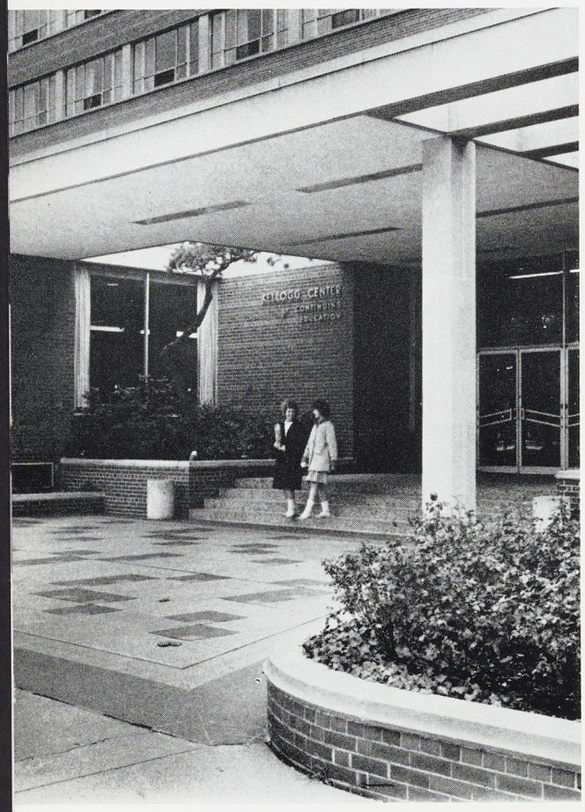

Dr. Pierson of the Counseling Center aids students in several areas with personal advice.

Several tests designed to evaluate various capacities and talents are administered by the trained staff members of the Counseling Center.

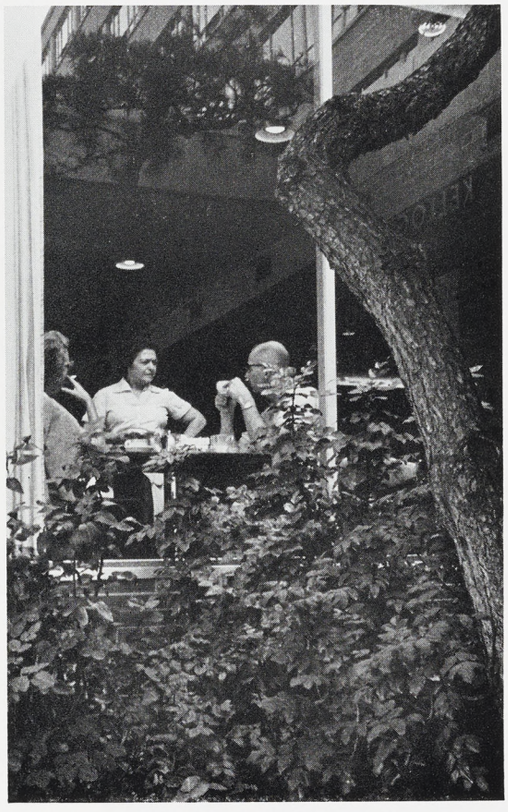

Kellogg Center serves as the focal point of service to the adults of Michigan, the nation and the world in the continuation of learning.

EDUCATION AND INFORMATION FOR STATE, NATION AND WORLD

The continuing education program is a projection of University resources to those not enrolled as students. This program may take the form of courses for credit, conferences, entertainment and cultural offerings, or special educational service projects.

Public relations is an important business of the University. Utilizing various media, the department of Information Services issues material of educational and public service character to the people of the nation.

Planning and organization are the first steps taken in the preparation of publications issued by Information Services.

FACILITIES FOR STUDENTS: HOUSING AND OLIN HEALTH CENTER

As an integral part of the Michigan State program of higher education, student housing is designed to give the student the greatest possible experience in group living, self-discipline, and the development of good taste and social manners. In order that students may share fully in the experience of life in an active academic community, the University has developed one of the finest and largest residence programs in the nation.

Complete medical, surgical and psychiatric service for students and their families and staff members are provided by Olin Health Center. The Center offers free hospital services to patients.

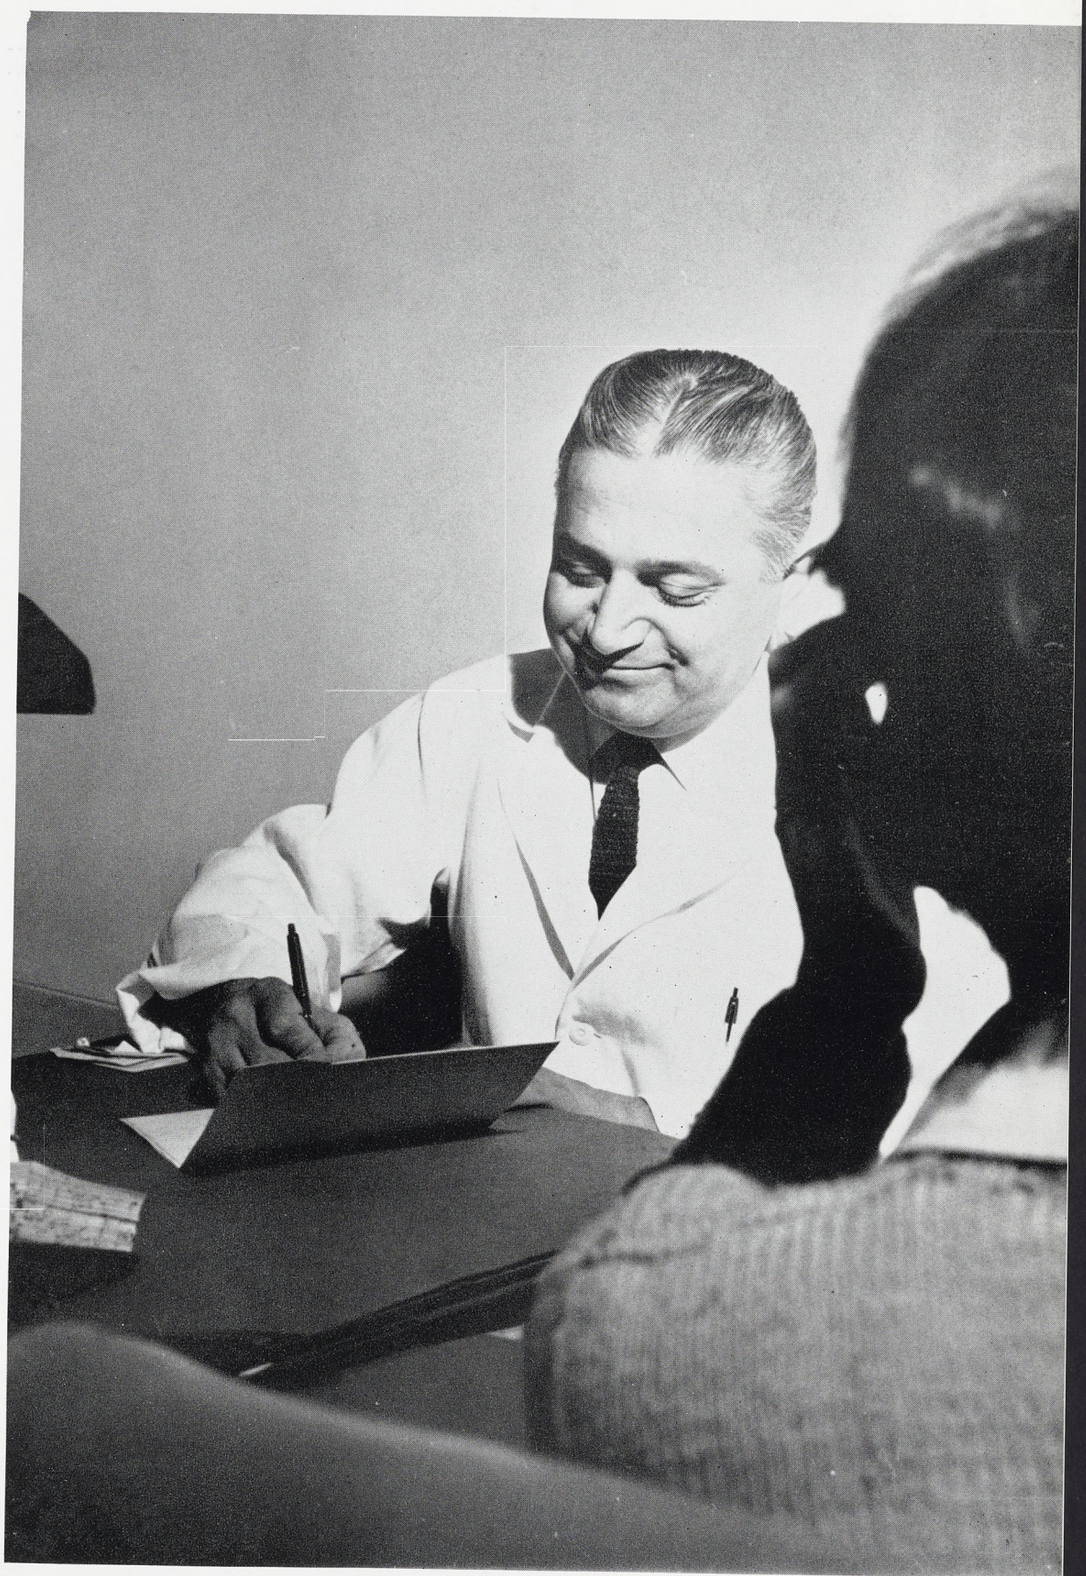

Student housing rests in the capable hands of Director Jack Seibold.

The Married Housing office is notified when a married student is admitted and sends them a housing application.

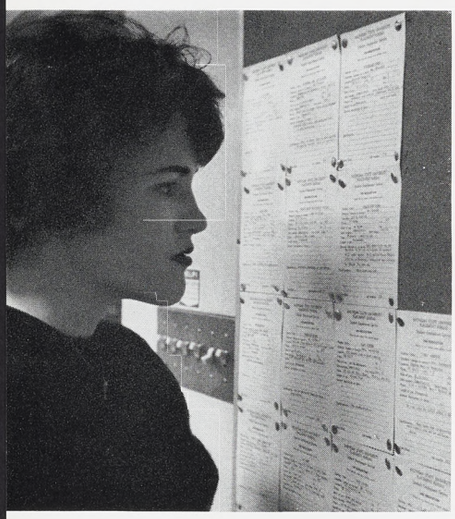

The result of making an appointment may lead to a stay in Olin.

The responsibility for Olin Health Center rests upon Director James S. Feurig.

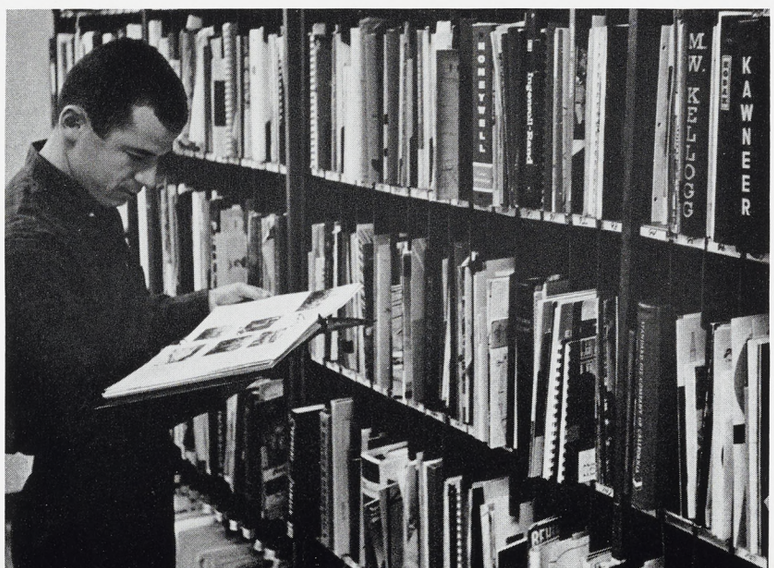

THE WELFARE OF STUDENTS ON CAMPUS AND IN THE FUTURE

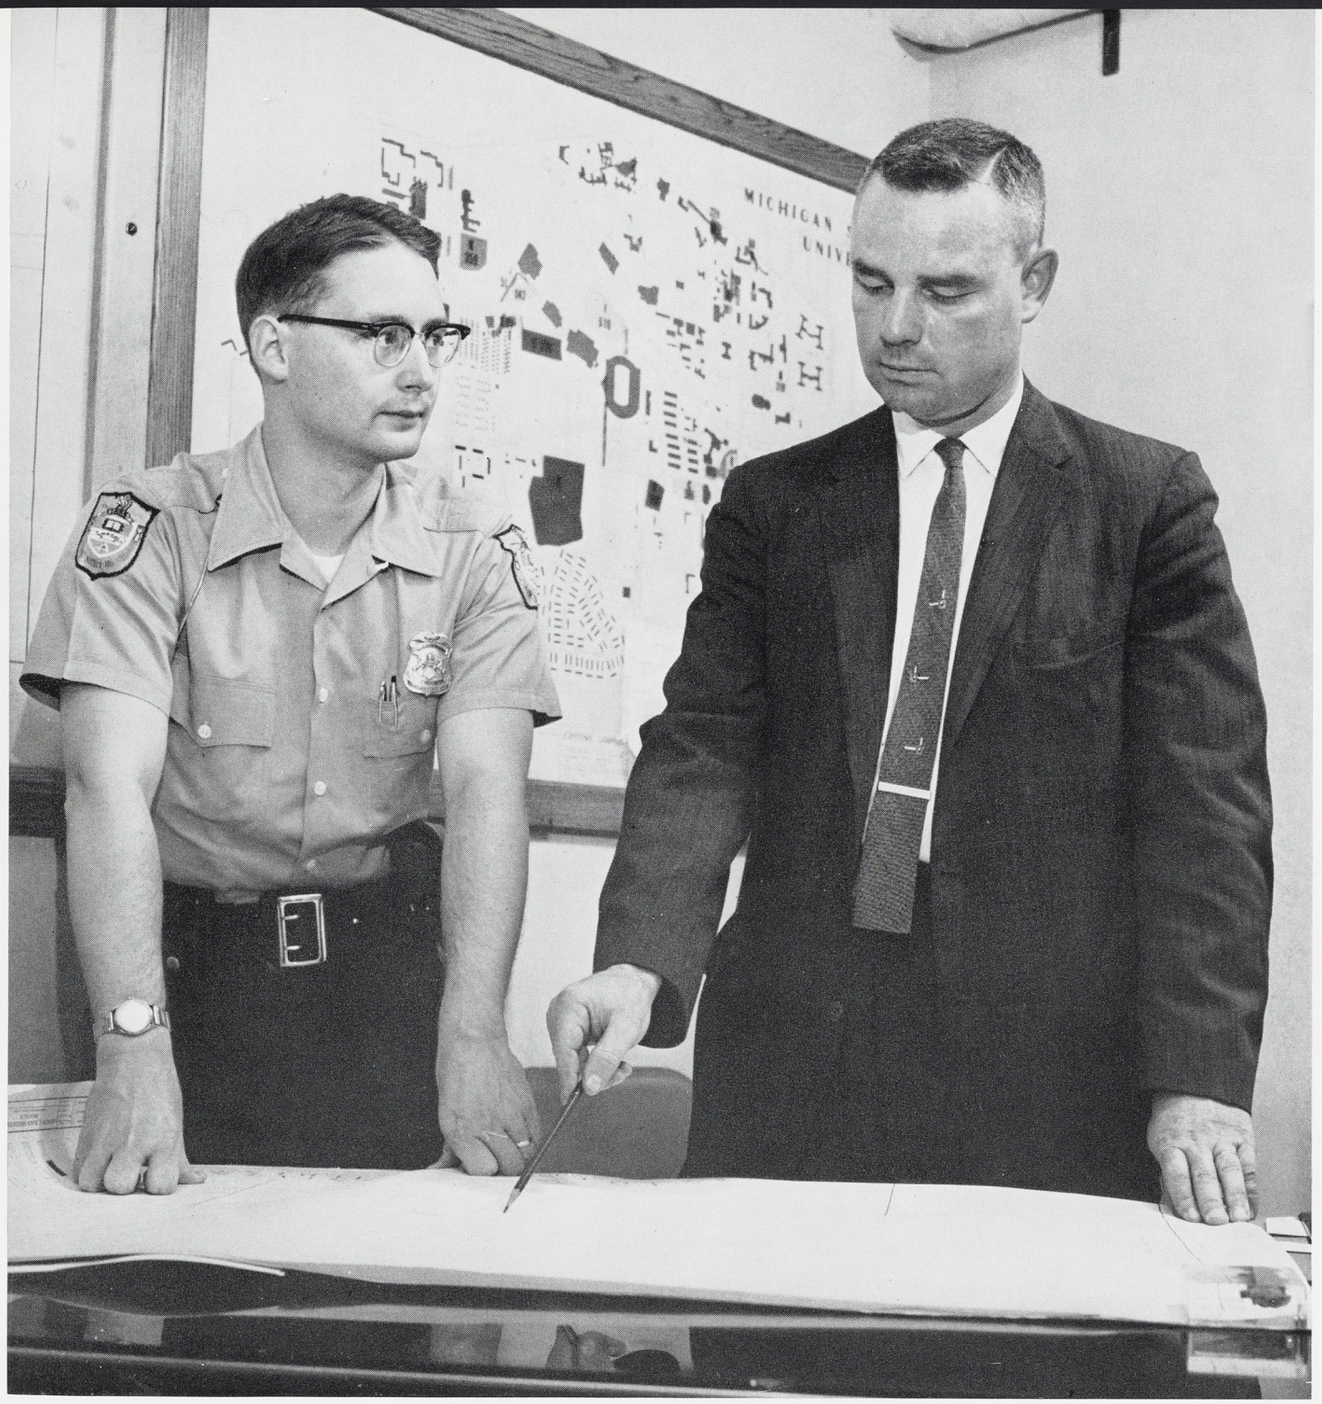

In order to better serve the students, the Placement Bureau keeps an up-to-date list of available jobs and arranges interviews.

A library of job opportunities and possible employers is maintained.

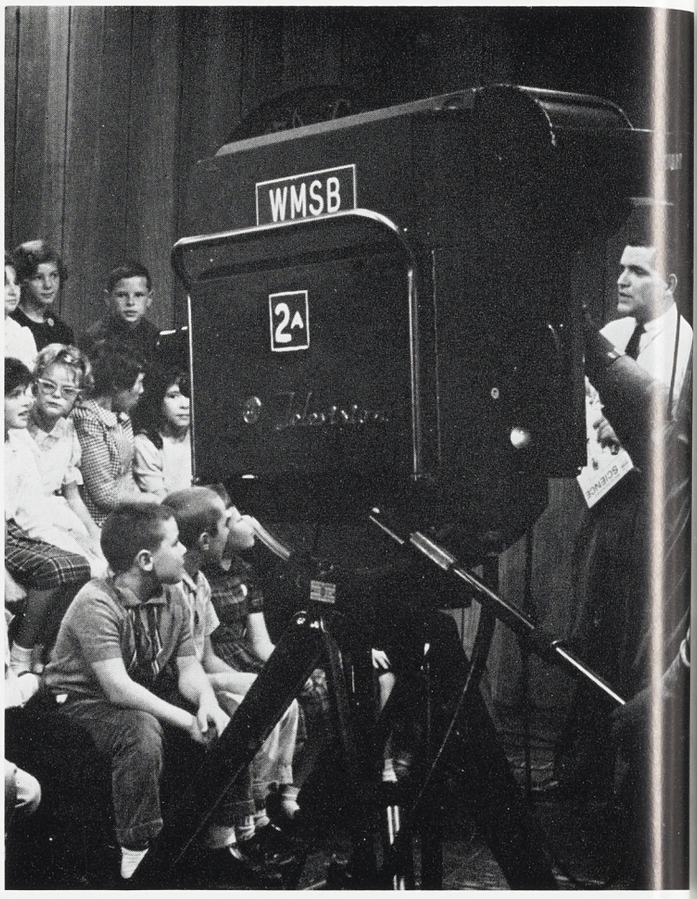

The welfare of everyone on campus is the responsibility of the department of Public Safety under director Richard Bernitt, right, and Lt. Allen H. Andrews.

Job opportunities are solicited from prospective employers and are catalogued by the Placement Bureau. Assistance in gaining part-time work or full employment is given to MSU students, graduating seniors, and alumni through this service.

Public safety is the concern of Director Richard Bernitt and his staff of 24 uniformed, full-time police officers. The Department of Public Safety handles traffic safety, automobile registration, ambulance dispatch, and the general safety of everyone on campus.

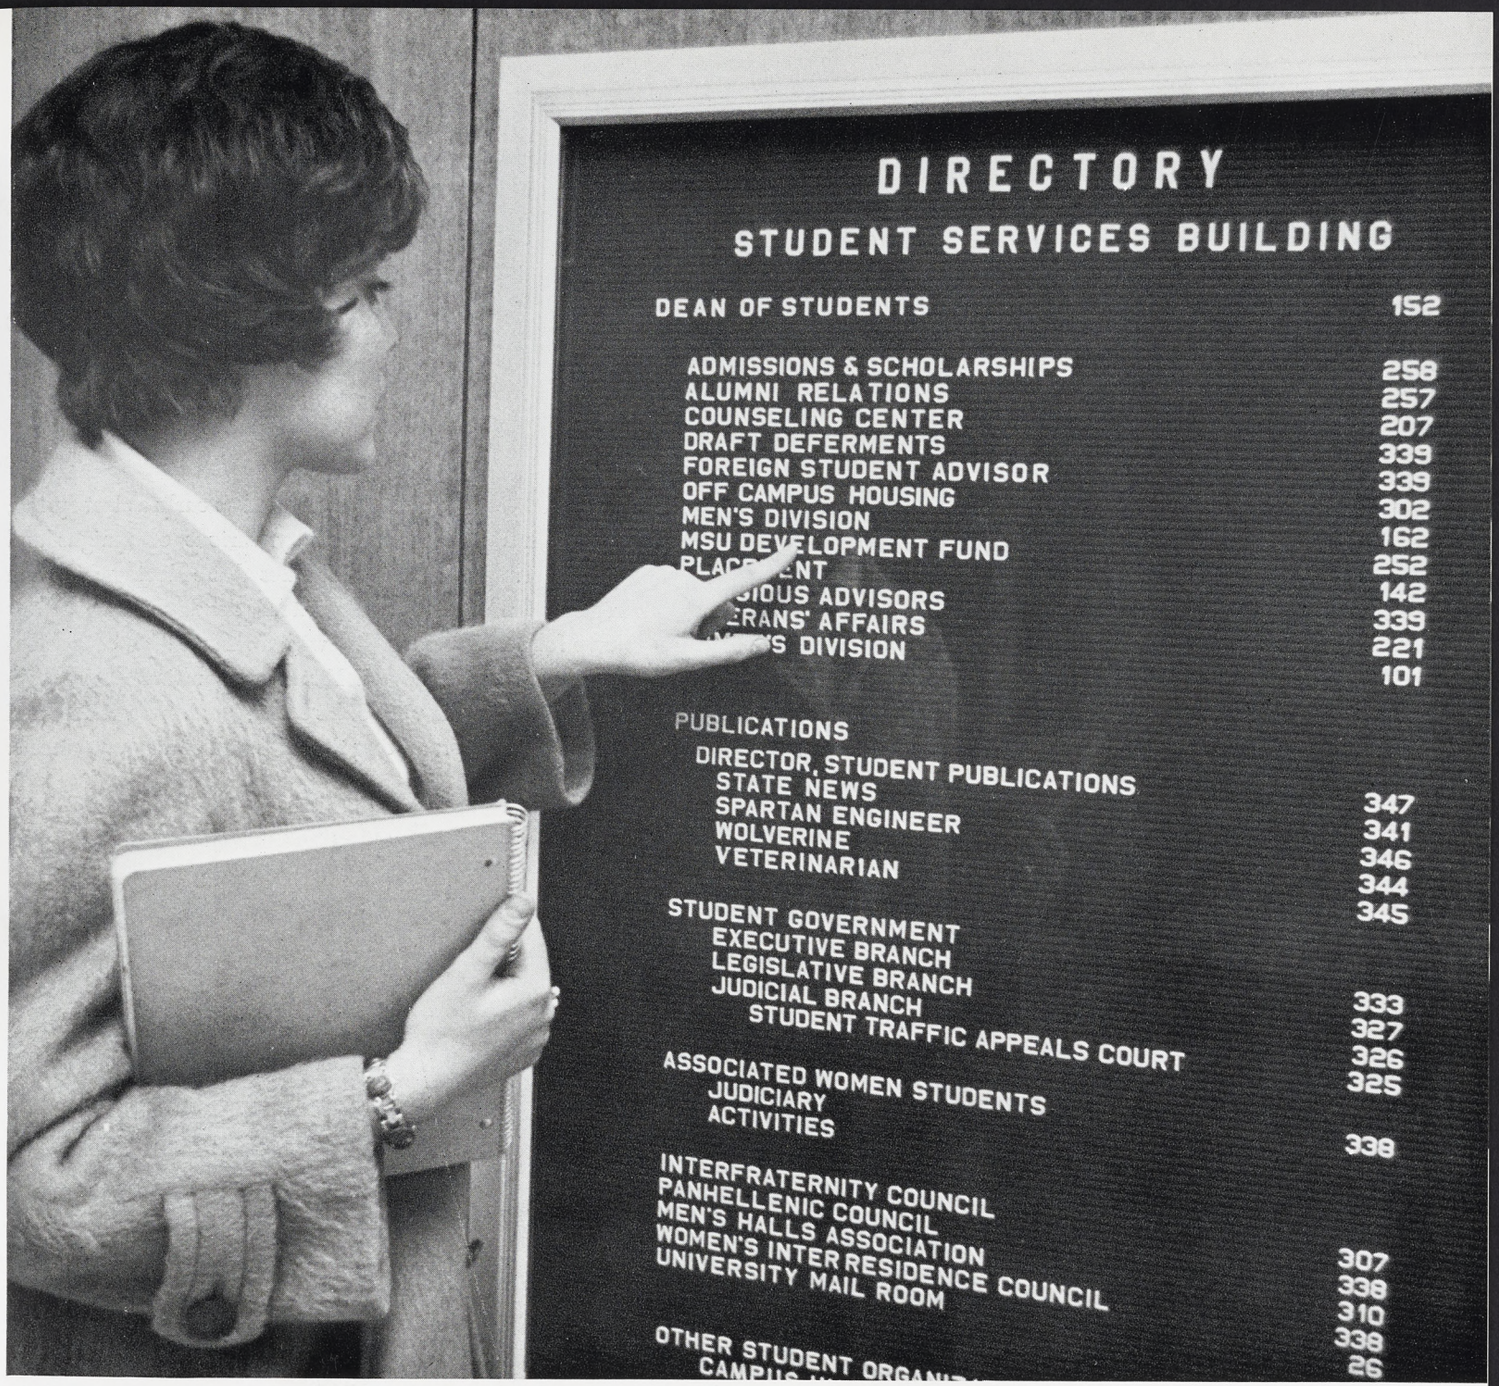

Practical experience in production, performance, programming, and administration are offered by WMSB-TV.

The extensive facilities of WKAR-AM and FM, full-time radio stations which are operated by MSU, provide practical experience in this area.

The lobby directory is a basic inventory of the services offered to students at Michigan State.

STUDENT SERVICES IN COMMUNICATION

Student Services is a broad term which encompasses a wide range of benefits developed over a period of time which exist for the sole purpose of serving the student body. The influence of these organizations may be felt daily with the State News, periodically with the Spartan Engineer or the Veterinarian, or annually with the Wolverine. AUSG and Union Board have a continuous effect upon the student's daily life.

Paperwork and scheduling were two of the responsibilities of the photo editor Jerry Holmes.

THE 1963 WOLVERINE: A PRINTED RECORD OF LIFE AT MSU

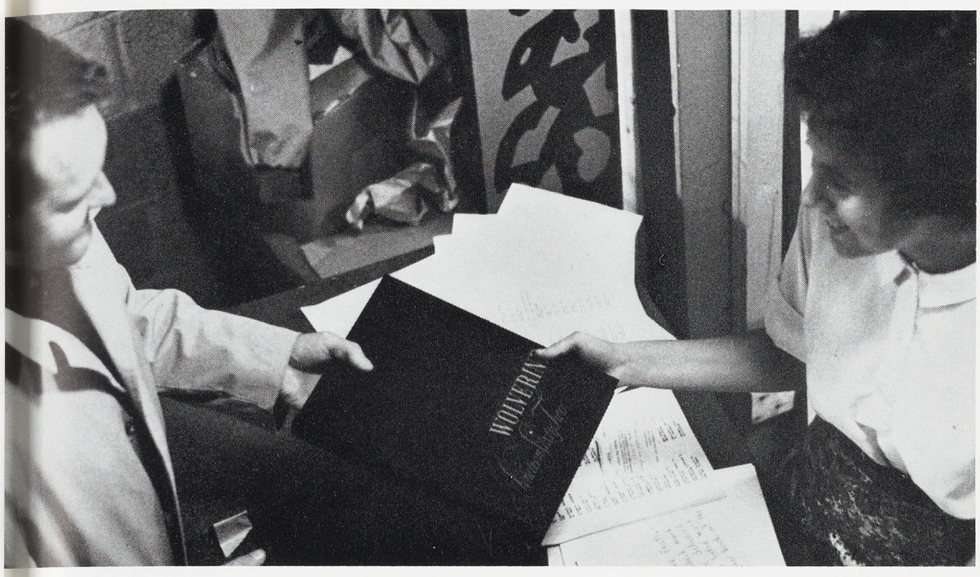

The editorial foundation was laid as early as last spring; a year has passed, marked by various campaigns and deadlines. From the initial sales drive during fall term registration to the final printer's deadline, the months have followed one another with a rise and fall of tension-builders. Editor Lowell Kinney was ultimately responsible for the book, with Sales Managers Minna Reidel and Mike Anikeeff promoting the sales and commercial facets.

Minna Reidel and Mike Anikeeff were responsible for sales and business.

Ann Jarman types the seemingly endless Wolverine copy.

Distribution climaxed a year measured in deadlines

Minna Reidel and Mary Jo McGillivray confer with Editor Lowell Kinney on the progress of the 1963 Wolverine.

Copy editor Michele Powers studies type specimens with Editor Lowell Kinney to complete a section, word by word.

THE ELEMENTS ARE WORDS AND PICTURES IN THE WOLVERINE

A composite view of college living—presented with words and photographs—is the goal of the Wolverine staff. Although a yearbook is carefully planned and discussed months in advance of publication, the pressure on staff members is constant; every page must accurately depict some aspect familiar to the student. Many jobs are integral to such a chronicle, for a 500-page book demands a variety of talents from many people. The result of their work is to be found here in the 1963 Wolverine.

Wolverine photographers spend many long hours in the darkroom.

Structuring order from apparent chaos is the job of Index editor Jeorgi Coplan and her staff.

THE STATE NEWS: CURRENT EVENTS ON CAMPUS

A part of the student's daily ritual is reading the State News. Published every class day by University students under the supervision of Louis Berman, faculty advisor, for the University community, its circulation reaches thousands beyond the campus limits. Although principally a training ground for the advertising and journalism schools, the News also employs students merely interested in the newspaper field. From the State News office, copy and layouts are sent to Wilstaff for typing and then on to Greenville to be printed. The finished product arrives on campus at 5:30 a.m. ready for the circulation crews to deliver.

Editor Ben Burns confers with editorial consultant Louis Berman on State News policy.

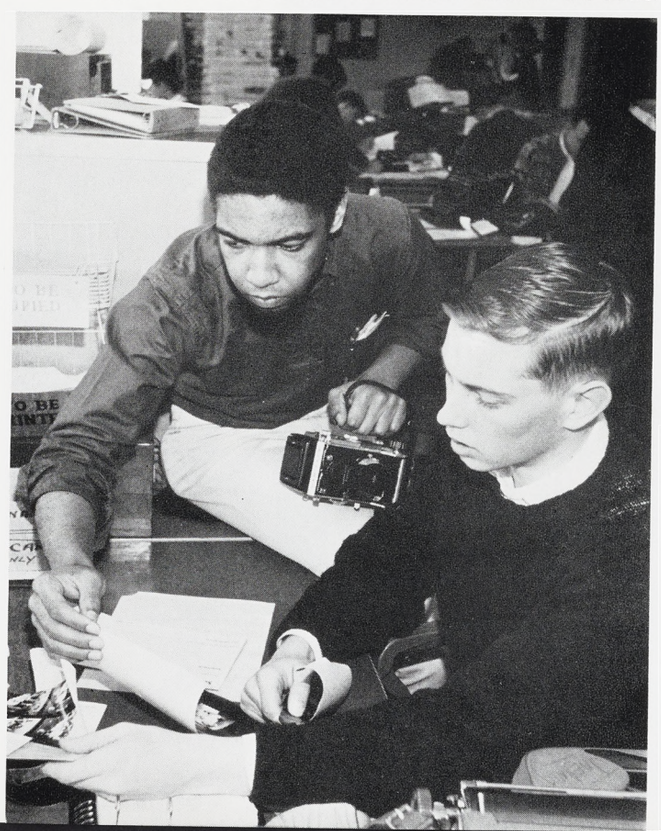

Marleta Bailey, State News Office Manager, plays an integral role in all student work.

Reporters and student editors spend a considerable amount of the week obtaining news pertinent to the student body.

Student life and activities are coordinated with the daily news by Wire editor Bruce Fabricant.

Cancelled ads are clipped daily from the "kill sheet."

Copies of each day's paper are kept on file in the circulation room as handy reference material.

Ads are laid out under the watchful eye of Advertising manager Fred Levine.

Layouts, including the monthly Miss Engineer section, are carefully dummied in before being sent to press.

SPARTAN ENGINEER: A BALANCE OF SOURCES

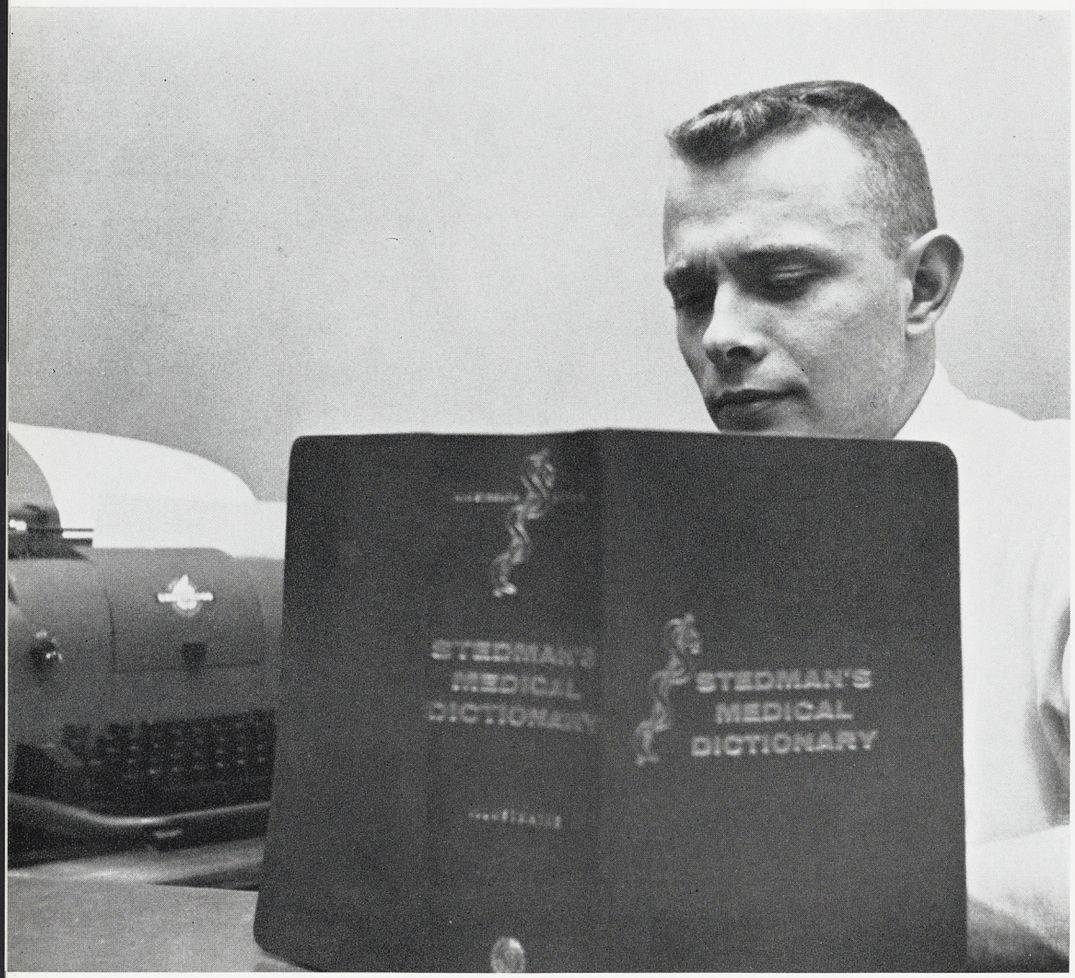

Roberta Huffmaster stuffs magazines to be sent to subscribers, critics, and advertisers.

Under the direction of Editor Paul Adams, and with a change of printing processes, the quality of the Spartan Engineer magazine increased while expenses decreased.

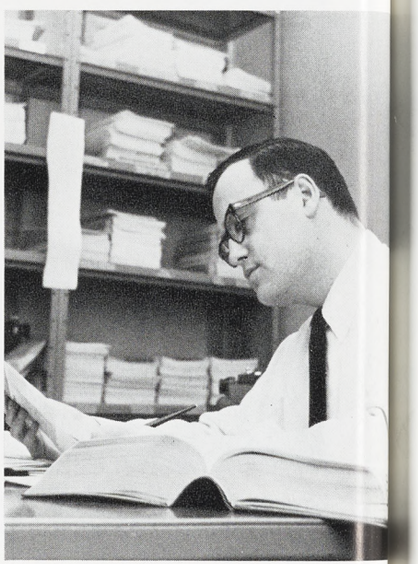

The magazine reports technical information and news of local research projects written by engineering students.

