treatment was equally successful. The addition of two stories to the height of the Cooper Institute a few years since made the weight to be sustained by the lower construction too great, so that it has been necessary to make alterations and repairs to the extent of a quarter of a million. Instead of employing the "vibratory" principle which the latter company claim to control, Mr. Hopkins employs the "make and break contact" principle, as in ordinary telegraphy, a positive break being caused by each vibration of the voice in speaking. The great advantage this system has over the Bell is the ability of transmitting effectively on lines of 1,000 miles and upwards.

The Power of the Boycott. From the New York Sun.

The cigar manufacturers, Messrs. Straiday after a lockout of about a month, and therefore their great force of operatives are now able once more to earn their living. The remerkable thing about this case is that the factory was not closed because of goods of his principal. He is merely emdullness of trade or dissatisfaction among the workmen. "We had employment all when he has affected such sale he is functus along for our people," says Mr. Storm. "Out of two thousand people employed by the firm," writes the man who was mainly responsible for the lockout, "not three persons could find fault with the treatment of their employers."

The factory stopped work because the labor organization to which the operatives belonged had boycotted the goods of the firm in the New England States, and thus seriously interfered with its business. Messrs. Straiton & Storm, as a measure of self-defense, decided to lock out their workmen until the boycott against the common interests of employers and employed was removed; and at last it is removed through the exertions of the locked out operatives, who have lost in wages because of it about forty thousand dollars.

The managers of the labor union find after investigation that the boycott of the tobacco manufacturers was all a mistakethat it "was put on their goods without any cause;" and now the mistake is to be corrected, after it has caused a loss to the workmen of forty thousand dollars and to their employers of very much more, perhaps. But boycotts where the union has made no them are going on all the time.

A factor is ton & Storm, reopened their factory on Mon- employed either by a foreign or home merchant, or other person, and is intrusted with the possession and apparent ownership of the goods to be sold by him for his principal. A broker has not the custody of the powered to effect the contract of sale, and officio. A factor is distinguished from a broker by being intrusted by others with the possession and disposal of goods. A broker is employed merely in the negotiation of mercantile contracts. He is not intrusted with the possession of goods, and does not act in his own name. A merchandise broker is a commercial agent who makes sales or purchases for others. His business is to make contracts to be executed by other people. He receives no consignments, has no custody of the goods, no property in them, no lien upon them, and as a general rule never sees them. The appellant's business is altogether a different business from this. He is what is called in common parlance a produce commission merchant. That is, he is a factor employed to sell products which are sent to him for sale, with which he deals as if he were the owner, in which he has a special property, and for which he may maintain replevin and trover, or if sold, an action for the price."

THE "RED STREAK."

Although upwards of 200 letters of inquiry were sent out by THE TRADESMAN, asking for information respecting the "red published as they are received, from week pany furnished the dry goods. to week. Opinions as to the cause of the blight differ, but the majority-including Prof. Beal, an established authority on the subject-seem to favor the idea that the seed is "running out" and that it is not advisable to longer attempt to raise Late Rose potatoes. Prof. Beal's letter is peculiarly suggestive and the information he imparts will be particularly appreciated at this time. The readiness with which he replies to all questions brought to his notice-and the avidity with which other experts in the same institution hold themselves in readiness to assist in the promulgation of correct ideas-serve to assure the tax-payers of the State of the value of the Agricultural College and the experimental knowledge incidental thereto.

Notwithstanding the attempt of several contributors to make it appear that the loss incident to the "red streak" is unimportant. it is nevertheless a fact that the defect has killed the shipping demand for the Late Rose, thus rendering it necessary to consume the crop at home. In localities where the local demand is small, the only course left for the farmer to pursue is to feed his crop to his stock, and this is being done in hundreds of instances. Based on a more thorough knowledge of the extent of the blight, THE TRADESMAN is prepared to maintain that its recent estimate of the loss to the shippers and growers of the State at $50,000 was only about half the real damage, which will undoubtedly exceed $100,-

Regarding the healthfulness of the potato, THE TRADESMAN is not yet prepared to speak. A local health officer claims that several severe cases of diphtheria are directly traceable to the use of "red streak" potatoes, and THE TRADESMAN has referred the matter to the State Board of Health, which body will make a thorough investigation of the subject, and report in accordance with ascertained results.

