"We believe it is the obligation of a state university, especially a land-grant institution, to provide higher educational opportunities for every deserving individual."

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

ence through Continued Progress

Growth
Development
Change

The last decade has been a period of reevaluation and transition for Michigan State University; the accomplishments must be viewed against a larger historical background. Michigan State was the pioneer land-grant institution, founded in 1855 to conduct a bold experiment in education at the North American frontier. After a century of distinguished service to a rapidly changing society, Michigan State became a university in title as well as fact—a large and accomplished university. Today, there must be a concrete method for the identification, development and implementation of educational concepts, new or traditional, in a currently operating and expanding university.

... Academic
... Administrative
... Co-Curricular

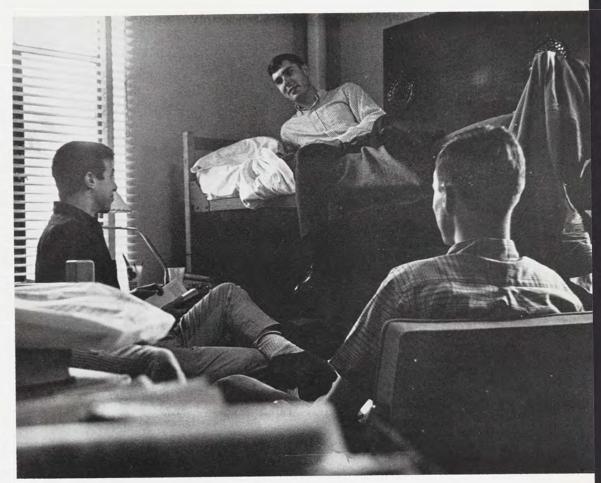

Despite the vast recreational facilities available, the growing enrollment keeps these constantly filled.

A seemingly endless line of students files into the arena for registration.

Nearby religious facilities feel the strain of the growing student body.

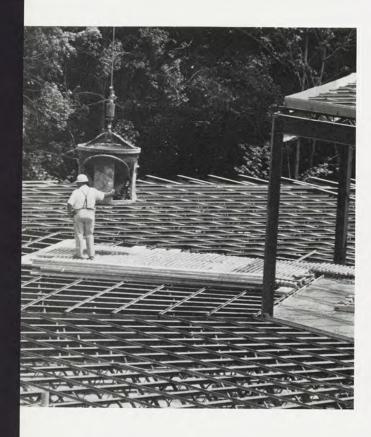

Three students living in rooms originally built for two in the older residence halls calls for continued dormitory construction.

Michigan State University: An Answer to the Challenge

The extended campus has brought new problems in transportation.

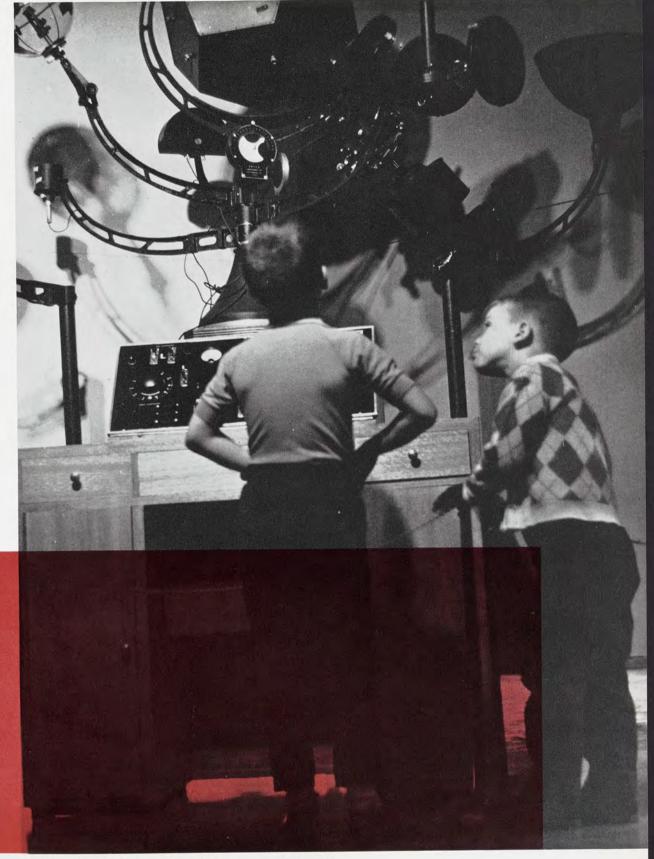

Physical Expansion for Academic Growth

The most tangible aspect of Michigan State's program for development lies in the expansion of the physical campus. An inventory of these new facilities is a concrete answer to the challenge of the 60s, as it is stated both on and off the campus. The academic emphasis on science is revealed in the revolutionary Science Complex which has produced a new MSU skyline that virtually reaches to the stars. The International Center stands as a living memorial to the significance of the University's role in the world. This continuous construction stands as evidence of the University's multi-dimensional approach to the challenges of contemporary education.

The multi-million dollar science complex has changed what was a comparatively barren area of campus a year ago into an important center of study and research.

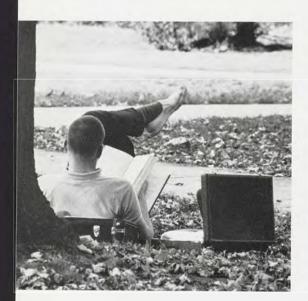

The recently-opened Abrams Planetarium accommodates the interested layman as well as serving as an educational tool.

A Commitment to Academic Excellence

The attempt to increase the number of students without a proportional increase in faculty has resulted in classes being taught in large lecture sections.

Independent study, mechanical aids and programmed texts are University experiments in the attempt to solve the expansion problem.

Michigan State University is committed to the process of expanding its research and scholarly endeavors to meet new needs while continuing to improve its quality and prominence. To do so in the face of an increasing enrollment and limited financial resources requires changes in the internal structure of the University. Greater efficiency for higher academic productivity is the keystone of this goal. Each student is encouraged to accept more responsibility for his learning through independent study and the use of mechanical teaching aids. New emphases are being established to develop an environment conducive to scholarship and intellectual achievement.

Closed circuit TV is gaining popularity especially in business and veterinary surgery areas.

Michigan State as a Residence University

Library facilities are found in many new halls.

The rapid growth of the University has had its most significant effect on the development of residence halls; by 1966, Michigan State will have 38 halls in four complexes, housing 17,000 students. Increased enrollment has not only called for more and larger living units, but it is demanding that they provide services never before dreamed of. To cope with the problems presented by an expanding campus, the halls have become much more than a place to eat and sleep. The environment for learning has been improved by making greater academic use of the dormitories; physical inconvenience as an impediment to learning has been eliminated. Michigan State is capitalizing upon its great advantage as a residence university. Without being too restrictive, it is moving toward the day when the different complexes will represent the general academic divisions of the University.

No longer is the student called upon to go to the professor, classes come to him in his residence.

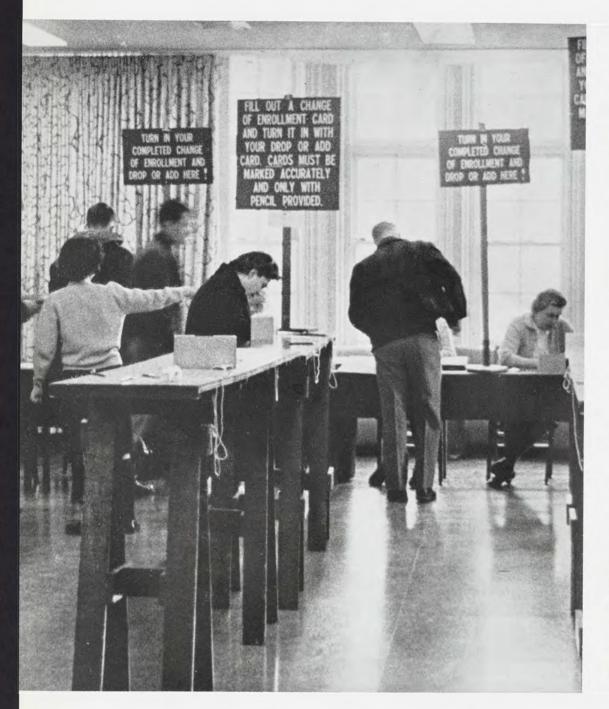

Coed dining allows students the opportunity to know each other in informal situations.

The residence halls are complete with entertainment and recreational facilities within themselves.

The Student: A Number Within the Structure

An experimental early registration for seniors and graduate students was held fall term in an effort to find a satisfactory way to clear the crowded conditions at the IM.

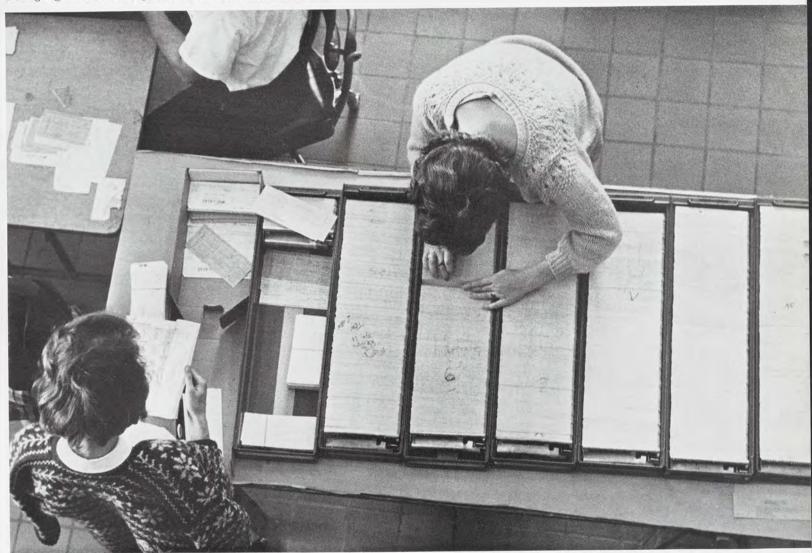

Your Packet of Registration Cards Must Be Completely Filled out Before You Pass This Point

Incoming freshmen were introduced to the technicalities of registration during summer counseling clinics.

The students bring to the University an element of freshness. Their relative ignorance and immaturity test the resilience of the University community, reminding it that every excellent attainment must be fought for. With its incessantly increasing enrollment, Michigan State must encounter a major problem: the student is losing his individuality and becoming merely a number in the larger structure. At every point in his college career on this campus, the student must express his identity in terms of a given number; personalities are disregarded in an infinite sequence of digits. Within the University, a student's life is recorded on impersonal IBM cards; hopes, dreams, and ambitions are reduced to a series of mechanically-produced punch-cards. The tremendous increase in the complexity and rate of expansion has decreed the necessity of this method.

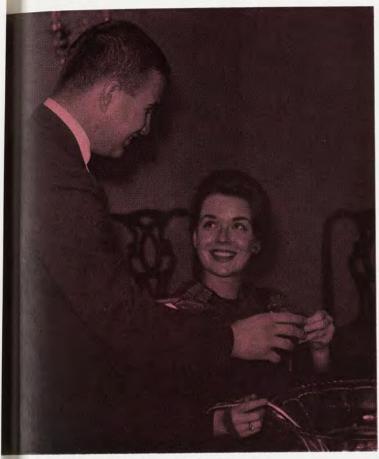

During registration a barrage of IBM cards confront the student.

The opportunity to meet with administrators and discuss University policies and problems is provided student leaders through monthly Spartan Roundtable dinners.

The Student: A Significant Entity

A personal greeting from the Hannahs is afforded seniors during Senior Receptions.

All-A dinners recognize academic excellence.

Michigan State is striving to combine the advantages of a comprehensiveness which can be attained only with a large enrollment with the conveniences and identification of smaller groups within the structure of the University. Members of the faculty and administrative bodies work closely with individual students in the academic and co-curricular areas to achieve and maintain a personal relationship between the student and the goals of the University. An individual interest which interrupts the uniformity of a numbered mass is introduced at all levels of student affairs.

Evaluation forms are frequently used to gain student ideas.

Despite the housing boom this past year, construction continues.

A Projection in Reality: Independence Responsibility

The relaxation of housing regulations, coupled with an increasing enrollment, has resulted in the creation of a second University micropolis: the students living off campus. Fall term viewed the practical initiation of a rule that allowed all students over 21 to live in unapproved, unsupervised housing. East Lansing realtors and contractors have responded to the University and its students' needs in the construction of several new apartment buildings which are nearly adjacent to the campus. These luxurious new homes offer the student a design for collegiate living in a non-collegiate atmosphere. This migration has caused a revolution in the student's relationship to the University; the campus is now merely the physical area in which one attends classes. The cultural, social, and economic factors of life are visibly combined in the independence and responsibility which offcampus living offers.

Elegance is the word in student housing.

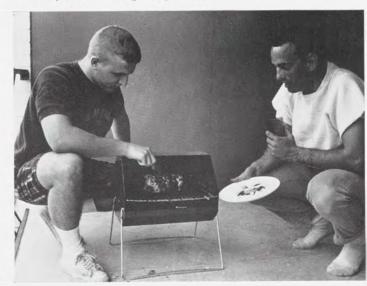

Multi-unit dwellings have mushroomed throughout East Lansing affording students a privacy unknown in University housing.

Furnished with the fundamentals, students supply the homey touches.

A casual, relaxed atmosphere prevails.

Mechanical devices help solve the traffic problem.

With the trend to off-campus housing, hitchhiking has become an accepted mode of travel.

Transportation Within a Time Schedule: A Problem of Physical Expansion

A $1.7 million parking ramp on Shaw Lane accommodates over 1,000 faculty and staff cars.

Increased bus service will shuttle students as the no-driving regulation takes effect in the fall.

Bicycles cut down walking time but prove to be a menace to traffic and pedestrians.

With the continuous expansion of the campus, there has been an increasing danger of erecting physical impediments to the learning process. Transportation, qualified by a rigorous time schedule, has become a major problem. The student body has offered a solution with cars, bicycles, and hitch-hiking; the University has sought to solve the problem with increased parking facilities, mechanical aids for a more efficient flow of traffic, and the implementation of a campus bus service. Fall term will introduce a major innovation as all student driving on campus is eliminated; even faculty members will be assigned parking spaces. The University is seeking to alleviate the problems created by its own growth in introducing a campus-wide system of transportation which will benefit all members of the academic community.

A joint project of MSU and East Lansing, the Bogue Street bridge will serve to facilitate travel between north and south campus.

The Student Education Corps was organized during spring term of 1963 as an experiment in collegiate education. The SEC is a voluntary organization of responsible Michigan State students who are willing to give their talents and their time to serve in schools which have large enrollments of socio-economically-deprived children. These students receive neither monetary compensation nor academic credit, but they do gain invaluable experience in the privileges and duties of mature, responsible citizenship. The SEC strives to prevent premature dropouts by showing these children that education is the key to a better life.

The SEC assigns volunteers on a regularly scheduled basis to schools in this area which have asked for such help. In cooperation with the teachers in these systems, volunteers have offered a practical application of their knowledge and experience. The SEC is an outstanding example of Michigan State's experimentation in education and service.

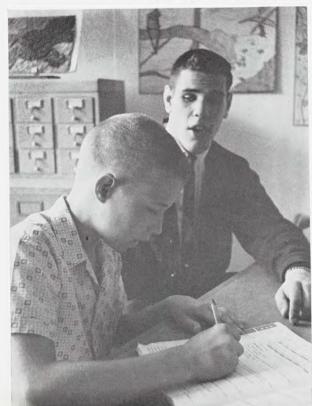

Some of the volunteers worked with small groups of highly-motivated children.

By utilizing a special talent, SEC corpsmen are able to provide broader educational experiences as a supplement to the regular curriculum.

An Experience in Mature Responsibility

Student volunteers have the time which is needed for individual attention.

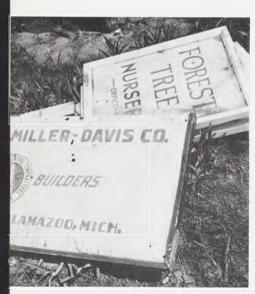

Learning games are carefully planned.

Moments of privacy become increasingly rare as the campus grows in size and population.

Living in the midst of a decade of challenge is exciting. It offers little leisure, but it promises to men of vision the richest rewards of the new horizon. Michigan State strives to prepare its graduates to fulfill this summons economically, socially, morally, and politically by educating men and women who are willing to assume the duties of responsible leadership in a nation crying for intelligent direction and guidance in a world full of confusion, insecurity and doubt. The spirit of Michigan State University lies in its flexibile confrontation of the future through the vivacious environs of the campus culture which is sustained through a persistant pattern of relationships. The University is never quite emancipated from the past, nor ever quite accommodated to the future.

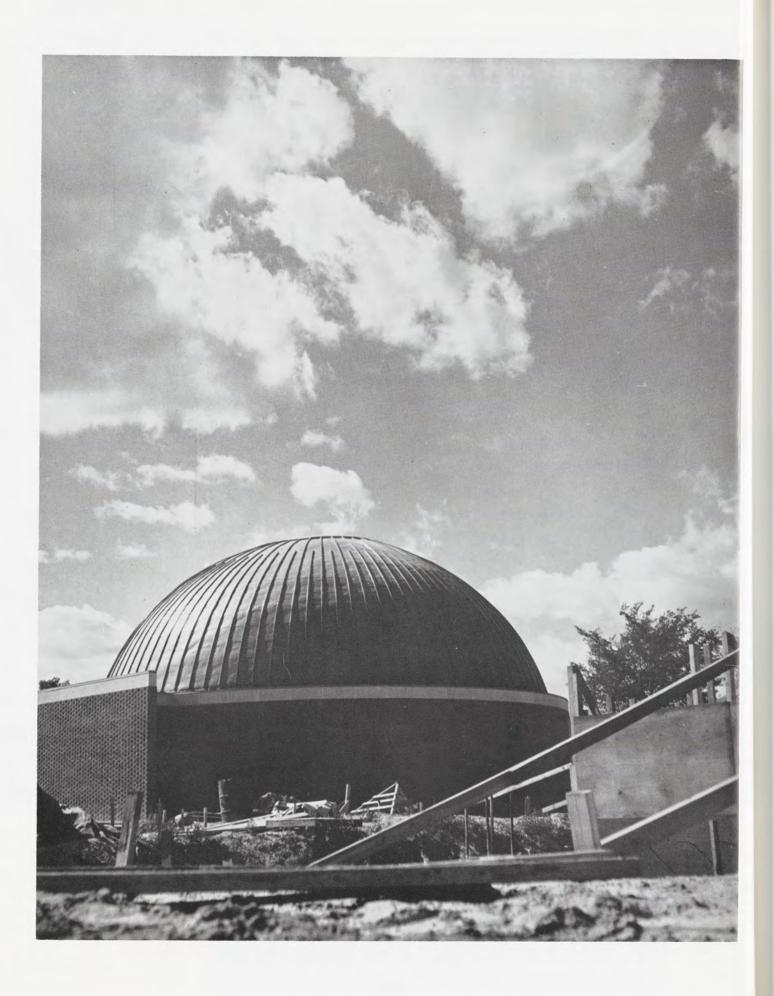

Signs of the agricultural campus are being progressively pushed aside to accommodate the modern science-minded university.

The new architecture, characteristic of the new trend in the University personality, grows up among the earlier style.

The Reshaping of a University

HE PROGRESSIVE—the past mingles with the future to form a changing present. The campus is but a background for the flow of ideas and ideals which represent the beliefs and the dreams of its residents. The opportunity for total experience is offered as each student is confronted with three interrelated ideas: freedom, responsibility, and excellence. His success is self-determined.

The Michigan State University community CHAPTER ONE is a creation of the faculty and the students. This interdependent relationship reaches far beyond the realm of the classroom, penetrating every facet of life at Michigan State.

The Campus Scene is a Kaleidoscope of Events

Life at Michigan State is a composite of classes and studies, tempered by activities. Organized and disorganized, they dominate the year-round campus scene in a kaleidoscope of events, thriving on the overflow of energies that books and bull sessions and lecture halls can't dissipate. The range of interest and activity is such that no one on campus can remain completely indifferent or totally uninvolved. Yet even this recreation is coupled with the same intense concentration that is devoted to serious endeavors—a concentration fostered by the realization that time is all too short and that even daily pleasures must be enjoyed intensely to be enjoyed at all.

Students gathered around Beaumont Tower to partake of the springtime festivities.

Arab Club members donned Beattle garb to entertain International Dinner guests.

Early morning excitement and tension prevails as new Tower Guards and Mortar Boards are tapped at May Morning Sing.

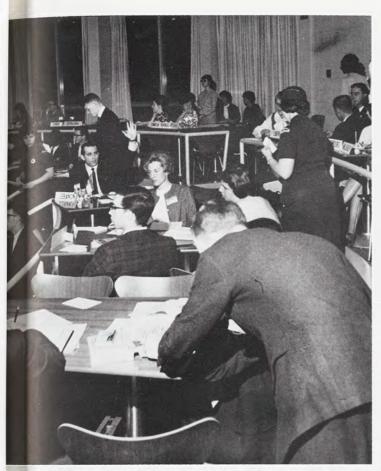

An NAACP-sponsored demonstration was held to raise money for poverty-stricken Negroes in Mississippi.

Abilities find their modes of expression and personalities are created in the activity which is inherent in any all-university event. The student may be an active participant or a spectator; regardless of his status, he is influenced by these deviations from everyday routine. A common bond of shared experiences and feelings is the mark of distinction left upon every individual.

These unique symbols recall the past or bring the present into clearer focus. Intertwined with the daily routine of classes, they contribute more to the every-day than one realizes. These additions bring life to the campus, for in years to come, these are remembered. These events will grow more vivid as one grows older, for these are the parts of life at Michigan State that are too good to forget.

The Campus United Nations hosted UN delegates from other midwestern universities for the annual Regional Conference.

Rare and unusual dishes were the main attraction of the International Dinner.

Many annual events are group-oriented, but most are inter-university in scope and participation. Tradition and innovation form the foundations of these activities. The success or failure depends on strong student leadership and an interested, enthusiastic following. Where these resources are available, the possibility for these annual events to continue, prosper, and add to a student tradition has been enhanced.

Each of these events forms an integral part of the University atmosphere; student participation contributes to the formation of a great university.

Christmas spirit enveloped the crowd at the annual tree-lighting ceremony.

The Campus Shares the Horror of the Nation

Churches and religious centers overflowed as grief-stricken students and faculty came to mourn the slain President.

The furor and excitement of Saturday's bid for the Rose Bowl and social plans subsided as students crowded in front of television sets to view the shocking, history-making events.

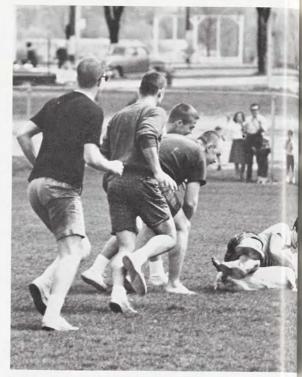

The assassination of President John F. Kennedy was viewed as a personal tragedy by each member of the University community. All aspects of campus life at Michigan State halted as everyone became enveloped in his individual reactions to a national catastrophe. Students, faculty, administrators—all abandoned their habitual tasks under the hypnotic force of a dire history. Some recaptured words, others recalled an action, but each of us was made subject to the memory and to the horror which had made these words and actions but a memory. The omnipresence of reality created a crushing impact; greater maturity and a realization of responsibility were assumed by all. For a brief period of time, we were no longer members of the Michigan State University community but part of a greater body—the citizens of the United States.

Senator Kennedy addressed a crowd of students on the

Flaky crusts were of little importance as the men gobbled their way toward victory.

The cliche "faster than a greased pig" gained greater significance for a number of South Campus residents.

South Campus Weekend: A Student-Sponsored Festival

A hootenanny is a sure way of attracting a crowd.

Competition was stiff as the South Campus males vied for the most beautiful leg title.

With the incessant expansion of campus, many of the relatively isolated areas have felt a need for "self-expression." As a result, the residents of the Case-Wilson Complex have pooled their resources of labor and ideas to produce the First Annual South Campus Weekend.

The largest student sponsored festival of sports, games, dances, and exhibitions at Michigan State was opened by the crack of one of the nation's smallest but loudest artillery pieces. Following a musical drill display by the Stereomen Drum and Bugle Corps, games and contests pitting the two coed dormitories against each other began. Sports enthusiasts enjoyed coed baseball. For those interested in more unique gaming, there were pie eating contests, a greased pig chase on the soccer field, an egg toss, and a contest for the most beautiful male legs.

That evening, four bands were featured in an outdoor all-University dance in the Wilson parking lot. All of these events, as they were organized by Case-Wilson residents, were planned for both participation value and audience appreciation.

Anxiety and frustration of both contestants and spectators quickly vanished as the men set to their task.

After the basic construction has been completed at the respective residences, the floats are brought to the Red Cedar for finishing touches.

Each year at Michigan State solidifies certain traditions which have become rooted in the university life over the years. The pageantry and organizational brilliance of today's Water Carnival have come about through years of experience, experience that has piled up, year after year, from the birth of the idea of a Spring Festival.

"Panic", the theme of the 1963 Red Cedar extravaganza, was symbolized by Damit, the son of the devil. He set the stage for a procession of floats which chronicled everything from "Scales of Power" to "My Son, the Machine." Initiative, imagination, and hard work were demonstrated in this voyage on the Red Cedar.

This dynamic spectacle is unique to Michigan State. Every college has a Homecoming, but no other school has a spring festival of this type. Water Carnival is a powerful campus tradition.

Smoke and other devices are often used for added effect.

Water Carnival . . . Initiative Imagination Hard Work

The floats depicted the "Panic" caused when Damit, the Devil's son, hit the campus and world scenes.

Excitement runs high as the carts begin that final stretch to the finish line.

Cooperation is the rule, for maneuvering can mean a valuable gain or loss of time.

Junior 500

Indianapolis on Memorial Day has nothing on MSU with the exception of a few motors. The Saturday before each Memorial Day brings all the thrills and spills to West Circle Drive in the Lambda Chi Alpha "Junior 500".

This event, a tradition at State for 16 years, consists of a push-cart race for teams representing each living unit over a 1.1 mile course. The driver controls the cart while five men take turns pushing it around the course. The field consisted of nearly 60 push-carts and the event drew 12,000 people. Sigma Alpha Epsilon pushed their way to the men's first place trophy as Alpha Kappa Alpha gained victory in the women's.

Joni Serant reigned over the event as the Junior 500 Queen.

Petiteness took the spotlight as the pint-sized coeds peddled in the Sigma Alpha Mu's first annual Sorority Tricycle Race.

The Greek system at Michigan State reaches its height each spring with Greek Week. The week consists of many activities sponsored by the various Greek living units.

