A Simple Cure for Dyspepsia.

Probably never in the history of proprietary medicines has any article met success equal to that which has been showered upon Golden

Seal Bitters. Why, such has been the success of this discovery that nearly every family in whole neighborhoods have been taking it at the same time. Golden Seal Bitters combines the best remedies of the vegetable kingdom, and in such proportions as to derive their greatest medicinal effect with the least disturbance to the whole system. In fact, this preparation is so balanced in its action upon the alimentary canal, the liver, the kidneys,

the stomach, the bowels, and the circulation of the blood, that it brings about a healthy action of the entire human organism that can hardly be credited by those who have not seen the remarkable results that have followed its use. Sold by Hazeltine & Perkins Drug Co.,

Thrilling Experience of a Traveling Man

While Riding in Front.

"I suppose," said a New York Times reporter to a Chambers street hardware salesman, a modest man of about 38 summers,

"that in the course of your career as a traveling man you have narrowly escaped instant death several hundred times."

"No, sir," he continued, emphatically,

"although I have been twenty years on the road, of serious accidents I have known very few. I had one rather thrilling experience coming out of Chicago once in a long train of fourteen cars filled with sufferers after the second fire. We were sweeping across the prairie at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour, when a coupling broke between the second baggage car and the smoker. The engineer felt the shock, and looking back, saw the trouble. He gave a wild shriek on his whistle for down brakes, threw wide open the throttle, and sped away down the track as if the furies were after him. The conductor happened to be sitting just in front of me at the time. He opened the window at the locomotive's screech, looked out, but instantly drew in his head, and, dropping his lighted lantern

(it was night), stood up in the aisle bracing himself between two opposite seats. I tell you the chalky whiteness of his face was reflected in every countenance in the car.

There was no outcry, but everybody clutch-ed something and waited for the shock. It never came. We ran along for two or three minutes, which seemed interminable, and then the train began to answer the steady pull on the brakes and gradually came to a halt. Every man was out of the car while the wheels were still spinning at a lively gait. It was bright moonlight, and we could see the track stretching ahead in a straight line for a long distance, but of the engine and forward cars there was not a trace. They were miles ahead, and the engineer was in no hurry to slacken speed.

You see, it was down grade, and you can't blame a man for wanting to keep well out of the way of a dozen loaded cars thundering after him. We had time to see about all there was of that particular moonlit prairie landscape before our engine took us in tow again, but nobody complained, you can guess. That engineer's quick judgment and prompt action averted a big wreck.

"Another time when my hair refused to retain its normal position and rose at right angles with my scalp was an occurrence on the Erie road. I had managed to get on the engine as a novel experience. I first discovered that the motion was really appalling.

The engine throbbed and trembled as it ran rocking and plunging on the rails as if every moment it would leave them. The din, too, was frightful. The fireman and engineer yelled at each other whenever they attempted to speak, which was not often, and I simply could not gather my voice in sufficient volume to overcome that pandemonium of sound.

"It was dark, about 6 o'clock of a late November evening. We were climbing the mountain, and the grade was heavy and the curves many. As we thundered along comparatively slow I could see huge rocks towering close to the track on one side, while

Subscribers and others, when writing to advertisers, will confer a favor on the publisher by mentioning that they saw the advertisement in the columns of this paper.

When the Grand River Valley division of the Michigan Central Railway was completed to Grand Rapids fifteen years ago, the management asserted that the only freight traffic the line would cultivate would be through freight from the Eastern seaports and local shipments of produce in the opposite direction. In pursuance of this policy, the management has granted numerous concessions to Chicago and Detroit shippers, allowing them to come into Grand Rapids and the towns between Jackson and Grand Rapids on unusually favorable terms. On the other hand, Grand Rapids has been discriminated against, with the evident intention of crushing any attempt to compete with Chicago or Detroit in the territory named. Not only were Grand Rapids jobbers placed at tremendous disadvantage, but Grand Rapids buyers were treated with equal injustice. For instance, the Michigan Central charged just as much to carry a hundred pounds of produce from Hastings to Grand Rapids—a distance of 32 miles—as it did to carry the same quantity to Detroit—a distance of 137 miles. Such a policy, rigidly adhered to, could not fail to produce a feeling of opposition to the road, both on the part of Grand Rapids jobbers and buyers and receivers and shippers along the line of the road, and this feeling has taken form in the establishment of stage lines and substantial encouragement for the construction of rival railroads. Grand Rapids has managed to creep into the forbidden territory by means of cross lines and round about shipments and large and small shippers have sought to revenge the wrong by favoring lines hostile to the Michigan Central system. Whether such a "let alone policy" is bringing the management to a realizing sense of the loss sustained or whether the influence of men hostile to Grand Rapids has ceased and the management has determined to give the Second City a "fair show," THE TRADESMAN is unable to answer; but the fact remains that the policy of the Michigan Central management toward Grand Rapids is being considerably modified, in consequence of which there is rejoicing all along the line. Whether the new departure will be followed by further concessions, placing Grand Rapids on the same footing as the other roads have generously accorded her, remains to be seen.