THE TRADESMAN will continue the discussion of this subject for some time to come, and earnestly solicits the opinion of Drury in the grocery business at Coldwater. ness early in January. If the number of letters of inquiry THE TRADESMAN is receiving from various parts movement is moving forward with a clean ling. sweep which is bound to carry everything have already been formed, good results are noted almost from the beginning. Every member of the Grand Rapids Association has already received sufficient returns to remunerate him for the outlay of time and money involved in a year's membership.

The action taken by the Retail Grocers' Association of Grand Rapids at the last meeting, providing for the exchange of delinquent debtor lists with other associations publishing the same, serves to show the dead-beat that he will be shown no more mercy than he has exhibited toward his creditor. By a system of exchanging lists, the delinquent can be tracked from town to town and made to pay the penalty rightly has removed his stock to New Era, where attaching his nefarious practices. The Lord High Executioner's List. Those who have seen the "Mikado" will appreciate the patness of the following paraphrase of the Lord High Executioner's song:

As some day it may happen that a victim must be found
For some blund'ring pharmacist,
I have another list
Of pharmaceutical offenders who might well
be underground:
Who never would be missed,
Who never would be missed.

There is our enemy the scalper, who sells not trums below cost, And sells adulterated drugs to make up what And sells adulterated drugs to make up what he's lost;
Whose store is filled with placards and his windows filled with bills,
Saying "Sarsaparilla 60 cents," a dime for "Liver Pills."
He's show bottles in his show window, and his sign reads "Pharmacist;"
But he never would be missed,
I'm sure he'd not be missed.

gelatin-coat pills;
I have them on the list,
I have them on the list.
They coat you well with "taffy," but they put it in the pills;
And they never would be missed,
I'm sure they'd not be missed.

And the wise young man from Yorkville, with And the wise young man from Yorkvine, with a literary bent,
Whose wisdom, like his quinine, sells "two grains for a cent;"
And the Wolff in Sheep's attire, who invades the Quaker camp,
And writes columns for the Rundschau while he burns the midnight lamp;
And that learned German exile who is now a journalist:

journalist; They'd none of them be missed, I'm sure they'd not be missed. There's a lot of other fellows, but they may be here to night,

So perhaps I'd best desist,
Though I have them on the list.
But one of you can wink at me if you think I am not right,
And if they will be missed,
I'll let them all exist.

There's the isinglass importer, who is down on Uncle Sam, And never takes the customs oath but what he says a d—n;
And the man who tells you peppermint is ruined by the frost.
Or that the drouth has withered it, and all the or that the drouth has withered it, and an the crop is lost;
And the man who corners cubebs, and swears that none exists;
Perhaps they might be missed,
But I don't think they'd be missed.

There's the Deutscher apotheker who plays the violin;
The punning pharmacist,
I have him on the list;
And the N. R. D. exponent who strives to bring you in; He'd probably be missed; In fact, they'd both be missed.

And the men who in the summer open drug stores by the sea,
And for a draught to "cool your coppers" have the nerve to charge a "V;"
And the men who make tooth powder, and And the make toold power, and those who make cologne,
And when you ask for Lubin's, begin to praise their own:
And the druggist politician, who's likewise a planist;
Do you think they'd be missed?
I'm sure they'd not be missed.

The Trsvaling Man.

His coat was fashionably cut,
And buttoned to the chin,
To keep the snow-storm from his throat,
And the caloric in.
His hat was of the latest mode,
His castors they were tan;
His sample case was in his hand;
He was a traveling man.

The snow fell fast upon the road,
The night was chill and wild;
His thoughts were not upon the storm,
But on his wife and child:
When storms abound and crowd you most,
You turn your thoughts who can
To those at the domestic hearth,
As did this traveling man As did this traveling man.