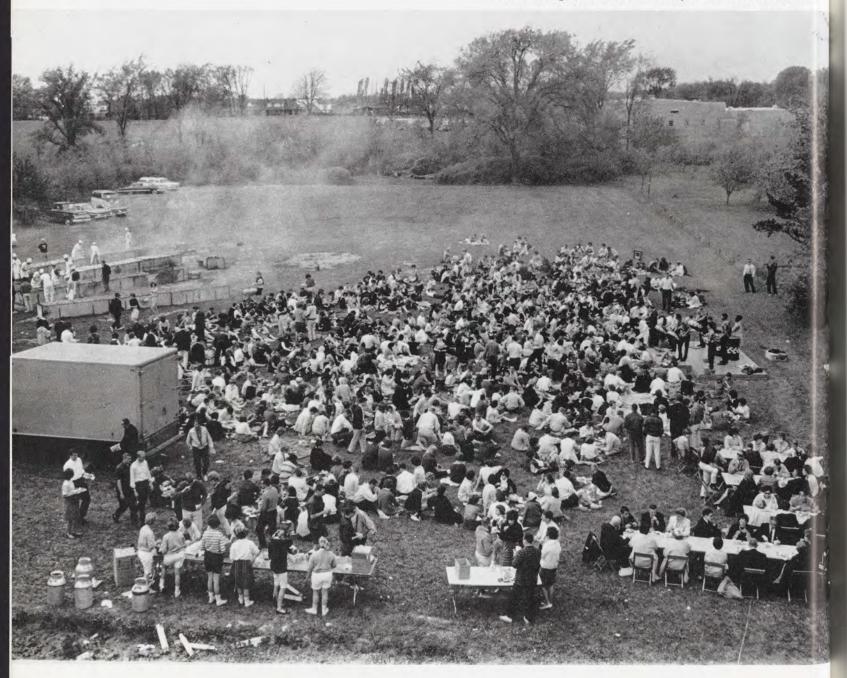

The week opened with a sports car parade followed by a torch run reminiscent of ancient Greece. The torch was carried to all the fraternity houses and was placed at the Union where it burned throughout the week.

Not the entire week was festivities as the fraternity and sorority pledges worked on mass community projects and aided area underprivileged children.

On Sunday 10 sorority and six fraternity vocal groups competed in the finals of the Greek Sing held in the Auditorium. Delta Zeta won first in the sorority division while the Fiji's sang their way to first place among fraternities. In another musical feature, jazz enthusiasts enjoyed the Beta Theta Pi Session-by-the-Cedar.

Greek Week: Uniting the Greek System In Service and Fun

Thirty-five hundred Greeks turned out on the Sigma Nu lawn for the climaxing event of Greek Week, the annual Greek Feast.

Barbecued chicken and entertainment by the Burgundy Trio and the Bamboushay Steel Band provided the atmosphere for the picnic-style feast.

Throughout the week street dances, faculty dinners and the Ugliest Greek contest kept the activities going.

The second weekend of Greek Week began with a new event the Sorority Tricycle Race sponsored by Sigma Alpha Mu. All the sororities entered the race which was won by Kappa Alpha Theta. Delta Delta Delta and Delta Zeta teams peddled their small vehicles to second and third place finishes respectively.

Later Saturday the annual Greek Feast drew 3,000 people including 300 parents to the Sigma Nu lawn.

Coinciding with Greek Week was the traditional Water Carnival on the Red Cedar. Greek floats conforming to the "Panic" theme made an impressive showing. Alpha Epsilon Pi and Delta Delta combined efforts to build the first prize float while Kappa Alpha Theta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon captured the second place trophy.

The Beta lawn became an auditorium for the 2,000 jazz enthusiasts who attended "Session by the Cedar."

In-coming and out-going Sophomore Class Presidents, John McQuitty and Bruce Osterink, found the annual Presidents' Tree Sit a test of endurance.

A variety of contests and games are organized for no other purpose than hilarity.

On the first Saturday of fall term, the Frosh-Soph Council sponsors this annual competition between the freshman and sophomore classes. Frosh-Soph Daze has changed a great deal since the time when a tug-of-war was staged with the competing teams on opposite banks of the Red Cedar River, but today's events are still sparked by the enthusiasm of inter-class competition. From the presidents' tree-sitting to the frantic search for a garter in a haystack, the contest is always close; in the case of the tree-sitting, the two class leaders often descend together after a long and uncomfortable night in their nest. The fun of organized activities and the spontaneous hilarity of the spectators serve to introduce new students to campus life and to integrate them into its activities.

Frosh-Soph Daze: Enthusiasm for Inter-class Competition

Students turned out en masse along the Red Cedar banks for the canoe race sponsored by Shaw Hall.

Even a flu shot seems bearable with the light of day and the end of registration in view.

Never a breeze, even for a graduating senior, the rigors of registration proved confusing to the incoming freshmen who registered at summer clinics.

Class conflicts and closed sections frequently cause problems.

Registration, the traditional bane of MSU students, is centered in an arena of confusion and hectic activity where the University undergraduate population is confronted with filled sections, class conflicts, and the other terrors of scheduling courses. The problem was somewhat alleviated this year by allowing freshmen to register during the summer at the counselling clinics. Winter term, seniors and graduate students were granted the privilege of registering early. Under this program, those participating can reserve the time they want to register, thus insuring a maximum degree of flexibility for the students and greater efficiency for the University

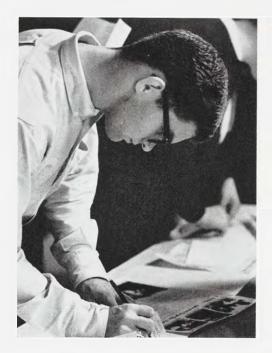

The student, however, sees only one small part of registration. The Office of the Registrar is responsible for the work which includes the compiling of course schedules, the assigning of classrooms and labs, and an IBM-granted guarantee that on the first day of classes every student will be in the right place with the correct professor.

Registration: A Traditional Arena of Confusion, Filled Sections and Class Conflicts

Seniors and graduate students picked up cards on the Union Concourse for the experimental early winter registration.

Booths and displays at Activities and Career Carnivals gave students an opportunity to ask questions about possible job opportunities and activities and organizations on campus.

Activities, Career Carnivals: Midways to the World Beyond the Classroom "State Fair" transformed the Spartan Stadium concourse into a veritable midway as more than seventy campus organizations were represented in the 1963 Activities Carnival. Upperclassmen arranged booths and displays as a means of acquainting freshmen and transfer students with the numerous clubs and organizations which are open to them at MSU.

The annual Career Carnival is of vital importance to every MSU senior. Major corporations and leading employers from every part of the nation send display booths and representatives to the campus to discuss job opportunities in various fields with interested students.

These fall term activities are important to all MSU students, for they serve as an introduction to the world which lies beyond the classrooms.

The American Veterinary Medical Association was one of the organizations able to talk with potential members.

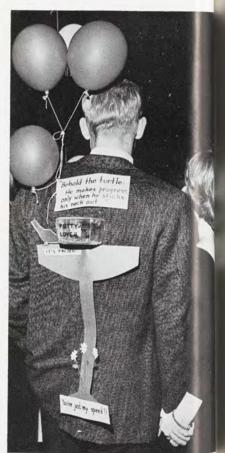

Roulette wheels and other trimmings of Vegas graced the Auditorium at the annual J-Hop.

Elaborate hand-made corsages were the order of the day at the annual Spinsters' Spin.

J-Hop, Spinsters' Spin, Winterland Whirl

J-Hop couples danced to the music of Buddy Morrow and were entertained by Ahmad Jamal.

The pervasive atmosphere of a cold and dreary winter term at Michigan State is broken by three all-university dances which are held annually.

The highlight of the Veteran's Club Winterland Whirl is the selection of a queen. Each couple was greeted upon entry with an array of pictures of the candidates and then allowed to vote; Carole Heffler was crowned during the intermission.

A hint of Nevada—and its implications—was introduced at the 1964 J-Hop, Vegas Ventures. Judy Smith was selected as the new Miss MSU during intermission.

In accord with the spirit of Leap Year, the Women of Tower Guard, Mortar Board, and AWS joined forces to present the annual turnabout dance, the Spinster Spin. Bruce Osterink was chosen to represent his University as Mr. MSU.

Much preparation and publicity are an important part of a successful dance.

A hectic week of preparation precedes Homecoming as chicken wire and tissue are transformed into colorful displays.

Homecoming Is a Time for Spartan Enthusiasm The Wisconsin cheerleaders were accompanied by their answer to Sparty.

Queen Donna and her Court were escorted to the game and other Homecoming festivities by Excalibur members.

Each year at Michigan State solidifies certain traditions which have become part of the University life through the years; each year brings possibilities for new traditions. Homecoming 1963 was a congenial mixture of these divergent aspects.

Crisp, sunny football weather and an MSU victory over the Wisconsin Badgers set the tone for the weekend; the afternoon was marred only by an occasional snowflake and an appearance on the field after the Spartans' first touchdown by Stanley, the Beta Theta Pi's basset hound. After the final victorious roar of approval, the crowd dispersed to the field and alumni gathered behind their class standards. After reminiscing with their classmates, many of them attended the open houses of their living units to renew acquaintances with long-lost fraternity brothers and good friends.

Spontaneous and organized pep rallies prefaced Homecoming.

The days that prefaced Homecoming 1963 were filled with frenzied activity. Pep rallies—both organized and spontaneous—accompanied the less glamorous task of transforming chicken wire and tissue paper into elaborate displays which would greet the returning alumni and poke fun at the visiting football team. This year, the sororities on campus joined forces of imagination and creativity; with the houses working in pairs, the women produced mobile floats instead of the traditional stationary displays.

The formal highlight of the weekend was found in the Homecoming Dance. The Auditorium acquired a new mood as students and alums danced to the music of Claude Thornhill. Queen Donna Beukema was crowned during intermission.

Happiness for the women of Campbell was in the form of this prize-winning display based on the popular cartoon character.

The Leon-Destine troupe danced to authentic native music.

The versatility and range of the Koto, an ancient Japanese instrument, fascinated the Kiva audience.

Lecture-Concert Series: Entertaining Students and Faculty for Over 50 Years

The intricate patterns of traditional Haitian dance are exhibited by the Leon-Destine Dance Company.

Swan Lake was one of the ballets performed by the Bolstoi Ballet Company.

MSU's Lecture-Concert Series programs have been entertaining students and people of the Lansing area for over fifty years. Internationally famous lecturers, concert artists, orchestras, ballet companies, opera, and drama — personalities who are lasting and important in their respective fields — are brought to campus under the supervision of Dr. Wilson Paul.

The programs are presented to give students opportunities for enrichment and enjoyment through personal experience with a variety of artistic achievements; to help students through lectures, films, and other media to understand the cultural, economic, and social backgrounds of the peoples of the world; to give the faculty and staff opportunities to experience the intellectual challenge and aesthetic enjoyment that comes from a variety of cultural and educational programs; and to cooperate with other organizations in providing such cultural and educational programs for the community.

Bringing the Lights and Life
Of Broadway and the Met
To the MSU Campus

The stirring sounds of the world famous Vienna Symphony Orchestra delighted a capacity audience.

The Lettermen "take five" during their Frosh-Soph Council-sponsored concert fall term.

Mantovani met with students backstage following his performance which is a high point in each L-C Series.

The belief that artists whose impact in their fields is great will be of more significance to the student body is firmly upheld; turnaway crowds are not unusual and pre-season sell-outs are commonplace. The Series has brought the lights and life of Broadway and the Met to the stage of the University Auditorium in a presentation of diversified, entertaining, and educational programs for the University community. Its purpose is to widen the student's cultural experience in the most enjoyable manner.

Because of the strength of this centralized program, most of the world's great performing companies have included MSU on their tours of this nation; this has made East Lansing the cultural equal of many of the largest cities in the United States. All of these features combine to create one of the finest collegiate cultural programs for both the students and the community.

Jazz and the Classics Enrich the Summer Campus

Summer music programs at MSU provide opportunities for cultural enrichment for the entire University community. These programs cover nearly every area of music — from jazz to the classics — and involve persons of all age groups. The Congress of Strings, sponsored by the American Federation of Musicians, is a music education program for young musicians. The program has noted musicians from major symphony orchestras throughout the United States serving on its faculty. Outstanding guest conductors direct the group in a series of concerts which are open to the public. Young jazz musicians and top jazz performers and educators are on hand for the annual Stan Kenton Workshop. The purpose of this clinic is to create an interest in the uniquely American music as it is interpreted in jazz forms.

With the pleasures of summer weather, practice sessions often took to the out-of-doors.

Following the daily class sessions the highschool students spent hours in individual practice in preparation for the concerts held throughout the 8-week period.

Buddy Morrow and members of the Kenton band held an open lecture session on today's jazz situation.

Music and dancing from Nigeria was this group's contribution to the Festival stage show.

International Festival: Diversity of Customs and Culture

Colorful costumes and elaborate booths marked the opening of the 19th annual International Festival presented by the International Club. Exhibition booths were set up, each representing various countries. Foreign students were found in native dress telling visitors of their respective customs and culture. The highlight of the festival was a stage show that included authentic folk dances performed by members of the club. A banner heralding the coming of the Festival was strung across the Abbott entrance to the campus and superintendents of public schools in the area were invited to attend. Sports competition between each country provided exciting entertainment. Trophies were presented for the exhibitions and stage show.

The Performing Arts Company, a term which was bewildering to students familiar with the University Theater name, is an expansion of the University Theater program; sell-out crowds and the improved stage facilities around campus have prompted this growth. A special grant to the Speech Department permitted the hiring of graduate assistants and allowed for expansion in the number of productions, including special dramatic tours. Under the Performing Arts Company, five major plays, seven arena productions, and a series of one act plays will be presented annually. With this program, two traveling tours are conducted each year throughout the state of Michigan. These theatrical events play a major role in the cultural experiences of all MSU students.

This year, students in the new, somewhat isolated residence halls have had the opportunity to see University Theater productions without walking across campus to the auditorium. The idea of presenting dramas in the dormitories was proposed by the Department of Speech. In cooperation with the Departments of Music and Art, cultural events have moved into the student living units on the south and east campuses.

Michigan State University provides extensive personnel services designed to assist students—past, present, and future—to make their educational experience more profitable and satisfying. This assistance may be focused on a single individual within the confines of the Counseling Center or it may be offered on an international basis through the work of the Information Services Office; the range of services is infinitely extensive.

While the principal function of the University is to provide a suitable intellectual environment for the student through classrooms, laboratories, and stimulating teachers, it is recognized that the total development of the individual—personal, social, and physical as well as intellectual—is of equal importance.

Admissions and Scholarships: Screening the Student Population

The Office of Admissions and Scholarships is responsible for MSU students, individually and as a unit. Every student who applies to the University is individually considered by this office. The result of its work is a geographical balance of students who display a variety of interests. The national and international diversity of the total student body is one of the basic strengths of MSU and of the type of education that it offers to each of its students.

During the past year, this same office has made available more than $500,000 in scholarships to deserving MSU students. These funds are made available through private grants and in the budget of the state of Michigan. This fall, MSU became the first public institution to sponsor a scholarship program through the National Merit Corporation; all National Merit finalists who indicated MSU as their first college choice were eligible for these grants.

A map of the U.S. shows the distribution of MSU's National Merit Scholars.

Continuing Education: Coordinating Adult Education

Programs reach nearly every community in Michigan through the Continuing Education Service, a University organization which coordinates, guides, facilitates, and provides leadership in educational offerings for adults. Members of the University staff travel throughout the state in this effort to help people learn to do their jobs better, to lead more useful lives, to challenge the active mind, to employ their leisure time more wisely, to become better citizens, and to assist in the attainment of advanced degrees. The staff at Kellogg Center serves as the administrative unit for credit and non-credit courses and programs in the fields of business, industry, government, education, and community service which form the foundation of this agency's activities. While these programs have been developed to meet varying needs, all have grown out of the basic philosophy that a state university should serve all of its people.

Planning and organization are basic to the smooth functioning of Kellogg.

Kellogg Center serves as the focal point of service to the adults of Michigan, the nation, and the world in the continuity of learning.

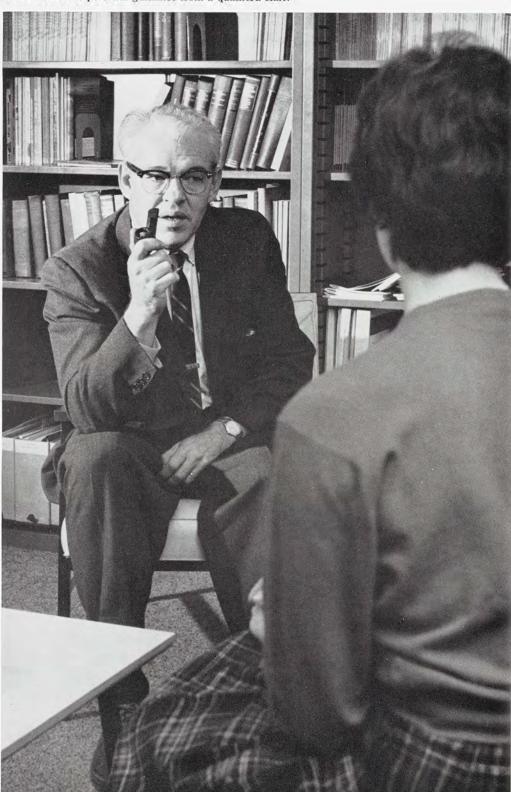

Counseling Center: Giving Academic, Vocational, and Personal Guidance

The Counseling Center was established to give assistance to students with the academic, vocational, and personal problems which are fostered with in a university's environment. In a permissive atmosphere in which he may honestly express his thoughts, the student is helped by a counselor to gain new insights into his problems and their possible solutions. A complete testing service is maintained, and when it is appropriate, the counselor and the student may select tests to appraise abilities, interests, or personality characteristics. Students frequently make use of the occupational information which the center makes available. In these ways, the counseling center contributes to the total development of the student as a person.

Students receive personal guidance from a qualified staff.

Appointment scheduling is handled by the office secretaries.

Any MSU student or alumnus is eligible to employ the services offered by the Placement Bureau. Job opportunities are solicited from prospective employers and catalogued, thus forming a foundation for all areas of vocational responsibilities. A service for students wanting part-time employment while attending MSU is designed to cover all areas both on and off campus; contacts are arranged for summer employment for students. The Bureau serves seniors in securing jobs after graduation by arranging interviews with interested companies, keeping up-to-date records of employment opportunities, holding an annual Career Carnival, and sponsoring career conferences. The Placement Bureau plays a significant role in insuring the welfare of MSU students on campus and in the future.

Facilities for Students and Alumni

Coordinating the efforts of the head advisors of the Brody group is the task of Tom Cook.

Michigan State has developed one of the finest and most extensive collegiate residence programs in the country so that its students may actively participate in the life of this academic community. Although its primary purpose is to provide comfortable living accommodations, the residence hall also contributes to the educational experience of the student by offering a foundation for new friendships and pleasant memories through a wide variety of social, cultural, and recreational programs. University housing, which includes dormitories, apartments, fraternity and sorority houses, a graduate residence hall, and co-operatives, is designed to give the student the greatest possible experience in self-discipline, group living, and the development of social manners.

Jim Appleton, associate director of residence hall programs, is responsible for the hiring of all staff for the halls.

Students find needed information on off-campus housing on the housing bulletin board.

Alumni Relations: Fostering a Feeling Of Loyalty and Interest

The Alumni Relations Office does liaison work between the general alumni body and the University. Its purpose is to foster a feeling of loyalty and interest, to stimulate, organize, and direct alumni activities, and to unite them with their University. The Alumni Office offers publications on subjects of general and specialized interest to all alumni. The office also arranges class and college reunions, working with the many specialized alumni organizations. In many instances, the Alumni Relations Office is the only existing link between a graduate of MSU and his alma mater; this living information is an important addition to the pleasant memories of an alumnus' memories of his own college days.

Keeping alumni in touch with and interested in the University is the work of the Alumni Office headed by Jack Kinney.

Olin Memorial Health Center: Offering Students Medical, Surgical and Psychiatric Facilities

A visit for a simple cold can easily become a morning's project as the number of students frequenting Olin increases during the cold weather.

The health center is named after Richard M. Olin, MSU's first campus physician. His first hospital was in a mansard-roof castle house, on the site where Gilchrist now stands. From this inconspicuous beginning, the hospital has grown with the University to its present extensive facilities.

Insofar as possible, Olin Memorial Health Center serves as a family physician for all MSU students. The University maintains this well-equipped, centrally located health service with facilities for students in need of medical, acute surgical, or psychiatric care. Any student needing medical attention can report to Olin for consultation and treatment.

Not even bicycle riders are free from the watchful eyes of the campus police.

Public Safety: Safeguarding the Student Community

The preservation of the peace, the protection of life and property, the safeguarding of civil rights, and the maintenance of social order are essential to the functioning of a democratic society. A quiet and safe campus is essential to the educational purpose of the University. The responsibility for this job rests in the Department of Public Safety. Behind the silver shield, twenty-four uniformed policemen protect the residences, the property, and the lives of University residents. Any of the problems which plague today's cities are found in the University micropolis; as in a city, they are efficiently handled by a capable staff of full-time officers.

Busy intersections call for the services of the campus police during rush hours.

Ambulance service is available at all hours.

Information Services: Enhancing the University Image

Staff members of the Information Services are on the alert for reports of achievement at MSU — information which can be channelled to the public through the use of the mass media. This agency keeps the public informed of the services, projects, and activities of the University, and provides information that Michigan residents can use in their daily living. Through this significant work in the field of public relations, the reputation of Michigan State is enhanced and its usefulness is increased to the people who maintain the University.

"The impressions we make today — individually and collectively — on the public we strive to serve will determine the extent of approval our institution receives tomorrow." Their work insures public approval.

Passport photographs are also a service of the department.

WKAR, WMSB: Serving the Students and the State

At WMSB, students learn about the operations of a television station.

To many people, the University may be centered in an electronically reproduced voice. MSU radio station WKAR broadcasts information and entertainment to audiences in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, and Ontario. WKAR is an integral part of MSU's educational program, but it is not so much a classroom tool as it is a public service for students and the entire state. Emphasis has shifted from the classroom to educational and public service programs dealing with literature, music, art, government, and current events, while music programs feature the best in jazz and the classics. Operating in conjunction with commercial station WILX, educational station WMSB broadcasts cultural information each week in the areas of humanities, sciences, social sciences, fine arts, and public affairs. This instructional function is supplemented by an informational aspect which is aimed at its total television audience.

The purpose of MSU's international activity is to develop significant knowledge which can be used for world peace and the economic development of new markets. American education has lagged behind business, government, and industry in international affairs when it should have been in the lead; today, MSU is one of the pioneers in this area.

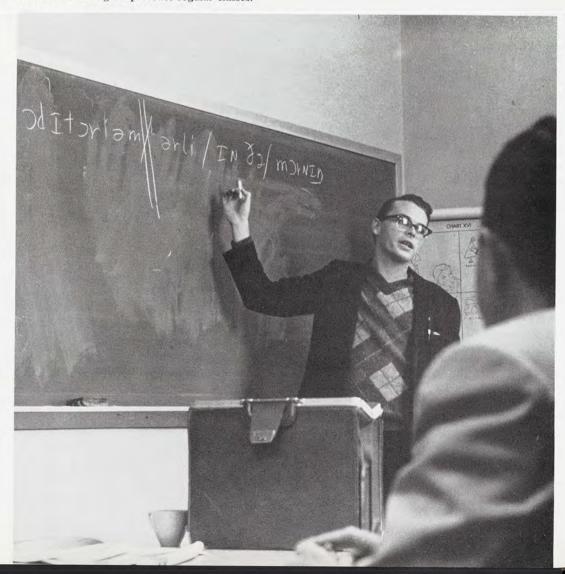

International problems are shown as a part of our every-day living situation through the University's efforts which are concentrated in two directions. The on-campus program is based on giving courses an international dimension by the addition of foreign aspects to the curriculum and by bringing foreign instructors to campus. The off-campus program centers around the development of educational institutions around the world through agreements with foreign governments and schools.

STUDENT SERVICES

Student services is a broad term that encompasses a wide range of benefits developed over a period of time which exist for the sole purpose of serving the student body. The influence of these organizations may be realized daily with the State News, periodically with the Veterinarian, or annually with the Wolverine. AUSG and Union Board have a continuous effect upon the student's daily life.

Communication is of vital significance in a school as large as Michigan State. Even a basic inventory of the functions of these student services will provide proof of their significance on this campus, for they provide a link among the students themselves and with the world which lies beyond the campus boundaries.

Union Board offers dance instruction to needing students.

The jazz show and donkey basketball game were among the entertainment presented Union Board Week.

"Take Five", the annual Union Board Week was publicized by a gigantic poster board outside the building.

Bridge instruction and tournaments are sponsored for interested students.

Union Board: Coordinating Student-Union Activities

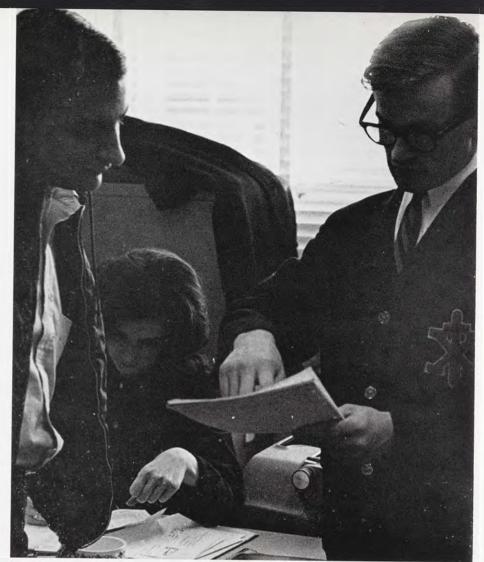

Six stories of brick and mortar comprise MSU's living room — the Student Union. As a building devoted to recreational and social activities, the Union daily serves thousands of students, faculty, alumni, and guests. Its many services which are available to the University population allow them to form new and closer friendships. All non-student activities are controlled by the Union Manager who coordinates the various business operations. Student activities are planned and controlled by a fourteen member student executive board; these directors are aided by some two hundred students — the Union Board.

Each committee, under the leadership of its director, performs specialized duties to serve the student body. Forum Committee helps to provide cultural activities by supervising the music room, art and book reviews, and a series of lectures. Coordinating the duties of Union Board members is the Personnel Committee. All advertising of related campus functions is the product of the Publicity Committee. The Public Relations Committee prepares a full term calendar, listing all scheduled campus events for a term. All social and money-raising events are handled by the Social Committee. Various student services, for the individual and for the campus as a whole, are sponsored by Union Board. This organization is responsible for planning programs designed to make campus living more meaningful, educational, and enjoyable.

Student Traffic Court of Appeals gives students a chance to appeal campus traffic tickets and catch a few winks too.

The All-University Student Government, the major student governing body on campus, is patterned after the Federal Government with three branches — Legislative, Executive, and Judicial. The Executive Branch is headed by the President, who is elected by the student body each Spring term. The Legislative Branch is contained within the Student Congress; representatives are elected from each dormitory and collectively from off-campus students. The constitutional legality of all AUSG activities, both present and future, is determined by the All-Student Judiciary. This same body judges many cases involving problems of student discipline.

AUSG is designed by and for the students. Its efforts are directed toward the welfare and rights of students, direct student benefits, and the support and aid of campus organizations. In any of its functions, the opportunity to learn about people, to work more closely with faculty members, and to develop one's full potential is a rewarding experience. AUSG plays a major role in the process of educating the student in the democratic principles upon which the University and the nation are founded, and by which they are maintained.