The Spartan Engineer is sold to students and faculty members and is distributed to the national concerns which advertise in it.

Ed Foster uses a medical dictionary to verify the use of an unfamiliar term in rewriting a case study.

Research is the foundation of the MSU Veterinarian.

MSU VETERINARIAN: A RECORD OF PROGRESS

The MSU Veterinarian is the student organ of the College of Veterinary Medicine. The magazine staff, all veterinary medicine majors, publish three issues during the year. Their presentation of veterinary news is designed to keep all those interested in this field informed of recent developments. Contents of this magazine, one of only two technical student publications on campus, is a balance between local and national events.

Loans under $15 are made available to students without interest if they are repaid within three weeks.

RESPONSIBILITY: KEY TO STUDENT GOVERNMENT

All-University Student Government has had a proud and colorful past. On March 28, 1908, the student body passed the following resolution: "For the future settlement of all class matters and the maintenance of the college traditions and customs, a 'Student Council' shall be formed." As the University has grown in the past 50 years, AUSG has developed into one of the three best student government structures in the nation, with the responsibility of coordinating campus organizations and serving as the voice of the students.

The personnel department, under Director Jim Corey, insures the smooth running of AUSG.

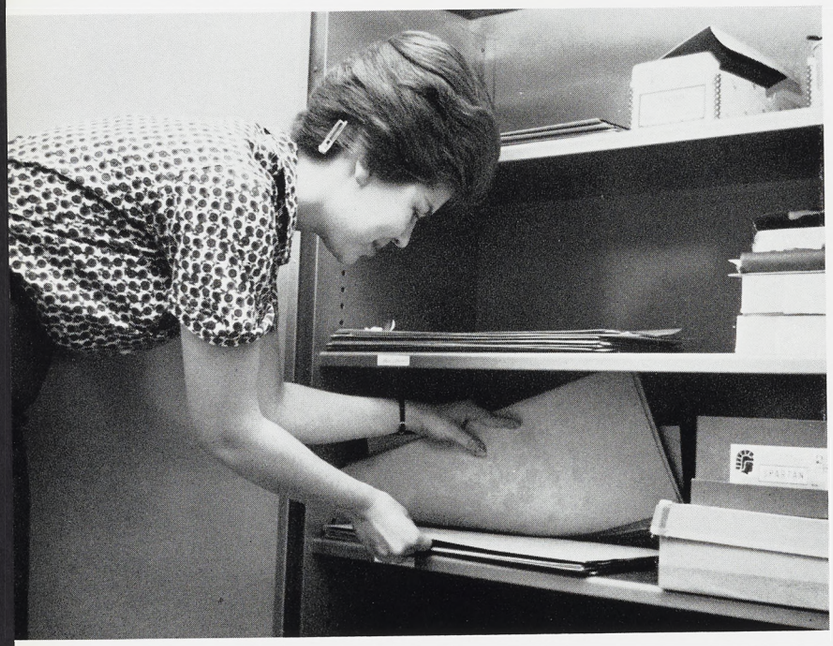

A mimeographing machine and trained operators are provided by AUSG as a service to student organizations.

CONCRETE SERVICES FOR THE STUDENT BODY

AUSG President Bob Howard cleared out his office after being relieved.

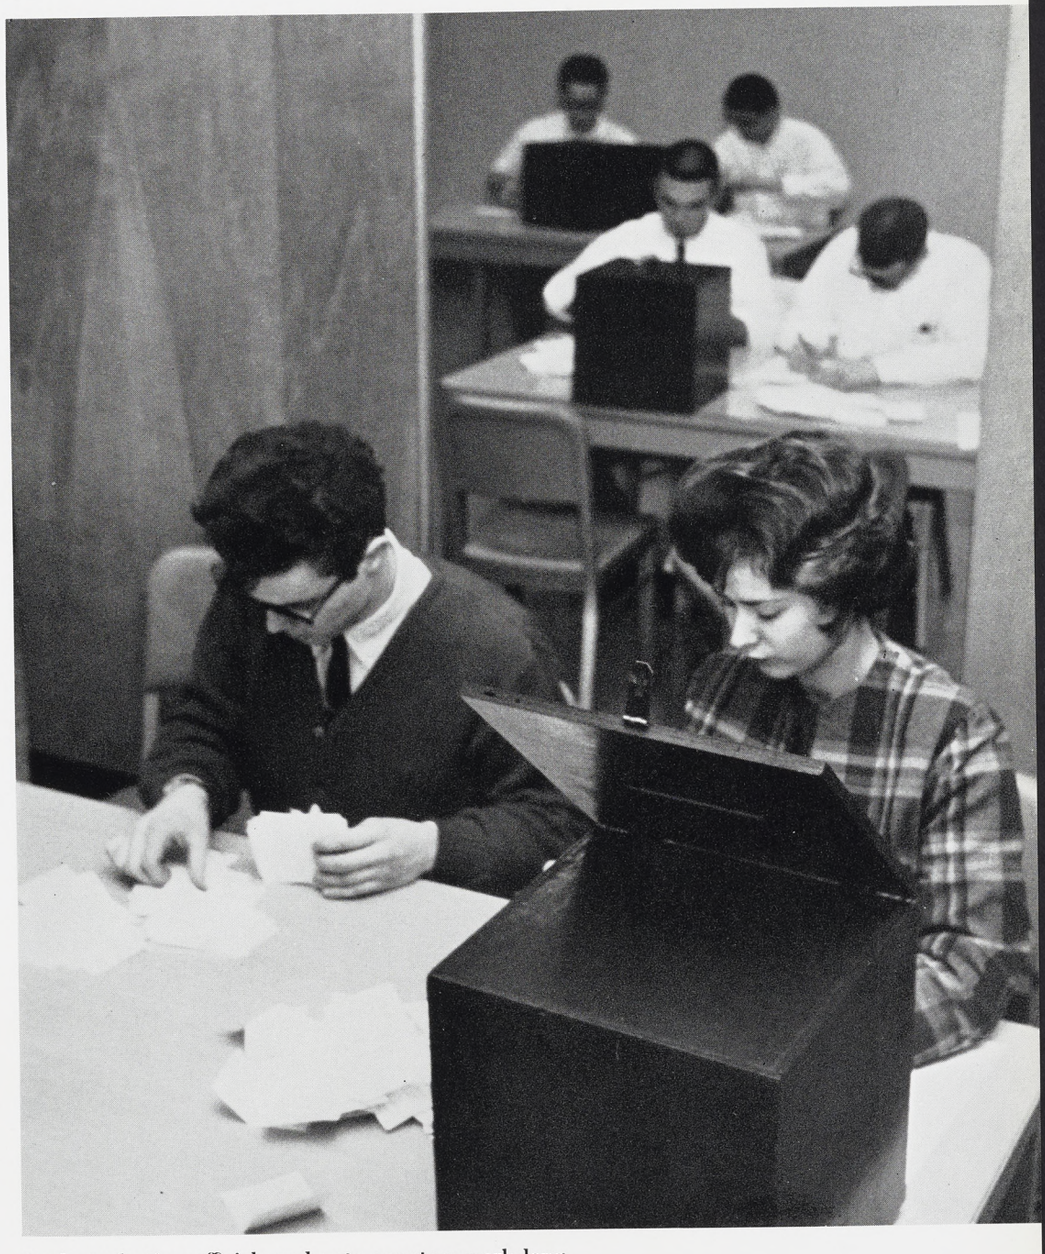

A student mimeographing operator checks stencils before running off the last order of the day.

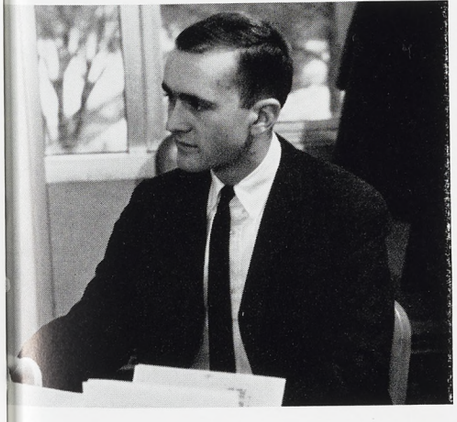

AUSG is designed by and for the students. Its services may affect a single individual or the entire student body. In any of its branches – Legislative, Executive, or Judicial – the opportunity to learn about people, to work closely with faculty members, and to develop one's full potential is a rewarding experience. AUSG plays a major role in the process of educating the student in the democratic principle upon which the university and the nation are founded.

Student election officials and vote counters work long into the night tabulating the returns of the day's race for Student Government positions.

Congress speaker Jim Barnes assumed the vacated AUSG presidential post.

STUDENT-UNION COORDINATION THROUGH UNION BOARD

The purpose of Union Board is generally to assure optimum use of the facilities of the Union Building as to sponsor any worthwhile activity in the building appropriate to a university campus. As one of the largest organizations on campus, it offers many services to the student body, including dances, bridge instruction and tournaments, football movies, Last Chance lectures, European flights, films, art and music rooms, the Union Board Desk, building decorations, and the special programs presented during Union Board Week.

Weekly all-University dances sponsored by Union Board provide an inexpensive evening for students.

A bridge tournament and lessons rank high in the calendar of UB activities.

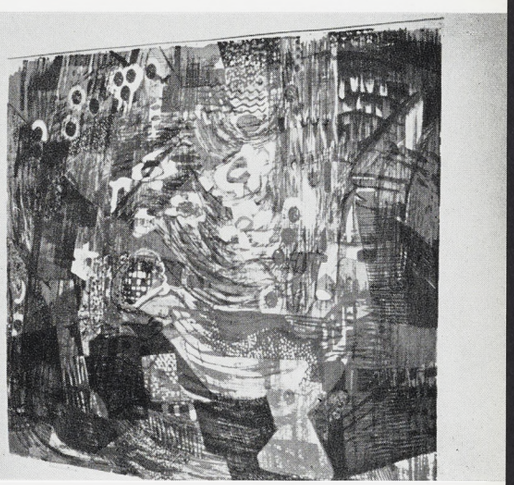

New fashions for both men and women are modelled at the Style Show, a feature of Union Board Week.

A coed art critic ponders a modern painting displayed at the Union Board art show.

The art of silk screening can be a messy process but the colorful signs that result make it worthwhile.

DR. JOHN A. HANNAH,
PRESIDENT

The academic organization of the eleven colleges is a beginning for the Administration. President John A. Hannah, appointed by the Board of Trustees, must have a staff of competent persons to take charge of and care for the many offices and units essential to the operation of a great university. The objective of these dedicated individuals is to form a comprehensive and cohesive unit to carry out the philosophy of the University. This philosophy is reflected in the University's aims and purposes: to provide an education to fit the times for the young men and women who can qualify to enroll here; to disseminate and advance knowledge in the fields of learning in which programs of instruction and research are maintained; to extend the services of the University to the people of the state, nation, and world.

MRS. JOHN A. HANNAH

BOARD OF TRUSTEES: Jacweir Breslin; Phillip J. May; Don Stevens; Connor D. Smith; Pres. John A. Hannah; Jan B. Vanderploeg; C. Allen Harlan; Frank Merriman; Warren M. Huff.

THE ADMINISTRATION PROVIDED DYNAMIC LEADERSHIP

In the past academic year, the Administration undertook the promulgation of the Educational Development Program, the result of an intensive study of the future needs of the University. The Administration suffered a great loss in early 1963 with the sudden death of Dr. Clifford Erickson, provost, whose capable and dynamic leadership aided in the growth and progress of the University. Dr. Erickson had a deep concern with the future of the University and the Educational Development Program, the product of Dr. Hannah and former Provost Dr. Paul A. Miller.

CHAPTER TWO

Academic Life in a "Multiversity" Program Must Include All of Those Facets in and Outside of the Actual Classroom

The inclusion of an organization as complex and diversified as Michigan State under the heading of "university" is a misnomer. Within the complex of the eleven colleges are numerous departments which, in many instances, assume the role of a college and to some extent the "university" toward the student. Thus, in aiding students to attain proficiency in general education and specialized fields, to discover their abilities, interests, needs and goals, and to assume responsibilities for individual growth and development, the components of the major institution become, in effect, a "multiversity."

Within the physical academic facilities provided, there are over 1,600 members of the instructional faculty, each having attained a degree of knowledge necessary to educate within his area of learning. These instructional faculty members serve as the major student-faculty personal contacts and become an important link in the communication system.

The excellence of this facility is evidenced by the position of prominence attained by MSU throughout the world. The "Honors College" program, originated at MSU for superior students, has become a model for similar programs at other universities. The largest teacher-training program in the nation, offered by the College of Education, incorporates a unique off-campus student-teaching program which has developed as an effective job placement device. The language-learning laboratory arrangement now enables a student to do two years of language work in one year. The Federal Bureau of Investigation has rated the School of Police Administration as the finest in the country. The Department of Political Science, the College of Agriculture, the College of Veterinary Medicine, and the College of Home Economics, are among others who enjoy similar ratings.

Besides the rigorous program of undergraduate education, ten colleges are authorized to give advanced degrees covering 275 fields of study. Both master's and doctor's degrees are offered by more than 70 college departments.

College and department libraries offer sanctums of specialized study.

President Hannah and students meet informally through the Mason Hall administration-faculty dinner guest policy.

STUDENT-FACULTY NON-ACADEMIC RELATIONS LEND CREDENCE TO AN EDUCATIONAL PHILOSOPHY

Though students and faculty must of necessity lead a private life, much of the non-academic activity involving each group is integrated with the other. Both groups strive for personal goals but also work toward furthering the goals of the University, through which the two groups are inter-related. Many formal relationships exist, such as joint committees and boards for student publications, the library, and all-university policy, but perhaps more important is the strong informal relationship between the students and the faculty and administration at Michigan State.

The comforts of home and a new text book occupy an "off duty" evening of ATL instructor David Weeks.

Many faculty and administrative officials devote extra time and energy toward furthering the relationship between the student and the faculty member. Besides the facilities provided to aid students with their academic and personal problems, members of college and departmental staffs offer their services for counseling and advising in areas where they might be of help to the student. This inter-relationship becomes part and parcel of the dynamic community of student, faculty and administration at MSU.

The "Open Door Policy" of administrators such as Dean of Women Frances H. Delisle enhance student-faculty communication.

Students visit the apartment of Donald Adams, men's head advisor, in co-ed Case Hall.

STUDIES, ALONE OR IN GROUPS, BECOME AN IMPORTANT SEGMENT OF LIFE IN THE UNIVERSITY COMMUNITY.

From an all night cram session with a roommate to the quiet solitude of a morning in the library garden, studies come in various ways, shapes and times. Each hour spent at a lecture in Berkey or Bessey usually denotes two additional hours pouring over the books evenings or on weekends. Time and place are not as essential as the ability to concentrate: some find it worthwhile to read next to a blaring jukebox in the Union; others need the quiet facilities offered by the library.

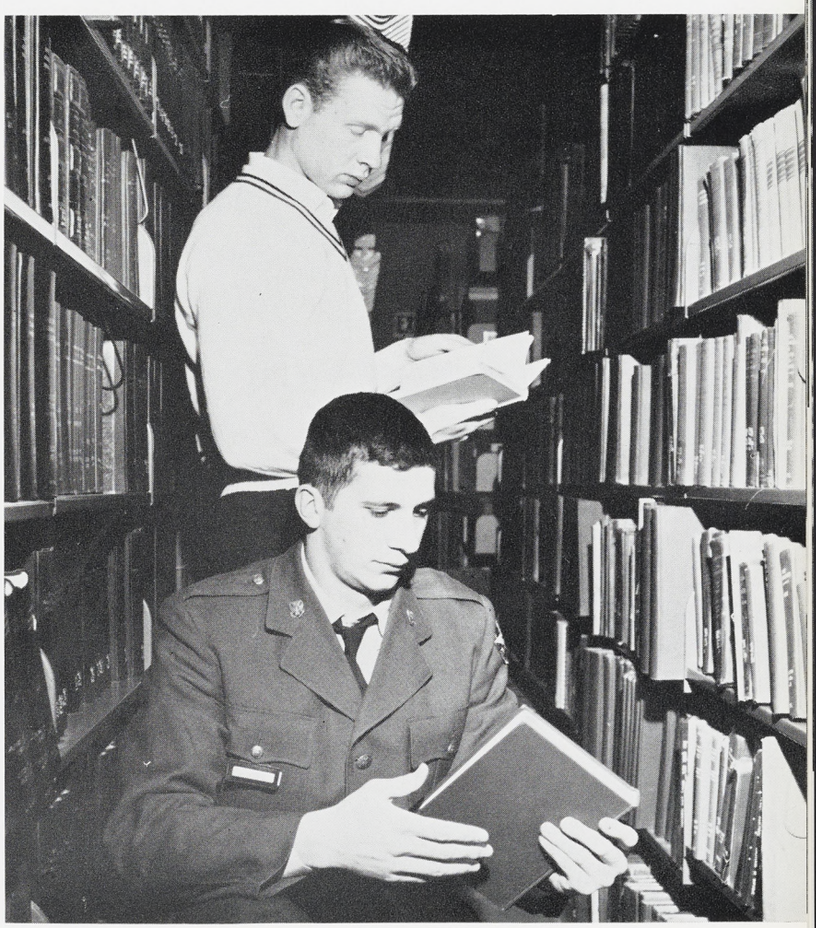

Faculty members, too, must spend much of their non-classroom time studying as Herbert Josephs, foreign language instructor, does.

Students soon learn to integrate social and academic activities and the grills become the center of studiers and study breakers.

Though the University-provided study facilities are extensive and include the main library, college and departmental libraries, residence hall study rooms, and, at exam time, the residence hall dining rooms, many students still prefer the grills, river banks, and crowded stairwells for studying. By the time students become seniors and are graduated, most have formed study patterns which become an integral part of their academic and social living. For some this pattern is a leisurely, established pattern involving each day of the ten week term; for others it has remained a spastic pattern of cram sessions taking place before each quiz and major exam; for all, it has become a necessity for living and growing through four years of university life.

The library stacks become a popular and sometimes congested area prior to final exams and deadlines on term papers.

Spring empties the library study facilities.

Texts serve a practical use.

MOST STUDENTS FIND STUDYING MORE THAN A NECESSARY EVIL.

Studying is a part of the learning process which might at first have a negative appeal for a student but, after several terms to organize and plan for studies and with the coming of spring, many become extremely conscious of the aesthetic values involved. The soccer and lacrosse fields become havens for sun-worshippers with texts tucked between coke cups and transistor radios. The outdoor pool appears to have as many volumes as the library and the library as much elbow room as the outdoor pool in January.

The outdoor pool provides an atmosphere conducive to the beauty of learning.

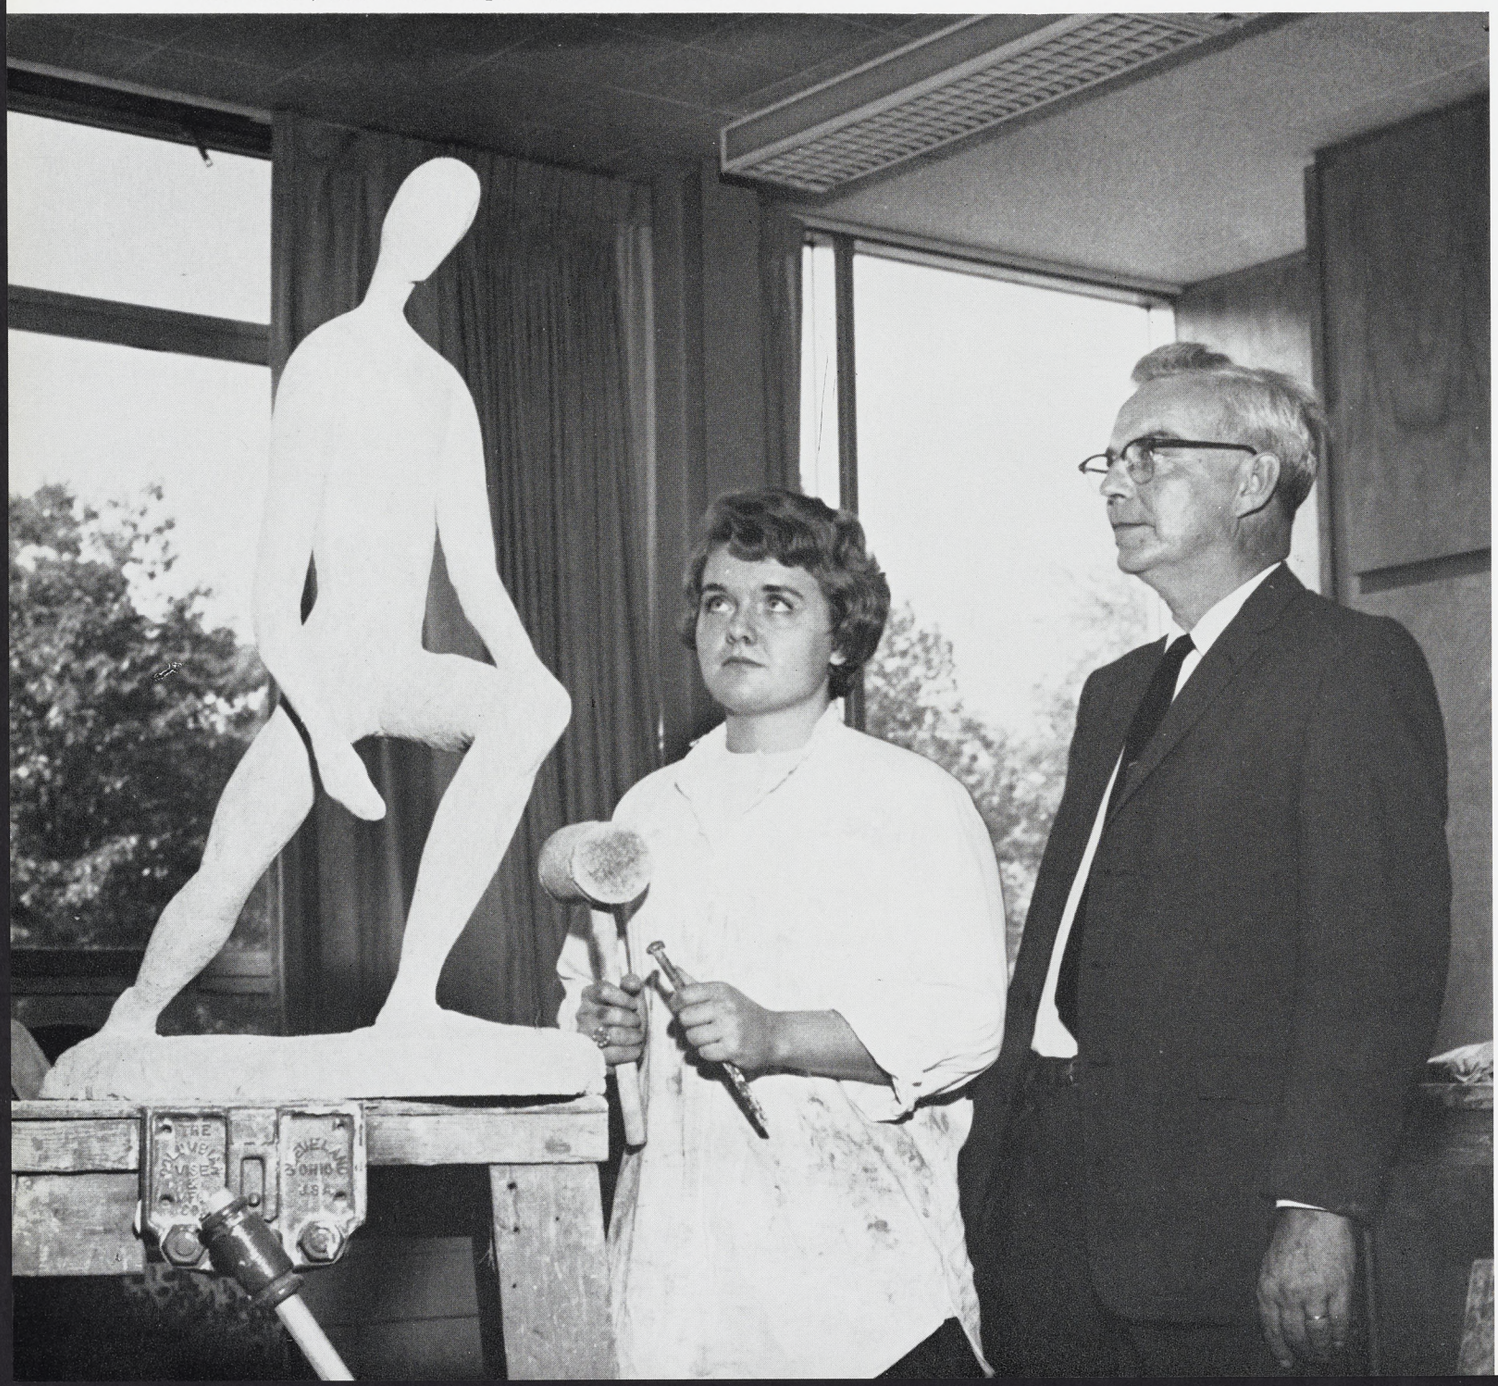

Students initiative toward group study on a co-ed basis heralds the coming of spring to the campus.

COLLEGES ARE PROVING GROUNDS FOR MENTAL SKILLS

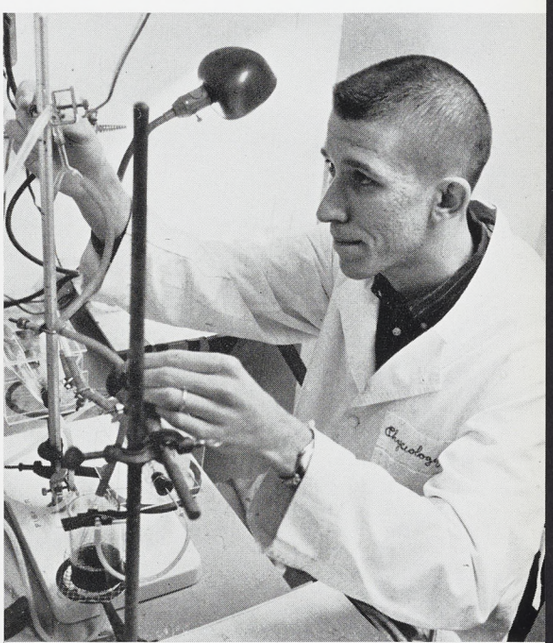

Inherent in the "multiversity" atmosphere are the independent attributes of the eleven colleges constituting Michigan State. These colleges offer areas of learning from the very technical skills to highly theoretical applications in fields involving everything from the economics of weekly grocery-shopping to nuclear physics and thermodynamics. Part and parcel of each college area is an increased emphasis on research and the responsibility of the student toward his own education, a concept of President Hannah's Seven Point Program.

Students and faculty often find the informality of summer classes offer additional opportunities for communication.

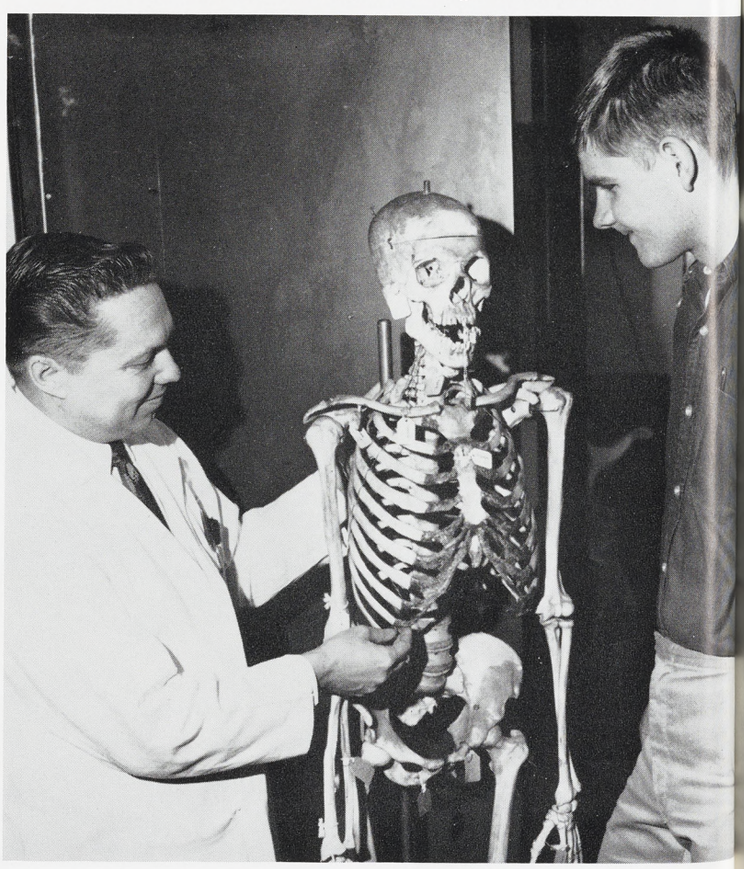

EDWIN A. CARLIN, DEAN

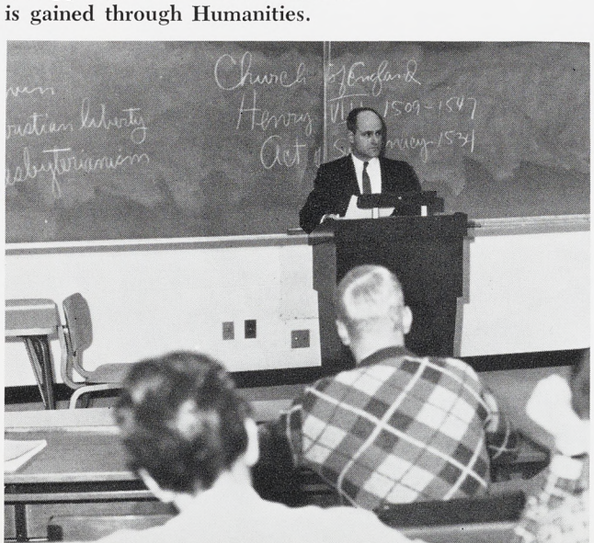

The basic purpose of the University College is to provide for each student, regardless of his major field or vocational aspirations, a common core of rigorous courses in general education. General education in the University College embraces those fundamental areas of knowledge which should be the common possession of all educated men and women – wholly apart from the training provided by the specialized disciplines. This program provides student with a high degree of flexibility in selecting a field of specialization.

Natural Science offers a basic knowledge of fundamentals.

Freshmen first learn to use the library through their work in American Thought and Language.

An appreciation of Western culture is gained through Humanities.

Through its required courses, University College seeks to develop in the student an increased skill and sensitivity in the areas of composition and reading, an enlarged knowledge and appreciation of Western culture, both European and American, and a deeper understanding of the broad principles and practical applications of the natural and social sciences.

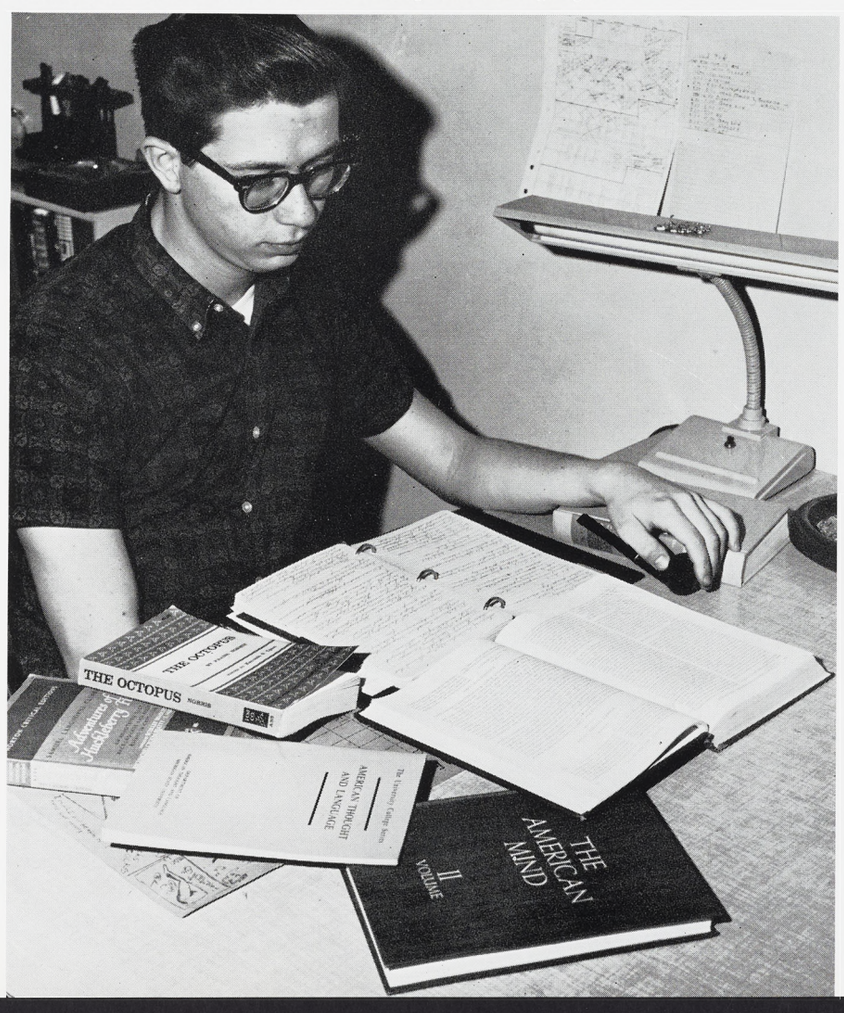

By paying attention to both the content of American thought and the manner of its expression, American Thought and Language endeavors to make the student aware of the role which language plays in a free society. Natural Science requires the student to employ the methods of science in dealing with facts and concepts, bringing him closer to the operations and the philosophy of science. Humanities is the study of man as a unique, creative being through his most distinguished and most enduring achievements. Analytical tools and concepts of Social Science are applied to problems in modern mass society.

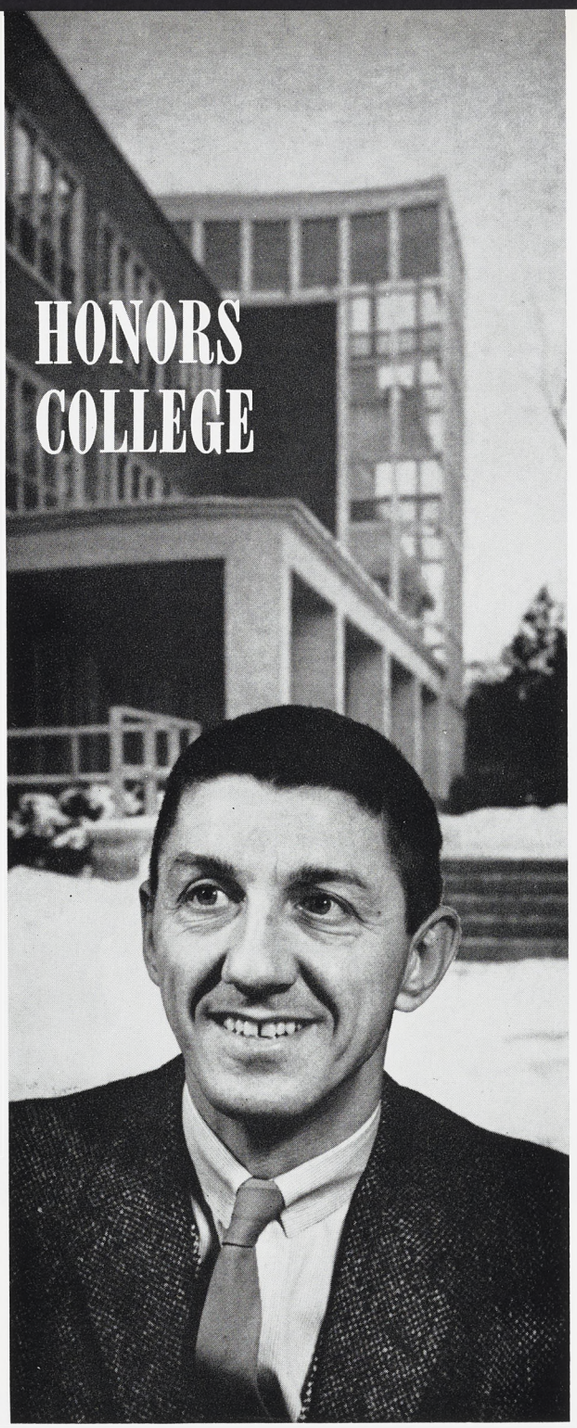

Practical experience in the lab is basic to Natural Science.

Readings in American literature are the basis for study in American civilization in American Thought and Language.

HONORS COLLEGE

STANLEY J. IDZERDA,
DIRECTOR

Established at Michigan State in 1957, the Honors College program strives "to provide a situation which makes certain that students of high ability are constantly challenged by the most advanced work for which each is ready." The program achieves its goal by affording superior students certain privileges which allow them a great deal of flexibility in both their curriculum and their extra-curricular activities.

Honors College students plan their curriculum to suit their own particular needs. Students may waive requirements and prerequisites, register on the first day of registration, enroll in honors sections which aim at a more rigorous examination of the subject, and pursue independent study or research with faculty members. Students also are afforded graduate student library privileges and the use of a lounge for informal discussion and relaxation.

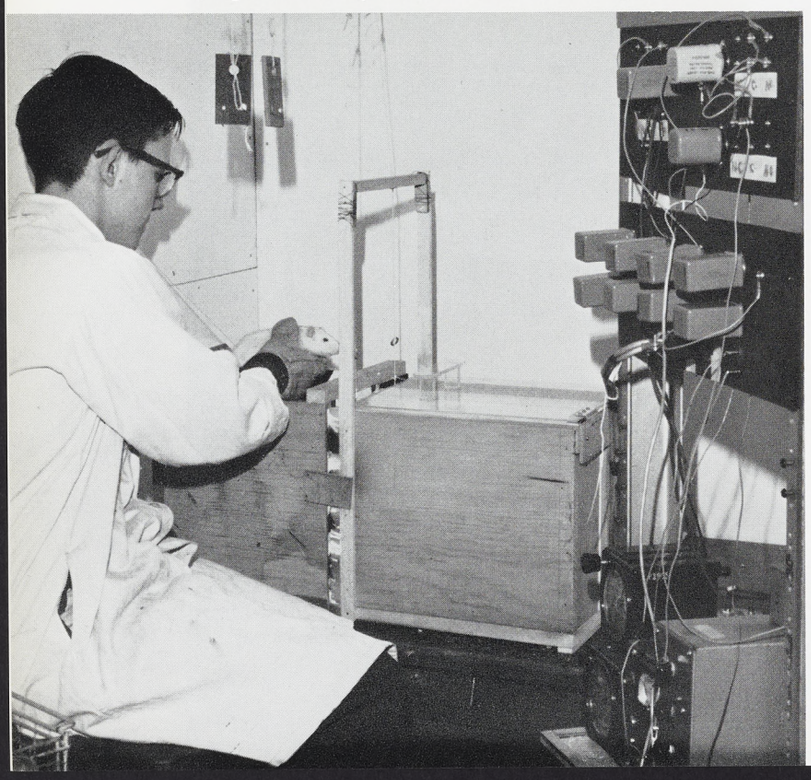

Research in the student's field of interest is an opportunity afforded to members.

