ACADEMIC COSTUME

The pageantry and color at commencement exercises reveal a record of academic achievement of the various individuals taking part in the exercises. The following brief description is given so that the audience may more readily interpret such achievement.

In 1895, the Intercollegiate Commission, a group of leading American educators, met at Columbia University to draft a code which would serve to regulate the design of gowns and hoods indicating the various degrees as well as the colors to indicate the various faculties. This code has been adopted by most of the colleges and universities in America and its use has made identification of scholastic honors an immediate activity.

Three types of gowns are indicated by the code. Those worn by the bachelors have long, pointed sleeves. Those worn by masters have long, closed sleeves with the arc of a circle near the bottom. Doctor's gowns are faced with velvet. The sleeves are full, round and open with three bars of velvet on each sleeve. The velvet facing of bars on the sleeves may be black or the same color as the binding of the hood.

Hoods are made of material identical with the gown and are lined in the official academic color of the institution conferring the degree. If the institution has more than one color, the chevron is used to introduce the second color. Colored velvet or velveteen binds the hoods and indicates the department or faculty to which the degree pertains.

Historical associations of color have been continued to signify the various faculties. Arts and letters can be recognized by the white, taken from the traditional white fur trimming of the Oxford and Cambridge Bachelor of Arts hoods. Red, long traditional of the church, indicates theology. The royal purple of the King's court signifies law. The green of medicinal herbs immediately identifies a medical degree. Philosophy is signified by the color of wisdom and truth, blue. Because through research untold wealth has been released to the world, science is identified by golden yellow. Oxford pink indicates music, and russet brown, the color of dress worn by ancient English foresters, indicates forestry.

The color of the velvet of the hood is distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains. For example, the trimming for the degree of Master of Science in Agriculture should be maize, representing agriculture, rather than golden yellow, representing science.

At Michigan State University, it is customary to identify the candidates graduating from the different departments of study by tassels of the official department color as established by the Intercollegiate Code.

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

Michigan State University, one of the leading land-grant universities and the first agricultural college in America, strives for excellence in affording liberal and practical education for its students in a broad range of human endeavor.

MSU also serves people of the state, nation and world through its numerous research, extension and international programs.

Now in its 124th year, Michigan State University has grown from three buildings and six faculty members to one of the largest universities in the nation. It has more than 3,000 faculty/staff engaged in teaching, research and public service, 386 campus buildings, and more than 5,100 acres of land of which 2,010 acres are in existing or planned campus development.

Today, more than 44,000 students attend the University at East Lansing. About 85 percent are from Michigan; the remainder includes more than 1,200 foreign students from 85 countries.

Founded in 1855 to educate youth for the major occupation of that day — farming — MSU has broadened its offerings to meet the educational needs of today. The University now has a Graduate School and 17 colleges — Agriculture and Natural Resources, Arts and Letters, Business, Communication Arts and Sciences, Education, Engineering, Human Ecology, Human Medicine, James Madison, Justin S. Morrill, Lyman J. Briggs, Natural Science, Osteopathic Medicine, Social Science, University College, Urban Development, and Veterinary Medicine. Some 200 programs of instruction are available to undergraduates; 76 departments offer graduate studies.

MSU has embarked on a $17 million privately-funded capital program to provide greater academic excellence in four key areas. The objectives of the program are:

To build and equip a new major performing arts center;

To complete the first construction phase of a new museum building;

To strengthen the present Library and to establish a "Library of Tomorrow" on campus; and

To endow a number of faculty chairs in pivotal academic disciplines.

The campaign is under the direction of the Office of University Development.

MSU is unique nationally in that the Colleges of Human Medicine, Osteopathic Medicine, and Veterinary Medicine are located on the single campus.

The Honors College, which enables superior undergraduate students to waive normal graduation requirements and undertake individual programs, attracts many of the nation's finest young scholars. Michigan State University also is a prominent sponsor of the National Merit Scholarship Program, which includes an unusually select group of scholars.

One of the many innovations in higher education made by Michigan State University is its system of academic-residence halls. Incorporation of classrooms and faculty offices with living, dining and recreational facilities has given these large dormitories a stimulating academic environment. Each of these nine halls is the center of curricular and noncurricular activities, creating a "college within a college" atmosphere.

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

The concept of the "small college within the larger university" was introduced at MSU by the establishment of the Justin S. Morrill College, and was expanded by the establishment and opening of the James Madison College and the Lyman J. Briggs College. James Madison offers a curriculum for the study of public policy problems within the framework of the social sciences and related disciplines. Lyman Briggs makes available a liberal curriculum for students especially interested in science and mathematics.