Responsible Service for the Student Body and the Individual

All-University Student Government has had a proud and colorful past. On March 28, 1908, the student body passed the following resolution: "For the future settlement of all class matters and the maintenance of the college traditions and customs, a 'Student Council' shall be formed." As the University has grown in the past 55 years, AUSG has developed into one of the three best student government structures in the nation, with the responsibility of coordinating campus organizations and serving as the voice of the students.

Responsibility is the key to effective student government at any level. Individual members work to provide services that affect a single individual or the entire student body. Operating on a 25¢ fee from each student per term, and under the general direction of President Bob Kerr, AUSG again proved its financial responsibility with the many services performed for the students that it represents.

AUSG members put in long hours on the job.

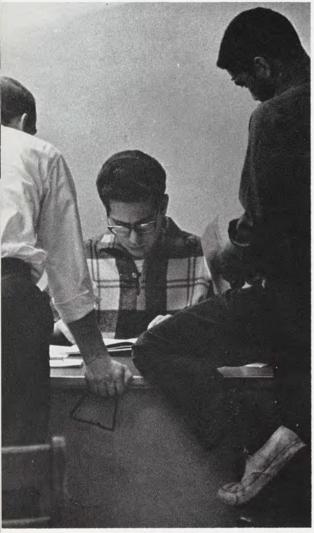

Compiling the index required hours of typing, sorting and filing.

1964 Wolverine: Interpretation of a Year

The 1964 Wolverine presents a composite view of life at Michigan State through photographs and copy; this student publication is the result of many laborious hours. Every page must present an accurate and interesting portrayal of the everyday events which have meaning for the majority of students. Guided by Editor Michele Powers, Copy Editor Terry Maxon, Photo Editor Mark Krastof, and Sales Manager Mike Anikeeff, students work afternoons and weekends during the term and almost constantly during the term breaks on the endless tasks which are required to produce this yearbook.

Work on the 1964 Wolverine began during the summer of 1963 when professional artists organized student ideas into an attractive arrangement. At the beginning of fall term, an open house was held to select a qualified student staff. Then, pictures were taken of graduating seniors, campus organizations and clubs, campus events, and sports.

Sorting senior picture proofs is a tedious job for Sharon Bernath, seniors editor, and Jay Arthurs.

Copy editor Terry Maxon and Greek Editor Bob Farkas work to coordinate copy continuity.

A Year Measured in Campaigns and Deadlines

It was winter by the time the senior portraits returned from the Delma Studios in New York. The portraits were arranged alphabetically and by colleges, then made into plates engraved by Jahn and Ollier of Chicago.

Near the end of winter and into the spring, the year-book was sent, section by section, to Speaker, Hines, and Thomas of Lansing; eventually, all 480 pages had been printed and the covers had arrived from the S. K. Smith Company of Chicago.

Finally, the yearbook was assembled and, when they were presented to the staff and faculty involved in the production at the annual Publications Banquet spring term and then to the entire student body, the year's work was completed. But, for the staff of the 1965 Wolverine, the work was about to begin.

A fall open house was held to interest potential staffers.

The State News' stand on many issues involves a decision by the editorial board assisted by Advisor Louis Berman.

Every weekday morning, 30,000 copies of the State News, the University newspaper, are distributed across the campus. A student's morning would hardly be complete without the daily ritual of reading the newspaper before his first class. It provides the necessary communicative link between the faculty and students in this large and diversified university community.

Guided by Louis Berman, the faculty advisor, Editor Bruce Fabricant and his staff gather information from the campus, local community, state, and world scenes to present complete, informative and interesting news coverage. The newspaper serves as a training ground for many students who are enrolled in the schools of journalism and advertising; it also employs students who are merely interested in journalism.

The State News press room is a scene of constant activity and deadlines.

After the facts have been gathered, the deadline is the next obstacle encountered by the student reporter.

Campus stories were compiled for the State News by reporters on the campus and turned into Gerry Hinkley, the city editor. Both of the wire services, Associated Press and United Press International, furnished the state and national stories for the newspaper.

Most of the pictures used in the State News were taken by the photo staff under the direction of George Junne.

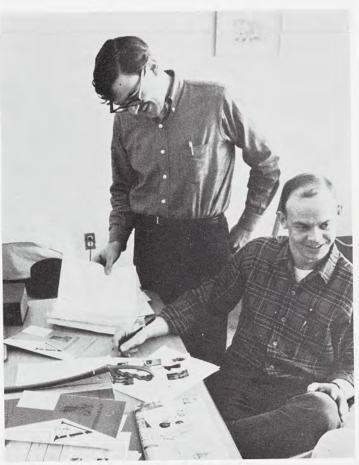

After the stories had been selected for use in the paper, they were given to the copy desk for editing and rewriting. All of this was usually completed by 4:00 in the afternoon. As soon as the stories were dummied into the paper, they were sent to Willstaff in East Lansing to be typed. After typing, they were sent to Greenville to be printed. The finished newspapers were back on campus by 5:30 the next morning and distributed to most of the students in time to be read with breakfast.

Typing and preliminary paste-ups are done at nearby Wilstaff before being sent to Greenville for printing.

Research and technical reports comprise the greatest portion of the journal.

MSU Veterinarian: Informing the Public of Significant Developments In the field of Veterinary Medicine

The MSU Veterinarian is the student organ of the College of Veterinary Medicine. The staff of this magazine is composed entirely of students who are majoring in this field. Working under the direction of co-editors Ted Fitch and John Lund, these students publish three issues during the academic year. Their presentation of veterinary news is designed to keep all those interested in this field informed of significant recent developments.

Carefully conducted research serves as the foundation for the contents of the MSU Veterinarian. Technical reports of national and local events are a valuable source of information; students and professionals view it as a literary record of progress. The MSU Veterinarian has the distinction of being the only technical journal that is published by students on the campus of Michigan State.

Administration: Forming a Comprehensive, Cohesive Unit

The administration of Michigan State University is composed of dedicated individuals whose objective is to form a comprehensive and cohesive unit designed to carry out the philosophy of the University. This philosophy—to seek the truth, to teach the truth, and to preserve the truth—is reflected in the University's aims and purposes: to provide an education to fit the times for the young men and women who qualify to enroll here; to disseminate and advance knowledge in the fields of education in which programs of instruction and research are maintained; to extend the services of the University to the people of the state, the nation, and the world.

President John A. Hannah, appointed by the Board of Trustees, must have a staff of competent persons to take charge of and care for the many offices and units essential to the operation of a great university, for these men are ultimately responsible for the formulation and implementation of all University policies.

Interpreting the Aims of the University

The administration of Michigan State is responsible for interpreting the aims of the University in order to secure and arrange the means. This body bears the responsibility for a continuous evaluation of the rate of accommodation to the major centers of persuasion: organizational, curricular, and societal.

The administration serves as a translator between two communities: the University, which cannot be independent of the world yet must be autonomous, and the larger community which created it. In contemporary society, there is a specific concern with the reconciliation between the larger community, which is insistent upon its wants, and the University, which is insistent upon what society needs. The administration is the ultimate arbiter and coordinator of these divergent goals.

EVER has the quest for knowledge—new knowledge in its own right and in behalf of society—been attended with such a sense of urgency. Never have the challenges to the University, nor the opportunities for significant contribution been so great. Never has society expected so much from, nor in fact been so dependent upon, the University to help it resolve its problems and protect its survival. Never have so many students been as highly motivated as they are now.

MSU: Integrating New Discoveries With Existing Knowledge

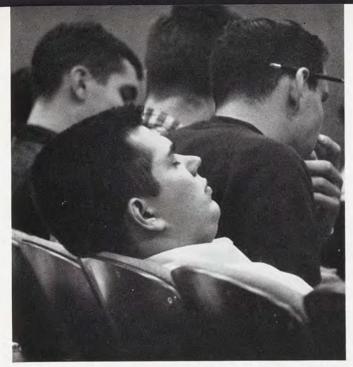

Michigan State University is not only responsive to the spirit and demands of the times, but its faculty and administration take pride in exercising leadership to make learning, teaching, and research a more meaningful and interesting intellectual endeavor. It will remain a continuing concern of the disciplines of the several colleges to evolve syntheses and interpretations which integrate new discoveries with existing knowledge. Each of the disciplines contributes according to its specialized capacity and to function to a greater measure of understanding and knowledge of the universe, of man, and of man's relation to the universe. The academic community is brought together and sustained by a common respect for learning, love of wisdom, and quest for new knowledge.

Michigan State University, the pioneer land-grant university, was founded in 1855 as a venturesome experiment designed to prepare men for rural leadership. Today, with many educational innovations, it has become one of America's largest and most distinguished universities.

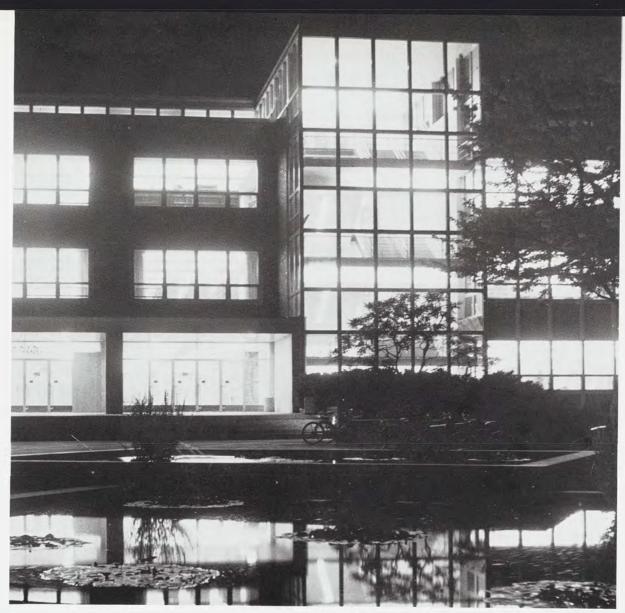

Michigan State has differed from many of its contemporaries — it has not confined its efforts to any one field or to any traditional series of fields. The philosophy which states that the whole province of knowledge is a proper area for the attention of a university is embodied in the structure of Michigan State; a wide variety of programs is offered through 11 colleges and more than 70 departments which have more than 200 different programs leading to undergraduate and graduate degrees.

Above all, Michigan State professes the belief that an educated man in a democracy is one who is trained and conditioned to be an effective citizen. He will have been trained to contribute to society economically within the limits of his creative and productive skills. He will have been educated to contribute socially by his understanding of the world around him. He will have been educated to contribute morally by his acceptance and observance of the fundamental values. He will have been educated to contribute politically by his reasoned ability to lead or to follow with equal intelligence. Michigan State strives to graduate men and women who are able to assume the duties of leadership in a nation crying for intelligent guidance in this world of confusion and insecurity.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

A general education, as it is provided by the University College, embraces those fundamental areas of knowledge which should be the common purpose of all educated men and women, apart from the training provided by specialized disciplines. The basic purpose of the University College is to provide for each student, regardless of his major field or vocational aspirations, a common core of rigorous courses in general education.

By emphasizing both the content of American thought and the manner of its expression, American Thought and Language endeavors to the make the student aware of the role which language plays in a free society. HONORS COLLEGE

Honors students frequently discuss problems and future plans with faculty advisors.

Special research facilities and study areas are enjoyed by Honors students.

The Honors College was created at Michigan State in 1957 to encourage the development and achievement of all undergraduate students of superior academic ability. Working closely with a faculty advisor, the student is allowed to plan a program of study which will conform to his own special talents. The flexibility of the Honors College program has been provided to insure that these scholars are constantly challenged by the most advanced work for which each is ready. After a student has been admitted to the Honors College, all requirements for graduation, other than the total number of credits may be waived. The program undertaken by this student may include independent study with faculty guidance, the waiving of prerequisites for advanced or graduate courses, the granting of credit in some courses by special examination, and the privilege of enrolling in special honors seminars designed for students of superior ability. The philosophy of this unique program is that the intellectually gifted student should be allowed to vary his college program as much as his ambition, drive, and capacity will allow him.

AGRICULTURE

The College of Agriculture, founded in 1855, has the distinction of being the first agricultural college in America. As the first school in the nation to offer training in scientific agriculture, it served as a model for the land-grant college system which spread throughout the United States following passage of the Morrill Act in 1862. From this early beginning, Michigan State University has evolved to its present stature as one of America's great universities.

The College of Agriculture is divided into fourteen departments: Agricultural Chemistry, Agricultural Economics, Agricultural Engineering, Animal Husbandry, Dairy, Farm Crops, Fisheries and Wildlife, Food Science, Forest Products, Forestry, Horticulture, Poultry Science, Resource Development, and Soil Science. Work may be done in all areas on both the graduate and undergraduate levels.

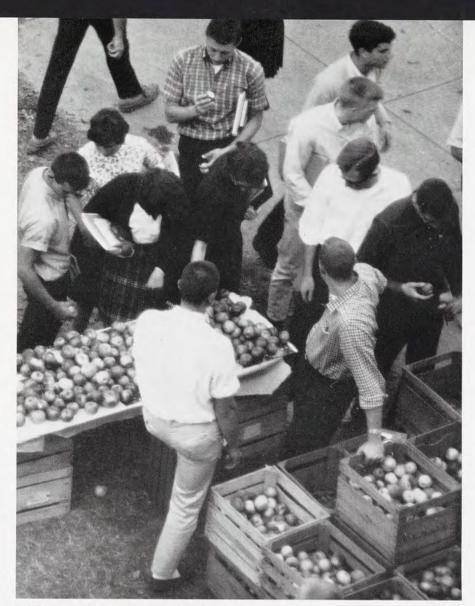

In the classroom, a foundation is laid for a productive future in scientific agriculture.

Education in Line With the Changes Taking Place in Agriculture

The College of Agriculture offers many opportunities for young people to prepare themselves for a future in the broad fields of agriculture and conservation. The programs of the college are designed to give the student an education in line with the changes which have taken place in these fields. Scientific training is emphasized because modern agriculture and conservation have been brought to their present high levels of development through the application of scientific knowledge and principles.

The educational programs of the College have been developed to give the student an opportunity to develop to his maximum capacity as an individual; to give a fundamental understanding of the basic physical, biological, and social sciences which are applied to agriculture and conservation; to give the broad educational experience offered by the University College and other courses in the program; and to provide the student with the technical knowledge required for specialization in some phase of agriculture or conservation.

The Horticultural Garden is a campus showcase for the success of scientific agriculture.

Rich in tradition and accomplishments, the College of Agriculture continually strives to keep its place as one of the leading agricultural institutions in America. Agriculture may be the oldest industry in this nation, but the students of this college, regardless of their major area—be it teaching, research, or extension work—are much more interested in what is happening today and what is apt to happen tomorrow. To help in this goal of planning for an even better tomorrow in the field of agriculture, the students are constantly kept informed of the latest developments and the newest scientific knowledge in agriculture and conservation.

Outstanding educators, scientists, and specialists, representing all fields of agriculture, have been recruited to give the College of Agriculture one of the finest staffs anywhere. Collectively, they embody a wide range of ideas, training, and experience. Their competence is reflected in an outstanding record of accomplishments in agricultural research. Findings from the field and from the laboratories have permeated all phases and areas of agriculture.

Far-sighted planning and a continuous building program serve to keep these facilities commensurate with a rapidly developing discipline of scientific agriculture.

ARTS AND LETTERS

The College of Arts and Letters is dedicated to liberal education. The liberally educated individual is one who has attained a mastery of an academic discipline, a method of study and a habit of thought characterized by the ability to analyze a problem, to make value judgments, and to express conclusions in a clear and cogent style.

The College of Arts and Letters is devoted to the education of the whole man. It aims at helping the individual to understand his own role in society; it is also the desire to the college to enrich life through the cultivation of esthetic sensibilities.

While emphasizing the humanistic disciplines, the College of Arts and Letters cooperates with the other colleges of the University to provide a sound, broadly-based liberal education for all students. The College offers many curricula leading to secondary school certification. In addition, students who wish to prepare for a life of teaching and scholarship at the college level may do so by enrolling in graduate programs of the college. Many people who are not interested in working for advanced degrees but who wish to increase their usefulness to society or to satisfy their intellectual curiosity, enroll in the courses offered by the College of Arts and Letters in the University Evening College and in the Liberal Arts Education for Adults Program.

Providing a Sound, Broadly-based Education For All Students

A Kresge laboratory offers an unusual spot for a nap for a tired artist.

To facilitate the administration of these activities, the college is organized into seven departments. The Department of Art offers a program of study designed to increase the student's spiritual and intellectual horizons while cultivating an appreciation of art's historical and contemporary significance as a creative force in society. The major function of the Department of English is to provide students with an understanding and appreciation of literature. To provide the living, useful command of foreign languages which is so important in today's world, the Department of Foreign Languages stresses understanding and speaking in its courses. Instruction in the Department of History is concerned with the development and character of the civilizations of all peoples. The Department of Music offers degrees in applied music, music theory-composition, school music and music therapy; in addition to its academic functions, this department also sponsors campus music organizations. There is a multiplicity of links between philosophy, science, religion, linguistics, and the arts; the Department of Philosophy can place any such study within a broader intellectual perspective and provide logical and analytic tools for its detailed prosecution. The Department of Religion provides the opportunity for an intensive study of various aspects of religion and the great religious traditions as an important field of human knowledge.

The well-equipped language labs offer invaluable practical experience to foreign language students.

BUSINESS

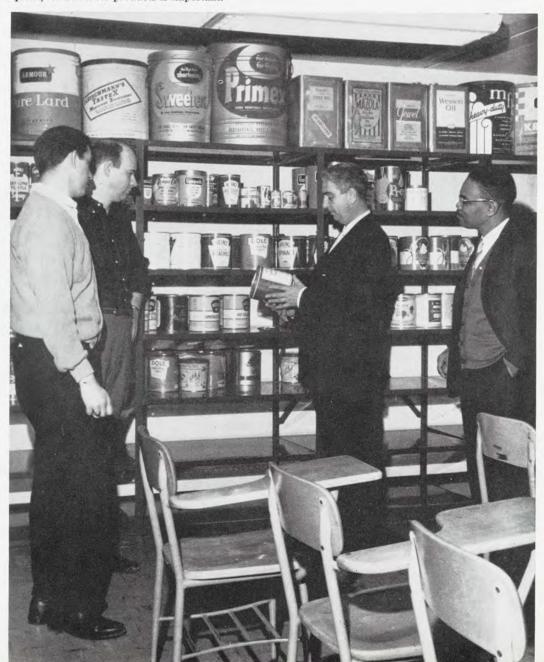

The College of Business offers academic programs which are committed to an extension of basic knowledge, understanding and appreciation of our industrial, economic, social and political society. Because this society is changing at an accelerated rate, these programs place a premium on studying those aspects in the several disciplines which offer broad and general application to a variety of situations.

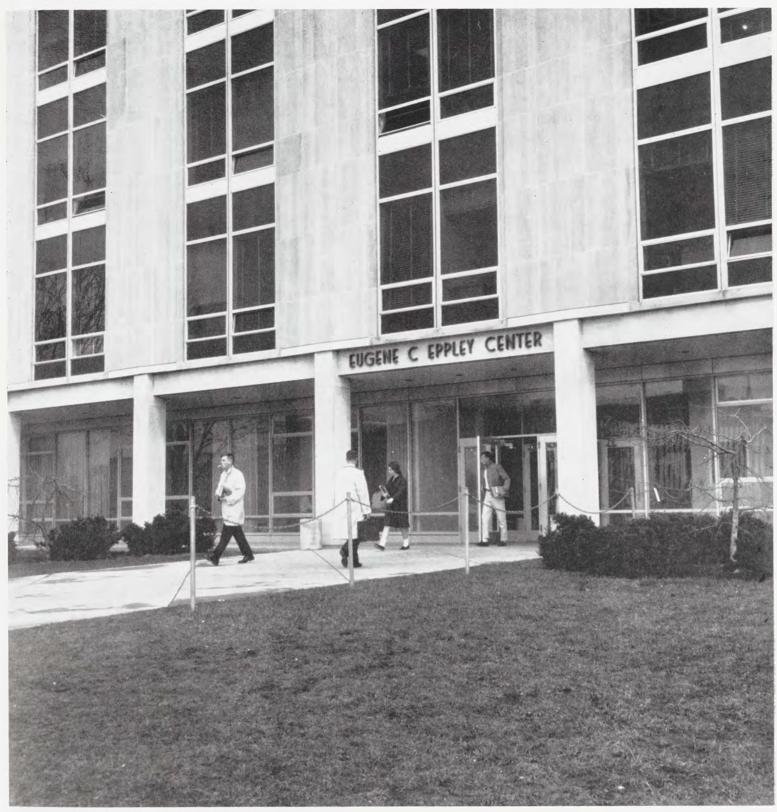

The College of Business includes the departments of Accounting and Financial Administration; Business Law, Insurance and Office Administration; Personnel and Production Administration; Business Administration; the School of Hotel, Restaurant, and Institutional Management; the Department of Economics; and the Bureau of Business and Economic Research. The college offers programs in business administration, economics, and in the management of the feeding, housing, and recreational sectors of the service industries.

Recognizing the Value of the Competent Professional

Drops and adds require time and patience of students and secretaries.

Michigan State has become one of the leaders in research and public service through its College of Business; its stature has been recognized on national and international levels.

Advisors from Michigan State helped establish the first school of business administration in South America at Sao Paulo. During the past year, at the request of the Brazilian government, the College initiated new programs in business administration at the University of Rio Grande do Sul in Porto Alegre and the University of Bahai in San Salvador. Under the ICA, the College has conducted advisory programs in public administration and education in South Vietnam.

On campus, its excellent programs are centered in the Eppley Center, one of the nation's finest facilities for instruction in graduate business administration and research and education in the service industries. The value of the competent professional in today's complex and changing business world is thus fully recognized by the College of Business and by Michigan State University.

Hal Hepler enlightens the class in the tricks of business letter writing.

In each program of study within the College, there is a core of courses required of each student. Surrounding this core is a series of electives which take the student afield and into related areas. Students are encouraged to take work in applicable areas of study so that their core courses and related subjects are integrated. This encompasses the philosophy of learning about the world we live in and learning how to live in that world.

Freshmen entering the College of Business are often overwhelmed and confused by the large array of possible majors open to them, but each soon finds his place in the major area of his developing interests. Each student, during his last two years, selects a specific area of specialization. In each division, students may center their interest in technical programs; in many departments, field training is of great importance.

COMMUNICATION ARTS

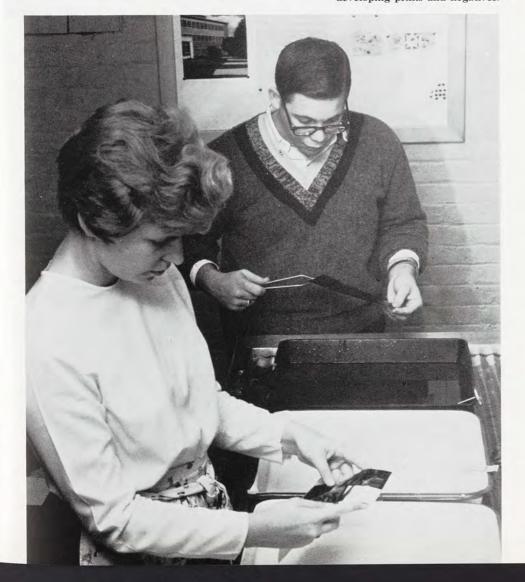

The College of Communication Arts was established at Michigan State University in 1955 as the first of its kind in the United States. This college is founded on the principle that good communication is basic to a democratic society. A man can be most effective as a citizen only when he can competently read, observe, listen, and evaluate, and in turn transmit his thoughts, ideas, attitudes, and feelings to others. Its goal is to prepare better professional communicators who understand the wide range of the communications media and the social responsibilities which the professional communicator must assume.

The college includes the Department of Communication, the Department of Speech, the Communications Research Center, and a Division of Mass Communications that embraces the Department of Advertising, the School of Journalism, and the Department of Television and Radio. As our modern world is growing smaller, the demand for these specialists is ever-increasing.

Insuring a Broad Liberal Education

The purposes of the College of Communication Arts are to insure a broad liberal education for all of its students; to give its students a clear understanding of the role of communications media in society; to educate its students in greater depth in one of the specialized areas within the college; to offer all students in the University the opportunity to learn about the processes and techniques of communication; to extend its services to the people of Michigan; to maintain a center of research, and to use the results of such research for the benefit of society.

To meet these goals, communication arts programs provide two kinds of education — education in communications through courses offered by the College of Communication Arts — and education for communications in the broad background courses available throughout the University outside the field of communication arts. The primary emphasis is upon the liberal education offered by the background courses, for no person can be either a good professional communicator or an intelligent consumer of communications without the knowledge upon which to base a critical evaluation of the message being communicated.

Students are taught how to supervise the publication of a high school yearbook.

Small discussion groups play a significant role in the basic speech courses.

Preparing Socially-Responsible Professional Communicators

Instruction is given in the techniques of communication as they may be utilized through the various mass media, but this is secondary to an education in the arts, social sciences, and natural sciences. Mere mastery of techniques does not justify graduation from this College; responsibility must accompany the use of techniques to make them socially desirable. It is the goal of the College of Communication Arts to graduate well-educated and experienced personnel who will be capable of accepting challenging responsibilities.

New opportunities for careers in the various facets of communications grow with the influence of this field. Courses in the College are designed to help the student contribute to the rising professional stature and social responsibility of this business.

EDUCATION

The field of education is the largest and one of the most important in the world of work. It is the professional person in this area who trains all of our future citizens, the workers in all of the different occupations. The College of Education offers a foundation for this significant profession.

The College of Education provides professional education programs for elementary and secondary teachers, instructors in colleges, and adult educators. It provides for the professional preparation of personnel who offer leadership of special services in the educational system; this instructional program offers improvement and advancement opportunities for qualified specialists. The production of quality work in one of the most essential facets of our society is emphasized.

Audio-visual aids are available in the Education library, commonly known to most Education majors as the "fish-bowl".

Students in most fields of secondary education are enrolled in and granted degrees from two colleges: the College of Education and the college of the student's subject-matter major. Programs of study for prospective teachers are directed by the All-University Committee on Secondary School Teaching; representatives of all colleges concerned with teacher preparation work together to develop integrated training programs involving total University participation.

The College provides for laboratory experiences through local school systems. Each prospective teacher is able to profit from a realistic educational experience which would be impossible to duplicate in a campus school. The student spends one full term working in a particular school system. He finds out, by living the life of a teacher, just what the job of a teacher is. The student teaching program in each of the resident teaching centers is under the direction of a University staff member who also maintains residence there.

To Insure
The Quality
Of Future Citizens

In addition to the laboratory experiences offered to all students enrolled in the on-campus program, a new experimental program for elementary teachers is being conducted in cooperation with Michigan junior colleges and public school systems. This program provides for three years of supervised classroom experience. The undergraduate training extends over a period of five years, but a salary is paid to the intern teacher for two of these years. This new program, called STEP — Student-Teacher Education Program—, is offered cooperatively by Michigan State University and local school systems throughout the state.