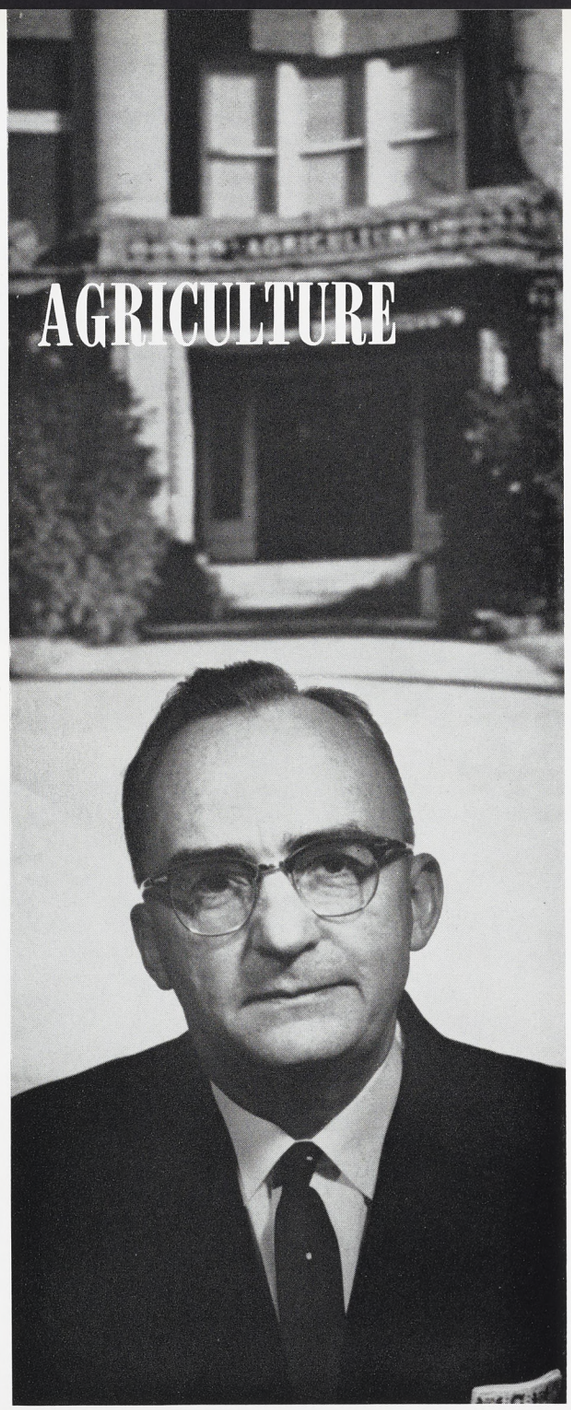

The Provost Lectures series is a branch of the Honors College available to all students.

Independent study is basic to Honors College students.

The Honors College was created to encourage the development and achievement of all undergraduate students of superior academic ability. All normal requirements for graduation, other than the total number of credits, may be waived. Working closely with his faculty advisor, the student is allowed to plan a program which will conform to his special talents. The program undertaken by the Honors College student may include independent study with faculty guidance, the waiving of prerequisites for advanced or graduate courses, the granting of credit in some courses by special examination, and the privilege of enrolling in special honors seminars designed for students of superior ability.

Established in 1855, the College of Agriculture is the oldest division of Michigan State University and the oldest agricultural college of its kind in the nation. This College offers many opportunities for young people to prepare themselves for a future in the broad fields of agriculture and conservation. The programs of the College are designed to give the student an education in line with the changes which have taken place in these fields. Scientific training is emphasized because modern agriculture and conservation have been brought to their present high level of development through the application of scientific knowledge and principles.

THOMAS K. COWDEN,
DEAN

A large quantity of printed information is sent to Michigan farmers through the active extension program.

The educational programs of the College of Agriculture have been developed to encompass the total education of its students. It aims to give the student an opportunity to develop to his maximum capacity as an individual. Through work in the classroom and practical experimentation, it gives a fundamental understanding of the basic physical, biological and social sciences which are applied to agriculture and conservation. Broad educational experience is guaranteed in the courses offered by the University College and by those within the College itself. The student is provided with the technical knowledge required for specialization in some phase of agriculture or conservation.

The scientific approach to farming, in both the classroom and in field work, is now utilized nationally. During the century of its existence, this pioneer has gained recognition and eminence.

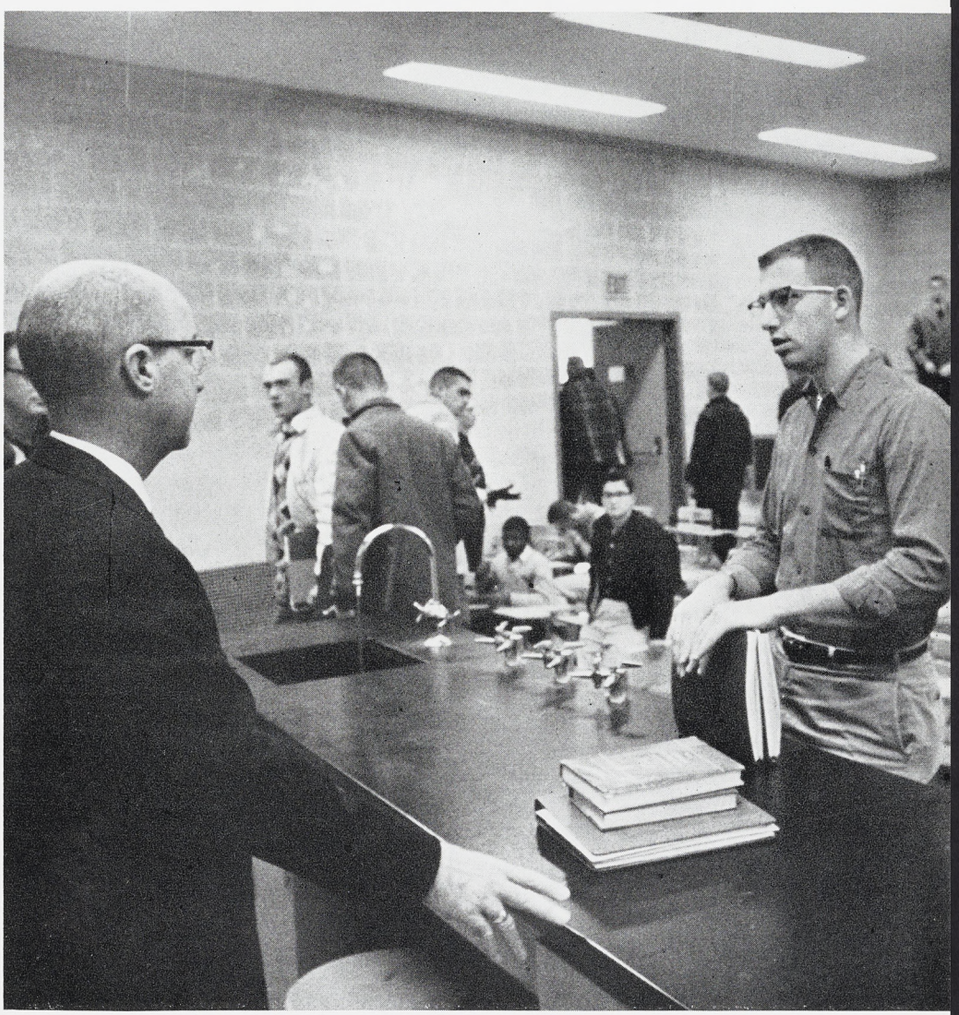

Practical experimentation in the laboratory or on a field trip is a medium through which the knowledge is gained that serves as the basis for scientific agriculture and conservation.

BUSINESS and PUBLIC SERVICE

ALFRED L. SEELYE,
DEAN

With the breakdown of colleges in July, the name of the College of Business and Public Service was changed to the College of Business. The departments included in the present college are Accounting and Financial Administration, Business Services, Marketing and Transportation Administration, Personnel and Production Administration and Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management. Business students receive a fundamental grounding in the principles, laws, and theories that lie at the heart of each of these subject areas and then proceed with application in specific programs of study.

COMMUNICATION ARTS

One of the newest and smallest at State, the College of Communication Arts offers an array of possible majors to the student. The College encompasses the departments of journalism, advertising, television, radio and film, speech and the general communication arts.

Each department of the College, headed by Dean Fred S. Siebert, provides a broad background in the social sciences, literature and science. Its purpose is to provide educational for and in communications.

Journalism majors can often be found loading a camera for press photography, interviewing for a reporting class, or rushing to meet a deadline for one of the campus publications. Advertising majors are also familiar with deadlines, pressure and worry.

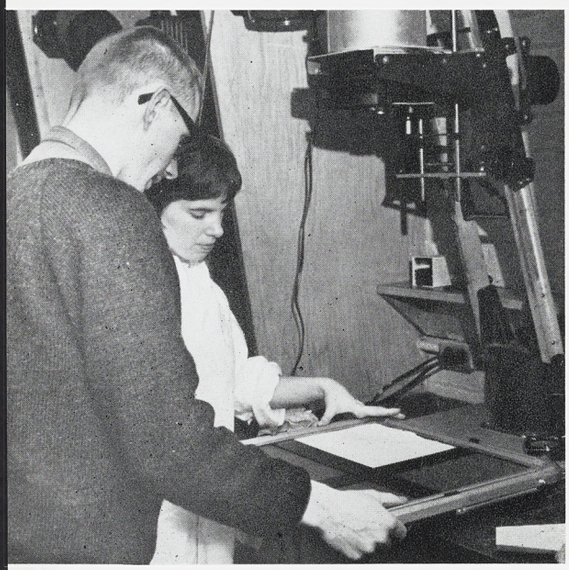

The College has several service courses which are offered to non-Communication Arts majors. These courses of interest to other colleges include Introduction to Advertising, Speech 101 and Communications 100.

EDUCATION

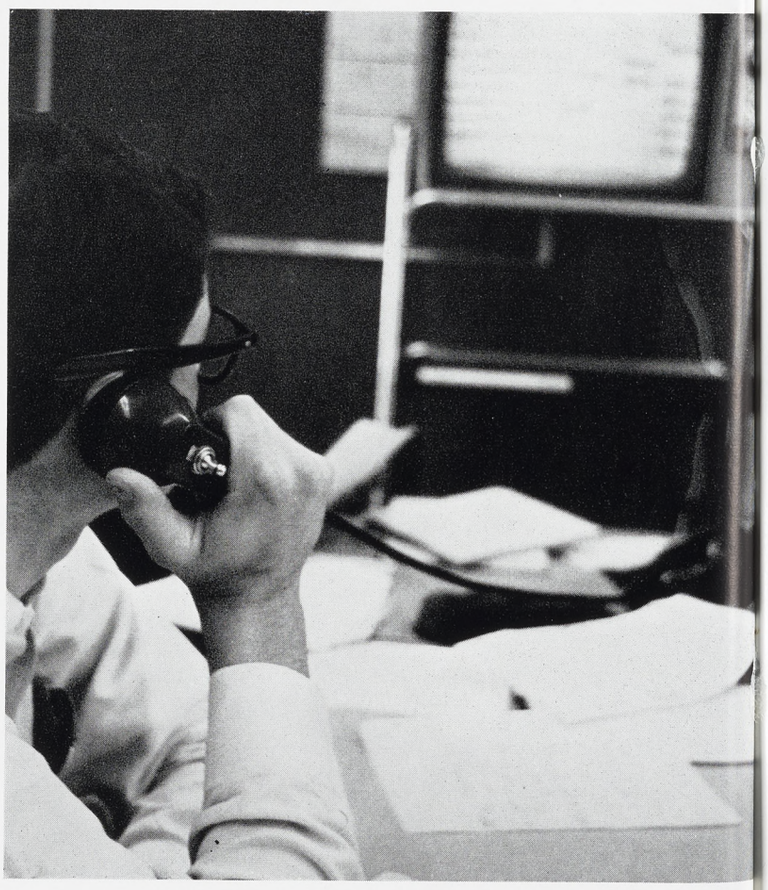

JOHN E. IVEY, JR., DEAN

Students enrolled in the College of Education are the prospective teachers and educators of tomorrow. From this group evolves the men and women who will influence the lives of our future adults.

Upon meeting the requirements of the elementary education program, the student receives a Bachelor of Arts degree and a Michigan Elementary Provisional Teachers Certificate. Those in secondary education receive two degrees; one from the College of Education and the other from the college of the student's academic major.

Experience is believed to be one of the keys to good teaching. Therefore, field trips, special lectures, and seminars are held for the students' benefit. Educational experiences are unlimited to students of keen interest and initiative.

Personal counseling minimizes the apparent size of the College and enables students to choose their courses under capable guidance.

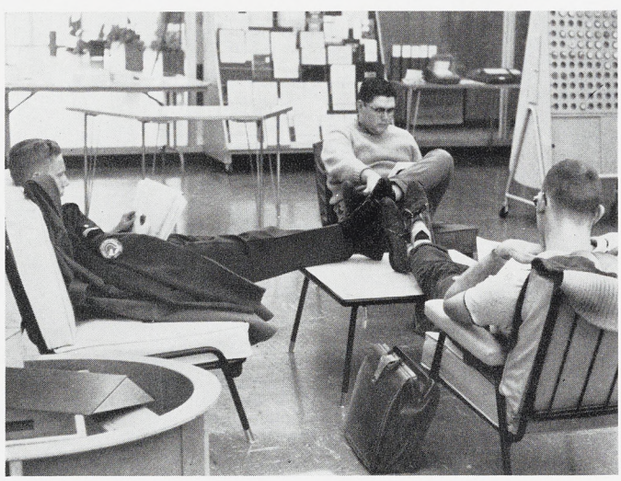

Manual arts instruction is available in the curriculum.

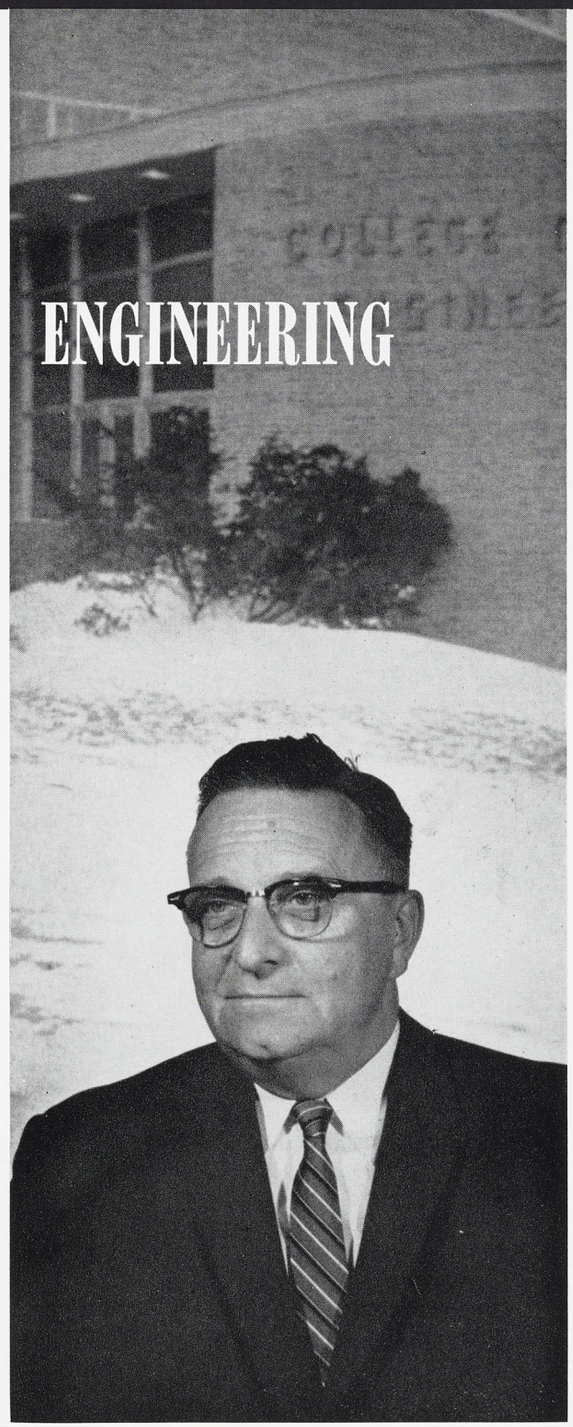

All candidates for a teaching certificate are required to spend a term student teaching at one of the resident teaching centers. These centers, directed by University staff members who reside in the community of the particular school system, provide priceless experience for the prospective teacher.

STEP, Student-Teachers Experimental Program, is a five year program for elementary teachers, offered through the cooperation of MSU and Michigan junior colleges and school systems. Under this program the student receives a salary for two of the five years spent in training. At the end of this period, the student receives a teaching certificate and degree. This is but another program to encourage able students to find a career in one of the largest and most essential facets of our society—education.

ENGINEERING

JOHN D. RYDER, DEAN

The College of Engineering attempts to develop the abilities of the student along lines which will allow him to progress with the advancing field of engineering and to lead a useful professional and civilian life. The engineering programs are planned to provide the engineering student with a firm knowledge and understanding of the fundamental engineering sciences, as well as the engineering methods to be used in applying them for the benefit of mankind. Practical service through scientific knowledge is the ultimate goal.

A slide rule is a fundamental instrument for the problems confronting an Engineering student.

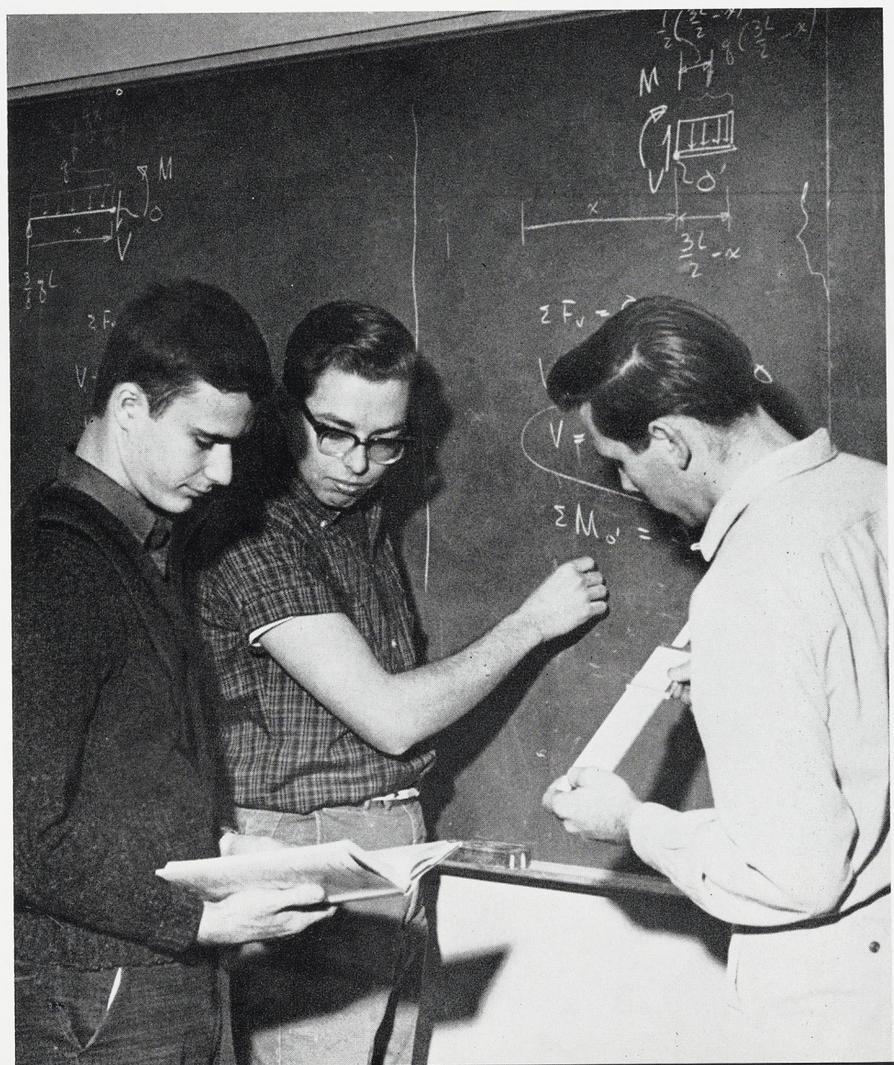

A knowledge of surveying is basic to Engineering.

Engineering deals with the science and the art of employing nature's forces and materials, energy and men for the ultimate benefit of mankind. Engineering education has passed from a time concerned with the teaching of techniques to an era based on the study of the applied sciences; the result is a quality engineer who is also a well-rounded citizen.

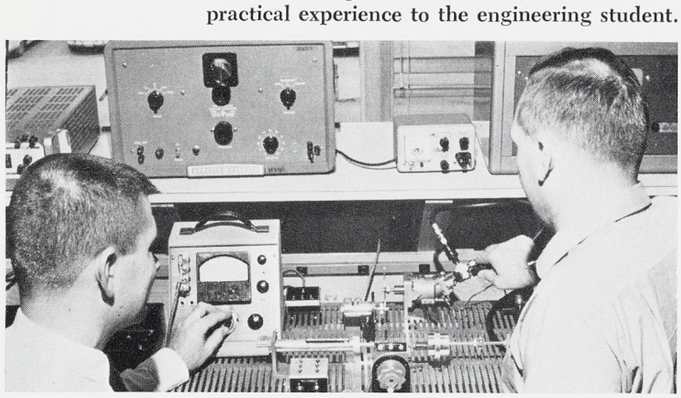

A decision for specialization may lead to agricultural engineering which applies engineering principles to agriculture, to chemical engineering which is concerned with the utilization of energy through molecular changes, to the broad industrial field which is encompassed by civil engineering, to electrical engineering and its study of power control, or to mechanical engineering and the conversion of energy.

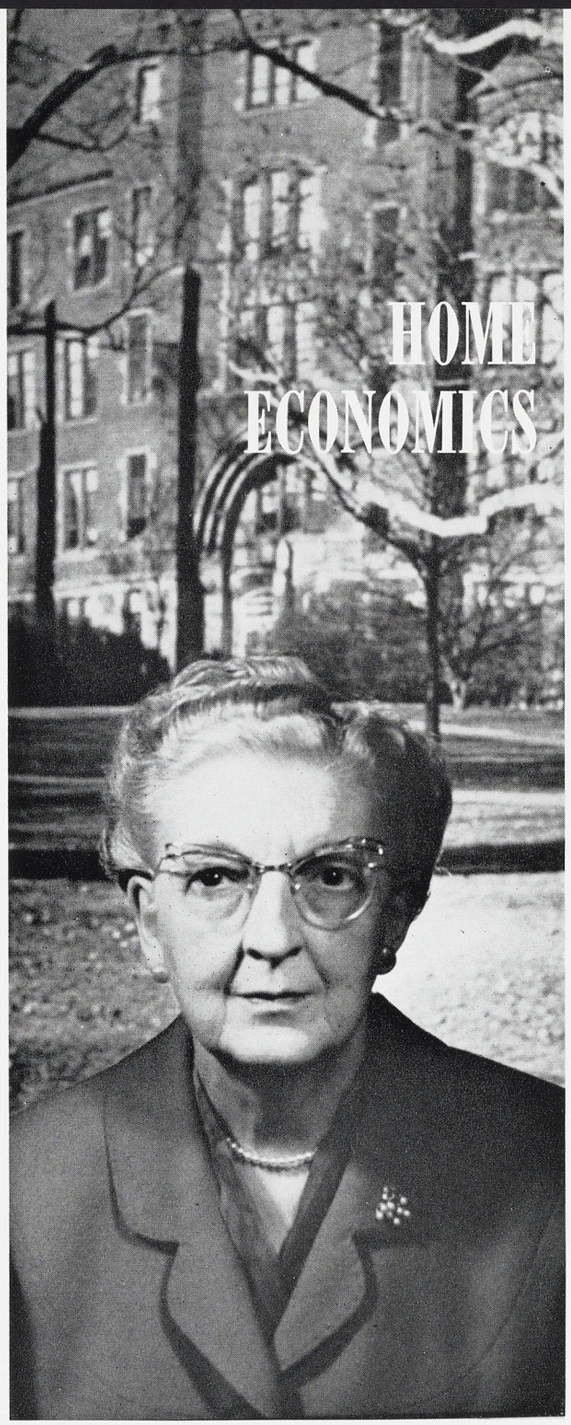

The principles of mathematics and their practical applications serve as the foundation of modern engineering methods.

THELMA PORTER, DEAN

The College of Home Economics at Michigan State University is recognized as a national leader for the educational program it offers. Home Economics is a broad subject which focuses on the home, the family, and the individual; its subject matter includes foods, nutrition, child development, family relations, home management, family economics, clothing, textiles, applied art, housing and home furnishings, household equipment, and institution administration. It uses and applies the basic principles of the natural sciences, social sciences, arts and humanities for comprehensive education.

Home economists reflect the total education which they have received. Career home economists serve individuals and families in homes and communities — through schools and colleges, business organizations and services, community and government organizations, newspapers, magazines, radio and television. They work as teachers, researchers, writers, dieticians, extension workers, interior designers, fashion merchandisers, food service managers, and home service advisers or consultants. VETERINARY MEDICINE

WILLIS W. ARMISTEAD,
DEAN

The College of Veterinary Medicine administers professional programs in veterinary medicine and in medical technology as well as graduate programs in anatomy, microbiology, physiology, pathology, surgery and medicine.

The professional program in Veterinary Medicine, one of only 18 in the United States, requires a minimum of six years – at least two years of pre-veterinary training, followed by four years of professional veterinary medicine study. Enrollment is limited to 64 per class and a faculty committee selects those to be admitted from pre-veterinary programs at Michigan State and elsewhere. An increase in the enrollment quota likely will be approved within the next few years when modern, more spacious facilities now on the drawing board become available.

Microscopic identification and analysis of animal tissues is important for future diagnosis.

ARTS and LETTERS

PAUL A. VARG, DEAN

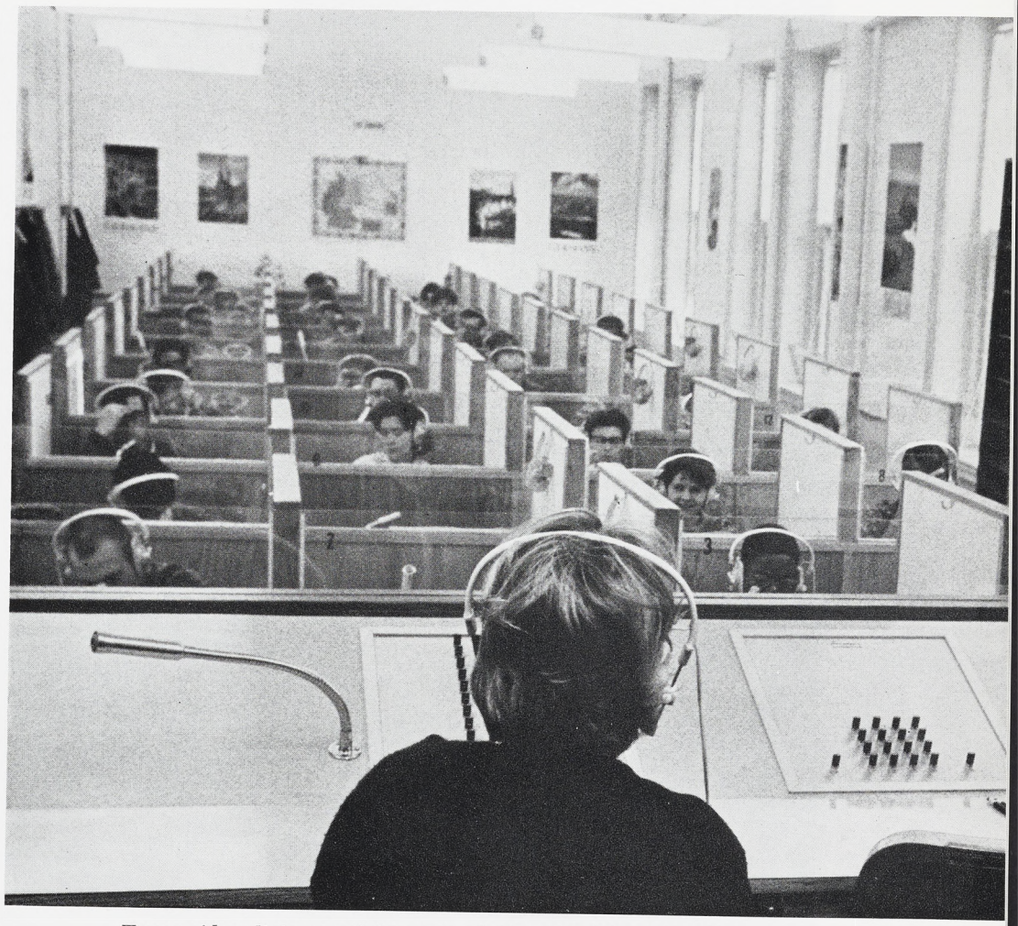

While emphasizing the humanistic disciplines, the College of Arts and Letters cooperates with other colleges of the University to provide a sound, broadly-based liberal education for all students. Established July 1, 1962, as one of the three colleges formed from the College of Science and Arts, the College consists of the departments of Art, English, Foreign Languages, History, Music, Philosophy and Religion. The College recorded an enrollment of 2,526 and employs a full-time staff of 167. Other agencies sponsored by the College of Arts and Letters are a Humanities Research Center and an adult liberal arts program.

NATURAL SCIENCE

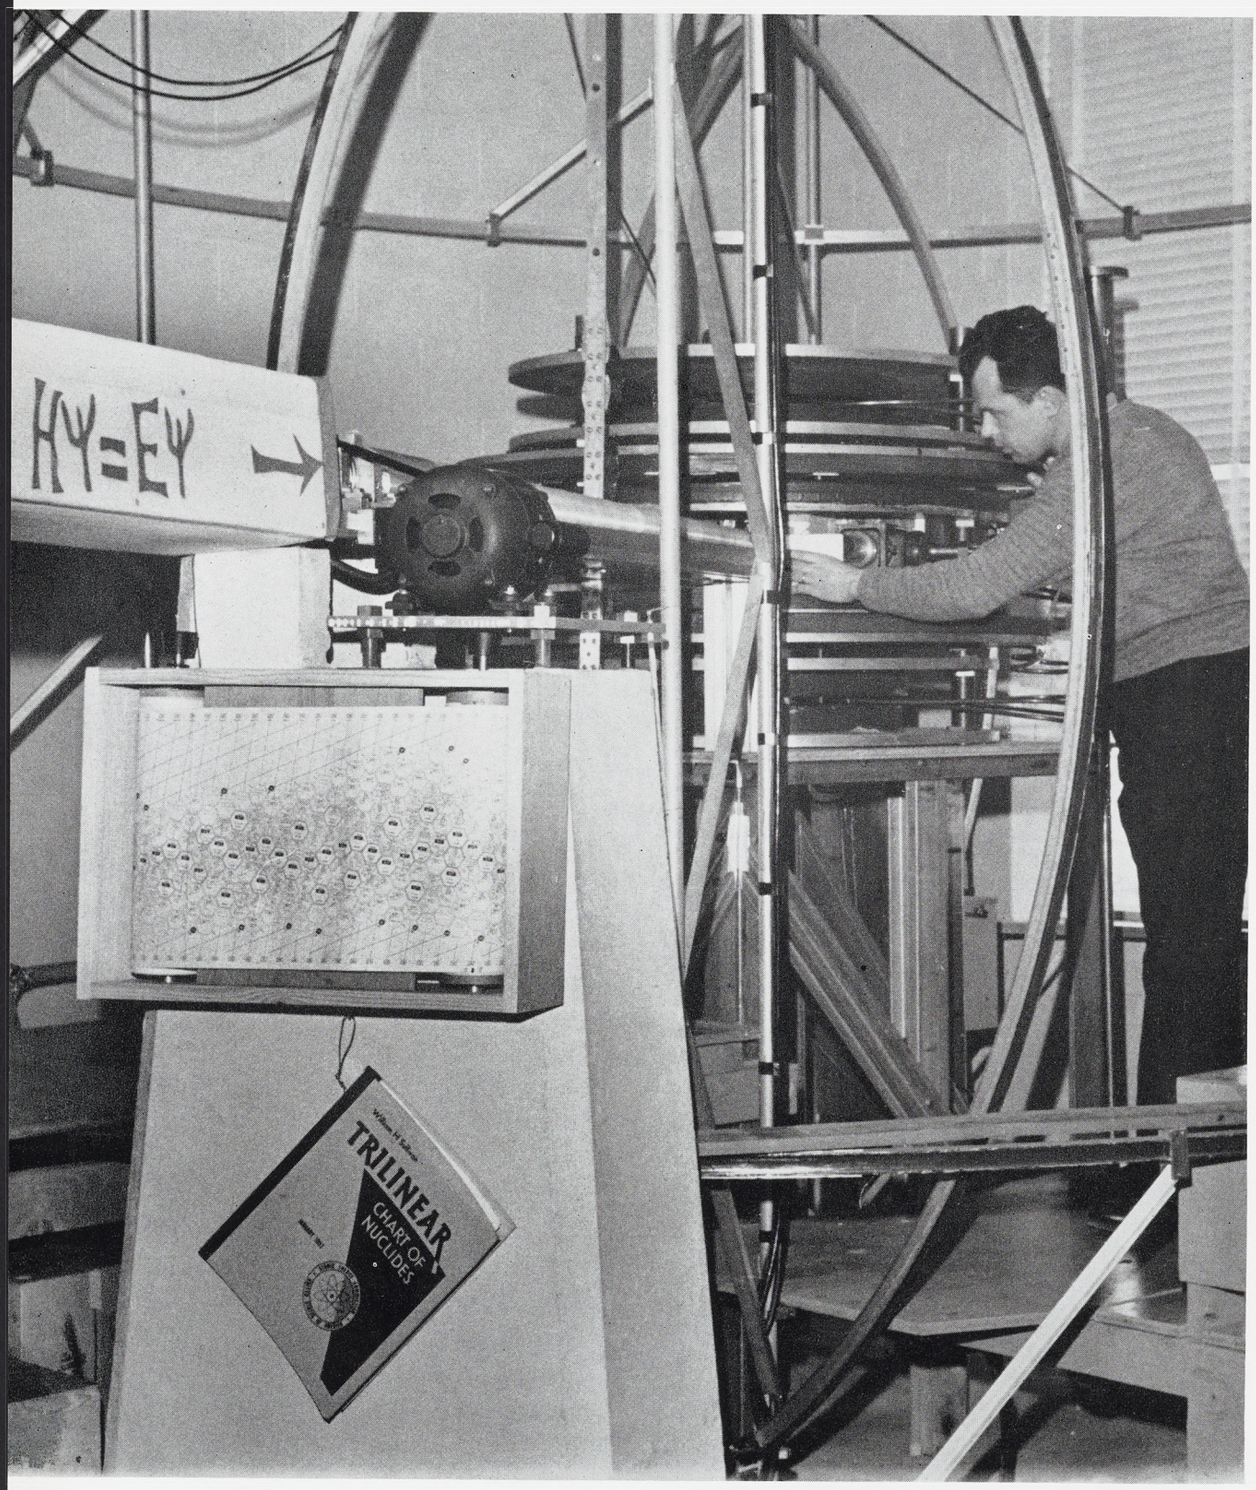

RICHARD U. BYERRUM,
DEAN

On July 1, 1962, three new colleges were formed from the departments and programs previously directed by the College of Science and Arts. Of those 32 departments, schools, and programs, the following 15 now comprise the College of Natural Science: Biochemistry, General Science, Biological Sciences, Botany and Plant Pathology, Entomology, Microbiology and Public Health, Physiology and Pharmacology, Zoology, Physical Sciences, Chemistry, Geology, Physics and Astronomy, Mathematics, Statistics and Nursing.

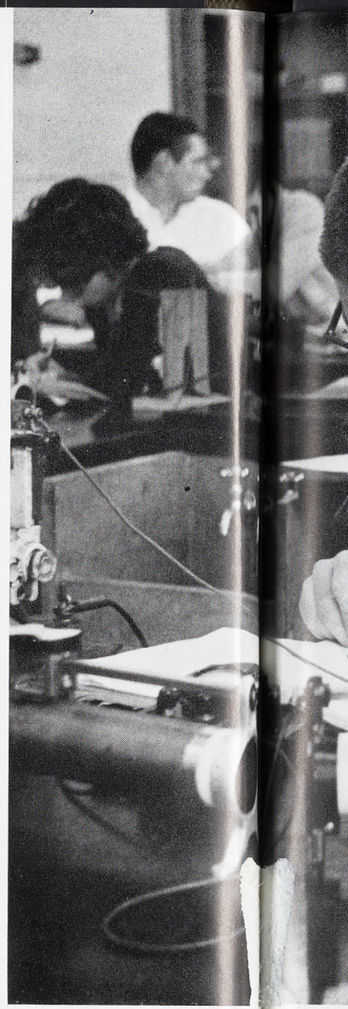

In terms of budget, faculty, and departments, the College of Science and Arts was three to four times the size of the other colleges. The reorganization provides a more flexible program and allows more efficient handling of the problems of departmental representation and financial apportionment. The principal reason, however, for the reduction of the five divisions to the three colleges stems from the service the College of Science and Arts provided in augmenting the programs of the other colleges and the resultant simplification of coordinating programs after the action.