The editor of THE TRADESMAN will be at the service of the retail trade five nights a week from now until the State convention of business men and hopes to be able to assist in the formation of the fiftieth association before the morning of September 21.

Whitehall, Montague and Saranac have formed associations since the last issue of THE TRADESMAN and Elk Rapids is on the verge of organizing.

Dr. W. J. Carter is fathering a project looking toward the establishment of a soap factory at this market with a capital stock of $50,000. A portion of the stock has already been subscribed and no difficulty is anticipated in securing pledges for the balance. THE TRADESMAN bespeaks for the enterprise that encouragement from business men which it deserves and hopes to see the organization an accomplished fact.

THE TRADESMAN cordially commends the constitution and by-laws of the White Lake Business Men's Association, published in another column this week, as a concise statement of the aims and objects of mercantile organizations. Bereft of the superfluous articles which burden too many Associations, the draft referred to is likely to serve as a model for many organizations yet unborn.

The Real Estate World is the title of a new eight-page journal, the first number of which has just been issued by Judge C. S. Edwards. The character of the venture is indicated by its title and there is every reason for thinking that the journal will be the recipient of the patronage it so richly deserves.

The Mancelona Herald showed commendable energy in getting out a regular edition the week following the conflagration at that place.

The Coming State Convention.

Interest in the coming State convention of the Business Men's Associations of Michigan seems to grow as the date of the meeting approaches. Nearly every association under the jurisdiction of the meeting has notified THE TRADESMAN that it will be represented by delegated authority and lay delegates will be present in large numbers from those towns not yet organized.

It is yet too early to outline the programme which will be observed at the convention. The gathering will be called to order at 9 a. m. on the day of meeting for the forenoon session, at which time the work of preliminary organization will be effected. An afternoon session, beginning at 2 p. m., will afford ample opportunity for the interchange of ideas and opinions, and that part of the work which is not completed can be finished at the evening meeting, after which the gathering will be tendered a spread at one of the hotels by the Retail Grocers' Association of Grand Rapids.

Among those who have promised to be present, unless unavoidably detained, are Smith Barnes, of Traverse City, and Robert M. Floyd, of Chicago. Mr. Barnes is too well known to the readers of THE TRADESMAN to necessitate an introduction at this time. Mr. Floyd is familiar with the work of the Boston organizations and has thrown all the influence he could bring to bear to render the Western associations effective and successful. Every legitimate business man will be welcomed at the convention and it is taken for granted that every one coming will be "loaded" with arguments in favor of a unified and harmonious State league.

Notes from the Various Associations.

Cal. L. Martin, of Elk Rapids, sends to THE TRADESMAN for the necessary blanks and data to proceed with the organization of an Association.

Wm. J. J. J., Secretary of the Sturgis Business Men's Association, writes as follows: "Everybody seems to be well pleased with it and I think in a short time we will be in shape to do some business."

A member of the Big Rapids Business Men's Association writes THE TRADESMAN as follows: "We now have sixty-one members in our organization. We are getting much better acquainted with each other. Some of the members have had good returns."

The Sturgis Association.

The Why and Wherefore.

From the Saranac Local.

A call has been signed by nearly every business man in town for a meeting to organize a Business Men's Protective Association. A meeting was to have been held last Monday evening, at which time E. A. Stowe, of Grand Rapids, intended to be present. Owing to this failure of Mr. Stowe meeting the engagement, the meeting was adjourned until Monday evening August 16, at which time Mr. Stowe will be present.

Thereby hangs a tale. The editor of THE TRADESMAN boarded the 6:30 p. m. train for Saranac, but the hard-hearted conductor refused to stop there, in consequence of which the engagement above referred to was unavoidably broken.

The Wayland cheese is no longer handled by W. F. Gibson & Co., of this city. Order direct from the factory, addressing all communications to I. B. Smith, proprietor.

Downfall of a Proprietary Medicine King.