The College of Education operates on the assumption that all facilities of the University, tangible and intangible, exist to further the effective performance of its function; the University as a whole serves the purpose of teacher preparation. This educational philosophy is reflected in the classroom, research, and practical experience. Through these diverse methods, the College of Education seeks to insure the quality of our future citizens.

ENGINEERING

The College of Engineering attempts to develop abilities in the student along lines which will allow him to lead a useful professional and civic life and to advance with the evolving field of engineering.

Engineering deals with the science and the art of employing nature's forces, materials, and men for the ultimate benefit of mankind.

Through education, the college trys to provide the engineering student with a firm knowledge and understanding of the fundamental engineering sciences and methods used. The hoped-for result is a quality engineer who is also a well-rounded and valuable citizen whose ultimate goal is practical service through scientific knowledge.

Engineering education has passed from a time concerned with the teaching of techniques and procedures to an era whose object is the study and application of the applied sciences. The general Engineering curriculum is subdivided into six specialized fields: agriculture, chemical, civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering and metallurgy.

Agricultural engineering is designed to prepare students for applying engineering principles in the fields of farm power and machinery, rural electrification, farm structures, processing farm products, and soil and water planning.

Chemical engineering is concerned with the processing of materials and the production or utilization of energy. The molecular or submolecular changes in chemical or atomic and physical reactions are studied. Guided by principles of economics, chemical engineering is based on the sciences of chemistry, physics, and mathematics.

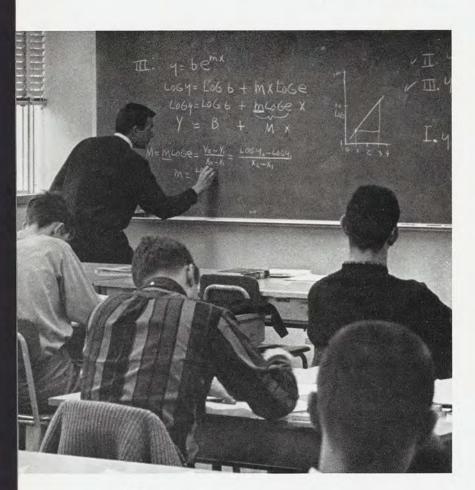

The curriculum of civil engineering is built upon a foundation of mathematics and physical sciences and followed by study in the engineering sciences. The technical areas of construction, hydraulics, sanitary engineering, soils, structures, surveying and transportation are also included.

Electrical engineering is planned to provide for work in general electronics, communications, automatic control, power utilization and computers. Science and mathematics are emphasized.

Practical Service Through Scientific Knowledge

The domain of the mechanical engineer is the broad areas of energy conversion and utilization and of the application of mechanisms including the design of machines. The study program includes mathematics, statistics, engineering mechanics, thermodynamics, mechanisms, physical metallurgy, and manufacturing processes.

The metallurgy program is based upon a fundamental approach to the basic concepts of the science of metals. Topics included in this course of study are metal casting and solidification, heat treatment of both steels and non-ferrous alloys, and plastic deformation.

HOME ECONOMICS

The College of Home Economics at Michigan State University is one of the largest in the United States. For more than sixty years it has been engaged in the education of young people in this field of study; it is recognized as a leader among the colleges and universities in this country for the educational program it offers. Today, the college is rated among the top three in the nation in the quality of its research program.

There are four departments in the College: Foods and Nutrition, Home Management and Child Development, Institution Administration, and Textiles, Clothing and Related Arts.

The quality of its research program has enhanced the reputation of the College of Home Economics.

Home Economics is a broad field of study—too broad to define in a single sentence. Its focus is the home, the family, and the individual; its subject matter includes foods, nutrition, child development, family relations, home management, family economics, clothing, textiles, applied art, housing and home furnishings, household equipment, and institution administration. It uses and applies basic principles from the natural sciences, social sciences, humanities, and the arts.

Home economists are college and university graduates with bachelor's degrees in home economics. Career home economists serve individuals and families in homes and communities — through schools and colleges, business organizations and services, community and government agencies, newspapers, magazines, radio, and television. Home economists work as teachers, researchers, writers, dieticians, extension workers, interior designers, fashion merchandisers, food service managers, and home service advisers or consultants. Home economists find their education in home economics serves them equally as well as homemakers or career women.

With the College of Agriculture, the College of Home Economics was established by the Morrill Act over 100 years ago. As a land grant school, it has numerous affiliations with federal research stations in home economics and sponsors an extensive extension program throughout the state of Michigan.

The College of Home Economics is unique in that it doesn't teach one specialized subject, but presents a variety of programs that in their entirety help to shape the patterns of daily living. During her four years in this college, each woman is given the opportunity to observe many aspects of her field. Students learn through experience that homemaking and careers in home economics play an important role in the functioning of modern society. To prepare young women for their future roles is the express purpose of the College of Home Economics.

NATURAL SCIENCE

One of the characteristics of the twentieth century is the marked change in man's relation to his environment. Not only is this true in the social world, where political upheaval and technological advances have raised great issues, but in the natural world as well. Space probes, orbiting satellites, and productive researches in the structure and synthesis of living matter have brought to the forefront for reassessment many time honored questions. Correct answers to these and other queries, coupled with the proper application of this knowledge for man's betterment, must be a significant part of the goal of educated men everywhere. It is to this accruement, the dissemination, and the wise application of this knowledge regarding the physical world that the College of Natural Science is dedicated.

Basic Natural Science courses are offered in the residence hall complexes for the convenience of students.

Studies in the Classical Disciplines and the Emerging Sciences

The College offers programs of study with majors in the natural sciences at both the undergraduate and graduate levels. The departmental major stresses concentrated study in a single discipline; the interdepartmental major permits the building of programs with a more diversified base, since no single discipline need assume a dominant role in its structure.

Unusual opportunities are offered for study in fields ranging from the classical disciplines of physics and mathematics to the emerging sciences of radio-biology and nuclear physics. Independent effort, creative thinking, and a firm grounding in the fundamentals of basic research are objectives which undergrid the academic programs of the College.

The various units comprising the College of Natural Science are the departments of Biochemistry, Biophysics, Botany and Plant Pathology, Chemistry, Entomology, Geology, Mathematics, Microbiology and Public Health, Physics and Astronomy, Physiology and Pharmacology, Statistics and Zoology; the School of Nursing; the W. K. Kellogg Gull Lake Biological Station; and the Science and Mathematics Teaching Center. The last two are not instructional units in the sense that they offer courses for which their staffs provide instruction, nor do they offer a major. The Biological Station does have an extensive summer program in which course credit applicable to various majors can be earned. The Science and Mathematics Teaching Center is responsible for much of the direction and student advisement in the General Science Program.

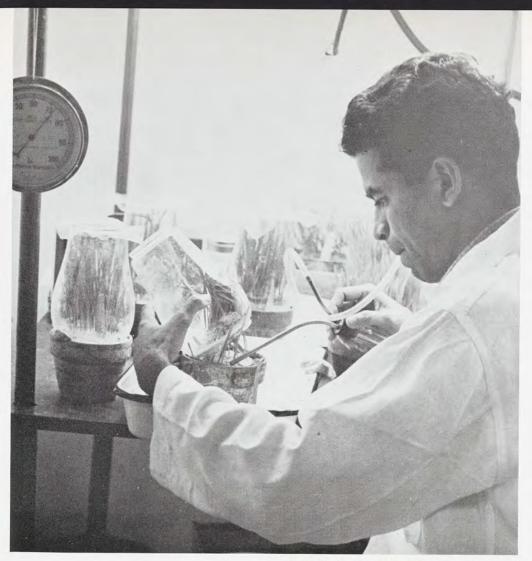

This College in its entirety is the major pillar of the scientific programs of the entire University. Developments in the natural sciences have captivated the imagination of the layman as well as the scientist in recent years. The impact of these developments has emphasized the importance of comprehensive training and basic research in this significant field.

SOCIAL SCIENCE

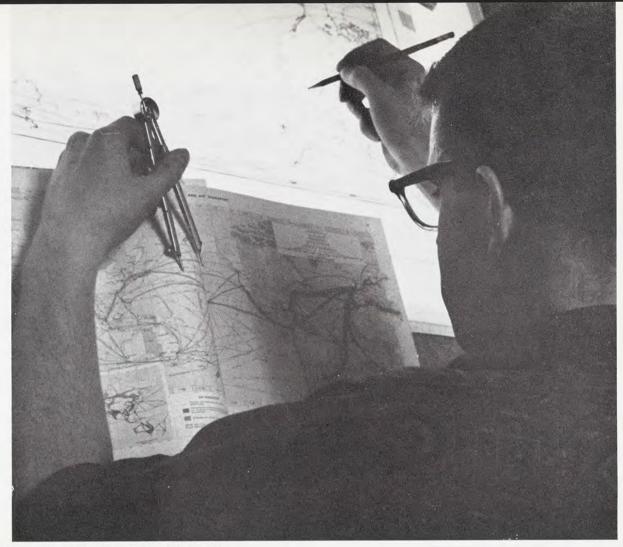

Established in 1962, the College of Social Science is composed of instructional and research units which were formerly in the College of Arts and Letters and the College of Business and Public Service. The College of Social Science includes the Departments of Economics, Geography, Political Science, Psychology, and Sociology and Anthropology; the Schools of Labor and Industrial Relations, Police Administration and Public Safety, Social Work, and Urban Planning and Landscape Architecture; the African Language and Area Center; and the Bureau of Social and Political Research. The role embraced by this college is as broad as any in the University curriculum; it offers the student an opportunity to systemmatically explore the areas of knowledge which deal with human behavior and man's social institutions.

Anthropology includes the study of ancient man.

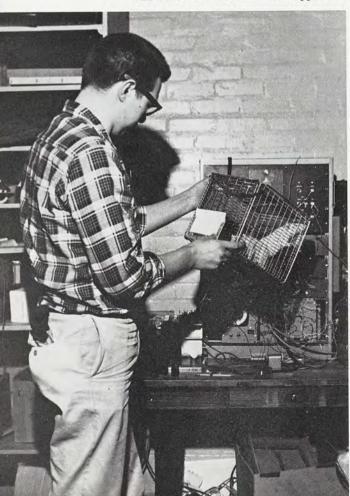

Students in urban planning do a great deal of preparatory work with models.

Geography seeks to understand the spatial organization of the earth's physical and cultural phenomena.

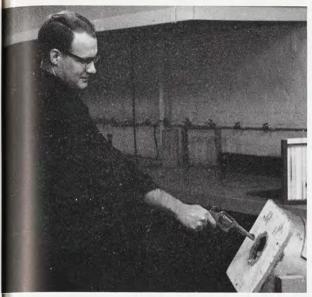

Avoidance learning research is conducted with a rat and a wheel-turn box apparatus.

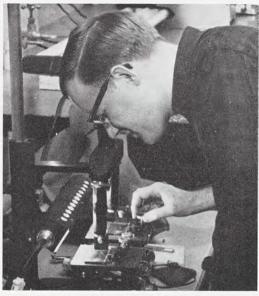

Programs of study are provided in the departments and schools, and at the college level through offering a selection of courses from several departments at both the graduate and undergraduate levels of study. The college cooperates with other colleges within the structure of the University in carrying on a number of special programs. In addition, many courses are offered throughout the state through the Continuing Education Service.

A knowledge of human behavior and expectations is important to every field of study; therefore, the College of Social Science provides a foundation for future study to students in a variety of specialized areas. The diversity of the courses offered and the varied interests of the students who pursue them are but another illustration of the scope and importance of this college to the University.

Within the college, a departmental major is designed to provide concentrated study in a specific field. A student majoring in one of the schools is introduced to the principles, laws, and theories which are basic to his selected area. The social science major is a broadly based program which provides a foundation in several related fields of social science by offering a liberal education.

In a society beset by complex and rapid change, the college student of today, if he is to be an effective participant in the world of tomorrow, must have a firm and comprehensive foundation in the available and expanding knowledge about human behavior and man's social institutions. The College of Social Science functions within the University as a primary resource for the attainment of these goals by developing and disseminating knowledge within the areas of its disciplines and by offering specialized training in some of the related professional fields. This study provides an enriched liberal education, directed to an enlightened yet critical appreciation of modern social life. The student achieves both depth and breadth in a greater rational understanding of human relationships as they may be examined from a variety of viewpoints.

A student veterinarian gains practical experience.

Although not established as a college until 1910, veterinary medicine at Michigan State dates from the 1880's when people with training in this field were added to the University staff. Today, the College of Veterinary Medicine is organized in five departments: Anatomy, Microbiology and Public Health, Physiology and Pharmacology, Surgery and Medicine, and Veterinary Pathology; it includes the School of Medical Technology. A two-year preveterinary program, a medical technology program which leads to the Bachelor of Science degree, a professional program leading to the degree of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine, and graduate programs leading to the Master of Science and the Doctor of Philosophy degrees are offered.

The initiation of a new curriculum in 1964 represents the first significant, basic change in the field of American veterinary medicine in at least fifty years. It was conceived after a study of several months by a committee of veterinary faculty as part of the University-wide Educational Development Project. The innovation is a reflection of the urgent need for veterinarians, especially in the new and expanding fields of public health, laboratory-animal medicine, and basic medical research.

Future veterinarians enjoy a short break from the rigors of their studies.

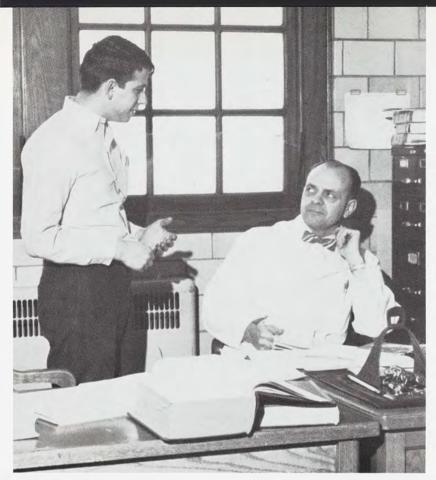

Excellent laboratory facilities are available for advanced research and fundamental experience.

Last year, over 87,000 animals were treated in the College of Veterinary Medicine, for in addition to basic medical education, the College provides training in diagnosis, disease prevention, medical treatment, and surgery. The College maintains a complete veterinary hospital, with medical, surgical, and X-ray facilities for both large and small animals, and a 125-acre research farm where the disease of all classes of livestock and poultry are studied; these departments serve a dual purpose in providing laboratory clinics for the practical application of education and in functioning as valuable public services. One division of the veterinary clinic, the farm veterinary service, provides specialists who accompany students on farm calls in a twenty-mile radius of campus. The College has added to its activities by providing a considerable amount of service to the public in the area of animal diagnostic services and treatments; huge numbers of examinations of serologic, microbiologic, and parasitic materials are made annually as well as bacteriological examinations of water and milk samples.

This practical experience, coupled with an excellent basic medical education, qualifies graduates for a variety of careers in this growing profession.

Versatility and Adequacy in Laboratory Facilities

The College of Veterinary Medicine enrolls more graduate students and engages in more research projects than does any other veterinary college in North America. Laboratory facilities are second to none with respect to the versatility and adequacy of equipment to support original research.

In the area of veterinary research, the College is particularly well known for its work on orthopedic surgery, endocrine disorders, animal parisitology, and the infectious and nutritional diseases of livestock and poultry. More recently, long-term studies have been undertaken on the histology of laboratory animals, the relationship of certain animal tumors to the human cancer problem, and some unsolved aspects of tuberculosis in cattle. The College has specialized laboratories for the study of radioisotope techniques, tissue cell culture, and the production of disease-free animals.

ROTC

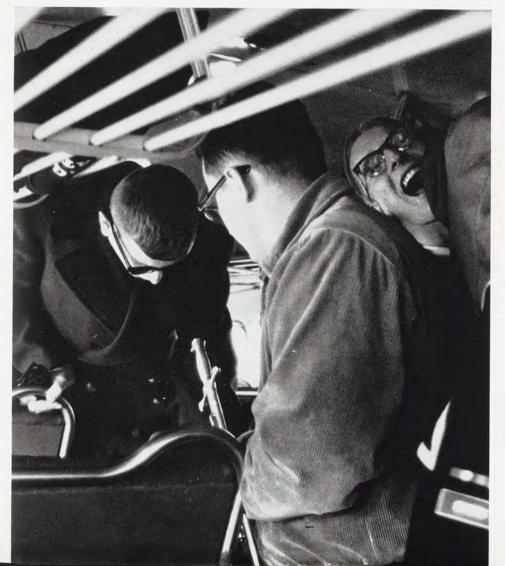

The general objective of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps is to qualify students for positions of leadership in time of national emergency and to provide officers for the United States Armed Services. Army and Air Force ROTC detachments and Michigan State University provide this training. Each cadet receives classroom instruction in the theory and practice of the military arts. An accompanying lab is designed to develop the leadership abilities of students through practical experience as commander in student formations. ROTC instructors are regular and non-commissioned officers in their respective branches of the service.

Field trips to military installations are open to cadet participation during the term. Other activities offered at the basic level are Pershing Rifle, Spartan Rifle and Pistol Club, and the Drum and Bugle Corps. Advanced honoraries include Scabbard and Blade and Arnold Air Society.

GRADUATE STUDIES

In response to its manifold obligations to graduate study, Michigan State University has established ten colleges authorized to give programs leading to advanced degrees. More than 275 areas and fields of study are covered by sixty-six departments within these colleges. The colleges offering graduate programs are Agriculture, Arts and Letters, Business, Communication Arts, Education, Engineering, Home Economics, Natural Science, Social Science, and Veterinary Medicine. The work of these ten colleges is supported by strong undergraduate programs in which the University College plays an important role.

Intellectual Challenges Through Graduate Research

The strength of any graduate program is determined to a large extent by the quality and scope of the research activities underlying it. In addition to the host of visiting professors and the rapidly growing library collection, graduate students are offered the use of specialized equipment and facilities within their departments. Indicative of the availability of these research materials and facilities, the University's Gull Lake Biological Station presents an unusual opportunity for class work and field research in descriptive biology.

Each college administers its own graduate programs within the framework of policies and regulations established for the University and in accord with the highest national professional standards of each field. Academic programs are in the hands of competent faculty enjoying national and international reputations. The variety of intellectual opportunities and the unique challenges of this University are reflected by the fact that Michigan State is among the first twenty universities in the number of doctorates awarded annually. Michigan State is not only responsive to the spirit of the times, but its faculty and administration take pride in exercising leadership to make learning, teaching, and research a more meaningful and interesting intellectual endeavor.

is one of the finest in the world. It serves the University as the focal point of that intangible quality known as spirit. This spirit is significant of the spectators at a varsity game and among the participants in the intramural programs.

Many different programs and facilities are provided . . .

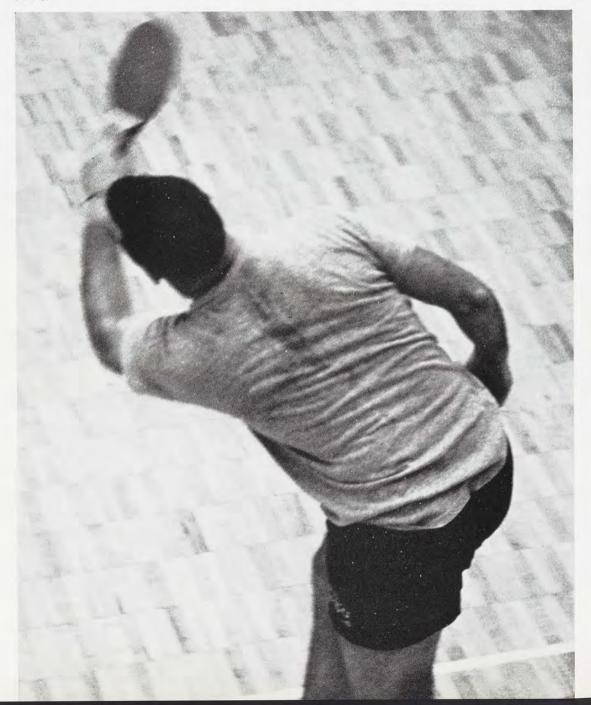

Much of the credit for these accomplishments must be given to Clarence "Biggie" Munn. Through the years he has spent as coach and athletic director, Michigan State has become one of the best athletic plants in the nation.

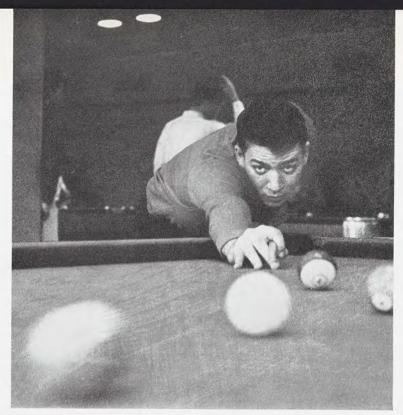

The Intramural sports program, under the direction of Frank Beeman, ranks among the best in the nation. With so large a university as this, the programs for student participation have been excellent. Last year there were 187 touch football teams, 201 basketball teams and 120,000 admissions to the outdoor pool. The facilities are open to every student and many varsity players began by taking advantage of the opportunities offered by the Intramural program.

In the Health, Physical Education program for men and women the school has 474 majors and one of the finest teaching staffs to be found anywhere. From the ranks of these students come many of the teachers and coaches who will continue to maintain the physical fitness of MSU students.

The athletic programs at MSU are designed to produce the best varsity sports possible and to add a new dimension to the life of every student attending the university. The all-embracing athletic programs provide educational courses, and varsity sports for the students' use.

FOOTBALL

Last year the nation's sportswriters rushed to give preseason plaudits to the 1962 Spartan football squad. However, the fortunes of football proved the pressmen wrong as MSU managed only a 5-4 record and finished in a three-way tie for fifth in the conference. The offended prognosticators turned their backs on East Lansing this year and seemingly with good reason. The State coaching staff was shifting madly to bolster a line which had lost six of seven starters and the backfield situation was little better with the only certain bright spot being halfback and co-captain Sherm Lewis. In general Head Coach Duffy Daugherty and his staff were battling overall inexperience attempting to fill slots vacated by graduation with upperclassmen shifted from other positions and sophomores, with no college experience.

Hard work in practice under the coaches' watchful eyes led to a successful season.

However, hard work in practice, great team spirit and fine individual performances overcame the inexperience and led to exciting offensive play and a defense, headed by co-captain Dan Underwood, that was fourth in the nation in rushing, scoring, and total defense. Sherm Lewis romped to All-American honors and led the team to 6-2-1 overall record and a second place tie in the Big Ten missing the Rose Bowl trip by one game.

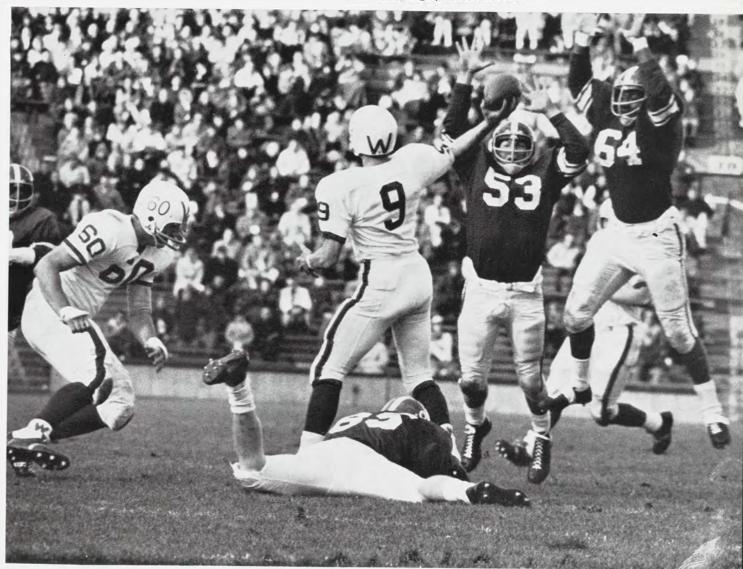

North Carolina invaded Spartan Stadium to open the 1963 season. Coach Daugherty started sophomore Steve Juday at quarterback, and the young signal-caller led MSU to an easy 31-0 victory over the Tarheels. Full-back Roger Lopes sparked the Spartan offense with a 76-yard TD run and 157 yards gained. The State defense held the NC passing attack to 84 yards.

The Spartans traveled to Southern California to face the defending national champions. In the first period Lou Bobich booted a field goal and later Sherm Lewis tallied on an 88-yard pass play, the longest in MSU history. But in the final quarter USC mustered its touted offense to score two TD's as the Trojans handed State a heartbreaking 13-10 defeat.

All-American halfback Sherm Lewis was the sparkplug for State.

The MSU defense, fourth in the nation, contained many highly-touted offenses.

The surprising Spartans quickly pushed MSU into the Big Ten title race.

Head Coach Duffy Daugherty plays dentist for baton-twirling champ Sharon Shutty.

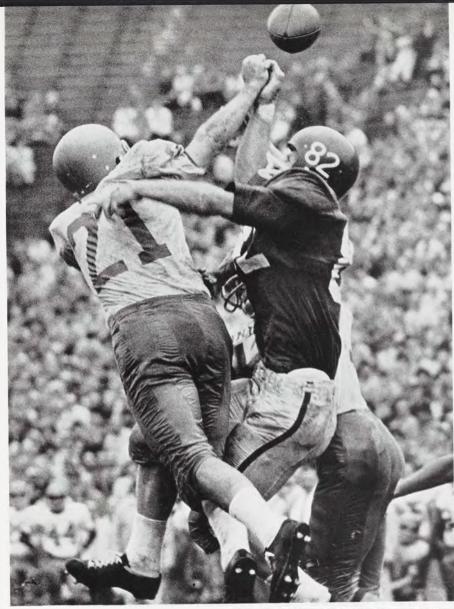

The stinging Spartans were favored as they met their top rival Michigan at Ann Arbor in the first Big Ten encounter for both teams. A crowd of 101,450 viewed an afternoon of frustration as the Wolverines held State to a 7-7 tie with Lewis again tallying the Spartans' only TD on a Juday pass.

It was raining at Spartan Stadium as Indiana arrived to face an angry State aggregation. The first half was marred by miscues as a Hoosier field goal was the only scoring. In the second half the Spartan offense finally came alive as Lopes tallied twice to lead MSU to a 20-3 victory.

Underdog Staters traveled to Northwestern and soon threw a wrench in the Wildcat Rose Bowl Express with Sherm Lewis as head wrench thrower. The pint-sized halfback took a 29-yard TD pass from Juday and made the longest Big Ten run in State history, 87 yards, to paydirt. Earl Lattimer added a massive 47-yard field goal to top off a 15-7 upset victory as MSU went into a tie for the Big Ten lead with Ohio State and Illinois and entered the run for the roses, in earnest.

Wisconsin was the attraction next week at Spartan Stadium before a Homecoming crowd of 71,033. Again Lewis started things off for State with an 87-yard TD pass play originating from Juday. Then fate tested Spartan depth as QB Juday suffered a shoulder injury that benched him for the season. Substitute QB Dick Proebstle came off the bench to lead MSU to a 30-13 victory. Earl Lattimer was named Lineman of the Week.