In the land-grant tradition it pioneered, Michigan State University is concerned with research and service as well as teaching. All colleges and the Agricultural Experiment Station are engaged in a wide range of research. Approximately 3,000 individual projects are in process. The University's research tools include the Control Data 6500 computer, a cyclotron of the sector-focused type capable of accelerating protons to 50 MeV (60,000 miles per second), and the MSU Observatory which houses a 24-inch reflecting telescope, a computer and related equipment. Facilities are acquired and continually adapted to strengthen the research capabilities of the University.

Through an agreement with the Energy Research Development Administration, MSU has become a national center for basic research on plants and their reactions to radiation; involved is a $2 million building, a staff of approximately 90 persons and an annual budget of approximately $1 million.

Benefits of the University are brought to every county in Michigan by the Cooperative Extension Service and the Continuing Education Service. Their programs, on and off campus, provide a wide range of technical information and formal course work for hundreds of thousands of Michigan citizens. The Kellogg Center for Continuing Education, one of the finest conference centers in the nation, annually hosts nearly 50,000 adults who come to the campus for some 600 conferences and other educational meetings.

In broadening the scope of educational opportunity, the University is responding to the growing needs of non-traditional students who, for a variety of reasons, have interrupted or delayed their college studies. MSU's Lifelong Education Programs and Continuing Education Service augment credit and non-credit programs for work toward degrees, to update current skills, to meet new government or professional requirements, to change career patterns, or to make leisure time more productive.

Michigan State University's land-grant concept of service is international. Supported by grants from the federal government and private foundations, Michigan State University maintains research and educational assistance projects on a world-wide basis. International projects have given many faculty members overseas experience, adding a new dimension to their teaching.

With more than a century of educational achievement behind it, Michigan State University continues to apply its academic and physical resources to the problems of today and the challenges of the future.

HONORARY DEGREES

THOMAS ALVA BARTLETT

In recognition of a distinguished career in which you have been a foreign relations expert and president of two universities, the Association of American Universities has recently asked you to contribute your demonstrated administrative skills as its new President. Holder of two degrees from Stanford University and a degree from Oxford University, where you were a Rhodes Scholar, you served as a member of the United States Permanent Mission to the United Nations from 1956 through 1963. You then returned to the academic world as a university president, first as President of the American University in Cairo and then as President of Colgate University. You have contributed both your foreign relations expertise and your experience as an educator to the United Arab Republic — United States Educational Exchange Commission and have served higher education as Chairman of the Commission of Independent Colleges and Universities. You have been a member of the Advisory Council to the Commissioner of Education and of the Council of Foreign Relations, and are a member of Phi Beta Kappa. Because of your fine service to international understanding and to the administration of higher education, Michigan State University is pleased to award you the degree of Doctor of Laws.

LEONARD V. FALCONE

For more than fifty years you have been one of the most respected and most beloved members of the Michigan State University community. Your work as conductor, composer, and arranger have brought you wide recognition and you are widely acknowledged to be the foremost performer on the baritone horn in the world. At Michigan State we have known you most of all as one of the finest teachers in the history of the University and as the conductor of concert and marching bands that have brought pleasure to us all. Born in Roseto, Italy, you came to Michigan at the age of sixteen and graduated from the School of Music at the University of Michigan in 1926 with a major in violin. You became Spartan bandmaster in 1927 and saw that band grow to eight separate units with a total membership of six hundred persons. Under your guidance the bands have delighted us at over one thousand performances at football games and other athletic events and in concerts in the still fondly remembered band shell on the banks of the Red Cedar. Michigan State University bands have won the widest possible national recognition and are paid the tribute of being widely imitated. Because of your great service in the enrichment of life on the campus and across the nation, and in recognition of your distinguished achievements in the field of music, Michigan State University is pleased to grant you the degree of Doctor of Fine Arts.

JOSEPH LOWTHIAN HUDSON, JR.

As Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of the J. L. Hudson Company and Vice Chairman of the Dayton Hudson Corporation, the eighth largest non-food retailer in the United States, you exercise wide influence in the economy of the nation and in the lives of employees and consumers. As a leader in urban and charitable endeavors you demonstrate that a profound sense of social responsibility can co-exist with sound and innovative business administration. Educated at the Nicholas School and Yale, you have, except for your service as an artillery officer with the United States Army, devoted your entire career to The J. L. Hudson Company, beginning with summer employment while a college student. While serving Hudson's in a variety of executive roles, you have performed distinguished public service as founding Chairman of New Detroit, Inc., as President and Director of the United Foundation, and as a trustee of hospitals, of schools, and of the Founders Society of the Detroit Institute of Arts. Your accomplishments have already been recognized by your receipt of the Detroit Junior Board of Commerce "Distinguished Service Award," of the Metropolitan Council of Churches Laymen's Special Civic Leadership Award, of the B'nai B'rith Humanitarian Award, and of the Wayne State University Builders of Detroit Award. In recognition of both your civic and your business leadership, and to honor your concern for humanity and for the community, Michigan State University is pleased to grant you the degree of Doctor of Humanities.