His form was cold, but he felt not
The storm's increasing chill.
How is my wife? How is my child?
Off, are they well, or ill?
He thought not of the stormy night,
Nor of the morrow's plan;
In fact, he was a typical Commercial Traveling Man.

All of his thoughts, by day or night,
Were on his wife and child.
How happy they, when pa at home,
Fondly on him they smiled.
Haste, haste the time; hurry the day;
Quick, help me, so I can Put down the grip and cease to be
A weary Traveling Man.

Knights of the Road. The good knight of the road to-day
On old tradition tramples.
His pistols he has put away,
Or carries them for samples.
Dame Fortune's found in wilds no more;
His ways have changed to suit her.
Black Bess has been discarded for
A "thousand mile commuter."

No more he stops the public coach,
No lady's chair he rifles.
He does not stoop to purse or brooch,
He's far above such trifles.
With sample trunk well loaded down
He'sallies forth to plunder.
Attacks his enemy in town
And skins him worse than thunder.

A Story with a Moral.

Meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association of Grand Rapids was held at THE TRADESMAN office on Tuesday evening, December 15, about twenty members being in attendance. Applications for membership were received from Geo. T. Bemis, Holland & Hartman, Albert W. Bemis and Leonard Kipp, all of whom were elected members of the Association.

Jos. H. Terrill was elected an honorary member of the Association. The Committee on Entertainment was given until the next regular meeting to pre-

President Herrick requested the members to give more attention to the dead-beat department. Comparatively few lists have been sent in, which is probably due more to unintentional neglect than to a lack of ap preciation of the merits of the system. He related some of the benefits which are sure to follow a thorough prosecution of the dead-beat crusade, and expressed the hope that no member would ignore a question which involves his best interests.

E. A. Stowe presented the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved-That it is the sense of this Association that the butchers of Grand Rapids can better subserve their own interests by maintaining their present organization and not identifying themselves with this Association; but that the term "buying and selling groceries at retail" be so construed as the students of the selection of the select as to include those dealers in fish who also handle canned goods and other articles carried in stock by retail grocers.

The resolution was then adopted and F. J. Dettenthaler was elected a member of the Association.

E. A. Stowe then offered the following resolution, which was adopted: Resolved-That we extend the hand of good fellowship to the butchers' association of this city and the various retail organiza-tions throughout the State, and that we request the exchange of dead-beat lists with all organizations publishing the same.

A. J. Elliott moved the appointment of a The resolution was adopted and the President appointed as such committee Messrs.

Elliott, DeJager and Stowe. The Treasurer reported $70.45 on hand. The Association then adjourned to meet Tuesday evening, January 5.

Hope we will get better which caused it. information through THE TRADESMAN.

Bert Tinkler, Hastings-I have seen but one load of Rose potatoes which were not streaked with red this season, and I think the loss to Barry county farmers alone will reach $5,000. I bought considerable quantities of potatoes at a shilling a bushel, and thought I had a good thing, but I would like to find a purchaser now at ten cents. I think the defect is due to the fact that the potato is "running out," although I am unable to explain the process.

Chas. W. Garfield, Grand Rapids-The whole matter is a mystery to me. It is something that must be considered by men of science and they are the only persons who will be able to explain the phenomenon -and maybe they will fail to find the cause.

Frank J. Lamb, Grand Rapids-Your request for my opinion as to the cause of the hand and in reply will state that I think it is the merchant and his customers. simply and naturally a degeneracy of the species, caused entirely by the successive and constant planting of the one kind of seed in the same kind of soil year after year. That good old variety, so well and favorably known as the Peachblow, degenerated and completely exhausted itself in a similar though less disastrous manner, and it may be truly said that of all such is the true course of nature! To those interested in the growing and handling of potatoes—and they have become one of the most important factors of commerce—I cannot recommend too strongly the necessity of making the most radical changes in regard to their seeding and soiling. For instance, when one has been planting Rose year after year let him try Burbanks a season or two, and when on clay and vice versa. The farmers in the and constant planting of the one kind of the soil is sandy let him try the seed raised on clay and vice versa. The farmers in the South get their seed from the North, and if the reverse were the case I think we might reasonably hope for some decided improvements in both the quality and quantity, over the present system.