Experiments with high voltage equipment are carried on in Kedzie.

As the division of colleges applies to the College of Natural Science, the departments now have a representative dean, Dr. Richard U. Byerrum, the apportionment of their funds has been facilitated, and the number of colleges with which they are obligated to coordinate their courses has been reduced to three, the Colleges of Agriculture, Veterinary Medicine, and Education.

The College has continued all of the academic programs of the Divisions of the Biological Sciences and the Mathematical and Physical Sciences. It permits students with an interest in the natural sciences to earn the liberal Bachelor's Degree with either a departmental major or a broad interdisciplinary one.

SOCIAL SCIENCE

LOUIS L. McQUITTY,
DEAN

The role embraced by the College of Social Science is as broad as any in the University curriculum. Human behavior and man's social institutions are the shared concern of the departments of Psychology, Sociology and Anthropology, Political Science and Geography; instruction in Economics is joint with the College of Business Administration. Included also in this new college are the Schools of Labor and Industrial Relations, Police Administration, Social Work, Urban Planning and Landscape Architecture; the African Language and Area Center and the Bureau of Social and Political Research.

Because a knowledge of human behavior and expectancies is important to every field, the College provides preparation in the social sciences to students in a variety of specialties. In the fall, a total of 15,000 enrollments were recorded for courses in the College, an illustration of the scope and importance of the College to the University.

Close observation is a necessary part of learning.

Frequent quizzes test the ability of students to recognize and locate geographical points.

The requirements of economics for many curriculums create the need for large lecture halls to accommodate the many students.

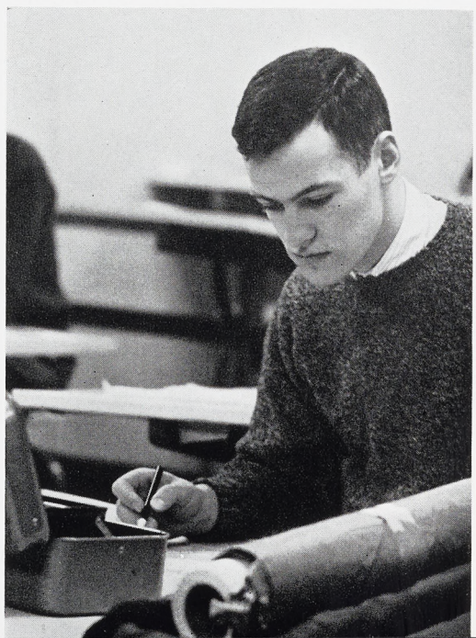

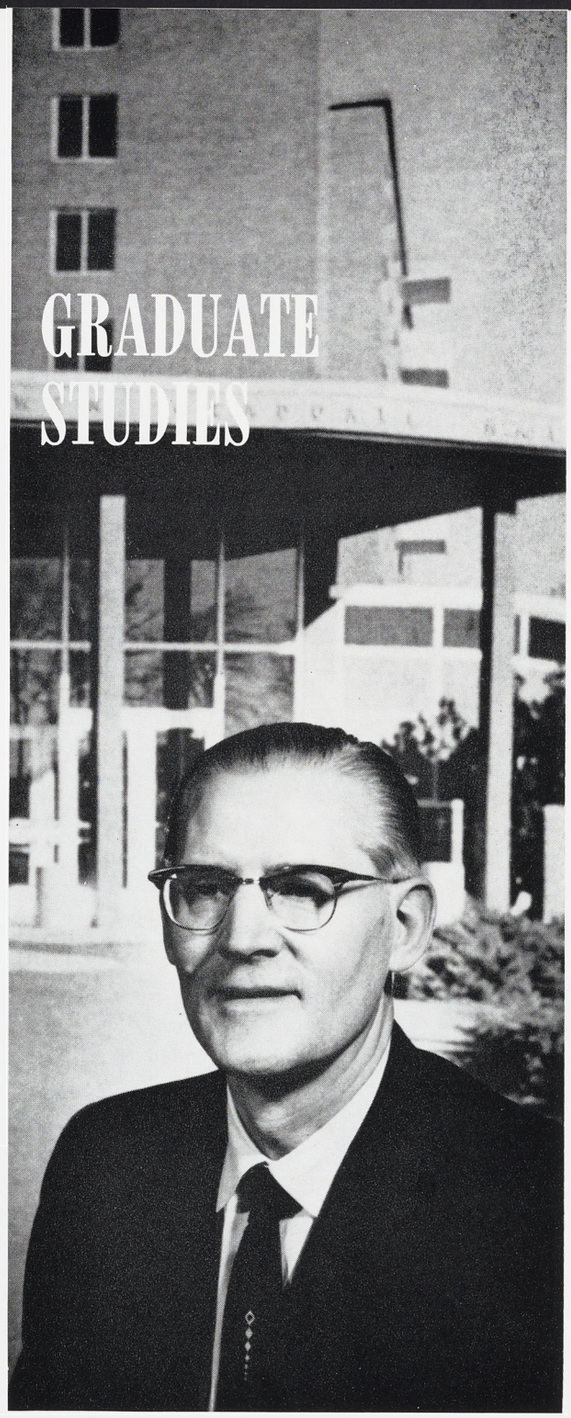

Experiments with artistic and functional layout is a unique part of the Urban Planning curriculum.

Graduate and undergraduate programs are offered in both departments and schools; and at the college level through a selection of courses from several departments. Special programs, as in the preparation of secondary school teachers with the College of Education, are carried on in cooperation with other colleges. A faculty committee has been appointed to study curriculum revision and emphasis for the University.

Long hours at a drawing board become routine to Landscape Architecture majors.

GRADUATE STUDIES

MILTON E. MUELDER,
DEAN

The broad purposes and the variety of intellectual opportunities of the entire graduate program are difficult to encompass and to appraise for they cover a multitude of diverse fields.

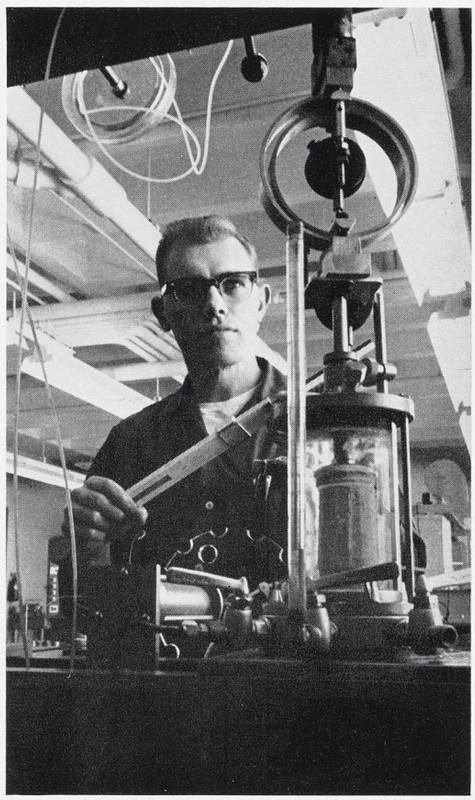

Michigan State University endeavors to respond to the spirit and demands of the times. In response to its manifold obligations to graduate study, State has established eight colleges authorized to give advanced degrees. More than 275 areas and fields of study are offered by 66 departments in these colleges in which both master's and doctor's degrees may be earned.

Study is as concentrated behind a microscope as behind a book for many graduate students.

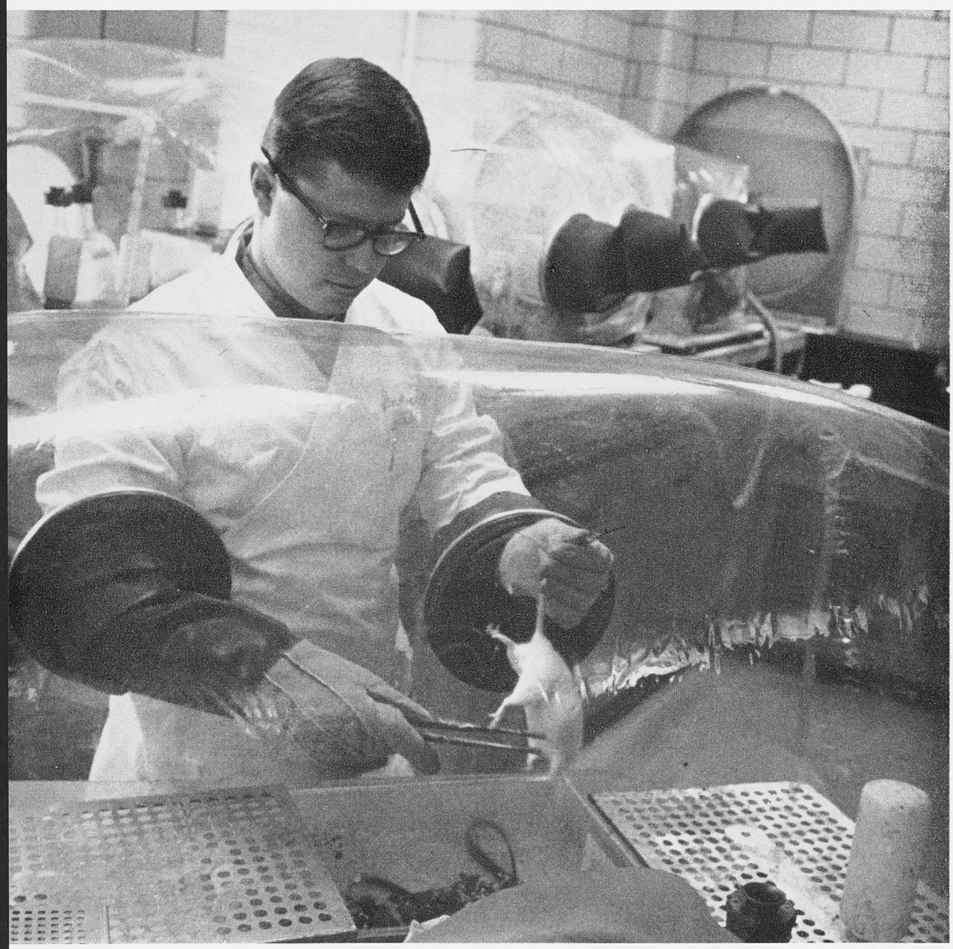

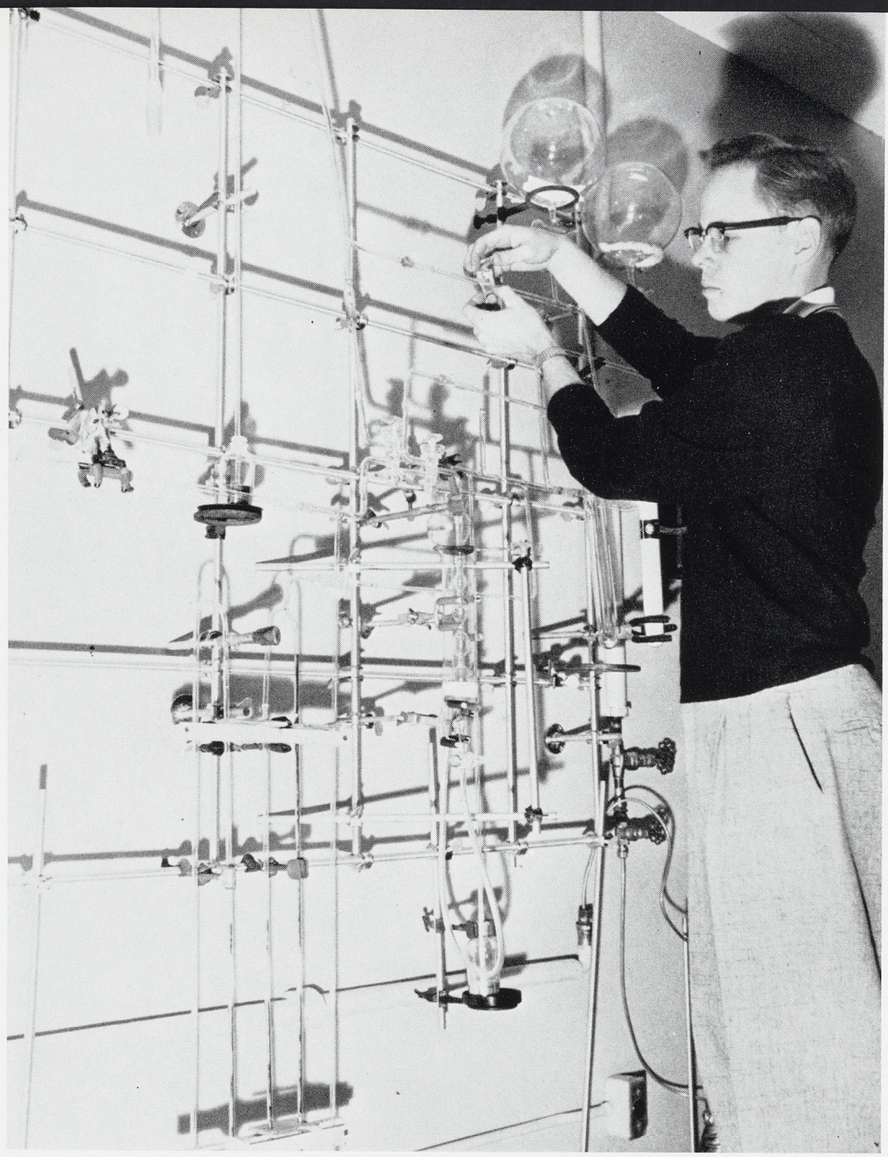

The strength of any graduate program is determined to a large extent by the quality and scope of the research activities underlying it. In addition to the host of visiting professors and the rapidly-growing library collection, graduate students are offered the use of specialized equipment and facilities within their departments.

Indicative of the availability of these research materials and facilities, the University's W. K. Kellogg Gull Lake Biological Station presents an unusual opportunity for class work and field research in descriptive biology. Another research instrument accessible for graduate study is Mistic, MSU's high speed computer.

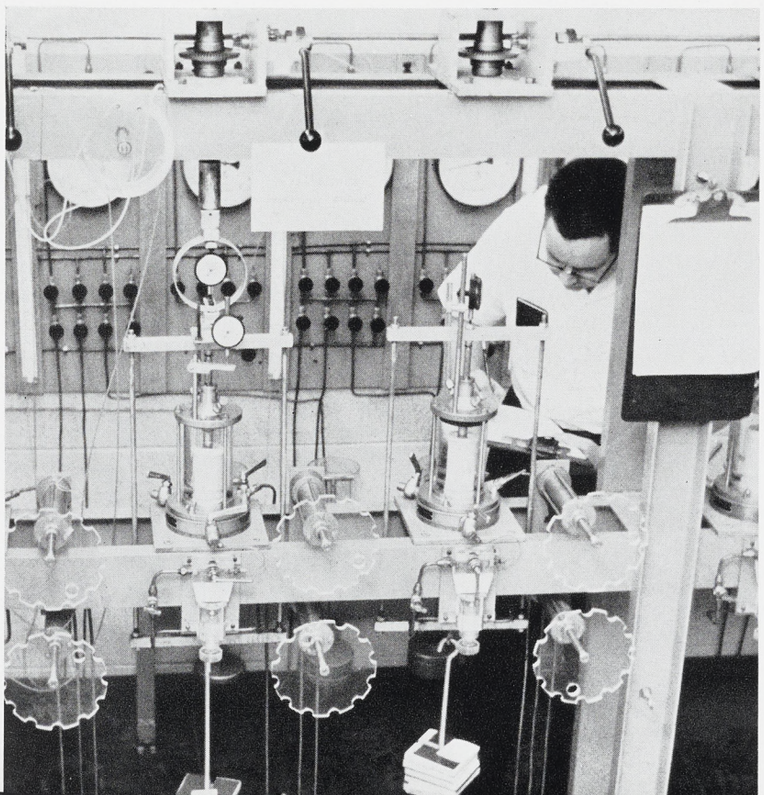

Utmost accuracy and care is required in the tests involved in graduate research projects.

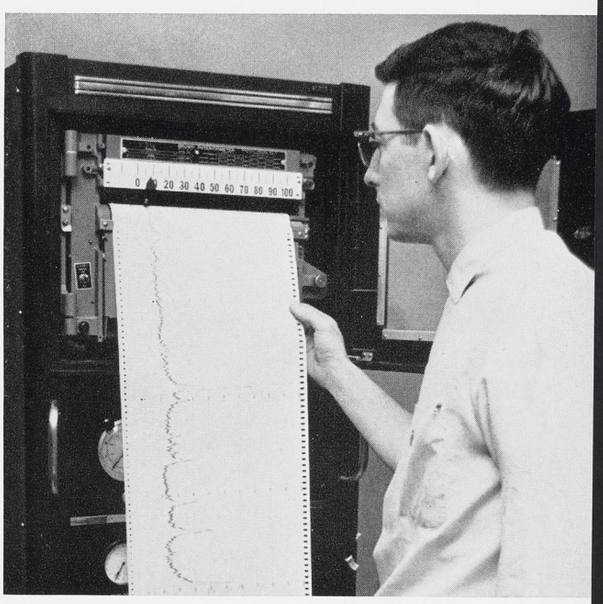

Graduate research work often requires the use of delicate, precision equipment.

Reading X-ray tapes and the use of a triaxial cell to determine the stress on soil for building are part of the active graduate research program.

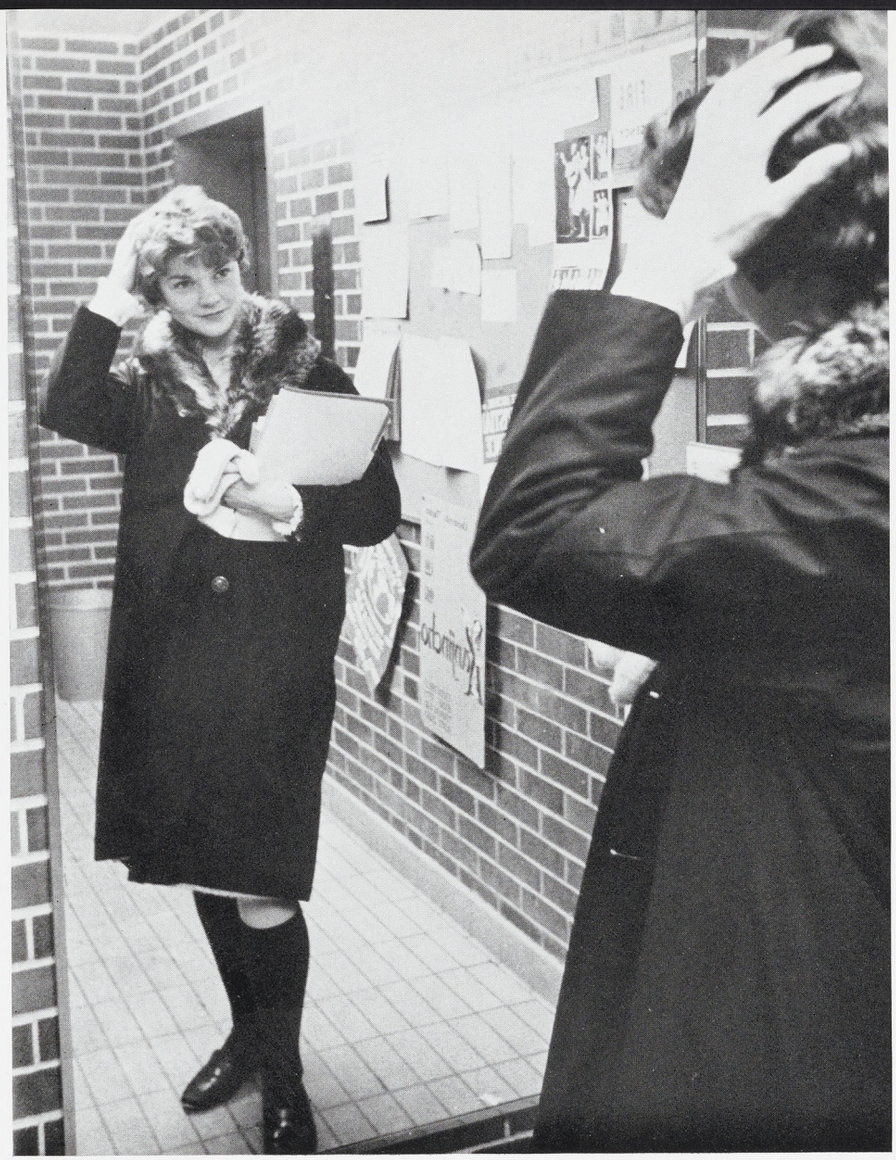

The grill is the scene of constant activity whether it's studying, socializing or a concentrating game of chess.

The modern facilities of Owen Graduate Center, opened in the fall of 1960, provide graduate students with comfortable living in a mature atmosphere conducive to advanced study and exchange of ideas. But this exchange surpasses ideas merely of an academic nature, for the Center contains 109 foreign residents, representing 32 foreign countries.

The addition this fall of undergraduate women over 21 increased the percentage of women residents to 56. The women now occupy five of the seven floors in their wing.

Two seven-story wings, composed of 422 single rooms are joined together by a single-story structure containing a main lounge, lobby, administrative offices and dining areas. Cleaning, linen, telephone and elevator services are also provided.

ROTC

COL. JAMES F. SKELLS,
MILITARY SCIENCE

LT. COL. GEO. A. DAVIES,
AIR SCIENCE

The Reserve Officers Training Corps program at State offers both Army and Air Force training. Each cadet receives classroom instruction in the theory and practice of military arts. An accompanying lab is designed to develop the command and leadership abilities of students through practical experience as Commander in student formations of Army Brigade of Cadets and Air Force Cadet wings.

ROTC instructors are regular and non-commissioned officers in their respective branches of the service. Field trips to military installations are open to cadet participation throughout the term. Other activities offered at the basic level are Pershing Rifle, Spartan Rifle and Pistol Club and the Drum and Bugle Corps. Advanced honoraries include Army Scabbard and Blade and Air Force Arnold Air Society. Both branches offer flight training programs for senior cadets who wish to obtain a private pilot's license.

Upon fulfillment of two years of basic training, the cadet may choose to continue in Advanced ROTC. Following completion of the program and graduation he is commissioned as a Second Lieutenant reserve standing. Outstanding graduates, however, are offered commission in the regular Air Force or Army. Cadets receive pay for the two years spent in the Advanced program and are required to attend Summer Camp for six weeks between their junior and senior years.

The Coronation Ball and spring blood drives are the main event sponsored jointly. The Army holds an annual "Muster at Custer" involving field training for third year cadets.

CHAPTER THREE

Athletics, intramural and varsity, lend to the physical growth of each individual at the University

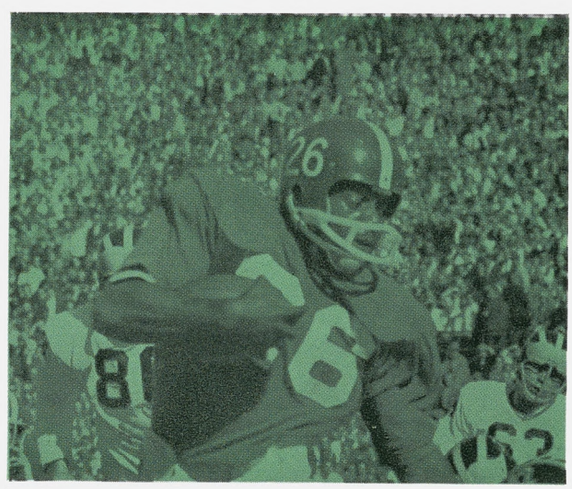

In an institution of higher learning such as Michigan State, there are facets which are necessary to the physical and mental well-being of the student body, but which fall outside the bounds of academic life. Probably the most important of these is athletics and physical activity.

These activities provide an outlet for the tensions which are common to most University students. They also present the best method for obtaining and maintaining good physical conditioning, which is essential to good general health in future years. No other Big 10 university provides comparable facilities to the ones found at MSU.

For over 400 young men engaged yearly in varsity athletics, State provides an intercollegiate athletic program equal to the best in the nation. Any MSU student of sufficient ability may gain a place on the varsity of one of the 14 intercollegiate sports: baseball, basketball, cross country, fencing, football, golf, gymnastics, hockey, indoor track, outdoor track, soccer, swimming, tennis, and wrestling.

For each intercollegiate sport, excellent coaching is furnished along with fine facilities for both the athlete and the thousands of sports fans on campus and in the surrounding area. Examples are Spartan Stadium, which seats 76,000 for football, Old College Field with a baseball seating capacity of 4,000, and the 18 hole Forest Akers Golf Course, which is the scene of many tournaments and also provides the area required by MSU's fine cross country teams. Jenison Field House, accommodating the basketball and indoor track teams, holds 12,500 spectators for basketball and 4,000 for track. State's popular hockey teams utilize the Ice Arena, seating 3,000.

For those who are not varsity athletes, State provides an extensive Intramural program. The $3.5 million Men's Intramural Building, where the various IM teams compete, is also open to all students and faculty members.

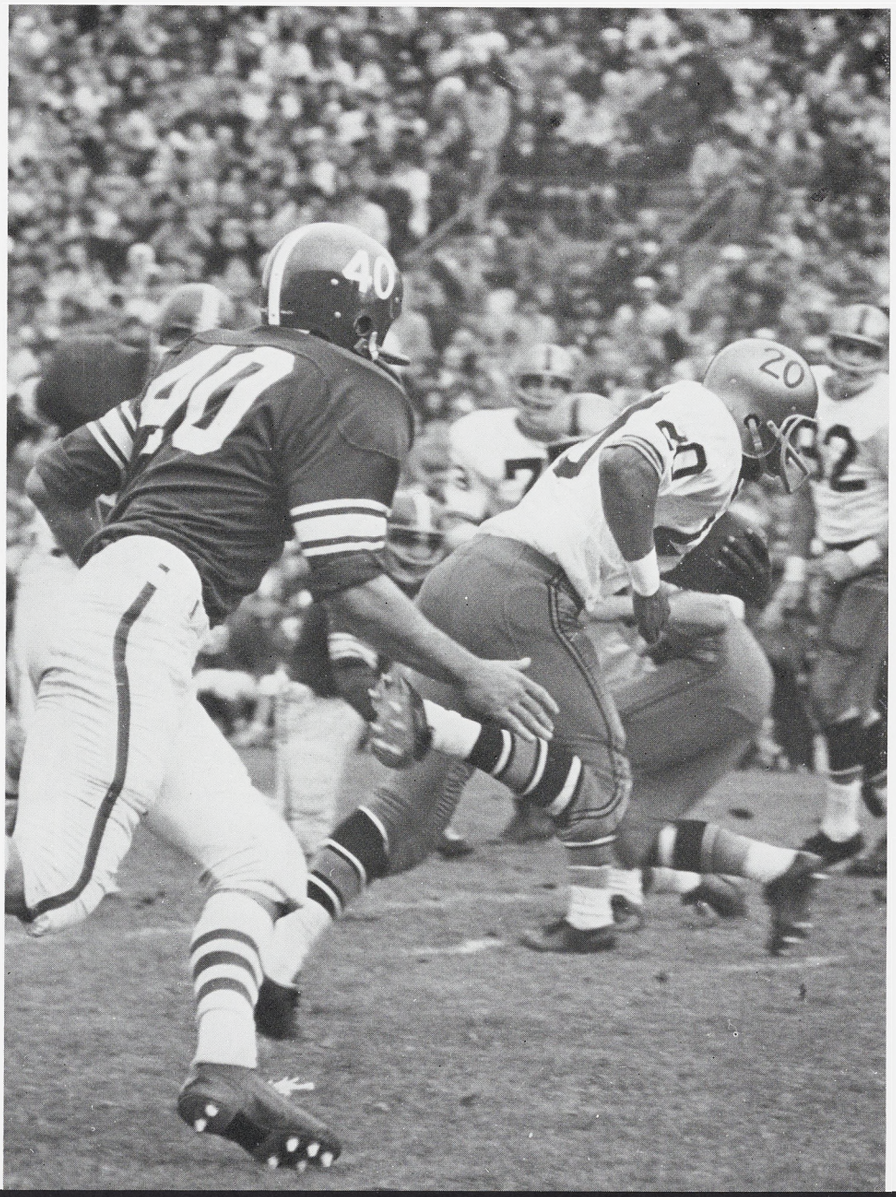

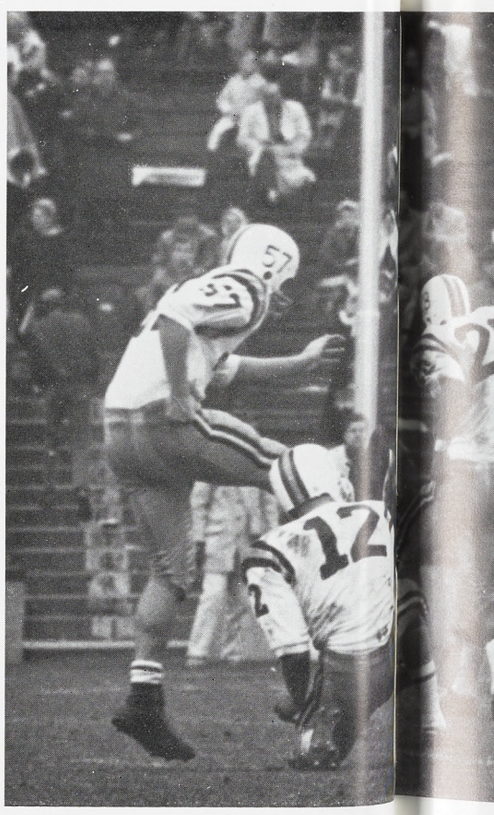

Spartan football dominates student interests fall term.

State cheerleader Judy Erkman is hoisted aloft after a Spartan touchdown.

Spartan Captain George Saimes closes in on Purdue speedster Tom Bloom in a tough defensive battle.

Michigan State's IM program is closely correlated with the physical education curriculum, which attempts to provide training in sports and an understanding of health problems as well as exercise for the student within his school day. Every University College student is required to complete three credits of physical education with as many as six credits counting toward graduation. The first term basic course gives the student instruction in the principles of training and good health. It also provides him with orientation to various sports in which he may enroll in later terms.

With a steady hand and determination, a Spartan netman returns a serve.

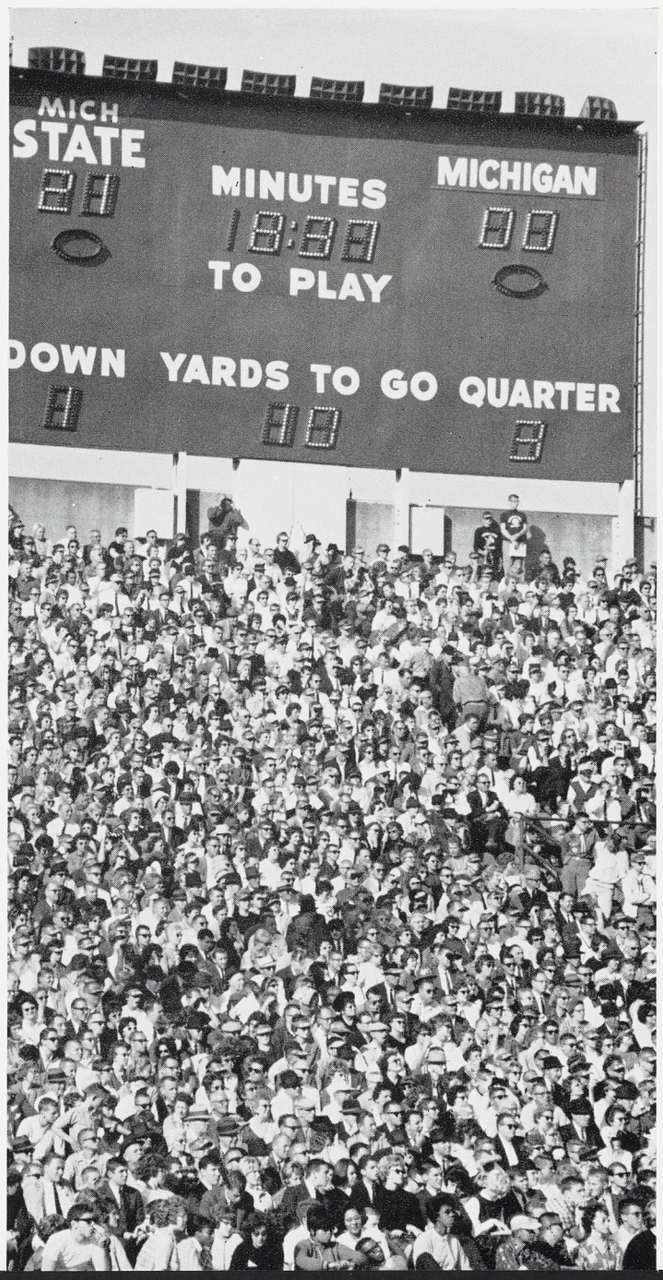

Minnesota's Coach Versich (57) missed a field goal attempt before a rushing Spartan defense.

In addition to these sports there are many facilities provided around campus for recreational activities. The Red Cedar River is usually filled with canoes in warmer weather and covered with ice skaters during winter term. Most residence halls also make equipment available for football, basketball, billiards, and table tennis, while the Union provides facilities for billiards and bowling.

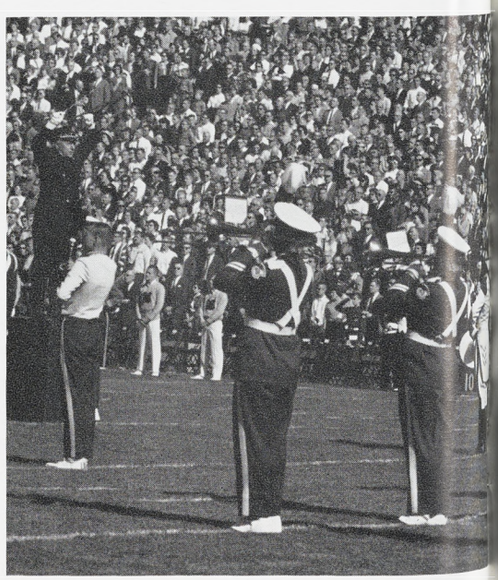

Swimming pools, open the year round in the Men's and Women's Intramural Buildings, provide relaxing breaks from studies. Golfing on the University's 18-hole course and tennis on over 30 tennis courts, also draw large participation during spring term.

Overall, the physical program at MSU is so wide and varied that one can almost say if an activity falls within the realm of sports and a person wants to learn it, play it, or just watch it, he can at Michigan State.

Varsity athletics swing into high gear during fall term and the student is greeted by intercollegiate contests in cross country, soccer, and football.

Early last fall the nation's sportswriters reviewed their manpower charts and made their yearly trip out onto the limb with their predictions.

Spartan hopes flourished as the writers ranked MSU second in the Big Ten before they even stepped onto a gridiron. Head Coach Duffy Daugherty, usually optimistic, protested that his team was "overrated."

The visiting Skywriters, a group a newsmen who survey the prospects of each Big 10 school, were impressed with State's massive forward wall, possibly the biggest in college football and in the Spartan's history.

Sherm Lewis is upended on a PAT attempt against Michigan but still manages to score. George Saimes draws the defenders outside.

Spartan Coach Duffy Daugherty gives last minute instructions during the rainy Minnesota tilt.

The prognosticators soon tumbled from their limbs as MSU was ambushed by an unrated tribe of Stanford Indians in their first game. Impressive wins over North Carolina, Michigan, Notre Dame, and Indiana soon compensated for the opening day defeat.

The Spartans were riding high when their title and Rose Bowl hopes were unceremoniously undermined by the Minnesota Golden Gophers and subsequently buried by Purdue in what seemed to be a replay of last year's action.

To finish their season the Spartans played spoilers in destroying the title hopes of Northwestern, then allowed lowly Illinois to drop them to a 5-4 overall record and a tie for fifth place in Big 10 conference play.

End Matt Snorton (84) blocks outside as Saimes makes a long gain on a fullback draw play against Michigan.

Speedy Sherm Lewis almost gets away but is nailed by three Notre Dame defenders.

The highly-rated Spartans rolled into Stanford as two touchdown favorites. Unfortunately, the Indians hadn't read State's clippings and handed MSU a 16-13 defeat, their first to a Pacific Coast team since 1949.

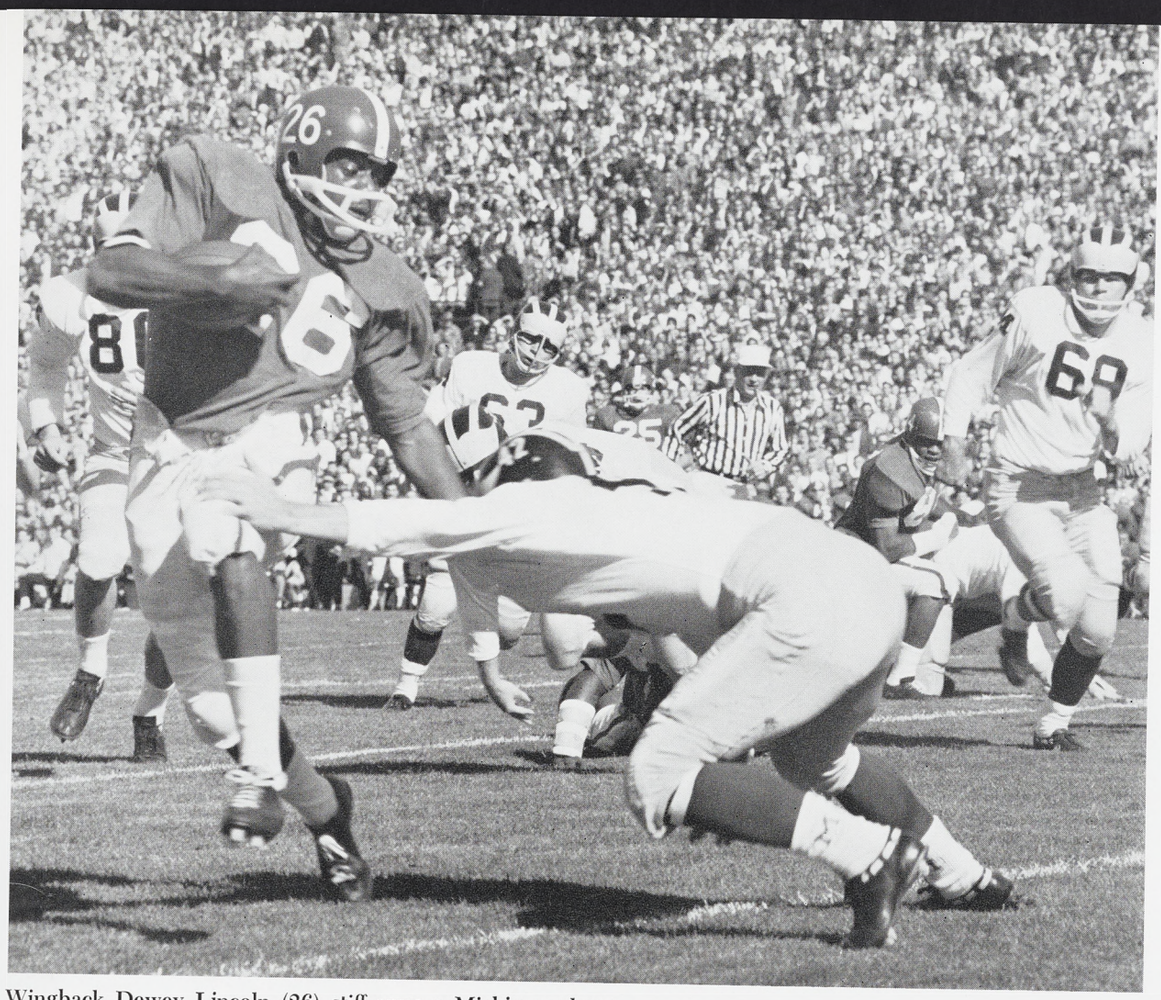

MSU Captain George Saimes scored the only two TD's for the Spartans but a first-half field goal by Stanford proved decisive.