All the personal effects and property of R. M. Kennedy, of Pittsburg, Pa., were sold by the sheriff last week, and the event winds up one of the most remarkable business careers ever known. He is or was the proprietor of "Carboline," the hair restorer, and the medicine known as "Seven Seals or Golden Wonder." For many years he bought large quantities of drugs in New York and is well known to the majority of the wholesale trade there. The magnitude of his real estate operations also made his name a household word in Pittsburg where he transformed farms on the outskirts into beautiful villages and erected numberless cottages to be sold on the installment plan. Had he confined his business to proprietary medicines and real estate his millions would not today be scattered to the winds. In one transaction with the U. S. Government he made a clear profit of $32,500 from a matter which experienced building contractors would not touch and who considered him foolish.

Some years ago he engaged in oil speculations and for a time was very successful. But luck changed, and on one occasion during a visit to Oil City he dropped $55,000 into the market inside of two hours. His oil investments cost him hundreds of thousands of dollars and brought about his insolvency. Personally Mr. Kennedy was a man of affable manners, a friend of everybody, taking every occasion to do a good turn to his friends and acquaintances. To-day he is living in London, England, and his friends say that not many years will elapse until "Bob" Kennedy is on top again.

He went to Pittsburg some 20 years ago and started a small place on Fifth avenue, selling cheap jewelry. He started out a corps of boys who handled prize packages of candy. This was practically his start. Next he drifted into the patent medicine business, and by his great business capacity soon got to be known as one of the patent medicine kings of the country. He was one of the leaders in the use of printers' ink, and when the money began to flow in he let it go wholesale, using not only columns but pages of advertising space in the leading papers of the country, his advertisements being a revelation to modern advertisers. His income from his preparations at one time amounted to $150,000 per annum clear. Of the money, nearly nine-tenths was thrown into advertising, and as a result the name of R. M. Kennedy has reached about every village and hamlet on this continent. When he began to realize on his returns and count his cash, Mr. Kennedy, at one stage of his career, could sign his check for a cool $1,000,000.

The Drug Clerk.

From the National Druggist.

The drug clerk sat behind the case, With his head drooping down to his knee, Wondering how long he must wait To compound the day's last recipe.

All the day long he has plodded From the case to the long counter's end, First to put up a prescription, Then to the wants of a boy attend.

No matter how busy he be In preparing the mixture for cramps, He must stop to wait on the boy Whose mother has sent him for stamps.

Then quick to the case he returns, Ever ready to be hurried away again, To sell a cure for an old tooth That has given a lady great pain.

Thus he is kept running about, Waiting on those who suffer from ills, And employing his spare moments In increasing the store's stock of pills.

When he has worked with the pestle From early morn until dark, His master then blandly tells him 'Twould be well to be grinding some bark.

And when the pill stock is full, And all the bark in the store is ground, There's always something to be done Which until then had not been found.

If he has made all the tinctures, Put up all powders he may require, He then the cases must polish, For the customers' eyes to admire.

And while he thus wonders and thinks, He is aroused from his reverie By the man who comes rushing in And wants to see the directory.

When late at night the doors are locked, And he sinks exhausted to his bed, He thinks that now he can at last Find fitful rest for his aching head.

But not so for this weary clerk, With more trials than tongue can tell, For as soon as his eyes are closed He is awakened by the night-bell.

Quickly he dons his scant attire, Ever ready to wait on the sick, But mad he is when no one's there, As it was only a bad boy's trick.

Again he trudges back to his bed, Hoping now to rest until the morn, But soon the night-bell calls him up To sell a cure for a woman's corn.

All through the night he has no rest, Being troubled by one and the other, Some want oil—some, paregoric— While others come only to bother.

Work all day and no sleep at night Is the poor drug clerk's pitiful lot, And he wonders if he'll have a rest When this dreary world's battles are fought.

Even in his sleep the drug clerk dreams Of the sign that is ever in sight, "Prescriptions carefully compounded At all hours of the day and night."

Miscellaneous Drug Notes.

Aniline oil is now employed as a local anesthetic.

Soap and honey are said to be excellent excipients for pills of camphor.

Hops picked in 1885 are selling for 40 cents per pound in New York State.

Two druggists were recently arrested in New York City for counter prescribing.

A Kentucky syndicate proposes to corner the market for free Bourbon whiskies of 1879 to 1883.

The Philadelphia Board of Pharmacy is preparing to prosecute unlicensed druggists of that city.

It is claimed that over 500 patent medicines are born annually, and that 490 do not outlive the first year.