Jas. Richardson, St. Johns-In regard to Late Rose potatoes, I have been talking with some of the farmers about it and they think the cause is a second growth, on account of too much rain about the time they were

Dr. Geo. W. Crouter, Charlevoix-My reply to the "Late Rose Potato" query would not be as good as one of our farmers. I have, therefore, turned your card over to Hon. J. S. Dixon, who will answer intelligently. My answer would be that the red streak is found in about 50 per cent. of the Late Rose, and that the loss will be very small, probably not more than 5 per cent. It seems to be due to a lack of vitality in the seed, as the potato matured very slow. The crop is not satisfactory and the seed is evidently running out.

Geo W. Woodward, Shelby-Answering your card of the 10th, I have to say there is not much of the red streak in Rose potatoes here. I have had large experience in growing and handling Rose potatoes. The reddish look on the outside and red streak inside are seen only in the Late Rose. In my judgment, gained from observation and comparis the direct result of late planting and imperfect seed, as small, unripe tubers, planted on new land, seem to cause a red appearance also. I think if farmers would plant only good-sized potatoes that were ripe, cutting a thin slice from the seed end and throw it away, so as to use only large, healthy eyes from the body and stem end, and plant as early as during the month of and plant as early as during the month of May on good clover sod, there would be no more talk of "seed running out."

W. T. Long, Vicksburg-I recently clipped an item from your paper entitled "Trouble in the Potato Market," complaining of the way dealers in the Eastern and Southern markets treat local potato shippers; but you say nothing of the Chicago market. Now, as I am a shipper, I would like to enquire if any shipper has had trouble with his cars of potatoes falling short in the Chicago market? I have shipped a good many cars into Chicago this fall and they invariably Best Family Newspaper published in Chifall short from thirty to 130 bushels to the cago for car. I sent a man over to Chicago to investigate the trouble and he reports that the commission merchants sell all the potatoes this fall subject to sorting and that they go into a car, take out the best and largest, throwing the remainder on the ground. He sented, together with market reports, stories, says potatoes lay around the railway tracks sketches, and numerous items. Send for in Chicago two feet deep, and that the scalpers are hauling them off free of charge. Why should they quote them at 50 and 55 cents and then shrink them one-third, if only worth 35 to 40 cents? I say, quote them at this price and sell them on their merits. I think it a steal. Le Bar & Cornwell, Cadillac-We are not aware that the red streak you refer to is of any damage to the potatoes, only in looks, as we are using them ourselves and cannot see as it hurts them in the least.

THE "RED STREAK."

[Concluded from 5th page.] D. C. Leach, Traverse City-I am not able to give any information in regard to

"red streak" in Late Rose potatoes. Jas. Campbell, Westwood-Have heard very little about red streak in Late Rose potatoes and have made no enquiries, so do not know to what extent it exists in this locality. Nor have I any idea as to the cause. I bought two or three car loads last fall. The party for whom I bought did not object to Late Rose, nordid he say anything about red streaks.

John Giles, Lowell-The red streak struck four-fifths of the Rose in this vicinity. It is generally attributed to the potato running out.

M. C. Russell, Grand Rapids-The disease, or red streak, which has this season so affected our Rose potatoes as to render that variety unpopular in many markets and effected a loss in value of fully ten cents per bushel in most markets, is a matter about which there is considerable debate and variety of opinion. Many think the chief cause to be the replanting of the seed year after year and consequent exhaustion of the original virtues and fine qualities of the tuber. While the above may be one of the prime causes of the disease, I think a very important one to be the planting of small potatoes continuously, and also that the past season has been an unfavorable one for potatoes in this State. As proof of the latter idea, I wish to say that in several other states the Rose potato is comparatively free from these red streaks, and commands in Philadelphia and other markets from ten to fifteen cents per bushel more than our Michigan Rose. If our Rose is running out here why is it not in other states where it has been raised as long as here? I have found this red streak in other varieties beside the Rose. I think the chief cause is an unfavorable season in this State. However, I advise potato raisers to secure pure Rose seed from Maine or some other Eastern State, as good results often follow the changing of seed from one state to another.