State hosted North Carolina in their first home encounter before a Band Day crowd of over 61,000. Tailback Ron Rubick set a new MSU individual rushing record with 207 yards and three TD's. Sherman Lewis added two tallies of his own as the duo led the Big Green to a 38-6 triumph over the Tarheels.

A record Spartan Stadium crowd of 77,501 assembled a week later to watch the fifty-fifth playing of the traditional MSU vs. Michigan game. In the first half State led 13-0 on TD aerials to Sherm Lewis and Lonnie Sanders. Lewis added two more touchdowns in the second half to give State a 28-0 shutout.

Fullback Roger Lopes (45) bulls his way through mud, rain, and Irishmen against Notre Dame at South Bend.

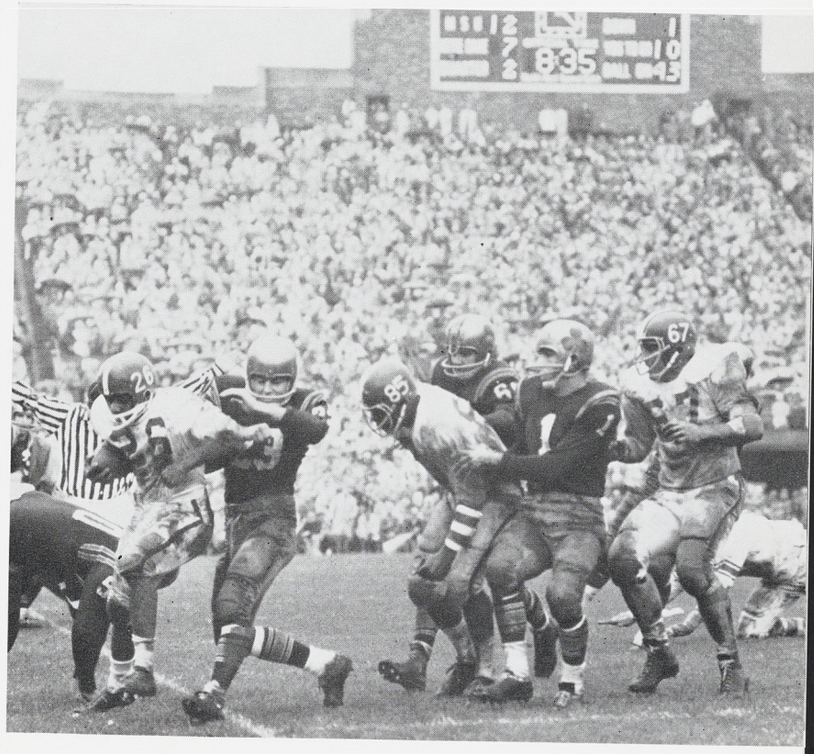

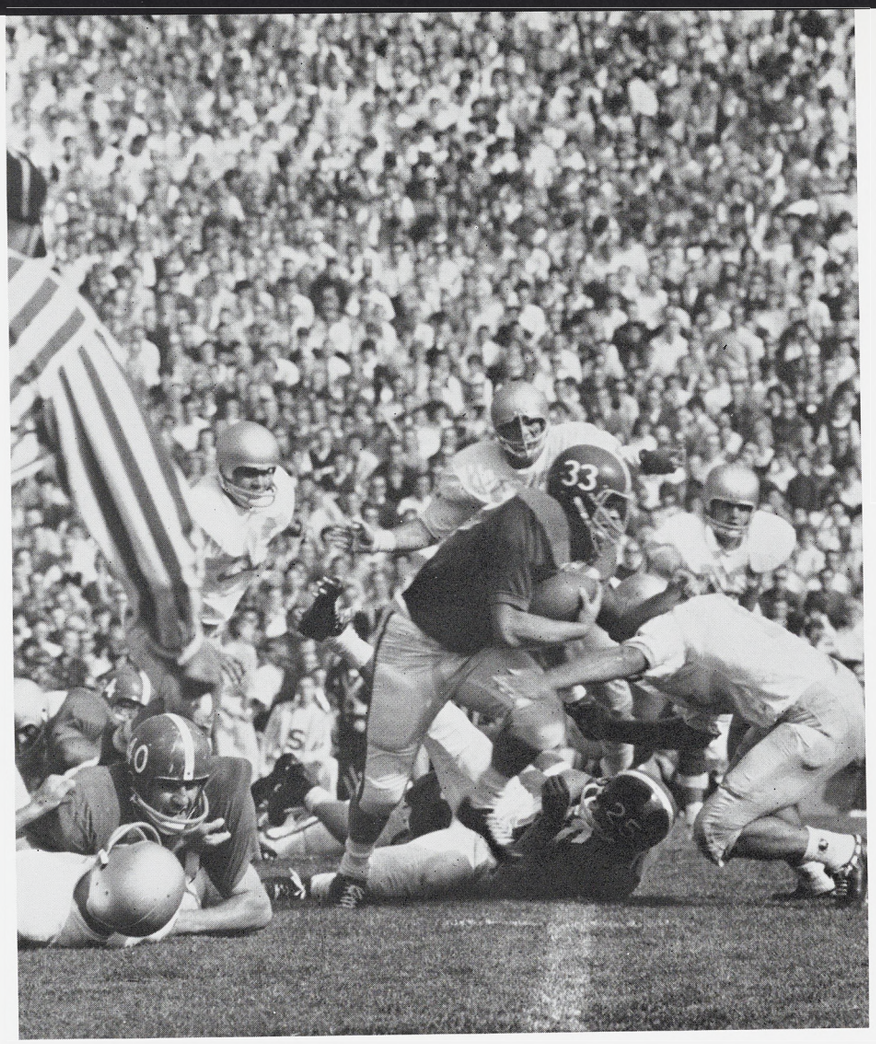

Wingback Dewey Lincoln (26) stiff-arms a Michigan player during the traditional battle at Spartan Stadium.

Playing in the rain at Notre Dame, State gained their first road win of the year at the expense of the Fighting Irish. Saimes and Lewis scored touchdowns in the first five minutes to give the Spartans a lead they never lost. Saimes added two more TD's and contributed 153 yards to the Spartan total of 411 yards rushing. The Michigan State defense played another fine game holding the Irish to 31 yards rushing as the Spartans notched their third win in a row, 31-7.

MSU was rated tenth in the nation as they travelled to Bloomington to meet the Hoosiers of Indiana. The Spartans scored two touchdowns before four minutes had passed and went on to trounce their hapless hosts, 26-8. All-American candidate George Saimes scored three touchdowns for the second game in a row. State continued its rushing onslaught adding 239 yards to their already large total. The Spartans fumbled eight times against IU but sufficiently dominated the game.

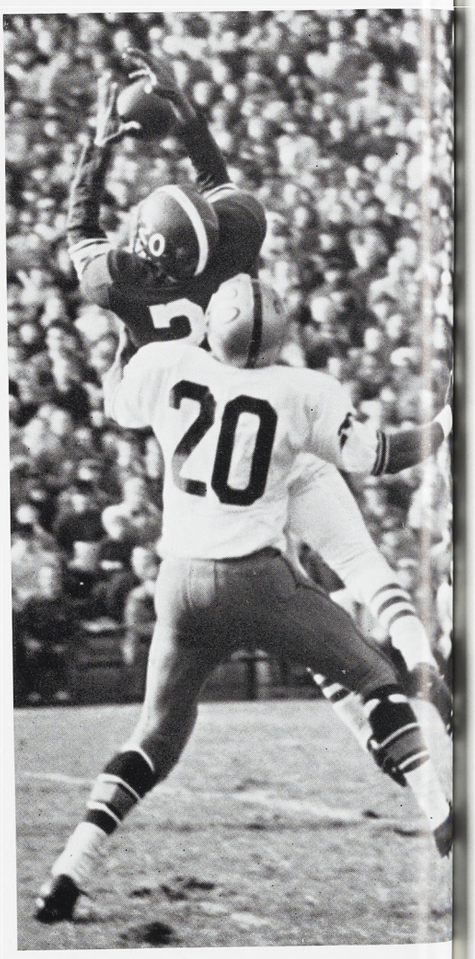

Ernie Clark (85) delays two Notre Dame players but Dewey Lincoln is still caught from behind after a short gain.

Rubick adds to his record breaking rushing total against the Tarheels.

Sherm Lewis leaped high to snare a Boilermaker's pass.

A bruised band of Spartans returned home as the leading rushing team in the nation to face Minnesota. A steady rain dampened Homecoming festivities and 64,783 partisan fans. The nation's leading defense of Minnesota led by Bobby Bell and Carl Eller combined with three costly State fumbles to give the Golden Gophers a 28-7 decision over the Spartans and a sad trip home for the rain-soaked State fans.

Purdue's "spoilermakers" invaded the Spartan lair before a national television audience and a near-capacity crowd the following weekend. Lewis gave State a 9-7 third period lead on a 54-yard touchdown run but a final period field goal and touchdown by Purdue gave them a 17-9 advantage while MSU's fumbles prevented any further Spartan scoring. For the second year in a row Purdue ended all hopes for a Spartan trip to Pasadena.

Dewey Lincoln is swarmed by a host of defenders in the 17-9 loss to the Boilermakers.

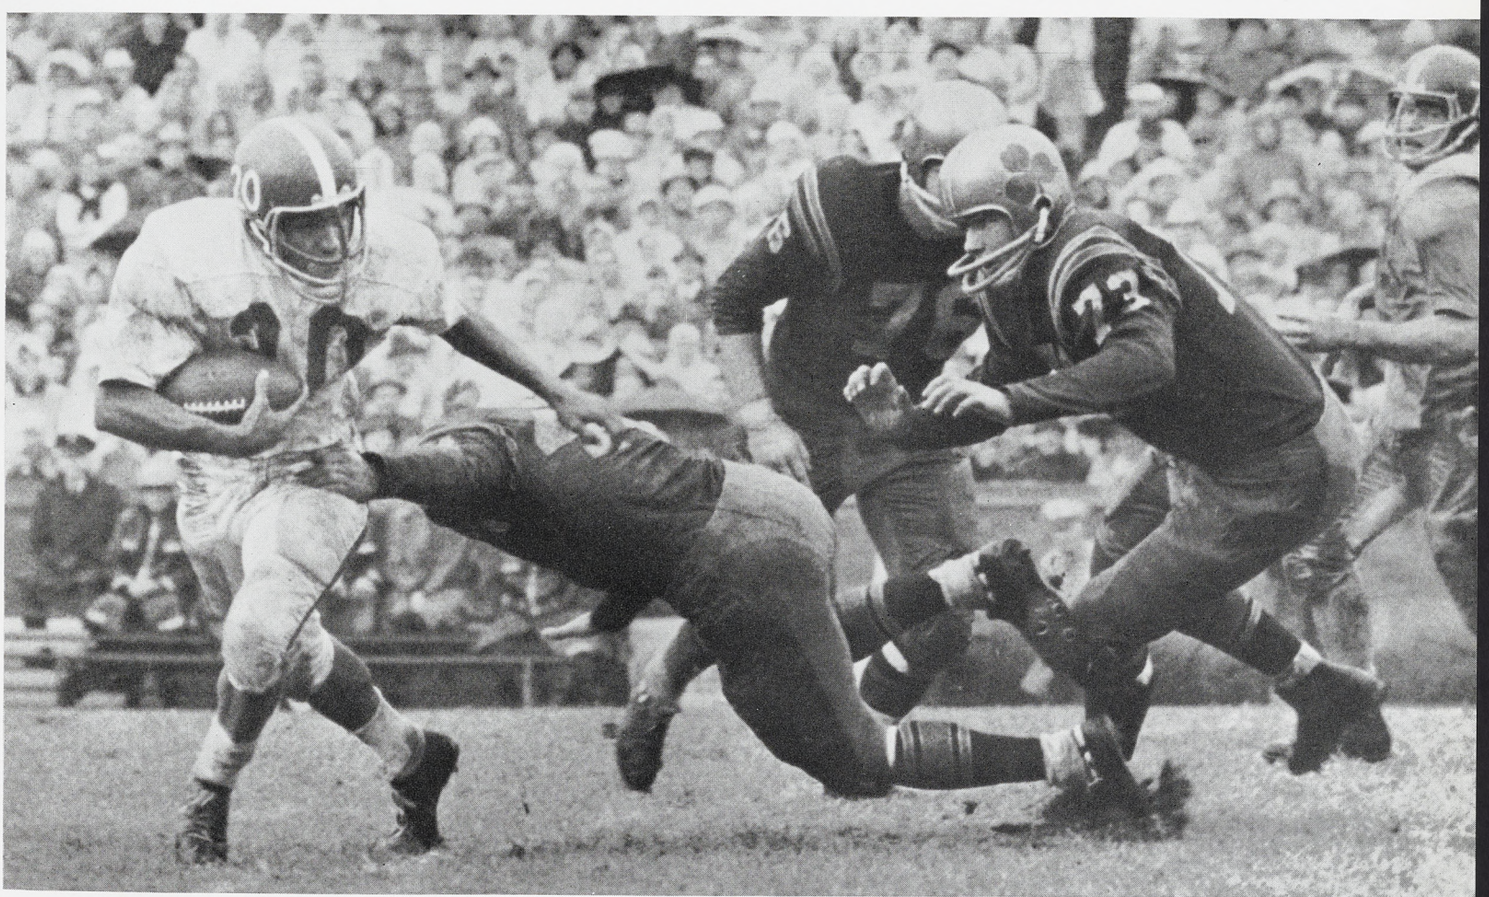

The dejected Spartans then faced the Wildcats of Northwestern who were still engaged in their "run for the roses." MSU quickly made California seem a million miles away. After a first period Wildcat score, Lewis, Saimes, Earl Lattimer, and Bill Benson all contributed touchdowns while Jim Bobbitt added a field goal to smash Northwestern's title hopes 31-7. The Spartan defense held Wildcat sophomore sensation Tom Myers to only 17 yards passing. Sophomore quarterback Roger Hailey ran the State offense most of the afternoon.

The Spartans traveled to Champaign to battle the Illini in their final game of the season. In the second quarter a State fumble set up a 31 yard Illinois touchdown pass and extra point. Lewis scored later in the same stanza for the Spartans but the two-point conversion attempt failed. The game ended as a startling 7-6 upset.

Jim Bobbitt's field goal attempt was short during Homecoming setback.

Scatback Sherman Lewis swept wide around end against Notre Dame. State battled to a 31-7 victory over the Irish and the elements at South Bend.

Seventeen varsity gridders will be lost through graduation including starters George Azar, Dave Behrman, Bobbitt, Ed Budde, Ernie Clark, Saimes, Sanders, and Pete Smith. Attempting to fill the gaps next year will be standouts Benson, Charley Brown, Hailey, Lewis, Dewey Lincoln, Steve Mellinger, Chuck Migyanka, Rubick, Matt Snorton, and Dan Underwood.

Fumbles hurt the Spartans as they averaged 3.0 per game to a .7 for their opponents while bettering the opposition in almost every other category.

Fullback George Saimes and center Dave Behrman were named to the All-American teams, and nine of the Spartans were picked in pro-football player drafts. Saimes led in rushing yardage with 661 yards and in average yards per carry with 6.2, while tailback Sherm Lewis led in scoring with 58 points. State's passers had a 39 per cent completion with Smith and Hailey leading the passers and Sanders as the top receiver.

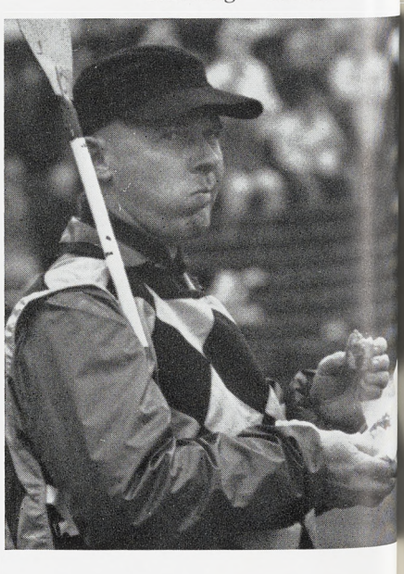

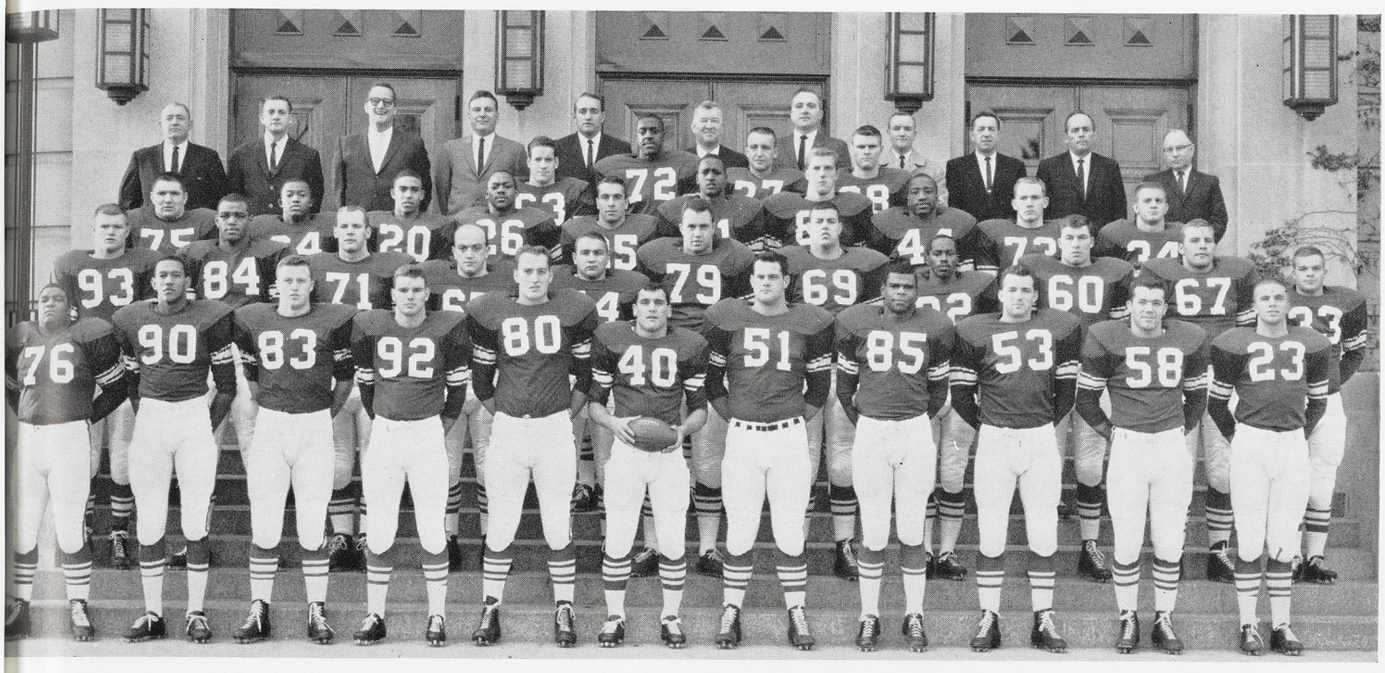

The Boilermaker cheering section was jubilant after a second touchdown that assured a Purdue victory.

After compiling a record of six wins and four losses on their pre-season training trip, Michigan State's baseball team completed its regular season with a 11-9 mark, finishing in a tie with Indiana for fifth place in the Big 10. The Spartans were 6-8 in conference play.

State placed leftfielder Joe Porrevecchio on the first All-Big 10 squad, and infielder Dennis Ketcham and outfielder Jeff Abrecht on the third unit.

Porrevecchio led the conference in home runs with five while hitting a total of seven during the year. He finished fourth in the conference batting race with a .396 mark. Abrecht, in the thick of the fight for the hitting crown all year long, was third with a .406 average. Ketcham hit a fine .280.

First baseman Jerry Sutton, only a sophomore, led the Spartan hitters with a .397 overall mark and belted six home runs. Captain Jerry Lumianski hit .308. The Big Green finished third in the conference batting race averaging .263 as a team while only placing seventh in club fielding with a .943 percentage.

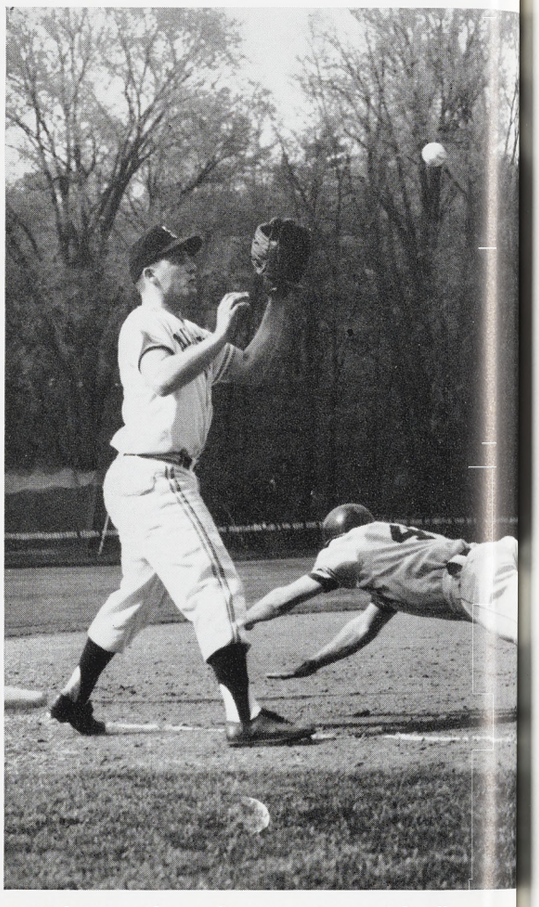

Gary Ronberg, topped State hurlers with a 3.51 earned run average and finished with a 4-1 record. Jack Nutter, 4-2 on the season, compiled a 3.83 ERA and Wes Klewicki had a 5-2 record. His ERA was 4.54.

The Spartans split with the Hawkeyes of Iowa the next weekend, losing 13-10 and winning 7-5. After dropping a 16-13 marathon to the University of Michigan, State lost the next three before getting back into the win column. MSU finished the season by winning four of its last five, sweeping doubleheaders from Indiana and Northwestern on successive Saturdays.

In non-conference play, MSU lost only their final game after decisively winning their first five starts. Highlighting the season was a 7-3 victory over the University of Detroit which snapped the Titans' win streak at 14 games.

BASKETBALL

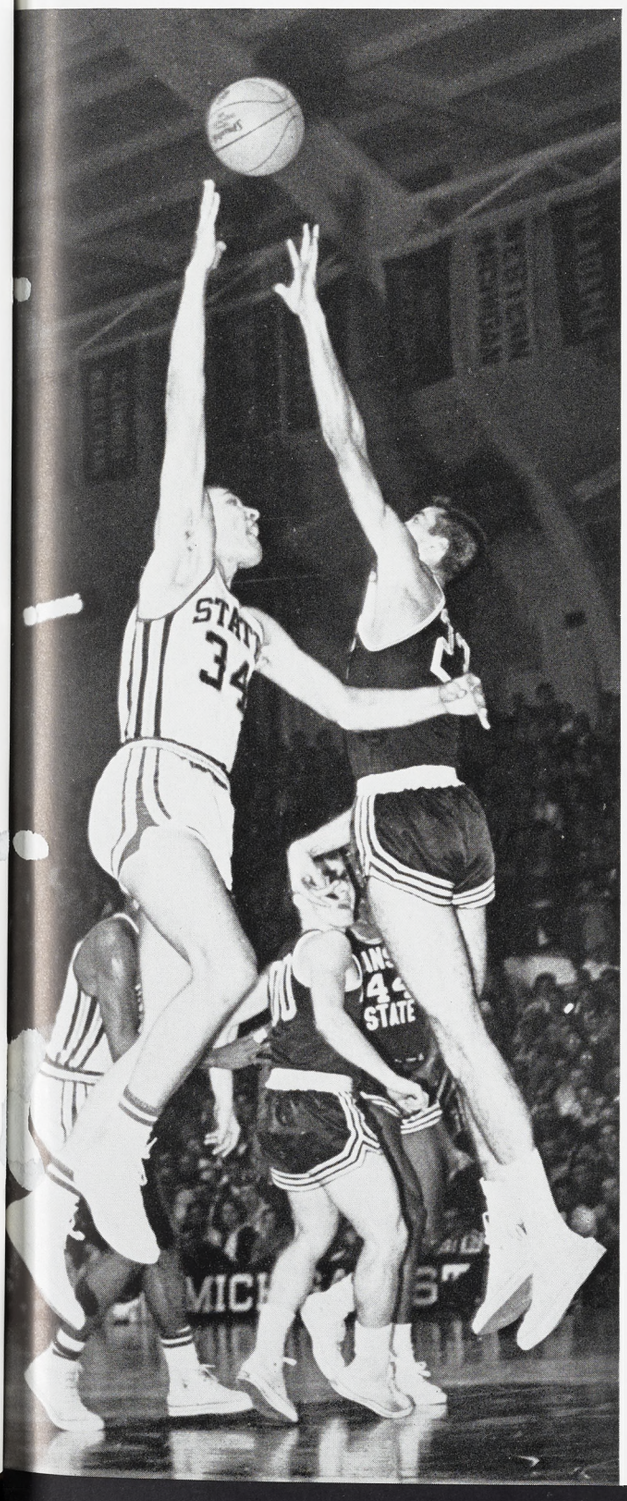

The 1962-63 Michigan State basketball team ran into rough sledding from the beginning of the schedule and finished with a 4-16 overall record. The Spartans, by consistently dropping the close ones in the Big 10, wound up with a 3-11 mark in the Western Conference — and finished ninth.

With a break or two here and there, MSU might have fared a little better. State suffered three one-point losses at Jenison Fieldhouse, losing to Iowa 60-59, Michigan 72-71 and to Purdue 94-93. Wisconsin also beat State 92-89 in overtime.

Characteristic of Spartan basketball was the fast break and the driving layup.

After the heartbreaking defeat to Michigan, State failed to win another game. The nine-game loss streak is the longest in the history of the school since it entered the Big Ten.

Junior Pete Gent, who was selected to the third All-Big 10 team, topped State in total points with 152. Ted Williams and Marcus Sanders finished with point per game averages of 18 and 14.7, respectively.

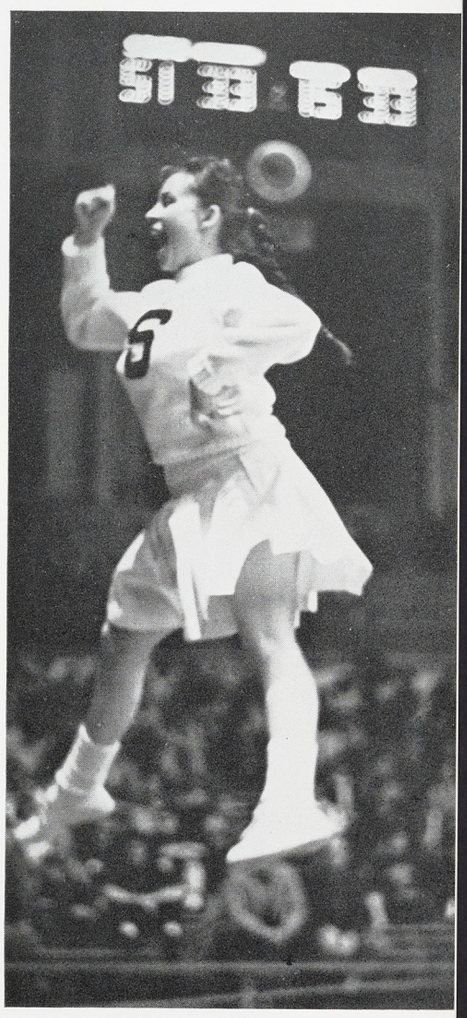

Williams and Captain Jack Lamers both completed their Spartan basketball careers this year.

The Spartan cagers established a "first" of their own this year, however. State became the initial Big 10 team to visit Hawaii over the Christmas holidays. The Spartans began working West shortly after fall term ended and met Kansas, Wichita, Utah and Utah State before spanning the blue waters of the Pacific for a week-long stay in the Islands. There MSU played three games with service teams, winning two and losing one. These games did not count in the final record.

Returning for their home opener, State lost to the Hoosiers of Indiana, 96-84. State went on to upset highly-regarded Wisconsin the next time out, and sandwiched wins over Northwestern and Minnesota around the one-point loss to Iowa.

FENCING

This season marked twenty-five years of coaching for fencing coach Charles Schmitter, and his team presented him a fine gift; MSU's first Big-10 fencing championship since their 1951 entry into conference play. The determined Staters reached their goal with a great team effort and outstanding individual performances. Dick Schloemer gained the conference foil championship, while Lou Salamone and Phil Slayton were finishing one-two respectively in the sabre division and gaining 16 of MSU's 33 points. Defending champion Illinois and Wisconsin pressured the Spartans all afternoon and finished in a tie for second with 31 points.

Coach Amo Bessone's pucksters highlighted their season with a four game sweep over the rival Michigan Wolverines but only finished sixth in the WCHA. State compiled an overall 11-12 mark for the entire season but they only won six and lost ten in Western Collegiate Hockey Association competition.

All-American goalie John Chandik turned in another stand-out year making 699 saves in 92 games. High scorer with 29 points and 15 goals was team captain and center Dick Johnstone. Bob Doyle was not far behind with 27 points and 15 goals. Jim Jacobson was the workhorse of the squad as he had twice as much time on the ice as any of his teammates. SOCCER

Michigan State booters chalked up eight regular season wins on their way to the Eastern Division championship of the Mid-West Conference and added a 4-0 triumph over Howard University in the NCAA quarter-finals. Coach Willard Kenney's squad had a perfect record marred by St. Louis University, which has handed MSU all four of its soccer defeats in the last three years. The Billikens accounted for the Spartan's only two losses of the season, the second coming in the NCAA semi-finals and forcing Michigan State to accept a third place finish.

SWIMMING

Although State swimmers compiled a 9-4 season mark, they were dropped to fifth place in the Big 10 Meet held at Lafayette, Indiana. The only consolation for the Spartans was Jeff Mattson's first place crown in the 100-yard Backstroke division.

Powerful Indiana again captured the Big 10 title and accounted for one of State's losses. The Spartans finished third in the Big 10 Swim Relays which the Hoosiers also dominated.

MSU took third place in the outdoor competition in the Big 10 with 34 2/5 points, while gaining a sixth place finish in the IC4A and a seventh in the CCC.

In the Big 10 Meet, Gerry Young finished first in the two-mile competition. Sherman Lewis was high scorer for the Spartans with seconds in the 100 and 200 yard dashes and a fourth in the broad jump. Herman Johnson also copped a second place in the high hurdles for the thinclads.

According to Coach Dittrich, the team had its main strength in the sprints but was characterized by weaknesses in the weight events. Had it not been for these weaknesses and several injuries to key personnel, a Big 10 Championship might have been forthcoming.

Although the Varsity Tennis team recorded an 8-3 season mark last spring, they could claim only third place in the Big 10 behind Michigan and Northwestern.

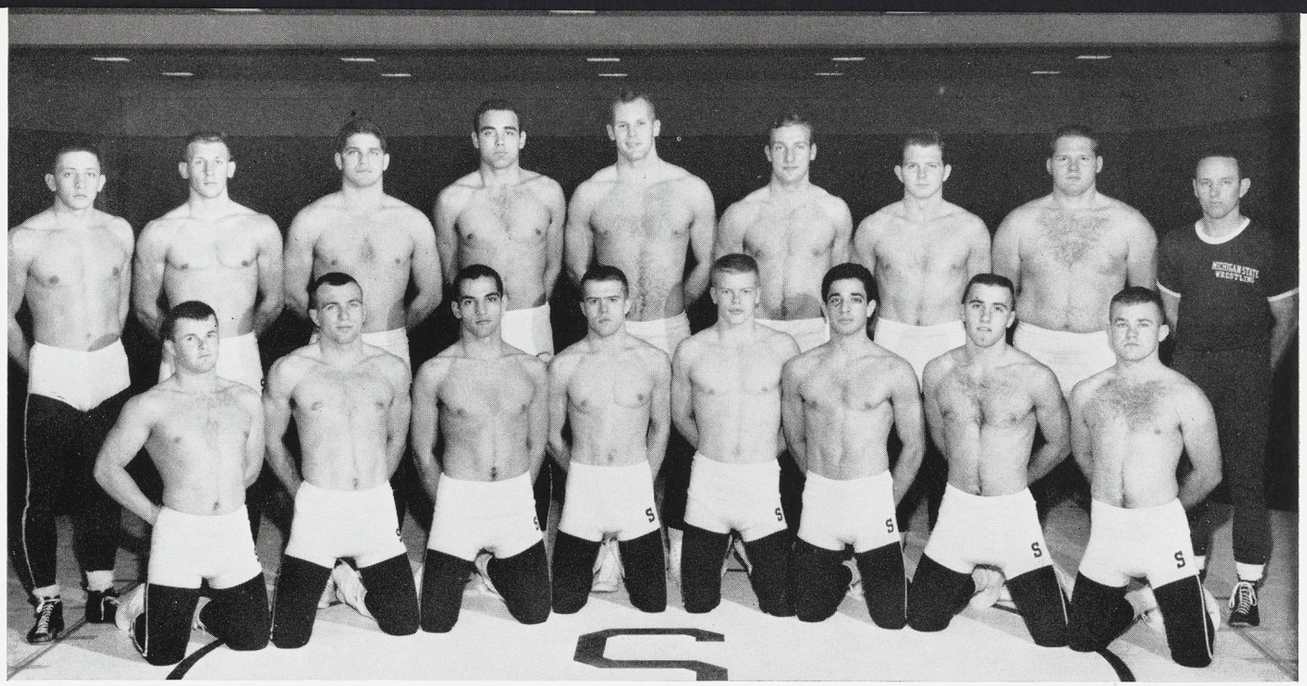

Captain Brian Eisner, playing number one singles for State, finished the regular season with eight wins and three losses. Tom Jamieson was the most consistent winner with 10 victories and only one loss.

Although Coach Stan Drobac switched his doubles combinations during the season, Tom Jamieson and Bill Lau finished with a 5-1 tally, while Eisner and Jack Damson went 4-1.

8th	Big Ten Meet 16

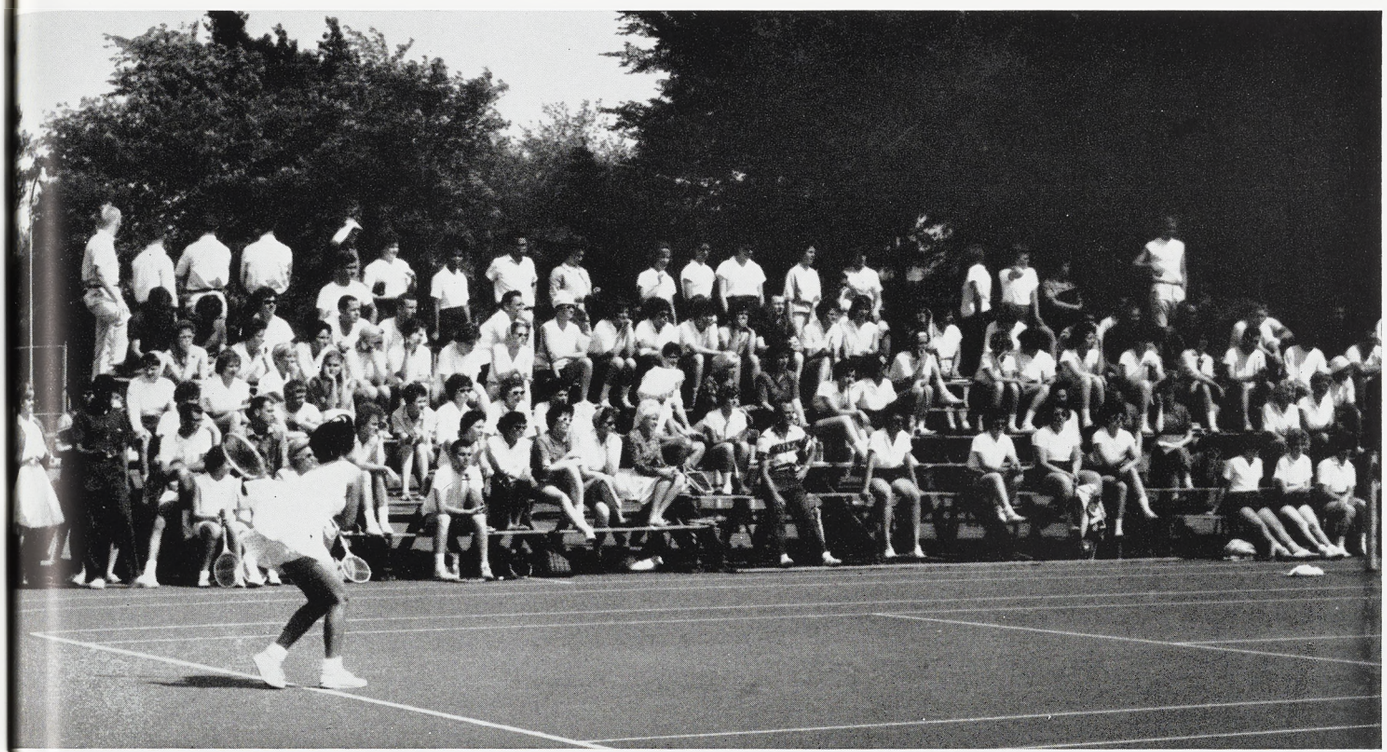

Won 7, Lost 3

Women's intercollegiate sports are on the upswing at MSU. From a start with only tennis nine years ago, the program has expanded to include swimming, field hockey, and gymnastics. Next year more variety could be offered with the possible addition of basketball.

