ACADEMIC COSTUME

The pageantry and color at commencement exercises reveal a record of academic achievement of the various individuals taking part in the exercises. The following brief description is given so that the audience may more readily interpret such achievement.

In 1895, the Intercollegiate Commission, a group of leading American educators, met at Columbia University to draft a code which would serve to regulate the design of gowns and hoods indicating the various degrees as well as the colors to indicate the various faculties. This code has been adopted by most of the colleges and universities in America and its use has made identification of scholastic honors an immediate activity.

Three types of gowns are indicated by the code. Those worn by the bachelors have long, pointed sleeves. Those worn by masters have long, closed sleeves with the arc of a circle near the bottom. Doctor's gowns are faced with velvet. The sleeves are full, round and open with three bars of velvet on each sleeve. The velvet facing of bars on the sleeves may be black or the same color as the binding of the hood.

Hoods are made of material identical with the gown and are lined in the official academic color of the institution conferring the degree. If the institution has more than one color, the chevron is used to introduce the second color. Colored velvet or velveteen binds the hoods and indicates the department or faculty to which the degree pertains.

Historical associations of color have been continued to signify the various faculties. Arts and letters can be recognized by the white, taken from the traditional white fur trimming of the Oxford and Cambridge Bachelor of Arts hoods. Red, long traditional of the church, indicates theology. The royal purple of the King's court signifies law. The green of medicinal herbs immediately identifies a medical degree. Philosophy is signified by the color of wisdom and truth, blue. Because through research untold wealth has been released to the world, science is identified by golden yellow. Oxford pink indicates music, and russet brown, the color of dress worn by ancient English foresters, indicates forestry.

The color of the velvet of the hood is distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains. For example, the trimming for the degree of Master of Science in Agriculture should be maize, representing agriculture, rather than golden yellow, representing science.

At Michigan State University, it is customary to identify the candidates graduating from the different departments of study by tassels of the official department color as established by the Intercollegiate Code.

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

Michigan State University, one of the leading land-grant universities and the first agricultural college in America, strives for excellence in affording liberal and practical education for its students in a broad range of human endeavor.

MSU also serves people of the state, nation and world through its numerous research, extension and international programs.

Now in its 123rd year, Michigan State University has grown from three buildings and six faculty members to one of the largest universities in the nation. It has more than 3,400 faculty engaged in teaching, research and public service, 386 campus buildings, and more than 5,100 acres of land of which 2,010 acres are in existing or planned campus development.

Today, almost 44,000 students attend the University at East Lansing. About 85 percent are from Michigan; the remainder includes more than 1,200 foreign students from 86 countries.

Founded in 1855 to educate youth for the major occupation of that day — farming — MSU has broadened its offerings to meet the educational needs of today. The University now has a Graduate School and 17 colleges — Agriculture and Natural Resources, Arts and Letters, Business, Communication Arts and Sciences, Education, Engineering, Human Ecology, Human Medicine, James Madison, Justin S. Morrill, Lyman J. Briggs, Natural Science, Osteopathic Medicine, Social Science, University College, Urban Development, and Veterinary Medicine. Some 200 programs of instruction are available to undergraduates; 76 departments offer graduate studies.

MSU is unique nationally in that the Colleges of Human Medicine, Osteopathic Medicine, and Veterinary Medicine are located on the single campus.

The Honors College, which enables superior undergraduate students to waive normal graduation requirements and undertake individual programs, attracts many of the nation's finest young scholars. Michigan State University also is a prominent sponsor of the National Merit Scholarship Program, comprised of an unusually select group of scholars.

One of the many innovations in higher education made by Michigan State University is its system of academic-residence halls. Incorporation of classrooms and faculty offices with living, dining and recreational facilities has given these giant dormitories a stimulating academic environment. Each of these nine halls is the center of curricular and noncurricular activities, creating a "college within a college" atmosphere.

The concept of the "small college within the larger university" was introduced at MSU by the establishment of the Justin S. Morrill College, and was expanded by the establishment and opening of the James Madison College and the Lyman J. Briggs College. James Madison offers a curriculum for the study of public policy problems within the framework of the social sciences and related disciplines. Lyman Briggs makes available a liberal curriculum for students especially interested in science and mathematics.

In the land-grant tradition it pioneered, Michigan State University is concerned with research and service as well as teaching. All colleges and the Agricultural Experiment Station are engaged in a wide range of research. Approximately 3,000 individual projects are in process. The University's research tools include the Control Data 6500 computer, a cyclotron of the sector-focused type capable of accelerating protons to 50 MeV (60,000 miles per second), and the MSU Observatory which houses a 24-inch reflecting telescope, a computer and related equipment. Facilities are acquired and continually adapted to strengthen the research capabilities of the University.