The Committee of the National Wholesale Druggists' Association on Mutual Insurance has decided to let the matter rest for the present.

The great demand for menthol that has arisen during the last two or three years has caused a great increase in the cultivation of peppermint in Japan.

Naphthalin leaves are now introduced in Germany as a substitute for camphor in the preservation of goods from moths.

The sprinkling of powdered crystallized naphthalin on articles of apparel has many inconveniences; hence, the idea to manufacture the leaves, containing about fifty per cent. of naphthalin, so applied as to prevent it from falling off when the leaves are bent or touched by hand. Each leaf weighs about half an ounce.

The New York Peppermint Crop.

In an interview with the Buffalo Express, H. G. Hotchkiss is reported as saying:

"The average crop per year in Wayne county is between 80,000 and 100,000 pounds, and yields on the average about twenty pounds to the acre in a good season. This year the crop will be much smaller than usual, owing to the late planting, necessitated by floods which occurred early in the spring. Although there is an increase of acreage over last year the crop looks poorer than it has for many years. Seven-eighths of the whole crop in the world is raised in Wayne county, and that principally in the towns of Lyons, Arcadia, Palmyra, Sodus and Wolcott. A large proportion of the oil is exported. In 1879 the yield was the largest ever known, aggregating 150,000 pounds. This year it will be hardly one-third of that. The market is now at a standstill, owing to the uncertainty of the growing crop. Last year's crop is nearly all marketed. The average price paid for the last three months has been from $3.75 to $4 per pound for the crude oil. In 1879 it was down to $2. I have known the market to jump $1 per pound in a single day. One farmer last year brought into our refinery a common sleigh load, which, when measured, was found to be worth $4,000. You can see from this how much money there is in peppermint."

"I see you have a new doctor at your house." "Yes, my wife won't have anyone else now, since Smoothtongue made his first prescription for her." "Why, did it do her so much good? What was it?" "Well, you know, she had headache, or neuralgia, or something of that kind, and went to him for a prescription; he looked at her, gave her some stuff, but told her she would never get well until she had a new bonnet. That settled him as our family doctor for life."

Particular Where She Worked.

"I have a thoroughly competent girl who wishes a good place," said the agent of an employment office recently; but she is pretty high-strung, and wants things her own way. Will you see her?"

"Yes," said the weary looking woman in search of a servant.

The gifted and determined appears. She is as well-dressed as her would-be mistress, and has an I'm-as-good-as-you-are air about her. Before the lady can say a word the girl asks:

"How many in family?"

"Three."

"Keep a second girl?"

"No."

"Master at home for lunch?"

"No."

"Set tubs?"

"Collars and cuffs laundered out?"

"Sometimes."

"Furnace?"

"Yes."

"Who tends it?"

"The girl usually."

"Extra pay for that?"

"No, not usually?"

"Have much company?"

"No, very little."

"Any children?"

"Yes, one child."

"How old is the child?"

"Two years."

"Humph! Bad age. Boy?"

"Yes."

"Do you get the meals on wash-day?"

"I help always."

"Don't do clear starching, I reckon?"

"No, I do not."

"What kind of a range?"

"Arlington."

"Humph! Don't like it. Is there gas in the girl's room?"

"Yes."

"Carpet-matting?"

"Carpet."

"What days do I have out?"

"Thursday and Sunday afternoons."

"That all?"

"Yes."

"Well, I don't think the place would suit me. I'm a little particular where I go."

And out she flounced.

A botanist has estimated the number of seeds in some of the common weeds of the United States, as follows: Shepard's purse, 37,500 per plant; dandelion, 13,108; wild pepper grass, 18,400; wheat thief, 7,000; common thistle, 65,360; camomile, 15,930; butter weed, 8,587; rag weed, 4,366; common purslane, 388,800; common plantain, 42,300; burdock, 38,068.

It is said that the fine and aromatic tobacco of Cuba is growing scarcer every year, and that its degeneration is due to the exhaustion of the land and the abuse of Peruvian guano as a fertilizer. The United States produces yearly 200,000,000 pounds, and to make cigars 7,000,000 pounds of tobacco for fillers are bought in Cuba.

Association Work in and Around the Corners.

CANT HOOK CORNERS, Aug. 12, 1886.

Editor MICHIGAN TRADESMAN:

DEAR SIR—Just to let you know that we are alive up here, I write this.

Trade has not been up to the average of the month corresponding to the same time last year. Some think the labor troubles are to blame and some think it is the drought. I guess it is both of them combined.