Teams in these women's sports are open to any University coed and are not directly linked to the physical education program. Similar to men's varsity athletics, the women have regular practices and definite schedules of games.

Women's swim coach, Mrs. Ann Chadwick, checks relay times with girls on her squad. The swimmers finished with a 3-1 regular season mark and a runner-up spot in the championships.

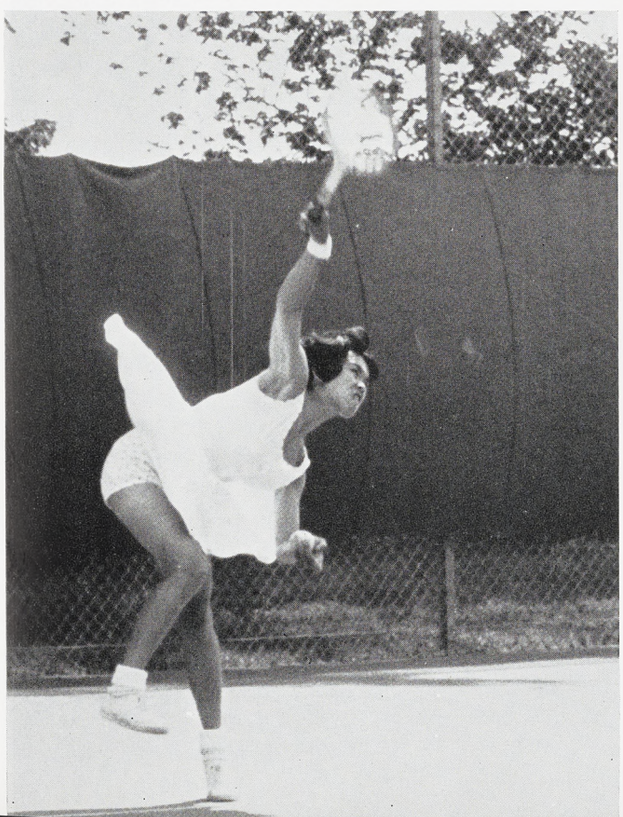

Carole Lum, stand-out performer of the Women's Tennis team, helped draw bleacher-filling Saturday crowds to the South campus clay courts.

Started in 1954, the women's tennis team has progressed a great deal despite many obstacles. Their coach, Miss Lucile Dailey, declares, "The girls don't play for glory, but because they thoroughly enjoy playing the game of tennis."

Winning six out of eight matches last spring, the women compiled another successful season. Their only two losses came at the hands of a highly-rated Hamtramck team.

Anchoring the team was Carole Lum, Honolulu junior. Taty Belasis and Maureen Strait were also instrumental in many winning efforts.

Powerful serves helped account for the successful season enjoyed by the Women's Tennis squad.

A fast start enables a State swimmer to gain an early lead in the 100 yard breaststroke event.

Women swimmers stroked their way to a runner-up spot in the Women's Intercollegiate Championship and a 3-1 regular season record. The Women's Pool was the scene of the first Women's Intercollegiate Championship Meet which featured nine teams including Ohio State, Michigan, and Northern Illinois. Joan TenHoor, Chris Kluter, and Marcia Jones set a new relay record in the losing effort to Michigan at Ann Arbor, while Bowling Green, Miami of Ohio, and Western Ontario all dropped meets to the swimmers. Co-captains for the season were TenHoor and Kluter, who currently holds the National Collegiate Women's crown in the backstroke. Their coach, Mrs. Ann Chadwick, pleased with the team's success, looked forward to the performance of many fine prospects. Gymnastics, under Miss Donna Wiest, is in its first year with tentative meets scheduled for spring term.

Women swimmers work hard during competition in the 100 yard butterfly.

Good scoring punch was characteristic of the Women's Field Hockey team as they compiled a 4-2-2 season mark. On Homecoming morning the women shut out the Alumni 4-0. Other victories were over Valparaiso (5-0), Western Michigan (2-1), and Northwestern (5-1). Michigan and Eastern Michigan accounted for the ties, 2-2 and 1-1 respectively; while losses came at the hands of Kalamazoo (3-2) and Central Michigan (3-0). Jackie Peek was high scorer for the team with ten goals followed by co-captain Margo Lush with six. These girls accounted for all but five regular season goals. With the loss of only two seniors and with new material from the JV team, Miss Dorothy McKnight, the hockey coach, said she anticipates a good season next year for the Spartan women.

Typical of the action in a field hockey game, the Spartan team attempts to parlay good play into a goal.

INTRAMURALS

Michigan State boasts of one of the finest athletic programs in the country. This is because the facilities cater not only to the varsity athlete, but also to the average sports-minded student. This popular program centers around the multi-purpose Men's Intramural Building, designed for both student and faculty needs. Financed by student fees and gate proceeds from home football games, the building is designed to open sports gateways whether on an individual or a competitive team level.

Intramural touch football attracts hundreds of participants every fall. Competition centers around residence hall, fraternity and independent leagues, with top divisional teams going into all-University playoffs. Trophies and medals, which help to stimulate interest, are awarded at each season's completion.

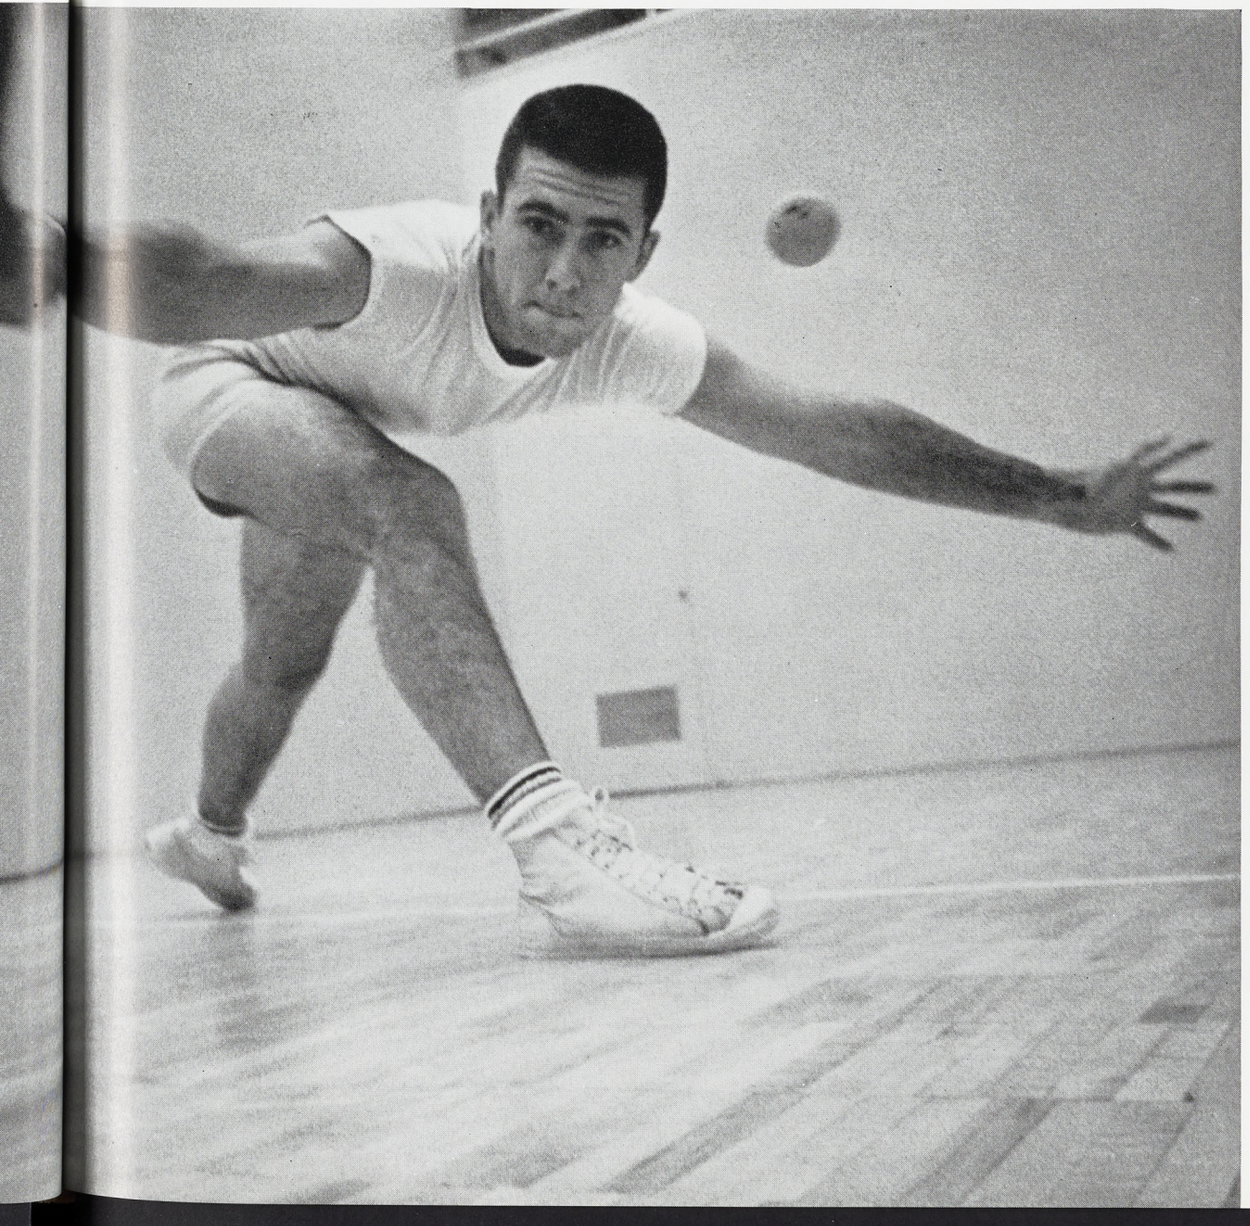

The IM Building, first conceived by Athletic Director Biggie Munn, now houses most of the intramural sports as well as physical education courses and limited varsity activities. The key to this building lies in its functional design. The Intramural sports arena, three gymnasium areas, a dirt arena, besides activity areas for fitness, wrestling, fencing, handball, paddleball, squash, weightlifting, and table tennis, provide facilities for a variety of sporting interests. Many of these areas are easily converted into classrooms and lecture halls, illustrating another utilitarian aspect of this well-designed building.

A player leaps to score a point in Women's IM volleyball.

A determined paddleball player scoops up a low shot in the final round of the Intramural championships.

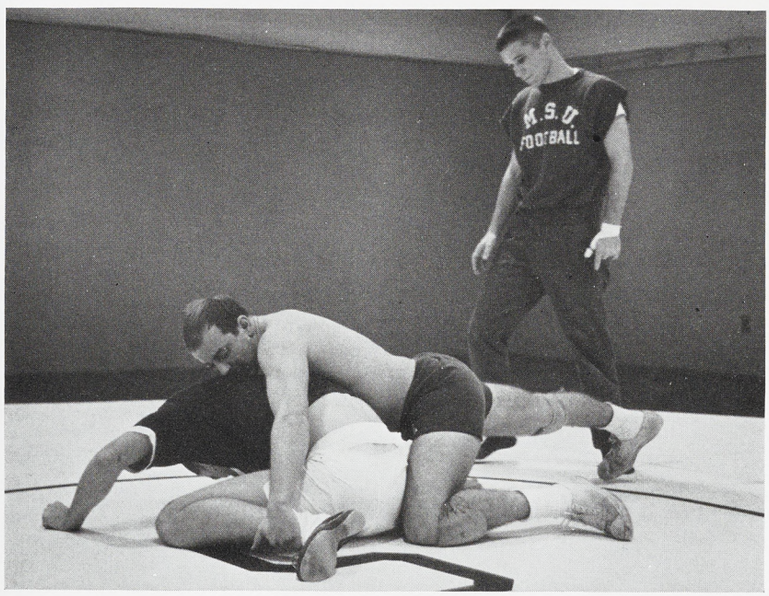

Fast action of a residence hall championship field hockey game typifies the Women's Intramural program.

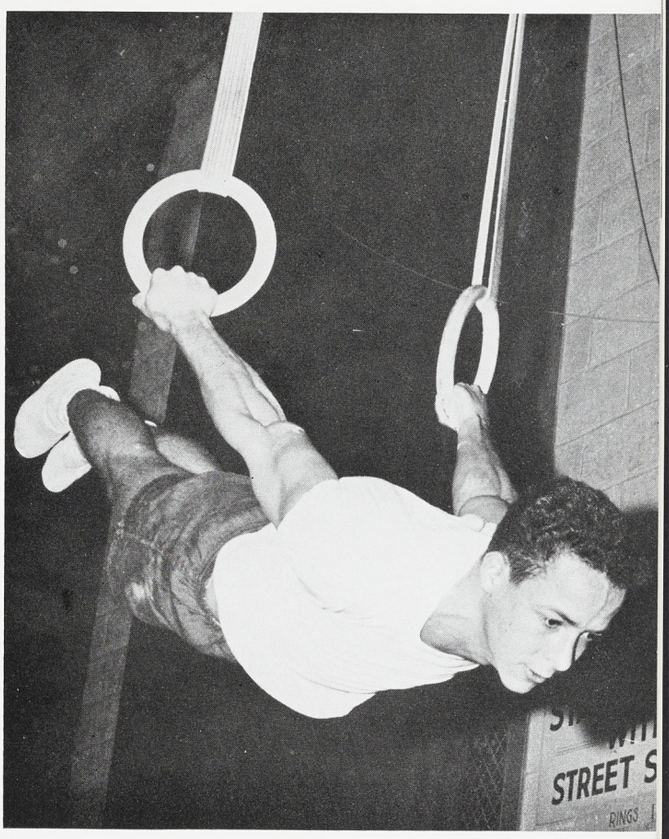

As demand for use of the IM Building becomes increasingly greater, a new and larger program must be determined by Director Harris F. Beeman and his staff. "Even with this big building, we are now turning people away," Beeman said. "Friday evening is co-recreational night when men students, faculty, and staff may bring their dates, their wives and their children over 14 years old. With the popularity of such programs catching on, it is no wonder that the building receives so much use."

State's IM program is a service to students, faculty and staff to be used for leisure or for self-improvement. With this in mind, the department is continually expanding the variety and intensity of its programs to meet the "athletics for all" philosophy with an uncomparable program.

Women's Intramural Building facilities include a gymnasium full of badminton courts.

CHAPTER FOUR

Activities at State are numerous and varied and offer students a chance to relax and let off steam.

This year, as usual, was filled with activities for students. Hundreds and thousands of hours were spent working on Water Carnival, Activities Carnival, Homecoming, J-Hop and countless other student projects. Many more hours went into enjoying the Lecture-Concert presentations, Foreign Film Series, and various sports events.

The University Theater presented "Angel Street," "J.B.," and "Kanjincho," as well as many more productions in their Studio 49 and Summer Circle dramas.

The students had an opportunity to sample the political humor of the British in a debate on Castro's Cuba between the Oxford University and Michigan State debate teams. The match drew the largest crowd in the history of MSU teams.

The intramural program continued its growth with more students than ever using the extensive facilities of the Men's and Women's IM buildings. The programs included organized touch football, wrestling, swimming, hand-ball, softball, and basketball for the men, and field-hockey, volleyball, swimming, tennis and softball for the women. Each sport was divided into teams from the living units and independents and included trophies and medals for each league winner.

Students were not as free with their blood as they were with their athletic abilities, however, as each attempt at a blood drive fell far below the quota and drives from previous years.

Union Board was exceptionally busy presenting activities for all students. Among their projects were weekly dances, bridge instruction, dance instruction, films of all football games played away from home, and of course, the annual Union Board Week. A style show, jazz show and a musical satire on student life were the features of the week.

The Greeks were busy with rush and spent several weeks each term selecting new brothers and sisters to wear the chapter pin and share the responsibilities and advantages of Greek living.

All of the living units built Homecoming displays, constructed floats for Water Carnival and sponsored term parties to relieve the tensions of classes and studies. There were also Christmas parties for under-privileged children and community service programs sponsored by each.

All of the year's activities involved much planning and work and occupied the leisure and sometimes study time of MSU's 25,000 students.

A realistic imitation of Peter, Paul and Mary.

The first stages of planning for Water Carnival include interviews with prospective committee members through rush.

Tension mounts and desks become littered as final deadlines near.

MSU students working on the publications, the State News, Wolverine, Spartan Engineer, and MSU Veterinarian, know very well what a dead-line means. They spent most of their time trying to meet them. Each had their problems trying to get pictures, copy and advertisements organized and to the printers so each publication was available to other students on time.

Deadlines were common to committees organizing and producing Water Carnival, J-Hop, Spinsters' Spin, and almost every other student project, large or small. Fortunately, each deadline was met, some closer than others, but, nevertheless the year can be called successful.

The music of Kenny Davis filled the Union Ballroom where 100 couples danced beneath the "Harvest Moon."

HONORARIES

ALPHA DELTA THETA

Current fashions in the uniform world are modeled by members of Alpha Delta Theta, medical technology honorary sorority, in their annual springtime style show. The women also present the medical aspects of the Peace Corps in a showcase display in Giltner Hall.

ALPHA LAMBDA DELTA

University and community services of Alpha Lambda Delta, freshmen women's honorary, include a student tutoring list and detection of architectural impediments to the handicapped. The coeds sponsor a "Smarty Party" to honor freshmen women with over a 3.3.

BETA ALPHA PSI

Organized in 1954, the Alpha Omicron chapter of Beta Alpha Psi honors outstanding accounting students. Speakers from the accounting field are invited to meetings and mixers help acquaint faculty and students. An alumni banquet is held each spring.

BETA GAMMA SIGMA

Beta Gamma Sigma, the "Phi Beta Kappa of the Business World" recognizes scholarship in the business field. Membership in this honor society is by invitation only and includes faculty as well as students. An annual banquet this spring commemorated its 50th anniversary.

BLUE KEY

An honorary with service goals, Blue Key selects junior and senior men exhibiting leadership in student affairs and maintaining above the all-university men's average. The men select Miss MSU and encourage male National Merit Scholarship winners to attend MSU.

Row One: D. Foster, sec.; K. Beachler, v. pres.; B. Doerner, pres.; G. Chesley, treas.; D. Baer; G. Holmes. Row 2: B. Johnson; K. Jesmore; W. Khadduri; B. Howard; D. Graff; B. Andringa; B. Burns.

CHI EPSILON

A plan to award the outstanding freshman in civil engineering was begun this year by Chi Epsilon, civil engineering honorary. The chapter recognizes students exemplifying the traits of the successful engineer: scholarship, character, practicality and sociability.

CIRCLE HONORARY

Women excelling in leadership, citizenship and service in residence halls are recognized by Circle Honorary. In addition to reading to blind students, the organization co-sponsors the Spinster's Spin and presents an annual talent show. Coeds are tapped winter term.

Row One: F. Doran; J. Gordon, treas.; B. Luce, v. pres.; E. Dombrowski, pres.; M. Anderson, sec.; A. Kaplan; R. Hamilton. Row 2: B. Boyer; E. Ochis; S. Vigneault; C. Lum; N. Jelinek; G. Jameson; K. ETA KAPPA NU

Eta Kappa Nu, electrical engineering honorary, aids engineering students in departmental registration. Members are chosen from the upper third of the senior and from the top fourth of the junior class. A yearly spring banquet also honors these exceptional students.

GREEN HELMET

Assisting at registration and in information booths are two service functions of Green Helmet, sophomore men's honorary. Members also tutor throughout the year. To qualify for membership a man must have a 3.5 all-college for the first two terms and receive a two-thirds vote.

Row One: K. Poling; B. Herz; H. Levin, treas.; J. Wierda, pres.; D. Roberts, sec.; A. Glick, v. pres.; P. Holley. Row 2: F. Martin; D. Bullock; N. Robertson; J. Whitney; C. Baugh; R. Schaller; W. Excalibur members act as escorts for the Homecoming queen and court and as guards for May Morning Sing. Chosen for character, leadership and service to the University, new members are knighted at Homecoming and Water Carnival. The 13-member honorary organization, existing only at MSU, recognizes an outstanding faculty member each year by a Distinguished Teachers Award.

EXCALIBUR

A special Excalibur room in the basement of Coral Gables is reserved for their Thursday meetings.

Row One: K. Beachler, pres.; A. Schramm; G. Holmes; J. Chandler; A. Valcanoff; S. Keesler, adv. Row 2: B. Doerner; B. Andringa; W. Khadduri; F. Levine; B. Howard; T. Plough; B. Burns.

KAPPA DELTA PI

Kappa Delta Pi, education honorary, recognizes students in the College of Education who distinguish themselves by making major contributions to education. Members act as hosts to Future Teacher clubs visiting the campus and present an "Outstanding Senior" award.

MORTAR BOARD

Through calendar sales, Mortar Board, national senior women's honorary, raises money to contribute to a scholarship fund for MSU students. Their project this year was sending personal letters to National Merit Scholarship finalists to interest them in attending MSU.

Row One: D. Hanna; L. Hobbs, v. pres.; J. Koopman, pres.; M. Anderson, sec.; M. Vaughan, treas.; M. Hollen. Row 2: J. Webb; S. Aitken; L. Taylor; P. Dumas; J. Price; J. Frost; A. Clark.

Row One: M. Martell; B. Loder; J. Davidson, pres.; M. Gaige, v. pres.; S. Aitken, sec.; M. Garlick.

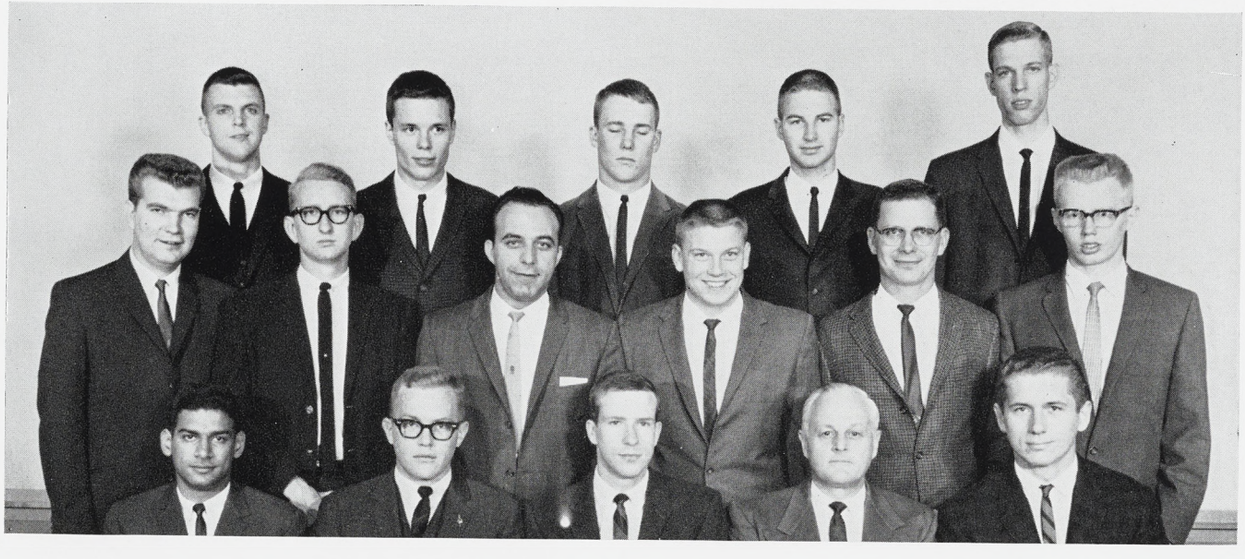

OMICRON NU

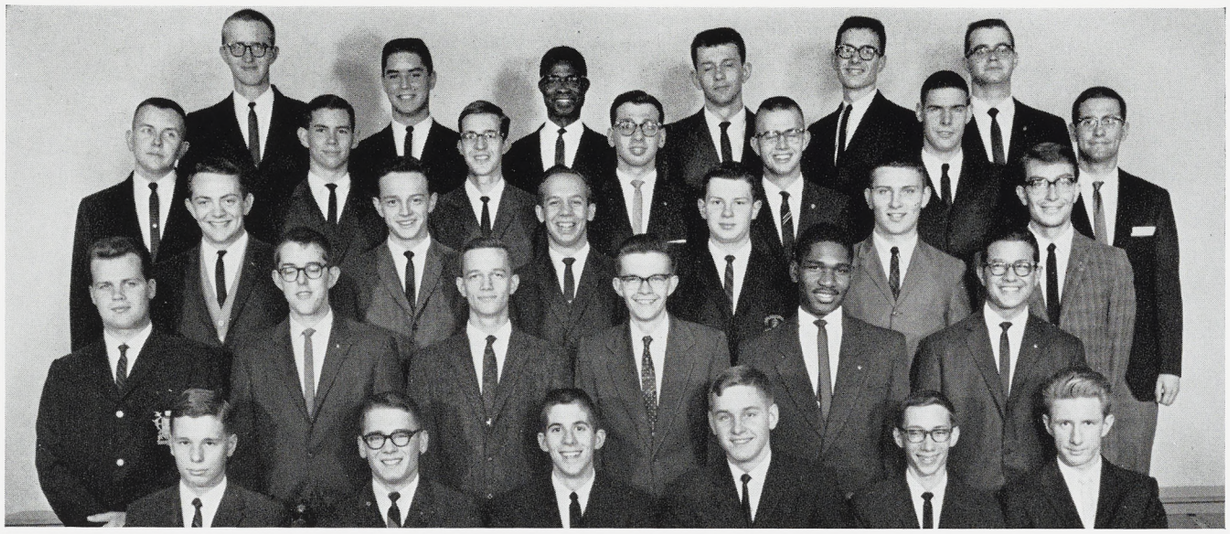

The national offices of Omicron Nu, home economics honorary, are located on campus. Promoting scholarship, research and professionalism, the organization recognizes home economics students with a 3.2 or above. Members include a Peace Corps volunteer in Peru.

PI TAU SIGMA

Pi Tau Sigma, national honorary mechanical engineering fraternity, encourages interest in the school of mechanical engineering and fosters ideals of the profession. The MSU chapter attempts to create a balance between the technical and social interests of its members.

PHI ETA SIGMA

Issuing a tutoring list to living units is a service of Phi Eta Sigma, freshman men's honorary. To belong, a man needs a 3.5 all-college after fall, winter or spring term of his freshman year. The group also presents a $50 scholarship to the sophomore having the highest average after winter term. This fall, a picnic was held with Tower Guard, Green Helmet and Alpha Lambda Delta.

Officers call to remind members of coming meetings.

Row One: T. Hewett; J. Dann; W. Williams, v. pres.; J. Hudek, pres.; B. Pagel, sec.; D. Gantz; J. DeVet.

SPARTAN ENGINEERS

National Merit Scholarship winners and high school valedictorians qualify for the Spartan Engineers, honorary organization for freshmen engineers. The 35-member group acts as a nucleus in forming activities for freshmen engineering students.

SIGMA DELTA CHI

The student chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional society for journalists, helps with the annual high school journalism workshop and is instrumental in getting regional newsmen to speak on campus. This winter they attended a dinner of the Detroit professional chapter.

Row One: A. Royce, treas.; E. McCray, adv.; V. Rauch, pres.; D. Krinsky, v. pres.; D. Middleton, sec. Row 2: B. Burns; D. Gosselin; B. Fabricant; S. Cole.

Row 2: W. Essex; T. Halberg; C. Jagoe; R. Bach.

SIGMA LAMBDA CHI

Sigma Lambda Chi honorary, associated with the National Association of Home Builders, sponsors displays at various home shows in the Lansing area. They also annually stage a spring awards banquet and operate a loan fund to render student financial aid to departmental majors.

SIGMA PI ETA

Sigma Pi Eta, restaurant, hotel and institutional management honorary, publishes the "Spartan Innkeeper," the HRI alumni newsletter, and a senior brochure. The brochure includes a resume of graduating seniors to introduce MSU's HRI talent to industry leaders.

Row One: E. Kieckhefer, treas.; H. Markevics, v. pres.; P. Bash, pres.; W. Mann. Row 2: D. Baer; Q. Wilda; J. Wise; R. Abruzzi. Not Present: J. Applegate; R. Diener; R. Fabian; G. Hamilton; M. Kabat; L. Kreamer; R. Pauline; G. Schumaker; A. Zelkoff.

Row One: W. Pecknold, sec.; B. Smith, pres.; K. Malich, v. pres.; W. Martin. Row 2: P. Stewart, treas.; M. Allen; C. Neubecker; J. McDowell; E. Johnson.

TAU BETA PI

A brass bent, emblem of Tau Beta Pi, national engineering honor society, was mounted on the Engineering building this fall. Also fall term the group sent its president to the national convention in Long Beach, California and held a banquet following fall initiation.

THETA ALPHA PHI

Each spring when the motion picture industry awards its Oscars, MSU actors and actresses are presented "Spartys" by Theta Alpha Phi, national theater honorary. The group also arranges opening night coffee hours and receptions for visiting Lecture-Concert artists.

Row One: K. Peck, pres.; E. Kelly; L. Meech; D. Krinsky, treas. Row 2: L. Stone; S. Watts; P. Pinkstaff; D. Nichols.

Ferrar.

TOWER GUARD

Beaumont Tower is the scene of weekly Tower Guard meetings. Members of the sophomore women's honorary, chosen for leadership, character, scholarship and service, read to blind students, help at registration and tutor in freshmen courses. Coeds are tapped in May.

XI SIGMA PI

The objectives of Xi Sigma Pi, forestry honor society, encourage and recognize superior scholastic standards and promote good relations among forestry workers. Each year the name of the sophomore with the highest grade point is engraved on a plaque.

Row One: N. Mo; D. White, adv.; M. Beres; W. Ellsworth, for.; G. Rose, assoc. for.; R. Scranton; T. Stevens; P. Nordwall. Row 2: J. Wright; P. Robbins; K. Hudson; V. Rudolph; H. Kikukawa; L. Carten; J. Ruby; L. Widner.

ACCOUNTING AND FINANCE CLUB

Established for business majors, the Accounting and Finance Club holds an annual spring internship roundtable. This provides winter public accounting interns an opportunity to relate and discuss their experiences. Another spring event is the faculty-student picnic.

AGRICULTURE ECONOMICS CLUB

Open to undergraduate students interested in agricultural economics and related fields, the Agricultural Economics Club provides an opportunity to investigate and discuss problems in farm management and economics. They work with Ag Council on the Ox-Roast.

Row One: C. Micongwe; J. Taylor, treas.; J. Bremer, pres.; D. Behrenwald, v. pres.; R. Eder, sec. Row 2: C. Hoglund; J. Bartholomew; S. Scholtens; G. Ramsey; T. Dietz; C. Eicher. Row 3: J. Wissman; N. Bills; L. Parks; W. Parson; D. Bandt.

ARNOLD AIR SOCIETY

A record-breaking 2,225 pints of blood were collected last year in the Arnold Air Society sponsored blood drive. These cadets also take orphans to MSU football and basketball games. The main event on their social calendar is the Coronation Ball held during the fall.

ANGEL FLIGHT

Chosen on the basis of poise, personality, interest and grade point, Angel Flight coeds play hostess at Air Force functions. Members of this sister organization of Arnold Air Society also modeled various WAF uniforms on television and assisted at the campus blood drives.

AGRONOMY CLUB

The Agronomy Club provides the opportunity for undergrads in the College of Agriculture to meet and discuss common problems in feeding the nation. The vocational group participates in the Harvest Ball, Ox Roast, Farmers' Week, and a student-faculty barbeque.

BETA BETA BETA

Tri-Beta, biological science honorary, aims at stimulating scholarship, promoting the spread of scientific truth and furthering research. Full membership requires a junior or senior status or 20 credits of biology, but provisional standing is offered to top biology students.

An appreciation of livestock and an interest in the livestock industry is the only requirement for membership in Block and Bridle. The club earned top honors in intercollegiate judging contests throughout the nation this year. Although the highlight of the year is the annual spring term horse show, fall and spring livestock judging contests fill the remainder of the year.

Sharon Kuslick placed first at the spring show in the women's horsemanship class and then out-rode other winners in the horsemanship stake.

DAIRY CLUB

The Dairy Club is open to all students interested in dairy and food science. The annual highlight of the club is the "Bean Feed," a dinner for students and faculty of the department of dairy and food science interested in the activities of the club.

ENGINEERING COUNCIL

Acting as coordinator for the various engineering organizations, the Engineering Council sponsors the May Hop and the Engineering Exposition. The exposition consists of some industrial exhibits, but mainly emphasizes student work to appeal to the high school student.

WOLVERINE EDITORIAL

From the first stages of theme and continuity until the final page proofs are returned to the printer, the Wolverine editorial staff's work keeps mounting. The year proves to be one built around deadlines, the majority of which are missed. From under a pile of curling photos and masses of copy, final decisions are made and the presses start rolling. All that is left is the waiting—and the planning of next year's book.

Before any writing can be sent to the printer, copy and caption blocks must be measured and character-count determined.

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL

Freshmen, not allowed to visit fraternities during fall rush under the deferred system, were given an opportunity to see them at an open house in the Union sponsored by Inter-Fraternity Council. The houses set up displays of trophies, flags, scrapbooks and other fraternity symbols. Each house was limited as to the number of men present, insuring equal representation.

WOMEN'S INTER-RESIDENCE COUNCIL

Women's Inter-residence Council, consists of 20 elected representatives from women's halls, coordinate inter-hall activities and policies. This year WIC joined with Men's Hall Association to bring the Big Ten Residence Halls Association secretariat to MSU.

PRESIDENTS' COUNCIL

Every other week women's hall presidents meet informally to discuss issues pertinent to the halls. The President's Council acts as a means of informing the women of various activities happening on campus. It also gives them a chance to discuss common problems.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

The official sorority spokesman, PanHellenic Council is composed of rush chairmen and their assistants. Together with IFC, PanHel sponsors Greek Week and the IFC-PanHel Ball. The council engages in the Okemos cancer drive and presents high scholarship awards.

JUNIOR PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

Made up of pledge representatives, Junior PanHellenic Council assisted Senior PanHel with rush publicity through rush panels in women's halls to answer rushees' questions about Greek living. Winter pledges were invited to a get-together in the Union.

MEN'S HALL ASSOCIATION

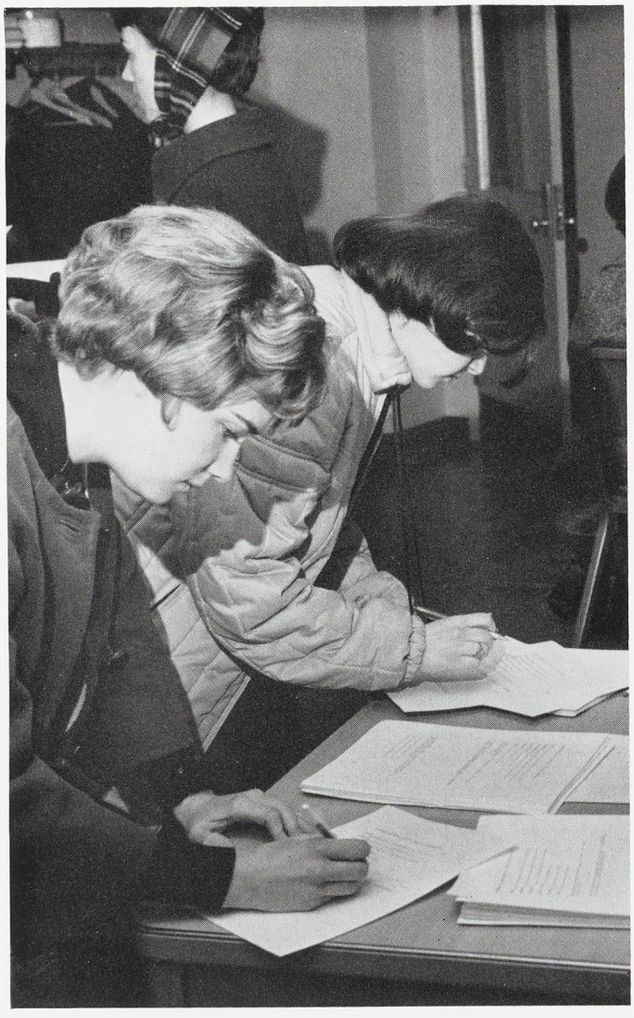

Optional coats and ties for dinner in men's residence halls is a regulation passed fall term by Men's Hall Association. Block "S" and scholarship, Homecoming and blood drive trophies are all MHA projects. They also provide rooms for Alumni Distinguished Scholarship applicants visiting for a weekend each winter and for Campus United Nations representatives.

WATER CARNIVAL

The activities of Greek Week and Parents' Weekend were culminated in Water Carnival, the annual senior class project in which all living units participate. The "Pseudo" theme produced floats varying from Cinderella and her fairy godmother to a southern mansion backed by a tarpaper shack. Trophies were awarded on the basis of theme, continuity, and appearance.