Through an agreement with the Energy Research Development Administration, MSU has become a national center for basic research on plants and their reactions to radiation; involved is a $2 million building, a staff of approximately 90 persons and an annual budget of approximately $1 million.

Benefits of the University are brought to every county in Michigan by the Cooperative Extension Service and the Continuing Education Service. Their programs, on and off campus, provide a wide range of technical information and formal course work for hundreds of thousands of Michigan citizens. The Kellogg Center for Continuing Education, one of the finest conference centers in the nation, annually hosts nearly 50,000 adults who come to the campus for some 600 conferences and other educational meetings.

In broadening the scope of educational opportunity, MSU is building on its long experience in continuing education to develop a Lifelong Education Program which will offer University resources to persons who are educationally or economically excluded from the traditional campus programs; to those who seek new skills or wish to update present skills; and to those who wish through education to make their leisure time more productive. The Program also will enable the University to cooperate with local communities in assessing, developing, and expanding their continuing education projects.

Michigan State University's land-grant concept of service is international. Supported by grants from the federal government and private foundations, Michigan State University maintains research and educational assistance projects on a world-wide basis. International projects have given many faculty members overseas experience, adding a new dimension to their teaching.

With more than a century of educational achievement behind it, Michigan State University continues to apply its academic and physical resources to the problems of today and the challenges of the future.

HONORARY DEGREES

CHARLES EAMES

Your widely acclaimed achievements in design and architecture have ranged from furniture creation through film-making and multimedia productions to the planning of large-scale exhibits and world's fair pavilions. Beginning with your own architectural practice in St. Louis, you were invited to organize a department of experimental design at the Cranbrook Academy of Art. Here, working with Eero Saarinen, you developed prize-winning furniture designs that you would continue to develop and to manufacture. Your creative multimedia productions, first of their kind in our times, grew into such large and truly impressive projects as the U.S. Science Exhibit at the Seattle World's Fair and the IBM Pavilion at the New York World's Fair. The Soviet audiences who applauded your multi-screen "Glimpses of the U.S.A." at the United States National Exhibition at the Moscow World's Fair, and the American audiences who delighted in your Emmy-award-winning "Fabulous Fifties" on television, have since been joined by people around the world who have celebrated our Bicentennial through your "World of Franklin and Jefferson" exhibition. Your prestigious career has been productively intertwined with that of your wife, the brilliant Ray Kaiser Eames, who has won honors equal to your own and served the cause of the arts with equal dedication. Among the many posts of honor and influence that you have held have been the Charles Eliot Norton Chair of Poetry at Harvard and a six-year appointment to the National Council for the Arts. On this occasion, in recognition of your achievement in so many of the arts and your notable public service, Michigan State University is pleased to award you the honorary degree of Doctor of Humanities.

JOHN R. HAMANN

As President and Chief Operating Officer of the Detroit Edison Company you occupy a position of vital importance for the present and future well-being of the people of the State of Michigan. To this high post you bring your long experience in the Production and Engineering Departments and your proven leadership both as a corporate executive and as an officer in the Anti-Aircraft Artillery for five years during World War II. As a Director of a major Detroit bank, of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, and of the Detroit Edison Company, you have provided guidance in a frequently uncertain economic climate. You have served as a Trustee of the Bon Secours Hospital and have participated fully in numerous professional and community organizations. Michigan State University is honored to have awarded you your Bachelor of Science in Mechanical Engineering Degree in 1937 and acknowledges your work for the Engineering Alumni Association with gratitude. In recognition of your service to commerce and to the community, and for your achievement in your profession of engineering, Michigan State University is pleased to grant you the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

ANDREW JACKSON YOUNG

Your brilliant career of service and leadership has been built on outspoken and fearless advocacy of the human rights of all people in all nations. You have served the cause of human dignity with both wisdom and courage while living what the press has called "an authentic American success story." Graduating at the age of nineteen from the pre-medical curriculum at Howard University, you found your deepest calling not in medicine or dentistry but in the Christian ministry. From Hartford Theological Seminary you moved first to pastorates in the South and then to work for the National Council of Churches in New York City. In 1961 you joined the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and served with Martin Luther King, Jr., throughout the most inspiring and successful social movement of our time. In 1972 you became the first black congressman from Georgia for 101 years and were active in vital areas of domestic and foreign policy. In January 1977 you became United States Ambassador to the United Nations. For your service to humanity, both at home and around the world, Michigan State University is pleased to award you the honorary degree of Doctor of Humanities.