cultural College, Lansing-I have made some inquiry and studied potatoes some. Red streaks pervade the potatoes here and render them unsalable. When boiled, they Orleans yellows have put in an appearance crack before done, and come to pieces a good deal, but the red streaks still show and other parts of the potato look yellow and watery. The taste is not bad. On splitting a tuber, not far from the margin, in irregular lines is the outlines or outside of a reddish streak. Inside of this throughout some tubers we find more or less red. At the eyes the streak extends to the surface. This marginal line of red is along what would be the outside of the pith of a potato-for a potato is a real stem and has a part representing pith, one part jointly representing higher, on account of a great scarcity, a still the wood, and one the bark, including a further advance in the price of the manufaccorky layer outside. The potatoes seen in this locality are more or less decayed this year. On looking at a thin portion of the red streak under a magnifying power of 500 and active. Lemons are a shade lower, with diameters, we see some of the cells contain a good demand for this season of the year. granular particles of a reddish brown color. These cells contain less starch than some of the others, and some of the starch grains are more or less decomposed. Bacteria were also seen in large numbers, indicating incip- plaint against his competitors, and referring ient decay in several specimens examined. the editor to Revenue Collector Davis. You ask what is the matter? I reply the Rose red has "struck in!" perhaps. The Peirce made no specific complaint against old Meshaunak had faint purple streaks inside. The old Merino had red streaks ty for violating the revenue laws, but that more or less apparent, especially towards the he asserted that others at Moline beside last of its prominent use for food.

This has been a bad year for potatoes, and they show their faults. Some years ago, I stituted an investigation which resulted in experimented with some 350 sorts of potatoes the fining of the parties Peirce was aiming for some years, and with our ordinary at. The difference between The Tradestreatment many of them dwindled and be- MAN's statement and the fact of the matcame worthless, some failing entirely to pro- ter is the same as the difference between duce a single tuber.

Most likely, with plenty of potash and vegetable mould, we might have kept them placed by others. If some one has good nice edible potatoes—and no others are fit for planting-he may treat them just right and keep the Rose some years longer; but from Arizona and find a sharp purple streak inside the skin. The inside is white. The tire: corky layer is very thick.

The potato crop is short in Minnesota, and many Michigan potatoes are finding their way thither.

Attention is called to the advertisement of the Chicago Weekly Herald, which is admitted to be one of the largest and best newspapers ever issued for one dollar per year.

The flour mill burned at the late great fire in Mishawaka, Ind., not far from the Michigan State line, was built in 1836 by one Taylor, an Englishman, and was the first that ever turned water in the St. Joseph river.

OUT AROUND.

News and Gossip Furnished by Our Own Correspondents.

Big Rapids.

About two years ago J. W. Fearns sold Henry Flynn his general stock of goods, about $7,000, at 100 cents on the dollar, which was dear at 50 cents. Aside from groceries the stock consisted of crockery, mostly seconds and culls, clothing, hats and caps, boots and shoes, dry goods, millinery goods and auction goods. Flynn has been getting hard up, Fearns holding a contract on the stock for his interest, which now is about $800. W. D. Robinson & Co., of Detroit, have a claim of $1,241, and have a second mortgage and John Caulfield has a first mortgage. About a week ago he took possession of the stock and has placed a receiver in the store. The stock and fixtures not covered by Fearns' claim invoiced some $1,200, with liabilities about the same, lying between Robinson and Caulfield, be sides some small debts. Flynn has some $1,800 in accounts on his books, which are not collectible, although he will probably not collectible, although he will probably collect some of them in time. Caulfield's representative asserts that it was only a question of time—that Flynn couldn't possibly pull through, as he couldn't very well pay a dollar when he hadn't but fifty cents with which to pay it with. Flynn is a very honorable man and would like to pay 100 cents, but can't possibly do it. He asked Caulfield to do just what he is doing and will do all that lies in his power to make things right. things right.