UNION BOARD

Co-ordinating student activities within the Union, Union Board is divided into seven committees. A European summer flight, bridge instruction and tournaments, dance lessons, "Last Chance" lectures and UB Week are among the activities sponsored by the group.

UNION BOARD DIRECTORS

The responsibility of the Union Board of Directors is formulating UB policies and communicating with building management. It is made up of seven committee chairmen, three officers and two members-at-large. It represents a UB member's greatest recognition.

SENIOR CLASS COUNCIL

Each spring the Senior Council for the coming year is elected on the basis of academic standing and activities. The group strives to better spirit and communication among seniors. Their activities include '63 Club, Senior Swing-Out, Commencement, Water Carnival and selection of the Homecoming Queen in conjunction with Kappa Alpha Mu. They also select Seniors of the Week and of the Year.

FROSH-SOPH COUNCIL

New projects and activities marked the Frosh-Soph year. One of the most far-reaching was the Spartan Ambassadors. These individuals talked at their respective high schools to tell prospective college students about State. The council presented two publications: "Frosh-Soph Focus" and "Frosh-Soph Story," sponsored the Four Preps, and cut a long-play recording of songs heard frequently on campus, "Echoes of MSU."

J-COUNCIL

Faculty and students joined forces to present "Faculty Fling," a variety show sponsored fall term by J-Council. The Council also revised the class constitution, carolled at the Bogue Nursing Home, and sponsored J-Day, a winter outing for juniors at Mount Holly.

J-COUNCIL EXECUTIVE BOARD

Chairmen of J-Council committees and junior class officers compose the J-Council executive board. They formulate the ideas to be brought before the general council. These issues are then discussed and voted upon by the Council and carried out by committees.

J-HOP

"Oz" was reported more financially successful than any previous J-Hop by co-chairmen Jamie Blanchard and Nancy Lewis. A two-band theory was initiated, with the Dave Brubeck Quartet playing during intermission for jazz enthusiasts and Hal Munro's orchestra supplying the dancing sounds. Free refreshments and favors handed out at the door were other firsts.

The J-Council organizational chart includes J-Hop.

CHAPTER FIVE

Residences are places to study, sleep, eat, socialize and are a student's temporary home at school.

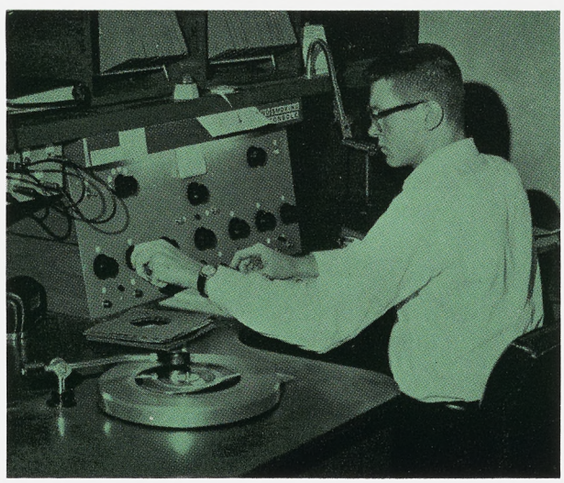

Finding room to house the 25,000-plus students registering for classes last fall might seem an insurmountable task. It wasn't easy for the 11 percent increase in student enrollment put the available space at a premium. By converting Rather and Butterfield Halls, formerly men's housing, to female living units; opening another residence hall for men and women; and putting three students in rooms meant for two, 11,500 students were packed into space built for 9,500.

The new residence, Wilson Hall, houses 1,400 men and women and Wonders and McDonel, scheduled to open in the fall, will each house the same. These new halls will bring the total of on-campus undergraduate student units to five men's residence halls, 13 women's residences and four coed units.

Experience in group housekeeping is available to women living in Van Hoosen. The building contains 32 apartments, each complete with a living-study room, kitchen-dining room, bedroom, and bath. Each apartment accommodates up to six residents.

Also included in the University-owned housing are three married student living complexes: University Village, Spartan Village and Cherry Lane Apartments. The three combined provide 2,056 furnished apartments for student families. Graduate students occupy single or double rooms in Owen Graduate Center, two modern seven-story units at the eastern edge of campus.

Off-campus facilities include 31 fraternities, 19 sororities, seven co-ops and five religious units. These units are continually changing location to enlarge their facilities. Four Greek houses are to be completed within a year while two others are putting on additions. Many students prefer living in apartments, especially since the housing rules now allow students over 21 to live in unapproved housing. Male students under 21 may live in approved housing and women of the same age are allowed to live in approved units with supervision. Several apartment buildings are under construction in East Lansing to help with the expected increase in enrollment next fall. This increase is consistent with the expected enrollment of 35,000 by 1966.

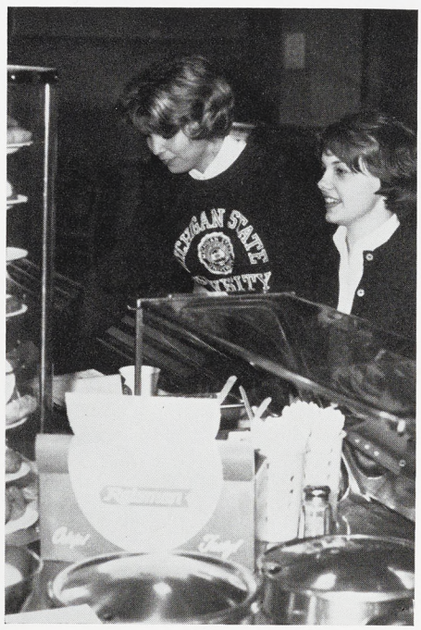

Shaw Hall operates its own student radio station.

RESIDENCES

The success of the Case complex and the Graduate Center has brought about a movement toward coed living units. With the opening of Wilson this past fall, the conversion of the Brody group into coed facilities, and the scheduled opening of McDonnel and Wonders Hall this fall, these coed units may soon dominate campus living. This movement is also consistent with the popularity of large residence halls on campus, for these facilities house 1,400 students.

Art exhibitions are part of the University's program to widen the areas of student knowledge and appreciation.

Coeds sometimes resist the temptation of those caloric foods in the grill.

Santa didn't forget the younger campus residents.

An accompanist is recruited for a songfest.

ABBOT

Following all home football games, the women of Abbot Hall held coffee hours. On weekends not filled with campus activities, Abbot put on dances and movies in conjunction with Mason Hall. Sportswise, they placed first in IM swimming for women's halls. Christmastime found the women busily trimming trees and decorating. In addition they maintained a 2.37 average.

BUTTERFIELD

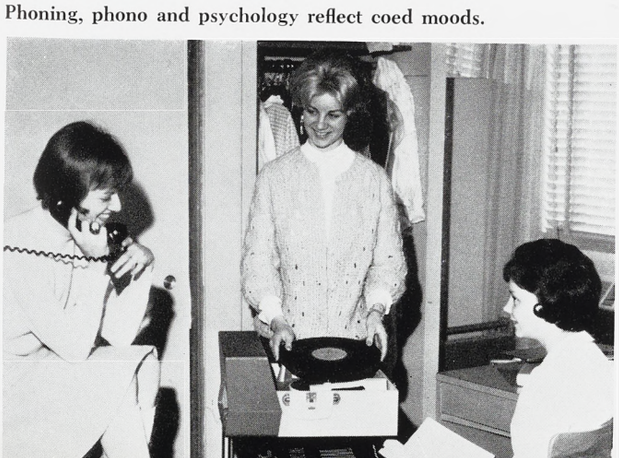

Recently converted into a women's dorm, Butterfield participates in many campus activities, especially IM sports. Together with their brother dorm Bailey, they held a Christmas party for underprivileged children.

NORTH CAMPBELL

Contrary to North Campbell's problem of placing 2nd or 3rd in competitive activities, the 1962 Homecoming Queen was a North Campbell resident. In scholarship they tied for 3rd among small women's halls and honored girls having over a 3.0 with a dinner. Social events include a senior dinner at which underclassmen serve the seniors. Gifts are presented to graduates.

SOUTH CAMPBELL

The women of South Campbell used their hall dues this year to purchase a set of encyclopedias for their library. In addition to participating in University activities, the coeds provide a needy Lansing area family with food and toys at Christmas. To close their social year, they hold an annual spring term party. Three of the four major Circle Honorary officers are residents.

EAST LANDON

Spring term finds more than goldfish in Landon's pool. Busboys, residents and pedestrians often find themselves the victims of "pooling." Another hobby of East Landon coeds is golf, for which they copped first place in IM competition. At Christmastime, they donate a food basket, clothes and gifts to a needy family. A term party and a senior banquet complete the year.

WEST LANDON

Well-represented in campus activities, West Landon's "melodious" coeds placed first in the 1963 Inter-R Sing and second in 1962. Their IM activities include volleyball, swimming, softball, and bowling, in which they placed second in the all-University race. Traditionally West Landon women sponsor a needy family at Christmas, presenting them with clothing, food and gifts.

MASON

"Go for the Gophers" won second place among women's halls Homecoming competition for Mason women. Besides treating blind children at Halloween, the women gave a Christmas party for over 100 children of hall employees. To honor outstanding residents a "Girl of the Week" is named. On a smaller scale, one ingenious precinct also picks the "Rabbit of the Week."

Card playing provides a break from studies.

EAST MAYO

The women of East Mayo have antiquated the exchange dinner custom and replaced it with exchange football "blocks." For each home game the coeds reserved a block with a men's hall. Fall term also brought their Halloween party "Trick or Treat Twirl." However, their interest in academics was demonstrated as they placed first scholastically last spring among small women's halls.

WEST MAYO

Trophy-collecting plays a large part in West Mayo life. Recent additions include first place in the blood drive for women's halls and in IM swimming. The coeds also placed third in Inter-Residence Hall Sing, Junior 500 women's division and in the Floriculture Show. Scholarship and sports banquets acknowledge exceptional work and accomplishments for the hall.

PHILLIPS

Phillips' trophy case houses a unique trophy for "Wonderfulness." Its history reveals another Phillips tradition, that of warmth and friendliness. This wonderfulness is seen in the food baskets prepared for needy families at Christmas. They also rank first in scholarship for large women's halls for the third straight year and hold a dinner each term for 3 point residents.

Complete comfort is the rule for study.

RATHER

One of Rather's prize-winning coeds walked off with 1st in class and 2nd in show at the annual flower show, while another won the IM contemporary dance championship. The hall participates in "Presidential Broadcasts," a Brody radio presentation, their winter topic being a philosophical view of the hall government. The coeds took blind children on a Christmas outing.

SNYDER

"Snyder Snippings" reports weekly the activities of the dorm and its residents, such as winning 3rd place for their Homecoming display among women's dorms. Besides the news bulletin, the "Snyder Girl of the Week" recognizes girls in the dorm for outstanding work in the dorm or on campus. A $50 scholarship is also presented each term to a resident chosen by the scholarship office.

VAN HOOSEN

Consistently winner of the women's hall scholarship award, this year Van Hoosen boasts of six beauty queens. Annually the coeds host a Chuck Wagon party after the first football game. Upperclass women with a 2.2 and above are eligible for this women's co-op.

GILCHRIST

Gilchrist seniors may look forward to an annual senior banquet in their honor and to an Outstanding Senior award. Hall relations are aided as the freshmen residents present "Freshmen Skit Nights" for upperclassmen. The annual term party adds the finale to the year.

NORTH WILLIAMS

The Christmas holidays cause much activity in North Williams. Festivities include prizes for unique door decorations and a traditional tree trimming party. The coeds also supply games, carols, refreshments and gifts from Santa for underprivileged children. Graduating senior and residents ranking high scholastically are recognized at banquets given in their honor.

SOUTH WILLIAMS

South Williams compensates for being one of the smallest women's halls by entering campus events enthusiastically. Homecoming, Water Carnival, Jr. 500, Inter-R Sing, Campus Chest and IM Sports encourage individual talents, an aim of the hall. The women held a Christmas party for Lansing area orphans and closed out the year with a spring party and senior banquet.

EAST YAKELEY

The women of East Yakeley held their annual spring term party jointly with West Yakeley and Armstrong halls. Water fountains, gay colors, columns, and gardinias carried out the Roman theme in the Brody ballroom. East Yakeley is divided into a three house system. These units hold individual events as well as joining in hall activities and in sports competition among themselves.

WEST YAKELEY

The coeds of West Yakeley participate in Homecoming, Water Carnival, Junior 500 and in IM field hockey, swimming and volleyball. In addition they take part in the campus blood drives and have organized a hall choir. At Christmas the women share their holiday spirit with the Lansing School for the Blind. The hall ranks 4th among small women's halls with a 2.45 all-university average.

NORTH CASE

Dates are no problem for North Case women. These lucky coeds run into males even when spending a quiet evening in the hall. Working closely with the men of South Case on campus activities like Water Carnival and Homecoming, they also hold steak dinners, athletic events and mixers with the adjoining hall. Having classes within the building creates relaxed student-faculty relations.

SOUTH CASE

Though comparatively new, South Case has a considerable array of trophies. Top honors in IM basketball and in the spring blood drive for men's halls went to South Case along with 2nd place in IM bowling. While not coming off with a prize, the men reached the Junior 500 finals. Recently they added a 2nd place trophy which they won with North Case for their Homecoming display.

WEST WILSON

In their first year on campus, the coeds of West Wilson broke the campus greeting card tradition by sending their money to UNICEF. Each house sponsored a party for orphans. The women also collected their share of trophies, placing first in Inter-R Sing and gaining the status of "champs" in ping-pong and bowling. Their educational program includes "College Bowl" debates.

EAST WILSON

Provost lunches and a student-operated library add to life in East Wilson. At the "Book Bop," the men were able to collect 750 paperbacks, bringing the number up to 2,000. Other efforts were rewarded as they placed 2nd in IM football. The men also polished a few apples by inviting the faculty of the Case-Wilson complex to a Valentine dance at which their queen was crowned.

BAILEY

The "Bailey Men" award is given to the man exhibiting outstanding leadership during the year at a banquet honoring hall leaders in the spring. Two $50 scholarships, given to men with high academic averages, offer excellent incentive, for Bailey men placed first in scholarship in the Brody group last spring. A Christmas party for underprivileged children is held by the men.

BRYAN

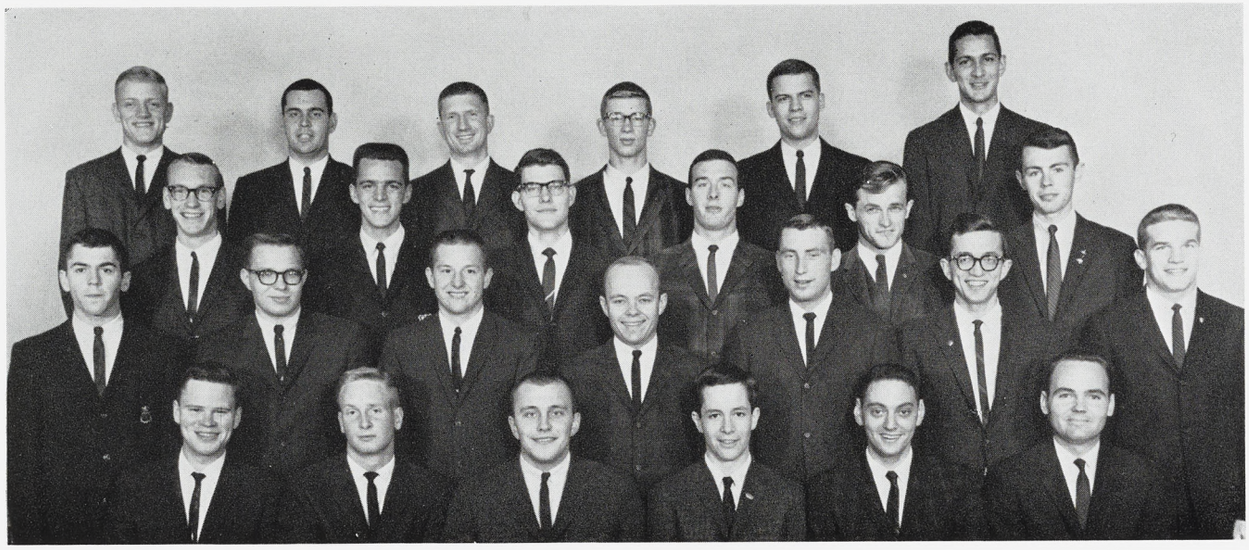

School spirit is traditional in Bryan Hall where the men participate in Block S, pep rallies, and even formed their own block at the Purdue game last fall. The residents include the chairmen of both Spartan Spirit and of Block S. The men award four $25 book scholarships each year to hall residents and hold a Christmas party for orphans.

The men forgot political differences long enough to win the all-university badminton championship and to hold a Christmas party for underprivileged children. Emmons consistently ranks in the top four men's halls scholastically.

EAST SHAW

Lectures, movies, dances and a library are all provided for the residents of East Shaw Hall, last year's IM sports champs. Placing second in both Homecoming displays and scholastics, the men have organized a unique student government, using a 68-member mass general council.

ARMSTRONG

Turkey champs, the men of Armstrong walked off with two fowls in the annual Turkey Trot. They collected $100 from residents, giving $50 Thanksgiving baskets to two needy Lansing area families. Fall term also brought third place in men's residence hall Homecoming displays.

WEST SHAW

Homecoming weekend for the past four years has brought West Shaw top honors for their display. In the serious vein, Sunday night means classical music. The program over Shaw radio includes a description of the composer's life and style. To promote participation in the Lecture-Concert series, West Shaw procures tickets in blocks. Scholastically, they placed first among men.

Campus apartments are home for over 2,050 married students and their families.

MARRIED HOUSING

From a meager beginning—trailers and war surplus "shacks" in 1945-46,—married housing has developed into a three-village, 2,056 apartment complex. With the enrollment of veterans rising after the war, the number of married students necessitated the creating of special housing. Michigan State became the pioneer in married housing, beginning with a 50-trailer park in Lansing. These trailers were next moved to campus on a 400-trailer area, while still other families were living in temporary barracks. Ten years ago University Village was begun and since then Spartan Village and Cherry Lane Apartments have been constructed. This puts State far into the lead in married housing.

Young Spartan Village residents enjoy supporting the winter flock of ducks.

Work and play mix very well in the three married-housing villages. Of the 6,000-plus residents of Spartan Village, University Village, and Cherry Lane, there are nearly 2,000 children.

Father or mother can study in peace and quiet while their children play in the large playgrounds equipped with swings, slides and jungle gyms. When the time comes for the parents to relax or play, the playgrounds are the setting for badminton, softball or football.

Study hours drag long into the night after the family is asleep and the house is again quiet.

The bi-level buildings are built in U-shaped units to provide some privacy and parking space for one car to each apartment.

Each village is different, but is basically built around the same idea of providing the maximum amount of living space, with the maximum amount of parking area in a minimum amount of space.

The apartments are all completely furnished and the relatively low rent provides the occupants with telephone, gas or electric stove, heat, and maintenance service.

Students with children may rent two-bedroom apartments and all residents may take advantage of the laundries in the villages as well as the convenience of the new shopping center located close to all on Harrison Road.

Time for play is important to student-parents and children.

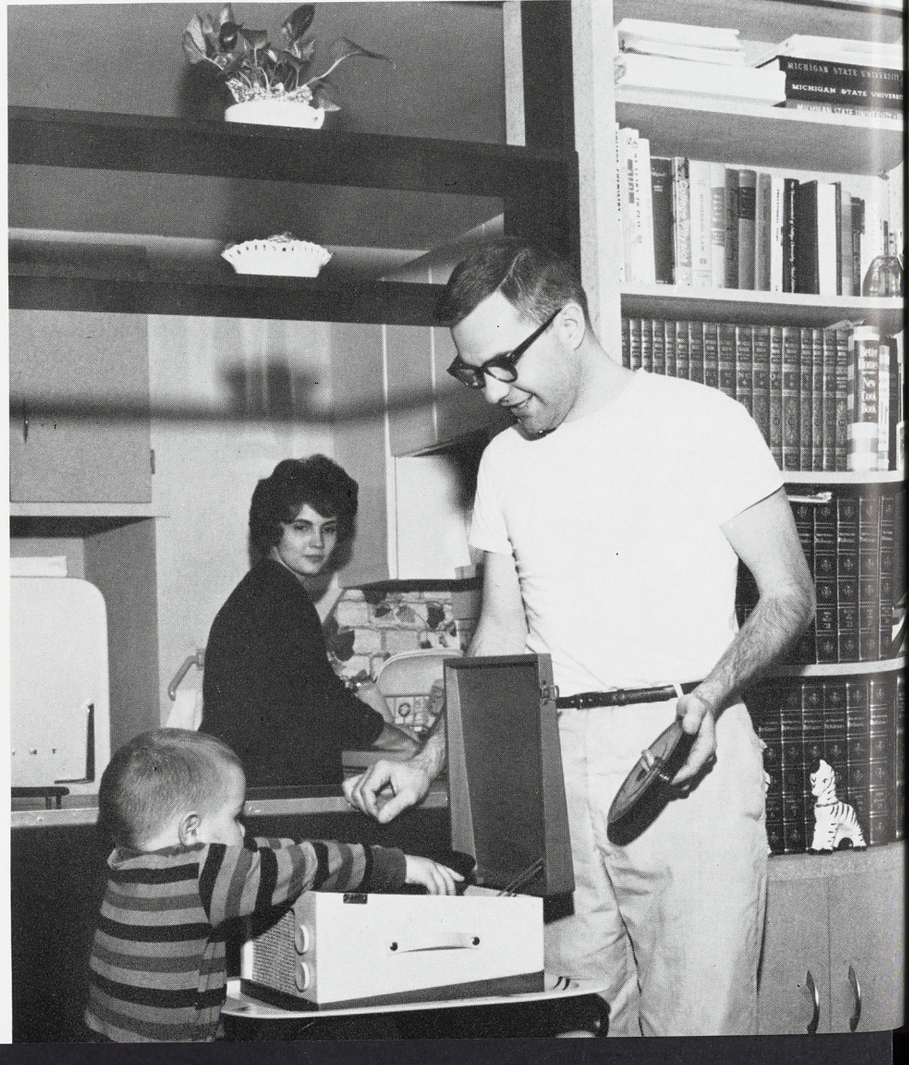

Small helpers volunteer assistance with the ever-present dish detail.

Studying takes a back seat when important questions about teddy bears arise.

Junior DJ adjusts records under the watchful eye of his parents.

Babysitting and car washing are frequent Saturday afternoon chores.

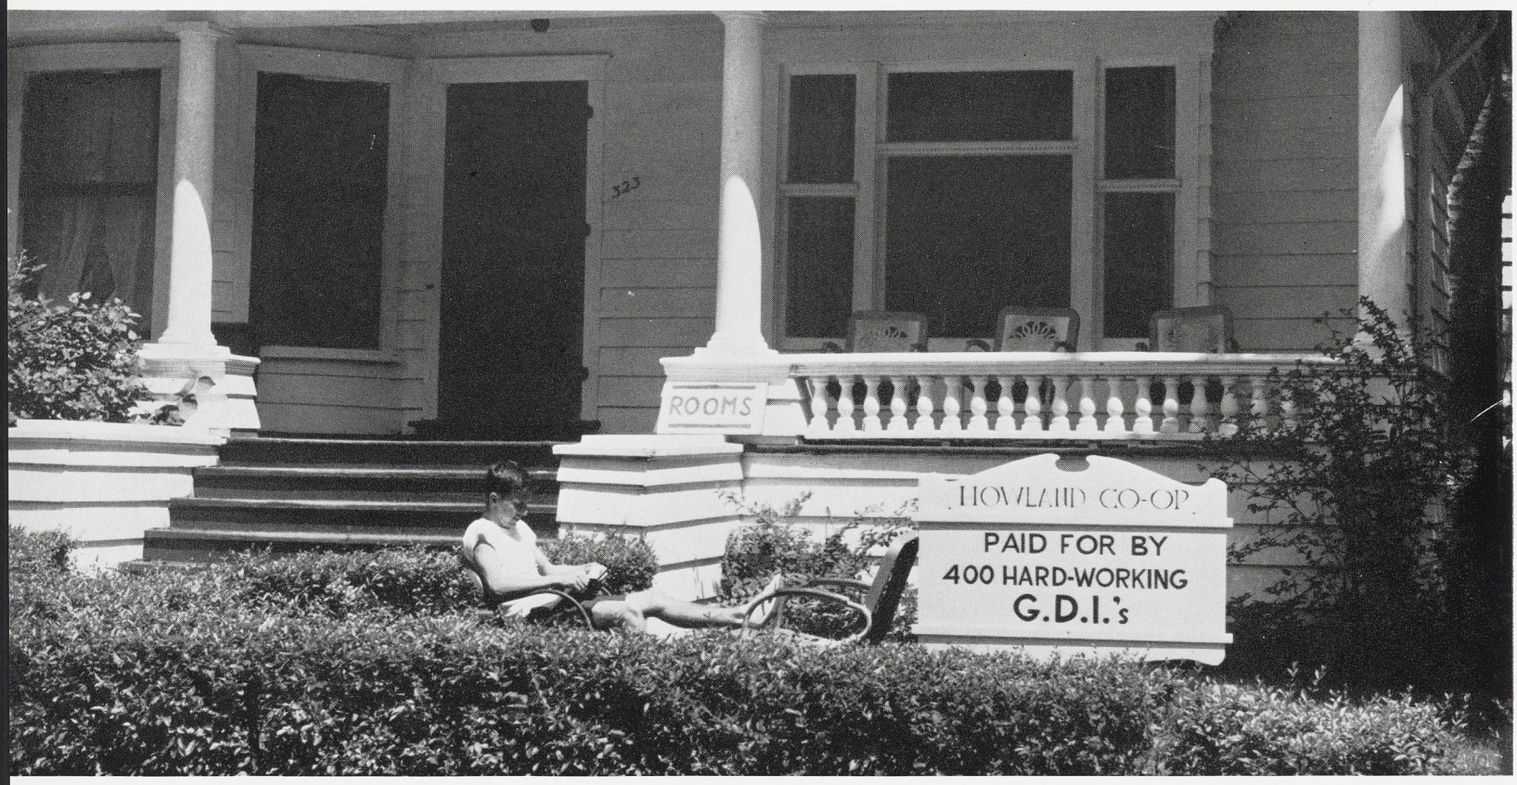

Laundry duties give Spartan wives a chance to catch up on the latest news.

Filling the 2,240 apartments has never been a problem and there is always a need for many more. Students wanting to live in married housing must make their application much in advance and can move in only when someone moves out.

A new building was constructed on Harrison Road to house the office of the married housing department, the largest of its kind in the country.

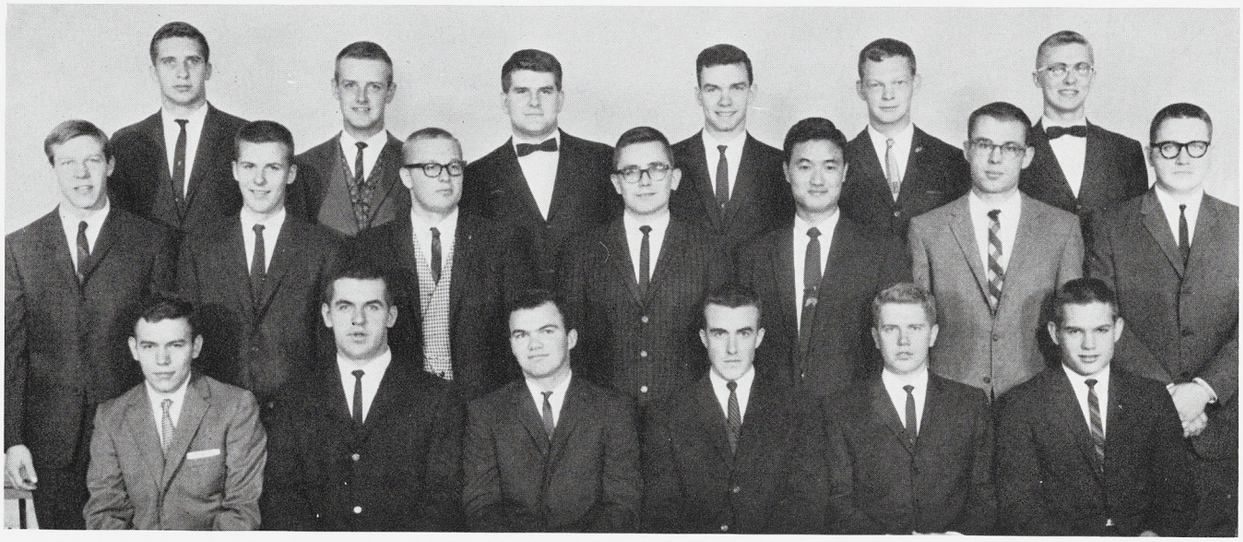

No plans are being made at the present time for enlargement of the married housing. Though the demand for space is great, it is being handled adequately with the existing facilities. No great increase in the number of married students desiring apartments in the University-operated communities is expected in the near future.

BOWER HOUSE

The men of Bower House work together to lighten the financial burden of college education. This year Bower had 100% participation in the fall and winter blood drives and placed first in co-op basketball competition. A 2.2 average and sophomore standing are required.

ELSWORTH HOUSE

The men of Elsworth House have maintained the highest all-university men's average and with it, possession of the co-op scholarship trophy. A 2.2 is required to rush the second week of each term. It affords less expensive quarters and maturity through independent living.

BETHEL MANOR

"Jacob called the name of the place where God spoke with him Bethel" (Genesis 35:15). From this, Bethel Manor, interdenominational religious co-op, derived its name. The manor provides an atmosphere suitable for the development of Christian character and leadership.

Christian Science men at State are given an opportunity to live with others of their faith at the Asher Student Foundation for Men. ASHER WOMEN

Asher Student Foundation for Women provides and maintains a home for 35 Christian Science coeds. New girls learn house rules and traditions through a prospective program. During this term of pledgeship, they help in the Home Management nursery. In addition to religious activities, the women participate in Homecoming, Spartan Women's League, and the Spinsters' Spin.

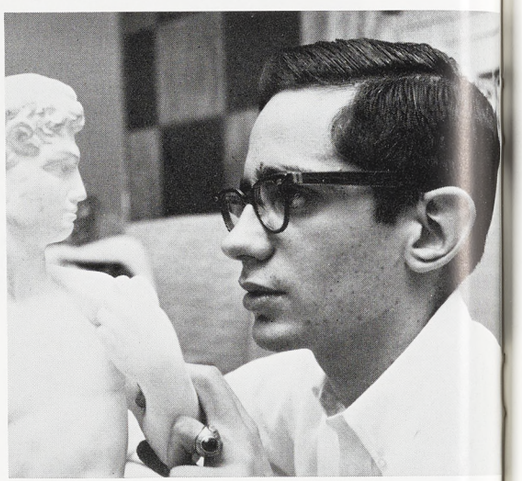

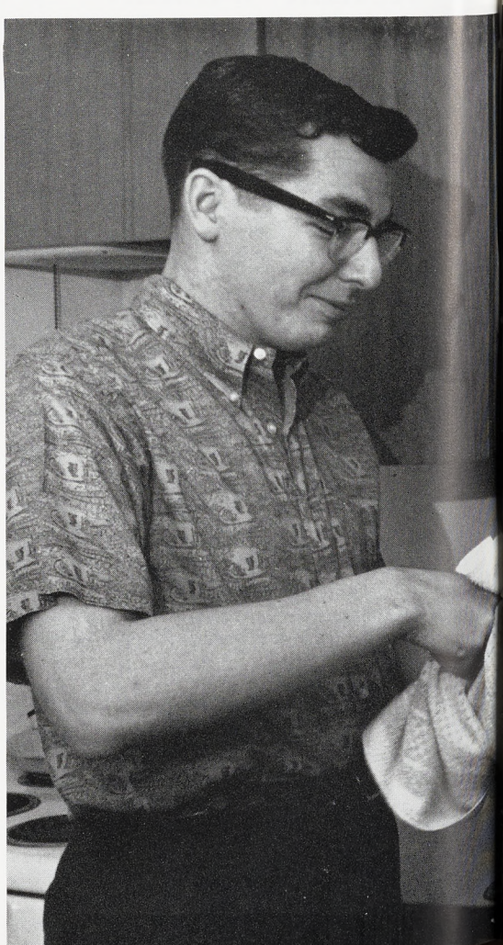

Roasting marshmallows over an open fire is a comfort of home enjoyed by Asher women.

Grocery shopping and meal planning and preparation become vital parts of student off-campus life.

OFF-CAMPUS LIVING

Freedom from curfews, quiet hours and institutional food led many students from residence halls and sorority and fraternity houses to off-campus rooms, apartments, and houses. Although they evade a good many housing regulations, the primary ban on liquor, gambling, and unchaperoned parties is unescapable.

With the relaxation of university unapproved-housing regulations, more students are able to find housing in Lansing, East Lansing, and the surrounding area. But the percentage of men taking advantage of the change is 13 to the women's four percent. Even the limited amount of women's approved housing remained partially vacant.

Students off-campus often gain practical experience in home management, while easing the financial burden of collegiate living in a non-collegiate atmosphere.

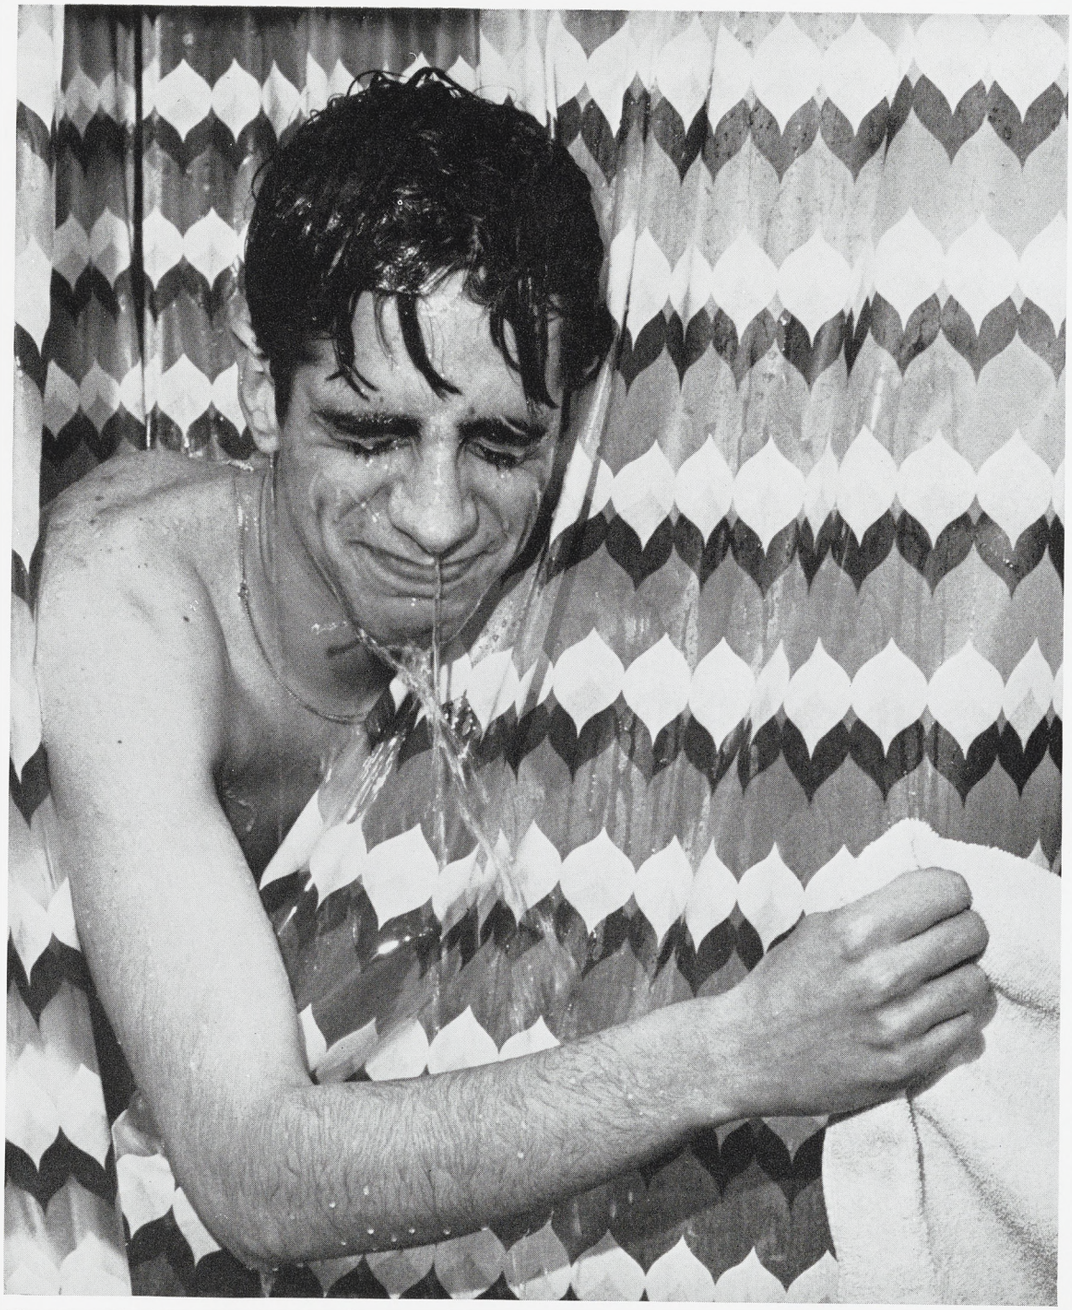

Even a non-cook becomes proficient within a term.

Cooperation is the secret of combining housework and study.