This country seems to be in the fix of a man with congestion of the brain. The man has got plenty of blood, but it is in the wrong place. It has all settled in his head. We have dead loads of money in the country, but it has settled, or congested into the banks and rich men's pockets in the East. How in Sancho is it to be got out and made to circulate down at the toes and up through ankles, legs and the rest of the political economy, I don't know.

And I don't know of anybody that does know.

We had this matter up for discussion before the last meeting of the Association, but we was no nearer a solution when we got through than before.

Our Protective Association is prospering and nearly every merchant in the country belong to it now. We have made it quite sultry for the D. B.'s. We may not sell quite so many goods as before, but we have them on the shelves and not in our books.

At a pinch a grocer can eat his stock and wash himself with his soap, while the druggist can fize himself with his salts and compound cathartic pills. But as an article of sustenance, or a medicine a book account is a mighty unsatisfactory thing.

Some folks don't like it, though, for instance, Jack Scrubbs was in yesterday after his mail. He just moved back to the Corners last week. It was the first time I had seen him since his return and I said:

"Hello, Jack, back again, are you?"

"Yes, Squar, I am."

"Where have you been hanging out lately?"

"Oh, all around the sap bush. I've been living at Grumbleton, Crosscut Corners, Muskegon, Grand Rapids, Big Rapids and I even tried Kalamazoo."

"Why, bless my soul, how you have moved around."

"Yes, and its all on account of these confounded mercantile piratical, robber associations, too."

"What! Ain't you a little off your burr, Jack? what have they got to do with you, I should like to know?"

"They have got lots to do with me—lots and slathers. They have a tendency to distrust confidence and that boutiful trust in human nature, that enables a fellow to run a grocer bill."

"Well, yes, as you say, Jack, the tendency may be that way."

"Of course it is. Why, I used ter get along tip top, when I struck a new town, till I got in debt all around among the groceries, dry goods stores and drug shops, and then all I had to do was to skip out for pasters new, as the poet says, and do it over again. But now, darn me, if I can get any credit at all. Everywhere I went, that blamed old bill of Bilsons and that old outlawed account of Dr. Kobb's starred me in in the face."

"That was pretty tough," says I, "but if you had paid these old bills, your name would not have got onto the D. B. list."

"Of course not, but, thunderation, how did I know they was goin to git up such a robber scheme?"

I tried changing my name to Barkins at Muskegon, but some chap came along and give me away while I was trying to get my cheek put up for a small bill of groceries. I intended to pay the grocer, too, so you needn't grin, old Snooks."

"Oh yes, I don't doubt it," says I. "I know how the racket is worked; you pay the first two or three little bills, so to get a bigger crack at the man next time."

Stubbs went away mad, saying that no one in the Association should "get any of his money."

At our last meeting, the question of forming a State Congress of mercantile associations was brought up. Why not have one? Now-a-days everything has a Congress. The base-ballists, the bee-keepers, the brewers, the bakers, spiritualists, womans-rightists, pokerists, seven-upists and so on ad infinitum by salutum conglomeratum. So I don't see why we should not. If we can succeed in getting the whole State into one compact hominious combination, I think a lot of fellows that I know of will have to go to work at something to make a living, instead of getting it on trust.

The only thing, seems to me, is the question whether it is best to start it now, or wait until there are more local associations to co-operate. It might be better to wait until next winter, perhaps, seeing that many new associations are starting this summer.

One thing I am not in favor of, and that is in each line of business having a separate Congress. We don't need a hardware congress, a druggists congress, a crockery dealers congress, and so on. What we want is a congress of all the mercantile interests of the State for the protection of trade in general and for the spread of that mutual knowledge of which each one can pick up a little and transmit it to the general headquarters.

Boys, lets extend the hands of friendship and brotherhood all over Michigan.

Yours fraternally,

SOLIMAN SNOOKS,

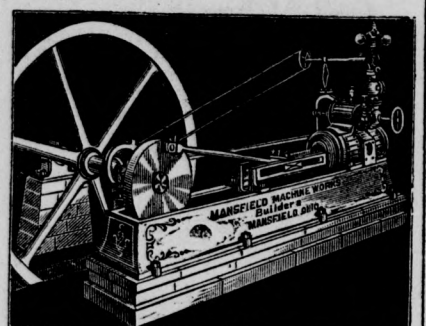

G. D., P. M. and J. P.

LATER—Just as I was mailing this letter, I received THE TRADESMAN with the call for a State convention at Grand Rapids on September 21th. You can bet your hat old Sol. will be on hand bright and early.