J. Gilligan, of Otisville, has moved to Flushing, and goes into the hotel business.

Petoskev.

The article on the Van Leuvens in THE TRADESMAN of last week struck a responsive chord in the heart of every honest citizen of Petoskey. Those members of the Van Leuven family who have sojourned in Northern Michigan—and four or five persons have figured as the head of the busisons have figured as the fleat of the business at this place within a period of five years—have impressed our people as decidedly shady persons—men whom honest people generally would do well to give a wide berth. Cass Van Leuven came to Petoskey from Milford in 1879 and engaged in business in his own name. In 1882 he gave four chattel mortgages to his four principal creditors, aggregating $5,160.88, and subsequently sold out to a relative, leaving the remainder of his creditors in the lurch. F. Z. Van Leuven, an uncle to Cass, bid in the mortgages and for a time appeared as the nominal owner. Then the property passed into the hands of a cousin, Niram U. Van Leuven, who evaluated the business without marked success for a time and then sold out to the wife of Cass Van Leuven, Mrs. M. J. Van Leuven. Of the events of th past month The Tradesman has already informed its readers. Manager Cass Val Leuven has been buying as many goods a possible—more, in fact, than the legitimat demands of trade would warrant. Then hissued the following chattel mortgages, filing them in the order named: Mrs. J. J. Van Leuven, $2,040; Miss Myra Millard $500; Edson, Moore & Co., $3,946; A. S. Gage & Co., $2,000. Men who know Van Leuven, and those who are acquainted with the peculiarity of his family, are free to as the peculiarity of his family, are free to a sert that the failure is the most delibera steal ever consummated in Petoskey.

"Large and Deserved Success."

From the American Furniture Gazette. THE MICHIGAN TRADESMAN, of Gra-Rapids, under the able direction of Mr. A. Stowe, has now large and deserved st cess. It has proven of marked benefit the commercial interests of Grand Rapid and has been correspondingly supported the live merchants of that city. The grow of THE TRADESMAN'S advertising patrona frequently compels an enlargement to si teen pages, making it the largest comme cial paper published in Michigan, as well one of the ablest and best edited. M Stowe, who is a conscientious and har working journalist, is to be congratulat upon the success of his paper.

Hardware Notes.

The Egyptian hoe was made of wood. The handle was about three feet long and was mortised to the blade and tied into the same by thongs.

Percussion caps were invented by Joshua Shaw in 1814, and a percussion lock was patented some eight years later. They were not adopted by the United States army until Double-bitted axes are found in the Indian mounds all over the country. They are made with a groove around the center for lashing onto the handle, with a hole for inserting the helve and with a socket for the same purpose. The double-bitted form was used also by the Scythians and Egyptians. and seems to have been the oldest form of this useful tool.

According to the regulations of the American Master Carbuilders' Association the distance between the parallel sides of a bolthead and a nut for a rough bolt should be equal to one and a half diameters of the bolt plus one-eighth of an inch. The thickness of the head should be equal to one-half the distance between their parallel sides. The thickness of the nut should equal the diameter of the bolt. For a finished bolt the thickness of the head should be the same as that of the nut. The distance between the parallel sides of a bolthead and nut, and the thickness of the nut should be one-sixteenth of an inch less for finished work than for rough.

Are Gas Stoves Unhealthy? From the Sanitary News.

A very convenient article of housekeeping has just been attacked in this country and in England. It is claimed by those who write on the subject that the burning of coa oil and gasoline in the stoves arranged fo cooking liberates large volumes of carbon dioxide gas, the removal of which from the kitchen atmosphere is not provided for. In England, Mr. Henry Masters attacks the ordinary gas stoves for the same reason. It is undoubtedly true that the burning of gas or oil stoves liberates more carbon dioxide than is the case with apparatus for illumination, and while all houses are poorly enough ventilated, the addition of this large quantity of the dangerous gas is undesirable and unhealthy to persons who are so unfortunate as to be obliged to endure the atmosphere of kitchens. There is another source of danger from the same cause in the operation of gas engines in the same room with operatives, without some means of hooding and carrying away the products of combustion. The odor of burnt gas is always strongly noticeable in an apartment where a strongly noticeable in an apartment where a Morse's Taper Shank dis Morse's Taper Shank dis gas engine is in operation. She was the belle of Stryker flat, And he the village grocer; They got so close together that They couldn't set no closer.