Many skeptics expected a State downfall as they traveled to Purdue still tied for the lead. State quickly silenced the unbelievers as the Spartans exploded for a 23-0 victory over the Boilermakers. Lopes scored twice and the MSU defense kept Purdue back of the State 38-yard line all day. Rose Bowl fever hit along the Red Cedar as MSU stood at the top of the conference.

Victory-hungry Notre Dame invaded the Spartan camp and almost walked away with a win. State fumbles gave the Irish a 7-0 lead, but Lewis scored to bring it to 7-6. Spartan defense and ND's failure to use opportunities kept the game in reach until Lewis broke loose for an 85-yard jaunt to give State a 12-7 victory and make him Back of the Week.

As State slipped by the Fighting Irish, Northwestern upset Ohio State to knock them out of contention for the title. The next Saturday's game between MSU and Illinois would decide the winner of the Big Ten crown. Cries of "Rose Bowl, Rose Bowl" echoed on the campus as State needed only a tie to head for Pasadena.

Then on Friday afternoon tragedy struck, and the Rose Bowl spirit died with President John Kennedy as he was assassinated in Dallas. The game was postponed to Thanksgiving Day in deference to the late President.

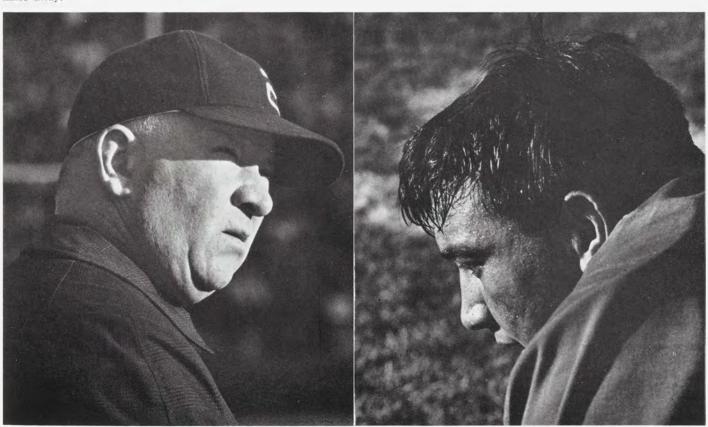

On Thanksgiving Day a saddened crowd of 74,342 gathered to watch two preseason nobodies battle for the title. But everything went wrong for the Spartans; the Illinois defense stopped State twice within the Illini fifteen and forced five fumbles and four pass interceptions. The State defense could not do as well in holding the Illini, who managed two field goals and a touchdown to hand MSU a 13-0 defeat and to earn a trip to the Rose Bowl.

The State drive carried them to within fifteen yards of the Big Ten title.

State fans, of course, had nothing to be ashamed of as the cinderella Spartans finished number ten in the national rankings. Coach Daugherty gave team spirit and attitude as the reasons for the unexpected success of this, his tenth year as MSU's head football coach. Anyone who saw Earl Lattimer somersault up to the line for a crucial play would have to agree with Duffy. Special plaudits go to Sherman Lewis, who was voted as the team's most valuable player, but the Spartan team as a whole and the defense in particular deserve the largest share of the credit for a great team effort.

It was also an exciting season in men's IM football. In residence hall competition Bailey 7 came out on top as Delta Tau Delta was copping the title in the fraternity league. Independent Ragoons won the top spot in their division and went on to become the All-University Touch Football champions with Sigma Nu as All-University and fraternity league runner-ups.

BASKETBALL

The Michigan State basketball team got off to a fast start winning their first four ball games. The Spartans then slacked off in mid-season, but came back to win their last five starts to finish with a 14-10 overall record and an 8-6 conference slate for a fourth place tie in the Big Ten. It was the best cage season for MSU in five years.

Two factors were largely responsible for the mid-season letdown. First, injuries took a heavy toll as Marcus Sanders and Fred Thomann sat out several games. The adverse effect of these injuries on Spartan depth can be seen by the many close defeats which MSU suffered.

The other factor was a powerful Michigan ball club that took both games from the Spartans this season. In the game at Jenison Fieldhouse MSU battled its hardest, but the point production of the Wolverines' Cazzie Russell and Bill Buntin was just too much.

No sooner did the Spartans finish the Michigan series than they began to win consistently. The team was at full strength and led by Captain Pete Gent as they drove their way into the Big Ten's first division. The Spartans were also a big factor in the Big Ten race as they stopped the eventual co-champion Ohio State both times they faced them. These unexpected wins over the Buckeyes allowed U of M to be the conference representative in the NCAA playoffs. "We hoped to go very high this year," commented Coach Forddy Anderson, "and every man contributed to the team victories."

Although each game displayed the fine team effort, the leadership of Senior forward Pete Gent was easily seen. Gent led the team for the third straight year in scoring with a total of 506 points for a 21.0 average per game to take over second place in season and career scoring totals in the MSU record books.

BASEBALL

One-run defeats turned a possible great season into one of fair success for the Spartan nine. Five, one-run decisions were dropped by MSU with the winning run usually being allowed in the late innings.

In their pre-season training trip, the Spartan team compiled a promising 12-2 record. However, in meeting the tougher competition in the Big Ten the team's weaker points were displayed, and Michigan State's Big Ten season mark of 5-9 entrenched the team in eighth place. The overall season record, however, was a respectable 18-14-1.

Hitting again proved to be the main source of strength, the defense was fairly consistent, while the lack of dependable pitching was the 1963 Spartan's outstanding weakness. The team batting mark was a very respectable .280 including 19 home runs and averaging well over six runs per game. In the hurling department the team's final earned run average was 3.61, which is below average for a Big Ten school.

Several outstanding Spartan baseballers garnered post-season honors. Jerry Sutton, playing first base for State, was selected as All-American, All-Big-Ten, and Most Valuable Player. Sutton compiled a .350 batting average while hitting eight home runs and driving in 34 runs. Joe Porrevechio received All-American honors, although he did not make the first team. The powerful left-fielder was named to the All-Big-Ten first team after batting .329 for coach John Kobs. Malcolm Chiljean, Spartan shortstop, and pitcher Jack Nutter were named to the second and third All-Big-Ten teams respectively.

The 1963 season marked John Kobs' last year as head baseball coach at Michigan State. To express what his years of service have meant, one might say that baseball at Michigan State University for the past 39 years can be summed up as Mr. John H. Kobs. Since 1925 this dedicated coach has directed Spartan diamond activities. In that time Kobs' teams have compiled a record of 574 victories against 374 defeats for a winning percentage of .606, one of the finest in the nation. In those seasons many championships were earned by the Spartans, including titles in the Big Ten, NCAA district, and nearly a Collegiate World Series.

The men's intramural softball program last spring saw a very large turn-out as 2,325 participants took to the diamonds representing 155 teams. When the dust had cleared, the Vets stood as the All-University champions with Bailey 7 as runner-up. In the Greek I-M competition Sigma Chi emerged victorious. Intramural softball continued even into Summer term, where Biology Institute was champion in the first five weeks competition and placed second to the Cubs in the second five weeks.

SWIMMING

An energetic group of sophomores provided the main push for an excellent regular season performance by Charles McCaffree's swimmers. The first year men, particularly Jim MacMillan and Darryle Kifer, paced the mermen to a 6-2 mark and a first place in the Michigan State Invitational Relays.

The Spartans steadily improved throughout the season and held high hopes as they entered the Big Ten meet. In the meet, however, State fell to a disappointing fifth for the second year in a row behind perennial champion Indiana, Michigan, Ohio State and Minnesota. The main bright spot for MSU was the victory of the 400-yard freestyle relay team. MacMillan and junior Dick Gretzinger were the top point-getters for the Spartans in the conference meet held in March.

GYMNASTICS

Under coach George Szypula the Spartan gymnastic team moved to a third place finish in the Big Ten behind Michigan and Iowa. A newcomer Jim Curzi, despite a mid-season injury, paced the State gymnasts by capturing the all-around individual title in the Big Ten championships and placing third in the NCAA all-around individual and second in the Midwest Open.

Other Spartans who contributed to State's fine season were Dave Price, the team's second highest point-getter, Dale Cooper, Todd Gates, and Dick Giliberto.

In dual meet competition the injury-ridden Spartans moved to a respectable 5-3-1 mark. The tie is notable in that it came in the meet with the eventful Big Ten Champion, the University of Michigan.

GOLF

The commendable 7-4-1 record posted by the golf team last spring was indicative of the determination and spirit of its members. Overall, the team fared better than had been anticipated. "We lost two of our best men and lacked depth," explained head coach John Brotzmann. Despite these problems the team went on to produce some top linksmen of its own. Among these were Phil Marston, Bob Meyer, and Gary Panks.

The team had great success against Hillsdale, Northern Illinois, and Notre Dame; and the season was off to a good start. Bumping heads with Ohio State, Michigan, and Indiana broke the momentum. Still the Spartans finished with a winning mark and a seventh place finish in the Big Ten meet.

In men's IM competition Case Hall, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and M-Squad emerged as the champs in the residence hall, fraternity, and independent divisions respectively as 29 teams and 113 students took part. Bob Wood was the All-University individual champion.

TENNIS

The tennis team of 1963 was "the best we've ever had," stated coach Stan Drobac. Their overall depth enabled the team to post a 17-4 record, the highlight of the season coming when the Spartans managed to defeat Michigan for the first time in nine years.

MSU had beaten such fine teams as Michigan, Iowa, and Notre Dame, and chances were good as they entered the Big Ten Meet, but the breaks just didn't materialize. However, the Spartan netmen did finish a creditable fourth and then went on to finish sixth in the NCAA Meet.

Several Spartan netters posted good individual performances to lead the team to its fine season. Dwight Shelton sported the best record at 17-4, while Charlie Wolff and Tom Jamieson proved to be the best doubles team with a 7-1 record. The outstanding man on the team was Captain Jack Damson, who finished last season as runner-up in number 3 singles.

Dave Williams was the singles champion in last spring's IM competition, while Emmons Hall, Theta Chi, and Bower House were the champs of their respective divisions.

HOCKEY

Michigan State hockey coach Amo Bessone conducted a complete rebuilding of his offensive unit this winter after losing 1962-63's front unit through the graduation route. The Spartans could boast of a fine defensive crew headed by such veterans as Carl Lackey, Jack Ford, Jim Jacobson and Nick Musat. Mac Orme, Doug Roberts and Mike Coppo sparked the revamped offensive line.

Inexperience, however, did take its toll as State finished with an 8-17-1 overall record and a 1-12-1 WCHA slate good only for a 7th place finish in the conference. The Spartans dropped all four games with arch-rival Michigan after dumping the Wolverines four times the previous season.

SOCCER

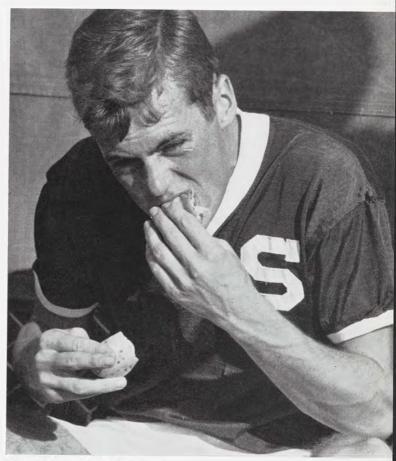

The national sports are football, baseball, and basketball, but in the not-too-distant future it may include soccer. The sport has continually grown to become one of the top sports attractions on the MSU campus, especially during the last two years.

This season the Spartan booters boasted All-American George Janes and other outstanding players like Sam Donnelly, Louie Eckhardt, Bill Schwarz, and Stan Stelmashenko, who made All-Midwest. With such outstanding players as these and others who went unnoticed, it was far from a stroke of luck that the MSU soccer team won the Midwestern Collegiate Soccer Conference Championship in 1963.

Even though the Spartans did not make the NCAA regional playoffs because of a loss to St. Louis, they did accomplish the rare feat of defeating the Billikens in a regular season game. It was State's first victory over St. Louis and brought with it the Midwest Conference title.

CROSS COUNTRY

Veterans like Jan Bowen, Mike Kaines, Captain Bob Fulcher, and Ron Berby gave their expected fine contributions to Head Coach Fran Dittrich's 1963 Cross Country team, but sophomores proved to be the real sparkplugs for the Spartan harriers, led by All-American Dick Sharkey, who finished second in the Big Ten, fourth in the IC4A, and tenth in the NCAA. The youngsters made the difference to give the Spartans another good season.

Coach Dittrich guided his harriers to season victories over Penn State, Wisconsin, and Ohio State while falling only to Ohio University and Notre Dame. Facing rugged competition in the Big Ten meet, State retained its traditional position as the best in the Conference. In the IC4A classic the Spartans finished second to the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame, and the NCAA championships, which were born at MSU, saw State take a fifth place in a large field.

FENCING

Blade strikes blade in one of State's matches.

The defending champion Spartans of Coach Charlie Schmitter made a disappointing showing in the Big Ten meet dropping to a second place tie with Iowa behind the new champion Illinois. State's highest finest was Bryan Kutchins, who was second in epee, MSU's weakest weapon during the regular season, while the seemingly strong sabre and foil crews finished much lower in the standings.

The swordsmen did have another fine regular season finishing with an 8-3 record. The only actual defeat was a 14-13 squeaker dropped to the Illini while the other two marks in the loss column were victories which had to be forfeited because of an ineligible participant. Nels Marin in foil and Lou Salamone in sabre provided the strongest punch for State.

In IM competition Iver Armisted, John Mock and Ken Amico were the champions in foil, epee and sabre respectively out of 47 participants.

TRACK

Coach Fran Dittrich's trackmen finished fourth in the Big Ten outdoor competition last spring, but the Spartans gained sufficient experience to move up one notch in the rankings for winter's indoor track and field competition. Indoors State finished behind champion Michigan and Wisconsin and gained three Big Ten titles. Bob Moreland successfully defended his 60-yard dash crown while first year man Mike Martens captured the conference title in the 1000-yard run. State also continued its domination of the Big Ten broad jump competition as Jim Garrett copped the title. Martens, the MSU mile relay team, and shot-putter Dave Mutchler set new Spartan varsity records while Moreland equaled his own varsity record.

WRESTLING

Coach Grady Peninger's grapplers moved to a creditable 5-5-1 regular season mark this winter. Heading the Spartan lists was heavyweight Homer McClure, who finished the regular season with a 5-0-5 mark and was the top point-getter for MSU. Emerson Boles and Terry Leonard also did a good job for coach Peninger this winter.

Unfortunately, great disappointment awaited the Spartans at the Big Ten championships as McClure absorbed his first defeat and the rest fared no better to drop State to the conference cellar.

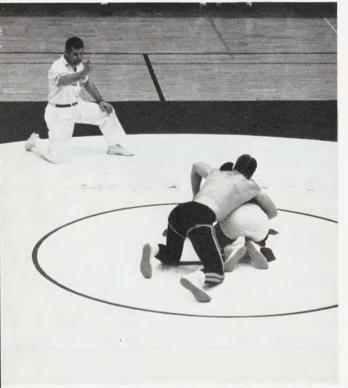

In IM wrestling Mark McClenithan, Ted Seyforth, Gary Tompkins, Dave Chester, and Bob Burg became the new All-University wrestling champs in their respective weight divisions. There were twenty-one participants in this year's intramural competition.

WOMEN'S SPORTS

Michigan State University has a varsity sports program for women as well as for men. The members of the various teams hold organized practices every day during the week and compete with other colleges and universities in the area according to their prearranged schedules. Women need not be physical education majors in order to qualify for a varsity sport. All women interested in intercollegiate competition in any of the many sports available at MSU are invited to participate. Not only does State have a planned varsity program for women, but it is also one of the best equipped universities for women's varsity sports.

Led by co-captains Margo Lusch and Phyllis Heurstel, the field hockey team of Coach Dorothy McKnight, compiled a record of four wins, two losses, and two ties. High scorers Kay Stoney and Nancy Dash helped State gain victories over Albion, Valparaiso University, the Alumni, and Western. Losses came from the sticks of the University of Michigan and Central with ties from Kalamazoo College and Eastern. The second team compiled a record of four wins, one loss and one tie.

Although the women's varsity basketball squad is only three years old, it is rapidly becoming popular. This year's squad is young, having no returning seniors from last year. The team looks for leadership in co-captains Phyllis Heurstel and Ruth Backus. Miss Heurstel, a veteran player, was the team's leading scorer last winter. Teams slated for competition are Central, Eastern, Western, Kalamazoo College, Wayne State, University of Michigan, and Jackson Junior College. The MSU women's speed swimming team, coached by Mrs. Ann Chadwick, opened its season with a win over Kent State. SPORTS
CLUB
PROGRAM

The students of Michigan State University are provided with several sports clubs that are designed to attract the novice as well as the experienced. Dr. Beeman, head of Men's Intramural Program, emphasizes that all clubs are active, and each is more than willing to teach its skills to the inexperienced. The clubs, though affiliated with the university, are self-supported and compete as an independent rather than a varsity school team.

Teams composed of foreign students competed in basketball, tennis, volleyball, paddleball, and other sports in the Men's Intramural Program under the auspices of the International Club Sports Program. The purpose of the club, which began three years ago, is to help foreign students become active in sports at M.S.U.

The Lacrosse Club, presided over by Bruce Goodwin and Dave Wagner played six games during the season winning three and losing three. The twenty-five members travel to various schools in the midwest, competing with other members of the Ohio Valley Conference. The club welcomes all interested in learning this ancient American game.

The Program Expanding With the University

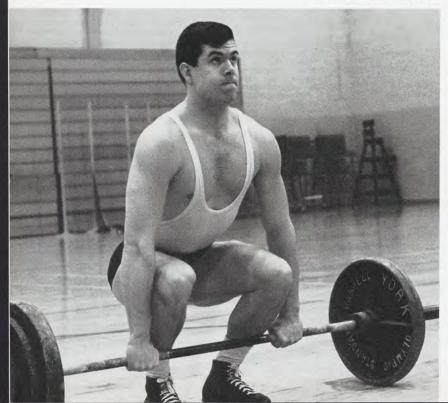

Captained by Jerry Thayer, the ten-man Weightlifting Club placed second in the National Collegiate Weightlifting Championships. Bob Hendrick with a three-lift total of 835 pounds and Thayer with a three-lift total of 725 pounds captured the crowns in their divisions. The team traveled around the Midwest winning all of their meets by defeating such teams as the Saginaw Weightlifting Club and the Detroit Weightlifting Club. At the National Collegiates MSU was runner-up to the Puerto Rican team. The club has over one hundred members and welcomes all men to take part.

The Crew Club, captained by Dan Reid and coached by Dave Eakin, competed against Wayne University, the Ecorse Boat Club, and the Wyandotte Boat Club. The twenty members practice on Lake Lansing and have three eight-oared shells and one fouroared shells moored there. The sport is growing in the Midwest and the club is eager to enlist new members and continue to build a strong crew for more competition with other universities and boat clubs.

The purpose of the club is not only to compete with other clubs but also to teach this fast-moving sport to all interested persons.

The MSU Sailing Club, a member of the Midwest Collegiate Sailing Association, traveled to the Sugar Bowl Regatta. The club entered competition in the Ohio State Invitational and in Chicago, Detroit, and Wisconsin. The club placed second in the Big Ten Championships and captured the Women's French Trophy. Dave Wetzel presides over nearly one hundred and fifty members, who form one of the Midwest's strongest sailing clubs.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

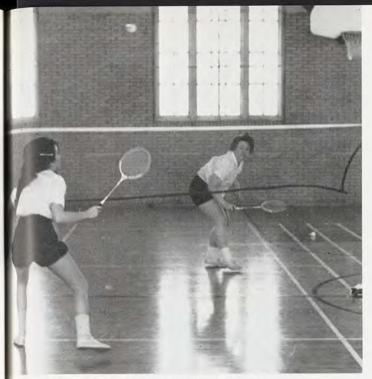

Physical education plays an important role in the life of most students at MSU whether it be intramural, varsity, or classes in physical education. The program available to all students is varied and has something to offer to almost everyone. At the present time there are 246 men and 210 women majoring in Physical Education with 3,321 men and 3,502 women registered for classes in the Physical Education department.

All students, physically able, are required to take HPR 105—Foundations of Physical Fitness. The main purpose of this course is to teach students the value of exercise to their bodies, to introduce new ways to remain physically fit and to help cut down on cardiac casualties. It also serves as an introduction to some of the sports activities available during the following term. A minimum of one year is required and a maximum of nine credits is permitted.

Men not able to participate in regular sports activities because of a handicap of some kind are invited to take part in the Adapted Sports for the Handicapped program. This program offers special exercises suited to each individual's problem. Women may use the Exercise Clinic located in the Women's IM Building under special supervision.

The Human Research Laboratory, developed by the combined efforts of the Nutrition Department and the Physical Education Department, in 1953, is located in the Women's IM Building. The purpose of this program is to find ways to improve health and body efficiency, extend the life span, make life more enjoyable, and incorporate exercise into the daily life activities.

Facilities are available for all sports offered. For swimming, diving, life-saving, Water Safety Instruction, and SCUBA classes there are two indoor pools in the Women's IM Building and one pool each in Jenison Fieldhouse and the Men's IM Building. The outdoor pool is used mainly for pleasure by students during warm weather.

The more advanced classes in golf use the golf course while the beginners stay on Old College Field. In the basement of Jenison are handball and paddleball courts and facilities for track events and archery. The main gym in Jenison contains courts for various group games, a wrestling room and the Adapted Sports Room.

The Men's IM Building contains three full-sized gymnasiums suitable for tennis, badminton, volleyball and basketball. The arena is also suitable for group games. The dirt floor arena is used for golf and soccer classes when bad weather forces them inside. There is a wrestling room, a fencing room, and a weight development room. The basement contains four squash courts and twelve handball courts.

The Women's IM Building contains two indoor pools, two full-sized gymnasiums and six activity rooms, which can be converted into classrooms if the need arises.

Other facilities include the ice arena, forty outside tennis courts, and sixteen lanes for bowling in the Union. Pool tables and ping pong tables are available in the residence halls for use by the students. Canoeing takes place on the Red Cedar River when weather permits.

At State the Physical Education Department offers a wide array of sports for all individuals in the hope that this generation of college students will be physically fit as they prepare for their life's work.

ALPHA DELTA SIGMA

The goal of men's advertising honorary Alpha Delta Sigma to bridge the gap between the academic study and the professional field of advertising is achieved in various programs introducing the members to professional work. The group visited a large Detroit agency and invited the vice president of another agency to speak. Frank B. Senger, associate professor of advertising, was presented the Golden Fifty Award for outstanding service to the fraternity at a dinner held in his honor.

ALPHA DELTA THETA

A Christmas party, spring picnic, and senior tea are social activities highlighting the year for the members of Alpha Delta Theta, medical technology honorary society. The group invites speakers and conducts projects concerned with medical technology. The Alpha Delta Theta award is given each year to a graduating or interning senior woman, and it is based on character, scholarship, and cooperation with faculty and students.

ALPHA LAMBDA DELTA

Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman women's honorary, encourages a high standard of learning and superior scholastic achievement among freshman women. This year the coeds worked with the United Foundation as their service project. They did much "leg work" for this, including taking part in the Mothers' March and distributing canisters for the March of Dimes.

ALPHA PHI SIGMA

Alpha Phi Sigma, police science honorary, brings students of similar interests together and gives them the opportunity to learn more about their field and to keep abreast of new research developments as they occur. The group sponsors a social function for the members each term. They participate in Career Carnival, and they take various field trips throughout the year.

ANGEL FLIGHT

Poise, personality, and an interest in Air Force ROTC are the necessary requirements for membership in Angel Flight, women's auxiliary to Arnold Air Society. The members are chosen through rush each term. Angel Flight is primarily a service group, acting as hostesses for Air Force ROTC functions and co-sponsoring the spring term blood drive with them. The members also participate in their own drill team and compete for regional and national honors.

BETA ALPHA PSI

An annual scholarship award is presented by the Alpha Omicron chapter of Beta Alpha Psi, the national accounting honorary. Accounting majors who are eligible for membership in Beta Alpha Psi are seniors with a 3.0 all-college average and a 3.5 in accounting and juniors carrying a 3.5 all-college average and a 4.0 average in accounting. Among the guest speakers the organization invited to speak to them this year was the managing partner of Ernst and Ernst.

BETA BETA BETA

Tri-Beta provides an opportunity for students interested in the biological sciences to further research in these fields. The membership requirements for this honorary group include a 2.9 grade point average and 16 biology credits or admission to upper school. Tri-Beta sponsors a program of faculty speakers during the year. An annual picnic is held for members. The group sends representatives to the annual district convention.

BETA GAMMA SIGMA

Election to membership in Beta Gamma Sigma is the highest scholastic honor that a student in business administration can attain. Juniors must be in the top four per cent and seniors in the upper tenth of their classes to be eligible for membership in this honorary. The purpose of Beta Gamma Sigma is to encourage and reward scholarship among business administration students and to foster integrity in the conduct of business operations.

BLUE KEY

Members of Blue Key, men's service honorary, have the enviable position of selecting Miss MSU and presenting her to the student body at the J-Hop during winter term. Blue Key members interview the coeds chosen to represent the living units and then narrow the number of contestants. Men are chosen for membership in Blue Key on the basis of leadership, character, and service to the university. Their grade point average must be above the men's all-university average.

CHI EPSILON

The purpose of Chi Epsilon fraternity, civil engineering honorary organization, is to maintain and promote the status of civil engineering as an ideal profession and to recognize the fundamental characteristics of the successful civil engineer. The top third of the civil engineering class is eligible for membership, and invitations are sent to those who are selected for membership. Chi Epsilon participates in the Engineering Exposition.

CIRCLE HONORARY

Circle Honorary recognizes women who have excelled in leadership, citizenship, and service within their residence halls. This group strives to serve as an incentive to residents in these three areas and to promote friendship and understanding among the women's residence units. This year Circle Honorary participated in Who's Who and What's What, a program introducing freshman women to the various activities and honors available to them. They also co-sponsor the Spinster Spin.

DELTA PSI KAPPA

Delta Psi Kappa, HPR honorary organization, organized and sponsors the departmental library. The group also prepares the newsletter for the HPR department. Faculty, HPR majors, and their parents were invited to an open house last spring which was given by Delta Psi Kappa. The purpose of the honorary is to stimulate improvement in professional policies, purposes, and programs. Potential members must have a 3.0 grade point average in professional courses.

ETA KAPPA NU

Students studying for the profession of electrical engineering are eligible to be selected for membership in Eta Kappa Nu, the electrical engineering honorary, if they demonstrate scholarship, character, personality, the ability to use knowledge, and a willingness to work. This scholastic honorary meets every two weeks. The group sponsors a banquet in the spring for the installation of officers at which prominent men in the field of electrical engineering speak.

GREEN SPLASH

The goal of Green Splash to promote an interest in synchronized swimming at MSU and throughout the state, is achieved through demonstrating swimming skills at clinics for YMCA groups and Michigan high school students. Green Splash gives scholarships to one or two members to attend water safety camps in the summer. Members of Green Splash must be senior lifesavers, participate in swimming intramurals, and demonstrate certain synchronized swimming skills.