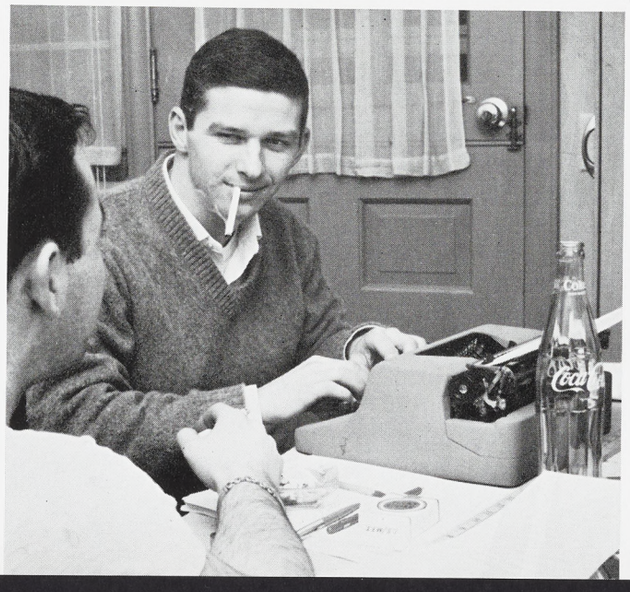

After dinner hours are free for stereos and relaxation without the worry of quiet hours.

Allowing sufficient commuting time takes careful calculation.

Typing a paper requires collaboration and refreshments.

Off-campus students banded together in 1954, forming Students Off-Campus, an organization to promote their political, social, and service interests. SOC assumes large responsibilities during Welcome Week, ushers during convocations, and sponsors a high school cooperation program each spring in the Lansing area to assist pupils coming to MSU. In social activities SOC sponsored numerous hayrides, football blocks, parties, and parties. A semi-formal dance "Misty" was held at Walnut Hills.

Football tactics with a feminine touch make the annual Powder Puff clash a humorous as well as exciting event.

GREEK LIVING

An endless round of rush parties, chapter meetings, desserts and study tables—Greek life encompasses twelve percent of the student population. The start of each term is marked by the all-important bid for members. This fall sororities were visited by 1700 coeds during informal teas, while fraternities set up displays in the Union to acquaint incoming freshmen with Greek living. But the Greeks forgot the rivalry of rush to present "Breakfast at Tiffany's," the annual all-Greek dance.

Sorority and fraternity members turn out en masse to add the final touches to their Water Carny float.

Minor adjustments are quickly learned and frequently used by the many campus sports car owners.

The inconveniences of pledgeship are repaid in full when the pledges turn their revenge and ingenuity against the actives in the traditional raid.

After-class snacks from the open kitchen help make Greek living a pleasant relief from dormitory life.

The Lambda Chi Alpha's Junior 500, originated in 1948, drew entries from all living units and attracted 12,000 spectators around the three-quarter mile circle.

Through Greek Week, the individual houses work to maintain the units of the Greek system. The week is a time of pulling together in service and in fun to improve, not only inter-system relations, but those with the community, faculty, and student body. Group spirit began mounting with the sports car kickoff parade and reached a climax the following weekend at Greek Feast on the Sigma Nu lawn. The theme of the unity of Olympiad was carried out in the combining of Sorority Sing and IFC Sing, previously held on consecutive Sundays, into Greek Sing. Following the Sing, 4,000 jazz enthusiasts congregated on the Beta lawn to hear local groups in the traditional "Session by the Cedar." And as always, the Lambda Chi's Junior 500, pushcart race, lent excitement to the event-filled week.

The houses located on the outskirts of approved housing make owning a car almost a necessity. But the conveniences are balanced by the time spent on upkeep.

Parents and interested spectators turned out to see Delta Gamma and Gamma Phi Beta tie the annual Powder Puff game.

ALPHA KAPPA ALPHA

Service is the main goal of the women of Alpha Kappa Alpha. This year they worked with underprivileged Lansing girls. In addition, the coeds participate in the American Council on Human Rights, the NAACP, and the National Health Program whose emphasis is finding a cure for Sickle Cell Anemia. AKA placed first in the Junior 500 and was awarded first in blood donorship.

ALPHA EPSILON PHI

The Alpha Epsilon Phi's took third place in the 1962 Water Carnival and twisted into first place in "Hillel's a-Twistin'." The AEPhi's contribute to the Hebrew University of Israel for scientific literature and to their national foundation. The sorority's other service projects include "Dolls for Democracy," social service fellowships and academic loan funds.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA

A Halloween party for girls with cerebral palsy is the philanthropic project of the women of Alpha Gamma Delta. Organized in 1924, by Mrs. Hannah's mother, Mrs. Robert Shaw, the Alpha Gam's award a charm bracelet each term to the member having the highest scholarship. In addition the coeds participate in Homecoming, Water Carnival, Greek Week, and Sorority Sing.

ALPHA OMICRON PI

Pan Hellenic awarded its scholarship improvement trophy to Alpha Omicron Pi winter term of 1962, as the women jumped from 13th to 4th place among sororities scholastically. In the winning vein, the A O Pi's float placed first in Water Carnival competition. Greek Week, IM bowling and an annual touch football game with Pi Kappa Phi fraternity round out the coeds' activities.

ALPHA PHI

Scholarship and service are bywords of Alpha Phi. This sorority awards sisters for improved scholarship and for high grades. Contributions for cardiac aid and parties for under-privileged children constitute their service functions. In campus activities, Alpha Phi participates in Water Carnival and Greek Sing, besides taking top honors in sorority homecoming displays.

ALPHA XI DELTA

Objects, such as the bear bone awarded weekly for the biggest blunder and the silver cake knife used by all Alpha Xi brides, help make up Alpha Xi Delta life. Group cooperation is recognized in their possession of the Greek Week award for outstanding sorority participation and first place in sorority homecoming displays for the past two years. CHI OMEGA

Each Easter the women of Chi Omega entertain Lansing area orphans with comic movies and an egg hunt. For finding an egg, the children are given a basket. The Chi O's also present a $25 social science award to a deserving student in the sociology department. They placed in Sorority Sing and Water Carnival and were runners-up in Women's IM volleyball.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

Noted for their skill in volleyball, the women of Delta Delta Delta won the IM trophy for this sport, as well as the IM All-Sports trophy. By holding an auction the Tri-Delts are able to raise the money for two scholarships which they annually present to MSU students. The presentations are made on the basis of academic average, financial need and campus activities.

DELTA GAMMA

MSU Delta Gamma's were named the second most outstanding chapter in the nation at their national convention at Mackinac Island. The honor was based on scholarship activities and co-operation. The well-known landmark, found in their front lawn, is the anchor of an 1800 ship. Hannah, the rag doll mascot, has also been known to actively participate in all house functions.

DELTA ZETA

Excitement came in triplicate at the Delta Zeta house spring term. On the night of their formal spring term party, the DZ's had two trophies to boast of: second place in the Junior 500 and third place in Water Carnival, both won that day. Their annual Triad dance, held with the Fiji's and the Phi Psi's, netted a successful $20 for the Campus Chest and a good time for all.

GAMMA PHI BETA

Although this year's game ended in a tie, Gamma Phi Beta remains undefeated for the fifth straight year in the annual Powder Puff football game with Delta Gamma. The game is held in conjunction with Dad's Day when the coeds treat their dads to lunch, the game and a little "Gabling." As a gift from their alums, the interior of their 10-year old house is being redecorated.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Spring term academic efforts were rewarded as Kappa Alpha Theta received the sorority scholarship trophy. At Christmastime they carolled at the Bogue Nursing Home for a 92 year old sorority sister, who has been a Theta for over 70 years. The energetic coeds bicycled seven miles to Lake Lansing for a fall term retreat. The group also numbers the 1962 Miss MSU among their ranks.

KAPPA DELTA

Sorority Sing second and third place among sorority homecoming displays highlighted the Kappa Delta year. But the year also included some near-tragedies. Their cart collapsed in the final heat of the Junior 500 for the third straight year and the KDs were visited by the fire department as their chimney burned. The chapter works with the School for the Blind reading to young girls.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

"Old Shoe-boots and Leggins" brought first place to Kappa Kappa Gamma in Greek Sing. For fun they turned to the Monmouth Duo with Pi Beta Phi, Sadie Hawkins Day and Secret Pals' Day. Then, there was that certain Friday when roommates dressed as each other for dinner. The Busboy Turnabout honored the boys, who sat at the head of the table, as the girls served and cleaned up.

PHI MU

The women of Phi Mu this year adopted a 14-year old Indian girl to whom they send money for schooling and college. The chapter also received honorable mention at their national convention for reports to the "Aglaia," the national sorority news magazine. While taking part in many group activities, they present a "most active" award to a member for her extracurricular participation.

PI BETA PHI

Pi Beta Phi stages an annual tree-lighting ceremony with Delta Tau Delta at the Abbott Road entrance. The Pi Phi's, who also participate in the Harrison Road Breakfast, still find time to keep up with their studies. Spring term they placed 7th scholastically among sororities. In addition to group honors, the chapter boasts of two Outstanding Senior Women and two Tower Guards.

SIGMA KAPPA

Variety is the key to Sigma Kappa activities. The women give aid to the Ingham County gerentology center to the Maine Seacoast Mission, as well as supporting campus blood drives and campus chest. The coeds' parents are individually honored as their daughters treat their dads to a football game and evening dinner party and present a luncheon for their mothers.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

Service to the community is an integral part of sorority life. The women of Zeta Tau Alpha gave a Christmas party for handicapped children and invited 25 children from the St. Vincent Home to a Valentine party which they sponsored with Sigma Alpha Mu. The party was complete with magician and games. Zeta Tau Alpha Foundation scholarships are given to State students.

Making early classes often requires assistance.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

"Car-wrecking" is a quick way to lose end-of-term frustration. The Alpha Epsilon PI's buy an old heap for their annual shindig at which members and dates proceed to smash it to bits. The AEPi's won the humorous catagory in the Junior 500 for their Yogi Bear and Fred Flintstone floats the past two years. The 1963 pledge class contributed to Campus Chest rather than pulling a raid.

ALPHA GAMMA RHO

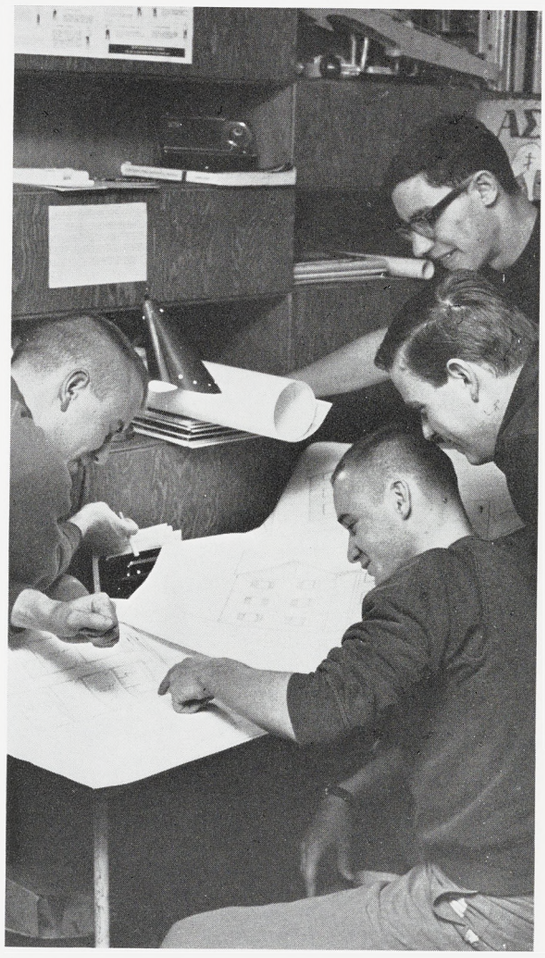

The oldest fraternity on campus, Alpha Gamma Rho, is also State's only professional agricultural fraternity. The majority of pledges must be in agriculture. Spring term the AGR's ranked third scholastically and have been below eighth only once since 1922. Most non-study time is spent hunting in which the men showed their skill, hanging three bucks from a second story balcony.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Combining interest in leadership and scholarship the men of Alpha Sigma Phi were active in campus activities. Members held positions on Water Carnival, Homecoming, and Greek Week committees. The greatest supporter of Alpha Sig affairs is their oldest active, Tar, a husky Labrador Retriever. The annual Black and White Formal highlights the social year.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

"Be athletically active but remain scholastically minded" is the motto of the men of Alpha Tau Omega. Supporting this is their 10 consecutive track championships and 3rd place in the Junior 500 and All Sports competition, while maintaining above the all-fraternity scholastic average. The ATO's have donated a Help Week trophy to encourage the service aspect of Hell Week.

BETA THETA PI

Not even a fraternity house can stand up in the wake of campus expansion. With the proposed building of the Bogue bridge, the Beta Theta Pi's sold their land and are planning to buy more along the river and begin building. With another Cedar location the men can continue their "Session on the Cedar," which has become one of the largest attended events in Greek Week.

DELTA CHI

For the second year in a row, the Delta Chi's placed second in IFC Sing. They are adding a wing to their house which is to be completed by fall. Although it will not increase the housing capacity, it will add to the living space. Another addition to the Delta Chi household is Lance, a boxer mascot. At Easter the men and the Chi Omega's took Lansing orphans to Potter Park.

The Delta Chi's had to build a new case for Sing trophies.

DELTA SIGMA PHI

Second place in Water Carnival for their Cinderella float with Delta Zeta set off the Delta Sigma Phi winning streak. In the Homecoming competition the Delt Sig's placed third and took second in IFC Bowling. The annual spring Carnation Ball provides a formal ending to the year. But this summer the house will remain busy with the remodeling of the kitchen.

DELTA TAU DELTA

For the past four terms, the men of Delta Tau Delta have held second place in scholarship among fraternities while remaining active in campus affairs. Delt members include the 1962 Mr. MSU and the presidents of IFC, Union Board, and the sophomore and junior class. They have donated an Outstanding Sorority trophy to be judged and awarded by Associated Women Students.

DELTA UPSILON

Football fans soon become acquainted with the Delta Upsilon bell as the DU men ring out mounting MSU scores. Resting on the front lawn of their house during the off-seasons, the bell is well-guarded from University of Michigan raiding parties. With the arrival of spring, the brothers paddle to class via the Red Cedar accompanied by their new St. Bernard puppy, Duchess III.

FARMHOUSE

The golden engraved Red Cross plaque for 100 per cent participation in the fall blood drive was awarded to Farmhouse fraternity. Nationally the chapter also ranked high in honors by receiving 2nd place for chapter achievement and 3rd for the President's trophy at their 22nd Biennial Conclave. The men reversed the position in presenting their Sister Pin to Del, their house cook.

KAPPA SIGMA

Competion is hot and heavy as the Kappa Sigma's battle their University of Michigan brothers in an annual softball contest. The last meeting saw MSU the victors 12-6. The two groups meet again after school is out for a canoe trip each June. The Kappa Sig's were first in their football and basketball block and the actives were 2nd scholastically for fraternities spring term.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

Noted mainly for their annual Junior 500, Lambda Chi Alpha is also gaining a reputation in football. For the past two years they have won the IM championship, as well as copping many of the other sports trophies. Individually, the group has members in Green Helmet, Blue Key and IFC Executive Council. One of the oldest fraternities on campus, Lambda Chi has faculty speakers.

PHI DELTA THETA

Neighborhood relations are bolstered each spring as the Phi Delta Thetas hold a lawn party for the residents of their block. The men also annually clean up the Williamston YMCA camp. Together with three fraternities and four sorororities, the Phi Delts put on an annual Sadie Hawkins Day where the Daisy Mae-clad coeds are given an opportunity to "catch" her man.

PHI GAMMA DELTA

The Phi Gamma Delta house welcomed fellow Fiji's from the University of Washington last spring as the Brothers Four visited campus for a concert. The local Fiji's also claimed three distinctive awards this past year. They placed 2nd in IFC Sing, won the Outstanding Greek Award for participation in Greek Week and captured the Intramural softball block championship.

PHI KAPPA PSI

Founder's Day for Phi Kappa Psi is celebrated with a banquet in Detroit for all Michigan chapters. After dinner a songfest is held, the winners being presented a special pitcher. Cartoons, gifts, and ice cream and cake galore make up the underprivileged children's Christmas party each year. A $100 "appreciation" is given each year to the member having done the most for the fraternity.

PHI KAPPA SIGMA

Phi Kappa Sigma encourages academic achievement by rewarding its 4-pointers with a term's room and board. In the spring of '62 the pledges ranked second while the actives came in fourth scholastically among fraternities. The smoking habit has its rewards too. The 44,450 packs collected by the men won them a television in the American Tobacco Company cigarette package competition.

PHI KAPPA TAU

A trophy for the highest donation among fraternities in the spring blood drive was presented to the men of Phi Kappa Tau. Besides group honors the Phi Tau's can claim the 440 individual winner in IM track. The men also participate in IM football, softball, basketball, tennis, volleyball, swimming and golf in addition to other campus activities and an underprivileged children's party.

PHI MU ALPHA

For outstanding service, Phi Mu Alpha, men's professional honorary, received the "Outstanding Chapter in the Province" award. The men can also boast of famous names in the music world. They initiated Stan Kenton into the local chapter and heard Dave Brubeck speak winter term. Spring term the group holds the American Composers Concert and a jazz concert.

Collaboration and activity centers around the piano.

PHI SIGMA KAPPA

Heading the list of spring term activities were Water Carnival and the Hawaiian Luau. The men of Phi Sigma Kappa took an active part in both. They hosted the visiting senator from Hawaii, Oren Long, and together with the women of Williams Hall, created a false front mansion with an adjoining shack in the rear which took second prize in the procession of "Pseudo" floats.

PI KAPPA PHI

A menagerie of mascots inhabits the Pi Kappa Phi house. The collection includes one kinkajou, two birds, five baby racoons, 500 tropical fish and Hangover, the dog. Also interested in human species, the men crown their Pi Kappa Phi queen at the annual "Rose Ball." For their float, "Retrogressive Progression," they received first place in the 1962 Water Carnival.

PSI UPSILON

For years the men of Psi Upsilon have advocated simplicity in Homecoming displays. This fall they joined in the festivities with two signs propped against the trees in their front lawn proclaiming: "Contend Emulously." The Psi U's, however, have produced a number of campus leaders including the '61 AUSG president. To improve scholastics they enforce study table and quiet hours.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

The Sigma Alpha Epsilon trophy case had a complete revamping as the men made room for their spring term rewards. These included 1st place in IM golf and swimming, runner-up in tennis, and 2nd place in the Junior 500 and the all-university golf tournament.

LITTLE SISTERS OF MINERVA

Women pinned, engaged or married to SAE members become honorary members of the Little Sisters of Minerva. The 30 regular members are chosen through an informal rush for the national service group which is closely connected with the mothers' group, the Minervas.

SIGMA ALPHA MU

The Sammy's vacated their familiar spot across from Berkey to move into a house on East Grand River near Hagadorn. The men of Sigma Alpha Mu were awarded a golden engraved Red Cross plaque for 100 per cent participation in the fall blood drive. To raise funds for the Heart Association they held Sammy Scrub spring term. Faculty speakers are frequently invited for dinner.

SIGMA CHI

The oldest house in East Lansing fell in the wake of progress winter term. The house which has been the home of Sigma Chi will be replaced by a 50-resident structure which the men hope will be finished by fall. To encourage scholastic improvement the men are paired up in a buddy system with the highest and lowest grade points coupled. The highest team wins a $25 reward.

SIGMA NU

To retire the IM All-Sports trophy, a fraternity must win it three years consecutively. During the past seven years the men of Sigma Nu have retired two such trophies. Together with the ATO's they hold the annual Blackfoot-Whitefoot Ball and present their own White Rose Formal in the spring. The Snakes are also active in Water Carnival, Greek Week and IM sports.

THETA CHI

The year began a-fresh for the men of Theta Chi with new furniture, housemother and pool table. Sportwise the Theta Chi's can boast of the IM backstroke champ and All-American gymnast besides a number of Honors College members. For the sixth time in the past eight years, the men placed first in IFC Sing and took another first with their rotating roulette wheel for Homecoming.

OAK'S CLUB OF THETA DELTA CHI

It's a woman's world on Sorority Row but the Oaks Club of Theta Delta Chi holds the enviable position as the only fraternity on the sorority-laden avenue. At Halloween the men were visited by the Great Pumpkin and served cider to all those congregating on their front lawn. Presently the Theta Delt's are awaiting national and campus approval to receive their official charter.

TRIANGLE

Within the past year the men of Triangle have doubled their membership, revised rush, pledge and scholarship programs, and have received honorable mention in Water Carnival for their satire on Beaumont Tower. In addition they have sold their present house and plan to move to a different one by the fall. Each winter the pinmate, fiancee or wife of a member is crowned at the Sweetheart Ball.

PI SIGMA EPSILON

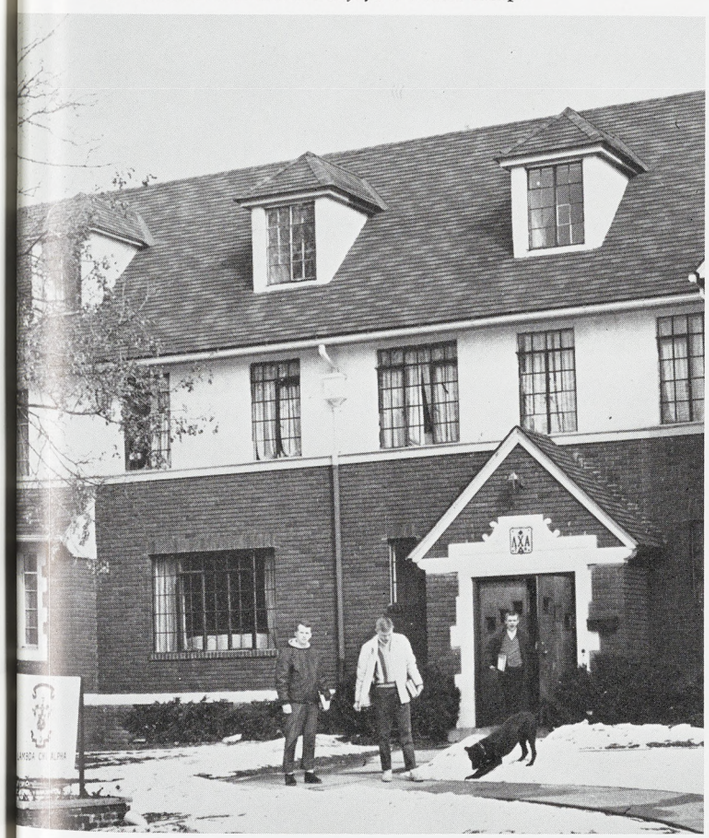

Pi Sigma Epsilon, professional business fraternity, links academic work in food distribution with the business and social aspects of the industry. The Lurie Brothers Award is presented to a student for outstanding service and achievement. The Borden Scholarship Award in food distribution goes to the student having the highest average preceding his senior year.

Keeping meetings interesting concerns advisors.

Passage of a new rule not requiring men to wear ties for dinner improved dorm mealtime.

The Lambda Chi mascot enjoys a winter romp.

Heavy snow this winter gave bicycles a rest.

CHAPTER SIX

Graduation marks an end and a beginning for those who have successfully completed an important phase in their quest for knowledge

Hitting the books, interviewing with potential employers, and attending various class functions were the primary interests of the graduating class of 1963.

The importance of having a good academic record in the last year kept seniors conscious of their studies. This was the year at which most future employers took a close look when considering MSU students for jobs with their firms, whether engineers, professional businessmen or teachers.

Most students took advantage of the free services of the Placement Bureau to find employment. The Bureau brought in a record-number of firm representatives from all over the United States to interview students individually about working for them after graduation at top beginning salaries.

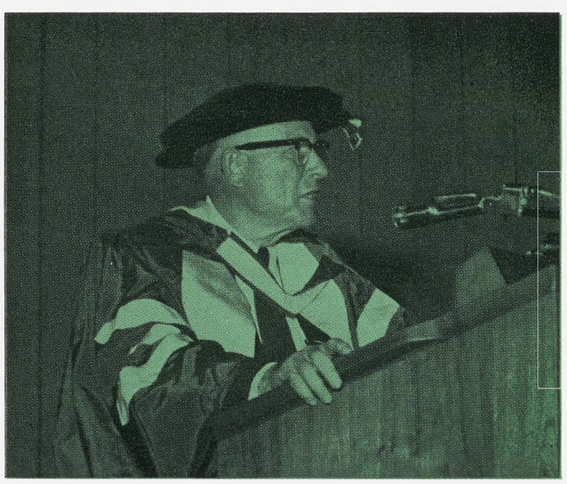

The Senior Council sponsored a reception with President and Mrs. Hannah for each term's graduates, and set up a development fund for a class gift to the University. They also sponsored the Homecoming Queen court, Water Carnival, and Senior Swingout.

Graduation is of greatest interest to most seniors. Before they can take part in any commencement exercises, there are a number of things to be done. Caps, gowns, and diplomas must be ordered, graduation announcements sent to friends and relatives, class rings ordered by many, and not a few make arrangements for weddings in the Alumni Chapel.

Formal graduation exercises followed fall and winter term examinations, with students marching into the Auditorium and taking seats beside the other graduates in their colleges before receiving their degrees. They listened attentively as Samuel M. Brownell, superintendent of schools in Detroit, spoke in December, and Father Laurence V. Britt, president of the University of Detroit, in March; each giving the students a verbal sample of what was ahead and what would be expected of them as college graduates.

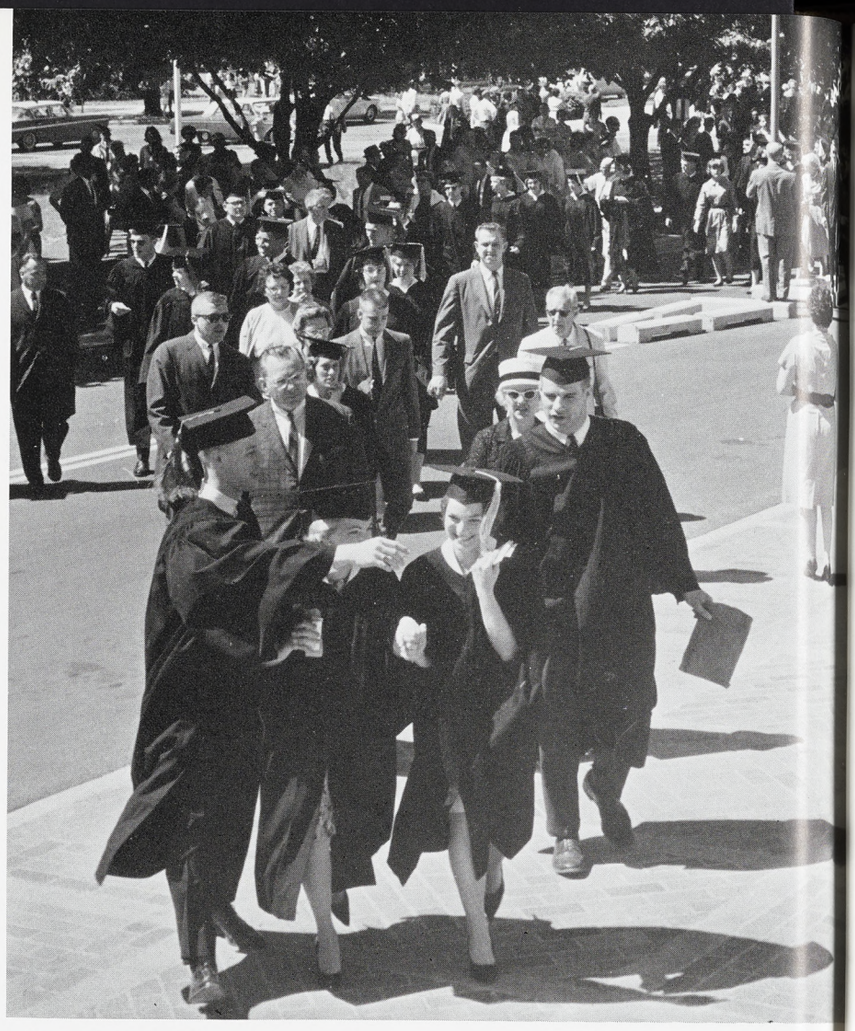

June will be the month most seniors leave State. They will gather in the Stadium, weather permitting, to be addressed by Frederick E. Kappel, chairman of the board of American Telephone and Telegraph, before moving to new locations throughout the world.

As the end product of three, four or seven years of condensed academic activity, each individual graduate leaves the University with a feeling of accomplishment and responsibility—toward himself, the University and society.

The speech by President John A. Hannah has become a commencement tradition at MSU.

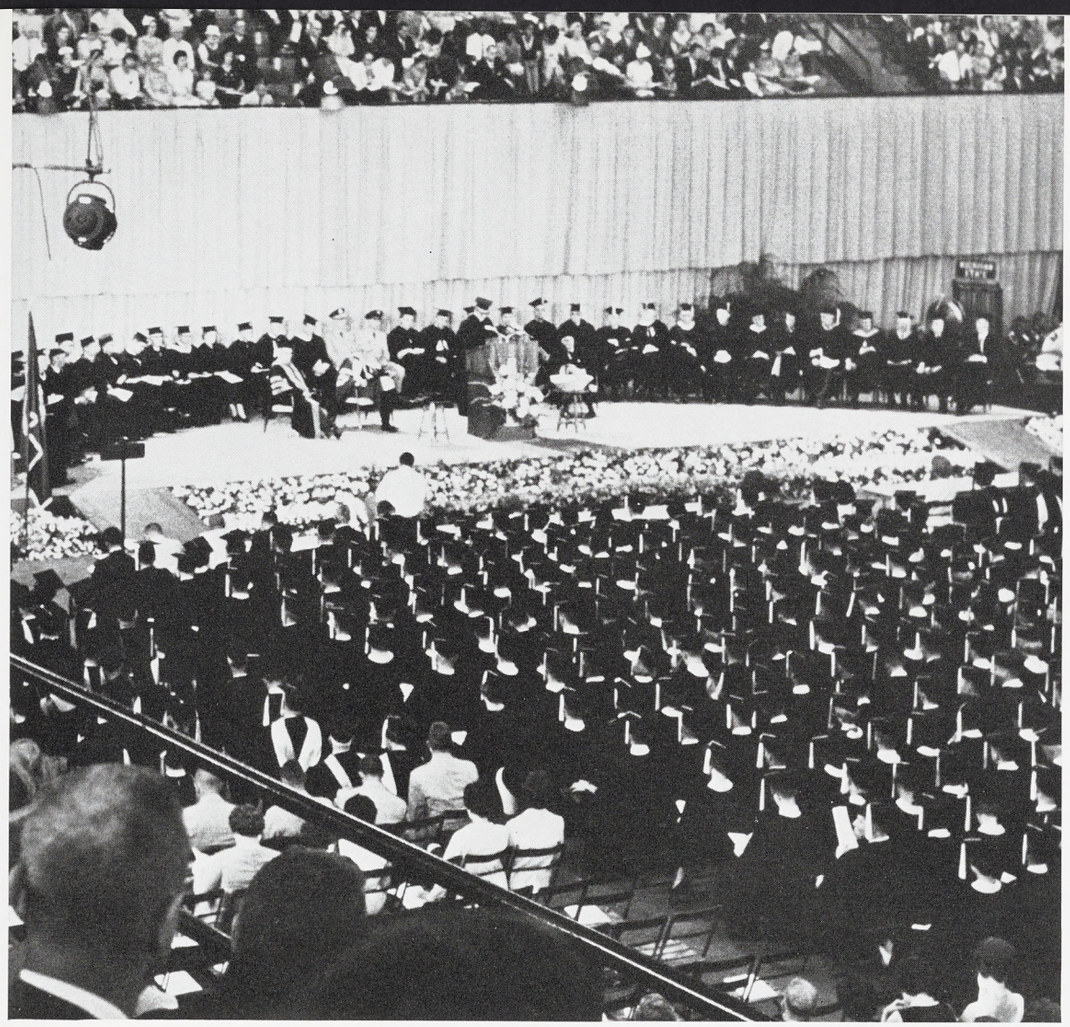

Familiar settings took on another perspective as seniors viewed them for the final time as students and the class of '63 assembled for a single time in its 4-year career.

GRADUATES

Whether considered the end or only the beginning, this year was a big one for the senior class. Some graduated in December, some in March and some will finish in August, but the largest share will take their place in the June Commencement Exercises.

After 12 full terms of hard study, mixed with times of pleasure, the seniors will spread out over the world in a variety of jobs or will return to work toward another degree.

COLLEGE OF COMMUNICATION ARTS

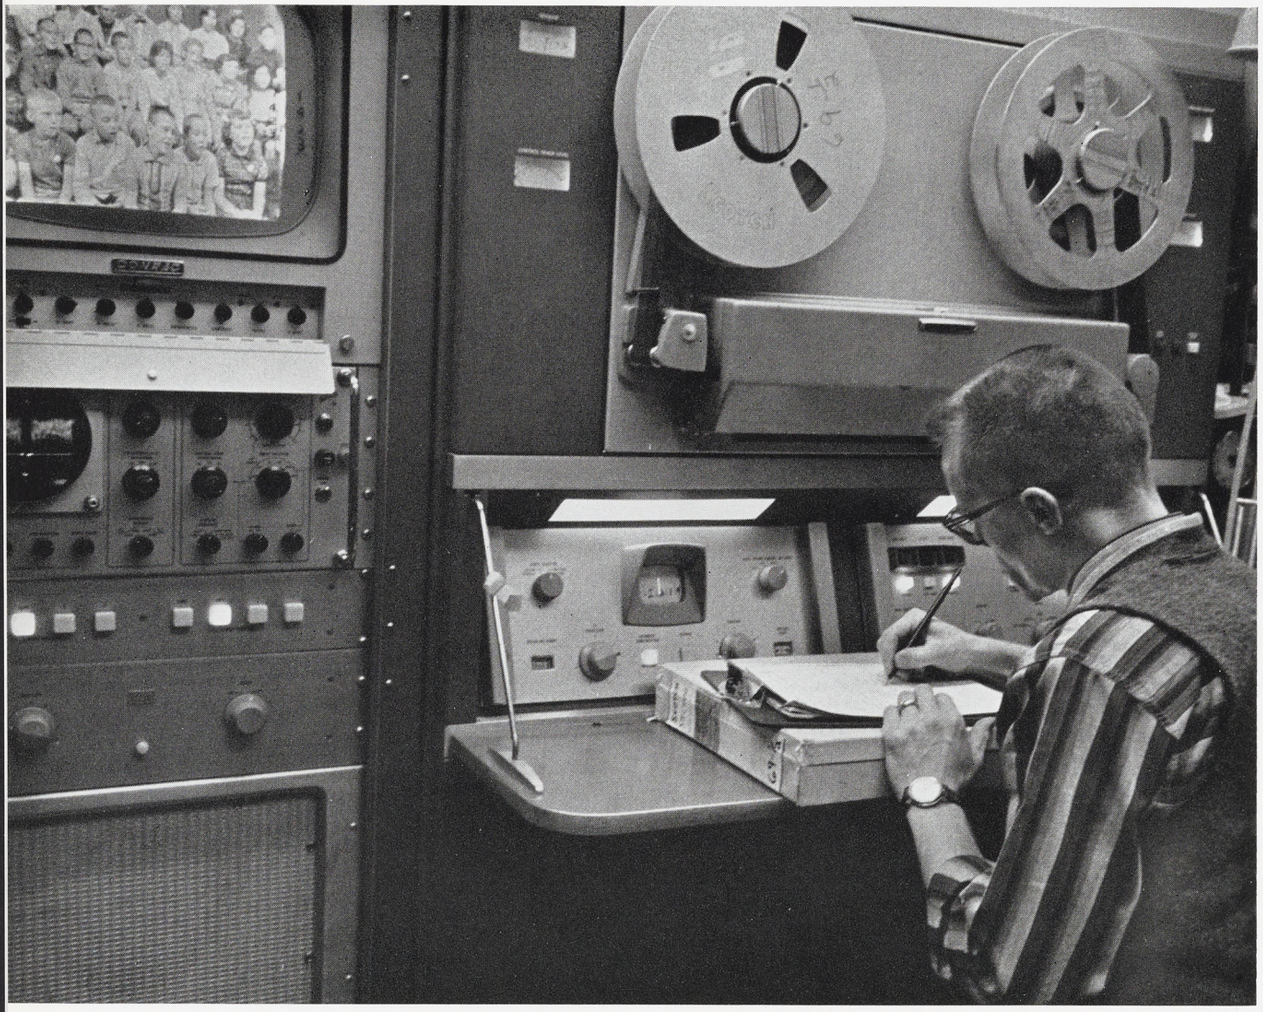

FOUNDED: 1955

DEAN: Fred S. Siebert

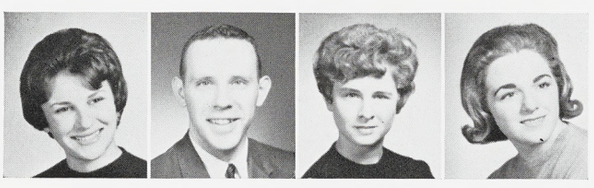

One can be most effective as a citizen only when he can competently read, observe, listen and evaluate, and in turn transmit his thoughts, attitudes and feelings to others; communication arts programs provide this liberal foundation.

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

FOUNDED: 1855

DEAN: John D. Ryder

An engineer will require a thorough knowledge of science as his background, a rigorous coverage of mathematics as his language, and methods of analysis and synthesis in engineering applications as his tools.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

For laborious efforts put forth in an endeavor to maintain the superlative quality of past WOLVERINES; for diligence in attempting to maintain deadline dates at the sacrifice of lecture sessions and grade points; and for meritorious performance in compiling photographs, paragraphs and name lists, the staff of the 1963 WOLVERINE deserves many plaudits.

A special thanks is due those who saw fit to sacrifice extra-curricular activities and much of their social life for the dubious reward of spending nights and weekends in an effort to make this book what it is.

Our appreciation is extended to Mr. Ed Hackleman and Mr. Ralph Van Dyke of the Jahn and Ollier Engraving Company of Chicago for technical assistance with production problems, to Mr. Jack Bundy of the S. K. Smith Company of Chicago for planning and supervising the production of the cover, and to Mr. Sam Fields of Delma Studios, New York, who provided the 1963 WOLVERINE with over 2200 senior portraits.

Mr. William McIlrath, Director of Student Publications, and Mr. John Vitovsky, representative of the Speaker-Hines and Thomas Printing Company of Lansing, deserve a special thanks for invaluable advice and consultation throughout the year.

The year 1963 could not have been recorded within these bindings, however, if it were not for contributions of time, effort and information by many students, faculty and staff members of Michigan State University not listed herein.