The birds were singin' in the tree An' they was sparkin' under; The kiss he gin her startled me— "Twas like a clap o' thunder.

He slipped his arm aroun' her waist An' sez to her: "I'm thinkin Them cheeks o' yourn is cherry paste— Sez she, "You've been a drinkin'."

"Them frizzes, too"—he wiper his eyes— "Is some new-fangled caper. The kind I see 'em advertise In the religious paper."

She bit her lip till it was blue, It must ha' raised a blister, Then sez: "I hain't no worse'n you-You sand your sugar, mister."

A Middleville Merchant on the Cartage

Question. MIDDLEVILLE, Dec. 21, 1885.

Editor Michigan Tradesman DEAR SIR-Is it right? Is it just? Is it other questions of like import continue to the economy of its purchase." receive a bill of goods, and glancing at the crowd themselves on my mind every time I bottom the ominous word "Cartage" meets the eye with a steady stare that would do justice to the dusky native who stands guard in front of some of the tobacco stores.

Again I would ask, why is it there? Are not the wholesale men of Grand Rapids doing well enough so they can afford to deliver their own goods to the depot the same as other dealers do? Let us see for a moment. Let us compare the wholesale trade of today with that of ten years ago. In 1875 Grand Rapids contained four wholesale Hazeltine, Perkins & Co. houses with a capital of about $100,000. To-day what have we? Nine houses representing about $500,000. Ten years ago their annual sales were $800,000. In 1884 they reached the enormous figures of $2,925,000, an increase that few cities can could and none eyed. This is the pride equal and none excel. This is the pride and boast of the jobbing trade of Grand Rapids. Does this look as though the jobbing business was on the decline, and needed this little prop, "Cartage," to sustain it?

Again, let us look at the financial condition of the men engaged in the jobbing trade Again, let us look at the financial condiand compare their past and present condition with that of the retailer, even of their own city, surrounded as it is by the best of farming country and teeming with manufacturing interests which cannot but make her one of the finest cities in the State for JEWELER the retail merchant. There is not a jobber in Grand Rapids who commenced ten years ago, but has accumulated a nice competency, unless, perchance, he has squandered it in drinking or gambling; even though they GRAND RAPIDS, have been obliged to pay large salaries, with a long list of expenses attached that would sink the best retail house in Grand Rapids.

What can we say for the retail trade of Grand Rapids? Look them over for a moment and find the successful ones-those who have been able to accumulate some thing for their old age. They are not young men, yet in the prime of life, but men whose gray hairs show a life of toil-men who commenced years ago and by close application to business and strict economy have been able to lay by a small share of this world's goods. If this is the condition of the retail merchant in one of the best business centers, how fares the one doing business in some country town, where he has to pay freight and cartage from the depot to his place of business? For exam-John Jones is doing business in some town twenty-five or thirty miles from Grand Rapids. He sends for a small bill of goods, say five barrels of oil, two barrels of sugar and enough other stuff to make $100 worth of goods. What does it cost him to get them laid down?

Making a total of 4 per cent. on a bill of $100. Now, add to this 1 per cent. for cartage to the depot and you have 5 per cent. to add to the first cost of the goods. Is it any wonder that we rebel against this last act of the jobber, against which we have no redress unless we quit dealing with them, which I have no doubt many will do rather than submit?

I would like to hear from the jobber giving his reasons for the present combination. Is the jobber less able to deliver his goods to the depot than the retailer is to deliver his in small parcels free anywhere within the corporation?

Let us hear from the other side.

Yours Respectfully, E. C. WHITNEY.