Only the third to receive the honor, Dean Fuzak is made an honorary member by Terry Burgon.

EXCALIBUR

The 13 members of Excalibur, which exists only at MSU, are selected on the basis of leadership, character, and service to the university. They have the pleasant honor of escorting the Homecoming queen and her court to the Homecoming game and dance. Each spring Excalibur hosts a breakfast for new Tower Guard and Mortar Board members. The organization invites a member of the faculty or administration to speak at their weekly luncheon meetings. Each year Excalibur chooses an outstanding member of the faculty and presents him with the group's distinguished faculty award.

KAPPA DELTA PI

The Epsilon Kappa chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, education honorary, conducts tours of the campus for high school Future Teacher groups. Members of this organization must be juniors with six semester hours of work in education and in the upper fifth of the class. Kappa Delta Pi promotes a closer bond among people in the field of education. They participate in the Education Council.

MORTAR BOARD

Junior women who have demonstrated outstanding qualities of character, scholarship, leadership, and service are those who are chosen for membership in Mortar Board, senior women's honorary. The group sells Mortar Board calendar books and apply the profits from the sales to a scholarship fund. Mortar Board members also usher at graduation ceremonies each term.

PHI KAPPA PHI

Phi Kappa Phi, national scholastic honorary, selects undergraduate, graduate, and faculty members on the basis of academic excellence. Fifteen sophomores with the highest grade point average, the top one and a half per cent of the junior class, and the top seven per cent of the seniors are eligible for membership. Faculty initiates are invited to join on the basis of publications and general scholastic contributions. Invitations are extended at the end of winter term.

SIGMA ALPHA ETA

Any students training professionally in the field of speech and hearing rehabilitation are eligible to become members of Sigma Alpha Eta. The organization encourages professional growth by providing learning experiences not offered in the course of study. It strives to inspire high planes of achievement in academic and clinical activities by providing situations in which students and faculty may work together as a team to advance speech and hearing rehabilitation.

SIGMA LAMBDA CHI

Sigma Lambda Chi, associated with the National Association of Home Builders, recognizes students who have demonstrated outstanding achievement in forest products. This year the group supplied a working force at the Lansing Home Builders Show and they sponsored the annual awards and alumni banquet in the spring. Sigma Lambda Chi sponsors a student loan fund for department majors and presents scholarships to students each year.

TAU BETA PI

Tau Beta Pi, engineering honorary, presents a slide rule annually to the outstanding freshman in engineering. This honorary, organized on the MSU campus in 1892, honors the upper fifth of the seniors and upper eighth of the juniors in engineering. Alumni who have made significant contributions to the field are also eligible for membership in Tau Beta Pi. Stephen S. Attwood, dean of the University of Michigan College of Engineering, spoke to the group this year.

TOWER GUARD

Reading to the blind students on campus, tutoring, and assisting at registration each term are the service functions performed by Tower Guard, sophomore women's honorary. The forty members of Tower Guard are chosen from the top 100 freshmen women who stand at the top of the class scholastically and are outstanding in character, leadership, and service. The group is the only organization meeting in Beaumont Tower.

XI SIGMA PI

A high rank in scholarship and personal achievement in forestry are the requirements for admission into Xi Sigma Pi, forestry honor fraternity. The organization gives a scholarship award to the top sophomore in forestry. The state forester of Wisconsin was a guest speaker at one of the Xi Sigma Pi meetings. They aim to maintain a high standard of scholarship and to promote fraternal relations among forestry workers.

ACCOUNTING AND FINANCE ASAE

Guest speakers from industrial, governmental, and public accounting organizations and from financial organizations highlight the meetings of the Accounting and Finance Club. The group, organized on campus in 1958, continues to grow under encouragement and support from the accounting and finance department. The club doubled its membership over that of last year.

Students who are enrolled in the agricultural engineering curriculum are eligible for membership in the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE). The society participates in the Engineering Exposition and in Farmer's Week, where they operate an information booth. The former national president of the ASAE was one of the speakers this year.

ASCE

Three well-known speakers highlighted the meetings of the American Society of Civil Engineers. Talbert Abrams, donor of the new planetarium, Maynard Miller, professor of geology and a member of the Mt. Everest expedition, and John Mackie, Michigan State Highway Commissioner, spoke to the ASCE. The ASCE helps engineering students gain professional contacts and associations.

BLOCK AND BRIDLE CLUB

The Block and Bridle Club is an organization for animal husbandry majors and other students having an interest in livestock. The club participates in an annual horse show, The Activities Carnival, the meats and livestock judging contest, and it sponsors the Little International where different species of livestock are shown and fitted. The year's activities end with a student-faculty banquet.

CAMPUS 4-H

Campus 4-H assists former 4-H Club members to become a part of college life at MSU by promoting various educational and social activities. They act as a service group for state 4-H Clubs and participate in Farmer's Week, the International Festival, Small Animals Day, the National 4-H Club Week. Campus 4-H gives a food basket to a needy Lansing family each Christmas. The senior contributing most to the club is given an award at agricultural honors.

CHEERLEADERS

Personality, skill, potential, neatness, and above all, energy are qualities of the cheerleader. The cheerleading squad cheers at all football games, traveling to the away games, and at all home basketball games. The squad members arrive back on campus before fall term begins to prepare for the football season, and they continue to practice about seven hours each week during the fall. They also work with all pep rallies. The regular and alternate squads are chosen spring term.

FORESTRY CLUB

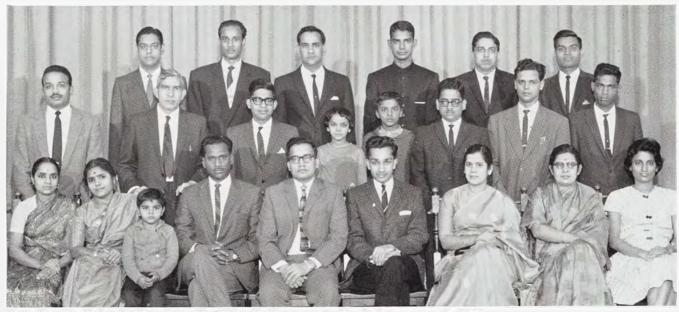

Beards are a common sight among Forestry Club members during winter term until they are judged in the annual beard contest at the Foresters' Shindig, when foresters and their dates dress in rustic attire. The Foresters' Banquet, given with University of Michigan in the fall, is followed by a liars' contest. During spring term a Forestry Club Field Day was held. The group also took part in the Midwestern Foresters' Conclave, and won third place competing with other schools.

HPER CLUB

In keeping with its goal to further professional growth, the HPER Club sponsored a panel, on competition, with University of Michigan and MSU professors participating. The members, who are women majoring or minoring in HPER, also sponsored a hootenanny winter term to which the coeds invited dates. A contribution to the Olympic fund to assist the teams with functioning money was the club's service project. The HPER Club sponsors an Outstanding Senior Award.

INDIAN STUDENT ASSOC.

The Indian Student Association, open to all students, is an active group of 120 members. Last summer they celebrated India's Independence Day at a picnic with the University of Michigan group. During the fall a dinner was held in celebration of the Dewali Function at which Dr. Maynard Miller, associate professor of geology, presented his slides of India and his Mt. Everest experiences. At the Republic Day dinner winter term President Hannah was made an honorary member.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB

Many long-lasting international friendships have their beginning in the International Club, the largest club on campus. Open to all interested students, the group invites various nationality clubs to put on programs of dancing and singing at their weekly meetings. The organization sponsors three main events each year. These are the International Ball during fall term, the International Dinner in winter term, and the International Festival spring term.

MARKETING CLUB

The Marketing Club assists its members in securing permanent, part-time, and summer jobs through its Man Marketing Clinic. The clinic also provides instruction for the students in effecting job interviewing. Marketing Club members attend the National Intercollegiate Marketing Competition and Conference where top marketing executives and students meet. An award is given to the school that wins the computer marketing game at the conference.

NAHB CLUB

The members of the National Association of Homebuilders sponsor a booth at the annual national convention held in Chicago in December. One of the purposes of sponsoring this booth is that the members of the organization have the opportunity to talk with potential employers at the convention. Students majoring in residential building or related fields are eligible to become members of the National Association of Homebuilders.

PACKAGING SOCIETY

All interested in packaging and allied fields are eligible to belong to the Packaging Society. This group promotes packaging knowledge among students, faculty, and industry. The society again participated in the Activities Carnival, where they laminated I.D.'s as a service to students, and in the Agriculture Council softball league. The Packaging Society presents awards to the outstanding packaging man and company of the year.

PERSHING RIFLES

Practical application in leadership skills plus combat training and drill are stressed by Pershing Rifles Company L-3. Pershing Rifles encourages and develops the highest ideals of the military profession and provides appropriate recognition of military ability among Army ROTC cadets. The organization, founded by Gen. John Pershing to build a higher esprit de corps among ROTC cadets, requires a 2.2 all-university and a 3.0 in ROTC.

POMOLER CLUB

A five-day trip to the Shenandoah Valley, Washington, D.C., and the Maryland coast was the high point of last spring term for members of the Pomoler Club. The members of this group, who are pomology and vegetable production majors, own and operate the apple machine in the Horticulture Building as a research project to determine the most commonly accepted variety. The Pomoler Club gives the Tukey Award to the outstanding junior in horticulture.

PROMENADERS

Square dancers in the Lansing area are familiar with the demonstration team sponsored by the Promenaders, a group which has fun while promoting its special interest, square dancing. In order to become a member of the Promenaders, potential members must exhibit their ability to dance plus personality. The members compete for places on the demonstration team which does both folk and square dancing.

SAILING CLUB

The Sailing Club offered the basic Red Cross instruction in sailing for the first time this year. The club, whose boats and equipment are available to all members, owns property on Lake Lansing, six boats, and a clubhouse. This year a team representing the club participated in the St. Petersburg Intercollegiate Invitational Regatta during spring break. One of sixteen teams participating in the regatta, the MSU team finished 4th out of 10 entries in the Flying Junior Class.

SPARTAN WOMEN'S LEAGUE

Spartan Women's League, a service organization, often works behind the scenes in assisting in campus activities. They are co-sponsors of one of the blood drives, assist with the May Morning Sing breakfast, prepare a Thanksgiving basket, and distribute etiquette slides and pamphlets to women's groups. The members also usher at Water Carnival and participate in Who's Who and What's What and Activities Carnival. One outstanding coed is recognized by the League each term.

2x4 CLUB

The 2 x 4 Club acquaints its members, who are enrolled in lumber and building materials merchandising or wood technology, with the industry they will enter after graduation. This year the group attended regional and national conventions in Chicago, Lansing, and Grand Rapids. At each of these conventions the club sponsored a booth which provided information about MSU curriculum in related fields and furthered public relations.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS

Speakers from business, industry, government, and labor addressed the Young Democrats this year. Last spring the club brought James Hoffa, president of the Teamsters' Union, and August Scholle, president of the Michigan A.F. of L.-C.I.O., to speak as part of the club's concentration on labor unions. This year all members of the state administrative board spoke at club meetings. The largest group in the state organization of Young Democrats, the club is the official Democratic Party voice on campus.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

A lecture is sponsored each term by the Christian Science Organization in which a Christian Scientist explains the teachings of his church to the university community. The group also holds weekly testimonial meetings. The Christian Science Organization participated in Activities Carnival and sponsored a Christian Science Monitor booth at registration each term. They held two receptions at the Forestry Cabin and at the Union.

GAMMA DELTA

Gamma Delta, international association of Lutheran students, had a busy, successful year even though their activities were held in temporary quarters while the new Martin Luther Chapel, to be completed this spring, was in the building process. The MSU chapter headed the annual winter camp for all college chapters in the district, planning all the various speakers and activities for the weekend. Gamma Delta hosts weekly Sunday night suppers and programs.

HILLEL FOUNDATION

The Hillel Foundation of B'nai B'rith makes the Jewish heritage a meaningful and purposeful force in the lives of Jewish students. Hillel enables the student to share in religious and cultural activities and provides him an opportunity for fellowship and self-expression. Cultural programs take the form of supper forums on Sunday evenings, Hebrew classes, film festivals, and the Folkway Theater, which this year presented "The Tenth Man."

TRINITY FELLOWSHIP

Trinity Collegiate Fellowship provides interdenominational Christian fellowship and offers opportunities for the exploration of the bases of Christian faith. The group especially studies the relation of Christianity to the practical problems of daily living. This year the organization heard a number of speakers at their weekly meetings. Before Christmas they went carolling in East Lansing neighborhoods. They were organized on campus in 1955.

ST. JOHN'S PARISH

Project Peru, under which 22 members of St. John's Student Parish worked with the underprivileged in Arequipa, Peru for 10 weeks last summer, is to become a yearly project of the parish. St. John's was active with many discussion and instruction groups, including Operation Understanding, a program for Catholics and non-Catholics to learn more about the Catholic religion. Weekly dances, Sunday suppers, bowling and tobogganing parties, two ski weekends, and a Mardi Gras Dance were the social activities for the year. Plays were also produced and directed by the students of the parish.

For parishoners over 21 the Mardi Gras supper was the last feast before the famine of Lenten fasting.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

Service is the key word in describing the activities of the Wesley Foundation. The most important plans discussed this year were those concerning a work camp to be conducted by the members in Puerto Rico this summer. Other service functions of the Methodist organization, which is open to all interested students, included assisting the Lansing YMCA with teen parties and Gra-Y clubs. They also visited the Okemos County Hospital and helped with the Urbandale children's recreation program.

Student publications are invaluable sources and transmitters of information.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

An important aspect of student services is found in student publications at Michigan State University. The Michigan State News—a daily newspaper, the Wolverine—the annual yearbook, The Spartan Engineer—a quarterly technical magazine, and the MSU Veterinarian—a technical journal published three times a year, are all produced by students under the direction of faculty advisors.

The influence of these works is realized by all who read them—on the campus, throughout the state of Michigan, and across the nation. In many instances, these publications serve as the primary link between the individual students and their campus, between the campus and the world. These student publications perform an invaluable service for the University in their functions as sources and transmitters of information.

BOARD OF STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

The Board of Student Publications selects the editors and business managers for the newspaper, yearbook, and special interest publications. As the top authority in student publications, the board is responsible for policies and decisions concerning the publications. Three teaching faculty members, students who petition for membership, and administration serve on the board. Board meetings are held at least once each term.

The work of student photographers is fundamental to each publication.

WOLVERINE BUSINESS

The Wolverine business staff coordinates the business activities of the Wolverine from the book sales to handling the general office work. This year the Wolverine was sold at summer counseling clinics for the first time. As sales continued through registration, they were spurred on by the promotions of "Miss Wolverine." The staff sent letters to parents of seniors at Christmas urging them to purchase a year-book as a gift for their son or daughter.

WOLVERINE EDITORIAL

The editorial staff of the Wolverine works with the planning, photography, writing, and organization of the yearbook from the first stages of theme selection until the book is finally placed in the students' hands at the end of the year. Decisions and changes are made in the Wolverine's organization to keep the book up to date, a mirror of university life in the past year. Deadlines, pages of copy, and piles of photographs make the Wolverine office a center of constant activity.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS

Members of the State News advertising staff sell advertising space to local merchants and prepare the layouts for their advertisements. This year the staff moved to new and larger offices to handle their duties. The revenue received through State News advertising increased this year. An advisor was added to the advertising staff. The classified advertising section of the paper is also handled through the advertising department.

STATE NEWS EDITORIAL

The State News expanded its coverage this year to include the entire university community. For the second year in a row the State News received the Pacemaker Award from the American Newspaper Publishers Association, the only paper to do so. In their critique of the paper for this award, the judging newspaper said, "It's a well rounded, very readable newspaper by any standards." As the second largest morning daily in the state, the State News expanded its offices this year.

AUSG EXECUTIVE

The Winds of Change Conference on World Revolutions was the most important product of the All-University Student Executive branch this year. The U.S. State Department brought 19 students from Asia to attend the conference at which the Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs, the dean of Columbia University, and the chairman of the International Rescue Committee spoke. The Campus Chest was also reorganized this year, and Spartan Spirit had its most successful year.

AUSG JUDICIARY

The All-University Student Judiciary gives students the opportunity to take part in judicial decisions on this campus. Members selected from each class hear the facts of each case and make recommendations for the proper actions. Both legislative and disciplinary cases are heard by the judiciary. They decide what action should be taken and make their recommendations to the office of the Dean, who has the final approval. The Dean's office has made few reversals of decisions.

STUDENT CONGRESS

As the legislative body of All-University Government, Student Congress meets every Wednesday night to discuss and act on various legislative measures. All campus living units and off-campus students are represented in Student Congress through their elected representatives. The group is headed by a speaker who also holds the position of vice president of student government. Congress members work together under standing committees, which study various problems and form legislation.

STUDENT TRAFFIC COURT

Members of the Student Traffic Court, who are selected by the chief justice and the president of All-University Student Government on the basis of interviews and petitions, are empowered by student government to hear appeals of students regarding traffic violations of campus driving, parking, or failing to register a car. As a branch of All-University Student Government Judiciary, Student Traffic Court can also make rulings such as requiring every student to register his car.

ASSOCIATED WOMEN STUDENTS

This was an experimental year for Associated Women Students. The organization went from one board to a series of four decentralized complex boards. Because of the growth of the university and because living units are so separated AWS has been brought down to the hall level. An AWS member served as junior advisor to a standards board in each residence hall. These members made up the complex board. The rule of 15 late minutes equaling one campus was also eliminated in favor of considering each case. A vote on the new constitution in the spring determined whether the new AWS form will be permanent.

WOMEN'S INTER-RESIDENCE COUNCIL

One of the highlights of winter term for women's residence halls is Inter-R Sing, a program sponsored by Women's Inter-residence Council. WIC, the governing body of the 21 women's living units, presents homecoming and scholastic trophies to women's halls, and cooperates with MHA in many activities, including Spartan Street Stomp and freshman orientation programs. WIC sponsors a workshop to acquaint residence officers with their duties and holds a spring reception for hall officers.

PRESIDENT'S COUNCIL

The members of Presidents' Council, who are the presidents of all the women's residence halls, meet twice a month for dinner business meetings. They meet in a different residence hall each time to discuss various problems and issues relevant to the halls. The Presidents' Council coordinates activities among the halls and also acts as a means of informing the women, through their respective presidents, of the activities on campus.

MEN'S HALL ASSOCIATION

Men's Hall Association, the policy-making body for men's residence halls, organizes Block S, runs the movie of the week at four campus locations, and sponsors the annual Spartan Street Stomp. The organization provides beds for Alumni Distinguished Scholarship applicants and for men attending the Campus U. N. conference. A committee was named to study dress regulations within the halls. The 11 presidents of men's halls plus the executive officers form the MHA executive board.

WATER CARNIVAL

"Witerature—A New Look at Old Books" is the theme of the 1964 Water Carnival. Whitney Worm, the bookworm, was the star performer, tying together the many floats. This was the first year that the float trophy competition was broken down into divisions. Twice the number of trophies were awarded as residence halls and Greeks each competed among themselves. Sponsored by the Senior Class, the profits of Water Carnival are presented to the Development Fund as a class gift.

UNION BOARD

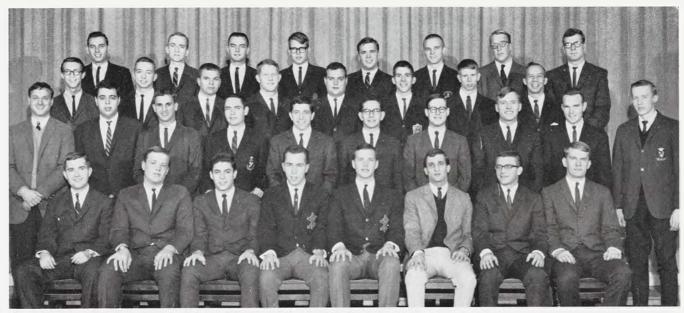

"Take Five," title of this year's Union Board Week, began with fashion and jazz and ended with faculty members riding donkeys in a basketball clash with varsity football players and student leaders. The Union Board promotes the use of the many facilities of the Union building and sponsors a wide program of activities, including lectures, bridge and dance lessons, European charter flights, and a ride bureau. An award is presented to the worker of the year.

UNION BOARD DIRECTORS

The Union Board Directors, chosen from Union Board members, head the Union Board and are responsible for Union Board policy decisions. The group is also responsible for communicating with the Union building management. Seven committee chairmen, three Union Board officers, and two members-at-large make up the membership of the Union Board Directors. Being selected as a Union Board Director represents a Union Board member's greatest recognition.

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL

Scholarship, brotherhood, community service, leadership, athletics, and social life describe life in the 32 MSU fraternities which are bound together by the Inter-Fraternity Council. IFC presented its first Outstanding Greek Alumnus award to Frederick C. Belen, now Deputy Postmaster of the US, and donated books on postal communications to the library in his honor. This year IFC raised the pledging requirement from a 2.0 to a 2.2 all-university average. IFC sponsors two scholarships for foreign students and is financing the anti-personal property tax issue which will affect all off-campus living units.

The organizational work of IFC materializes within its offices in Student Services.

PAN HELLENIC COUNCIL

Action best describes the past year of PanHellenic Council, official sorority spokesman. The figure of "Polly Pan-Hel" was chosen as the Council's mascot, and Polly appeared on all PanHellenic information. Mobile Homecoming floats were an innovation this year, and the sororities worked together on them with a parade as the climax. PanHellenic members dressed dolls for needy children at Christmas. An international program was carried out through International Night when each sorority invited foreign students as their special guests. Pan-Hel also sponsors a foreign student with a scholarship.

Junior class leaders met with State Officials to protest the coming tuition hike.

JUNIOR COUNCIL

The Junior Council was active in many areas during the past year. J-Council sponsored a Christmas card project in which living units could contribute money to a worthy cause and J-Council sent a card for all of them. The Council published J-Comment, which was distributed to all juniors, and members talked to area high school students about MSU organizations. They sponsored the outstanding Junior awards and contacted the living units about leadership opportunities. A leadership conference was planned for this spring at which state business and political leaders spoke to campus student leaders.

J-HOP

Playing cards, a giant roulette wheel, and the lights of Las Vegas surrounded students attending the 1964 J-Hop, Vegas Ventures. Buddy Morrow and his Night Train Orchestra provided a variety of music for dancing while the Ahmad Jamal Trio, a noted jazz group, entertained during intermission. Another band performed where refreshments were served. The theme of Las Vegas was carried out at the semi-formal dance through decorations and the favors, red and black garters, which were presented to each couple. During the intermission Judy Smith was crowned Miss MSU by Blue Key, junior and senior men's honorary organization.

J-Council found a new advisor this year in Mr. Jack Shingleton.

FROSH-SOPH COUNCIL

As the governing body of both the freshman and sophomore classes, Frosh-Soph Council provides varied services and activities for members of these classes. The council published a newsletter, Frosh-Soph Focus, sponsored the Spartan Ambassadors, and organized a forum for the spring elections, "Meet the Candidates." Parents' Weekend is a project of Frosh-Soph Council. During fall term the council sponsored the Lettermen as the popular entertainment program of the year. Students petition for membership on the general council, which is headed by an executive board consisting of the sophomore officers and chairmen of the committees.

SENIOR COUNCIL

After Senior Council members are selected on the basis of a petition and interview in the spring of their junior year, they look forward to a year filled with activity and service on behalf of their class. The council is composed of class members in charge of various class activities, such as Senior Swingout, Homecoming, Commencement, and the '64 Club. The members try to interest more seniors in planning and participating in these activities. The council also selects the seniors of the week and of the year. This year they worked with the registrar on early senior registration.

Senior Council meetings are convened in the Excalibur Room of the Coral Gables.

TUDENT life is like no other life. Within the vast brick walls of a dormitory complex or in a single room off campus, thousands of individuals share common experiences and emotions as only university students know them. Together they share the major and minor crises, creating a unity that typifies that intangible quality known as spirit.

Residences at Michigan State University CHAPTER FIVE encompass a wide array of facilities.

These have been developed so that the student may share fully the life in an active academic community.

After the first rush of activity, students settle down to study.

A residence is a place in which to study, sleep, eat, and socialize — the student's temporary home. One of the first important choices that a student has to make, soon after he has been admitted, is the choice of a residence hall. He considers a hall's location, size, and newness. The University has also given a great deal of thought to these areas, for it realizes that housing determines in large the first image that an incoming student forms of Michigan State.

Dormitory life is intentionally an exercise in living with people of widely differing backgrounds; hall assignments are made without regard to race, creed, or color. Foreign students and the physically handicapped are scattered throughout the residence hall system. The close friendships that inevitably form, and that intangible spirit which naturally accompanies good friends when they compete with other teams, is a tribute to the philosophy of brother-hood upon which campus residence is predicated.

RESIDENCE HALLS

Confusion results when books, clothing, and suitcases must be sorted and put away.

Registration week finds entire families helping move sons and daughters into residence halls, sorority and fraternity houses.

Freshmen are heartily welcomed into residence halls.

Living Units in an Active Academic Community

When Case Hall was opened in the fall of 1961, the concept of coeducational dormitories was initiated at Michigan State. The success of this experiment is reflected by the fact that there are now four coed residence halls on campus, with three more which are to be opened next fall term.

The residence hall program will play a significant role in the future of the Educational Development Project. Students will be allowed to live in the dormitory which most accurately fulfills the requirements of their majors; classes will be offered in accordance with the needs of the residents of these major-oriented living units.

Part of the responsibilities assumed by residents of Van Hoosen is working as receptionist at the main desk.

Roommates enjoy talking together and sharing their day's activities.

Residence hall life includes impromptu football games during the fall.

Resident advisors conduct floor meetings, a familiar sight each week.

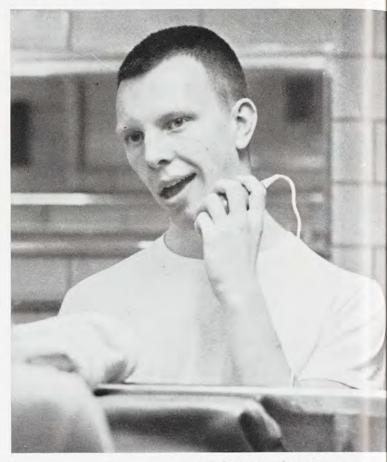

Making a top bunk every morning is hard and dangerous work.

The University Image Reflected in Residence Halls

The increasing popularity of, and enrollment in, the graduate program at Michigan State has emphasized the need for special living facilities for the graduate student. Recognizing this need, the University has provided exceptional housing accommodations for both single and married graduate students.

The modern facilities of Owen Graduate Center, opened in the fall of 1960, provide single men and women with the finest in comfortable living in a mature atmosphere conducive to advanced study and the exchange of ideas.

ABBOT

Each year, one lucky freshman woman in Abbot Hall is awarded a plaque as the Hall's most outstanding resident. This award, made by the House Council, is only one of many functions.

As is true of the entire University community, many activities are seasonal in nature. Fall term finds the women of Abbot entertaining at coffee hours held after each home football game. At Christmas, a party is given for the children of Abbot's employees.

Communal study sessions are conveniently held in Abbot's library.