BUSINESS LAW.

Brief Digests of Recent Decisions in Courts of Last Resort.

DISMISSAL OF EMPLOYEE.

The English Court of Appeal has affirmed the decision of the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice in the case of Pearce vs. Foster, holding that a commercial firm could discharge their principal clerk for speculating in stocks.

SALE OF OLEOMARGARINE.

Upon an indictment for the selling or offering for sale of oleomargarine unmarked, the Supreme Court of Oregon lately held it was not necessary to prove any overt act of offering it for sale in an unidentified condition, but that the mere possession of it and placing it in a store with other articles held for sale was sufficient to warrant a jury in finding that the same was offered for sale.

FRAUD ON CREDITORS—PURCHASE—NOTICE.

Where an insolvent and failing merchant makes a sale of his stock of goods with the purpose of defrauding his creditors, and the purchaser has no notice, actual or constructive, of the fraud at the time of the purchase, but subsequently, and before the payment of the entire consideration of the purchase has actual notice of the fraud, he can only be protected to the extent of the money actually paid or the security or property actually appropriated by way of payment before notice. So held by the Supreme Court of Kansas.

AGREEMENT RELATING TO UNPATENTED INVENTION.

A partner persuaded his copartner to agree to pay the expenses of experiments to perfect an invention made by a third person in consideration of a share in the results. The firm paid the expenses of the experiments, and afterward the first-mentioned partner and the inventor took out a patent for the invention in their joint names to the exclusion of the other partner. The New York Court of Appeals held that the copartner could maintain an action to compel his associate to carry out the agreement. The court further held that the agreement was not void under the United States statute requiring every patent or any interest therein to be assigned by an instrument in writing on the ground that the agreement related to an inchoate invention not perfected or patentable at the time the agreement was made.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENT.

The following instrument was lately construed by the Supreme Court of Vermont, viz: "Two years from date for value received I promise to pay J. S. King or bearer one ounce of gold." The court held that this was not a negotiable note, but a simple contract for the delivery of merchandise. The court said: Although it has long been settled in this State that a written contract having the usual form of a promissory note, but payable in some specific article, may be treated as a promissory note as to the form of declaring upon it, and the necessity of proof of consideration, and in some other respects yet such an instrument is not negotiable because not payable in money. * * * The instrument declared upon was not even a promise to pay a given sum in specific articles. It stands for consideration, upon the question of the sufficiency of the declaration, under the demurrer thereto, as though it were a promise to pay one bushel of wheat. It is but a promise to pay, that is deliver, a certain article of merchandise, definite in amount. Because gold enters into the composition of money we cannot assume that an "ounce of gold" is money, or that it has a fixed and unvarying value. The contract in question lacks, not only the quality of negotiability, but certainty and precision as to the amount to be paid. Upon failure to perform, there would be no definite specified sum due, as in case of a promissory note.

"Modest" Knights.

George Frederic Parsons in Atlantic Monthly. What success by the Knights of Labor, as at present led and organized, would mean for the public generally may perhaps be conjectured pretty accurately from current events. In Lynn, Mass., for example, the Knights undertook to compel a whole class of tradesmen to close their stores at six o'clock in the evening. The majority—to their discredit, be it said—abjectly submitted to this impudent command. They had their reward. The Knights naturally proceeded further. They demanded next that the tradesmen submit their tariffs of retail prices, to the end that their profits should be regulated. Fortunately, one man in Lynn, George Tarbox, was an old-fashioned American citizen. He knew his rights, "and, knowing, dared maintain." He refused to obey the early-closing orders of the Knights of Labor. They threatened him with the boycott. He appealed to the public. The latter promptly responded, and the feeble folk who had bowed their necks to the yoke of the new tyrant gathered courage to rebel against the demand for the regulation of their price-list. The lesson of this episode is important.

*Owing to the diminishing supply of white oak contiguous to the Great Lakes for ship-building purposes, maple and beech, or some other kinds of hardwood, will have to be used as a substitute for oak.

Frobach has discovered a method of making sugar without crushing or pressing the canes. The cane is cut into strips and the water is extracted by alcoholic vapor, which leaves the saccharine to be dissolved into liquid. The alcohol and sugar are filtered out by means of lime and chalk. It is claimed that this process of manufacture will add one-third to the production over and above any process now in use.

And Dodge's Patent Wood Split Pulley. Large stock kept on hand. Send for sample Pulley and become convinced of their superiority.