BUTTERFIELD

As a "memorial" to the days when Butterfield Hall was a men's dormitory, its feminine residents have reorganized the Pin Club. This organization honors residents for outstanding leadership and service within the hall and on the all-university level.

An honor system has been devised which leaves the responsibility for quiet resting upon the individual — a unique experiment in MSU residence halls.

GILCHRIST

The women of Gilchrist Hall cooperate to promote an atmosphere in which friendship and scholarship can flourish.

As a unit, these women have taken part in all campus events in which they were eligible to participate. Activities are encouraged within the dormitory and on the all-university level; each year, an award is given to the Hall's outstanding senior.

"Happiness is a beaten badger", but happiness is also the first place trophy for a Homecoming display, an honor which the women of South Campbell Hall shared with North Campbell.

SOUTH CAMPBELL

With their brother dorm, Bailey Hall, these women participated in College Bowl as well as holding a Hootenany mixer. The dining room assumes a new guise when the women hold a foreign dinner each term.

EAST LANDON

Many of the women of East Landon Hall have donated their services to the Coldwater State Home on two weekends during the term.

Every year, East Landon recognizes the outstanding senior residents as well as any underclassmen who have made an admirable academic record.

In addition to these community service and dormitory projects, the women of East Landon have been active in many all-university events.

WEST LANDON

West Landon Hall is an active and academic residence hall which personifies the concept of harmony; it caters to music students. This year, many experiments have been introduced in an effort to enhance the international awareness of the women of West Landon. In addition, a small lecture series has been initiated. Through many such activities, these residents have enriched their personal experiences.

MASON

Mason Hall is an older women's residence hall with a great deal of tradition. Each year, the women take blind children "trick or treating." At Christmas, they hold a party for their employees' children.

This year, they have initiated a speakers program which presents people who represent the various professions which are open to women in today's society.

EAST MARY MAYO

Until 1960, Mary Mayo Dormitory was a graduate residence. Even though it is the oldest living unit on campus still in use as a residence hall, its traditions and customs are still in the process of formation.

WEST MARY MAYO

Shoeless feet were a common sight in the Mary Mayo dining room this year. Though a unique experiment proposed by the management, this dining room became the first on campus to display carpeting.

PHILLIPS

Fall term brought many innovations as Phillips Hall was introduced to its first year as a co-educational residence hall.

The women of Phillips strive to make their dormitory more than just a place to live by providing residents with social, academic, and recreational activities. By providing leadership opportunities, unity and responsibility are fostered among these women.

RATHER

A fire drill this year in Rather Hall turned into a hootenanny on the fields of the Brody complex. Choruses of "Hey Li Lee Li Lee Lo" rang in the night, as male voices from the balconies of neighboring Bryan Hall joined in with "The Eyes of Bryan Are Upon You."

On a more formally organized level, the women of Rather are very active participants in events within the Brody complex and on an all-university basis.

NORTH WILLIAMS

The women who pass through the doors of North Williams Hall every day can claim a unique experience, for theirs is the only residence hall on campus with a castle-like entrance.

Every year, they give a Christmas party for a group of underprivileged children in the Lansing area. Games, refreshments, and a visit from Santa Claus bring a great deal of joy to the children and to the residents.

SOUTH WILLIAMS

The women of South Williams Hall strive to help each resident adapt to college life in the manner best suited for her and to encourage the use of individual talents.

This goal is accomplished in various ways, for the activities of the women of South Williams are a reflection of the many all-university organizations and events which are open to coeds; enthusiasm is the basis for this active participation.

EAST YAKELEY

East Yakeley is divided into a three-house system. Each of these units holds individual events as well as joining in hall activities and in sports competition among themselves.

The women of East Yakeley are not only active in campus and community events and organization, but they have also asserted themselves on an international level by "adopting" an orphan from Thailand.

VAN HOOSEN

Van Hoosen is unique among Michigan State residence halls in that it is an apartment building. The hall is composed of 32 apartments, supplemented by a social room, reception room, lobby, and office area.

The students in each apartment share the housekeeping responsibilities. In addition, each resident contributes an average of one hour per week as receptionist in the lobby.

WEST YAKELEY

The women of West Yakeley Hall strive to provide a living situation which supplements the academic atmosphere of the classroom with opportunities for social and recreational contacts. To this end, campus events and activities are participated in with an enviable spirit.

On the community service level, these women give to a needy family in the Lansing area a merry Christmas.

NORTH CASE

One enterprising house offered "44 bunnies to read bed-time stories" in the annual Case Hall auction which was held to raise funds for the Campus Chest. As is true of most of their activities, this was held in conjunction with South Case.

The women of North Case Hall are marked by an enthusiasm for organizations and activities. Their most outstanding residents are recognized by the Case Hall Girl of the Week program.

SOUTH CASE

The men of South Case Hall have refined a tradition of other men's living units to an extreme. Many dorms have sister residences with whom they socialize, but South Case has sister houses with their neighbors, the women of North Case.

In addition to the honors earned by the men of South Case, residents can claim the distinction of living in the first dormitory in the nation to include classrooms.

The co-ed study areas let students kick off their shoes, roll up their sleeves and get down to business.

East McDonel girls and their dates have become very familiar with the ever-popular sign out procedure.

EAST McDONEL

A student walking into McDonel Hall for the first time can almost feel the green hills of Scotland under his feet. Tradition at Michigan State has been to name the houses within a residence hall by using the first two letters of the hall name. The women of east McDonel have been fortunate in that any house which uses one of the traditional Scotch-Irish names is able to use the coat-of-arms and tartan of that name.

WEST McDONEL

The West McDonel Hall Association is organized to act as a liaison between the students and the administration; to promote an academic atmosphere; to coordinate social activities; and to coordinate the residence hall with other campus organizations and functions.

In their first year on campus, the men of West McDonel have been active in residence hall, all-university, and community service projects.

Studying at McDonel helps get students out from behind the 8-ball.

NORTH WONDERS

This fall, the doors of Wonders Hall on South Campus were opened for the first time. Nearly all of the residents of this coeducational living unit are freshmen.

The men of North Wonders Hall are able to claim the distinction of having the greatest number of Alumni Distinguished Scholarship students on campus. These men have also been active in all-university events.

SOUTH WONDERS

In their first year on campus, the women of South Wonders Hall have displayed a great deal of enthusiasm in formulating the traditions which will become a part of the "heritage" of this new residence hall.

Spirited participation seems to be the keynote for this dormitory and its residents. The women have been active in social, athletic, and service projects.

EAST WILSON

The men of East Wilson offered a valuable service in their South Campus Major Night. The scholastic committee of East Wilson organized this program for the residents of the Case-Wilson-Wonders complex who wanted personal attention in understanding or choosing their majors.

Their proficient activities in the intramural sports program has been recognized; the dormitory all-sports trophy rests in their lobby's display case.

Sports equipment is made easily available to residents.

WEST WILSON

The women of West Wilson Hall promote the development of self-responsibility in a cooperative living situation that provides an opportunity for social growth and interaction as well as an atmosphere that is conducive to optimum academic achievement.

West Wilson was the first residence hall on campus to donate $25 to UNICEF at Christmas in lieu of sending cards to other living units.

BAILEY

The men of Bailey Hall encourage student initiative and promote various programs of activities for student growth. These men are willing to try anything to expose unique hidden talents. They discover skill in sports through participation in intramurals. Originality and artistic ability are revealed in their Homecoming display.

Each year, twenty outstanding residents are elected to membership in the Bailey Hall Pin Club.

ARMSTRONG

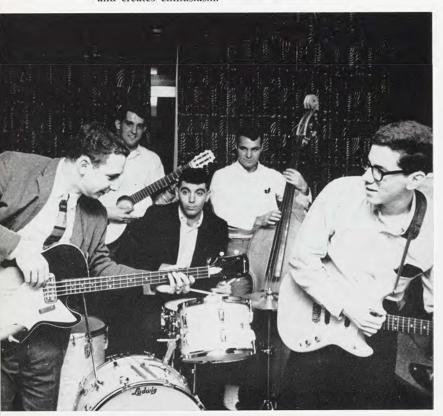

Constant activity seems to be the keynote for the men of Armstrong Hall this year. They pursue campus events and activities with an enviable enthusiasm. These men organize their regular extra-curricular program around the three central areas of student life; scholastic, social, and athletic. All of this activity is coordinated by the Armstrong Hall Club whose officers plan each event and promote hall unity and spirit.

BRYAN

Being a "Bryan Man" has a certain prestige, at least among the residents of Bryan Hall. The big dorm is unified by this spirited loyalty to its name. This same loyalty furnished the basis for the enthusiasm which won the Spartan Spirit trophy for the men of Bryan.

Last spring, Bryan gave four book scholarships. These were awarded on the basis of need and scholastic ability.

SNYDER

When Snyder Hall was constructed in 1947, it was designed and utilized as a men's undergraduate residence hall. The great increase in the feminine population on campus necessitated its conversion to a women's dormitory. The fall of 1963 brought the return of the men to Snyder, despite the protests of its former coed residents.

Their "first year" has found these men busy in campus activities, social, scholastic, and athletic.

EAST SHAW

This year, the men of East Shaw Hall introduced another campus innovation — the First Annual All-University Canoe Race.

The responsibility for this, and for all of the activities sponsored by East Shaw, rests upon their unique student government. An elective body of dorm officers and precinct representatives forms their General Council. Its effectiveness is demonstrated by the array of awards which rest in their trophy case.

Several sorority houses remain open during the summer for Greek and independent women.

Sneak Previews during fall term gave rushees the opportunity to view the Greek system.

Greek Life Offers the Individual: Scholarship, Leadership, Service, and Social An infinite continuum of rush parties, chapter meetings, desserts, and study tables—Greek life encompasses twelve per cent of the student body. This fall, sororities were visited by over 2000 coeds during Sneak Previews, while fraternities set up displays in the Union designed to acquaint freshmen with Greek living. These activities were culminated during the winter term as hundreds of new pledge pins appeared on campus.

Greek-letter societies have played an important role in the 109-year history of Michigan State; fraternities have been on this campus since 1872, sororities since 1921. These responsible organizations have a real interest in promoting the best that there is in student life by offering the individual a great deal in the facets of scholarship, leadership, service, and social activities.

Joe Higgins of Delta Tau Delta was named Powder Puff Queen at the annual Gamma Phi Beta-Delta Gamma event.

Potential rushees had a chance to meet members of each fraternity at the IFC rush convocations.

Rush sign-up meant cards galore to be filled out.

Sororities entertained resident advisors for dinner on RA Night to acquaint them with sorority life.

As the highlight of the Greek year, Greek Week displays both the cooperation and the spirit of competition observed in the Olympic games. Cooperation is displayed in such things as the Community Project and Greek Feast; events like Greek Sing and Water Carnival exhibit the idea of competition. In addition to its objectives of cooperation and competition, Greek Week has the purpose of service; a community project has become an annual event.

During Greek Week, the individual houses work to maintain the units of the Greek system. The week is a time of uniting in service and in fun to improve, not only inter-system relations, but those with the community, the faculty, and the student body. This unity is facilitated by the work of the Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic Council; the responsibility for its success rests upon the individual members of State's fraternities and sororities.

In recent years, many of the fraternities and sororities at Michigan State have undergone reevalution and reorientation in an effort to place their goals and objectives more in harmony with those of the University and the people of East Lansing. The Greek system is seeking to change its image from one of insignificant revelry to one of service and value to the campus and the community. This goal is being accomplished on three levels. Academic standards are being raised. Members are urged to support and to participate in campus activities. Service projects which will truly benefit the East Lansing area are initiated. Through these methods, the Greek system is striving to make a positive contribution to the primary functions of the University.

The beauty of morning is a late breakfast complete with the comfort of rollers and companionship.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

Lately, much of the AChiO's time and effort has been devoted to planning their new house which is expected to be ready for occupancy this September. The Alpha Chi's and their alumni have sponsored raffles, rummage sales and have done baby sitting with all the proceeds going to furnishing their new home. The members still found time to participate in Homecoming, Water Carnival, Junior 500 and prepare Christmas baskets for needy families. Each spring the Alpha Chi's sponsor a party for children afflicted with cerebral palsy. A highlight for the members was receiving the scholarship award from National Headquarters.

An underage sister must suffer the consequences.

ALPHA DELTA PI

Winter term saw the ADPi's, one of the youngest sororities on campus, moving into their new Harrison Road home. Their new house holds 49 members which makes it the largest sorority house on campus at the present time. Even with the excitement and work of setting up a new house, they still actively participated in such all campus activities as Greek Week, Water Carnival, Homecoming and won their national's Correspondence Award. The ADPi's support a foster child in Hong Kong and participate in other philanthropic projects.

ALPHA EPSILON PHI

Uniqueness in campus and community service projects is a characteristic of the AEPhi's. Not only do they stage regular rush teas but their pledges sponsor teas for unaffiliated co-eds. They also read to shut-ins and hospital patients and also sponsor a Halloween party for local orphans. Every year a lucky A E Phi pledge is honored by her house by being awarded the outstanding pledge trophy which is a symbol that her sisters recognize and appreciate her outstanding house contributions. AEPhi's are currently active in most major campus activities such as Union Board, Pan-Hel and AWS.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA

The Alpha Gamma sorority holds the distinguished position of being the first national sorority on campus. This has meant that over the years the Alpha Gams have made many contributions in leadership and service both on the campus and in the community. This year is no exception. Recently, they have spent much time and effort aiding patients afflicted with cerebral palsy, which is their national philanthropic project. Each year they hold an annual car wash with the proceeds going to the cerebral palsy fund. The Alpha Gams also entertain palsy patients at their Halloween Party. Participation in campus activities is encouraged by honoring a sister with "the most active member award".

Consistency is a predominant trait of the women of Alpha Kappa Alpha. They have placed first in Junior 500 and the blood drives 3 years in a row, besides 3rd place in Sorority Sing this year. They are working with youth at the Lincoln Center in Lansing, volunteer work at Lansing General Hospital and participation in the NAACP and the Council on Human Rights.

DELTA SIGMA THETA

ALPHA PHI

As one of the oldest sororities on campus, the women of Alpha Phi continued to excel in campus leadership and service. They won the Greek Week Participation Trophy and the all-sorority swimming competition. The members also participated in other women's IM sports, Tricycle Race, Greek Sing and Water Carnival. Their main philanthropic projects were parties for underprivileged children and aid to the Cardiac Fund of the Michigan Heart Association. Another time-consuming project has been the planning of a new addition for their home.

ALPHA XI DELTA

"The Palace" is the Alpha Xi's newest conversation piece— a newly acquired annex. The Alpha Xi's can boast of a second place Water Carnival Trophy, this years Homecoming Queen and their National Scholarship Improvement Trophy. They hold two car washes each year to support their orphan, Maggi from Lebanon. The Alpha Xi's award an honor ring to the junior with the highest grade average and also two bracelets; one to the member with the highest average and the other to the member showing the greatest academic improvement.

CHI OMEGA

Every Spring Term the Chi O's sing "a very happy unbirthday to you" to their members who have birthdays over the summer vacation. This and an award given to the Chi Omega who makes the biggest blunder of the week are a few of the interesting traditions the Chi O's enjoy. Every year they award a scholarship to the outstanding woman in the social science field. At Halloween the Chi O's work at hospitals decorating trays for the patients and at Easter time they give a party for orphans in the Lansing area. The Chi O's received the scholarship improvement trophy from their national headquarters.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

Trophy-collecting was the favorite activity of the Tri-Delts last spring term. They won first place in Water Carnival, placed 2nd in the sorority tricycle race, and 3rd place in the Junior 500. This fall they won first place in Homecoming. Tri-Delts are active in Senior Council, Union Board and a Tri-Delt was the recipient of the Outstanding Greek Woman Award. The sorority awards two scholarships to deserving MSU co-eds each term. Every Christmas the house sponsors a party for under-privileged children in the Lansing and East Lansing area.

DELTA GAMMA

Delta Gamma sorority spent the year pursuing the varied interests of its members. Long hours of coaching by Sigma Chi fraternity netted the DG's a trophy for winning their annual Powder Puff football game with Gamma Phi Beta sorority.

The wearers of the golden anchor gained permanent possession of the Pan Hellenic scholarship trophy, after winning the award for three consecutive terms. Another award was presented to members for third place in Homecoming display competition.

As part of their national service project, Sight Conservation and Aid to the Blind, members read to blind students on campus and entertained children at their annual Christmas Party at the Michigan School for the Blind.

DELTA ZETA

The women of Delta Zeta initiated a "Housemother's Week" which was highlighted with a surprise bridge party and luncheon. The DZs held their annual Triad dance with the Delta Chis and Fijis for which the three pledge classes presented a skit. As philanthropic projects, the DZs were hostesses for the Michigan School for the Blind at a tree-trimming party, dressed dolls and held a Christmas party with the Theta Chis for underprivileged children. Among DZ honors were first place in sorority softball, third in the Sorority Tricycle Race, first in Greek Sing, all-University bowling championship, second place in the Jr. 500, and Senior of the Year.

GAMMA PHI BETA

"Beat the DGs" is the battle cry of the Gamma Phis as they break from the huddle with their Dads cheering them on. This is the highlight of Dad's Day, the Powder Puff Bowl. After the game, a little "Coral Gabling" eases the pain of scraped and bruised shins. Fall teas, winter rush and their annual term party help round out the Gamma Phi Beta social calendar. After hectic class days, the Gamma Phis find it relaxing to lounge in the newly re-decorated living room of their Harrison Road home.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Popularity and campus leadership are synonyms for the Thetas. In addition to having representatives on every major campus court, they won a 3 ft. trophy by taking first place in SAM's tricycle race, 2nd place in Water Carnival and participated in Greek Week, College Bowl and Women's I M sports. Each December finds the Thetas out Christmas caroling with fraternities. Contributions to the Institute of Logopedics, which helps people with speech defects is their national philanthropic project. Active in all campus activities the Thetas present Outstanding Senior Awards to members and also present an all campus Outstanding Greek Woman Award.

KAPPA DELTA

The bell rings, the girls rush to the living room where a candle is passed around and when it is blown out this means that another Kappa Delta is pinned. This and regular before-dinner song fests are some of the traditions at the Kappa Delta House. They participated in Water Carnival, Junior 500 and placed 2nd in Greek Sing and 3rd in Homecoming. Every term the KD's visit and take gifts for the children at the Michigan School for the Blind. They also have active participation by members in all major campus activities.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

Co-operation among other greek units characterizes the Kappas. The Monmouth Duo held in co-operation with Pi Beta Phi celebrates both of their foundings at Monmouth College. The Kappas keep in touch with their University of Michigan sisters by staging a joint annual picnic during spring term. Their service projects include working with the Lansing School for the Blind and rehabilitation for the disabled. They participated in Sorority Sing, Homecoming and Women's IM sports. The women reside in their MAC Avenue Home.

PHI MU

The Phi Mu's direct much energy to campus and community service. Each month they write letters and send financial aid to a 10-year-old Chippewa Indian girl so she can attend school and a summer camp. They also sponsor a healthmobile, toy carts in hospitals, and award scholarships to foreign students. Each month a Phi Mu is honored by her sisters for contributing the most to the chapter. Participating in most campus activities, the Phi Mu's also honor their pledges at the spring term party by presenting them formally as active members.

SIGMA KAPPA

Service to the community, nation and the world is a claim made by the women of Sigma Kappa. Locally, the SKs work with the aged people at the Ingham County Rehabilitation Center where on holidays they visit with the patients and bring them gifts. Nationally, the women contribute to the Maine Seacoast Mission and internationally, they help support an American Farm School in Greece. The SKs won 3rd place in Water Carnival and are active in AUSG, Student Judiciary and Pan-Hel. The turn-about dinner with the bus-boys is an anticipated event.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

A ZTA comes home from class to find her room mysteriously straightened and cleaned. Another finds her loafers polished and knee socks mended. This is all part of the Secret Sister Week, a week when each ZTA concentrates on doing extra things for another sister. As a national service project they help "clothe crippled children" and locally sponsor parties for area orphans and under-privileged children. Even with all these projects plus campus activities such as Homecoming, Sorority Sing and Greek Week, the ZTA's were awarded the Scholarship Improvement Trophy by the Pan-Hellenic Council.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

Tragedy struck the AEPis during Christmas vacation. The extremely cold weather froze and burst water pipes which flooded the house and caused extensive water damage. So extensive was this damage that they were forced to leave the house and find housing in residence halls and apartments. This has not destroyed their esprit de corps, for the men are still active in campus activities such as Greek Week, Water Carnival and IFC. Their float, "Scales of Power", with the Tri-Delts took top honors in Water Carnival last spring.

The trophies must not be overlooked when spring cleaning time comes.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Although organized in 1956, the Alpha Sigs plan to be in their spacious new home this September. The members have devoted much time and effort in the planning of the house on which construction will begin this summer. To go with their new house the members got a new mascot, a black Labrador Retriever named Tar. Participating in almost all major campus activities such as Greek Week, Homecoming, Junior 500 and Water Carnival the Alpha Sigs are never too busy to forget to entertain area orphans at an annual Christmas Party.

BETA THETA PI

Recently, most of the Betas' time and energy has been spent on the preparation and the administration of their new house which is now under construction. The men will be able to occupy their modern home in the fall of 1964. The Betas won the bowling championship and were 6th in overall sports standing. They participated in certain IFC and MSU sponsored community projects. They also invited distinguished faculty for dinner. Their representative to the Miss MSU contest was one of the finalists. But the year was not without its heartbreak for members. The Betas lost their well known mascott, Stanley, on Homecoming weekend.

DU members are active in all major campus activities such as Homecoming Chairman, Spartan Spirit Chairman, Greek Week, AUSG, IEC and class positions. When spring term rolls around the DU's can be seen canoeing to class and bettering the physical appearance of their East Grand River chapter house.

The men of Farmhouse continued to be scholastic champions by having the highest grade point average among fraternities. Since they were organized in 1935 the fraternity has continued to serve the College of Agriculture by having members on Agriculture Council and other service groups. The men participated in the Blood Drive, IM sports and Greek Week. The group presents the Doane Award to the outstanding senior member and several Farmhouse members have been chosen to represent the U. S. in the International Farm Youth Exchange.

LAMPDA CHI ALPHA

Originality is a predominant characteristic of the Lambda Chi's. They are responsible for originating Block S, Greek Feast and Junior 500. Their new innovation this year was the attendance of three "Lambda Lovelies" at sorority fall teas. One of the oldest fraternities on campus, their spirit and continued support of the Greek System can be seen by members participating in Greek Week, Water Carnival and IM sports. Two members have been elected to Blue Key honorary and the current Mr. MSU is a Lambda Chi.

Keeping up the Lambda Chi's abundant trophy collection requires time.

MSU's Fijis received national distinction when one of their members received the Cecil J. Wilkinson Award. This is given to the one outstanding senior member of Phi Gamma Delta throughout the United States and Canada. This award was placed beside their Scholarship Improvement Trophy and other Fiji awards and trophies. The members participated in Greek Week, Homecoming, IM sports and initiated the Outstanding Senior Greek Award. As one of their service functions, the men co-sponsored a picnic for local cuban refugees.

PHI KAPPA PSI

"Let's go on a safari," was the fall term cry of the Phi Psi's. The campus responded enthusiastically with an expressway jamming "Spartan Safari" to Michigan for the annual gridiron clash. The safari led by Sparty, the symbol of MSU spirit, and the cheerleaders turned out to be a great success and it is hoped that the safari will turn into a biennial event. The Phi Psi's won the trophy for the Blood Drive coming through with a 100 percent participation. In addition to participating in major campus activities they award a scholarship to the brother demonstrating outstanding leadership and scholarship.

PHI KAPPA SIGMA

Phi Kappa Sigma, commonly known as Skull House, marks its 50th year as a fraternity on campus. Within this time the Skulls have made impressive showings in such activities as Water Carnival, Greek Week and have recently demonstrated great ability in the Greek Sing. The Skulls are best known for the diversification of majors within the house but have remained among the top 10 houses on campus scholastically for the past two years. An alumni-active dinner dance celebrating the House's existence on campus has occupied most of the Skull's social chairman this year.

PHI KAPPA TAU

Community service characterizes the men of Phi Tau. Each Christmas they sponsor a party for area under-privileged children. The Phi Tau's also give aid to the Lansing School for the Blind and they also take up a collection for the Muscular Distrophy Fund. Besides participating in Water Carnival, Greek Week and Homecoming, they won the IFC Scholarship Improvement Trophy, a campus Blood Drive plaque and their National's Cooperation Award. Organized in 1924, the Phi Tau's reside on Hagadorn Road.

PHI SIGMA KAPPA

The men of Phi Sigma Kappa believe in honoring achievement among members and advisors by giving a retiring president's award and a Founder's Day Award. These are symbols of the brother's recognition of outstanding service and leadership. The Phi Sigs won second place in Homecoming and participated in Greek Week, IM sports, Water Carnival and the blood drive. Their national awarded them a Manpower Achievement Award and the members entertained orphans and participated in the community clean-up project. Organized in 1959, the men reside on Bogue Street.

PI KAPPA PHI

The Pi Kaps have an eye for beauty. Their local Rose Queen, Diane Bobeck, a Sigma Kappa, was elected National Rose Queen at their national convention. One of the members had the distinction of having the second highest grade point in the senior class with a four year average of 3.92. The men participated in IM sports, Homecoming, Water Carnival and Greek Week. Organized in 1925, the Pi Kaps reside in their modern Whitehills Drive home.

PSI UPSILON

Originally organized as the Hesperian Society, Psi Upsilon went national in 1943. Predominantly an Eastern Ivy League fraternity the Psi U's show their conservatism by their aversion to "mass" campus activities and by their simple Homecoming message that inspires alumni and students alike. This year the Psi U's are promoting better sorority relations by having sorority rushees sign up for various "house duties" in an effort to get better acquainted.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

The SAEs demonstrated their athletic prowess by setting a new track record at Jr. 500, winning IM swimming, fraternity volleyball and placing 2nd in IM basketball. The men also placed 2nd in Water Carnival and had Ray Leffler talk on men's college fashions after dinner. The SAEs present an award to the brother who has done the most for the chapter and to the pledge with the highest grade point. The fraternity's service group, The Little Sisters of Minerva sponsored several money raising projects and used the money to purchase a fireside set for the house.

SIGMA ALPHA MU

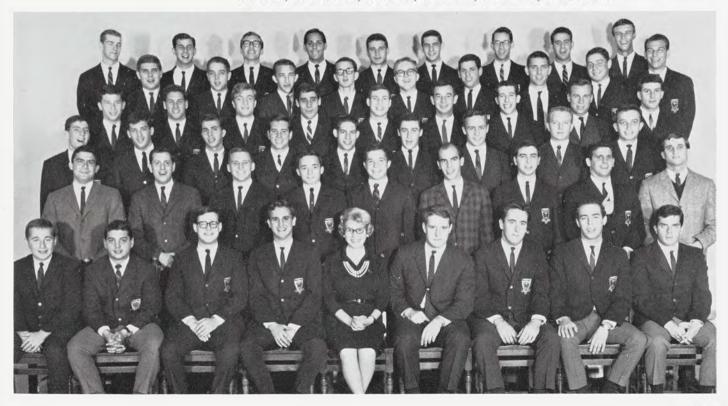

Spring term found many sorority girls polishing and oiling their tricycles for the 1st annual Sigma Alpha Mu sponsored Sorority Tricycle Race. The race was a huge success with the winner taking home a giant 3½ ft. trophy followed by 2 large 2nd and 3rd place trophies. This race is only one example of Sammie originality and campus leadership. Organized in 1959, Sammy members hold two administrative positions on the IFC, Chairman of Greek Week, Vice President of Green Helmet and publicity director of J-Hop and seniors of the week. As a community service project the Sammies sponsor several parties for local area orphans.

SIGMA CHI

This fall, the Sigma Chi's moved into their new Grand River home, constructed on the site of their old house. The house represents the efforts, both financially and otherwise of many past and present Sigma Chis. The men were glad to hear this summer that their chapter sweetheart was crowned National Sweetheart of Sigma Chi in Dallas, Texas. The Sigma Chis are active in AUSG, IFC and Senior Council. They won the All-University Hockey Championship and the fraternity softball championships. The chapter presents a best athlete award and work with area orphans.

SIGMA NU

The men of Sigma Nu have always excelled in athletics, campus leadership and service; this year was no exception. The "snakes" won two out of three of the all sports trophies. Sigma Nus were also named to Excalibar, Blue Key, Green Helmet; an Outstanding Junior Award was received by one of their members. They also sponsor an annual Orphan's Day when orphans in the Lansing area are treated to a party and a trip to the zoo by their Sigma Nu hosts. The men were also honored by a visit from their National Executive Officer, Richard Fletcher.

Their prize winning display, a replica of a McDonalds Hamburger stand, walked away with top honors Homecoming weekend. A new green velvet cape and helmet crest were part of the fall term refurbishing of Sparty, the symbol of MSU spirit. They also won fourth place in Water Carnival last spring term. Sig Ep members include vice-president and treasurer of the Junior Class and business manager of the Wolverine. They help support the Sig Ep National Camp for orphans.

THETA CHI

The annual "Bowery Ball" finds Theta Chis selecting evening attire at the exclusive Salvation Army men's shop. Their selection for this year's event was thickly padded double-breasted suits with pleated slacks 28 inches around the cuff. The theme is also carried out by a junk-ridden lawn and a semi-demolished house. The men participated in Greek Sing, Water Carnival; members are active in class offices and IFC. The Theta Chis received the Gilpin Lewis Memorial Trophy for the most improved chapter. The men present an annual Christmas Party for underprivileged children, choose a "Theta Chi Dream Girl," and look forward to their "Red Carnation" dinner dance.

TRIANGLE

Organized in 1955, "to benefit the academic and social lives of men having scientific interests," virtually all Triangle members are majoring in scientific fields. The fraternity received first place in the Society Division of the Engineering Exposition. As a campus service the men of Triangle and the Placement Bureau presented "Tomorrow The World" which gave fraternity and sorority members valuable job interview information. Triangle recently moved to a new house on Harrison Road. The highlight of their social year is the "Sweetheart Swirl" their formal dinner dance held every winter term.

PROFESSIONAL FRATERNITIES

Professional fraternities afford students the opportunity to live, work, and learn with other men who aspire to the same career. They unite men of similar professional interests in order to allow them to mix their social and academic pursuits.

The major advantage of these groups is found in their opportunity to specialize in their activities. Through the projects and the programs that they offer, the members receive valuable professional training and practical experience in their field as well as enjoying the fellowship of goods friends.

DELTA SIGMA PI

Delta Sigmi Pi, professional business fraternity, promotes closer ties between the commercial world and students of commerce. During fall term Delta Sigma Pi achieved 100 per cent participation in the blood drive and sponsored a booth in the Activities Carnival. They sponsored a Christmas party for underprivileged children from the Lansing area. The group awards a scholarship key to the senior with the highest average in the business school.

As a service project, member's escort students from the Lansing School for the Blind to the band concert. Christmas finds the members carolling at the homes of the music department faculty. The men participate in IM sports and each spring term sponsor a jazz concert. The national consists of 214 chapters and of these less than 10 function through a chapter house.

CO-OPS and RELIGIOUS LIVING UNITS

The co-operative houses at Michigan State are home for nearly 300 students. Membership in any of the eight co-ops is open to any male student who is accepted by the members. The men manage their houses, buy supplies, cook and serve meals, make repairs, and do all of the jobs that are necessary to provide adequate living facilities.

The only difference between most religious living units and the co-ops is a denominational homogenity within the house; the fellowship of shared work is augmented by a similarity of faith. Often the residents of religious living units are active in their respective student religious organizations on campus.

The close friendships which emerge from all types of communal living are the sine qua non of these groups.

Even relaxation can be a cooperative effort.

ASHER WOMEN

The Asher Student Foundation for Women provides a home for women who are Christian Scientists and students at the University. Their prospective program is organized around their interdependent facets: Christian Science, the traditions of Asher House, and the traditions and activities that are offered by Michigan State for the benefit of all of its students.

BETHEL MANOR

The student center at Bethel Manor provides a place for men of all religious denominations to live together in a cooperative situation which has an active Christian atmosphere and emphasis. These students live together and work together in developing Christian character, spiritual brotherhood, and a sense of leadership.

Christian Science men at Michigan State are given an opportunity to live with others of their faith at the Asher Student Foundation for Men. They strive to maintain and operate a home where the men will find an environment conducive to further growth in Christian Science and the development of those spiritual and moral qualities which further the brotherhood of man.

The Evans Scholars were established on this campus in 1956 as a means of allowing talented individuals in need of financial aid to attend college and live in a fraternal organization. These men represent the only scholastic living unit at Michigan State.

In order to be eligible for this residence, a man must win a Western Golf Association Scholarship and maintain a 2.1 all-University average.

HEDRICK HOUSE

The men of Hedrick House strive to create a close bond of fellowship among their members by providing social and cultural activities while offering them an economical home on campus. The residents achieve maturity through independent living.

Economical group living and an opportunity for academic growth led men to organize Motts House during the Second World War. Motts' social calendar includes activities within the house as well as those on an all-University level.

Over 2,000 married students make their homes in the University's brick villages.

Waiting for the family laundry gives sleepy husbands a chance to nap.

Household chores often interrupt even the best intentions of a student partner.

Unpacked groceries hold many surprises for prying eyes.

MARRIED HOUSING

From an unimpressive beginning—trailers and war surplus "shacks" in 1945—married housing at Michigan State has developed into a three-village, 2,056 apartment complex in 1964. With the rising enrollment of veterans after the war, the number of married students necessitated the creation of special housing. Michigan State became the pioneer in married housing when a 50-trailer park was instituted in Lansing. These trailers were later moved to campus on a 400-trailer area, while still other families were living in temporary barracks. Ten years later, University Village was opened; since then, Spartan Village and Cherry Lane Apartments have been constructed. These facilities have placed State far into the lead in married housing.

A new baby makes big changes in the student family.

Lights burn long after dark as the student members of the family prepare for the following day's classes.

Sewing can become a tedious affair when keeping track of mischievous helpers.

Families find time to relax and play together.

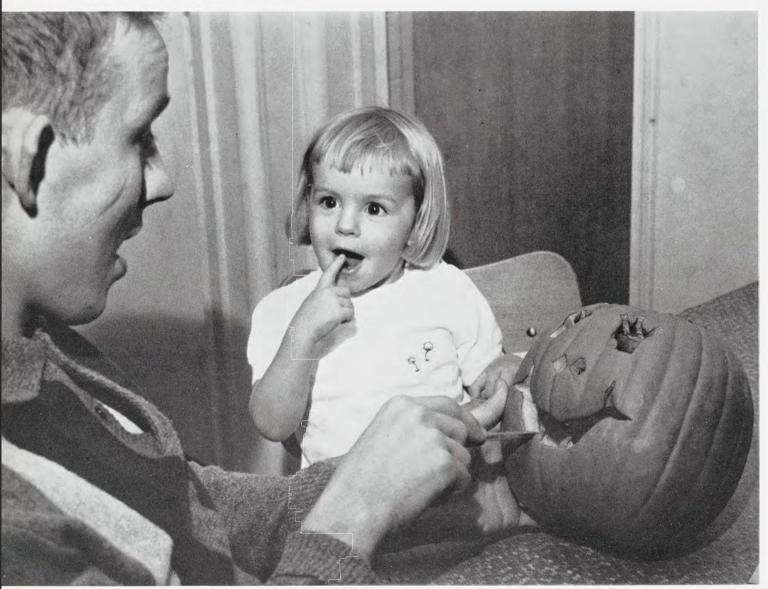

Dual Roles for the Married Students

Today, these family units provide an invaluable service in their function as a significant aspect of University housing. Everything possible is done to encourage satisfactory intra-family and interfamily relation on the theory that these lessons are all-important in our social system.

Every attempt has been made to provide an environment conducive to congenial and gracious living. These units have achieved national acclaim for their structural design, landscapes, and attractive and serviceable furnishings.

Before the apartments quiet down for the evening comes the nightly task of bathing.

Halloween holds the same excitement for children on campus as for those everywhere.

The versatility of the apartments allows the student to play his dual role.

Student Families

Each village is unique, but all are constructed on the idea of providing the maximum amount of living space with the maximum amount of parking area in a minimum amount of space.

Within these complexes, father or mother can study in quiet while their children play on the large playgrounds. When the time comes for their parents to relax, these playgrounds are the setting for badminton, softball, or football.

The families who live in Michigan State's married housing areas are in similar economic and social circumstances— a good foundation for pleasant relationships among neighbors. In many quadrangles, friendships are formed that have continued long after the tenants have left campus. For the faculty and students families who live in these communities, their campus niche is home.

The welcome is the same whether Daddy comes home from the office or from class.

OFF-CAMPUS HOUSING

Freedom from curfews, quiet hours, and institutional food has led many students from University residence halls and sorority and fraternity houses to off-campus rooms, apartments, and houses. Although they evade several housing regulations, the University's primary ban on liquor, gambling, and unchaperoned parties is still enforced.

With the relaxation of University unapproved-housing regulations, more students have been able to find housing in Lansing, East Lansing, and the surrounding area. East Lansing realtors and contractors have provided students with a concrete answer to their demands in the construction of several new apartment buildings designed for collegiate living in a non-collegiate atmosphere.

The independence that these facilities offers has been achieved by 18 per cent of Michigan State's student body. The limited amount of women's approved, supervised housing has remained partially vacant.

These students are completing their college careers in a truly integrated community. In this environment, the educational, social, and economic factors of life are visibly combined.

A few moments of relaxation are well-deserved after the day's assignments have been read.

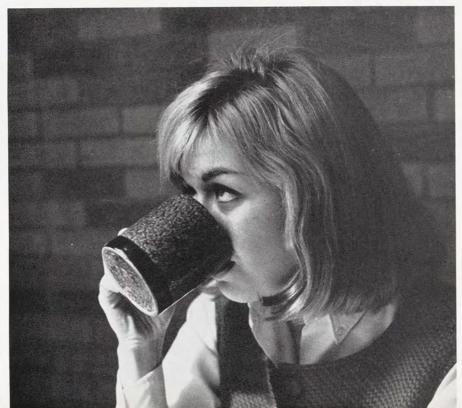

Warm weather, a porch swing and an important phone call make for a perfect day.

No dinner lines, oven dinners, or rigid eating schedules are an advantage that many students find in their apartment homes.

Last minute projects are often completed long after roommates have gone to bed.

Previously considered "women's work", cooking is ardently taken up by men who find it their only means of survival.

Dishwashing chores are never finished.

Off-campus students united in 1954 to form Students Off-Campus, an organization which was designed to promote their diversified political, social, and service interests. SOC assumes many responsibilities during Welcome Week, ushers during convocations, and sponsors a high school cooperation program each spring to assist students who will soon be entering Michigan State. In the area of social activities, SOC sponsored many hayrides, football blocks, and parties.

SOC performs a dual function in uniting its members as a body and by making them an integral part of the University as a whole.

Freedom Responsibility Independence

The opportunity to enjoy one's favorite recipes is enjoyed by foreign students as well as Americans.

In off-campus housing men must fend for themselves which includes cooking meals and the accompanying cleanup chores.

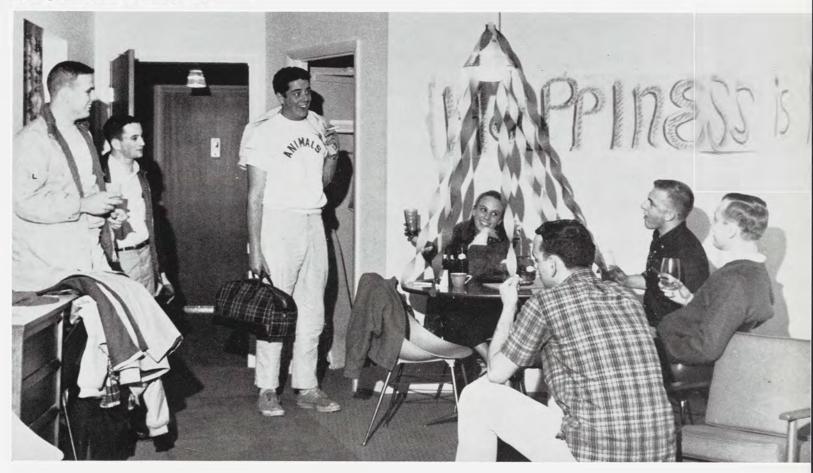

A couch is often a welcome bed after an all-night study session in a friend's apartment.

Informality in Off-Campus Living

Although enjoying all of the advantages of apartment living, off-campus residents must find time to study like all students.

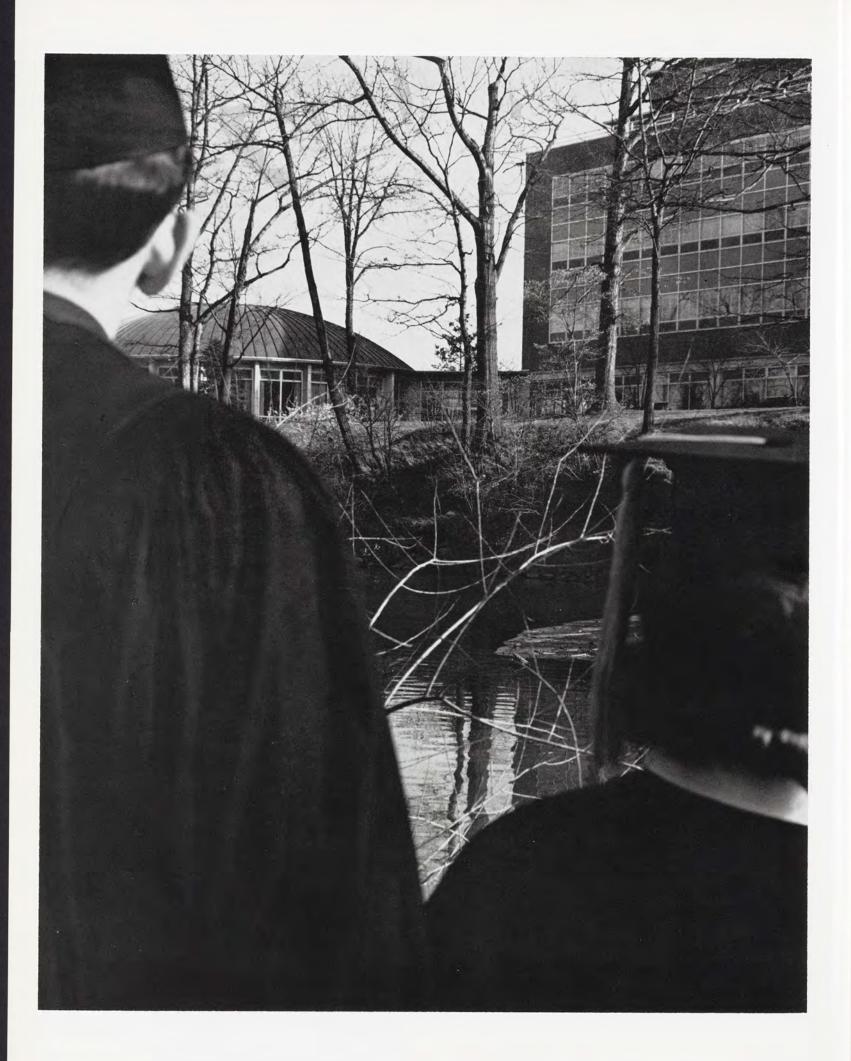

Spring breaks in Florida provide a refreshing change from classes and routine, but with the beginning of registration it seems good to return to friends, a clean apartment and a comfortable bed.

Students who live off campus gain practical experience in home management. Grocery shopping and meal planning and preparation become vital parts of the student's life; even a non-cook becomes proficient within a term. Apartment decorating is a creative expression of personal tastes and interests. Housewifly duties from dusting the furniture to defrosting the refrigerator are assumed by these students. All of these lessons are reenforced by the budgeting of time and monetary resources—a prerequisite of student life.

Cooperation is the key to the successful combination of housework and study; the off-campus student must be proficient in both aspects. Within the framework of his indepedence, he must assume the responsibilities which are characteristic of these divergent factors.

Off-campus living is a projection in miniature of the world that will await the college student after he leaves the University. This is an experiment in reality.

only in its elusion of a pat description. In its beterogeneous membership, one will find almost as many interests and intentions as individuals. Even the word class itself is applicable only to the year of graduation. To any who feel that graduation is the end for which they have been striving, the commencement exercises may serve as a reminder that it is only a beginning.

For the graduates of Michigan State,

CHAPTER SIX

one door closes as another opens.

Beyond the sea of black-robed graduates lies what can only indescribably be known as the future.

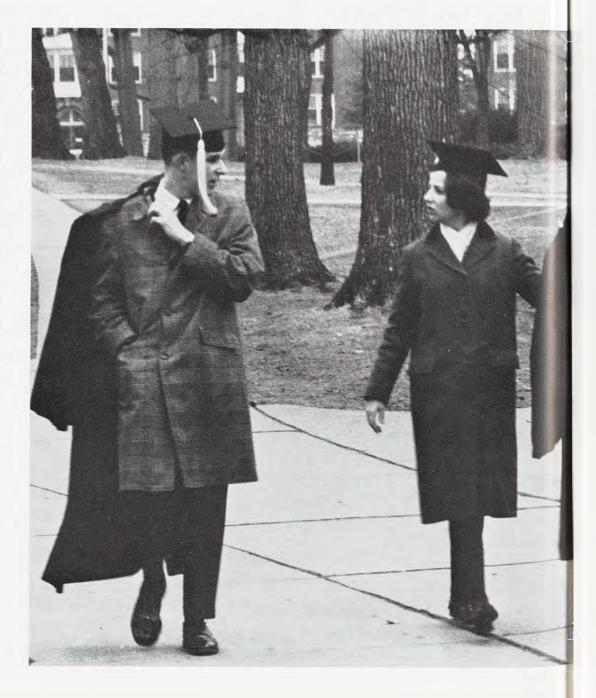

SENIOR ACTIVITIES

After twelve full terms of serious studies, tempered by times of pleasure, the graduating seniors will spread out over the world in a variety of jobs or will return to further education by working toward another degree.

For each graduate, the donning of a cap and gown performs an individual magic. To some, it represents an achievement and the end of formal education; to others, it symbolizes a humble beginning. Yet for all, it brings a realization of the responsibility of an educated, cultured, mature citizen—a responsibility to Michigan State, to society, and to the individual.

Old College Hall offers seniors traditional relaxation.

The Placement Bureau offers seniors a chance to meet with their prospective employers.

Even seniors can be found on the steps of Jenison at 500 a.m.

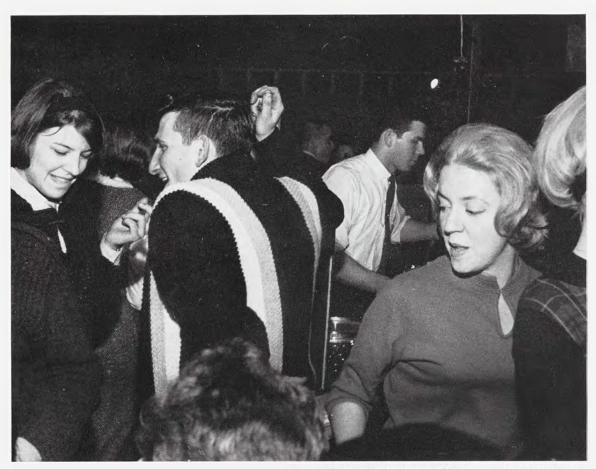

Seniors descend on the Auditorium for that final word from JAH.

The emotional impact of Senior Week activities is heightened by the sudden realization that all too soon a diploma will signify the end of years of study. Yet the seniors' final Spartan days sends them off in a manner which will be long remembered as a week of triumph and reward, of hellos and goodbyes. During this week, Michigan State pauses to honor her graduating seniors.

Each year, on the Sunday preceding commencement, 50 outstanding senior women are honored at Lantern Night. At this time, after a colorful procession of coeds from each class, the names of these women are revealed, and the "light of responsibility" is passed to the underclassmen.

During Senior Swingout, seniors dressed in caps and gowns gather in front of their respective colleges and then march to Beaumont Tower; a reception in honor of President Hannah is held in the Auditorium.

Senior Night at the Gables gives seniors the chance of a lifetime—a band on Tuesday night?

UNDERGRADS WATCH OUT! as seniors swingout across campus.

Smile, the photographer says as seniors try to look their best.

Commencement seems to be a distant intangible to the first term freshman . . . and it is. The road that leads into Spartan Stadium on graduation day is full of detours that require adjustments to a new way of life.

On commencement day, all else fades away. Four years of work and play, study and activity are summed up in this one shining moment under the bright June sun.

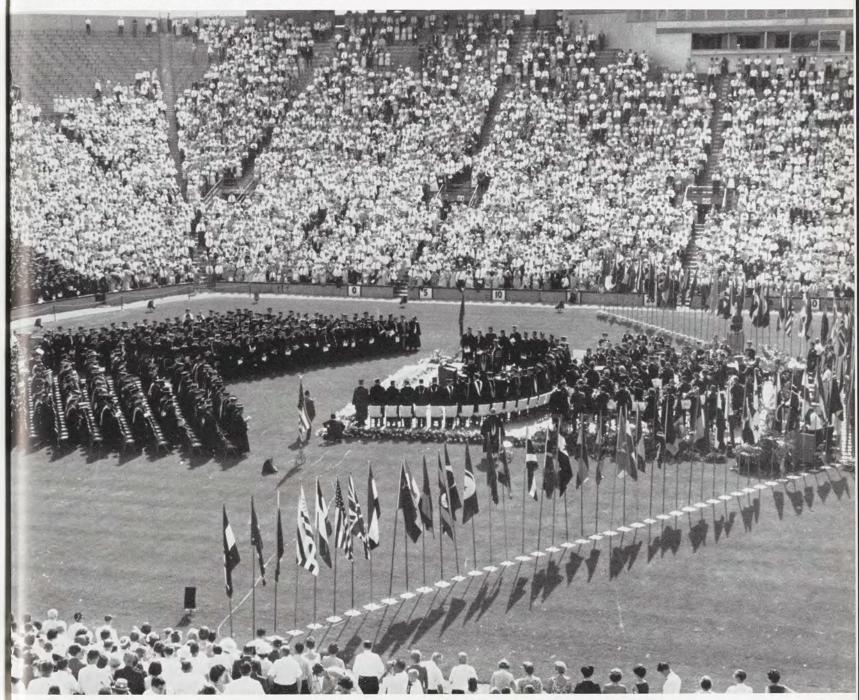

Somehow, commencements are always the same. Things change and will continue to change within the University, but the fundamentals remain. Commencement forms a link with all of the traditions of Michigan State that are felt by the mass of black-gowned seniors in Spartan Stadium.

There are several thousand people in Spartan Stadium on graduation day, the graduates, their parents and friends, and the Michigan State faculty and staff; to each, it has its own meaning. But whatever it may mean to anyone present, everyone knows that the road is not ending, but expanding into the future.

COLLEGE OF COMMUNICATION ARTS

FOUNDED: 1955 DEAN: Fred S. Siebert

In an ever-growing community, successful democracy depends on good communication.

To accomplish this, the Communication Arts college operates facilities not only for instruction, but for research and community service as well.

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

FOUNDED: 1855

DEAN: John D. Ryder

An engineer learns to deal with the sciences and art of employing nature's forces, materials, energy, and men for the ultimate benefit of mankind. A student accomplishes this through theoretical and technical training.

COLLEGE OF NATURAL SCIENCE

FOUNDED: 1962

DEAN: Richard U. Byerrum

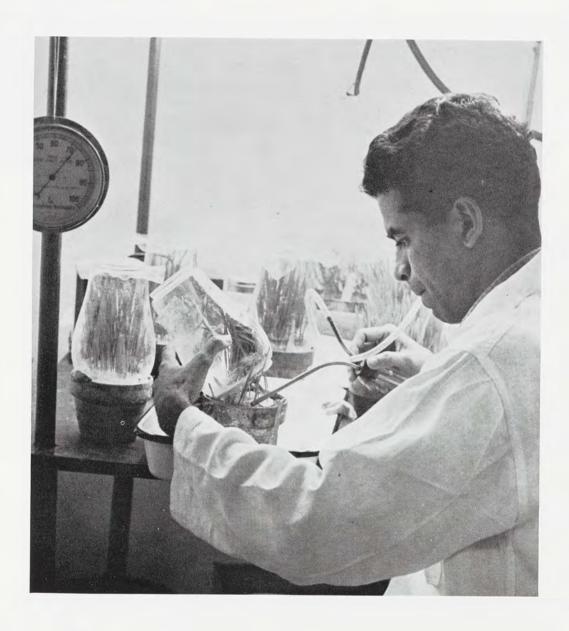

As new scientific facts are discovered, old questions such as "What is the nature of the Universe?" must be re-examined. Students of the natural sciences will be the people who will answer these questions.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Those who have never worked on a project like the WOLVERINE look upon its arrival as a sure sign of the end of another school year without an awareness of the efforts which went into its completion. It was only through the afternoons, evenings, weekends, and vacations of a small but hard-working staff that the 1964 WOLVERINE met its deadlines. To these students we owe our thanks. Special recognition goes to Jeorgi Coplan for the time and effort she has given to the WOLVERINE staffs for the past three years.

Our appreciation is extended to Mr. Jack Bundy of the S. K. Smith Company of Chicago for planning and supervising the production of the cover, to Mr. Sam Fields of Delma Studios, New York, for providing the 1964 WOLVERINE with over 2400 senior portraits, and to Mr. Ed Hackleman and Mr. Ralph VanDyke of the Jahn and Ollier Engraving Company of Chicago for technical assistance with production problems.

Mr. William McIlrath, Director of Student Publications, and Mr. John Vitovsky, representative of Speaker-Hines and Thomas Printing Company of Lansing deserve a special vote of thanks. To Mr. Mac for his quiet, but ever-present work behind the scenes and to Mr. Vitovsky for his perpetual patience when things seemed impossible, thank you.

The 1964 WOLVERINE has been put to bed but only through the contributions of many students, faculty, and administrators not listed herein.
